BRANCH ORGANIZATION©

Effective: December 15, 1977

Revised: February 2003

Made in the United States of America

Table Of Contents

Chapter 1

Governing Body and Branch Committees

1. GOVERNING BODY: The Governing Body is made up of brothers who are anointed servants of Jehovah God. They act as representatives of the "faithful and discreet slave" class which has the responsibility for giving direction and impetus to the Kingdom work. (Matt. 24:45) While the Governing Body delegates certain details or responsibilities to committees made up of its own members, or committees made up of other dedicated servants of God, or to instruments such as corporations and legal agencies, it always takes the lead for the smooth functioning of the organization and the unity of all of God's people. As the Governing Body, it has the prerogative to use its discretion and look into any matters it deems necessary to examine with regard to the Kingdom work. To oversee various aspects of the work, committees have been established as follows.

2. The Governing Body gives direction to the Branch Committees throughout the world by means of such publications as the Watchtower and Awake! magazines, Our Kingdom Ministry, publications outlining organizational arrangements, as well as various letters to all branches and to individual branches answering local problems. In addition, the booklet Dwelling Together In Unity has been provided, giving certain basic guidelines in connection with Bethel family arrangements, also the booklet, Missionary Counsel Booklet, outlining the basic arrangements for missionaries serving throughout the world under the direction of the Governing Body.

3. Recommendations for all Bethel elders, Bethel overseer, printery overseer, and office overseer, as well as for circuit and district overseers, are made by the Branch Committee to the Governing Body. Other assignments of volunteers are made by the Branch Committee. Instructors for the Kingdom Ministry School or Pioneer Service School also may be appointed by the Branch Committee. —See 2:4

4. Major real estate transactions and significant construction projects that are proposed should be presented to the Governing Body before action is taken. When such projects have been approved then details will be taken care of by the corporation or corporations involved. Arrangements for the dedication of new branch facilities will be handled by the Governing Body.

5. CHAIRMAN'S COMMITTEE: This committee is made up of the coordinator or a representative from each of the five Governing Body committees. It serves to enhance coordination between the Governing Body committees and helps to expedite the flow of work. The members of the Chairman's Committee will serve as chairmen of the entire Governing Body on a rotational basis.

6. The Chairman's Committee of the Governing Body should be alert to see that the Governing Body operates smoothly and efficiently and that there is no unnecessary overlapping of work of the various committees.

7. Reports on major emergencies, disasters or persecutions and any other urgent matters affecting Jehovah's Witnesses will come immediately to this committee and will be taken up with the Governing Body.

8. PERSONNEL COMMITTEE: This committee takes oversight of the arrangements made for the personal and spiritual assistance of members of the Bethel families.—Eph. 4:3; Phil. 2:1-5; Jas. 5:14-16.

9. The Personnel Committee oversees the selection and invitation of new members of the Bethel and Farm families around the world, and handles questions concerning their staying in Bethel service.

10. When new members arrive at Bethel a member or representative of the Branch Committee should speak to them on the importance of looking after their spiritual needs and explain arrangements for providing spiritual assistance to them and for their discussing personal problems with any of the Bethel elders. Every help should be offered to aid new members to adjust to living at Bethel. They will be spoken to about the importance of working whole-souled and putting Kingdom interests first.

11. All Bethel elders should be available to the members of the family who have problems and they should be observant as to any difficulties or discouragement on the part of any member, being ready to offer personal counsel and help. It should be made clear to all elders just what their responsibilities are and what they are expected to do themselves. Meetings, usually about an hour or less, should be held twice each year with all of the Bethel elders in the branch. This is done to provide practical assistance to the Bethel elders in fulfilling their responsibilities. (Please see Branch Organization 2:12) Serious problems may be reported to the Branch Committee. Bethel elders appreciate the value of giving encouragement to fellow workers and commendation for things well done. Efforts should be continued to maintain a good attitude and wholesome spirit among all members, as well as appreciation for their service privileges and a feeling of being needed and appreciated.—Matt. 11:28-30.

12. It should be practical to handle most personal problems locally in the branch, but major questions and problems can be taken up with the Personnel Committee.

13. Copies of Bethel volunteer lists should be sent in with the annual reports for review by the Personnel Committee. International servants should be listed separately.—See 16:27-30.

14. If a member of the family desires to leave, he should submit a written notice to the Branch Committee at least 30 working days in advance if at all possible. In this way arrangements can be made for someone to replace him in the work assignment.

15. When any worker is transferred from one position to another, it would be a good thing to let him know why. Thus he will not wonder if the change is because of a failure on his part, or if there is something on which he should try to improve.

16. PUBLISHING COMMITTEE: This committee supervises the printing, publishing and shipping of literature throughout the world. The committee takes responsibility for the oversight of the factories and properties owned and operated by various corporations used by Jehovah's Witnesses throughout the world, as well as the financial operations of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania and other legal agencies used by Jehovah's Witnesses at the present time. It oversees tax and business matters in connection with publishing the good news of the Kingdom in all parts of the earth.

17. Jehovah's Witnesses in many lands entrust their contributions for advancing the Kingdom work to various corporations and societies organized by Jehovah's Witnesses. Branch offices compile financial reports in accord with the laws of the land and the policies of the theocratic organization. These are considered by the Publishing Committee for their information and are helpful in planning the best use of the funds available to Jehovah's Witnesses for the worldwide Kingdom work. The various legal agencies holding the funds may use this money for payment of invoices, reimbursements, as well as other necessary expenditures. Should conditions in a country change and legal agencies are no longer available to be used, other appropriate arrangements will be made according to the conditions at that time for handling financial operations.

18. Requisitions for normal printing equipment, vehicles, typewriters and other equipment for publishing factories and branches worldwide are approved by members of the Publishing Committee or their helpers after checking. Proposals for major acquisitions of machinery and other expensive equipment are to be submitted to the Governing Body with this committee's recommendations for approving the purchases.

19. Direction for the operations of all publishing factories and maintenance of properties is given by the Publishing Committee with routine matters being handled by the helpers who should keep the committee informed.

20. The Publishing Committee also approves requests for quantities of literature or videos and where they will be produced for the branches throughout the world, taking into consideration production and shipping costs. This committee also supervises the approval of Branch Orders for literature. Branch inventories may be reviewed by this committee.

21. Questions from branch offices relative to publishing, shipping, financial, tax and property matters are given to the Publishing Committee for handling.

22. Questions and recommendations concerning reimbursements and financial matters should be referred to this committee. This includes direction on writing off uncollectable debts between branches.

23. The Publishing Committee supervises the properties and the obtaining of the material needs of the Bethel homes and farms. This includes approving requisitions for purchase of unusual or expensive items for maintenance or expansion of these properties, but routine requisitions for food, linens, housekeeping and maintenance supplies, fuel, furniture, etc., may be approved locally by those having authorization.—See 3:8.

24. SERVICE COMMITTEE: This committee supervises all areas of the evangelizing work, including service matters affecting congregation organization, shepherding activity of elders and traveling representatives who are caring for the spiritual welfare of God's people around the earth, also all pioneer activity. Annual reports from the branches dealing with the field activity worldwide are examined and acknowledged by this committee. The monthly field service reports (S-81) and the missionary home reports (A-24) are also considered by this committee. Assignments of territories to the branches are the responsibility of the Service Committee. (Gal. 2:9) However, each branch makes its own individual territory assignments. Difficult service-related questions and problems that come in should be referred to and will be handled by this committee. The Service Committee supervises preparation of copy for Our Kingdom Ministry and cooperates with the Writing Committee in getting final copy approved.

25. The Service Committee is responsible for calling in Gilead School students and students for the Ministerial Training and Traveling Overseers' Schools. This committee is also responsible for making assignments of students to their places of postgraduate service in the field. All correspondence with missionaries regarding their service is handled by this committee. See also 23:17.

26. Zone visits by members of the Governing Body, or by others who are qualified, are arranged by the Service Committee. (Acts 8:14) If the branches have any questions regarding hospital information matters, these should be addressed to the Service Committee.

27. TEACHING COMMITTEE: This committee's responsibility is to supervise schools, assemblies and Bethel family instruction for the spiritual education of Jehovah's people. The Committee supervises outlining the material to be used in teaching and takes oversight of the various departments that are now responsible for this education. It handles oversight of the Audio/Video Services Department and development of all new audio and video programs.—Isa. 54:13, 14; John 6:45.

28. The committee is responsible to see that there is a proper arrangement and time allotment for each of the congregational meetings. This committee works in close cooperation with the Service and Writing Committees.

29. Fields of instruction handled by this committee include the following: 1. Watchtower Bible School of Gilead; 2. Kingdom Ministry School; 3. Theocratic Ministry School; 4. Bethel Entrants' School; 5. Program at Bethel table; 6. Bethel Family meetings; 7. International Conventions; 8. District Conventions; 9. Circuit Assemblies; 10. Special Assembly Days; 11. Radio and TV programs; 12. Pioneer Service Schools; 13. Literacy classes; 14. News Service; 15. Ministerial Training School; 16. Traveling Overseers' School; 17. Branch School; 18. All audio and video programs.—See 23:17.

30. The Teaching Committee endeavors always to provide the necessary instruction and arrangements for building up spiritually the elders, publishers, Bethel families, newly interested persons and others, encouraging all to 'pay constant attention to themselves and to their teaching.'—1 Tim. 4:16.

31. Branch Committees should make their own local organizational arrangements for their circuit assemblies, special assembly days and district conventions.

32. WRITING COMMITTEE: This committee supervises putting the spiritual food into written form for publication and distribution to our brothers and the public in general.

33. The publications that this committee supervises include the Watchtower and Awake! magazines, all bound books, booklets, pamphlets, tracts, final copy for Our Kingdom Ministry, handbills, Bibles, or any revisions of these. It responds to questions about the meaning of certain scriptures and points presented in the publications, also questions about doctrines or morals that do not deal with or related to specific problems in the congregations, or the standing of persons in the congregations. It approves the scripts for dramas, and talk outlines and manuscripts. This includes unique branch materials such as tour brochures, public relations brochures and tracts, and dedication brochures.

34. The Writing Committee supervises the translation work done throughout the earth. This includes giving approval for the translation of audio and video programs into additional languages.

35. BRANCH COMMITTEES: Jehovah's Witnesses through their Governing Body operate branch offices located in most of the principal countries of the world. The Governing Body of Jehovah's Witnesses approves of the recommendations for elders who will serve on the Branch Committees for such offices. The Branch Committee has the responsibility for the oversight of the preaching of the good news of Jehovah's Kingdom in the territory assigned to the branch. Within this territory it also gives the necessary supervision to the Christian congregations, missionaries, special pioneers, pioneers, and interested ones, organizing the congregations into circuits and districts and making recommendations to the Governing Body for the appointment of circuit and district overseers, Bethel family members and students for Gilead School.

36. It may be sufficient to have three members form the Branch Committee in some branches, but in large branches where other factors are involved, such as printing operations, extensive territories or a variety of languages, it would seem advisable that the membership of such a committee be five or more, providing an opportunity for additional elders to be familiar with the details of the work in that particular branch area. For example, in a large branch the Branch Committee might include the following: A printery overseer. His responsibility would be oversight of all printery operations, printing, binding, shipping, and other matters related to the operation of the printery. The Bethel overseer would have oversight of operations in the Bethel home: laundry, housekeeping, kitchen and dining room, and other matters related to the care of the family, Bethel home and grounds. The office overseer might be assigned oversight of correspondence, Service Desks and other office functions related to the branch operation.

37. All maintenance of the buildings would be best cared for by one department. The same would be true for the purchasing of material for the home, printery, or offices. Assigning or scheduling the use of vehicles would be best cared for by one department. Because some of these oversight responsibilities might overlap, depending on local conditions, the Branch Committee would decide under whose jurisdiction some departments would be placed so that there is a balanced distribution of oversight responsibilities.

38. It is desirable for one or more members of the Branch Committee to be citizens of the country where the branch is located. Nevertheless, in all cases, spiritual qualifications should be viewed as of greatest importance. The appointment as a member of the Branch Committee or to a position of oversight in the branch organization is not for any specified period of time. On the recommendation of the Branch Committee, the Governing Body will be pleased to consider the recommendation for adjustments, or removal, or reassignment of individuals having in mind the advancement of the Kingdom work.

39. LEGAL ENTITIES AND THE WORLDWIDE ORDER: Branch Committee members should have a clear understanding of the relationship among the Governing Body, Branch Committee, the legal entities used by branches, and the Worldwide Order of Special Full-Time Servants of Jehovah's Witnesses ("Worldwide Order").

40. Our Master, Jesus Christ, has appointed "the faithful and discreet slave" over all his 'belongings,' or Kingdom interests, here on earth. (Matt. 24:45-47; Phil. 2:21) The Governing Body, representing "the faithful and discreet slave," has delegated a measure of this oversight of the spiritual and material welfare of the "flock of God" to Branch Committees throughout the world. These committees also oversee administrative and legal activities of the organization in their designated territories. Of course, all Branch Committees serve under the spiritual direction of the Governing Body.—See The Watchtower, January 15, 2001, pages 28-31.

41. Branch Committees are encouraged to register and use a recognized legal entity to carry on the legal affairs of the branch. (See 9:10-12) Depending on local laws and circumstances, a branch may use more than one legal entity to further the work in its territory. Some countries do not allow the registration of religions or the formation of a legal entity of a religious character. In such countries, it may be necessary to use a legal entity that is of a general nonprofit or, in a rare case, a for-profit nature. In any case, the Branch Committee must not lose sight of the fact that our main purpose is to spread the good news of God's Kingdom under Christ Jesus and our main activity is religious, even though some aspects of our endeavors are educational or charitable in nature.

42. Members of the Worldwide Order serve at all branches and provide the personnel needed to operate the various functions carried on by the legal entities the branches use. (See 2003 Yearbook, page 30.) For this reason, it is important for Branch Committees to understand what the Worldwide Order is and the relationship between it and the legal entities branches may use.

43. The Worldwide Order is an unincorporated association made up of all those in special full-time service throughout the world. Members of the Worldwide Order are baptized ministers in special full-time service who perform whatever assignment they receive from the Worldwide Order. Each member of the Worldwide Order signs a Vow of Obedience and Poverty ("Vow"), which is a voluntary commitment made by each member. The Worldwide Order sees to it that each member of the Order receives basic necessities, regardless of the member's assignment or the legal entity through which the member serves.

44. The Worldwide Order provides ministers for the legal entity or entities used by the branches to carry out the spiritual activities of Jehovah's Witnesses. (Rom. 12:1; Matt. 24:14; 28:19, 20; Acts 1:8) Members of the Worldwide Order are not compensated and do not receive in-kind benefits for any services they perform for a legal entity. The support a member receives is based on the member's commitment to the Order stated in the Vow and is not related to any service performed or the nature of any assignment. Members of the Worldwide Order receive food, shelter, and other basic necessities. Regardless of the nature of their privilege of service, all receive modest, yet appropriate support. In view of the foregoing, the activities of any legal entity used by the Branch Committee are not to be viewed or regulated as a "commercial" enterprise or as involving an employer/employee relationship between any legal entity and members of the Worldwide Order.

45. At times authorities attempt to categorize the endeavors of those in special full-time service as secular "work." As Christians, we do have a "work" commissioned to us. (John 4:34; 5:17; Acts 13:2; 1 Cor. 15:58; 16:10; 2 Tim. 4:5) However, members of the Worldwide Order are motivated, not by pecuniary gain, but rather to accomplish the will of Jehovah and Jesus Christ in helping all to "attain to repentance." (2 Pet. 3:9) Even so, in keeping with Jesus' admonition, Branch Committee members and those who serve under their oversight need to exercise caution when asked to describe the nature of our activities. (Matt. 10:16) While we do engage in "work," even as Jesus and his first-century disciples did, we are certainly not secularly employed or motivated.

46. Although many countries provide tax exemptions for religious entities, some countries do not. Tax exemptions are generally created by law and are usually not a legal right. Where required to do so by Caesar, legal entities used by branches should pay the taxes legally required of them, even if other religious entities do not follow the law. Conversely, legal entities used by branches should not pay taxes where there is an accepted legal basis for not doing so. Every Branch Committee should take full advantage of any legal exemption from taxation. (See 9:19) Branch Committees should keep in mind that how they handle tax and legal matters (including the tax or legal status of those in the Worldwide Order) could have implications for other branches, the worldwide organization, and the Worldwide Order. If a Branch Committee feels that it should describe itself, its legal entities, or the Worldwide Order differently than set forth above, it must first provide details of the proposed adjustment to the Governing Body for direction.—See 2:81; 6:52-54.

47. BRANCH COMMITTEE COORDINATOR: Each Branch Committee has a coordinator appointed by the Governing Body. He is responsible for coordinating the daily routine of work and for handling such matters as the Branch Committee may delegate him to care for. He is responsible to send reports and information to the Governing Body and also to keep the local Branch Committee informed of all communications received from the Governing Body, as well as of any details pertaining to local corporations, property, equipment, production, legal questions and the overall state of the Kingdom work. He should keep a brief record of each Branch Committee meeting showing the date of the meeting, the persons present and major points considered.

48. CHAIRMAN: Each Branch Committee has a chairman who will serve as such in the rotation arrangement for a period of one year with the rotation taking place

January 1 each year. When the coordinator rotates into the chairmanship, he can call upon another member of the committee to assist him in certain committee matters as he finds it necessary. The chairman is to keep order and see that committee decisions are carried out. He should notify all members as to time of meetings.

49. If some individuals become unable to accept all assignments in connection with the Branch Committee and its rotation, they may still be retained as members of the committee, and in this case the committee may wish to recommend an additional person to help out with some of the supervisory work done by the Branch Committee. Nevertheless, the older and experienced members will be available to give information and provide counsel, which can be very valuable. In line with the above it is not necessary for every individual to take the chairmanship in rotation if one does not feel that he is in a position to serve effectively.

50. BRANCH COMMITTEE RESPONSIBILITIES: The committee has the general oversight of the work in the field as well as the work in the branch. It should make decisions on what must be done and assign responsibility for carrying out decisions to one of its members who should follow through, expedite the work and report to the committee upon completing the assignment. The Branch Committee has the liberty to call in for consultation other elders and individuals who are able to supply the vital statistics or facts that will help the committee in reaching conclusions.

51. The Branch Committees are to serve as representatives of the Governing Body in the territory to which they are assigned following the Scriptural direction and lead given by the Governing Body. Branch Committees are authorized to appoint congregational overseers and ministerial servants, to establish congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses and to appoint and assign regular and special pioneers.

52. It is not required that the entire Branch Committee must in every case approve appointments of congregational elders and ministerial servants. We recommend that the Branch Committee be practical in handling such matters, especially if certain ones are located some distance from the branch office. The Branch Committee can decide just how to handle such matters and who or how many of the committee should approve of the recommendations. It seems reasonable to have only two or three members responsible for making appointments in many places; however if there are any questions or special problems, they can be saved for consideration by the whole Branch Committee. But for ordinary and routine appointments, we do not feel that the whole committee necessarily has to sit and approve each one. In large branches they may wish to use a desk man or men in the Service Department to assist them in making appointments. (Acts 14:23; Titus 1:5) The committee should come to an agreement as to how they want to handle this. This also applies to deletions unless death or disfellowshipment are involved.

53. The Branch Committee is responsible to keep the Governing Body informed on the progress of the Kingdom work in the territory assigned to the branch. All the members of the committee should share in taking the oversight of the work. Each should have his regular assignment of service at the branch or in the field according to his circumstances.

54. Brothers given any position of oversight should appreciate that their appointment comes from Jehovah by holy spirit through his visible organization and that they were put in the position of oversight to shepherd the congregation of God. The congregation does not belong to them; it is God's congregation and they are responsible to Jehovah, the "chief shepherd."—Acts 20:28, 35; 1 Pet. 5:1-5.

55. Those who are appointed to oversight should show humility and pray that they may manifest the fruitage of the spirit. (Gal. 5:22, 23) They should have a disposition that will help them get along with all people, serving their brothers humbly. (John 13:14, 15) These qualities should be developed further with the help of God's holy spirit, as overseers show loving-kindness towards all those they shepherd in the congregation of God, as well as those outside the congregation, the "strangers."—Isa. 61:5.

56. All branch volunteers should work closely with a congregation, attending meetings regularly and sharing in the service for their own spirituality as their health and circumstances permit. The fact that one is on the Branch Committee does not mean that he must be given special deference in the congregation, but he should take his part in the congregational arrangement as anyone else would do.

57. Overseers should set an example when it comes to the work, not taking time for personal matters or giving all of the responsibility to others. They should be willing to work with their brothers at any task. They should be interested in preaching and teaching and in the organization. On the other hand, they should not think that they must do all of the work, but they should let other people help and be trained to take on responsibility. If an overseer in a branch organization is going to give instructions and directions to others, he certainly should be a person who can take instruction. He should be anxious to know what the Scriptures require of him and what the Governing Body has directed. By being able to organize his own daily routine of work, he shows that he can be of assistance in organizing the activity of God's people throughout the territory. We appreciate that members of the Branch Committee especially are given great responsibilities. Therefore, these privileges of service must be taken seriously because the lives of many people are involved as we endeavor to see that Jehovah's will is carried out.—Luke 12:48.

58. The Branch Committee has the responsibility to keep the organization clean and in harmony with Jehovah's Word. They themselves must live up to the Scriptural requirements for elders and see that others who have oversight also measure up to such requirements. They must be courageous in seeing to it that all unrepentant immoral persons and evildoers are removed from the congregation of God as well as seeing to it that only persons who qualify, that show their fitness, are permitted to continue on as members of the Bethel family. Any who are disfellowshipped should have their names announced to the family and be dismissed. If some show that they are lazy, stubborn, or unchristian in their actions they may be dismissed as Bethel family members on the recommendation of the Branch Committee. Questionable cases may be referred to the Personnel Committee with a recommendation and explanation.

59. The Branch Committee coordinator as well as the other members of the Branch Committee should be careful never to deal harshly or unkindly with other servants in God's congregation but always to hear both sides of the question and use the spirit of a sound mind and be mild tempered. (Matt. 20:25-27) They should always be careful to keep confidential those matters told them in confidence, and not to talk to their wives or others about individuals' problems or confidential matters in the organization.

60. Building up the respect of the brothers for Jehovah's visible organization is necessary. Christians should always feel free and welcome to come to the branch office or to anyone in the branch office with their problems. The Branch Committee coordinator and other specially appointed representatives of Jehovah's organization within the Bethel home should be willing to handle problems, treat them confidentially, show kindness, patience, self-control, and above all, the quality of love. (1 Tim. 5:1, 2) If they do these things, the brothers will have respect for them and for the branch organization.

61. The Branch Committee members should always manifest mildness and respect for one another and for the opinions of others on the committee as well as in the Bethel family. They should show due respect for the principles and policies set down by the Governing Body which are supported by God's Word, remembering that the "discreet slave" has been appointed by the Master to give the domestics "their food at the proper time."

62. Branch representatives should be sure not to be hasty in giving counsel. If one is not sure of the counsel that God's Word gives, it is best to speak to others about the matter and do research before giving an answer. If a branch representative takes hasty action and later changes his mind as to the course he first advised, the brothers will soon lose confidence in his soundness of judgment. His counsel should always be in harmony with God's Word and he should use the spirit of a sound mind. It is Jehovah's Word that should be the basis for all decisions.

63. Nothing contributes more to the happiness of the brothers than the conviction that they are loved and appreciated. (1 Cor. 8:1; 13:4-8) Continue to reflect Jehovah's great love for his sheep. It is helpful for committee members to make periodic visits to each department where they will try to speak briefly to each worker with words of appreciation and encouragement. (See 28:4) Our Bethel service is sacred service directly related to Kingdom interests. Many young people today have never learned to work diligently. Encourage our brothers to be productive workers, being on time and doing good quality work. Talk about cultivating a spirit of contentment at their present work assignment rather than always looking for something that they might think is a 'better work assignment.' Help family members to maintain a good balance between Bethel service and congregational activity. In their enthusiasm to help the congregation, some spend so much time in the preaching work and Kingdom Hall building projects that they lack the energy to work hard at Bethel. On signing the application for Bethel service, all have affirmed the statement: "I will give that assignment of service (Bethel) priority over all other activities." All serving as productive workers will help avoid unnecessary increases in the size of the Bethel family.

64. The handling of the branch office and its correspondence may vary in different branches due to the size of the organization and number of congregations, pioneers, special pioneers, missionaries and other representatives of the branch serving in the field.

65. Some branches have a large staff with many assistants in the branch and discretion should be shown as to what work the Branch Committee coordinator will do in harmony with the direction of the Branch Committee. On the other hand, where the branch is small, the Branch Committee coordinator should be able to handle any office work assigned to him by the Branch Committee without difficulty and without asking others to assist. In fact he may only have to work a few days a week in the branch office. The rest of the time he can then spend in the house-to-house witnessing in an assigned territory trying to build up the local congregation.

66. In small branches it may be the Branch Committee coordinator can also be assigned to serve as district overseer at times if this does not require him to be away from the branch very long. Or it may be that he can share in the circuit work for a week or two out of the month to keep him in association and in close touch with the congregations. If this is the case another brother should be appointed as the district overseer for circuit assemblies.

67. The Branch Committee arranges for circuit overseers to visit the congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses at regular intervals and may make adjustments in the appointment to oversight of elders and ministerial ser- vants. If it is found that any such no longer qualify Scripturally, the committee may appoint other persons to act in such place as the holy spirit may direct.

68. The Branch Committee has authorization to appoint special pioneers to the number approved for that territory by the Service Committee, in consultation with the Publishing Committee. They can appoint as regular pioneers as many persons as meet the qualifications for such service and who are so recommended by the congregational service committee. The Branch Committee will assign territory to congregations, pioneers, special pioneers, missionaries and isolated publishers and should receive regular reports from all preachers of the good news in their respective assignments.

69. The Branch Committee has the responsibility of looking after the branch's properties, receipts and expenditures, paying authorized bills, handling legal matters, and appearing in court when necessary. The Branch Committee should arrange to keep such books and records as the Governing Body and the government of the land require. All books of record should be kept in good order and up to date for review by the zone overseer on his periodic visits.

70. All members of the Branch Committee should set a good example spiritually and morally for the brothers, preaching the good news of the Kingdom publicly as opportunity affords and circumstances permit. As with all elders, the members of the Branch Committee have the opportunity of setting a fine example in giving public talks.

71. The Branch Committee has the special responsibility of caring for the welfare of all of God's people in the territory assigned and of keeping the Governing Body informed as to the progress of the work, as to any problems or difficulties encountered, and of making suggestions as to how to overcome them and advance the work in harmony with God's Word. The branch office will keep in regular communication with all of the congregations and pioneers, special pioneers, missionaries, circuit and district overseers and other assigned representatives in the field. At all times their concern must be for Christ's brothers and his other sheep and for the vindication of Jehovah's sovereignty.—1 Tim. 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-9; Phil. 2:1-4, 19-21.

72. MEDICAL CARE FOR SPECIAL FULL-TIME SERVANTS: The Branch Committee should feel a certain responsibility to assist with the medical needs of brothers and sisters in special full-time service. It is appropriate to show consideration and helpfulness toward all in special full-time service. We want to see that all such volunteers are kept in good health. The longer one is in the special full-time service and the older that one becomes, the more consideration can be shown. However, if a person has been less than five years in the special full-time service and it is found that he really is not physically or otherwise able to meet the requirements of that service, it may be necessary to let him transfer to the pioneer service or to whatever he is able to do and let him take care of any future health needs.—See 2:57-62.

73. It is the intention that a portion of the reimbursement and the Personal Expense Account (PEA) be used for incidental medical expenses. However, Branch Committees should not insist that all funds in a full-time servant's Personal Expense Account be exhausted before the branch will assist in covering medical expenses. Other emergencies may arise during the year requiring that the individual draw on funds in his Personal Expense Account. When major medical costs are involved for those in special full-time service five years or more, we are willing to cover these if the branch feels it is appropriate and sends a recommendation to that effect. Of course, if a person is in a position and wishes to cover such expenses himself, if his family or the congregation wish to assist, or if he has insurance or other governmental provisions available, that is appreciated. But, if an individual feels that his health care needs are beyond what he can reasonably cover, he may ask for assistance. The Branch Committee can approve requests for such expenses up to U.S. $1,000. If the expense is in excess of that, the matter should be presented to the Publishing Committee with the recommendation of the Branch Committee.

74. For those who are recently enrolled as special full-time servants, it may be appropriate to arrange such financial backing on a loan basis. But for those who have been in such special service for 5 years or more, consideration may be given as individual circumstances require. Special consideration should be given to those who are 50 years of age and older and have been in the special full-time service for 15 years or longer. When brothers have spent a number of years in special full-time service and some disabilities arise, the branch looks after them and arranges for them to do service according to their physical ability.—See 2:61, 62; 8:13; 17:45.

75. At times those in foreign service (Bethelites in foreign service, international servants, or missionaries) prefer to receive medical treatment in their homeland. They can make such a request. However, it may be that very good medical treatment can be found within the country or in a nearby country. This also should be investigated. If the individual has to return temporarily to his home country for medical care and he is not in a position to cover the travel costs, the Branch Committee may recommend to the Publishing Committee that we pay all or part of the transportation costs.

76. EMERGENCY MEDICAL CARE: If any brother or sister in special full-time service is taken ill suddenly and medical attention or hospitalization is needed, the branch will see to it that proper care is given immediately and the branch will bear the cost of the expense if the individual cannot do so. If the special full-time servant wishes to assist in caring for these expenses, he may.

However, the Branch Committee should not pressure one to do so.

77. In connection with all accidents occurring on the job, the branch should take care of the expenses for any special full-time servant, whether young or old. The branch will bear such costs resulting from accidents, but the Branch Committee should report to the Publishing Committee any unusually large expenditures in this connection. Individuals may request that Personal Expense Account credits be applied to such costs, but they are not required to do so.

78. RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE GOVERNING BODY: When recommendations are sent to the Governing Body for elders to serve on the Branch Committee, in the circuit or district work, or as Bethel elders, please use the form "Recommendations to Governing Body." A separate sheet should be submitted for each type of service privilege. It will be appropriate for all of the committee making the recommendations to sign the form if possible, or for the one signing to indicate that all members of the Branch Committee have agreed to the recommendations being made if that is the case. A copy will be returned to the branch with the approval shown thereon.

79. Please inform us when any elder appointed by the Governing Body terminates his eldership for any reason or if one is transferred from one branch of service to another, or from Bethel to circuit or district work, so we can keep an accurate and up-to-date list. Deletions of Bethel elders and traveling overseers may be listed as such on the recommendations form when new recommendations are being submitted to the Governing Body. Deletions will not be acknowledged unless there are some questions.

80. BRANCH MEETINGS AND COMMUNICATIONS: The Branch Committee decides when to hold its regular meetings, according to the needs of the work. The committee should not postpone giving attention to its responsibilities or delay in providing the brothers with such information as may be needed in order to expedite their work. It is suggested that in large branches there can be a weekly meeting of the Branch Committee, but special meetings may be held when problems arise. In small branches meetings can be held less frequently, according to what may be practical, and also depending on the location of the members of the Branch Committee. For obvious reasons it is good if all members of the Branch Committee can live close enough to the branch to be generally available for such meetings. Minutes should be kept of all Branch Committee meetings.

81. The committee should always be available for the needs of the work. If some member is indisposed or absent, the committee can still function if there is a majority of the members present.

82. Committee decisions should be unanimous. If there is a difference of opinion and no unanimous agreement, then the matter can be referred to the Governing Body for decision. Furthermore, if the committee judge that a matter is of great importance, they should not decide it themselves, but send it to the Governing Body with any observations or recommendations they may have. It is left to the Branch Committees to give any details they believe pertinent to the subject when they report such cases to the Governing Body for consideration. If you wish to show the number voting for and the number voting against a certain issue you may do so. Certainly it would be necessary to have both sides of the question presented to the Governing Body. We would like to know why some individuals are for and why some individuals are against. If the chairman of the Branch Committee wishes to ask individuals of both sides to write their opinions he can do that. Then the chairman can send them all to Brooklyn. Or the committee itself can prepare the full report and send it on so that the Governing Body will be able to hear the matter first and then make its decision.

83. In view of the times in which we live and the possibility that great difficulties may arise in some countries, if not all, provisions should be made to try to keep the Kingdom work going, and especially to look after the flock of God no matter what circumstances or difficulties may arise. If a country should become isolated by war or other adverse conditions and it is impossible, at least for a time, to have any communications with the Governing Body, the Branch Committee will carry on in looking after the congregations and those who are dedicated servants of Jehovah God. Especially in a time of trouble it is important for the sheep in a flock to have spiritual food and guidance. Encouragement should be given to them to have regular meetings and continue worshipping Jehovah God. If conditions allow, publications will be provided. If new publications are not available, counsel can be given to review past publications and to study the Bible itself, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together even though it may be in small groups.—Heb. 10:24, 25.

84. If conditions develop to the point where any members of the Branch Committee are taken away, those who remain should consider the qualifications of other proven elders who have years of experience in the work, and if there is a possibility of communication, make the recommendation of these to take the places of those who are not able to serve. If communications with the Governing Body are not possible, then the replacement elders can be asked to serve temporarily, and they can be made familiar with the functions of the branch organization and share in the shepherding of the flock. Every effort should be made to have committee meetings from time to time, depending on the conditions. If any individual member of the Branch Committee should find himself under surveillance and it is not advisable for him to try to meet with other members of the committee he may be able to send word to them concerning his position. In that event, another elder may be asked to step in temporarily to share in the activities of the committee. If conditions develop to the point where it is impossible to hold meetings because of a scattering of the committee, then each individual should continue to do what he can to shepherd the flock, having in mind what Jesus said at John 10:11-15, and always remembering to seek the guidance of Jehovah God through prayer.

85. Every effort should be made to communicate with the Governing Body if conditions will allow, and if it will not jeopardize the interests of the work. The Branch Committee in each land will know what the circumstances are and will seek the guidance of Jehovah and make a decision as to what is the best course of action at the moment. The Governing Body does desire to receive the reports and news concerning the Christians scattered throughout the world, but since future difficult conditions may develop, these provisions are set forth in connection with the functioning of the Branch Committees.

86. It will be practical if communications sent to the Governing Body can always be in English. Circumstances in some lands may prevent this. If one who knows English is taken away, the Governing Body will be pleased to receive communications in any language. However, communications in English may be answered more quickly than those received in other languages.

87. In order to expedite the handling of mail and to give good service to the organization throughout the world, the branch offices should write separate letters on subjects for attention by the respective Committees. For example, if the letter is for the attention of the Publishing Committee, please indicate this in the heading of the letter. In this way, when the branch mail is opened it can be distributed quickly, decisions made and answers given. If the letter is of a general nature, however, or contains several small points to be considered by different Committees, then it may simply be marked for attention by the Governing Body.

88. Envelopes from the branches may be addressed to the World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses, 25 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, New York 11201-2483, USA. Note the exception in 13:15.

89. EMERGENCIES: From time to time emergency situations arise throughout the world. Sometimes there are violent, damaging storms, floods or strong earthquakes. At other times brothers may be forced to flee from their homes because of war conditions or mob violence. When these problems occur it is proper for the branch offices to communicate with the headquarters in Brooklyn and explain what is happening and make a recommendation as to what might be done. When these reports come in, the Brooklyn headquarters would appreciate it very much if you would be able to state what the local brothers are able to do and what materials or facilities you have available to take care of the immediate needs of the brothers who have been affected by such disasters. However, at times it may not be possible for the branch to communicate quickly with headquarters, or there may be a need to do something immediately for some of the brothers who have been affected by the disaster. Therefore all of the branches will be allowed in these circumstances to spend up to $5,000 immediately for temporary relief and assistance to the brothers who are involved in major disasters. When this occurs the information will be included in the communication that is sent to Brooklyn. It is necessary to report how money is used in connection with the disasters and relief efforts because we are keeping a humanitarian aid account in addition to maintaining our established relief account in Brooklyn, and it is our wish to make appropriate charges on these accounts just as we do if we send funds to a branch to take care of a disaster situation.

90. HUMANITARIAN AID: In addition to major disasters, many of our faithful brothers suffer medical problems beyond their financial needs. As you are aware, Organized to Accomplish Our Ministry, pages 122 and 123, shows the first responsibility for such matters rests on the family of the individual, although at times material and other assistance is available through the congregation or through governmental or social agencies. When the individuals have exhausted such possibilities, the branches occasionally get pleas for assistance in connection with the necessities of life to help them obtain critical medications or with the cost of an operation. If the Branch Committee feels it is appropriate to assist financially in certain deserving cases because of lack of other support, it is left to the discretion of the committee to handle such matters, even up to US$1,000. Any request for humanitarian aid covering medical purposes beyond that should be referred to the Publishing Committee with an explanation and recommendation. Branch Committees will need to handle such matters with discretion and confidentiality so that the provision is not abused. Generally, this arrangement should be the exception rather than the rule. This information is not for publication to the congregations. However, if a congregation initiates a request for help from the branch, you may act upon it. This is in harmony with the generosity and kindness shown by the first-century congregation.—Rom. 12:13.

91. COUNTRY COMMITTEE: Where a Branch Committee is overseeing the work in more than one country, it has been found advantageous to establish Country Committees under the supervision of the branch office. This is done where there is a need to have staff in that land for administrative purposes. The Country Committee is composed of mature Christian elders recommended to the Governing Body by the Branch Committee. The brothers on the Country Committee will be responsible for the administration of the office and Bethel home in the country where they serve, handling correspondence, finances, and reports. Other countries may have no office at all because the work in those countries is under ban, but Country Committees may be appointed in such lands. They are authorized to make appointments of congregation overseers and ministerial servants. They make recommendations to the Branch Committee for brothers and sisters to serve as special pioneers and will generally cooperate with the Branch Committee for the advancement of the work in the country where they serve.

92. Country Committees are authorized to answer questions that local elders may have regarding judicial and other matters. If there is any uncertainty as to how such a matter should be handled, Country Committees will contact the Branch Committee. They will also contact the Branch Committee if there is disagreement about how a matter should be handled, even as a Branch Committee inquires of various Governing Body committees when the brothers on it have differing views on how something should be done. (Whether a Country Committee will tabulate the field service reports or send them directly to the Branch Committee for handling will be determined by the Branch Committee.) Country Committees will arrange for locations and times for circuit assemblies, special assembly days, and district conventions. The Country Committee does not need to recommend speakers to the Branch Committee or have its approval. Assignments for speakers are made in the country by the Country Committee or under its supervision. Literature distribution to the congregations should be handled as directed by the Branch Committee and a decision will need to be made as to how the literature depot will be set up and operated if one is not already in operation.

93. The Country Committee will recommend to the Branch Committee any brothers who might be used in the circuit or district work. The Branch Committee will send recommendations for the traveling overseers to the Governing Body. Any major problems or questions that the Country Committee cannot resolve in line with Branch Organization or policy letters should be referred to the Branch Committee. All mail from the Country Committee intended for the Governing Body or its committees, or for other branches, should be sent through the Branch Committee. Of course, if communication with the Branch Committee is not possible due to bans, persecution, or similar problems, it may be necessary to send information directly. When necessary, the Country Committee may write a letter to the Governing Body, but in such cases the letter should be sent through the Branch Committee so that if necessary they may write their comments in a covering letter to the Governing Body. Generally speaking, the Country Committee will not write directly to other branches. If persecution, natural disasters, civil strife, or other such problems, prevent communication with the Branch Committee, the Country Committee will give the needed supervision to the work until conditions return to normal and contact with the Branch Committee can resume. This would also mean that if there are any relief measures to be taken in behalf of the brothers, the Country Committee will give the needed oversight, bearing in mind the directions provided in Branch Organization related to such aid. It will keep the Branch Committee informed if at all possible.

94. The everyday oversight of the missionaries and missionary homes is under the jurisdiction of the Country Committee. However, problems such as illness, emergency leave, and any difficulties that require attention by a Governing Body committee, should be reported to the Branch Committee with the recommendations of the Country Committee. The Branch Committee, in turn, will write to the appropriate Governing Body committee, providing all of the details. In lands where there may be translation offices or literature depots, the personnel will be under the oversight of the Country Committee.

95. The handling of legal matters and the registration of legal entities will be under the direction of the Branch Committee. However, the Country Committee will be consulted as needed.

96. Each Country Committee member should have a copy of Branch Organization. Each one serving on the Country Committee should familiarize himself with the contents of this publication since much of what appears in it has application in principle to the work handled by a Country Committee.

97. The Branch Committee will recommend to the Governing Body which brother on the Country Committee should serve as coordinator. He will be responsible for coordinating the daily routine of work. A chairman will serve in a rotational arrangement for a period of a year following the same pattern as for Branch Committees.—See 1:47, 48.

98. Generally, a Country Committee will meet each week, or perhaps every second week, depending on matters needing attention.

99. It is hoped Branch Organization will be most helpful to all Branch Committees and Country Committees. The portions which apply to other volunteers should be made available to them so they will know how to properly discharge their assignments of service. It would be good for each member of the Branch Committee to read this publication through from time to time so that he is acquainted with branch procedure and policy. All within Jehovah's organization have to look to him and ask for the guidance of his spirit on their overseership to have his favor and blessing on their activities. They should recognize the instructions as they come through the Governing Body to all divisions of the organization. The Branch Committee should be foremost in recognizing theocratic instructions, studying them and applying them. If all on the Branch Committee, as well as others given assignments of service in the Bethel home, study this material, or the part that applies to their assignment, then it will be possible for all to work in unity and cooperation worldwide in the discharge of their duties. Branch Committee members especially should be well acquainted with the details in this manual so that they can help others within the branch organization to accomplish their work.

100. For the most part the things set out herein can be followed in all parts of the world. However, in lands where there are difficulties due to persecution or ban, then the Branch Committee may find it necessary to modify certain procedures or practices after consulting with the Governing Body.

Chapter 2

Bethel Family

1. The Personnel Committee of the Governing Body oversees the selection and invitation of new members of all the Bethel families. An application form (A-8) should be properly filed with the Branch Committee and kept on file for all members of each family. This application is first approved by the Branch Committee and then the essential information, that is, full name, date of birth, date of baptism, anointed or other sheep, marital status, male or female, years in full-time service, current assignment, recommended for what job at Bethel, and reasons as to why he is needed in Bethel service, should be sent to the Personnel Committee at Brooklyn, New York, for final approval. A few branches may find it necessary to invite persons to assist on a temporary basis. See that anyone who works at Bethel has meaningful work to do. If there is not enough work for a person to do, it is best that he be utilized in the preaching work. Branch Committees have the authority to call in those who serve as temporary workers for three months or less. However, when individuals are invited in on a Bethel application with the intent to keep them as temporary workers for one year or as regular members this should be approved by the Personnel Committee.

2. When making recommendations of new ones for Bethel service, please keep in mind that the age requirements are from 19 to 35 years of age. Those under 19 years of age should not be recommended. Special circumstances from time to time may require recommending a mature brother with a special skill to serve at Bethel although he is a little over 35 years of age. But this should be the exception. If such a recommendation is made, please tell the Personnel Committee why the brother is needed and what efforts have been made to find someone else who meets our basic requirements. We need to be careful in screening the applicants so that each one invited to Bethel is able to be a productive worker. At times an older married brother with special skills may be invited. Though the brother may be an excellent worker and fill a need, in some cases the older wife finds it difficult to adjust to Bethel, or perhaps she has health problems that make her a below-average Bethel worker. Although one department may benefit, another loses.

3. When someone leaves Bethel service, his name should be given when asking for a replacement. Those approved by the Personnel Committee may then be invited to become members of the Bethel family. In most countries when one becomes a member of the Bethel family, he takes a vow of obedience and a simple vow of poverty. (See 1:43) He is released from these vows while on vacation.

4. The first year, for new members of the family, is a year of training. Elders working closely with the new brothers should endeavor to help them appreciate their privilege of sacred service at Bethel in hopes that they will want to continue for many years. However, if some do not prove suitable for Bethel service the new member should be made aware of this as soon as it is observed and appropriate counsel can be given. It would be unkind and unscriptural simply to tell one at the end of the year that he has not proved satisfactory. Of course anyone may be dismissed or asked to leave at any time for improper conduct or for any other circumstance that may interfere with his Bethel service. In any case, such matters should be explained to him in a kindly manner and in a way to help him to make progress whether he stays at Bethel or leaves. We do want to help the new Bethel family members make a success of their service at Bethel with the goal in view of progressing in their theocratic activities.

5. BRANCH COMMITTEE: Since the Branch Committee acts representatively for the Governing Body, they will be keenly interested in the spiritual welfare of the family. An effort should be made to maintain a wholesome spirit among all the members of the family. It is good to welcome suggestions and use them if advisable. Members should feel that the Branch Committee is there to help and of course the members of the committee should be approachable at all times.

6. BETHEL ELDERS: Bethel elders are those who qualify to serve in a special capacity in Bethel in addition to their assignment as elders in a congregation. They are appointed by the Governing Body from recommendations made by the Branch Committee. The qualifications of all brothers in Bethel who have served as congregation elders for at least three years should be reviewed at least once each year to see if they qualify to be recommended as Bethel elders. Recommendations to the Governing Body by the Branch Committee should show the date of birth of those recommended, date of baptism, and the reasons why those recommended should be Bethel elders.

7. Qualifications of all elders are found in 1 Timothy 3:1-7; Titus 1:6-9; 1 Peter 5:2, 3, and in other scriptures. A Bethel elder not only meets the Scriptural qualifications for elders in a congregation, but does so in a fuller and more complete way, so that he is equipped to handle more exacting responsibilities in the realm of Bethel service.—Luke 12:48.

8. The qualifications as stated in 1 Timothy 4:12 to be “an example to the faithful ones in speaking, in conduct, in love, in faith, in chasteness” should be applied when recommending a Bethel elder. This would include his conduct in the home, at work, at the table, and in all of his affairs, even those outside of the congregation. Does he build up and support the operation of the Bethel home, or is he unjustly critical and a complainer? Does he take his assignments cheerfully and is it pleasant to work with him? Is he approachable and one whom the brothers would want to go to with their problems? If married, does he fulfill the Scriptural requirements of a Christian husband? Is he a good example for all in the family?

9. Very young brothers or those new in the Bethel family who have not demonstrated their qualifications long enough would most likely not be recommended. The Branch Committee should not be hasty in making its recommendations even though some persons may qualify in their local congregations. (1 Tim. 5:22) If in doubt, it is best to wait. But all who do qualify should be recommended. Circuit and district overseers who become members of the Bethel family may be recommended whenever it is felt appropriate, perhaps after a short period to adjust to Bethel service, if it appears they qualify. One who is a Bethel elder would not usually be removed unless guilty of serious misconduct. Older brothers who are elders may not be able to speak as well and do as much in the field service as some of the younger brothers, but there is no reason to remove them if they do qualify Scripturally and their judgment is good. These older ones do serve as fine, loyal examples in the congregation of God and at the Bethel home where they live and work.

10. It may be that a brother qualifies as a Bethel elder because of his good judgment and is well respected and can give wise counsel to the brothers and sisters. However, he may not have all the qualities of a public speaker who could be assigned out to serve other congregations. The Branch Committee could recommend him as a Bethel elder, but he would not be used for speaking assignments. Later on he may improve and could be used as a public speaker also. The Branch Committee will decide this when appropriate.

11. In some larger branches it may be advantageous to have elder groups made up of Bethel elders to share in the responsibility of assisting the Branch Committee as they take care of the brothers and sisters who are members of the Bethel family. (Titus 2:6, 7) The elder groups may help in making recommendations or with any problems that individuals may have. In this respect they do not decide on the every-day operation of the branch or changes that are to be made. They principally assist in giving commendation and in caring for personal problems. Of course, the Branch Committee is free to seek information or suggestions from such elder groups.

12. Branches should arrange to have a Bethel elders' meeting twice a year. Responsible Bethel elders can be asked for their suggestions on subjects to be discussed. Thereafter, the Branch Committee can assign committee members or selected Bethel elders to develop outlines and present these in brief talks to the assembled elders. This regular communication with the Bethel elders is helpful in keeping them well informed and provides an opportunity to encourage them and assists them to fulfill their responsibility within the branch arrangement. The Branch Committee may request sample outlines from the Personnel Committee for such meetings if they desire.

13. BETHEL SPEAKERS: Often congregations near the branch office will write the branch requesting a public speaker from among the elders on the speaking list at Bethel. Bethel speakers may be supplied to the congregations within a radius of 200 miles of Bethel if that is practical for your country. The travel distance should be limited to allow the speaker to return by train or bus or private transportation to Bethel and get a good night's sleep Sunday night so that he will be able to do a good day's work on Monday. If any speakers make their own arrangements with congregations, they must take care of expenses for travel. This applies also to requests for speakers from over 200 miles away which must be handled on a private basis.

14. Only elders who are well-qualified speakers should be sent out by the branch. Not all elders are qualified speakers. When congregations request speakers and assignments are made, the public speaker appointment letter (S-35) will be sent to the congregation and the speaker will be sent the Bethel Speaker Appointment Slip (S-37). Generally we do not assign brothers away from their congregation on speaking assignments more than once a month.

15. On completing the assignment the speaker will fill out the form (S-37) and turn it in. The branch will pay only the round-trip fare of the speaker on these appointments. Often the congregations reimburse the speaker for his carfare or are pleased to help with the cost of transportation. If the speaker is married and his wife travels with him, she must pay her own fare as it is not covered by the branch. If a brother uses his own automobile for transportation, then he may be reimbursed at the same amount per mile or kilometer for gasoline as is given for circuit overseers in your country. (See 4:74) If the congregation does not supply meals, the speaker may be reimbursed for this expense also.

16. Bethel speakers are expected to share with the congregation in the field service the weekend of their public talks according to local arrangements.

17. AVOIDING PARTIALITY: Individuals do have problems large and small and they desire to have someone with whom to talk, so that they may ask questions and receive Scriptural counsel and guidance. The Branch Committee will need to be good listeners and show kindness and patience.

18. All Branch Committees are asked to give careful and prayerful consideration to avoiding partiality in the branch organization and in Bethel, doing so as a committee and not just as one member thereof. (Jas. 3:17, 18; Rom. 2:11) In keeping with 1 Timothy 5:17, 18, when there may be reason to provide something extra for someone, it should be done openly and in a manner that all will appreciate and understand, thus eliminating any appearance of secrecy or favoritism. Thus individuals who may be involved in such matters, whether receiving extra help or doing any work in connection with it, will understand the situation and there will be no reason for gossip or hurt feelings.

19. It is proper to commend the brothers and express appreciation for their work. Assure them that they are needed. This does much for their happiness and a happy family is a productive family.—1 Cor. 12:25, 26.

20. OVERCOMING PROBLEMS: Anyone in the home should feel free to talk to any Bethel elder about any problem he may have. If it has to do with a problem at work, it is usually best to talk with the department overseer. However, anyone may go to any Bethel elder if there is some personal reason for doing so. If it is urgent and one wishes to leave a work assignment to talk with an elder about some personal problem, he should explain this to the work overseer and get permission to leave. If the problem needs immediate attention, the Bethel elder should do what is necessary, but otherwise he will make an appointment that will not disrupt the work.

21. If a married sister has a problem, she should talk this over with her husband first. (Eph. 5:22, 23) If this is a work problem, her husband may suggest that his wife go to her work overseer or the two of them may wish to go to him. If necessary they may take the problem to the Branch Committee. Single sisters may approach any Bethel elder for counsel. It may also help younger sisters to get a more balanced view of things if they talk with some of the older sisters.—Titus 2:3-5.

22. When brothers have problems among themselves that they cannot settle, they should feel free to approach any of the Branch Committee or any of the elders in the family. If problems are allowed to grow, if ill feelings spread, and personal differences become magnified, the work suffers. There are many reasons why problems arise, but there is no reason why they should continue.—Jas. 3:2, 10, 17, 18.

23. All Bethel elders should have the same concern Paul had as expressed at 2 Corinthians 11:28, 29. The Branch Committee especially should be alert to help the family keep a balanced view of matters.

24. Some brothers try to impose their consciences on others and insist that everyone see things their way. (Rom. 14:1-4) Others may look for something to criticize and then build up a list of complaints, trying to get support from others. (Rom. 12:17, 18) Older brothers may use 1 Timothy 5:17 to suggest they should have special privileges and be an exception to others. Rather, all should take to heart Luke 22:25, 26 which explains that all are brothers. If a sister, especially the wife of one of the overseers, feels she has special privileges, or if she insists on saying how things should operate, there will be problems. (1 Tim. 2:11, 12) Usually some kind, understanding counsel will correct any such trends before they become deeply rooted.—Gal. 6:1.

25. The Branch Committee should be able, calmly and Scripturally, to help the brothers keep a right balance and find joy in working together in the home.

26. JUDICIAL COMMITTEES: Anyone coming to know of serious misconduct on the part of a member of the Bethel family should advise the offender of his obligation to bring this to the attention of the Branch Committee or of a Bethel elder. The one having knowledge of the offense should also make a report to the Branch Committee so that the organization will be kept clean. (Lev. 5:1) This should be done whether the offender follows through or not.

27. PROCEDURE: If the elders of the congregation a Bethel family member is attending become aware of an accusation against the Bethelite, they should immediately contact the branch office for direction. If the accusation involves the Bethelite’s conduct with someone in his congregation, or if the offense was committed in his congregation environment, the Branch Committee may determine that it will be most practical to have the local elders investigate and handle the case to the extent necessary. Otherwise, the matter will be handled at Bethel. In either case, two elders will investigate the allegation. If the accused is under consideration for a theocratic assignment, it should be held in abeyance pending resolution of the case. If, after investigating, the Bethel elders determine that the charges have no substance or that no further action is needed, they should inform the Branch Committee in writing of their findings. If the Bethel elders determine that a disfellowshipping offense has been committed, the Branch Committee will appoint a judicial committee.

28. JUDICIAL COMMITTEES IN THE CONGREGATION: If it has been established that a Bethel family member has committed a disfellowshipping offense that involves his congregation, the congregation body of elders should inquire of the branch office immediately as to how to proceed. The branch office will determine whether the local body of elders should convene a judicial committee, or whether the case should be handled by a judicial committee at Bethel. If the local elders are directed to appoint the judicial committee, the case will be handled in an expeditious manner just as a judicial case would be handled for any publisher in the local congregation. They would immediately advise the branch office of the final decision.

29. JUDICIAL COMMITTEES AT BETHEL: These are appointed to handle offenses that are the basis for disfellowshipping the same as handled in the congregations. The judicial committee and its chairman are appointed by the Branch Committee. Qualified Bethel elders who are in a good position to render a balanced and just decision would be appointed. Though the judicial committee is usually made up of three Bethel elders, it could include four or five due to the gravity of the offense and other factors. Branch Committee members would not serve on judicial committees if other qualified brothers are available to do so. Thus, if needed, some Branch Committee members would be available to serve on an appeal committee. Though the judicial committee may want to consult with members of the Branch Committee before reaching a conclusion, the judicial committee alone should make the decision. The report to the Branch Committee will be made out using the form Judicial Committee Summary at Bethel (A-7).

30. APPEAL COMMITTEES AT BETHEL AND IN THE CONGREGATION: If the judicial committee's decision is that the Bethel family member is disfellowshipped (either at Bethel or in the congregation), he may make an appeal in writing to the Branch Committee. The Branch Committee will select an appeal committee of Bethel elders, one of whom will be appointed to serve as chairman. The appeal should be heard in an expeditious manner even if the basis for the appeal does not appear sound. In the case of disfellowshipping, he should be given the usual seven days to make this appeal even though he would normally leave Bethel on the day the original decision was made. No announcement of the disfellowshipping should be made until either the appeal has been heard or seven days have elapsed.—*ks*91, pages 121-2, 124.

31. If one is disfellowshipped or judicially reproved and therefore must leave Bethel, a letter should be sent to the body of elders of the congregation that he will attend so that the elders may be able to assist him to regain his spirituality. A copy of the judicial committee's report (either from Bethel or from the congregation) should be sent to the Service Department which will write the letter to the body of elders. In the case of disfellowshipping, the form Notification of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation (S-77 or S-AB-77) should also be included. Branches that use the S-AB-77 form should also use the S-79a and S-79b cards. If reinstated, the S-77 form (or the S-79b card) should be signed and returned to the Service Department. An announcement should be made to the Bethel family in cases of disfellowshipping. In the case of those judicially reproved, the Branch Committee should use good judgment in determining whether or not an announcement should be made.

32. ROOMING: Rooms are assigned according to individual seniority based on time spent in full-time service of the senior roommate. (See 2:42-44; 17:47, 54.) When the one who obtained the room leaves it is put up for bid again. As a general policy two persons are assigned to each room. The Branch Committee should take into consideration such matters as the number of rooms available and the number of people to be housed, the size of the rooms, age, health, years of service, and other factors. In some isolated instances involving elderly persons or other extenuating circumstances, adherence to the policy of two persons to a room may result in distress and hardship to one or both roommates. If a problem arises that the Branch Committee is not able to solve, they may write to the Personnel Committee making recommendations and explaining the problem.

33. VACATION TIME: Vacation time is a period of exemption from regular work granted to a worker for rest and relaxation. It can be used to attend Christian assemblies, share in field service, see to personal matters, travel, visit friends, or do whatever a person desires within Christian prerogatives. (Col. 3:23-25; 1 Cor. 10:31) The following vacation arrangements for Bethel family members which apply vacation time to working days only also apply to circuit and district overseers and school instructors except for the provision for Saturday mornings off.—See 4:77.

34. Vacations are allowed to all members of the Bethel family according to service months and service years. A service month begins with the first day of any month and ends with the last day of the same month, for example, March 1, 2003, to March 31, 2003, inclusive. A service year begins on September 1 and ends on August 31, inclusive.

35. All who come to Bethel are granted one day of vacation for each full service month in Bethel service, or 12 vacation days for each full service year. Partial months do not count for vacation time. These vacation days may be used as desired after they are earned or allowed to accumulate to be used at any other time. Vacation is credited to a person after the end of a calendar month, not during the month. If one has worked the full month of March, from March 1 through March 31, he is granted one vacation day that he may use in April, or later on.

36. Additional vacation time, when granted, is always credited on September 1, at the start of the next service year, and never during the service year. No one can give his vacation time to another person, with the exception that married couples may share vacation time.

37. FIRST INCOMPLETE SERVICE YEAR IN BETHEL SERVICE: When one first enters Bethel service, he will receive one vacation day for each full calendar month that he or she has worked. Again, partial months in which one has worked do not count for vacation time.

38. ADDITIONAL VACATION DAYS: After two complete years or more in Bethel or another form of full-time service, or upon reaching the ages of 45, 60, or 65 (as explained later), additional vacation days will be granted, as follows:

39. One additional vacation day will be given for each two full years of full-time service seniority until 36 years have passed. At this time an individual will receive 12 regular vacation days for his work and an additional 18 days will be granted for his faithful years of service. To illustrate how this arrangement will work: Those who have been in Bethel or another form of full-time service for two complete years will receive one extra day of vacation thereafter; those who have completed six years will receive a total of three additional days of vacation thereafter, and so on. These days will continue to accumulate until 36 years and 18 additional days of vacation have been reached which would be the maximum that anyone could receive for any one year. These additional days will be added to vacation time on September 1 for the coming service year. For provisions for Bethel workers who are Gilead graduates see 8:30, 33.

40. AGE AND ADDITIONAL VACATION DAYS: When one reaches the age of 45, prior to completing 12 years of full-time service, he will be granted 6 extra vacation days and will continue to progressively increase his vacation time the same as those who have served at Bethel or another form of full-time service 12 years or more. This will become effective at the end of the service year during which he or she becomes 45 years of age.

41. When one reaches the age of 60, prior to completing 24 years of full-time service, he or she will be allowed 12 extra vacation days per service year. This will become effective after the end of the service year during which he or she becomes 60 years of age. When one reaches the age of 65, prior to completing 36 years of full-time service, he or she will be allowed 18 extra vacation days per service year. This will become effective after the end of the service year during which he or she becomes 65 years of age.

42. UNINTERRUPTED FULL-TIME SERVICE: Members of the Bethel family who have served in Bethel or in the district, circuit, missionary, special or regular pioneer service will receive credit toward additional vacation days. This credit toward additional vacation days will be made on September 1 of the first service year after entering Bethel. Those leaving Bethel, the district, circuit, missionary, or special pioneer service and entering regular pioneer service will not experience an interruption in their full-time service if they apply and are appointed as regular pioneers within three months. Those coming to Bethel from district, circuit, missionary or special pioneer service will have their vacation records transferred to Bethel.

43. INTERRUPTED FULL-TIME SERVICE: Members of the Bethel family who have served in Bethel or in the district, circuit, missionary, special or regular pioneer service previously, but who have had to leave that service will receive credit for their previous service toward additional vacation days. So, if an individual had to go home to take care of an incapacitated, aging parent, for a year or more, regardless of how long the interruption may have been, and thereafter returns to full-time service, he will still get the benefit of his former full-time service. This credit will begin to count toward additional vacation days on September 1 of the first service year after entering Bethel.—See 2:79.

44. This will affect some seniority dates which are considered in assigning Bethel rooms, and other matters where seniority is involved, including Personal Expense Account credits. Of course seniority and Personal Expense Account credits also take into consideration the actual date of entering or reentering full-time service.

45. UNFORESEEN CIRCUMSTANCES DURING VACATION: If, while on vacation, some unforeseen circumstance would arise where one would desire more of his earned vacation time than he had given notice of, he should inform the branch office by telephone of the additional days he will be away. Upon returning to Bethel a vacation notice should be submitted for the additional days taken. If one gets sick while on vacation, he cannot expect that the time he is away sick will be allowed him on another occasion. These sick days while on vacation will be counted as vacation time. It is wise to save vacation time for unexpected occasions.

46. SATURDAYS OFF: Brothers under 50 years of age are allowed to take two Saturdays off during each full calendar month of service. Brothers from the ages of 50 to 60 years are allowed to take three Saturdays off. Brothers 60 years of age and older are granted all Saturdays off. Field service is encouraged in connection with the use of some Saturdays off. Additionally, all elders and ministerial servants serving at Bethel may have time off from Bethel work on Saturday to work with their congregations during the visit of the circuit overseer. This time off is only available for that purpose.

47. Sisters under the age of 30 are allowed to take two Saturdays off during each full calendar month of service. Sisters from the ages of 30 to 40 are granted three Saturdays off. Sisters 40 years of age and older may take all Saturdays off.

48. Anyone taking such Saturdays off should give written notice to his overseer one full week in advance so that plans can be made for a replacement if necessary. Brothers 60 years of age and older and sisters 40 years of age and older need not turn in a notice, except when turning in vacation notices.

49. Saturdays off cannot be used during another month. They are not deducted from vacation time. They can be combined with vacation time. A brother who has arrived during a part of a month will not get any Saturday off during that first calendar month. When he enters his second calendar month at Bethel, he may use his allotted Saturdays off as described above if he turns in his notice a week in advance.

50. TIME OFF FOR CONVENTIONS AND VACATIONS: The Governing Body determines the number of days off for members of the Bethel family to attend a convention. If days off are allowed for the Bethel family to attend a convention, the branches will be notified. If it is a four-day convention, this would be two and a half working days off; if it is a five-day convention, this would be three and a half working days off, or whatever time is allowed for the convention. This time is specifically set aside to enable Bethel family members to take in a convention and should not be used for any other purpose.

51. Since members of the Bethel family are allowed certain Saturdays off each month, one may wish to use this time off in connection with the district convention time. He may use this as a half day before the convention or after the convention to travel. He should, of course, put this in with his notice to leave for his district convention. Other than this, one is not allowed to leave early or take other extra time to travel to a convention or on vacation unless it is taken from vacation time.

52. One is allowed to have Saturdays off to attend the circuit assemblies as well as the special assembly day of his assigned congregation when these fall on a Saturday. This is so he may be with his congregation to assist and get the full benefit of the spiritual feast, setting a good example to all.

53. Written notice should be submitted at least one full week before taking such time off. Time off is not given to go to any other circuit assembly or special assembly day except in such cases where the work of the member of the Bethel family requires his attention, in which case he can be off from his work for the purpose of attending the Saturday program of an assembly of another circuit. These would be exceptional cases and would need to be worked out by the individual member of the Bethel family and his overseer.

54. EXTENUATING CIRCUMSTANCES: Members of the Bethel family are normally allowed to arrange their vacation time as they prefer and to divide the time as they wish, but not less than one-half days. However, this is subject to the requirements of the work at Bethel.

55. The Branch Committee may find it necessary at times to control the number of those who are away from Bethel at any one time. Extenuating circumstances may arise which the committee concerned can consider and decide what is best and reasonable in line with the above provisions. The Kingdom interests should be foremost in all our endeavors.—Matt. 6:33.

56. MEDICAL CARE AND EMERGENCY MEDICAL NEEDS: See 1:72-77.

57. FIRST FIVE YEARS AT BETHEL: A person who comes to Bethel should be in good health and have his personal affairs so arranged that he will be able to devote himself to his Bethel service within the framework of the arrangements we have for vacations, health care, and so forth. In other words, he should be physically, mentally and circumstantially able to adjust to Bethel and give consistent attention to his work assignment.

58. What if individuals in their first five years of Bethel request time away from work other than their vacation time? It could be to care for some health matter, or possibly a family emergency such as a death in the family. While it is not desirable for individuals to be away from Bethel other than during their vacation, there could be a reason making it necessary. Each request would have to be handled individually, taking into consideration the recommendations of Bethel elders, the individual's attitude, work habits, general health, the valuable experience, knowledge and ability he has gained and can contribute to the work, and so forth. There is no automatic arrangement for one to take time away from Bethel family responsibilities other than vacation time to care for personal family matters. However, this could be done with concern for the individual and with the interest of the Kingdom work in mind. In some cases it may be best for the individual to leave Bethel and reapply when he has his affairs in order again. In any instance where one is granted time because he is in need of health care outside of the regular provisions at Bethel it is understood that the individual will pay his own expenses.

59. In the case of a married couple, the above would apply to each one individually. That is, each one should have good health and be able to shoulder his or her own responsibility as a member of the Bethel family. If time away from work has been granted to a married person to care for a health matter, emergency or a Scriptural responsibility and the mate feels he or she should go along, this may be all right. However, the Branch or other appropriate committee would have to give its approval, taking into consideration what has been stated above. Where a married individual has a particular contribution to make to the Kingdom work, more than the usual consideration might be shown that one, especially where one has been in Bethel service for many years, though the marriage partner may be relatively new.

60. If during his formative years as a member of the Bethel family it is noted that he misses a number of work days, say 15 to 20 days in a year's time, the committee will want to be aware of this. Was there a case of unusual prolonged illness, accident or operation, or is the person's health generally poor so that it is expected he will miss a similar amount of work each year? Was there an unusual family emergency that took time to care for, but not likely to be repeated? While these are matters that were considered when one was being trained during his first year, they should continue to be given careful consideration during the first five years of one's Bethel service. There is no need for individuals to lose their vacation because they missed a certain amount of work, but we do want to consider with individuals whether Bethel is really the place for them. The goal is to keep the organization strong, and yet at the same time give consideration to the needs of individuals. The Personnel Committee can be consulted in unusual cases.

61. After one has been at Bethel for five years he is reasonably well established as a member of the Bethel family. Unexpectedly he may develop a health problem or be faced with a family emergency or a Scriptural responsibility that may take him away from his work and even from Bethel for quite a time during the year, perhaps beyond the period allowed for vacation. In these cases, while there is no automatic arrangement for one to receive time away from work, the longer one has been at Bethel and the older that one becomes, with more years of unselfish devotion to Jehovah's service, the more consideration can be shown.

62. If one is still relatively young even though he may have been at Bethel for more than five years, he should be able to do his work without missing a great deal of time. If such a one consistently misses work due to poor health or other problems, the committee will want to consider what can best be done to help him. In some cases it may be he should consider leaving Bethel if there is no reason to believe that there will be improvement. Of course, if one has spent a good portion of his life in Bethel service and works diligently to the extent his health permits, we certainly want to look after such a person and not in any way make him feel like a burden to Bethel. When members of the Bethel family have spent a number of years in special full-time service, perhaps fifteen or more, and some disabilities arise, the branch will make some provision for them and arrange for them to do service according to their physical ability.

63. If more than 24 working days away from Bethel are needed in any one service year, beyond what is allowed for vacation, to care for health, family emergencies or one's Scriptural responsibility, the individual's years of service and the contribution he is making to the work at Bethel would have to be weighed in making such an allowance of time. If the Branch Committee believes the time should be granted in these unusual cases, they should provide the Personnel Committee with the necessary facts with their recommendation and should await a reply.

64. In any case where the Branch Committee may not be unanimous, they may write the Personnel Committee if time permits, and, if time or the urgency of the situation does not allow for this to be done, the majority decision of the Branch Committee should hold.

65. In an exceptional case a member of the Bethel family may need several months to care for a Scriptural responsibility, and it may be that such a one could leave Bethel and be encouraged to return as soon as matters have been cared for. While we could not guarantee that he would be able to keep the room he leaves, it might be possible that for a period of a year the room could be used as a guest room. Then, if he came back within a year, he could return to the same room. He could either take his furniture with him, leave it in his room, or we could store it if space allowed. The details would have to be worked out with concern for the arrangement at Bethel and the needs of the individual in mind.

66. REIMBURSEMENTS: The reimbursements given Bethel family members may change from time to time and each branch receives direction from the Governing Body regarding this matter. The amounts that pertain to each branch are shown on the Record of Reimbursements form (A-29). Concerning reimbursements for those serving abroad, see 2:80.

67. Reimbursements should always be set in even units of currency. Any odd amounts will be dropped. The reimbursements for the Bethel family may vary slightly from country to country due to local circumstances.

68. Where a Branch Committee coordinator and others are working in a branch only part time, say two or three days a week, and the rest of the time is spent in the missionary field or other full-time service, the monthly reimbursement is adjusted according to the time spent in the branch and the time spent in the other full-time activity. For example, if a branch worker works three days a week, eight hours a day, then he would be in the branch office twelve days a month. This is about half of the working days of the month and so he would get half of the Bethel reimbursement and half the reimbursement for his other full-time activity. Adjustments can be made from time to time according to circumstances or according to recommendations of the zone overseer, if approved by the Publishing Committee.

69. Those in special full-time service living in the branch always receive the established monthly reimbursement.

70. ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS: Some branches have requested what has been termed a "travel reimbursement" for Bethel family members to help them get to meetings and in service. Where a Branch Committee sees a need, additional travel assistance can be given to persons in the Bethel family, special pioneers, missionaries, and international servants, in the form of the Automobile Expense Account (AEA). This is slightly different from the provision made for circuit overseers since the cost of operating a vehicle for Bethel family members is often supported by ride contributions from passengers. The amount helps cover vehicle expenses in connection with fuel and current operating cost but not depreciation expense. Bethel family members are encouraged to car pool wherever possible to reduce costs. Each individual will need to keep a daily and monthly record of congregation mileage activity in order to submit periodic requests for a credit of the AEA mileage or reimbursement which may also be done periodically. AEA funds should be requested by the end of the calendar year if desired. December's AEA request should be submitted no later than January 25 of the following year. It is not approved to carry over funds from one calendar year to the next.

71. To qualify, an individual must have at least a properly licensed four-passenger vehicle and a valid driver's license. Requests should be based on the distance to the individual's assigned congregation, covering miles or kilometers traveled to congregation meetings, elders meetings, field service, shepherding, responsibilities in assigned circuit assemblies and special assembly days. Privately-arranged travel to give talks in other congregations or to assist other congregations with maintenance or construction or to district conventions or for shopping or visiting friends would not be covered. The credit is based on current fuel prices for diesel or regular grade gasoline as established by the Branch Committee at the beginning of each calendar year and may be figured at up to but not exceeding 8 percent of the cost of one gallon of such fuel or 19 percent of the cost of a liter of regular grade gasoline or diesel fuel for each mile or kilometer respectively. An annual limit should be established by each branch up to a maximum of 12,000 miles or its equivalent depending on local needs. Requests for AEA reimbursement may be submitted by filling out the Auto Expense Account Requisition (AO-5).

72. PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNT: Members of the Bethel family each have what is called a Personal Expense Account. This account is for one's personal needs, health, and so forth. A ledger sheet will be made out for each member of the Bethel family, missionary, special pioneer, circuit and district overseer. This account is customarily credited only once a year on January 1 and may not be drawn on until such credit is given on January 1 for the previous year, except for persons going to Gilead, or those leaving special full-time service. (See 8:6.) While a certain sum is stipulated for each month of the preceding year for each individual, it is not customarily credited until the beginning of the following calendar year when the credit is given in a lump sum. A statement should be issued showing the balance before the credit, the amount of the credit, and the current balance as of January 1 each year. When a person leaves special full-time service, we will close out his account by issuing a check if the balance is over U.S. $1. Anything less is considered a donation. (See 17:48, 49.) This arrangement is also provided for international servants and full-time commuters. Anyone going to Gilead or leaving special full-time service before the start of the calendar year may request PEA funds for the months he has served, and he will be given those funds. Except on request, no payments will be made for partial years for someone leaving special full-time service.

73. The amount of credit as shown on the Record of Reimbursements form (A-29) is raised the month after a person has passed the five- or ten-year mark.

74. These accounts may be kept either in U.S. dollars or in local currency. It is often convenient to keep the account in local currency but when that is the case the payment should not exceed the dollar limit at the current exchange rate. When the account is kept in U.S. dollars the reimbursement against the account will customarily be given to members of the Bethel family or others in special full-time service in local currency at the current rate of exchange. At no time will any change be made in credits for Personal Expense Accounts without first consulting the Publishing Committee. The same is true with regard to credits for circuit overseers, district overseers, missionaries, and special pioneers. These reimbursements are established by the Publishing Committee and are recorded at each branch on the Record of Reimbursements form (A-29). Starting with the credits to the PEA accounts beginning May 1, 2000, the categories for PEA will depend on the cost of living. Persons with a seniority of from one to five years should receive 75 percent of the maximum PEA which is received by those with ten or more years of seniority. This should be rounded in local currency not to exceed that amount. The five- to ten-year category would receive 88-1/2 percent of the maximum PEA. The maximum PEA figures would be US$30 for branches with a cost of living under US$200; US$35 for branches with a cost of living between US$200 and US$400; US$40 for branches with a cost of living between US$400 and US$600; and US$50 for branches with a cost of living over US$600. However, the PEA figures should be in harmony with the recommendation of the Branch Committee up to the amounts mentioned according to the local need for the brothers who are special pioneers, missionaries, circuit overseers, and Bethelites, as approved for their country.

75. In some countries there are full-time workers in a branch office that live outside with their families. These principally are translators and special reimbursements are designated for them. They do not come under the rules of the full-time members of the Bethel family that live in the Bethel home. Their reimbursements are specially arranged by the branch with the Publishing Committee.

76. To obtain funds from the Personal Expense Account, an individual must make request by requisition, which in turn is checked to see if the balance is available in the account and then approved for payment, but never for more than one has in his account. Receipts for paid bills should be submitted if the branch needs to have such for tax or other legal reasons and in this event the receipts are attached to and filed with the requisition. If in such a branch needing to have the receipts, someone needs funds before making the purchase, he should later file purchase receipts covering the reimbursement.

77. A husband is permitted to use credit on his Personal Expense Account for payment of bills for his wife or immediate family, or a wife may pay the bills of her husband or family from her account. In the event of the death of a mate, the surviving mate may benefit from the balance left in the PEA of the one who is deceased.

78. It is recommended that the Personal Expense Account be used as needed rather than all at once early in the year, especially with a view to maintaining some balance in the event of health needs.

79. Personal Expense Accounts are closed out if one leaves the lists of those in special full-time service (Bethel, circuit and district, missionary, or special pioneer) for a period of more than three months. For example, if one left Bethel on March 31, and began special pioneer work July 1, his Personal Expense Account would not be closed. He had a break of three months, but not more than three months. However, if it is necessary for a member of the Bethel family, for example, to go home for even four or five months or some such period to take care of certain family obligations, and the Branch Committee receives approval from the Personnel Committee of the Governing Body for emergency or health leave, we still consider the person as a member of the Bethel family, and so the Personal Expense Account is not canceled as would be the case if someone dropped out of the special full-time service for a period of more than three months of his own choice. The reimbursement may also be given while on short emergency leave in such special cases if it seems appropriate due to years of service.

80. All those regularly assigned to special full-time service in a certain country will receive their Personal Expense Account according to the amounts approved for the country where they are serving regardless of their country of origin. If an individual wishes to have the credit that he receives on his PEA paid out in another country, that can be done on request with payments being made in the currency of the other country up to the amount approved for the country in which he is serving. All those in special full-time service who are serving temporarily away from their usual assignment three months or less may receive the Personal Expense Account payments according to the rate in their home country, even for the months they are serving abroad. For those serving abroad for a period more than three months, the Personal Expense Account payments will be prorated and for the months they are serving abroad they will receive payments according to the rate approved in the country where they are serving. The same arrangement applies to monthly reimbursements. If the person will be away for more than three full months as of January 1, the country where he is serving should receive information providing the balance in his PEA account and the necessary figures so that the branch where he is temporarily assigned can handle it for him until he returns to his usual assignment.—See 8:23.

81. TAXES AND INSURANCE: Any kind of individual income taxes collected by the government on income as well as any kind of compulsory insurance which applies to members of the Bethel family and others in special full-time service in the country, will be paid by themselves.—See 1:45-46; 6:52-54; 9:19.

82. INSURANCE ON VEHICLES, BUILDINGS AND PROPERTY: In most countries there is compulsory third-party (liability) insurance on vehicles and the organization complies with the law by getting such insurance on its own cars and trucks. This third-party insurance covers other persons and property, not the branch's. We do not generally buy insurance to cover fire, theft, vandalism, or collision on branch vehicles, unless required by law.

83. We do not generally carry insurance for members of the Bethel family or others in special full-time service on their cars or property. Any costs for such insurance will be covered at the expense of the individuals. The Society does not accept responsibility for loss of things kept by brothers at Bethel. However, exceptions may be made on the recommendation of the Branch Committee to help those in special full-time service cover losses of essential personal items due to robbery, warfare, or natural disasters. It is appropriate to counsel those serving in potentially dangerous areas not to keep unnecessary items of value in the home apart from what is needed for the ministry or that make them feel at home in their assignment. Missionaries should not expect compensation for the loss of vehicles, jewelry, and other such items. Additionally, we encourage the branch to instruct the missionaries to be modest in what replacement items they obtain.

84. For branch buildings, we do not, as a rule, buy local insurance which is not required by law or by a lease or purchase agreement. In such cases, the branch purchases only the minimum required.

85. When purchasing or renewing any non-compulsory insurance covering the branch or branch volunteers, the branch should write to the Publishing Committee well in advance of the date on which the proposed insurance will become effective. The branch letter should explain the type of insurance being purchased or renewed, any special circumstances which the branch believes should be considered relative to the need for the insurance, and its cost in U.S. dollars. This will enable the Publishing Committee to determine the most practical way to handle the situation.

86. AGED AND INFIRM: The Branch Committee is to be concerned with the physical needs of the aged and infirm who have given many years of service. Brothers who are 70 years of age and older and sisters 50 and older may return to their rooms before the Bethel workday officially ends, if they feel it necessary. Or they may prefer to take this rest after the noon meal before returning to work. The A-13 financial form provides for illness costs to be borne by the branch. The Branch Committee should feel free to write to the Publishing Committee for any unusual expenditure because of accidents or unusual illnesses. This can be done in the spirit of 1 Thessalonians 5:12, 13.—See 1:72-77.

87. MARRIAGE: Any member, regardless of the length of time at Bethel, who desires to marry and remain a member of the Bethel family, should file his or her request with the Branch Committee. Bethel applications should be filled out by the two desiring to marry. Their request will be sent to the Personnel Committee of the Governing Body along with appropriate comments regarding the qualifications of the applicant and the need for the individual's services at Bethel. Of course it would not be reasonable that one only in his first year at Bethel would be getting married during that period.

88. If, after the initial year, some who want to marry desire to leave Bethel, believing that this would make it easier for them to adjust to married life, they should feel free to do so. It is our hope that they will enter into the pioneer work. But after a time if they would like to return to Bethel service, they should fill out new applications which the Branch Committee will process in the usual way. We do well to consider the needs of the organization when a Bethel family member applies to marry and remain at Bethel. If someone has background or skills that the Branch Committee feels are critical to get the work accomplished, even though he may have been at Bethel a relatively short time, serious consideration may be given to his request to remain at Bethel.

89. WATCHTOWER STUDY: A weekly Watchtower study is a customary feature of Bethel family life in all branches. Appointed elders in the family may be assigned to conduct the study.

90. VOLUNTEERS: The Branch Committee should always watch that the branch is neither overstaffed nor understaffed. Experience has shown that where many young persons are assigned to work together, some are inclined to waste time, especially without an overseer to see that the work gets done.

91. TEMPORARY HELP: Sometimes for temporary periods pioneers or others may be asked to help out with some work at Bethel without sending through a recommendation. Some may also help with translation away from Bethel or do other work to assist the preaching activity. Branch Committees have the authority to call in those who serve as temporary workers for three months or less. When temporary workers are needed for more than three months, approval should be obtained from the Personnel Committee. However, when brothers or sisters are going to be working at Bethel on a full-time basis, such should be recommended in the regular way and then approved by the Personnel Committee to become a part of the Bethel family.

92. DWELLING TOGETHER IN UNITY: The information in this manual applies to branch homes throughout the world. This manual should be considered as a part of Branch Organization. However, be sure to follow the latest write-up if there has been a change in procedure or policy.

93. INTERNATIONAL SERVANTS: The organization of Jehovah is ever expanding in its activities because Jehovah makes it grow worldwide. To keep up with this expansion the organization sends out international volunteers to assist with building the facilities used in connection with our theocratic work. Those who qualify and who serve for more than a year may be extended the privilege of becoming members of the Worldwide Order of Special Full-Time Servants of Jehovah's Witnesses. These are known as international servants. They travel to various countries to work wherever they are assigned by the Worldwide Order.

94. In principle the living arrangements and obligations of the international servants are similar to the Bethel family standards. They are expected to be diligent in service. There are a few variations due to the schedules of activities in which they are involved. They take their part in the local congregations and share in preaching the good news of God's Kingdom at certain times. They attend studies and participate in teaching the Scriptures among the people wherever they may be located.

95. Provisions are made for their personal needs. If they have health problems, care is made available.—See 1:72-77.

96. BETHELITES IN FOREIGN SERVICE: Bethel family members are appointed by the Personnel Committee to serve in other branches as Bethelites in foreign service and are expected to remain in their assignment for at least three years. If there is still a need for their help and they are willing to remain after the three years, they may continue in foreign service. They may be given considerations similar to those available to missionaries, including emergency leave, assistance to attend international conventions, as well as assistance with necessary medical expenses as recommended by the branch office. (See 1:72-77) The Worldwide Order will also cover the cost of transportation to the foreign assignment as well as the cost of shipping necessary personal belongings.

97. These special arrangements apply to Bethelites who are sent by the Personnel Committee to serve in another branch. The arrangements do not apply to Bethelites serving in Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, South Africa, the contiguous United States, or Western Europe. Any exceptions should be approved by the appropriate Governing Body committee.

98. A Bethelite in foreign service would not lose his status if he marries a local sister and they are approved for serving at Bethel following their marriage. He would remain a Bethelite in foreign service and his wife would be considered a regular member of the Bethel family. If in the future this Bethelite in foreign service is moved to another foreign assignment, his wife might then be recommended to be a Bethelite in foreign service.

99. After one year in the assignment Bethelites in foreign service who wish to return to their home country or elsewhere may travel at their own expense. As with other members of the Bethel family the vacation period would be 12 working days off for vacation each year as earned, one day earned per month. In addition to the regular Bethel vacation period of 12 days, Bethelites in foreign service will receive 12 additional vacation days credited to them on September 1 of each year. The maximum number of days for each year will be 24. "Leave of absence" time does not apply to Bethelites in foreign service as it does in the case of missionaries.

100. If "emergency time" away from the assignment is needed to care for health, one's parents or relatives, a request may be made of the Branch Committee. If more than 24 working days away are needed, the individual should write the branch about the situation, and if the Branch Committee recommends it, the matter should be referred to the Personnel Committee.–See 2:63, 64.

101. If a Bethelite in foreign service wishes to return to his home branch after completing at least three years in foreign service, either to Bethel service if he previously served at Bethel or to the field if he did not previously serve at Bethel, he should write the Personnel Committee expressing his desire. The Branch Committee should forward his written request along with their observations to the Personnel Committee. The Worldwide Order will pay for the return trip.

Chapter 3

Bethel Home Organization

1. The Branch Committee usually looks after the Bethel home. Bethel home organization has to do with the living quarters and the things done for the members of the Bethel family while they are residents of the Bethel home.

2. No one can become a member of the Bethel family unless he has first filled out an application to enter Bethel service and approval has been given by the Personnel Committee.

3. The Bethel family should never consist of more members than the Branch Committee can keep busy. If there are too many members in the family, one or more should be returned to the pioneer service or be used in some other field.

4. REGISTERING VOLUNTEERS: Everything possible is done to make a new member of the family feel at home upon arrival. First of all he is settled in his room and given opportunity to read Dwelling Together in Unity and any other material provided to help him get acquainted with Bethel life.

5. A Volunteer Card and any other forms required by the branch office will be filled out. Helpful information is discussed with him and he is given opportunity to have any questions answered.

6. A program of orientation is arranged so that he will be familiar with the layout of the buildings and see the work being done in various departments such as the kitchen, dining room, laundry and housekeeping. In Brooklyn working with a housekeeper a day-and-a-half has proved to be very helpful. Even though a sister is later assigned to demonstrate certain features, it is suggested that the introduction to any of these services be made by either a member of the Branch Committee or a brother or brothers appointed by such Committee.

7. BRANCH COMMITTEE: The Branch Committee is appointed by the Governing Body. Since it cares for oversight of the Bethel home, the committee must be acquainted with all the departments of the home and be well versed in the work that each one does. If the home is a large one and there are many in the family so there is a need for several housekeepers, cooks, laundry workers, and so forth, then a Branch Committee member or members may be kept busy keeping certain records, purchasing supplies, working in various departments and taking on certain duties daily as well as seeing that the other work moves smoothly and efficiently. The committee must always be interested in the health, meals, cleanliness, comfort and general welfare of the family.

8. Purchases for the Bethel home that are not routine must be first checked and approved by two members of the committee. Requisitions for routine supplies may be signed by one member of the committee or someone they appoint. Unusual requisitions may be referred to the entire committee, while final approval for all major purchases must be obtained from the Publishing Committee before purchase is made.

9. The Branch Committee arranges schedules of work and may assign individuals under their jurisdiction to any work that needs to be done in the home. It is their responsibility to see that a person is on duty at all times during regular working hours to answer the door and phone calls and take care of inquiries, or at least take down the information for proper handling later. Persons regularly assigned will care for these duties during working hours, but during off hours like evenings, Saturday afternoons and Sundays, if it seems necessary because of the work to assign other members of the family to lobby and phone duty, cooking or maybe watchman duty, then do so. A watchman is to check the home every two or three hours at night by walking through the building looking for running water, gas leaks, clogged drains, unnecessary lights, as well as windows left open. Certain security checks may also be made.

10. The committee should keep a record of where everyone is living. A file of this should be in the reception desk or entrance so that the one on duty can communicate quickly with a person in case someone calls. If one is not in the office or in his room, as far as we know, he is not in. The one on duty should make a written note of the call, stating who called, what time, any other information given and who took the call. Put the note in the room of the one called when the receptionist goes off duty.

11. A complete alphabetical list of all members of the family should always be kept by the committee This alphabetical list will include the room number, key number and, in large branches, the table number assigned in the dining room. It can also include each individual's seniority date.

12. In larger branches the committee will also keep a room listing arranged numerically by the room numbers, which will show the names of occupants in each room. A separate list of key numbers arranged in numerical order showing to whom each key is assigned should be kept, and another list of the family in order of seniority showing the seniority date (based on full-time service) and also the arrival date of all members.

13. The key number is the member's identification mark and is used in connection with the laundry. All one's clothes are marked with this number which helps with redistribution. If an entrance key is lost it must be reported to the Bethel Office, and a new one will usually be provided. Whether it is wise to give the member another key if the second one is lost is left to the discretion of the committee.

14. The committee should see that the branch's buildings, equipment and furnishings are kept in good condition, inside and out. If the size of the branch warrants, one or more capable brothers should be given repair assignments, using a Bethel Repair Slip form (B-2) to make assignments. Any members of the family can report items needing repair by using this form. The committee checks on the home's cleanliness, orderliness and the service rendered to the family. They help members of the family with their problems, if such a request is made. Their interest must include the spiritual as well as the material side of the family.

15. The committee should appreciate that individuals are called to the Bethel home to work, and everything that is done by anyone is in the interests of the Kingdom. Housework, laundry, kitchen, all kinds of work in a home, are just as important and necessary as office or printery work. The committees of small branches should have in mind that when a man and wife have five or six children the wife very often takes care of the cooking, laundry, cleaning, repairing, sewing and a lot of other things, including her field service. Of course circumstances differ in a branch home, but it does seem evident that caring for such tasks in a small branch should not require many persons but may often be handled by just one or two. It means planning the work and having it properly organized.

16. HOUSEKEEPING: The Bethel home should be kept clean. Each housekeeper has a definite assignment, and the Branch Committee arranges for someone to check these assignments to see that the work is cared for properly. The rooms are furnished by the branch uniformly, usually for two persons, with comfortable single beds, two chairs, two desks, a small bookcase, two dressers if necessary, and a clothes closet. Double beds may be provided for married couples if desired.

17. In large branches, like that of the Bethel home in Brooklyn, each housekeeper is assigned to care for eleven to thirteen two-man rooms without bath. The number of rooms varies depending on the number of vacant rooms she is required to care for. Rooms with private baths are counted as a room and a half. Thus, an assignment of eight to nine larger rooms of 350-450 square feet with bath, housing sixteen or eighteen persons, is a comparable assignment. Each housekeeper spends a half day a week in the laundry and linen room helping with the work there. The age of a person also governs the size of an assignment; some housekeepers because of their age cannot do as much as when they were younger.

18. The procedures followed in the Brooklyn Bethel home can serve as a guide to branches in their care of the Bethel homes. The housekeeper's daily routine runs as follows: Rooms are checked at 8:00 am and again at 1:00 pm. Doors are left open where possible and advisable, but not in buildings where there is a security problem. Any persons in sick are reported immediately. Blinds and shades are adjusted to the proper level (for the protection of furnishings and for appearance) and the windows may be opened slightly to air the room, using discretion as to the weather. Open windows may allow rain, smoke, soot and dirt to blow in, soiling the rooms. Radiators are turned off unless they are needed to warm the room; in this case the windows are left closed. Lights left on are turned off; faucets left running are turned off. Hallways and stairways are dry-mopped. Bathrooms are serviced and supplied. Beds are made on change day. This is done during the first part of the morning so the rooms are neat and in order when the brothers come to their rooms at noon. The remainder of the morning and the afternoon are spent on general cleaning of the assignment. Doors are closed at noon and at night. On afternoons the housekeeper is working in the laundry or linen room, bedroom doors and windows are left closed after the rooms are checked.

19. The following are done in family bathrooms each day: bathrooms are aired out; sinks and mirrors are cleaned; supplies of soap, tissue and towels are replenished as needed. Once a week the underside of the sink, including the pipes, is cleaned, unless it is enclosed in a cabinet. Each week the entire bathroom, including the tub, is given a thorough cleaning by the cleaning crew; three or four days later they give it a light cleaning. A container of cleaning solution is kept by the tub for the family to clean it after use. Bath mats by showers are changed twice a week, those by bathtubs once a week. Shower curtains in family bathrooms are cleaned once a month. Bathrooms in public areas, such as lobbies, are cleaned and supplies are replenished twice a day or as needed; thorough cleaning is done once a week.

20. Each day private bathrooms are aired out, and supplies of soap and tissue are replenished as needed. Three times a week the sink and mirror are cleaned. Once a week the underside of the sink, including the pipes, is cleaned, unless it is enclosed in a cabinet. The entire bathroom is given a thorough cleaning once a week. At that time, the walls in the tub or shower area are scrubbed, and these, along with all ledges and tile walls in the sink and toilet area, are wiped down. Also, the toilet is thoroughly cleaned, and the floor around the toilet is scrubbed. Other areas of the floor are scrubbed as needed and the entire floor is wiped clean. A container of cleaning solution is kept available so the occupant can clean the tub after use. Shower curtains in private bathrooms are cleaned every two months.

21. Both family and private bathrooms may need a special cleaning every six or eight weeks. If there is a soap build-up on the tile, a solution of household ammonia is used. If there is a mold or mildew problem, bleach is used. Never mix bleach and ammonia.

22. Floors, furniture and fixtures in kitchenettes are cleaned in the same manner as the rest of the room. Since most floors in kitchenettes do not require wax, the home overseer should be consulted before using wax. Occupants are responsible to clean up spills and keep all appliances, counters, sinks, floors and tables clean. This includes food spilled in and around the stove and oven. Housekeepers clean kitchen sinks once a week.

23. Bedding consists of a bed pad, linen, blankets, bedspread and pillow. Once a year mattresses and box-springs are vacuumed, and bed frames are washed. Open metal springs are cleaned by using a dust mop. Any ripped, worn or loose mattresses are mended at this time if necessary. Inner-spring mattresses are turned at the same time mattresses are cleaned. Bed pads are changed three times a year. On change day the bed pad is taken off and sent to the laundry and is replaced by a clean one.

24. Linen is changed once a week. A notice is placed in the rooms informing occupants of their linen-change day. On that day, the occupants of the room fold the bedspreads, blankets and top sheet neatly and set them on a chair near the bed, placing the pillowcase and bottom sheet separately on the floor before going to breakfast. In making the bed, the housekeeper puts the top sheet on the bottom and the clean sheet on the top. Pillowcases are changed at the same time.

25. Blankets are washed once a year. New blankets are not put into circulation unless there are not enough used blankets in good condition to care for the needs of the family.

26. Bedspreads are washed every four months.

27. Pillows are cleaned every three years, a few at a time, until the entire home is cared for. A record is kept of the date this is done so it can be cared for regularly. If the ticking (covering) is badly soiled, even after cleaning, it is replaced. If the pillow is overfilled, some of the filling is removed and is used for making other pillows.

28. Hallway closets are to be kept clean and neat. This includes all work and storage closets. Accessible areas of the floor in room closets are dust-mopped or vacuumed once a week.

29. In the spring of the year the family spends a Saturday morning cleaning their own closets and furniture. Everything is removed from the closets and furniture, the walls and shelves of the closets are washed, and the floors are vacuumed or cleaned and rewaxed. The same shelf paper is used again unless it is soiled; then it is replaced. If it is necessary for some to work (such as watchmen, cooks, and so forth), then their closets (and furniture) can be cleaned at a later date by the housekeepers. The same would be true of those on vacation or away for any other reason.

30. In the fall of the year closet (and furniture) cleaning may be done again, depending on local circumstance, this time by the housekeeper. The occupants are sent a notice in advance so they can remove everything from their closets; this allows the housekeeper to spot-wash the walls, clean shelves and scrub and rewax or vacuum the floor.

31. Doors and door frames are dusted each week. From time to time metal doors are washed with a mild detergent. If the doors have a wood-grain finish, areas that are touched frequently or that come in contact with moisture, such as the back of bathroom doors, may occasionally need to be polished or waxed.

32. Drapes or curtains are vacuumed every two months. At wall-washing time they are washed by the laundry or, if the occupants of the room prefer, they may do the cleaning themselves.

33. Dusting of furniture in each room is done three times a week or as needed. One time furniture is dusted thoroughly with a cloth, going over the sides and out-of-the-way places as well as the top. The other two times only the tops are dusted. Hard-to-reach articles, such as picture frames, however, need not be dusted this often. Occasionally the top and front of the furniture may need rewaxing, as these get the heaviest use.

34. Tile or wood floors in rooms are dust-mopped once a week and vacuumed once a week.

35. Tile floors in rooms are scrubbed once a month and rewaxed when needed. Some sections may need more attention than others. This is an average of three or four rooms each week.

36. Tile floors in rooms are completely stripped and rewaxed at wall-washing time.

37. If not carpeted, floors in the Kingdom Hall and dining room are thoroughly mopped each week, and spot-mopped as needed. The aisles are mopped a second time each week. More frequent waxing will be required in the Kingdom Hall because of its use.

38. Heavy traffic areas of hallway carpeting are vacuumed daily. The entire hallway carpet is vacuumed twice a week.

39. Hallways that do not have carpeting are dust-mopped twice a day where needed, once in the morning and again before the end of the day.

40. Walls are spot-cleaned once a month or as needed.

41. Medicine cabinets are cleaned every three months. A notice is placed in the room the previous day so the occupants can remove everything from the cabinet. The sink light cover is wiped clean weekly and is removed and cleaned when the light bulb is changed.

42. Mirrors over sinks are washed three times a week. This can be done at the same time the sink is washed. Other mirrors in the room are cleaned once a week with the weekly thorough. They may be cleaned less often if they are hard to reach.

43. Repairs that need to be made are to be reported right away on a repair slip (B-2) and turned in to the office.

44. Carpeting is vacuumed at the beginning and end of each week. One of these times the entire surface of the carpet is vacuumed thoroughly, including under the furniture and beds; the other time only the traffic areas of the carpet are vacuumed.

45. Carpets are spot-cleaned once a month.

46. Carpets are shampooed once a year. Traffic areas may need to be cleaned more often. New carpets are not shampooed the first year.

47. Carpet repairs are reported on a repair slip (B-2).

48. Window screens are vacuumed once a month. Accessible parts of exterior screens are vacuumed monthly during warmer weather.

49. Sinks in rooms, as in private bathrooms, are cleaned three times a week. Sinks in kitchenettes are cleaned once a week. The underside of the sink, including the pipes, is cleaned once a week, unless it is enclosed in a cabinet. The sink drain is cleaned with a brush once a month. Soap is supplied as needed.

50. Stairways are dust-mopped once a day; the stairway doors and ledges are also dusted.

51. Stairs are washed once a week. At the same time marks on the stair risers and walls are washed off. Where there is little traffic, stairs may be cleaned less often.

52. Brass and steel are polished as needed.

53. Bath and hand towels in rooms are changed once a week.

54. Upholstered furniture is vacuumed thoroughly every three months. Once a month the tops of the sofa and cushions as well as the area under the seat cushions, including crevices, are vacuumed. It is shampooed in conjunction with wall-washing. Occupants may requisition their furniture to be shampooed at other times.

55. Shades and venetian blinds are dusted once a week. They are cleaned twice a year by the cleaning crew.

56. Wall washing of rooms, offices, hallways, Kingdom Hall, dining room, kitchen, and so forth, is done when needed. The occupants of the room are given notice to strip their beds and put all miscellaneous items in drawers or in the closet. (See drapery information.) Everything is taken out of the room. A new carpet is not shampooed until after it has been down for about two years; after this it will need shampooing about once a year. The ceiling, walls, window frames and windows are washed and the waxable floors are thoroughly cleaned and rewaxed. The blinds or shades are cleaned as well as the diffusers on light fixtures. Furniture is cleaned by the housekeeper. Everything is put back in the room, clean and ready for use, by the end of the day.

57. Windows are kept clean. They are washed inside and out on a regular schedule to meet local conditions. Windows on the ground floor, lobby or other public areas are washed more often. Nothing is allowed to be stored on the outside window ledge.

58. LAUNDRY: In larger Bethel families each family member is given a laundry bag and repair bag with his key number on them. This number remains his all the time that he is at Bethel. On designated days of the week members of the family bring their laundry to the laundry department. In large families like in Brooklyn it is done by floors. Certain floors put their laundry in on Monday, others on Tuesday, others on Wednesday, and so on. In small families probably all the laundry can be put in on a Monday morning, washed and be put back in the rooms, and then the one handling laundry would do other assigned work. All members of the family should be instructed as to the proper way to prepare their laundry for washing.

59. Branches may arrange their own laundry day and schedules based on their needs. At Brooklyn we have one laundryman for every fifty-five members in the family. In very small branches the Branch Committee coordinator or his wife, if married, will set aside time to do their laundry.

60. After personal laundry is washed and ironed there are also bedspreads, bed sheets, blankets, pillowcases, hand towels, and so forth. In very small branches all of these can be handled along with personal laundry. In larger branches there may be parts of days set aside each week for handling them.

61. All house laundry, that is, towels, sheets, and so forth, are checked through the linen room and repaired before going to the storage room. In small branches this may be handled by the one assigned to laundry work. In large branches it may have to go through someone else's hands.

62. Personal laundry received in the laundry is checked against the laundry ticket, Men's Laundry form (B-24) or Women's Laundry form (B-17) enclosed in the bag; and if some new clothing has been put in, then this clothing is marked with the proper key number so that it will be returned to the right party.

63. Laundry is not automatically repaired. Sometimes it pays to throw something away rather than to repair it. Rather than leaving the judgment of repairs to the one in the laundry, it is left up to the one who owns the clothing. When the clean laundry is returned, it is checked by the owner; and if there is something he wants repaired, he will send it in a repair bag with a note of what he wants done. This he sends to the repair room. In many instances the owner of the garment may throw it away after wearing it once more. So arrangements should be made to repair rips and tears and do general mending, but not to remake shirts, underwear and other things. If, in the opinion of the one handling the repairs and the overseer, it is not worthy of repair, then no repairs will be made.

64. MEALS: The Branch Committee is to see that good meals are served and at the proper time. They should be wholesome, not elaborate.

65. The cook is responsible to make the menus and will submit them for approval. Before any change is made it would be good first to consult the cook.

66. Wholesome and plentiful food in season and on the market should be purchased. Extravagance, purchasing scarce items, is always avoided. Usually fresh food in season is less expensive than canned food.

67. Enough food should always be served at every meal. We do not want anyone to leave the table hungry. Food that is put on the table may be taken away by members of the family after the end of the meal if they want to make a sandwich to eat at work or in the evening. However, food should never be kept in a room in such a way that it attracts insects.

68. The kitchen is not a part of the Bethel family's living quarters, therefore not for private use. In small branches the Branch Committee will regulate the use of the kitchen by members of the family.

69. At Brooklyn we usually have one cook for about every fifty members of the family. There is one dining-room attendant for approximately fifty-five people. This attendant looks after the setting of the table, waiting on the table and washing the dishes. If these duties do not keep him busy all the time, he is assigned other duties in the home. In smaller homes the cook can take care of all the kitchen and dining-room work.

70. After evening meals members of the family are assigned to kitchen or dining room duties to clean and wash dishes. Depending on local circumstances, sisters may be given other assignments such as reception duty. Brothers and sisters over 50 years of age may be relieved of such assignments.

71. Meals should always be served on time. The time for meals is subject to local adjustment. From the time the meal begins until it ends takes around twenty minutes.

72. Saturday evening and Sunday meals usually are served cafeteria style. Sunday two meals are served, breakfast and an evening meal. The evening meal is from four to five or five to six o'clock, or longer if the local organization decides it should be, or you may even choose a different time. Food is put on the breakfast table so that members of the family can make up sandwiches and take away something for a noonday lunch. The regular cook is not always on duty on Sunday and so members of the family can be assigned to cook duty to prepare cafeteria meals on weekends.

73. If cooks get up early in the morning to prepare breakfast and get on duty before other persons, they are allowed time off in the afternoon to compensate for the extra hours worked early in the morning. The same is true with brothers working in the dining room as waiters getting things ready. Schedules must be made out according to the amount of work to be done, and these schedules are followed by the ones assigned to them.

74. FOOD SUPPLIES: It is good for each branch home to have reasonable supplies of staple foods that will not spoil in stock in case of an emergency. Such stocks should not just be set aside and not used, but should be used and replenished on some regular basis so that the supplies do not deteriorate. By planning ahead and buying in bulk on certain items you may find you will not only have a saving but will also have some items available when they are temporarily out of the market.

75. TOURISTS: Branches are not obligated to show tourists around a city or country. Many brothers who are dedicated publishers make tours and take vacation time in different places in the world these days, and of course they are anxious to get the advice and direction of brothers who know the areas as to what to see and do. However, the branch's work is preaching the good news, and we do not have time scheduled to show brothers who are traveling as tourists the local attractions or sights. That does not mean we should be unkind or inhospitable toward our visiting brothers, but it is up to tourists to arrange for their own tours and transportation and accommodations locally. This is not the work of the branch office. Again it can be explained that we have much work to do and we are sorry not to be able to go out personally, but we may have some suggestions for them so that they will enjoy their stay.

76. Of course we are pleased to direct such persons to the Kingdom Hall and give them the time and place of meetings, and we may have the opportunity to take them in the field service or to meetings if it fits our schedule. But this would be a personal matter to be arranged between an individual and touring publishers. It is the responsibility of the individual as to how he wants to spend his time after working hours to enjoy the association and fellowship of such brothers, but we want to remember that the work at the branch must be cared for first and the same applies to those in missionary service, that they also have a work to care for.

77. If members of other Bethel families are staying in your home for a day or two or you have some missionaries passing through, we know you will show them good hospitality and let them know how they can see the places they would like to see, but you do not have to take them to all of these places.

78. VISITORS TO THE BRANCH: Many branches report that considerable time is lost talking to brothers and sisters who visit the branch and who are acquainted with branch volunteers. While we want to be hospitable and friendly, we do have work to do. In some countries visitors can be cared for by receptionists, but in smaller places the brother who greets visitors should be courteous and find out what he can do for them and then, after taking care of their needs, explain that he needs to get back to his work so as not to be unduly delayed. Some branches have found it advisable to post certain hours at which time they will be open for visitors, thus cutting down to some extent on those visiting at other times and giving better opportunity to do the work without interruption.

79. However, some may visit to see the branch operation and facilities, perhaps traveling long distances to do so. We want to make them welcome and show them some of the highlights of the branch operation so they will better understand what is being done to care for the Kingdom interests in their territory.

80. Arrangements for visitors to enjoy a meal with the family or to stay overnight are explained in Dwelling Together in Unity, paragraphs 109-118. We do try to accommodate friends and relatives of the family as well as circuit and district overseers, missionaries, persons visiting from other branches, or other full-time servants if space and circumstances permit.

81. MAINTENANCE AND SECURITY FOR BETHEL HOMES: It is to be expected that God's people will give proper attention to the maintenance of the branch's buildings. Their proper care will serve as a good witness to Jehovah in the community.

82. So that our buildings will protect us from the elements and always have a fine appearance, it is a good procedure to examine the exterior thoroughly at some time each year. In lands with a cold climate the best time to make this check would be the spring as this will give you time to order materials and make the repairs before the cold season sets in again. Start the inspection by looking over the roof and then work your way down to the foundation. Usually to keep a flat roof in top condition, whether it is covered by hot tar or some type of cold application including tile, will require a small amount of work each year; this can prevent the need for major repairs. Letting such repairs go undone could result in having to replace the roof. The outside wall surfaces should be examined for problems, such as surface cracks or cracks around the windows, which should be caulked, loose or missing bricks, cracked or broken windows, and peeling paint. Any problems you discover should be written down and then arrangements made to take care of them soon. By taking care of these problems at their start when they are yet small, we will keep our buildings protected from the elements, always looking good and, an expense that could become large by procrastination will be kept to a minimum.

83. As with the exterior of the building, so it should be with the interior—always be observant. When it is noted that some problem is developing, arranging to correct it right away will keep it from becoming large. Also, this way you will not find yourself in time facing so many repairs that you just do not know where to begin to correct them.

84. If the wall finish for the most part is paint, then having an adequate painting schedule for the various types of rooms will protect the surfaces and keep the appearance of the buildings good. The schedule does not have to be the same for closets, store rooms and other areas as it is for our bedrooms. Each area should be painted according to the need, considering its use. At Brooklyn we schedule the painting of bedrooms every five years, bedroom closets every ten years, sink and dirt hoppers every ten years and storage closets every fifteen years. However, these schedules are allowed to slide where it proves practical to do so. Other areas in our buildings we assign to a paint schedule depending on their use.

85. Whenever a new piece of equipment is added to our inventory, it is wise not only to get what instruction manuals the company that manufactures it supplies, but also to keep these on file for future reference. One always should follow closely the recommendations in the manual relative to changing oil, oiling, greasing and making any other checks that are recommended. A chart that can be checked off according to schedule should be kept for each piece of equipment.

86. If it is known that some part will have to be replaced from time to time due to wear, these should be stocked. This way you can keep equipment operating without undue loss of time.

87. PREVENTION OF FIRES, ACCIDENTS, THEFT: The Branch Committee should see that good fire prevention, safety, and security procedures are used throughout the Bethel home and printery and in the missionary homes and that each overseer of a department considers these a part of his responsibility.

88. All doors and windows should be secured before the family retires for the night. It is wise never to display valuables in windows on the first floor or in the easy view of those on the ground level. All entrance and exit door locks should receive regular maintenance. A review of the security system relative to conditions in the locality should be made periodically. Lighting at main entrances may be necessary during nighttime hours.

89. For greatest practical results, give special attention to safety in any kind of work which is especially dangerous, including carpentry, driving the branch's cars and trucks, construction, operation of boilers, work on printing presses and bindery equipment, and electrical maintenance. Carefully explain safety hazards and proper safety procedures to anyone working at these assignments, and select workers for such work who have maturity and good safety habits in mind. Hold brief, regular discussions of specific aspects of safety, fire prevention, and security as a part of the work schedule where appropriate. Only qualified, trained drivers should be used to drive the branch's vehicles. Vehicles need to be properly maintained. Trucks should not be overloaded. Seat belts should be used. Brothers should not drive when overly tired. All drivers should drive at a reasonable speed according to road conditions and regulations. It is good for the branches to have a program for training drivers.

90. In view of worsening crime and violence, consider how you can protect the branch's money, vehicles, and equipment from thieves, vandals, terrorists, and so forth. In many parts of the world it is advantageous to install antitheft devices on the branch's vehicles. Such devices include bars attached to the steering wheel so that they cannot be moved, chain locks for the engine hood, and also cut-off switches that interrupt the starter circuit. Antitheft devices are often effective, as thieves prefer to go to another vehicle than to try to overcome a locking or cut-off device.

91. In case of accident or emergency, determine definite procedures in advance, including (where the size of the branch warrants it) arranging for someone to be always available and prepared in advance to do the following: notify overseers, give first aid, provide emergency transportation to a nearby hospital or doctor, call fire departments or police.

92. When losses, damage, or accidents occur involving branch property or branch volunteers, determine how the accident or loss occurred and how it might be prevented in the future. Within a week make a report to the Publishing Committee on what happened. Discuss accidents and accident prevention with workers in a positive way, emphasizing the branch's concern for the welfare of the family and the improved efficiency that results from consistent safety procedures. Take practical steps to prevent or reduce the probability of a similar accident or loss in the future.

93. AIR CONDITIONING: In some areas of the earth there are very extreme conditions where it may be excessively hot and humid. In certain places buildings are located in very noisy areas making it difficult for workers to perform their duties in the offices. Or, individuals who are in their rooms find it very difficult to get their needed sleep at night. Some individuals have physical ailments that make it necessary to have air conditioning. Therefore the following provisions are set out.

94. OFFICES AND BETHEL DINING ROOMS: In parts of the world where problems arise because of extreme heat and humidity or noise as well as lack of ventilation, if the Branch Committee wishes to make a recommendation for installing air conditioning in the offices or Bethel dining rooms, they should submit their requisition along with all of the details and the reasons why they believe air conditioning is necessary. Included should be information as to whether installing air conditioning will mean much remodeling of the building or the electrical system and what expense will be involved.

95. BETHEL AND MISSIONARY HOMES: When these are located in areas where conditions are extreme or when an individual is physically ailing and a doctor recommends air conditioning, the individuals involved should take the matter up with the Branch Committee. In any country where the variation in climate makes air conditioning desirable at certain times, the Branch Committee can consider the matter and make their recommendation to the Publishing Committee. If approved, the branch will pay for the equipment, installation, maintenance, and cost of operating the air conditioning. The installation should be made by the branch in each case. The Branch Committee will need to take into consideration whether structural changes are needed, also the capacity of the electrical wiring in the building so that it will not be overloaded. This also applies to any future installation of stoves. We do not want to rewire buildings for this purpose.

96. The branch will appreciate the cooperation of all those who use air conditioning so that air conditioners will not be running when there is no one in the office or room for an extended period of time, thus running up the costs of operation. While no charges will be made for the installation or operation of such equipment, those concerned may be advised that in the future such matters will be handled on a contribution basis.

97. KINGDOM HALLS: Where a Kingdom Hall is part of the branch and the question of air conditioning is raised, the congregations would pay for the air-conditioning units, their installation, and use of the equipment. The branch may take care of the installation and maintenance because its building is involved and make appropriate charges to the congregations.

98. PERSONAL EQUIPMENT: A stove may be provided in Bethel residence rooms in the case of new construction. Any exceptions are to be referred to the Publishing Committee. Refrigerators, microwaves, and other electrical equipment are personal items to be obtained at cost to the individual. However, no charge will be made for operating stoves, air conditioners, or for electricity, dry cleaning, and alterations to clothing. Such provisions will be on a contribution basis the same as with air conditioning.

Chapter 4

Congregations, Circuits, Districts

1. PREACHING THE GOOD NEWS: The primary purpose of a branch organization is to coordinate the preaching activities of our brothers so that the good news is declared in the assigned territory. The field is the world and the preaching work has been assigned to all who are Jesus' disciples. (Matt. 28:19, 20) While individual assignments may vary, all are working together as one to achieve a common goal. Most of them are congregation publishers while others are pioneers, special pioneers and missionaries. Some have added responsibilities as elders, ministerial servants, circuit and district overseers. All are part of Jehovah's organization and equally share the responsibility to preach the good news everywhere to the sanctification of Jehovah's name.

2. CONGREGATIONS: The congregations form the backbone of every branch. The latest publication from the Governing Body on organizational matters sets out information to assist the elders and ministerial servants in caring for their responsibilities. Additionally, information is supplied as to what congregation publishers, pioneers, as well as circuit and district overseers can do in fulfilling their responsibilities as followers of Christ Jesus.

3. Recommendations for new appointments of elders and ministerial servants are usually made at the time the circuit overseer visits a congregation.—See 4:58-60 for information on appointments or deletions of elders and ministerial servants during the circuit overseer's visit.

4. In cities where two or more congregations exist, the circuit overseer will recommend to the branch a qualified elder to serve as city overseer. The appointment is shown on the city overseer's appointment slip (S-53a) that is sent to all of the congregations in the city. A copy of the appointment slip (S-53b) is retained in the branch's files.

5. CERTIFICATE FOR ORDAINED MINISTER: Currently appointed elders or ministerial servants in need of a certificate verifying their ordination may request one from the branch. When requesting a certificate, the individual will specifically state the reason the certificate is needed. Often a letter signed by the elders or the presiding overseer of the congregation will suffice to verify one's ordination. If a Certificate for Ordained Minister is sent by the branch, it should be signed by the Branch Committee coordinator or someone else having authority to do so. It may be notarized if advisable. If it is necessary to specify the date of ordination, then show the date of baptism.

6. APPLICATION FOR CONGREGATION: Any group of people in your territory who want to worship Jehovah God in spirit and truth and who want to do it by loyally recognizing the headship of Christ and under the direction of the Governing Body of Jehovah's Witnesses may make application to form a congregation. It is good for circuit overseers to carry with them Congregation Application forms (S-51) and the letter on Congregation Information (S-50). They should help the brothers organize a congregation if and when such is advisable. Elders in an existing congregation may write to the branch for a Congregation Application (S-51) and a letter on Congregation Information (S-50) if the circuit overseer will not be visiting in the near future and they feel there is a need to recommend a new congregation. Generally the circuit overseer should sign the application to show his agreement.

7. The group of people should be strong enough spiritually to keep the congregation functioning actively with, if possible, at least one elder or ministerial servant who can provide the necessary spiritual oversight and take the lead in the preaching work. Where pioneer sisters or other mature sisters help in forming a congregation, they may handle the responsibility until a local brother qualifies as a ministerial servant or a qualified brother moves in. If there is no one to take oversight so as to become a congregation, then the group may continue to be looked after by a nearby congregation if possible. The circuit overseer can visit these groups while serving the congregation they are associated with. It should always be appreciated that persons in such groups particularly need loving spiritual care because of their isolated situation. Branches should look well to caring for all of the publishers in their assignment, including small groups that may develop into congregations and newly formed congregations.

8. In congregations where there are no appointed elders but where there are ministerial servants, then one of the more experienced ministerial servants (or a sister if a dedicated brother is not available) may handle the work in lieu of an appointed presiding overseer. Later if one of the ministerial servants qualifies as an elder, then he may be appointed as the presiding overseer.

9. On the matter of elder recommendations in congregations where one or more members of the service committee are ministerial servants, the following should be the procedure: The circuit overseer will discuss with the elder or elders the qualifications of the ministerial servant or servants who may be on the congregation's service committee. The ministerial servant(s) will not be involved in such discussion. If it is decided to recommend either one or the other or both of the ministerial servants (as the case may be) the name(s) will not be included on the S-2 form but will be submitted in a separate letter from the circuit overseer to the branch, signed by him and the elder(s) serving on the service committee. If the branch approves the recommendation then such name(s) showing the new appointment(s) will be put on the two copies of the S-2 form received after which one copy will be returned to the congregation. Where there are no elders then the circuit overseer will send the S-2 form to the branch with his recommendations for elder appointments in a separate letter. If such are approved then the one copy of the S-2 form with the names added by the branch office, will be returned to the congregation showing the appointments have been made.

10. Where there are no male members to serve in positions of responsibility a sister (dedicated and baptized) may be requested to look after the needs of the group and take the lead in the field service, etc. When conducting meetings and offering prayer she will be expected to have her head covered.—1 Cor. 11:5, 6.

11. In cases where new congregations are formed from existing congregations, where there are many elders and ministerial servants, care should be exercised to see that all are accounted for and appointed to serve with one of the congregations involved. No new recommendations for elders or ministerial servants will be considered at the time of forming a new congregation unless the application is submitted during the circuit overseer's visit. When the Congregation Application (S-51) is received and approved, write the brothers a kind and encouraging letter.

12. The S-2 forms can be used during the circuit overseer's visit to make recommendations for brothers to serve as elders and ministerial servants and for any deletions because of brothers moving, etc. If the application is submitted between visits of the circuit overseer, then information will need to be supplied as outlined in the congregation information letter. The names of elders and ministerial servants will be listed on the S-52a form. The S-52b form will be filed in the permanent file of the congregation. Information should be supplied as to the territory assignment for the respective congregations. If information on the territory assignment will be sent later, this can be indicated in the letter that is written. Also various printed letters giving information on accounts, subscriptions, etc., that the congregation needs for its files are to be sent. If there are large supplies of literature on hand, it would be best for the congregations to divide these instead of ordering additional supplies for the new congregation. The branch will determine how many copies of Our Kingdom Ministry to send, depending upon the number of publishers and pioneers associating with the respective congregations.

13. A stencil or typewritten card should be put in the file showing the name of the congregation and the address to which all mail should be sent, usually in care of the presiding overseer. If needed, another address can be supplied to which literature and magazines may be shipped. On the permanent address stencil or card, show the number of Our Kingdom Ministry to be sent, the mailing zone, express rate and other shipping information by symbol. A card stamped from this stencil or a duplicate typed card will be sent to the circuit overseer so that he will from then on include the congregation in his routing.

14. File folders are made for temporary and permanent files. It would be helpful to the new congregation to write them an encouraging letter during the year, perhaps after the circuit overseer's visit.

15. CONGREGATIONS WITH UNWORKED TERRITORY: Where congregations have considerable territory that is not worked at least once each year, an invitation can be extended through Our Kingdom Ministry for congregation publishers or pioneers from other parts of the country to cover such territory or circuit overseers can be asked to submit names of persons who qualify and who are willing to do such work. Individuals who are willing to assist the congregation in covering unworked territory can be asked to supply information as to how far they would be able to travel to share in such work and how many territories they would be able to cover. Before being sent to the branch office, correspondence from individuals regarding such matters should be given to the elders so they can indicate whether they recommend the individuals to share in such work.

16. Congregations in the vicinity of the territory that needs attention that are doing well in covering their own territory can be invited by the circuit overseer or by means of a letter from the office to share in such activity.

17. WITNESSES LIVING IN UNASSIGNED TERRITORY: The Branch Committee should give very careful attention to all Witnesses living in unassigned territory. We should give them just as much attention as we would an individual who has been found in territory assigned to a congregation. The names of isolated publishers should be sent to the nearest congregation so that the congregation can keep in touch with them. Perhaps a publisher from the congregation can call on the isolated ones from time to time to encourage or help them spiritually. Pioneers who have been trained at the Pioneer Service School will be used in such areas. Also, the branch office should send them a copy of Our Kingdom Ministry along with other information that will be beneficial.

18. Advise the circuit overseer of the number in such an isolated group and the name and address of the one receiving correspondence. The circuit overseer will schedule them for a visit and give talks while he is there. Depending on the number in the group and other factors perhaps a day or two could be spent visiting people in territory of that area. The circuit overseer may help in getting a group firmly established for organization as a congregation if they are too far away to work under the direction of an already existing congregation.

19. The office should receive a report from the circuit overseer giving information about the isolated publisher or group, what he was able to accomplish during the visit, along with his recommendations, if any. Then the isolated publisher or group should be sent a warm and encouraging letter. A record should be kept of all such publishers and groups, with a separate file for each, until such time as they can either be associated with a nearby congregation or organized into a new congregation. Then the information in this file is put into the congregation file. If it seems that the schedule of the circuit overseer is so full he does not have time to call on isolated publishers, it would be good to adjust the schedule in order to visit such ones. However, special pioneers have also been used for such visits with good results. Even a visit of a few hours or a day may mean the developing of a new congregation. In the meantime we want to encourage them to do what they can to hold meetings and share in the field service and send their reports to the branch office if it is not practical for them to work with a congregation.

20. When a regular pioneer requests a permanent assignment to care for an unassigned territory, the branch will write a letter making such an assignment, sending along additional information on file in the county file folder in the office, such as names of interested persons, expiration slips and the names and addresses of current subscribers. The carbon copy of the top part of the assignment is kept and the county card (S-71) is marked to show that the territory has been assigned and the date of the assignment. The circuit overseer is notified of this assignment for the pioneer to work in isolated territory so he can visit and encourage him, and submit a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on his first visit of each service year.

21. CARING FOR UNASSIGNED TERRITORY: All the territory that comes under the jurisdiction of a branch is to be witnessed to. If there are not enough publishers to witness to all the territory, then work the territory that is well populated, praying that through the publishers' good efforts more interested people will come forward and eventually circumstances will make it possible to direct more persons to move to these unassigned areas. Have in mind the territory that needs to be witnessed to by pioneers, special pioneers, missionaries, and others. Expansion of the Kingdom work should be our concern. Every section of assigned territory should have attention sometime during the year, and suggestions can be submitted to the Service Committee as to what might be done to accomplish this.

22. A letter can be written to the circuit overseers asking them to talk to pioneers who qualify to share in working isolated territory and are willing to share in such activity. Pioneers and others who help with unassigned territory should be favorably recommended by the congregation service committee.

23. In addition to arranging for qualified pioneers to care for unassigned territory, congregations in the vicinity of the unassigned territory who are doing well in covering their assignment may be invited by letter from the office to share in the unassigned territory campaign. The letter can suggest the specific area the congregation could care for.

24. Where there is a significant population living in an unassigned territory that cannot be cared for by regular pioneer assistance or by nearby congregations, the branch may write to the Service Committee requesting permission to enroll temporary special pioneers to work such territory. The ones who are selected to share in temporary special pioneer service will be sent an application along with a letter explaining the temporary special pioneer service, supplying information as to what they can expect in working unassigned territory. From the applications received, pioneers who are the most qualified can be given temporary special pioneer assignments. The branch will write a letter making such assignments, providing any additional information that is needed.

25. TERRITORY MAPS AND RECORDS: Territory maps should be prepared using the best map available in the country. Indicate on these state or province maps each congregation and the territory that is assigned to that congregation. The name of the city is underlined, and a line drawn designating the congregation's limits or boundaries. Territory that is not assigned to any congregation can be indicated on this map or on a separate map.

26. Maps of all large cities in the country are kept on file too. Where there are two or more congregations in a city, the exact boundaries of each of the congregations can be marked on these maps. Circuit boundaries can also be marked on the maps if it is felt this would be helpful for some reason. The territory assignment letter (S-54) that is sent to the congregation bears the exact written description of the outlined territory. When new maps are needed, the city overseer is requested to send maps to the branch office. These maps should have a good street index, approximate address numbers and, most importantly, be up to date.

27. In the United States branch we use what is called a county card (S-71) for assigning of territory.We assign post office towns or entire counties to a congregation. If we assign a whole county, we list on our county card (S-71) all the post offices in that county. Sometimes counties are divided and therefore the listing of some post offices would go to different congregations. This can be indicated by letters representing the name of the congregation that is assigned to each town. This is done in pencil on the county card. At the top or bottom of the card names of congregations are shown, followed by one or two letters in parentheses used as symbols to represent the congregation. In other countries, it may not be convenient to make up these cards, but some kind of system should be used to show the record of what towns are assigned to the congregation. The congregation is notified of its assignment by use of the form letter S-54. A copy of this Congregation Territory Assignment letter is kept in the permanent file folder attached to the previous assignment letter.

28. Adjustments in territory boundaries: Congregations that are doing well in covering their territory may be asked to take on additional territory from nearby congregations that do not cover their territory as often. The procedure for congregations to follow when sending in territory adjustments is outlined in the form How to Request a Territory Adjustment (S-6).

29. Master map: The name of every congregation should be underlined, and the boundaries of all the circuits and districts outlined on the map. The names of circuit and district overseers followed by the circuit and district numbers may be placed within the boundary of the area they serve.

30. Preparing a map for branch office use: For helpful suggestions on the procedure for mounting a map on plywood, including making the paste, mounting the map smoothly and varnishing it, you may wish to refer to pages 73 and 74 of Branch Office Procedure, 1965 revision.

31. COORDINATING FIELD SERVICE EFFORTS IN MULTI-LANGUAGE TERRITORY: It may be advantageous to form separate congregations for different language groups within a country. In communities where persons speak more than one language, the determining factor in deciding which congregation will care for them is the language preference of the householder. We should endeavor to teach people in the language they can best understand. The important thing is to help them learn the truth. Publishers and interested persons may attend the congregation of their choice.

32. Where two or more different-language congregations care for the same territory, a survey can be made of each individual territory to determine which homes will be called on by the respective congregations. The language that the majority of persons in the territory speak would determine which congregation would keep the territory records. The congregation keeping the records would be notified by the other language-speaking congregation of the homes that it will be caring for. When adjustments need to be made because of persons moving, etc., the congregations can work this out between themselves in whatever way seems best.

33. Where persons speaking a foreign language are widely scattered, the territory assignment letter may simply assign the foreign language population for that general area to the foreign language congregation. The foreign language congregation would make a record of addresses for these householders to save time in again locating them, and the other congregations holding the territory that will be worked would be notified of the homes they will be caring for. The congregations holding the remainder of the population can work their assignment in the usual way.

34. Good cooperation between congregations that speak different languages would also include passing on names and addresses of interested persons to the appropriate congregation. With all language groups cooperating to advance true worship in the most effective way possible we can be assured of Jehovah's rich blessing on our efforts.

35. QUALIFICATIONS FOR CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT SERVICE: The congregations will be helped to grow spiritually and numerically if we have good district and circuit overseers visiting them. These brothers must be wholly devoted to God, showing love for Him first, and also real love for their brothers. If traveling overseers have love for their brothers, then they will do much to assist them in coming on to maturity. Branch Committees should clearly see the need of having the best district and circuit overseers they can find. The better these overseers are the faster will be the ingathering of the "other sheep" and also their influence for good will be felt in the spiritual growth of Jehovah's people. (Prov. 11:14) The Branch Committee or those on the Service Desk handling their reports should never be hesitant in helping the district and circuit overseers by writing them kindly, and where necessary, firmly, giving such instructions or counsel as they need. If district or circuit overseers need to be changed, as when a district overseer moves to circuit work, or a circuit overseer is assigned to the district work, or even taken off entirely, the office should have good reasons for doing this. Express these in writing to the overseer so that he will understand why these adjustments are being made and also he will know what to work on for improvement.

36. Branch Committees should have in mind that it is not always the brothers who do well in speaking that make the best circuit and district overseers. While good speaking ability is certainly beneficial and is not to be minimized, teaching ability is also very important. Additionally, we should look for brothers who are friendly, kind, patient, humble and who in this way win the confidence and trust of the brothers. Obviously they should be brothers who do well in service and who can thereby train publishers in the field. Those who are used in circuit and district work should be fine examples in manifesting the fruitage of the spirit. They should have considerable background in the truth, including experience as congregation elders and perhaps in the pioneer service.

37. The recommending of circuit and district overseers is the responsibility of the Branch Committee, but before these men are appointed the recommendation along with full information regarding them should be sent to the Governing Body for approval. Youthful enthusiasm and vigor are not the best qualifications for a circuit or district overseer. Rather, what should be looked for are spirituality, maturity, good judgment, active years in the truth, along with steadiness in the field service. Those who have been Kingdom publishers for a long time might not always get their paperwork done the fastest, but they often have more patience, kindness and endurance. These are qualities that are needed for good overseers. The branch office should not be hasty about using persons who are talented in certain respects but are not mature and experienced or have a limited background in the truth. Business or commercial experience and organizational ability are not good criteria for selecting circuit and district overseers. Association with God's organization for many years is one necessary asset for a good overseer. Brothers should have proved their devotion in service to Jehovah first before they are ever appointed to such responsible positions as circuit and district overseers. The Scriptural requirements set out at 1 Timothy 3, Titus 1, and 1 Peter 5:1-3 should govern a Branch Committee's decisions in making recommendations for circuit and district overseers.

38. Circuit and district overseers should be of the highest quality morally and spiritually. If one has been disciplined in the past, this information should be included with the recommendation for his appointment and carefully considered by the Branch Committee. Complete information regarding previous serious wrongdoing should be supplied, such as the date and the offense and how the matter was handled, whether by reproof or by disfellowshipping and to what extent the matter became public. In a case where an individual was disfellowshipped previously, complete information would need to be supplied as to the date of the disfellowshipping, the offense and the date of reinstatement, etc. If a brother is married, a full report should be sent in on his wife. If she was involved in previous wrongdoing, complete information should be supplied.

39. If a circuit or district overseer begins to neglect his work, not setting a good example, whether in the field service or in other respects, he should be given appropriate counsel. He should be clearly told what has been reported about him or what has been observed and he should then be given the opportunity to reply if he would like to do so. He should receive clear but loving counsel and be given a full opportunity to make any needed improvement. Of course, if he does not make improvement on the points called to his attention within a reasonable period of time, then it may be necessary to remove him from his assignment of service so that the high standard for this service will be maintained.

40. CIRCUIT OVERSEER'S ACTIVITY: General information on the circuit overseer's activity is found in the latest book on organizational matters. All members of the Branch Committee should thoroughly familiarize themselves with this publication and thus be in a position to aid the circuit overseer to carry out his responsibilities.

41. Before one is recommended as a circuit overseer he should be given careful consideration (and his wife if he is married) by the circuit overseer who visits his congregation and, if possible, by the district overseer. It is desirable to use brothers who are older in years as they will generally receive greater respect and their words will carry greater weight among those they serve than would usually be the case with a young man yet in his twenties. If the Branch Committee feels it necessary to use someone who is not yet 25 years old, they should explain the reasons for making the recommendation. The circuit overseer (and if possible the district overseer) will work with the recommended brother and his wife in the field service. He and his wife (if married) should enjoy sufficiently good health to get along well if he is used in circuit activity. The circuit overseer will submit a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on the brother recommended (and his wife if he is married). Thereafter the body of elders in the congregation where he serves will be sent an S-326 form to fill out regarding him (and one for his wife), asking in a covering letter to the elders if they recommend him for circuit work and if his wife would do well as an exemplary sister serving under his direction. After receiving information from the field, if the Branch Committee feels that the individual qualifies for circuit work he will be sent a questionnaire for circuit work (S-323) along with a letter inviting him to fill out the questionnaire. After considering this information, if it still appears that he qualifies for this privilege of service, then when he is needed in an assignment, the recommendation of the committee may be forwarded to the Governing Body for approval. Following receipt of such approval, the branch will send the brother an appointment letter (S-308) along with a letter of instructions concerning his taking over from the previous circuit overseer or starting in a newly formed circuit. It is always good to have a newly assigned man work with an experienced circuit overseer for at least two or three weeks prior to taking full responsibility in his assignment, to receive training and get accustomed to the responsibilities involved. This will enable the experienced brother to help the new one and also give the new circuit overseer the opportunity to ask questions in regard to his duties, to give some talks, and to receive counsel thereon.

42. He will be sent a circuit overseer's bank, which is customarily US$50, for which he will sign a receipt. (See form S-311.) If he discontinues the circuit work, he should close out his bank. Notation is made on form S-311 and the receipt, S-310, is returned to the individual. The same would be true with respect to the district overseer. While this procedure is no longer followed in the United States, other countries may still see a need for such an advance to the circuit overseers.

43. Circuit overseers might best be changed from one circuit to another every two to three years. This change is beneficial in a number of respects to both the circuit overseer and the congregations he serves. Changes in assignment may be made at the time of the year that suits best in the branch territory. When a circuit overseer is assigned to serve in a circuit, all of the congregations are advised by means of the S-307 slip.

44. SUBSTITUTE CIRCUIT OVERSEER ARRANGEMENT: It works well to have at least two substitute circuit overseers for each circuit approved by the Branch Committee if you have qualified brothers. The preferable arrangement is to have brothers who are able to step in, fulfilling the full regular schedule of the circuit overseer Tuesday through Sunday. If the circuit overseer is ill or unable to serve for some reason, perhaps being invited to serve in connection with convention work, etc., he can arrange with a substitute already approved by the Branch Committee to fulfill his routing and so inform the branch office. Once congregations are notified they will be served, they should, to the extent possible, be served as scheduled.

45. The circuit overseer will submit his recommendations of qualified elders to serve in this way, having in mind the need for the brother to be available preferably to serve the full schedule. When his recommendation is received, then a Personal Qualifications Report form (S-326) is sent to the body of elders or other elders if necessary, for them to fill out on the brother and, if he is married, one also for his wife. They should be asked specifically to provide their observations as to whether they feel the brother would be qualified to serve in this way or not. If the elders provide a favorable recommendation, then the Questionnaire for Prospective Substitute Circuit Overseer (S-324) should be sent to the brother along with a letter asking him to complete the form and return it if he is desirous of being considered for this added privilege of service.

46. If the brother is available to serve and is approved by the Branch Committee, a file folder with his name on it is prepared for the substitute circuit overseer file. This folder should contain the Questionnaire for Prospective Substitute Circuit Overseer (S-324), Personal Qualifications Reports (S-326) that have been submitted regarding his serving as a substitute circuit overseer, along with any other correspondence that has been carried on regarding his serving in this capacity. A card is prepared for each brother showing his name, congregation, and telephone number. It should also show how far he can travel to serve, how much prior notice he needs to serve, and how often he is available to serve. The dates the brother served as a substitute should be posted on this card along with the circuit where he served. These cards should then be filed in a card file by the circuit to which his congregation is assigned. In this way the branch can quickly see who is available in a given circuit. The brother is then notified by letter, with a carbon copy going to the circuit overseer, of his appointment as a substitute circuit overseer. The letter advises him of arrangements to be made through the circuit overseer for him to receive two weeks of training (depending upon his availability), working along with the circuit overseer while he serves the congregation to observe how he does things. The carbon copy of the letter that is provided to the circuit overseer serves to advise him of the availability of the brother and to alert him to work out arrangements to give needed training. The circuit overseer will provide him with any necessary talk outlines, forms or other information. In a postscript the circuit overseer can be supplied with the brother's phone number to facilitate contacting him. Only permanent circuit overseer appointments need be submitted to the Governing Body.

47. SIZE OF CIRCUITS: Circuits are generally made up of approximately twenty congregations, including isolated groups. The circuit overseer generally is scheduled to cover his circuit twice annually. When circuits get large enough and neighboring circuits do the same, then a number of circuits can be adjusted to form another circuit. The branch sets the date as to when the circuit division goes into effect and advises the circuit overseers accordingly. The circuit overseers, in turn, advise the congregations of their new circuit assignment and the name of the circuit overseer who will be serving them by means of the S-307 form, a supply of which is sent to the circuit overseers by the branch. On this form the circuit overseer shows the effective date of the adjustment. If it has not been determined who will serve the new circuit at the time the circuit overseers are informed of the adjustment, the branch office will notify the congregations in the new circuit who their new circuit overseer will be, including also on the form (S-307) the date he will begin serving in the assignment.

48. The circuit overseers involved in the adjustments are requested to get in touch with one another right away to inform the brother who is being assigned certain congregations of the date they were last served or are scheduled to be served after the effective date of the adjustment, so that congregations will be served twice annually or at least three times in two years. If a brother is not being assigned to the new circuit at the time the adjustment letter is sent out, then an experienced circuit overseer in the area is assigned by the office to set up the circuit file, work out the routing for the new circuit, and care for various other details. All the circuit overseers affected are informed who will care for setting up the new circuit so they can communicate with him relative to congregations that are relinquished to the new circuit.

49. When rearranging circuits sometimes there is a matter of circuit funds deposited with the branch and circuit cafeteria equipment, sound equipment and other things that have to be split between the new circuit and the old ones. This will be done on a pro rata basis proportionate to the average number of publishers transferred from one circuit to the other. If it is impractical to split up the equipment, monetary compensation can be made to the circuits not receiving their share of the equipment. Usually one circuit will take over the old account and an invoice (S-74) will be made against the account, and a credit memorandum (S-73) in behalf of the new circuit(s), which will serve to credit the newly formed circuit or circuits with what balance is left in the account with the branch. The only adjustment the branch makes in the matter is in funds in the circuit account held by the branch. It may be necessary, too, for the circuit overseer to make recommendations for some adjustments in circuit assembly volunteers, such as the assembly overseer and assistant assembly overseer. Also, the circuit overseer may need to recommend new cities for circuit assembly locations.

50. CIRCUIT ASSEMBLY AND SPECIAL ASSEMBLY DAY: The branch assigns dates for circuit assemblies and special assembly days, notifying the circuit overseers accordingly as far in advance as possible, at least eight months and preferably a year or more in advance so they can obtain assembly facilities. The circuit assembly and the special assembly day should be separated by at least three or four months where possible. Where the number of publishers in a circuit is large and available halls are small, it may be necessary to divide the circuit into two or more sections and have a circuit assembly and a special assembly day for each section of congregations once each year. Or the distance for travel may be great and having assemblies at different locations may make it easier for the brothers to be in attendance and for this reason it may be necessary to divide a circuit into two or more sections so that all of the brothers will get the benefit of the program. On the other hand, two, or at most three, circuits may meet together in one hall, having a combined circuit assembly, or special assembly day, if expenses or scheduling make this advisable. A representative from the branch, or a district overseer may be assigned to the special assembly day program. The brother assigned will give the principal talks. The branch should consider the distance involved and the convenience of transportation schedules before assigning a qualified brother from Bethel to serve in this capacity. He will have the Saturday off in order to care for such an assignment. When no speaker is assigned by the branch the circuit overseer will usually be the principal speaker.

51. To aid the circuit overseer in caring for organizational matters at these assemblies, the branch appoints two well-qualified elders to serve in the assembly organization. They are the assembly overseer and the assistant assembly overseer. These brothers do not constitute a circuit committee. Rather, they just simply oversee matters in connection with assembly matters. The circuit overseer submits his recommendation as to elders who might serve in these positions of service, being well qualified to do so, and the branch makes the appointment, using the form S-325a as the original and form S-325b as the carbon copy which is retained in the office file.

52. At each circuit assembly the circuit and district overseers will get together and work out the details for the next circuit assembly. This includes confirming the dates and location, selecting the host congregation to be served by the district overseer, and providing him with the presiding overseer's address. When it is possible to rotate the host congregation, this is encouraging to the brothers. The circuit overseer will fill out the Circuit Assembly Confirmation slip (S-328a) in triplicate, sending the original to the branch and giving a copy to the district overseer. If the district overseer is married and his wife travels with him, arrangements can be made for her to accompany sisters and younger publishers in witnessing activity. The circuit overseer can write the district overseer in care of the branch supplying all needed details and how they will contact one another, informing him also of the exact location of the hall for the circuit assembly. (See 4:84.) The circuit overseer will inform the branch what facility has been secured for the special assembly day, and the city where it will be held, by filling out the Special Assembly Day Confirmation slip (S-328b).

53. CIRCUIT OVERSEER'S ROUTING: The circuit overseer submits his routing to the branch three months or more in advance using the Circuit Overseer's Route Sheet form (S-300). At the same time, he will send the congregation a Notice of Visit of Circuit Overseer form (S-302), prepared by the branch, advising them of the dates of his visit. Four to six weeks before the scheduled visit, he should write the congregation giving them instructions as to what they will need to do in order to prepare for his visit.

54. When the route sheets are received in the office they are filed alphabetically, according to name, and this gives a ready reference to the routing of the circuit overseers in sending mail and so forth. When a substitute circuit overseer serves, a route sheet is submitted showing his name first and thereafter in parentheses the name of the circuit overseer for whom he is substituting.

55. MONTHLY REPORT (S-301): At the close of each month circuit and district overseers send in a Monthly Report (S-301) which shows their assignments that month, their expenses, field service report and vacation dates. The office takes note of transportation and board and room expenses. The personal reimbursement for the overseer and his wife (if she is in full-time service) is included with the total reimbursement he receives. His field service activity and, if he is married, that of his wife is posted on the office's permanent records (S-216).

56. While traveling brothers have no set number of hours, it would be good for them to devote as much time as possible to, and give a good lead in, field service. The wife of the traveling brother will also devote as many hours as possible to the field service.

57. CIRCUIT OVERSEER MAKES A REPORT ON CONGREGATION: When this report on form S-303 is received in the office, it is carefully read, analyzed, and due consideration is given to comments made on the condition of the congregation. Ordinarily we do not acknowledge every circuit overseer's report on the congregation, but only when it seems as though further correspondence on problems will be helpful. The Branch Committee should be intensely interested in each congregation, just as was Paul, who said: "Besides these things of an external kind, there is what rushes in on me from day to day, the anxiety for all the congregations."—2 Cor. 11:28.

58. Recommendations for new appointments or for deletions are made on the S-2 form when the circuit overseer visits the congregation. The ORIGINAL copy of the S-2 form is always to be filled out even if there are no recommendations for appointments or deletions, showing the names of all brothers currently appointed as elders and ministerial servants. A SECOND copy should be made for the congregation file. When there are recommendations for new appointments or for deletions other than because of moving, death, disassociation, or disfellowshipping, the ORIGINAL and THIRD copies of the form are to be sent to the branch along with the S-303 form. The Branch Committee must decide whether or not to approve the recommendations made by the elders and by the circuit overseer for new appointments or for deletions. When recommendations are approved, a check mark is shown to the left of the brother's name on the ORIGINAL and THIRD copies of the S-2 form. The THIRD copy of the S-2 form is then returned to the congregation with the branch's stamp and the date of approval, indicating that the recommendations have been approved.

59. Where an elder is recommended for removal (with the exception of individuals who are disfellowshipped or reproved) but he raises objections and writes to the branch office questioning the recommendation for his removal, the Branch Committee may deem it necessary to ask the body of elders and the circuit overseer for some additional comment on his objections. Usually, the elders have endeavored to help such an elder and, during his visit to the congregation, the circuit overseer has reasoned with him regarding his falling short of scriptural requirements. After receiving further information, then it can be determined whether or not there is any merit in the elder's objections. If the Branch Committee finds it to be advisable, arrangements can be made for a special committee to meet with the elders to review the qualifications of the brother in question. If the special committee agrees that he does not qualify and the Branch Committee accepts their recommendation, then the removal is processed.

60. An elder who intends to move from a congregation should advise the body of elders in advance. Because of his moving the branch office is advised and he is deleted as an elder. Prior to his departure, however, the body of elders should meet, without his being present, to determine whether a favorable recommendation in his behalf can be sent to the body of elders in the congregation to which he will be moving. Usually, this is done without difficulty. There may be occasions, however, when a body of elders finds that they cannot conscientiously recommend such a brother. This may be due to the development of a recent problem in which the departing brother is involved or it may be on account of other reasons. If this is the case, they should discuss the matter with him before he leaves the congregation.

61. When a brother who has been serving as an elder moves into a congregation between visits of the circuit overseer, he does not automatically continue to serve as an elder. Of course, if the branch is transferring him, or is making a special assignment, an appointment letter (S-52a) will be sent from the branch office. Otherwise, if a favorable recommendation is received from the elders of his former congregation, the elders in the congregation to which he has moved may send a written recommendation signed by the Congregation Service Committee for his immediate appointment if that is the decision of the body of elders. They should include a copy of the letter of recommendation from his former congregation. If the recommendation is approved by the Branch Committee, the S-52a form would be used to make the appointment. A duplicate copy (S-52b) is attached to the letter from the congregation and put in the congregation's permanent file with the most recent S-2 form. New appointments or deletions made between visits of the circuit overseer can be indicated on the most recent copy of the S-2 form in the permanent file. If there is any question about a brother's qualifications, the elders should wait until the circuit overseer's visit before recommending his appointment. A similar procedure is followed in connection with ministerial servants who move into a congregation.

62. Until a brother who served as an elder in his former congregation is again appointed he would not attend elders' meetings. The elders can decide if they want to extend privileges that would normally be given to a brother who was actually appointed. This would likewise apply with ministerial servants.

63. If correspondence received from either the circuit overseer or the elders of a congregation that has been served indicates that the circuit overseer has not really helped the congregation in the manner that he should have, then the office will write to the circuit overseer, giving appropriate counsel and suggestions.

64. When congregation orders for literature are received, it would be appropriate for a responsible person in each branch to monitor the orders to be sure the requests are not excessive and that inventories do not build up beyond what the publishers can reasonably use. The circuit overseers can also be asked to watch this carefully when they visit the congregations.

65. If there is a need to make recommendations for adjustments in territory boundaries, the procedure outlined on form S-6, "How to Request a Territory Adjustment" can be followed.

66. REPORTS ON PIONEERS: The circuit overseer will endeavor to work with every regular pioneer in each congregation he serves, giving particular attention to those who are working isolated areas. It will also be encouraging for him to work with auxiliary pioneers as far as practicable. Where there are many pioneers, he may need to arrange to work with them every second visit, so as also to give some time to working with and encouraging congregation publishers.

67. The circuit overseer will submit a report (S-326) regarding each special pioneer or missionary following his first visit of each service year. Due to the district convention schedule in the southern hemisphere some branches may find it more practical to have this done during the second visit of each service year. Upon receiving the report, the office will determine whether or not there is a need to follow up on specific points by writing a letter to any special pioneers or missionaries who should be given further attention. On succeeding visits during the remainder of that service or calendar year the circuit overseer will submit a letter relative to the activity of a special pioneer or missionary whenever there is a need, stating what it is that requires attention. Any matters needing improvement that are reported to the office should have been already discussed with the individual. Reports and correspondence of this nature would be filed in the individual's personal file.

68. The circuit overseer should view the missionaries as he would special pioneers and endeavor to assist them. Once each year the office will make up a letter addressed to all special pioneers and missionaries, giving them encouragement, perhaps relating some upbuilding experience or report and pointing out objectives to have in mind.–See 17:69.

69. Special pioneer and missionary assignments should be carefully observed, particularly as to what they are accomplishing because they are receiving reimbursements from the Worldwide Order to accomplish a specific assignment. Is the money contributed by our brothers being well spent by aiding these individuals? Special pioneer and missionary assignments should be adjusted according to existing needs.—See 1:43, 44.

70. During December of each year the elders will review the progress of regular pioneers associated with the congregation and give kindly counsel and upbuilding encouragement. If certain pioneers are experiencing problems or are in need of counsel, then it is the responsibility of the elders to offer them the needed counsel and encouragement rather than simply reporting the matter to the branch office. If a pioneer does not conduct himself in an exemplary Christian manner, despite counsel given, it is the responsibility of the body of elders to remove him as a pioneer and notify the branch office of such removal.

71. The circuit overseer should be on the watch for publishers and pioneers who can serve elsewhere to assist congregations needing help. In addition to providing information about places in the circuit where help is needed, the pioneers can be encouraged to write to the branch requesting information about congregations needing help. They should have their letter signed by the service committee of the congregation. The circuit overseer can also submit recommendations for qualified regular pioneers to serve as special pioneers.

72. CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT OVERSEER REIMBURSEMENTS: Circuit and district overseers usually live in the homes of the brothers. Meals are provided and often assistance is given in connection with transportation expenses. Where expenses are not covered by the congregation, traveling brothers may request transportation expense from the branch. The branch will also pay for hotel or other rooming accommodations and meals when necessary.

73. The circuit and district overseers are given a monthly reimbursement by the Worldwide Order. The reimbursement for each country is established by the Publishing Committee. If any change is made from the current established reimbursement, approval must be obtained from the Publishing Committee of the Governing Body. There is a difference in the cost of living in different countries, and therefore it is not possible to set a uniform reimbursement to be paid in every country. If a brother's wife is traveling with him and is serving as a pioneer, she is eligible to receive a monthly reimbursement as well as receive a credit each year on her Personal Expense Account. This would also be true if the brother's wife qualifies as an infirm pioneer with an approved reduced number of hours. Otherwise, if she is not in full-time service and is counted as an isolated publisher, the usual arrangement is that she would not receive a monthly reimbursement and would not have a Personal Expense Account.

74. Circuit and district overseers who own their own cars may make request for transportation expenses between congregations and while serving congregations. If the congregation offers to cover the expenses of the circuit overseer while he serves the congregation, he may submit the receipts or bills for his reasonable expenses to the congregation, including the actual cost for gas, food, etc., and the congregation then is invited to cover by resolution what they feel is appropriate. Congregations may supply transportation during the week the traveling brothers are with the congregation or circuit, and this is very much appreciated. If transportation expense is not covered by the congregation, the traveling brother may submit the expense to the branch. In that case rather than just submitting the actual cost of the gasoline or petrol the circuit overseer may submit the amount he desires for reimbursement on the basis of 10 percent of the cost of regular grade, not high-octane, gasoline per U.S. gallon or 8.3 percent for the British or Imperial gallon, times the number of miles. If gasoline is purchased by the liter, the rate would be based on 23.6 percent of the cost per liter, times the number of kilometers traveled. The Branch Committee should review this matter and adjust the rate of payment up or down January 1 each year if the cost of gasoline has gone up or down by 10 percent. In many countries congregations and circuits make provision to assist traveling overseers with their expenses for tires, repairs, insurance, license, etc. Usually major expenses would be submitted to the circuit when convenient rather than to a congregation. In any case, if some congregations and circuits do not have the resources to cover such expenses, the branch may be asked to assist with these to the extent that the traveling overseer is unable to afford them. This applies to any personally-owned vehicle used in the traveling work if the brother is in need of assistance to keep his car operating. Requests to the branch for expenses over $1,000 should be submitted by requisition to the Publishing Committee with an explanation for consideration.

75. PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNT: Similar Personal Expense Account arrangements as for members of the Bethel family apply to circuit and district overseers and their pioneer wives. (See 2:72-80.) Reimbursements and Personal Expense Account credits for circuit overseers and their wives in each country are established by the Publishing Committee on the basis of recommendations from the Branch Committees.

76. Money may be withdrawn from the Personal Expense Account for reimbursement of items purchased or to be purchased or other expenses. Circuit and district overseers may withdraw from their Personal Expense Account funds they wish to have.

77. VACATION ARRANGEMENTS FOR THOSE SERVING IN CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT WORK: Their vacation arrangements will be the same as for Bethel family members except for Saturdays off. (See 2:33-45.) However, unlike Bethel members who may use only the time they have earned whenever they wish during the year, traveling overseers may use all of the vacation time credited to them at the beginning of a service year at any time they wish during the year since they are credited with vacation time in one lump sum for the year, not on the basis of one day for a month during the year.

78. If there is a real need the Branch Committee may arrange for one or two of their members or someone appointed by them to meet with all the district and circuit overseers once a year. It may be convenient to do this during or after a convention. Those handling circuit and district overseer matters should make notation of things that might be taken up with the circuit and district overseers if it is necessary to meet with them each year. Not all the circuit and district overseers have to be at the same location, but if a group can get together they can be given helpful, personal counsel and instruction. This will enable Branch Committees to get better acquainted with these traveling overseers and thus be in a better position to render any encouragement or assistance that may be needed.

79. Concerning circuit overseers who are not able to carry on with their work any longer because of poor health, old age or other problems, but who have been many years in the full-time service, it would be a fine thing to invite them into the special pioneer work if that would be helpful to them and give them a permanent assignment somewhere. If it seems advisable in some cases to put them on the infirm list as special pioneers please make a recommendation to the Service Committee. However it may be that a change from the circuit or district work to special pioneer work without putting them on the infirm pioneer list would be satisfactory to them, and we can see how they get along. If they request to be put on the infirm list and receive reimbursement, then please give the details about their age, years of service, present situation, etc., to the Service Committee for consideration.

80. MEDICAL CARE AND EMERGENCY MEDICAL NEEDS: See 1:72-77.

81. DISTRICT OVERSEERS: Capable, experienced brothers should be selected to serve as district overseers. When needed these can be selected from the ranks of brothers serving as circuit overseers. It is preferable that they be older in years, having been baptized at least ten years. In addition to organizational and speaking abilities, they should be above average in their understanding of Bible principles, showing balanced judgment and a genuine humility that reflects a sincere interest in helping others. They should be men who have a high regard for the importance of the disciple-making work and take the lead for the encouragement of others. They should appreciate that their assignment as a district overseer does not give them an elevated, preferred position over others. Rather, they should see themselves as simply fellow workers "whom people put in charge of much" and who will rightfully have more than usual demanded of them. (Luke 12:48) If he is married, his wife should be a good example in modesty, submissiveness and zeal for the preaching and disciple-making work.

82. DISTRICT OVERSEER'S ROUTING: The district overseer will spend at least two weeks with each circuit overseer every year. During the week of a circuit assembly the district overseer will spend the first part of the week with the host congregation. The district overseer will give a talk to the host congregation on Tuesday and arrange to work with the circuit overseer, his wife, and publishers through Friday. On Saturday he will begin his work in connection with the circuit assembly. The district overseer will work with the circuit overseer in serving a congregation, generally the week after the circuit assembly(ies).

83. If a circuit has more than one circuit assembly each service year, circuit and district overseers will serve as follows: The first week the circuit and district overseer will usually work together with the host congregation. The district overseer will give a Tuesday evening talk to the congregation and field service will be scheduled Wednesday through Friday, both morning and afternoon. This will give the brothers many opportunities to work together the first week. For the following weeks the circuit overseer will arrange to have the district overseer and his wife work with the host congregation for that part of the circuit and the circuit overseer and his wife may work with a different congregation each week until time for the assembly. It may be there are pioneers or elders or others in certain congregations that the circuit overseer was not able to work with sufficiently on his regular visit or there may be some ministerial servants who need help in understanding their records or other problems. These congregations where the problems exist could be selected by the circuit overseer and different congregations would be worked with during the B, C and D assembly weeks without making it a formal visit to the congregation. On the other hand, the circuit and district overseers may feel that there is a congregation where both should serve because there is a special need or problem.

84. The routing for the district overseer is planned in advance. When the routing is ready it can be sent to the district overseer six or more months in advance. A copy is also mailed to the circuit overseer in the district along with the S-316 letter. The S-316 letter explains how the circuit overseer and district overseer work out the details for the circuit assembly for the following series, and this includes the selecting of the host congregation(s) to be served. Smaller branches with just a few circuits may continue using the District Overseer Route Sheet (S-309a) to inform the district overseer of his routing. In such cases the circuit overseer will be informed by the S-316 letter of the time he will be working with the district overseer. The dates will be shown on the bottom of the letter.

85. The circuit overseer is responsible to inform the district overseer as to the exact location of the hall for the assembly. The branch keeps the district overseer advised as to any changes in city locations of circuit assemblies, or dates, and advises him of the mailing address of the host congregation with which he will serve. The district overseer can communicate with the circuit overseer through his permanent address shown on the S-309a form and the circuit overseer can communicate with the district overseer through the branch office address.

86. The district overseer should be thoroughly acquainted with the methods and procedures used by the branch to get the preaching work accomplished. He should show good judgment in directing the preaching work. Circumstances vary a great deal from place to place because of a variety of local customs, laws and attitudes. An effective means to spread the good news in one area may not be appropriate elsewhere. Also, there is a great variety in the capabilities and experience of our brothers. Additionally, "the scene of the world is changing" because of many pressures and influences. (1 Cor. 7:31) Our approach to the disciple-making work should keep abreast of the changing times and varying circumstances. The direction of the preaching work should reflect adaptability, Christian reasonableness and flexibility.

87. We should keep uppermost in mind the principles behind our work, namely, preaching of the good news. Where there is freedom to do so and results continue to be good, we will go from house to house and witness on public streets. In places where restrictions are imposed, the work will have to be carried on discreetly. There is no need to insist that the brothers adhere to some procedure without deviation. Our aim should be to avoid controversy and confrontation with local authorities. Where problems of this kind arise, the important thing is to get the truth to the people as quickly and quietly as possible, searching out sheeplike ones who can be helped by a Bible study. Rather than view their activity as limited to the usual methods of service, our brothers should be helped to appreciate that our life we live each day, with all its many facets and responsibilities, should serve as a witness to our God. Any contact with another person should be viewed as a potential opportunity to share our hope. There is no cause to be disheartened when difficulties limit our scope of activity. As long as we are able to talk and there are people to whom we can speak, we can continue to tell them what we know about our God with full assurance of his blessing.

88. Inasmuch as the district overseer has an assignment which involves giving direction which has far-reaching effects on the work of our brothers, he should be a man of wisdom and discernment. When decisions are to be made, he should first consult God's Word with a determination to be guided by its principles. He should have a high regard for decisions made by the Governing Body and do all he can to cultivate the same appreciation in others. When no specific direction is available, he should "not go beyond the things that are written," relying on his own judgment. (1 Cor. 4:6) Decisions about matters affecting the work should be made in conjunction with the circuit overseer and the local elders. If different views prevent agreement, direction can be requested from the branch office rather than imposing his own viewpoint arbitrarily. He should not be averse to receiving counsel from his brothers, recognizing the benefits to be gained by a "multitude of counselors." (Prov. 11:14) His manner and conduct should reflect a genuine display of the fruitage of God's spirit. (Gal. 5:22, 23) Oversight of this kind will contribute the most toward the spiritual upbuilding of our brothers and the advancement of the preaching work.

89. DISTRICT OVERSEER'S CORRESPONDENCE: He fills out the District Overseer's Weekly Report (S-313) and the Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on the circuit overseer and his wife. Where there is an A, B and C arrangement within the circuit, he waits until all the assemblies have been completed and then sends in the reports together. He furnishes the branch with his and his wife's field service reports and expenses on the Monthly Report (S-301).

90. He is free to correspond with the branch office on all matters pertaining to the Kingdom interests in the territory he serves. It is expected that he will be straightforward in reporting what he sees so that he may be helpful to the branch. This may also include information as to trends in the field, suggestions on handling theocratic activities, etc. When he completes his assignment in one circuit his assigned responsibility there ceases. Time and energies should be devoted to caring for matters pertaining to the circuit that he is presently serving.

91. The branch sends copies of all form letters, such as letters to pioneers, the bodies of elders, etc., to the district overseer for his information. In fact, anything printed that might pertain to the field is sent to the district overseer. Our Kingdom Ministry is mailed to him directly, but all Watchtower and Awake! magazines he will obtain from the congregation he serves. He can get his own private copies from the supplies in the congregations. In that way he will be offering to the public the same magazines that the congregation is working with. The office will not send any special supplies of magazines to a district overseer, but he may advise the circuit overseer well in advance of his needs and the circuit overseer will get the extra quantity with his order. The office will forward personal mail to his current address.

92. HANDLING DISTRICT OVERSEERS' REPORTS: Every report that comes in from a district overseer will be read by someone in the branch office handling the district and circuit overseers' correspondence. The reports and letters should be checked carefully and counsel given should be noted. As he is the branch's representative in the field, you will want to listen to him and benefit from his observations. These letters should have prompt attention.

93. In addition to the District Overseer's Weekly Report (S-313) which is made out on each circuit assembly, the district overseer makes out a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326), on the circuit overseer and his wife. He should observe the diligence, enthusiasm and effectiveness of each individual circuit overseer. He should take note of his relationship with the brothers, his field activity, his speaking ability and whether he is a good teacher. After noting these things the district overseer should give any suggestions or counsel he feels are appropriate with regard to things the circuit overseer or his wife need to work on for improvement. On the S-326 form he should provide comments as to what counsel or suggestions were given to the circuit overseer. As a representative in the field, the district overseer may give admonition and counsel that are most valuable.

94. After these reports are read, if the office feels it is advisable to write regarding certain points, it may do so. The district overseer may have indicated that further counsel may be necessary or that certain things need to be clarified or called to the circuit overseer's attention. Commendation may be in order due to exceptionally fine work being done by the circuit overseer. Where there is a need to write, the activity of the circuit overseer's wife can be commented on also. If her field activity is consistently low, it may be she will need to be viewed as a congregation publisher. However, she would still submit her activity each month to the branch on the Monthly Report along with her husband, but marking the report to show she is a publisher. As a rule, if she is over 50 years of age and has been in full-time service for 15 complete years or more, she may qualify for the "infirm" pioneer arrangement while traveling with her husband. In unusual circumstances involving individual cases, the Branch Committee may feel free to write the Service Committee regarding any recommendations for exceptions to this.

95. Each year the office will make up a letter to be sent to all the traveling overseers, offering general encouragement and counsel on things that may need improvement in the future.

96. When circuit overseers are recommended for district activity, the notation of this is made on the office records so the qualifications of these brothers can be considered when new district overseers are needed due to expansion or according to the periodic changes in assignments.

97. As a result of his association with the publishers in the circuit and having worked very closely with the circuit overseer, the district overseer will have a basis to give appropriate counsel and advice to the entire circuit assembly so the Word of God can be understood more clearly and given wider circulation.

98. If there are matters that should be considered with the district overseer regarding his activity or that of his wife, he can be written by the office whenever the need arises.

99. All correspondence with the congregations, circuit and district overseers, and the brothers in the country will customarily be signed by the branch's legal entity's signature stamp. However, mail to government officials or others may require the signature of the Branch Committee coordinator. No routine mail to the brothers within the territory you serve should be signed by an individual. Memos between desks in the office should be signed by the writer, not with a desk symbol.

100. Letterheads as well as envelopes may be ordered for local use if a high import duty is not charged. If the importation of stationery is too expensive you may find that you can get envelopes and use a rubber stamp for the return address in the smaller branches. We do not want to spend a lot of money to print letterheads locally, but we are usually in a position to supply what the branches need in this regard if an order is submitted. There does not seem to be any need to order inter-branch memos, as plain paper can serve this purpose.

Chapter 5

Correspondence

1. INCOMING MAIL: What each Branch Committee should be interested in is to give good service to all brothers and interested persons in handling inquiries and correspondence that come to the office. The branch arrangement is provided to give the brothers the best possible service. Most of the work is handled through correspondence. In many branches where the work is not too big the Branch Committee coordinator may handle all of the mail that comes in, whereas in larger places a mail desk and correspondence clerks and others would be involved.

2. Arrangements should be made to handle the incoming mail in an orderly and efficient way and without undue delay. It is good for the Branch Committee coordinator to check from time to time to see that the mail is handled properly, and that orders for literature and magazines are being filled within a short period of time. Otherwise additional work will be made as persons write in to inquire or complain with regard to the previous correspondence. Things that are marked "rush" or "urgent" should be given quick attention.

3. Large branches receive hundreds of letters daily while small branches may just get a few letters a day. In some branches this will determine the number of days the Branch Committee coordinator will need to work in the branch office. Or it may govern the number of persons who are required to handle the work. Regardless of the size of the branch organization the processing of the mail will follow the same basic procedure in all offices. Where hundreds of letters are received each day a correspondence clerk handles the mail itself while other individuals will follow through on handling the mailing of magazines or literature and invoicing, etc. But anyone involved should appreciate that when a person writes the branch he is writing because he wants something and prompt attention should be given to his request. Brothers are working in the branch offices to help people get the literature, to answer their questions, and to give them encouragement and comfort, and this should be done as soon as possible.

4. If additional help is needed from time to time, perhaps on a temporary basis to care for the work load, then the Branch Committee should see that this is provided so that the brothers will be served.

5. As to how much work an individual can handle in the way of letters depends of course on the individual and his speed and efficiency. It has been noted that one person in a branch office where translating or printing or other factors are not involved can generally care for 500 to 1,000 or even more publishers. If the mail load is small, then one person can handle the mail, doing the work of the correspondence clerk, the invoice clerk, the bookkeeping work, the report cards, writing letters to the congregations, arranging circuit overseer routings and also caring for the monthly reports to the Governing Body. Circumstances may vary from country to country and will determine how much one can do.

6. In branches where the work load is light, it is quite in order for the brother working at the branch to spend part of his time in the field activity. Or, if more than one is working in the branch but only part time is required, then it is fine for the one whose services are not needed full time to spend some time in the field activity. This is much better than to make work at the branch that is not really necessary. We are interested in the lives of people and bringing the good news to them.

7. In a branch where the mail load is small, it is good to arrange to handle the work at certain set times each week rather than letting it go for a week or two. The brothers expect service and we want to give it to them. It is not necessary, however, for a small branch receiving little mail to open the mail every day. The work should accumulate so that there will be enough work for a morning or a whole day so that the time will be well spent in handling it. For example, Monday and Thursday might be all the time necessary to do the branch work. There is no need to open the mail every day just to see what it is unless something is marked "rush" or it comes from Brooklyn or your printing branch. When it is opened it usually is best to read and handle it, otherwise time will be wasted reading it twice.

8. In many countries, much time is involved clearing shipments through customs, going to the bank, delivering shipments to the post office, picking up magazines at the pier or post office, and so on. This is very time consuming in some countries. Brothers in small branches have to do a lot of running around, but even so it is good to schedule your work to save time and to try to handle such matters so as little time as possible will be lost.

9. PROCEDURE: The basic procedure of work as outlined in Branch Organization should be followed whether your branch is a large one or a small one, whether there are many persons or just one working in the office. In a small branch the Branch Committee coordinator will care for all of the different kinds of work that pertain to that branch except he will be doing different things at different times of the day or week. After he has opened the correspondence he will take care of invoicing and then go on to shipping, handling matters in a logical order as he finds best. Questions on the handling of work may be referred to the Governing Body or discussed with the zone overseer during the time of his visit.

10. MAIL CLERK: Letters and cards (general correspondence) received may be sorted before opening according to states or provinces and into special departments, such as pioneer mail, circuit mail, convention mail, handbill orders, private mail, and so forth. It is not necessary to count incoming or outgoing mail. Special delivery letters, telegrams, and telephoned orders are put on the top of the piles or delivered to the proper desk on arrival. Usually letters in large envelopes are handled first, because they generally contain orders and subscriptions.

11. The mail clerk distributes the mail twice a day if more than one postal delivery is made during the day. In larger branches interdepartmental mail may be delivered several times each day.

12. CORRESPONDENCE CLERK: The correspondence clerk handles mail in the date order it is delivered to him. In the beginning of the month the mail may be heavy, because most congregations write the branch before the sixth of the month. Therefore, extra help may be given the clerk so that the mail is opened quickly for distribution.

13. The correspondence clerk will slit open about twenty-five envelopes at one time, one after the other, after turning the address face down. The mail is rejogged and stacked in position for handling. The clerk removes the contents and dates all the enclosures except checks, money orders, legal documents, and so forth. The date is put in the upper right-hand corner of all letters and enclosures, unless there is a special place on forms for office use only. The Contribution Remittance form (S(d)-20) should be checked carefully. Record the remittance on the form or correspondence in the proper manner, using symbols, C for cash, K for check, D for draft or cashiers' check, B for bank money order, O for post-office money order, S for stamps, X for express money order, or some symbols generally used in your country. The name of sender must be printed on the top of the letter or underscored, for filing purposes.

14. First read only as much of the letter as necessary to determine what is to be done with all enclosures. A correspondence clerk should never read lengthy letters on service problems, but get the mail moving to the proper department for handling.

15. REMITTANCES: If remittance is enclosed in the mail, check it carefully as to date, payee, proper amount, the agreement between written and numerical figures, title of account and signatures. It has been recommended that congregation checks have two authorized signatures.

16. Branches using a manual system will list any remittances on Statement Daily Receipts form (C–6). In branches using a computer, the SDR can be produced automatically by the computer after the remittance information has been entered, so there is no need for the correspondence clerk to write this on an SDR form.

17. All donations from individuals with the approximate value of US$5.00 or more should be acknowledged by a printed acknowledgment letter unless your Branch Committee sees a need to acknowledge somewhat smaller contributions. Otherwise donations in a lesser amount would be acknowledged only when it is necessary to write about other matters and in the same letter. The correspondence clerk will make out all donation letters acknowledging contributions. The acknowledgement sent to a disfellowshipped person should contain just the bare minimum acknowledgement of receipt for the contribution with any required tax language. No Scriptural thoughts or greetings are necessary. As to donations from congregations, these may be acknowledged by a notation on the literature and magazine statement showing the date, the check number or other description, the purpose for the contribution, and the exact amount of the contribution with a brief expression of appreciation. It will be convenient for branches handling their statements and bookkeeping by computer to do it this way. Other branches, if they are not computerized, may find it necessary or advantageous to continue to send out acknowledgment letters to congregations as well as to individuals. It is advisable to continue sending donation acknowledgment letters to circuits when they donate funds to the branch so that these can be read to the circuit.

18. STATEMENT DAILY RECEIPTS: In branches using a manual system, listing of monies on Statement Daily Receipts, (SDR) form (C-6), must be done daily, or when opening mail. For convenience in banking the usual procedure is to list separately all postal money order amounts on the SDR sheet and all check amounts on another SDR sheet. However, if your bank does not require this you may find it easier to enter them mixed on the same SDR sheet. Branches can list receipts in whatever order is most efficient. All cash received in amounts of $5.00 or more must be listed on the SDR under the name of the sender. All congregation remittances should be entered on an SDR sheet under the name of the congregation, if possible, and on a separate line. If your local government allows you to, you may bulk cash received in amounts under $5.00. The same is true of stamps. The SDR sheets become your daily cash journal unless your local government requires you to make handwritten entries in a Day Book or Cash Journal. The Society has two records of receipts: (1) SDR sheet; (2) the correspondence which has the exact amount of remittances written on the letter, order blank or the envelope if there was no other enclosure for filing. In branches using a computer, the SDR can be produced automatically by the computer after the remittance information has been entered. The SDR may be produced daily, weekly, or monthly, as needed by the branch. The computer system may be used to produce a Bank Deposit Report for depositing the remittances and a Breakdown of Receipts report for posting account totals to the ledger. Branches should list all funds received on an SDR. Even if a branch permits circuit overseers or special pioneers to receive reimbursements from funds turned in at a missionary home or depot, using an S-20 form, the branch should list the entire amount in the regular way on the SDR. Show a subtotal for cash received. Use a separate line for what is paid out and then show the total amount of cash received. In this way all the funds turned in as well as the expenditures will be listed on the SDR and you will have an accurate record and can show what is spent for the field, for relief, or for other purposes. —See "Receipts," 6:18-20.

19. In branches using a manual system, all SDR entries are proofread against adding machine tape if available and the totals of the last four columns must equal the total of the second column. The correspondence clerk should list doubtful remittances at the bottom of the sheet or separately on another sheet (C-6) and mark them questionable. The reason for this is that the bank may not recognize the figures written on the check. The title of the account may not be clear, a signature may be missing, there may be no date, erasures, and so forth. It might be necessary for the office to return the check to the sender and have a new check issued. In such circumstances, the order of the congregation in good standing would be processed and shipped, but write the congregation about the matter. If an individual sends in an unsigned check, return the check and order to him. In small branches the SDR may be used for the entire month by drawing a total at the end of the day you make entries and making a red line across the sheet. The money may be entered in the ledger book every day, weekly, or monthly, depending on the amount of business done. Your checks and cash must be kept with the SDR sheet until the monies are entered in the ledger book. The same SDR sheet may be used several times in this manner until filled.

20. In branches using a computer, an adding machine tape of the totals of a batch of remittances should be made (unless congregations use electronic funds transfer) and checked against an adding machine tape of the corresponding S-20's and letters. The batch of remittances with the totals shown on the adding machine tape may be deposited in the bank or you may hold this until the remittance information has been entered into the computer and a Bank Deposit Report produced for all batches to be deposited. The batch of remittance documents (S-20's and letters) should be entered into the computer and the total compared to the adding machine tape total. Daily, weekly, or monthly a Breakdown of Receipts report should be produced to be used for posting account totals to the ledger, and the reports retained as an audit trail to the subsidiary account information in the Accounts Receivable computer files. The totals posted to the ledger can be checked against the adding machine tape totals of the corresponding remittance batches, the Bank Deposit reports, and the bank statements listing the deposits actually made.

21. ORDERS, MAGAZINE REQUESTS, ETC.: The correspondence clerk will handle everything in the letter he is authorized to handle. Complaints should not be laid aside until later. After reading the letter, handle it to its completion. Letters that cannot be handled by the person opening the correspondence should not even be read. They should be quickly glanced over and marked for the right department. Examples: circuit reports, pioneer matters, Bible questions, news clippings, and so forth. These would be marked for the proper desk, set aside and delivered sometime during the day, usually just before noon and again at 4:00 pm. Larger branches may find it advantageous to make more frequent deliveries.

22. If parts of the letter are handled by the correspondence clerk, then what is handled should be properly bracketed, checked off, dated and initialed by the handler. The rest of the letter, perhaps on a Bible question, will be delivered to someone assigned to such work.

23. All orders for handbills should be given prompt attention.

24. The correspondence clerk will write out small orders on labels when appropriate. This would include such things as orders from the public and free item orders from congregations when items are not ordered together with campaign literature. If the clerk thinks an order is from a stranger, he will make out a Please Call on This Person slip (S-70). These slips should be mailed to the nearest congregation at least twice monthly. One of these mailings should be included with the monthly statement mailing.

25. Literature requests will be passed on to the shipping correspondence clerk. A packing list will be made up for the congregation and the order filled.—Note 18:20 regarding the use of mnemonic symbols on invoices.

26. Clerks may use an alphabetical file folder of some sort to presort and hold finished correspondence for current files until filing at the end of the day.

27. Sometimes literature is paid for by someone and ordered to be sent to another person. If it appears that the receiver of the literature is not in the truth, we also send a form Gift letter (C-7).

28. Persons writing for information regarding publications we print or cassettes or Bibles we handle may be sent the appropriate form S-59, C-9, or C-3, if available for their language. Some branches receive much correspondence asking for various items, also for pen pal addresses, letters of sponsorship, etc. Usually such correspondence may be discarded. However, letters asking for literature or a Bible study should be returned to the appropriate branch for handling unless that branch advises to the contrary. Requests for free literature usually can be handled by referring the request to the local congregation. At times individuals from other countries may write a branch office requesting sets of stationery, post cards, branch brochures, and other items of that nature. We do not recommend that the branches supply such items to individuals in other countries. As a general rule it is best to hold such items for those visiting the branch or publishers in your own country. Of course, there may be some exceptions to this that you will want to use your own judgment on, but in most cases we recommend that you return such requests to the branch in the country of origin.

29. If literature ordered is out of stock, write the person expressing our regret and ask what we should send in its place or what he wants done with his remittance. Always say we will return the remittance or send him what he requests from our publications.

30. Handbill requests may be passed on to the printing branch or to the Graphics Department to work out the filling of the order with the Job Press Department depending on the situation. Magazines requests will be forwarded to the printing branch in the manner arranged for each branch.

31. When letters are received at branch offices from countries outside the jurisdiction of the branch, such letters should be forwarded directly to the branch office handling that territory. If for some reason a reply is required from your branch to an individual living in a country handled by another branch, the branch originating the reply should send the original and carbon copy to the branch office handling the country where the person lives for forwarding. This will enable the branch receiving the reply to make certain the individual to whom the letter is addressed is in good standing and should be sent the correspondence.

32. Where magazine requests are received in branches, but the branch does not print and mail the magazines, M-229 forms should be prepared and sent every week to the printing branch. A copy of all M-229 forms sent to the printing branch must be kept in your file. The list of printing branches should be consulted so that magazine requests will be sent to the correct branch. If the branch handling the magazine request is the printing branch, then the M-229 form is not used, but the original M-202 forms may go directly to the Magazine Department, where they are first checked and proofread, and then entered into the computer.—See also Magazines, 13:11-16, 22-23.

33. If a person telephones locally or long distance and wants something, the office endeavors to give the matter quick attention. But a letter is just as important as a telephone call. The person writing took time to put his request down on paper and did not make you write it because of phoning. The letter writer kindly wrote it for you so that you would have a correct record. A telephone caller does not give you that courtesy or a written record; you do all the work. So why not give good service to those who correspond, just as good as to those who always use the telephone? If certain persons always phone, you can kindly suggest they write in the future. It will save time, because a correspondence clerk can handle two or three letters in the time it takes to handle the telephone call.

34. The office should be very careful in giving out addresses to anyone. The only addresses the branch will give out are Kingdom Hall addresses in any city. Do not give out any addresses unless you know that it is for a circuit or district overseer or a special representative of the branch. If mail comes in properly stamped from persons wanting a letter forwarded to an appointed representative of the branch, we can forward it, leaving it to the discretion of the receiver as to whether he wants to answer it. But we never forward mail to persons on our subscription list. We return it to the sender. The subscription list is considered confidential. Kingdom Hall addresses we can obtain from the report of the circuit overseer. If there is no Kingdom Hall in the city, it would not be good to give an address.

35. MAIL REQUESTING LITERATURE ITEMS: An individual may read an advertisement and be interested enough to write for a publication. If it is a basic study item produced by the organization, a single copy of the requested publication is customarily sent to the requester and a return visit slip is sent to the congregation so the interest can be followed up. Those writing for special-request items, indicating they have some familiarity with the organization, are referred to the congregation for local follow-up and handling. Any literature the person requests can be supplied by the congregation.

36. Any charges resulting from special handling of literature requests from a congregation may be charged to the congregation for reimbursement of postage or fees required.

37. In countries with the postal checking account system, if it is a convenience we may enclose a "pay-in" form for payment to the branch's postal account for any charges due from the congregation. Currently in many countries we are using a telephonic arrangement to send contributions to the branch with approval already granted the branch to withdraw the amount indicated by the congregation from the congregation bank account.

38. Correspondence clerks should also make out a follow-up slip (S-70) for a return visit, and such should be sent to the congregation so that persons interested enough to write us might be called on soon and perhaps a Bible study can be started. The correspondence clerk or person handling mail in a branch office should be just as much interested in the person who writes as he would be in his own private Bible study that he is conducting in his congregation. We love truth-seeking people and we want to help them. Let us work in their interests so that they might get the truth. So accelerate your work by letting the congregations know so that the proper follow-up can be made on interested persons.—See 5:24.

39. Larger branches may require more than one worker to open, process and route incoming mail. This is usually arranged with the territory under branch supervision being divided and each clerk regularly caring for a certain section. In this situation, the clerk will handle the work for the assigned section as outlined in paragraphs 12-39 above. It may be better in very large branches to subdivide the work with one or more persons assigned to open and route mail while others care for specific work, such as, acknowledging donations, filling personal or label orders, etc. This will facilitate getting the mail opened and routed to various departments without delay. Then, the more routine work can be cared for throughout the day by clerks assigned to each operation.

40. MAILING SUPPLIES: Any form letters or other things that accumulate during the month to be sent to all congregations can be mailed with the Shipping Summary. Branches may find it appropriate to send Our Kingdom Ministry with supplies of magazines.

Chapter 6

Accounting

1. To support branch operations and the work of preaching the good news of Jehovah's Kingdom, voluntary donations are made. These are part of the resources dedicated to Jehovah. (1 Chron. 29:14-16) One of the Governing Body's concerns is that donated funds be used to the best advantage. This requires that proper records be kept of all incoming funds and of expenditures. Therefore, each branch keeps certain accounting records.—Matt. 25:14-30; 1 Cor. 4:2.

2. RESPONSIBILITIES: The accounting and other financial work in a branch is usually assigned to a single department under an overseer. In large branches the basic financial functions may be broadly divided into three categories: (1) treasury, (2) accounting, and (3) risk management. Other branches may want to divide their work along similar lines, but this will depend upon the amount of work to be done and the number and capabilities of the volunteers.

3. Treasury involves handling the branch cash. It includes the day-to-day procedures for processing cash and other receipts, making deposits into the bank, and signing checks for payments. In the larger branches, short-term investments need to be made of funds that are not needed immediately so that reasonable interest is earned. The department is responsible to recommend to the Branch Committee an appropriate commercial bank or banks to work with and for maintaining a good relationship with these. The same brothers also often handle tax matters.—See also Chapter 22.

4. Accounting, on the other hand, is concerned with keeping proper records and preparing reports. This includes preparing vendor invoices for payment; maintaining creditor and debtor accounts; reconciling bank and other accounts; updating construction and maintenance records for property, buildings, and equipment; maintaining inventory records of printing paper and other supplies; keeping the general ledger up to date; and preparing financial statements and reports. Printing branches may also need to do cost accounting so that the real or full cost of producing and distributing literature can be known. Cost accounting may also be used occasionally in other areas to help the Branch Committee or the Governing Body to arrive at appropriate decisions. In view of the work involved in keeping these records, a qualified brother may be given day-to-day oversight of accounting responsibilities in a large branch under the general direction of the overseer of the department.

5. Risk management is a broad term that is used to describe various programs for protecting the branch's assets such as Kingdom Halls and automobiles from financial loss. The Kingdom Hall Assistance Arrangement (KHAA) is an example. All programs or arrangements of this kind are to be developed in close cooperation with the Publishing Committee.

6. LEGAL REQUIREMENTS: Branches should carefully comply with the local statutory or legal requirements for financial records and for reporting to the government. (Matt. 22:17-22; Rom. 13:1-7) At times, branches have been exempted from certain requirements simply by explaining the nature of our work. However, all those who work in the financial area should be made aware that failure to comply with legal requirements without permission could lead to serious consequences including financial penalties and the loss of tax-exempt status.—See 1:39-46; 6:52-54; 9:19, 20.

7. The authorities generally expect an organization's financial records to mirror its activities. Inconsistencies often lead to problems. Therefore, it is vital that the brother responsible for accounting fully understands the branch's legal structure and the local legal environment. This requires that he cooperate closely with the Branch Committee and the Legal Department if the branch has one. Since even a slight change in the legal structure or environment can affect the accounts, he should closely monitor how transactions are being recorded to make sure that they are always in harmony with the branch's legal position.

8. CHART OF ACCOUNTS: A standard Branch Chart of Accounts (A-43) has been developed. This sets out the minimum accounting required for any branch. (See 6:14 for direction on how to handle local legal requirements.) You should set up a separate set of accounts for each legal entity that the branch is using. Always have your accounts in good shape, so that an auditor or a representative of the Governing Body can check them. All financial activity of the branch and all funds held by the branch should be included in the branch accounting records.

9. Generally speaking, local accounting records should always be kept in the local currency. However, if the majority of the cash on hand and the daily receipts and disbursements for a given legal entity are being held in or executed in a foreign currency, then it may be better to keep the accounts for this entity in that foreign currency. An example of this might be a branch entity that has the majority of its funds in a U.S.-dollar bank account. The majority of the receipts and disbursements made are also denominated in U.S. dollars. In this case, it would make more sense to keep the entity's books in U.S. dollars rather than in the local currency. Please write for more information if you feel this applies to your situation.

10. The Branch Chart of Accounts is based on the widely accepted principle of double-entry bookkeeping. The double-entry system provides a logical method for recording financial transactions and for proving the accuracy of what was recorded. Under this system each entry in the books has to affect two or more accounts to keep the system in balance. An account is a predetermined category for summarizing similar financial transactions. The complete set of accounts needed to record an entity's activities is referred to as the general ledger. For each debit to one account, there must always be a corresponding credit to another account. The sum of all the debits to the accounts always has to equal the sum of all the credits. This double-entry principle is the basis of most of the accounting software that is readily available today. If you need help with understanding double-entry bookkeeping, please feel free to write.

11. Bookkeepers can record transactions in one of two ways. The simplest method is called the cash basis of accounting. When it is used, economic events are recorded only when cash is received or disbursed. Amounts owed to or by the branch are not included in the books on a day-to-day basis. A record of assets and liabilities is kept in the books, but they are depreciated or adjusted only at the end of the financial year. On the other hand, the accrual basis of accounting recognizes revenue or income as soon as it is earned and expenses as soon as they are incurred no matter when the cash is received or paid. With the use of accrual accounting, supplies are not charged to expense accounts when they are purchased, but rather, they are added to the stock on hand. The actual items used during the month are subtracted from the inventory, and their values are charged to the appropriate expense accounts. This involves keeping track of the movement of supplies and charging inventory values each month. Because it includes an estimate of future cash receipts and payments, the accrual basis usually gives a more accurate picture of the branch's financial position at any given time. When a branch is small, there is not much difference between the results of the two methods. So most branches should keep their accounts on the cash basis unless they are required by law to use accrual accounting. This will keep their bookkeeping requirements to a minimum. It should be noted, though, that cash basis branches are asked once a year to make some additional estimates needed to prepare a proper balance sheet and operating statement.—See 16:13.

12. There are five types of accounts in a complete chart of accounts. Assets are the resources owned by the branch. Cash on hand, materials stored as inventories, buildings, and equipment are all examples of assets. The claims of creditors against those assets are called liabilities. For example, Personal Expense Accounts and loans from individuals or congregations are liabilities. When all the liabilities of the branch (what is owed) are subtracted from all the assets (what is owned), the remaining figure is referred to as the net assets (or net worth). Revenues are the branch's actual or expected receipts. Donations and bank interest are usually the main source of a branch's revenues. Expenses, on the other hand, are the actual or expected payments for day-to-day operations. Some examples of expenses are payments for telephone service, shipping charges, and rent.

13. The Branch Chart of Accounts, with its complete range of asset, liability, revenue, and expense accounts, should provide enough detail to support what is needed locally and to complete the various reports that the Publishing Committee requests periodically. The larger branches may find a more detailed chart of accounts advantageous. In any case, in your records you should only set up accounts or special funds for which there is or there is expected to be some local activity. Other accounts do not need to be set up. You are free, of course, to translate the account names or descriptions into the local language or to change them if that satisfies a local need. However, when reporting to the Publishing Committee, you must always use each account in the way it is described in the Branch Chart of Accounts. Please write for assistance if you need help with any aspect of the chart of accounts.

14. We recommend that you use the chart of accounts supplied by the Publishing Committee as the basis for your day-to-day records unless you have a strong reason to do otherwise. This will simplify matters. Before deciding on another approach, make sure that you know what the local law requires. It might be possible, for example, to use the chart of accounts on a day-to-day basis and simply adjust the results to conform to local regulations whenever reports have to be prepared for the authorities. However, if using the chart of accounts will not satisfy the local authorities, there are at least two possible approaches. (1) Use the local chart of accounts, and follow local standards to record daily transactions. At the end of each month, transfer the balances from your local chart of accounts to a separate worksheet and make any necessary adjustments to conform to the standards supplied by the Publishing Committee. Then cross-reference the balance of each local account to a corresponding account in the Branch Chart of Accounts, and complete the reports to the Publishing Committee. (2) Alternatively, keep two sets of accounts. You can then prepare financial statements and reports as needed from each set of accounts. Of course, each branch is in the best position to make a final decision as to which approach to use in their situation.

15. SPECIAL FUNDS: When a branch is asked to send funds to another branch from its general funds, the receiving branch should always credit their general fund on receipt. However, if a branch is asked to send funds to another branch from any of their special funds (Kingdom Hall Fund, KHF; Kingdom Hall Assistance Arrangement, KHAA; Relief Fund, EEAA, etc.), they should provide the receiving branch the name of the fund. The receiving branch will then record the receipt in that fund. Please write if you need more information on using “fund accounting” for these special funds.

16. All Kingdom Hall construction loans issued after September 1, 1999, should be recorded in the KHF. Repayments on those loans should also be recorded in the fund. However, repayments on any loans that were previously issued from general funds should continue to be recorded in the general fund. Where a branch corporation holds legal title to the Kingdom Halls or Assembly Halls, any funds advanced to the congregations or disbursements made for construction should be recorded in the "Work in process on local projects" account rather than in a loan account. Please write if you need further explanation of this.

17. Cash balances in the special funds can be left to build up unless that is not permitted by local regulations, in which case you may make a recommendation to the Publishing Committee. If you spend more than what was received from local contributions in any special fund, the disbursements should still be charged to the fund. This often happens, for example, with relief expenses. At the end of the year, if there is a deficit balance in any special fund, simply bring the balance of the fund to zero by recording an interfund transfer from the general fund. Notify the Publishing Committee of the adjustment, and we will make a corresponding adjustment in the International KHF, International Relief Fund, or another appropriate special fund.

18. RECEIPTS: Every working day, receipts will be coming into the branch. In branches using a manual system, each entry must appear on the Statement of Daily Receipts (C-6), the SDR, no matter where the money comes from or what it is paid in for. In countries where congregations or individuals can send remittances directly to the branch’s bank account through the banking or postal system, a thorough reconciliation has to be made each week or month of what the sender or senders say was sent with what the bank says was received. When the SDR sheets are totaled, the totals are transferred to the books or records of the branch. It is not necessary to enter the check or money order number on the SDR sheet unless you need it for some purpose. You marked it on your letter or remittance form. (See 5:13.) In branches using a computer system, the computer program produces the SDR. A Breakdown of Receipts or some similar report is produced periodically to document the account totals posted to the general ledger.

19. When materials, equipment, vehicles, or buildings are donated to the branch, the fair market value (current probable selling price) of the item(s) should be determined and recorded as a donation unless you are not permitted to do so by law. The amount should be debited to the appropriate asset or expense account and credited to the “Other donations” account. If the local law does not permit you to do this, then please keep a separate record of these donated amounts and report the total at the end of each year to the Publishing Committee. Please break the total figure down into the respective asset and expense accounts that would have been involved if they were recorded.

20. In some countries special pioneers and missionary homes receive reimbursements by taking funds from donations to the worldwide work. However, the total amount turned in should be entered on an SDR sheet with a deduction for the special pioneer or other reimbursement shown toward the bottom of the form. The balance would go to the bank or to the cash drawer. That way you will have the complete financial details for the branch entered on the A-13 form month by month both for total funds remitted and for those disbursed.—See 5:18.

21. DISBURSEMENTS: Vouchers may be numbered as part of the identification of some entries. If a branch does not use vouchers, the number of the invoice paid or other identifying information can be entered instead of the voucher number. In some branches, disbursements are made using checks; in others, wire transfers, electronic funds transfers, postal payments, and other methods are used. The branch should determine which method is the most practical and cost-effective in each case.

22. Small miscellaneous cash payments are not made directly from the cash on hand in the office but are made from a special petty cash fund set up for that purpose. Replenish the petty cash fund as often as needed but at least once a month. In the petty cash box or drawer, the sum of the money and receipt slips for expenditures must always be equal to the total of the fund. Petty cash funds should be audited from time to time by a responsible brother to see that this is the case. The total fund amount is carried forward each month on the books separately from the cash in the office. Petty cash will always remain at the same figure, unless a specific authorization for a change is approved and documented. The place where the petty cash is stored should be kept secured by lock and key. This key should not be kept in a location where it is accessible to others. One person should be appointed to be the custodian of each petty cash fund and be responsible for all money disbursed. When responsibility for the petty cash fund is transferred to another person, for example due to vacation, a count should be made of the petty cash fund. The amount of cash and requisitions should be noted and initialed by both persons. The process should be repeated when the person responsible for the fund returns.

23. All disbursements must be supported by sufficient documentation such as an invoice or a bill. Sufficient documentation consists of the approved requisition, receiving slip as proof of the items being received, the price charged minus any discount, and the final amount paid all stapled together. The check number, date, and the amount of payment should be shown on the bill, with corresponding entry made on the check stub or copy. This is a general procedure. It may vary when computerized accounting is implemented. Where other systems are used, however, it should still be very simple for someone reviewing the records to find corresponding proofs of approval to purchase, receipt of goods, and payment for every disbursement.

24. Missionary home funds and advances to traveling overseers are handled in the same way as petty cash funds. They should be carried forward each month separately from the branch cash on hand. In the case of a change to one of these funds or advances, which may be authorized by the Branch Committee, the home servant or traveling overseer should sign a new receipt.

25. CIRCUIT ACCOUNTS: In some lands circuits open accounts with the branch that they can use to deposit and withdraw money. Circuits are not required to keep accounts with the branch. No interest is paid by the branch on these accounts. However, some may wish to deposit most of their funds with the branch and retain a small amount in a local bank account. This allows the branch to use most of the money and enables the circuit to retain a sufficient amount for minor expenses prior to the next assembly. As long as a circuit has a deposit of money with the branch, it can charge supplies against the account or can withdraw the money. Since the chief purpose of these accounts is to enable the branch to make use of the funds, it is preferable for supplies to be obtained through the congregation in the territory where each circuit assembly is held. This may not always be practical though, so the circuit can have such supplies charged to its credit balance if necessary. However, when a circuit account has no credit balance, the branch usually does not give credit to a circuit. A statement is sent for circuit accounts only when there is a charge or a credit. Where funds are limited or where the work is just beginning, the branch may have to advance funds to get a circuit assembly organized.

26. BRANCH ACCOUNTS: There are basically three types of transactions between branches, (1) transfers of funds, (2) literature shipments, and (3) shipments of materials, supplies, and equipment. In each case, the transaction can be recorded either as a donation or as a receivable/payable. Donations should be recorded by the sending branch in the “Donation to cooperating societies” account, and the receiving branch should record them in the “Donation from cooperating societies” account. Receivable/payable transactions should be recorded by both the sending and the receiving branches in the “Due to/from cooperating societies” account. What determines whether to use a “donation” or a “due to/from” account? The circumstances and legal requirements in each country will dictate how a transaction will be recorded.

27. Transfers of funds will generally be billed to the receiving branch. However, if the receiving branch cannot legally carry a debt to a foreign society on its books, then the transfer can be recorded as a donation. Literature shipments will generally not be billed to the receiving branch but are considered a donation. Since branches do not show a value for literature on their books, nothing would generally be recorded. (See 6:33.) Sometimes, though, a branch might want to pay for a shipment of literature because their funds are building up or because that is the only way to get the literature into the country. In that case the receiving branch can be billed. Finally, shipments of equipment and materials will generally be billed to the receiving branch. At times, however, because of legal issues, it is not possible or advisable for a branch to be billed in this manner. Then the transaction can be recorded as a donation. In each case the local regulations and circumstances must be considered. If you are not sure what to do, you can always inquire of the Publishing Committee.

28. The documentation for each transfer or shipment must clearly indicate whether it is a donation or a bill. Charges will always appear on notices of transfer, invoices, or memorandums, and each branch should receive a copy of the document. The total cost of each transaction is charged, including freight, postage, cartons, insurance, fees, and any other related expense. When branches make out invoices, they should always show on the invoice the name of the branch from which the transaction originates and also the name of the branch to which the charge is being made. For donations, the notice of transfer, the invoice, or the memorandum should be clearly marked “Free Gift” or some other such statement as requested by the receiving branch and should simply show values for customs purposes.

29. There are a few exceptions to the foregoing guidelines. To save work, it is not necessary for you to invoice amounts of less than US$50. The sending branch should absorb these minor amounts in the “Other cooperating Societies expenses” account. If you are requested to send funds to a country where there is no branch, you will expense the amount to the “Donation to cooperating societies” account. Or if the Publishing Committee instructs from the outset that you send cash as a donation, then expense the amounts to the “Donation to cooperating societies” account. In many instances there is no need to open a branch account and send out statements when the receiving branch will never be able to repay. Finally, from time to time, you may be requested to transfer funds between branches when money is not actually sent. These requests usually involve relatively minor amounts, and it would not be practical to make a wire transfer for such a small amount. A signed letter regarding these requests should always be sent to the Publishing Committee for approval. (Note one exception at 8:45 for funds sent to missionaries or Bethelites.) After approval, a copy will be forwarded to the branch making the payment. However, no invoice or credit memo will be issued. Money received will be recorded as “Donations from cooperating societies” by one branch, and money disbursed will be charged to the “Donations to cooperating societies” account by the other. If the payment relates to a liability being held by any branch, however, then the branch holding the liability should debit the appropriate account (PEA, loan, etc.) and credit the “Due to/from cooperating societies” account. The branch making the payment should debit the “Due to/from cooperating societies” account and credit the “Checking and savings” account. Of course, individuals should generally make requests for payment of PEA and other liabilities directly to the branch holding their account. No interbranch transactions will result in this case.

30. Whenever amounts are paid on branch accounts, the “Due to/from cooperating societies” accounts are used to record the payment. No branch should pay invoices to any other branch unless they have been directed to do so by the Publishing Committee. Money is not to be sent to countries where it is not needed. When a branch has been directed to make payments on their account, these will generally be made at the end of each month. A letter to the branch should accompany your check or wire transfer, stating the dates and numbers of the invoices being paid. Always send a copy of such interbranch letters to the Publishing Committee. In some instances branches may find it advisable to save up charges and pay them quarterly or even semiannually rather than monthly. Many times this would result in reducing the fees for transmitting funds.

31. After the books are closed for August each year, branches that are holding “Due to/from cooperating societies” accounts with a receivable balance will provide the Publishing Committee with a listing of these accounts and their balances. They will also send a detailed statement to any branch that is carrying a debt with them showing the current standing and any activity on their account over the past year. When practical, one copy of each invoice and credit memo will be attached to the statement. Keep a separate file for statements from each branch. The statements should always be checked as soon as they are received. Any discrepancies should be pursued immediately with the branch in question.

32. If a branch has an account with a receivable balance that is in reality not collectible and they would like to write it off, they should write to the Publishing Committee for permission to do so. Please state whether both branches are in agreement with the recommendation. If the receiving branch wants to keep the debt, it will tell the sending branch and the Publishing Committee why. If permission to write off the account is granted, the amount written off should be charged to the “Donations to cooperating societies” account, and a credit memo should be sent to the branch receiving credit. They, in turn, would credit the account “Donations from cooperating societies” to write off the debt on their books. Similarly, any accounts with a balance of US$100 or less can be automatically written off at the end of August unless there is some legal reason to keep them. The branch that holds the receivable balance should initiate the appropriate documentation to the debtor branch so that if both branches are in agreement, they can make the necessary entries in their accounts.

33. INVENTORIES: Branches do not need to show any value for the literature or printed signatures in stock at the branch, at depots, or in the congregations. However, all printing branches need to set up inventories for production materials and supplies, recording such in the “Production inventories” account. Any exceptions to this have to be approved by the Publishing Committee. Good control over these inventory levels is vital, and accurate records are helpful. For other items such as maintenance supplies or equipment parts, an inventory recordkeeping system may also be needed or practical. As a general rule of thumb, if items are purchased before it is known where they will be used and the average value on hand is significant enough to be reported as an asset on the balance sheet, you should consider setting up a “Supplies inventories” account. In any event, annual physical counts of what is on hand should always be taken to ensure that inventory levels are not excessive in any area, to confirm whatever records are being kept, and to adjust the records to correspond to the count. If you need assistance with any issues relating to inventories please write.

34. REIMBURSEMENTS: Branches may choose to deduct from the monthly reimbursements to special full-time servants any charges for personal purchases or services that may have been incurred for them during the month, if that seems practical. In any case, charges incurred by someone visiting from another branch that are not paid in full at their departure should be forwarded to the branch where the individual is assigned. The branch that incurred the expense may write off the outstanding amount and should send a statement detailing the outstanding charges to the individual through the other branch. Payment should be made promptly by the individual to his local branch office.—See 2:66-70; 4:72-74; 6:29; 8:20; 17:40-46.

35. PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNTS: See 2:72-80; 4:75-76; 6:29; 8:23-25; 17:48-49.

36. PROPERTY, BUILDINGS, AND EQUIPMENT: Adequate records must be kept for all real property and major equipment that is owned by the branch. If legal title to equipment or property belongs to a foreign corporation, it should be recorded in the books of that corporation. Do not also list it in the accounts of a local corporation. However, keep a separate record at the branch, indicating which corporation and country holds legal title. Report this information to the appropriate branch office, giving an annual update in August each year.

37. Each branch should set a reasonable threshold under which assets will be expensed rather than capitalized, taking into consideration the local law and circumstances. The amount should generally be no less than US$50 and no more than US$5,000. In larger branches it may be necessary to physically tag assets to identify them. Once each year, perhaps in February, take an inventory of all branch equipment and real property. The Governing Body does not need these detailed lists; they should be kept at the branch. Verify the existence, location, and condition of each asset, and update your records as needed. Each missionary home servant should similarly take an inventory of equipment and supplies at the end of February for items valued at US$100 or more and send it promptly to the Branch Committee coordinator. The report should show the valuation of the property the branch owns in that home. Each home should be listed separately, showing the total value of the assets. Update your records accordingly.

38. For land and buildings, the asset record should include the legal title, location, date and details of acquisition, and original cost. Once a year, also record the current fair market value of the property. If your real estate has been assessed at a realistic and current figure, then you can use this to show the value of the land and buildings. If the government does not assess property or if the assessment value is not a realistic figure, then show a value that you feel represents the current probable selling price of the property. Other helpful information that might be included in the record includes the insured value of the property, property tax liability, and any legal restrictions on the use of the property. For branch equipment records, include a complete description of the item, location, model and serial number, date and details of acquisition, and original cost. For depreciation purposes, when depreciable items are acquired, record the estimated useful life and salvage or recovery value (if any) of each item. The date and details of any additions or improvements to property, buildings, and equipment should also be noted along with the associated cost. Finally, whenever property, buildings, or equipment are sold or otherwise disposed of, record the date and details of disposal for future reference. If the original records pertaining to any asset are not available, (1) establish the current replacement cost, (2) estimate the acquisition date, (3) determine the item's useful life and its salvage value, and (4) estimate depreciation since the acquisition date.

39. The original cost of property, buildings, or equipment includes any expenditure necessary to acquire the asset and to make it ready for its intended use. The cost of land includes the purchase price, any closing legal costs, real estate commissions, accrued and/or delinquent property taxes or liens assumed by the purchaser, and any expenditures for clearing, draining, filling, and grading the property or demolishing existing structures. When land and buildings are purchased together, make a reasonable estimate apportioning the price paid between the land and the building(s) on the property. The cost of a building includes the purchase price, closing legal costs, any real estate commissions, as well as the cost of any major renovations that are needed before the building is suitable for use. The cost of equipment includes the purchase price, taxes, freight charges, any transit insurance, and any expenditure required to assemble, install, or test the unit. Donated property, buildings, and equipment should always be valued at their fair market value (the amount that the item could reasonably be sold for) at the time legal title was transferred to the branch. If at any time you feel that the original value of branch property, buildings, or equipment has to be adjusted from its historical cost, perhaps as a result of hyperinflation or a major currency devaluation, please write the Publishing Committee for its comments.—See also 6:49.

40. When buildings or equipment are constructed or if major improvements are made to existing items, the construction and related costs need to be determined. However, Regional Engineering Offices (REO) will not charge other branches for their internal expenses on projects. Instead they will expense any costs they incur on projects for other branches to the "Donations to cooperating societies" account. However, any engineering expense as a result of contracts with outside firms should be charged to the project regardless of which branch pays the bill. Please use the AO-6, AO-7, AO-8, and AO-9 forms for any construction project with a budget of US$100,000 or more. For projects with a budget under US$100,000 but more than US$30,000, please use the AO-6, AO-7, and AO-9 forms only. Finally, for projects with a budget of US$30,000 or less, you do not need to use any of these forms. Under the direction of the Branch Committee and in conjunction with the REO that is assigned to the project, the local construction office will prepare the AO-6, AO-7, and most of the AO-8 form. The local accounting office will complete the "Actual Spent to Date" column of the AO-8 as well as the entire AO-9 form at the completion of the project. All costs for projects reported on these forms should be charged to the "Construction in progress reported to Brooklyn" account. The balance in this account should agree with the sum of all the AO-8 reports sent to the Publishing Committee each month. Keep a separate ledger for each project, breaking down the costs according to the "area" and "element" categories of the CCT system. When the project is complete, transfer the total cost of the project from the "Construction in progress reported to Brooklyn" account to the appropriate asset account (land improvements, buildings and improvements, etc.). If the corporation that accounted for the construction does not hold legal title to the completed asset, then the final cost of the project (excluding any REO costs, which should have been expensed) should be invoiced to the other corporation. Copies of any such invoices between branches should always be sent to the Publishing Committee. Please feel free to write if you need help with any aspect of construction accounting.

41. For local projects that will not be reported individually to the Publishing Committee, you can charge the ongoing costs to the "Work in progress on local projects" account. The Branch Committee can decide what forms, if any, they will use locally to keep track of these projects and also to what level of detail. When a project is complete, transfer the total cost of the project from the “Work in progress on local projects” account to the appropriate account (land improvements, buildings and improvements, etc.).

42. For the purposes of the organization’s reporting, all property, buildings, and equipment other than land will be depreciated to their estimated salvage or recovery value over their estimated useful life. This depreciation is not for valuation purposes but, rather, to allocate the cost of the organization’s investment in these assets over the time that they are used. Whether or not a branch records this depreciation in its accounts, however, depends on the local legal environment. If a branch chooses to record depreciation in its accounts, it can do so monthly, annually, or at whatever frequency in between that is most practical. Each branch should prepare general guidelines for the estimated life and recovery value of the major classes of its assets (buildings, printing presses, laundry equipment, vehicles, and so on) and provide the Publishing Committee with a copy. The salvage or recovery value can be zero or whatever is a reasonable estimate. These guidelines have to be relatively consistent among branches, otherwise any cost accounting that is done for the Publishing Committee will not be comparable. For example, buildings usually are depreciated over 40 or 50 years with an estimated recovery value of zero, since we rarely sell our buildings. Cars and light trucks generally are depreciated over five years with an estimated recovery value of 20 percent or more if the branch’s policy is to sell and replace vehicles every five years. Depreciation should be calculated on a straight-line basis (that is, the same amount each month) and expensed until the asset is fully depreciated. (See 6:43.) For example, depreciation on a machine that cost US$800 with an expected life of five years and an anticipated salvage value of US$200 would be US$10 per month. Start recording the depreciation expense the same month an item is put into operation. If an asset is still in use after it is fully depreciated, you should keep the asset on the books. The accumulated depreciation will equal the original cost, and the net book value of the item will equal zero.

43. Once again, the foregoing policies on depreciation are for reporting to the Publishing Committee. Each branch must see that its books conform to whatever is required locally under the law. Corporations that submit balance sheets and make tax payments to the authorities should fix the value of the branch’s assets and make use of as much depreciation as the law permits if it is going to make a difference in the taxes owed.—See 1:39-46; 6:6, 7, 52-54; 9:19, 20.

44. The Publishing Committee should approve any requests to dispose of property, buildings, or major equipment by sale, exchange, or scrap. The Branch Committee may recommend the disposal of vehicles and any other equipment. When an asset is disposed of, all amounts related to it must be removed from the accounts, including the original cost and the depreciation to date (for those branches that record depreciation on their books). There usually is a gain or loss on disposal, and this should be recorded in the “Gain or loss on sale or disposal of assets” account.

45. RECONCILIATIONS: The bank reconciliation is an important check on the accuracy of your records. The bank statement shows the transactions and balances for your account(s) with the bank. It is really a copy of the bank’s records sent to you for your review. You usually have about 30 days to identify any discrepancies. You should reconcile the bank account(s) at least once a month. This is one of the essential items examined during the regular audit of the accounts. To get the maximum benefit, the reconciliation should preferably be prepared by someone who does not have direct access to the branch cash or direct responsibility for handling receipts and disbursements.

46. There are two reasons why the bank statement and your records will almost never agree. (1) There are time lags that prevent one of the parties from recording a transaction in the same period. For example, you will record a payment on the day it is issued. But the bank will only record it some days, or even weeks, later when the payment has finally cleared the banking system. (2) Either party can make errors in recording a transaction. The purpose of the reconciliation is to separately identify the errors from the timing differences so that the former can be corrected in either your books or the bank’s.

47. The procedure for preparing the reconciliation is straightforward. (1) Start with the closing cash balance reported on the bank statement. (2) Add to that figure any bank deposits you have made that are recorded in your books but are not yet reflected on the bank statement. These are often called deposits in transit. Make sure that any deposits in transit on the preceding reconciliation have been properly credited in the current month. (3) Subtract any checks (or other forms of payments) that are recorded in your books but not yet reflected on the bank statement. (You may find it helpful to arrange the paid checks, if the bank returns them, in numerical order first and then compare each check with your records.) These are referred to as outstanding checks. Also, remember to include any checks that you listed as outstanding in the preceding month but that the bank has not yet returned or listed on the bank statement. (4) Make a note of any errors you discover in amounts recorded by the bank or in your books. You will need to correct these afterward. (5) Take note of any bank debit or credit memorandums that have not yet been recorded in your books. These may be for service charges, charges for checks that could not be processed because of funds in the issuer’s bank account, or other items. After the bank statement has been fully reconciled to your records, you need to make the necessary entries in your records to record or correct any reconciling items that were identified. Also, notify the bank immediately of any errors in their records so that they can make the necessary corrections.

48. If the branch uses any other control or summary accounts in the general ledger, such as accounts receivable, inventory, or accounts payable, the balances in these accounts should also be regularly reconciled with the underlying detailed accounts. For example, the sum of all the balances on individual vendor accounts should always be equal to the balance in the general ledger "accounts payable" account. If not, an error has been made, and it should be identified and corrected as soon as possible. Every effort should be made to resolve these discrepancies by the end of the fiscal year at the latest.

49. OTHER POLICIES: At times, countries experience periods of hyperinflation and/or significant currency devaluation. In these situations, the accounting records may need to be adjusted to restate long-term assets and liabilities in accord with the changed economic realities. Otherwise the book value of these assets and liabilities could become meaningless. Whenever the combined effect of hyperinflation and currency devaluation is more than 10 percent in one year and it appears that this trend will continue, the Branch Committee should consider whether to restate long-term assets and liabilities, such as land and buildings. If they feel it is appropriate to do so and the local authorities have provided a formula, then you should use that as a basis to adjust your records. If the local authorities have not provided a formula, then you should adjust your records so that the local currency amounts correspond to what the figures would be if the accounts were actually being kept in U.S. dollars. For example, say that the book value of the "Land" account was 100,000 and the equivalent value at that time in U.S. dollars was $50,000. However, the combined effect of inflation and devaluation in the next years was 20 percent and the exchange rate to U.S. dollars went from 2.00 to 2.25. To adjust the value of the property, you would debit the "Land" account for 12,500 (bringing the total value of the property in local currency up to 112,500 and the equivalent in U.S. dollars back to $50,000) and credit the "Gain or loss on currency translation" account for 12,500. These adjustments would generally be made once a year in August but may be made more frequently, even monthly, if the rate of inflation or devaluation warrants it. In the case of fixed assets, such as land and buildings, be sure that the adjustment for hyperinflation or currency devaluation does not cause the value of the asset to exceed the local market value.

50. CLOSING THE BOOKS: Before a new fiscal year can be started, the previous year's revenue and expense accounts need to be zeroed out. This procedure is often referred to as closing the books, and it prepares the accounts to accumulate transactions for a new fiscal year. It should be done as soon as the August reports have been completed. Only two entries are needed: (1) Debit each revenue account for its balance, and credit the "Net assets" account for the total revenues. (2) Debit the "Net assets" account for the total expenses, and credit each expense account for its total. After these closing entries have been posted, the "Net assets" account will properly reflect the net surplus or deficit from the previous year's activity, and the revenue and expense accounts will be ready to begin accumulating the coming year's transactions.

51. Of course, if the legal fiscal year of a corporation does not correspond to the branch's yearend in August, then you will close the books according to the legal fiscal yearend. However, for the purposes of the branch's reports, you will still need to report as if the books were closed in August. The opening balances of all revenue and expense accounts in the September report each year should always be zero.

52. TAXES: Tax matters require careful attention. While we have no moral objection to paying taxes, it is not wrong to use any legal means to minimize the tax paid. (Rom. 13:1-7) There are many types of taxes levied by governments. There are taxes on personal or corporate income; sales, use, and excise taxes on purchases or sales (including VAT); social security taxes; estate taxes; property taxes; duty on imported goods; and others. Depending on the local laws and the branch's legal status, taxes may or may not apply.—See 1:46; 2:81; 6:6, 7; 9:19, 20.

53. Since governments provide tax relief for a variety of reasons, we can rightly take advantage of exemptions or immunity if we legally fall within the rules. We should not, however, pursue exemptions that do not strictly apply or that might otherwise jeopardize our standing with the authorities. Also, we need to be careful that we do not use terms or expressions that can easily be misunderstood or misinterpreted.—See 1:39-46; 9:19, 20.

54. Tax laws vary greatly from country to country and change frequently. Circumstances in one country can affect those in another. So it is good to seek advice on tax and related matters from an experienced professional, preferably a brother if one is available. However, the branch personnel should also take steps to be thoroughly informed on tax matters themselves. Be sure to keep the Publishing Committee informed of any significant developments.—See 9:19, 20.

55. AUDITING: The financial books and records in each branch have to be audited at least once a year. Depending on the size of the branch and local regulations, both an internal and external auditor(s) may be appointed. An audit procedure has been outlined, and it provides the basis for the audit. (See A-21 and A-22.) The audit should encompass all financial activity of the branch including branch construction projects. Additionally, where the branch holds title to the Kingdom Halls, a consideration of Kingdom Hall construction records should be included in the audit. Any questions that you may have in this regard should be referred to the Publishing Committee. A written report of each audit should be provided to the Branch Committee, indicating what was performed along with any recommendations for improvements. They, in turn, should follow through to see that appropriate recommendations are implemented before the next scheduled audit.

56. Whether you keep your accounts manually or use a computer, you must be able to prove every entry in the general ledger. This means that you must have an invoice, a receipt, or some evidence of payment for everything that appears in the general ledger. Cash on hand must also agree with the ledger. Keep SDR sheets and canceled checks or stubs. Properly file this proof so that it is easily accessible to the Branch Committee or any representative of the Governing Body, as well as to a public auditor where the law requires this.

57. In general, the custody of assets (having access to physical cash or other valuables) should be separated from the responsibility to account for them (keeping track of their value or whereabouts). This is often known as the segregation of duties, a basic principle of good internal control. For example, someone other than the person who opens the mail should acknowledge cash receipts. That way the honesty of the persons involved cannot be questioned, and the reputation of the organization is preserved.—Ezra 8:24-34; Luke 16:10.

58. Since the limited amount of bookkeeping in a small branch makes it difficult to have more than one person involved, extra care should be taken in selecting who is used as the bookkeeper. Regularly review his or her work so that temptation is not placed before our brothers. Whenever possible, the one verifying daily receipts and disbursements and making the entries in the books should not be responsible for depositing those receipts in the bank or signing checks.

59. We do not choose to advertise our financial position freely, but we are not secretive about our activities either. (Compare Matthew 10:16.) On occasion, the tax authorities or another government office might ask to audit the branch. Of course, you should comply with their legal requests. (Matt. 5:41) However, there is no need to volunteer information that is neither requested nor required by law. It is important to identify which documents are part of the official accounting system and hence subject to audit and which documents are strictly of an internal nature and need not be included in an audit.

60. Always notify the Publishing Committee whenever the government plans to audit the branch accounts or other sensitive records. Provide a thorough report to the Publishing Committee at the conclusion of any audit, indicating what the authorities found, whether any penalties were imposed, and any lessons learned.—See 9:2.

61. SOFTWARE: Branches are not required to use accounting software to keep their accounts, but they may find it beneficial to do so. A simple cash journal set up in a spreadsheet might suffice for small branches. In many countries now, there are also a number of inexpensive commercial products available that can help you to simplify the work, comply with local legal requirements, and provide the Publishing Committee with the information it needs. After making a thorough evaluation of your needs and what is available locally, you should write the Publishing Committee for further direction before purchasing any accounting software.

62. FILING: Invoices (S(d)-74), Credit Memos (S(d)-73), and Donation Remittance forms (S(d)-20) should be kept for seven years, or according to the length of time specified by the local statute of limitations, and they should be filed in date order. If your country requires keeping memorandums of this kind longer than seven years, you may do so. Otherwise, after seven years dispose of them by burning them or by cutting the paper up into strips, so that names and addresses and correspondence cannot be read.

63. In some branches it may be desirable to have a separate file for all invoices from each company. This would be an alphabetic file with the name of the company shown along with the classification number that is found on the chart of accounts. A separate folder may be made up for vouchers attached to petty-cash slips. All vouchers would be filed in their respective folders in date order. A miscellaneous alphabetic file folder or folders could be used for any invoices from companies with whom there is not much business. In other branches it may be more practical simply to file all invoices in invoice-date order, entry-date order, or payment-date order. It is up to each branch to design a filing system that will be most practical for them.

64. Financial records such as vouchers and bills that have been paid by check or cash should be kept for seven years. There are certain things that you may want to keep permanently, such as bills that were paid in connection with a new Bethel home or printery or bills pertaining to large machines. If you want to keep such things for later reference, then mark them for permanent filing.

65. Handwritten records such as ledgers, journals, and financial books of the branch are permanent files. When one ledger or journal is filled, then it is stored away in a safe place while the current books are being used. These books often contain information that is not available anywhere else. Similar arrangements should be established for computer files if the branch is using accounting software.

66. BRANCH COMMITTEE: The Publishing Committee provides Branch Committees with specific direction on financial matters. They, in turn, are responsible to see that dedicated resources are used wisely under their oversight. (See 1:69; 22:1-3, 51-52; 28:5.) While they are certainly not expected to be experts in the details of finance or bookkeeping, Branch Committee members do have the responsibility to see that the financial matters are cared for properly. They must be able to provide good direction to those caring for the day-to-day work.

67. The Branch Committee should carefully select the person(s) who will handle the monies of the branch. That person must be a spiritual man—trustworthy, tested, and accurate. (Luke 16:10) It should preferably be someone other than the Branch Committee coordinator himself. (Compare 2 Corinthians 8:18-22.) In a small branch, another member of the Branch Committee might handle these matters. Or a capable brother living outside the branch could be used. He must be able to keep matters confidential. In this latter case, the brother might come in once or twice a week to handle all receipts and disbursements and make the appropriate entries in the books and records.

68. The Branch Committee should see to it that, in addition to whatever outside consultants they use, someone in the branch has a good understanding of the local corporate and tax laws as well as other laws that relate to any aspect of our work in that country. Unresolved questions relating to tax matters should be promptly addressed to the Publishing Committee for comment; and legal matters, to the Chairman's Committee.—See 1:39-46; 6:6, 7, 52-54; 9:19, 20.

69. The Branch Committee should also make sure that there is no unnecessary duplication of work. They will be interested in seeing that any accounting that is done is both accurate and appropriate and that all financial activity and all funds held by the branch are properly reflected in the branch accounting records.

Chapter 7

Files and Filing

1. It is necessary to keep some permanent records of the branch's activity. These should be filed properly in manila file folders, or whatever is reasonable in cost in your country, and never destroyed, so that they can be looked into for reference many years later. We have bound volumes of The Watchtower and Yearbooks, but these records do not deal with all the service matters or financial records and other things that are needed.

2. BRANCH PERMANENT FILES: A permanent folder should be kept for each year with copies of all the annual reports together including the write-up. The monthly field and financial reports, etc., can be kept separate from the annual reports rather than clipped together. All of the annual reports should be kept as a part of the permanent file, but monthly reports may be kept just three years and then discarded, unless for some reason it is desired to keep them longer and you have plenty of filing space that will permit this. Monthly inventories and filled orders can be kept two years and then discarded, unless for some reason you feel it is advantageous to keep them longer. For financial reports and related files, please see 6:62-65.

3. There are other permanent records that a Branch Committee coordinator may want to keep, such as for big events like international, national, or district conventions, and the contracts, printed forms, advertising, copies of programs and things of this nature in connection with these events. After four or five years have gone by the file can be sorted out so that just two copies of each thing, like the program, advertising material and other matters, would be kept. This would thin out the file, give you more space and you would have the essentials for this permanent file.

4. TEMPORARY CONGREGATION FILES: Much material comes to the Correspondence Desk that can go into a temporary congregation file. But to keep it permanently or even for seven years would take many filing cabinets. So for the Correspondence Desk the following system is adhered to.

5. Make out a folder with the name of the congregation on it. In this you should file congregation order blanks (S-14), congregation magazine requests (M-202) and general information concerning the congregation that can be discarded within a year's time. As opportunity affords, someone can go through these files and discard material usually over a year old.

6. PERMANENT CONGREGATION FILES: Make out a folder for material that is to be saved indefinitely. Toward the back of the permanent file folder is the Congregation Disfellowshipping or Disassociation Record (S-80). Although entries are no longer made on this form it contains information on persons who were disfellowshipped prior to the introduction and use of the new S-77 form. It should be retained as part of the file. The S-77 forms should also be kept toward the back of the file folder for easy access to mark reinstatements. The Congregation Application (S-51) should also be in the back of the permanent file folder. If the Congregation Application is not in the file, then the oldest circuit overseer's report should be stamped "Do Not Destroy." The current copy of the Congregation Territory Assignment (S-54) should be kept attached to the previous copy. All others can be thrown away. All correspondence (except disfellowshippings) is kept in date order, with previous correspondence dealing with a specific case being stapled together and filed according to the date of the latest correspondence. The last circuit overseer's report prior to the elder arrangement should be stamped "Do Not Destroy" and retained as part of the permanent file. On rare occasions we may refer to this report. Correspondence with regular pioneers may also be kept in this file.

7. The latest S-2 form or S-52b appointment letter showing the appointment date and capacity of all elders and ministerial servants currently serving is to be kept in the permanent file. The S-2 form showing the appointment for the current presiding overseer is also to be retained. The last five copies of Report on Circuit Overseer's Visit With Congregation (S-303) with the S-2 form attached are to be kept. As each new set of forms is put in the permanent file, the oldest set may be removed and destroyed. Any S-52b letter(s) for appointments made between visits of the circuit overseer should be with the more recent S-2 form. For those involved in an adulterous marriage, child molestation, or other scandal, this material should be marked "Do Not Destroy." All other S-2 forms and S-52b letters and correspondence dealing with appointments and deletions can be destroyed, unless there is a reason for retaining them.

8. The annual S-10 report on the congregation may go in this file. General letters may be disposed of after one year. Correspondence about disfellowshipped or disassociated persons can be retained five years after the person is reinstated, unless the branch feels it advisable to keep the correspondence on a particular case for a longer period.

9. Probably every two or three years, when time permits, a competent person working on the Service Desk can go through these files and weed out correspondence that is no longer needed, such as older S-303 and S-2a forms, general letters, etc. But things marked "Do Not Destroy" should be retained in the files.

10. GENERAL FILES: Thousands of individual persons write to the branches. This material is filed in what we call a general file. These are files where everything is put away alphabetically according to the last names of the individuals. This includes general correspondence that does not concern a congregation or a pioneer. The files are set up in four-month periods of alphabetical files from A to Z, and in large branches you can break it down and have folders for letters like Ab-Ad, Ae-Al, Am-An, and so forth, for easy filing. All the correspondence that comes through from September to December inclusive is filed in one four-month alphabetical file. Beginning with January 1, up to and including April, a second set of files is used, and so forth. In smaller branches just one folder may suffice for the current year and one folder for the previous year. Hold the old files for one year while you make up a new year's files. Then when a four-month file for the new year is complete you discard the corresponding four-month file of the previous year. In that way you have one full year's file plus the current four-month file. There is hardly any need for having more. Usually if someone has ordered a publication he will make reference to it or write about not receiving it within a month, and it is easier to find it if you know in what period of months the correspondence was carried on. The contents of the file being discarded can be cut up in half-inch (15 mm) strips and sold as wastepaper or be burned and the folders used over.

11. In these general files you can put letters pertaining to general complaints that you have handled, small orders from individuals and anything that is not filed under a congregation or a pioneer. If letters are written to any individual, then the carbon copy of the letter is attached to the letter from the individual and this correspondence is filed in the general file.

12. Letters regarding donations to the branch are put in separate folders in the general file and held for seven years, or according to the Statute of Limitations requirements in your country. Such letters should be marked "Donation" in red pencil so they will be filed in the right section of files.

13. As the Congregation Analysis Reports (S-10) are received, the information on the front is tallied and then these S-10 forms are put in alphabetical order according to state (province), city, and congregation in the congregation file. General letters may be disposed of after one year. Correspondence about disfellowshipped or disassociated persons can be retained five years after the person is reinstated, unless the branch feels it advisable to keep the correspondence on a particular case for a longer period.

14. LABEL FILE: After an order has been filled by Shipping, the carbon copies of the labels are filed under the month the orders were received and made out by the correspondence clerk. Under each month the stubs are grouped alphabetically according to the first letter of the individual's name. Stubs are retained for one year and then discarded.

15. PIONEER FILE: A file folder is made out for each special pioneer and circuit and district overseer or for each married couple who are both in special full-time service. The files are arranged alphabetically. The Questionnaire for Prospective Special Pioneer (S-208) and, if a traveling overseer, the Questionnaire for Prospective Circuit Overseer (S-323) are a permanent part of the file. Personal Qualifications Reports (S-326) from the current and previous visits of the circuit overseer should be kept in the special pioneer's personal file. Personal Qualifications Reports from the district overseer on the circuit overseer are kept in the circuit overseer's file. The personal files of special pioneers should contain the current congregation assignment. Items such as order blanks (S-14) (which pioneers would use only when they are not associated with a congregation and need supplies directly from the branch), letters asking for information, and other general matters, are kept in the file for about a year. General correspondence that is more than a year old may be disposed of when the files are cleaned out. When someone goes on the special pioneer list whose mate is already a special pioneer, they should share the same file folder.

16. When a special pioneer goes off the list, the file folder is put in the removed file. Removed files are held for one year after the special pioneer is removed. Such files should have the original application, and recent Personal Qualifications Reports (S-326), as outlined above, and other correspondence in connection with the special pioneer's removal. Anything put in the removed file concerning a special pioneer's questionable conduct might be held indefinitely if felt advisable. Such information should be marked "Do Not Destroy" when it is filed in the folder so it will not be thrown out when the files are discarded after one year. The Volunteer Card (S-217) is kept indefinitely.

17. At the end of one year the branch will determine if "Do Not Destroy" material from the pioneer's file is to be discarded or retained. A special "Do Not Destroy" file may be kept in alphabetical order for pioneers and other individuals if this will make it easier to find things in the future rather than having them in a congregation file. In such case "DND" should be written on the Volunteer Card.

18. ISOLATED PUBLISHER FILE: Wherever practical, isolated publishers are put in touch with nearby congregations so they can report through the congregation, also receive information and Our Kingdom Ministry through the congregation, etc. However where this is not feasible due to distance, we still want to care for such publishers. In this case a folder for each isolated publisher group that cannot be formed into a congregation is arranged alphabetically according to the name of the place where the publisher receiving mail for the group resides. In this file goes all correspondence from and copies of letters to the group, also reports on isolated groups from the circuit overseer. When a group is established as a congregation, the name of the folder is changed and it is placed in the congregation file. A file folder is also made for isolated pioneers. The S-4 field service report from isolated pioneers is kept for a year in the folder.

19. FILES FOR CIRCUITS AND DISTRICTS: A file folder is made out for each district. In this is put information regarding the particular district. This will usually be correspondence from the district overseer involving the district and anything that pertains to the district as a whole.

20. A file will be made out for each circuit and in this will be put reports from the district overseer on the circuit's activity (S-313) which will be kept for one year. General information letters may be disposed of after one year. The current appointment letter (S-325b) for the assembly overseer and assistant assembly overseer will be retained in the file. If correspondence from the circuit or district overseer pertains to his personal field activity or his own personal affairs, then such correspondence should be put in his personal folder. The S-326 report that the district overseer submits on the circuit overseer, along with the file copy of any letter written to the circuit overseer pertaining to the report, should be put in his personal folder rather than the folder for the circuit.

21. FILES FOR DISFELLOWSHIPPED OR DISASSOCIATED PERSONS: A file of disfellowshipped or disassociated persons should be kept (filed alphabetically), for which the branch prints cards called Record of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation (S-79a and S-79b). The S-79a card is orange in color and the S-79b is tan in color. This card file provides a ready reference as to who are disfellowshipped or disassociated in the country, the congregation that handled the case, date of the action and the reason the person was disfellowshipped or disassociated. Along with the S-79a and S-79b cards the judicial committee sends the branch a Notification of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation form (S-77) in a special colored pre-addressed envelope with the branch address. This form provides information needed for the file about the basis for action taken. The congregation keeps a copy of this form in its confidential files. After the action is checked in the office, the S-79b card is date stamped and returned to the congregation, and the congregation retains this card until such time as the person is reinstated. At the same time a replacement supply of the S-77 form and the S-79a and S-79b cards is sent to the congregation. The office should stamp the S-77 form "Do Not Destroy" and attach related correspondence, if any, behind it. It should be filed in the congregation's file folder.

22. When the person is reinstated, the S-79b card is mailed back to the branch office by the congregation, giving the date of reinstatement. If necessary, the congregation can supply additional information in a letter attached to the card relative to the reinstatement. The card is to be signed by the person indicated. The congregation's copy of the Notification of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation form (S-77) should also be marked to show the date of reinstatement. As a general rule the congregation that did the disfellowshipping does the reinstating, even if the person moves out of the territory. This may mean dealing with the matter by mail between the disfellowshipping congregation and the congregation to which a disfellowshipped or disassociated individual may have moved.

23. Receiving notice of reinstatement, by means of the returned Record of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation card (S-79b), the branch office removes the S-79a card from the alphabetical file of disfellowshipped or disassociated persons and replaces it with the S-79b card, showing that the person has been reinstated. The S-79a card may then be destroyed. The S-77 form is marked to show the date of reinstatement. There is no need to have a separate card file for reinstated persons.

24. After one has been reinstated a full five years, if the branch feels there is no longer any need to keep the "Do Not Destroy" material on the case in the congregation file, it can be destroyed. If the branch concludes the material should be retained, then it can be kept indefinitely, or as long as the branch feels the material should be kept. Though the correspondence marked "Do Not Destroy" may be destroyed after five years from the date of reinstatement, at all times the S-79b (Record of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation card) is retained as a permanent record.

25. CONGREGATION REPORT CARD FILE: The Congregation Report cards (S-1) are not posted. They are kept for a month or two and then thrown out. However, before this the branch will want to be sure that they have received a report from each congregation. Once it has been determined which reports are missing, a record can be kept of these and the congregations checked off as their reports are received. It will not be necessary to post Memorial attendance figures for the individual congregations. After the Memorial attendance for the country has been compiled the individual congregation Memorial reports can be destroyed.

26. FIELD SERVICE REPORTS FROM ISOLATED PUBLISHERS AND ISOLATED PIONEERS: Reports of field service (S-4) from isolated publishers and isolated pioneers are not posted. These can be kept for a year in their folders and then disposed of after appropriate figures are added to the totals of the Congregation Analysis Report (S-10). When the correspondent for an isolated group sends in the monthly report for the group, using the S-4 form, he can show the total number of publishers for the group on the bottom of the report slip.

27. OFFICE RECORD OF FIELD SERVICE: A record of field service activity for district overseers and their wives, circuit overseers and their wives, and special pioneers, should be maintained. Branches that have the Branch Administration computer program can keep these records up to eight years in a computer. Smaller branches that do not have this program can keep the Monthly Report (S-301) forms and Special Pioneer Report (S-AB-212) forms in an alphabetically arranged file according to last name for eight years. In either case, an eight-year record of field service activity should be on hand for use when needed.

28. VOLUNTEER FILES: The branch keeps a computer record or Volunteer Card (S-217) for each person in special full-time service alphabetically arranged. (No card is made out for regular and auxiliary pioneers.) In large branches with many in special full-time service, such records may be kept in a computer file. This alphabetically arranged file includes active district overseers and their wives, circuit overseers and their wives, special pioneers, missionaries and members of the Bethel family. Some larger branches may find it convenient to keep the various categories under separate sections. When one is removed, the removal date and reason are shown on card S-217 or computer record and it is put in the removed file alphabetically arranged and kept permanently. When the person returns to special full-time service, the Volunteer Card (S-217) or computer record is brought up to date with any additional full-time service as a regular pioneer and then is put back in the active file. Entry dates are shown at the left and removal dates at the right. If he has been off for less than a year, his file folder will be on hand and can be put back in the active file too.

29. REGULAR PIONEER APPLICATION FILE: When a new application is approved it is filed alphabetically in the active regular pioneer file. When the pioneer goes off the list, the removal date is posted on the application form and it is filed alphabetically, with any former applications attached, in the inactive regular pioneer file. If the person reapplies later, the new application will be filed in the active file. (Be sure that there is some indication on the form that there was previous full-time service.) In such cases there will be application forms for the person both in the active and inactive regular pioneer files. If the pioneer should later go off the list again, the newer application should be attached to the older one(s) in the removed file.

30. COUNTY FOLDER FILE: Two folders can be kept for each county or similar territory division having unassigned territory. Into one set of these folders, kept in state or province order and filed alphabetically within the state or province, go any material to be sent to the congregations or pioneers who work the territory. This keeps such material separate from the master maps and other office information that are filed in separate permanent county folders. When the territory is assigned to a congregation or pioneers, the items for the towns assigned are taken from the file and sent to the pioneer or the congregation. By having the extra set of folders it is not necessary to sort through the files for appropriate material to send to those sharing in the isolated territory campaign.

31. FILE EFFICIENCY: Your filing should be kept up to date so you can find letters when you need them. Always file letters to the front of the file as you will then know where the latest material is. Periodically, when the office is less busy, those who are capable and experienced can go through the files and clean out what is no longer needed. That which is cleaned out of the files can be destroyed either by burning or by cutting into half-inch strips. In large branches if cut into half-inch strips from top to bottom so that nothing can be read, it can then be sold as waste paper.

32. PERMANENT CONGREGATION ADDRESS STENCILS OR CARDS: A stencil is made for each congregation, and these are placed in alphabetical order according to state (province), city and congregation. In small branches where stencil equipment is not used small cards are used instead. Changes in congregation presiding overseer addresses, adjustments in Our Kingdom Ministry supply, and so forth, should be made as soon as you get the changes, so the stencil or card file will always be up to date. In the upper right-hand corner of the stencil or card is shown the congregation number. Then a few spaces after the congregation presiding overseer‘s name is shown the number of Our Kingdom Ministry sent to the congregation. Under that the number of the circuit is shown, and finally, where needed, in the lower right-hand corner is shown the parcel-post rate and shipping information. Some branches may find it practical to maintain separate addresses for mailing literature supplies from what is used for general correspondence. Cards for city overseers may also be kept in this file.

33. ADDRESS STENCILS OR CARDS FOR ISOLATED PUBLISHERS: A stencil or card is made out for each isolated publisher group, using the name and address of the brother or sister who receives supplies for the group. These stencils or cards are filed alphabetically according to the names of the places where the individuals live. The number of Our Kingdom Ministry sent is shown a few spaces after the individual’s name.

34. ADDRESS CARDS FOR CIRCUIT NEWS REPRESENTATIVES: Brothers serving as news representatives will be selected by the circuit overseer in the same manner that other circuit volunteers are chosen. The circuit overseer will send the branch the Circuit News Service Representative card (S-304) providing the name, address, telephone number, congregation, and date appointed. This card will be filed alphabetically or by circuit number within state or provincial divisions. Each time a change takes place, or if there is a change of address, the circuit overseer will send a new card which will replace the existing one in the file. A blank S-304 form is then sent to the circuit overseer for future use.—See 21:4.

35. PERMANENT FORM FILE: You should have a permanent file of all sample forms supplied to branches, for your own reference and that of the zone overseer when he visits. As new forms are sent to you, you should place these in your permanent file, keeping only the latest copies in this file. File them according to the symbol found in the lower left-hand corner.

36. When forms are discontinued the United States branch will inform you of this and you will remove the form from your file. If a form is reprinted and it has the same number as the form you already have, then remove the old form and put the new in its place. If the date on the form is different from the one in your file, it is because some change was made in the form. The latest forms printed locally in English or other languages can be filed in place in this form file. Thus you will also always have here a record of what you have printed.

37. Files containing correspondence with Brooklyn may be weeded out after three years. Annual reports should be kept along with other items that are of value such as correspondence or newspaper clippings relating to bans, matters of consequence regarding individuals, property and building information, policy matters, legal matters, appointment letters, important financial transactions, etc.

Gilead Students and Graduates

1. As we look back over the years in which the Gilead School has been in operation and the missionary work has been carried forward, we can rejoice to see how Jehovah has blessed the efforts of the Gilead graduates. A number of them have succeeded in helping more than 100 individuals to come to a knowledge of the truth, make a dedication and serve Jehovah. There are now Kingdom publishers in more than three times as many countries as there were before the Gilead School began its operation, and the missionaries have been used to expand the work into quite a few of those new countries. Therefore, it is our wish to try to continue with the missionary work as long as that is practical and missionaries can be sent to other countries.

2. PROSPECTIVE GILEAD STUDENTS: Individuals between twenty-one and forty years of age, without minor children, who have been baptized at least three years, in full-time service in your country for more than two years, single, or if married at least two years, who want to enter missionary service in a foreign country (not having been through Gilead before) and whom you believe may qualify for Gilead, may be given a preliminary Gilead application form (G-12). Gilead is a training school for missionaries. Branch Committees should keep that in mind. Persons are not sent to Gilead on the basis of sympathy or as a reward for good work, but in an effort to advance Kingdom interests. Prospective Gilead students should have a fair education in their own language and, in addition, must be able to speak, read and write English. Some branches have sent students to Gilead who spoke English very poorly and some were unable to finish the schooling successfully because they did not understand the language. It would be far kinder and wiser if such ones would be held back for a year or two and shown the importance of learning English. Then the individual would enjoy Gilead and receive the benefit of the Gilead training. Good health is required, also the ability and willingness to live with others in peace and harmony.

3. When your Branch Committee writes its recommendations in a separate covering letter that accompanies any Preliminary Gilead Applications, be sure to tell the Service Committee if you feel the individuals are well qualified. When you recommend a person for Gilead, remember that quality, not quantity, is what is needed. Persons recommended for Gilead must qualify as capable teachers of God's Word and fine examples as to Christian principles, persons that you would be proud to have represent you at any convention or before any person. They should be able to give an effective witness and proclaim the good news of the Kingdom anywhere. They should have a good background of experience in conducting effective Bible studies.

4. Persons invited to Gilead customarily obtain a United States' student visa. They should make certain upon arriving in the United States that the immigration authorities understand that they are going to attend the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead unless otherwise instructed. They may give their address in the United States as the school.

5. The branch office should always notify the Brooklyn office in advance as to all the details regarding transportation, time and manner of arrival of those coming to Gilead. When the branch pays their way, it provides a small expense reimbursement and accounts forms to record incidental expenses of the trip. Instruct them to turn in these forms and the balance at Brooklyn. The branch should not give the person his regular reimbursement for the month he will travel unless it is the month prior to the start of the class. Excess baggage charges must be paid by the student, not the branch. If one coming from a warm climate requires warmer clothing at school, the branch office should write, giving such one's height and weight. After graduation additional unaccompanied luggage will be sent to the graduate's country of assignment at the organization's expense.

6. Personal Expense Accounts may be credited and paid in full through the last month before school starts.–See 8:23.

7. No transfer of any records should be made to Gilead or the United States. Hold all records until the student gets to his new assignment after graduating from Gilead. Then the records should be sent to the new branch under which the graduate serves.

8. GILEAD GRADUATES: Every Gilead graduate sent to a foreign assignment receives the Missionary Counsel Booklet. This booklet sets out in detail what is expected of every missionary in the field. It shows the responsibilities of graduates, whether in the missionary, circuit or district work, or in branches. There is no need to repeat here any of its contents. Every Branch Committee should be well acquainted with this booklet.

9. If a missionary leaves or is removed from his missionary assignment, this Counsel booklet must be returned to the Service Committee.

10. If at any time the Branch Committee wishes to use a Gilead graduate in some service other than as a missionary, it should write to Brooklyn recommending the change and giving the reasons.

11. ENCOURAGEMENT: Branch Committees should see that new missionaries are warmly welcomed, and that they are given helpful encouragement to adjust to their new environment, learn the language and feel at home among their fellow missionaries and in their congregation. They should be helped to develop good missionary habits, rising early and being in the field at an early hour. They should be encouraged to share always in the group's morning text discussion and Monday evening study, as well as doing personal study in their native language. The Branch Committee and older missionaries should take a friendly, loving interest in helping them to succeed. Kind attention should be given to build them up if ever they appear to become discouraged or spiritually "low."

12. Despite all loving efforts to assist them, some missionaries may show that they just cannot adapt to this service. They may show themselves to be proud, hard-to-get-along-with in the home, or they may look down on the local brothers and people, so that they accomplish little in making disciples and building up the local congregation. It is hoped such problems will be rare, but when they do occur, the Branch Committee should write to the Service Committee, giving full details, and making a clear recommendation as to whether such missionaries should be returned to their own country, or other action taken. If they believe it will help in the situation, the committee may give a copy of this report to the missionaries concerned, or advise them in a separate letter of the recommendation that is being made.

13. WORLDWIDE ORDER'S OBLIGATION: As a rule, the Worldwide Order considers it has an obligation to look after those who are over 50 years of age and who have been in the special full-time service for 15 years or longer. Surely the branch can find a place for those who have spent the best part of their lives in special pioneering, missionary service, circuit or district work or branch activity. Those too old to do full-time missionary work could work either in a missionary home teaching the language to new missionaries if qualified to do so, or in a branch home taking care of some office work, or they can stay in a missionary home and do as much field service as possible. Those who have been faithful merit such consideration. Anyone who has worked more than 15 years in the missionary and other branches of special full-time service and has done well at it will undoubtedly continue serving Kingdom interests in his older years. Such ones surely deserve some place in full-time Kingdom service if they want to remain in it. In most instances it will be advisable to have missionaries continue in the missionary field at a reduced quota of hours and still let them have the full reimbursement because of their many years of faithful service. They should be an inspiration to others, and they will accomplish much good. Write the Service Committee about such recommendations. If any become invalids or senile or their attitude becomes very negative, you should advise the Service Committee promptly.

14. KEEPING HOMES FILLED: The Branch Committee should be interested in saving money. One way to do this is to keep the missionary homes filled. If additional brothers can be used in a home, it is good to write to the Service Committee twice a year on December 1 and May 1 about missionary needs so that if the Service Committee decides to send new missionaries to your country it can do so at graduation time. Point out in your request whether you can use single men, single women, or married couples, and to what missionary homes or cities they could be assigned. It may be, too, that you need some brothers who can take up circuit or district work, or specially trained men for your branch office. If certain nationalities can enter your country more easily than others, mention that. The Kingdom interests merit the most effective service we can provide in every land.

15. FOOD FOR MISSIONARY HOMES: It is well for the Branch Committee coordinator to check the cost per person per meal in his country for all missionary homes at the end of the service year, as well as for the branch home, so that he will have an accurate idea of expenses. He knows approximately what they should be, knowing the conditions of the country. If expenses in any missionary home appear to be excessive, the Branch Committee coordinator can discuss it with the Branch Committee and then bring it to the attention of the home servant. However, the committee should watch also that some homes do not skimp in order to save expenses; missionaries should always be provided with a balanced diet of nourishing food so that they can maintain good health and strength for the service.

16. MISSIONARY REPORTS: The branch office should make note of leave-of-absence or vacation time on the part of Gilead graduates and be sure to report this on form A-24 at the close of each year on the annual report. It is best to show the exact dates covered by leave of absence, separate from any vacation time. The record of vacation time of each missionary should be kept on the S-209 form so the branch can always check on what time the missionary still has available. Leave of absence records may be recorded on the A-6b form. If a missionary does not make his goal in hours, the reason should be stated at the bottom of the Home Report. Graduates of Gilead should set the best example, for they have had the training in Gilead and have Scriptural knowledge and should be anxious to help and encourage their brothers. This they should do not only in words but also in deeds.

17. Missionaries may be counted as congregation publishers when on leave of absence outside of their assignments.

18. Any non-graduates serving in a home under the missionary arrangement should be counted as missionaries and their reports shown on the Home Report.

19. In addition to keeping the records and making out the Home Report, the home servant has the responsibility to keep the Branch Committee advised of any serious matters in connection with the home or those serving there.

20. SERVICE REQUIREMENTS AND REIMBURSEMENTS: See 17:40, 41, 43, 44, 67, and 68, also 8:13.

21. MISSIONARIES LEAVING ASSIGNMENTS: When any graduate of Gilead leaves his assignment and goes to his own country or to any other country, the branch should be aware of this and try to get his forwarding address. If the missionary has told the branch that he is not going to return and take up the service again, then his service record files, Personal Expense Account, and so forth, should be sent to the branch where he is going. The missionary's Counsel booklet should be given by the missionary to the branch office, which in turn should destroy the booklet.

22. MEDICAL CARE AND EMERGENCY MEDICAL NEEDS: See 1:72-77.

23. PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNTS: The Personal Expense Account arrangements are discussed in 2:72-80. For the use of PEA to cover medical expenses, see 1:73. Sometimes graduates of Gilead and others in special service working in foreign assignments request that funds from their Personal Expense Account be paid in a country not holding their account, and we are willing to cooperate with them in this matter if permissible. To process this a letter should be written in duplicate to the branch where they are serving which holds the Personal Expense Account, outlining the request and giving the address to which the remittance should be sent. That branch will forward a copy of the request to the branch which will make the payment, indicating that the credit is available and showing the current exchange rate if the PEA is held in local currency. After payment is made, the branch holding the account should be advised so that the appropriate charge can be made on the Personal Expense Account of the individual. This provision is not intended for the handling of personal business matters for missionaries or Bethelites.

24. All Gilead students will be provided with meals, lodging and a cash grant that will cover all their expenses while at Gilead School. If a student qualified to have a Personal Expense Account before going to Gilead School this should be credited and paid in full through the month before his school class starts. Gilead students will no longer earn a credit in a Personal Expense Account while they are in school or while waiting to go to their assignment. When a graduate arrives at his new assignment the branch where he is serving will then open a new Personal Expense Account for him. At the end of the year a credit will be given effective January 1 counting from the first full month after his arrival in his assignment.—See 2:80.

25. Credits will be given to new missionaries during the first months when they are spending considerable time studying the language. Missionaries may be given reimbursements and Personal Expense Account credits when on regular leave of absence accumulated by spending years in service. This includes the travel reimbursement. Those on sick leave or extended leaves over and above their regular leave time due to emergencies, and who are away less than four months, will be given reimbursements and Personal Expense Account credits for the first three months, even if the emergency requires that they be out of the country, as long as the person continues in the full-time service category. Those gone four months or longer will not start accumulating reimbursements or credits again until they return to their missionary assignment. If the Branch Committee feels some exception should be made to this rule they may write to the Service Committee with their recommendations.—See 2:79.

26. LEAVES OF ABSENCE: The Missionary Counsel Booklet outlines the arrangement for leave of absence and sick leave. However, these leaves are now usually handled by the branches. Gilead graduates serving in their home country do not qualify for leave-of-absence time.

27. EMERGENCIES: If more than one month away from one's missionary assignment is needed in any one year beyond what is allowed for vacation and leave-of-absence time, to care for health, one's parents or relatives, and the Branch Committee believes the time should be granted in these unusual cases, they should provide the Service Committee with the necessary facts and their recommendation, and await a reply from the Service Committee.—See 17:60, 61.

28. If it appears that a missionary will be away for many months, then it may be practical to have the missionary pack up his personal effects in boxes, trunks or other containers and store these so that the room which the missionary is normally using can be used by someone else. Then if the missionary is not able to return to his assignment, his personal effects can easily be shipped back to him. Such shipping would be at the missionary's expense.

29. If an emergency arises in the country and it is necessary for a missionary to leave the country suddenly and there is insufficient time to communicate with the Service Committee, then it is the responsibility of the Branch Committee to determine where the missionary should be sent. We suggest that it is practical to send the missionary to the nearest country where he can gain entry, even temporarily, until there is time to communicate with the Service Committee and a definite assignment to a new country can be made. Sometimes the missionary's nationality will allow him to enter a nearby country as a tourist and there will be time to communicate with the Service Committee to get the new assignment worked out.

30. VACATIONS: Each person in the full-time service is allowed to take a vacation during the service year. Those who were in the regular pioneer service before going to the Gilead School handled their vacations as regular pioneers do. For those in other service, such as Bethel, circuit or special pioneer fields, vacation time is reported and a record made. Upon graduation from Gilead, each missionary, whether coming to Gilead from special full-time service or the regular pioneer service, is credited with two weeks of vacation for the service year in which he graduates. Anyone serving in special service (Bethel, circuit, or special pioneer service) may be granted one week of time to prepare for his journey to attend Gilead. Any additional time that he would need beyond one week would necessitate his using vacation time that may be due to him as one in special service.

31. Furthermore, after graduation, if any of the graduates wish to take vacation time before going to their new assignment, such will be counted as vacation time and the vacation rules will apply.

32. From time to time missionaries want to be away from their assignments for a day or two when not on vacation. This is permitted as long as the missionaries take care of their assignments properly. That means working with the interested people who are in the territory, conducting the studies with them regularly and also taking them to the meetings. The missionaries should put in the required amount of time in the territory to which they are assigned, and, except for assembly times, they should be working in the field in their own assignments. However, from time to time there may be some personal matters that the missionary wishes to attend to, other than when he is on his vacation, and he may leave his assignment for one or two days without counting it as vacation time. Of course, he would need to put in his hours in order to qualify for reimbursement for the month. These extra days are not to be used as an extension of regular vacation time, but they may be taken at times other than when one is on vacation.—See also 17:50-59, 65 and 66.

33. MISSIONARIES SERVING AT BRANCH OFFICES: If a missionary is not in his home country and serves in a Bethel home, he would be entitled to 12 working days off for his vacation and 12 working days for leave-of-absence time per year, the latter only available after three years in his assignment. Leave-of-absence time does not apply to any graduates serving in branches or in the field in Western Europe, Canada and the contiguous United States. Any exceptions should be approved by the appropriate Governing Body Committee.—See 17:52, 53.

34. Either leave time or vacation time may be accumulated and used whenever one chooses to do so.

35. LANGUAGE STUDY: During the first three months a missionary is in his assignment, if he does not know the language well, he will spend four hours a day in language study, Monday through Saturday. The rest of the day should be spent in field service. The exact schedule for the study period can be worked out locally, taking into consideration what will be best for all concerned, including the one assigned to instruct. In most cases it will probably be best to have the four hours of study in the mornings when the minds of those being taught are fresher, allowing time in the afternoons and evenings for service and meetings. When going in the field, they should go with someone who will be able to train them in the use of the language, answering their questions and aiding them to correct errors made. On weekday evenings when there are no meetings, the one instructing them can assign them some homework to do in their language study. During each of these three months the new missionaries should be able to spend 70 hours or more in the field service.

36. INSTRUCTOR: Someone who knows the language well and is qualified to teach should be selected by the Branch Committee to aid the new missionaries in language study. The one selected may be a missionary, a member of the Bethel family, a local pioneer or other qualified and available brother or sister. Where the instructor is a member of the Bethel family or in other full-time service, adjustments should be made in the person's work schedule or hour requirements. Where the instructor is a missionary or pioneer, the hours spent instructing should be listed separately on his or her monthly report and will be taken into consideration in connection with reimbursements.

37. OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES: The new missionaries will take care of their responsibilities in the home and will be excused from their study period whatever day they are assigned to cook or do their part in the cleaning and maintenance of the home. Some arrangement should be worked out to help fill in the student on the points covered in the study period he missed due to such home duties.

38. MARRIAGE: If two missionaries desire to marry, they may arrange to do so regardless of the length of time they have been in the missionary service. However, they will be required to write at least sixty days in advance to the Service Committee of the Governing Body asking to remain in the missionary service. A copy of the letter should be sent to the branch. If they live in two different homes, the Service Committee will decide where they should live after their marriage. On receiving the copy of their letter, the Branch Committee should write the Service Committee commenting on the qualifications of the two missionaries and the feasibility of adding a new member to a missionary home, should this be necessary, giving their recommendation as to the home. If a missionary desires to marry someone who is not in missionary service, then he or she will have to leave the missionary home and may ask for an assignment in the special pioneer work in the country to which he or she has been assigned. The Counsel booklet should be returned to the Service Committee in such a case.

39. ASSISTING THE MISSIONARIES: We want to see missionaries make a success of their assignment. Therefore, in addition to the circuit overseer's visit to the missionaries (see 4:67), an arrangement has been made for a representative of the branch office to visit each missionary home once a year, spending at least two days so he can work with each missionary in the field. As a result of this visit, we want the brother visiting the missionaries to send to the branch office a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on each missionary so that we have an up-to-date report on their activity, their progress in the field, and any problems they may be facing. This should be done just once a year, unless something unusual is noted. Usually the branch will acknowledge such reports by a letter to the missionary if it would be helpful to the person. If there are any missionaries that have any problems that you report about on the Personal Qualifications Report, then a copy of such report should be sent to the Service Committee along with the recommendations of the Branch Committee regarding the missionary in question. The branch representative should arrange in advance to speak to one or more congregations during his visit to each city.

40. Additionally, where practical, missionaries including those with missionary status now in special pioneer or circuit or district work may be invited to meet with the zone overseer during his visit to the country where they are serving, to enjoy an interchange of encouragement and to have the opportunity to speak to a representative of the Governing Body about their activity or any problems they may have.

41. VISITORS TO MISSIONARY HOMES: If visitors to a missionary home are to join occasionally with the missionary family in a meal, the home servant, as well as the one whose cook day it will be, should be informed in advance if at all possible. Consideration should be shown in making such arrangements. How to handle this and any limitations that should be put on the number or frequency of having guests, or when they should be invited, may be determined by the group in the home.

42. If relatives of missionaries or missionary friends are to be accommodated in a missionary home for a reasonable period of time, and space permits without inconveniencing others, that may be arranged if it is agreeable to the others in the home. It seems practical to ask visitors (other than missionaries or other representatives of the organization assigned to visit the home), who may be staying in the home for more than one day, to make a contribution for the food. This can be a round figure, approximately the average cost per meal as set out in the latest annual missionary Home Report. However, we would not ask such visitors to pay a portion of the rent. We know many times visitors do things for the missionary families, providing special foods or other good things, and we appreciate what they do. However, it is reasonable that they contribute toward the expense of the regular meals if they stay more than one day.

43. OPENING AND CLOSING HOMES: If at any time the Branch Committee deems it advisable to close a home because some of the missionaries have left or because the field is being well cared for by local publishers, then such recommendation should be written to the Service Committee. Be alert to the needs of the field and aware of the expense of continuing to rent half-filled homes if there is no strong reason for doing so. At the same time if you feel there is a need for a new home or more missionaries in certain cities in your territory, you may write a separate letter to the Service Committee setting out your recommendations as mentioned in 8:14. This may be held until missionary help is available at some time in the future. In the meantime if the situation changes due to the assignment of local special pioneers, then inform the Service Committee.

44. Recommendations for new missionary home locations and the appointment of missionary home servants should be sent to the Service Committee. Recommendations to rent missionary homes may be made to the Publishing Committee. Home funds may be approved and adjusted as necessary by the Branch Committee. (See 6:24.) When a branch office representative visits the missionary home once a year it would be appropriate to audit the missionary Home Report of receipts and expenses. Please check to be sure that any unusual expenses are in order and properly documented and that all receipts are recorded. In addition, check to be sure that the bank account and home fund balances agree with the Home Reports submitted.

45. If branches get remittances which are sent in with the request that the funds be given to missionaries or Bethelites in other countries, they may write an interbranch memo to the branch that will be paying the individual directly with a request that the funds be made available in local currency provided local regulations permit. As an exception, that interbranch memo should also be signed by the Branch Committee coordinator (or his substitute if the coordinator is absent). The paying branch should confirm to the requesting branch that the matter has been handled. Money received will be recorded as "Other donations from cooperating Societies" and money disbursed will be recorded as "Other donations to cooperating Societies."—See also 6:29.

46. With regard to currency conversion issues, every branch should determine and track government regulations regarding the conversion of foreign currencies and the movement of foreign funds to abide by local laws and regulations. (Rom. 13:4-7) It is preferable to limit transfers between branches to funds needed for branch operations and assisting those in special full-time service. Exchange rates that are fair and reasonable should be used. For example, the average (middle) exchange rate for trades between the two currencies in question on the actual date that the funds were received may be used. It is expected these guidelines will help with regard to small transactions. For large transactions or for the payment of bills or invoices, the branches involved should work together to arrive at an appropriate exchange rate. If assistance is needed in resolving questions, the branch(es) may contact Brooklyn for specific advice. The branch should not take a loss in handling funds for individuals. If an individual is not satisfied with the rate provided then, of course, he is free to make his own arrangements for payment or transfer of funds.

47. Equipment will be provided for a missionary home including a stove, refrigerator, and washing machine. A microwave and a small freezer may be provided if requested by the group in the home and recommended by the Branch Committee. However, similar equipment will not be provided for individual rooms at branch cost.

Chapter 9

Legal Matters

1. We can expect to encounter legal problems in connection with preaching the good news. (Matt. 24:9) We do not need legal status to form congregations or engage in the field ministry, but being legally recognized can afford some protection. We are obligated to 'defend and legally establish the good news.'—Phil. 1:7.

2. If a serious legal problem arises, inform the Chairman's Committee. Write a separate letter about it. Provide dates and times of occurences, names of individuals involved, and a thorough but concise explanation. Let us know what the charges against the brothers may be and give us a copy of the laws involved, translated into English. Do not assume that we know the situation in your country just because you have written in the past.

3. When legal controversies arise, if necessary, your Legal Department or Desk should consult with a local lawyer. Tell us his opinion and recommendation. If you think you should hire a lawyer to defend the case or to protect our interests, ask him as to legal remedies available, the likelihood of a favorable result, how long it will take, and an estimate of costs. If he says it is very doubtful that the case will be won, tell us this and his reasons. Include your recommendation.

4. Often official action against us is preceded by newspaper propaganda or derogatory official statements or comments by government officials. If you think a ban is impending, inform responsible officials of our true position. Seek an interview with key officials responsible for granting or denying us legal status, so that they know both sides rather than just opposers' assertions. A Branch Committee member, along with a member of your Legal Department or Desk, should arrange and prepare for these meetings.

5. Most governments have committed themselves to respecting human rights including freedom of worship. (Rev. 12:16) National and international agencies have been set up to monitor whether governments abide by these commitments. As you learn of arrests of publishers, lawsuits or proposed legislation against our work, you may want to inform these agencies. Communicate with the Chairman's Committee before doing so. State what institution you wish to inform, including a draft of what you wish to submit. If you think a meeting is needed, tell us who you think would be best suited for the visit. The Chairman's Committee will decide whether the approach should be made.

6. You should always ask for any court action to be delayed and try to get an adjournment to allow ample time for a complete report to the Chairman's Committee and for you to receive instructions from headquarters. Ask for two months, if possible.

7. If an adverse decision is rendered, make an immediate report to the Chairman's Committee and specify the time limit for making an appeal. State your lawyer's opinion on the advisability of appealing, his reasons, as well as costs. State possible negative effects on your registration if the matter is not appealed or if the appeal is lost.

8. If you do not have time to write to the Chairman's Committee to receive instructions because of a deadline that cannot be extended, provide a legal update as soon as possible. Fax or telephone if it seems necessary.

9. If you think that actions taken against the work should be publicized, you can make that recommendation and give us a write-up of what you would like to see printed, making sure that all of the facts therein are fully substantiated.

10. LEGAL STATUS: Obtaining legal status or registration facilitates our bringing in missionaries, arranging for assemblies, importing literature, and obtaining tax benefits on property, etc. Give careful attention to obtaining and maintaining legal registration. Of course, we would never compromise principles of pure worship merely to obtain legal status. Attention should be given to the type of legal status being sought. Some religions have a very favorable status, whereas others are merely tolerated. Carefully ascertain the type of legal status that would be best in your country. Some countries do not grant official recognition to religions.—See 1:39-46.

11. Some branches may need to register more than one entity. Provide reasons if you feel this is the case. —See 1:41.

12. You should also consider whether to register Jehovah's Witnesses as a local entity. However, in some countries being registered as a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania corporation affords a degree of protection. Regimes in developing countries are less likely to expropriate property belonging to an American corporation. However, in some countries having legal ties to an American legal entity is not desirable. If you feel the work should be registered in your country and it has not been, write the pertinent details and your recommendation to the Chairman's Committee, which has arranged for the Legal Department to assist branches in preparing appropriate charters and bylaws needed for registration.—See 1:41.

13. POWER OF ATTORNEY: This is a legal document authorizing an individual to act as a legal agent or representative of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania (or associate corporation) in a foreign country for legal matters, business dealings, and congregational or ecclesiastical matters. The organization does not furnish each Branch Committee coordinator with such, but only where it is actually necessary to conduct corporation business, to register the corporation, or to obtain legal recognition as a branch of the Pennsylvania corporation. If you feel one is necessary, you may write to the Chairman's Committee.

14. The law in some countries requires that anyone holding a Power of Attorney must register it with the government immediately. If that is the case it should be done. We do not want to incur fines for not complying with the registration laws when a Power of Attorney is issued. It is a good thing for Branch Committee coordinators to check on legal requirements as to handling a Power of Attorney including any limitations on length of validity.

15. LAWSUITS FOR LIBEL, DAMAGES, OR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF: Caution is needed before filing such. You must have approval from the Chairman's Committee. Your report should include what legal remedies are available, the time and cost for such legal action, and the likelihood of success, including attorney fee, estimated damages, and the likelihood of collecting an award. In libel actions, consider if the suit will further advertise the false charges. If you believe a lawsuit that is not filed may lead to other difficulties, please explain this to us.

16. PRINTED MATTER AGAINST JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES: If some organization or individual puts out printed matter against us, even if it has libelous charges, as a general policy we do not retaliate with legal action. Neither do we publish details about it to answer such charges. Our basic policy is to ignore these attacks and let them die rather than give them greater publicity. We prefer to concentrate on the positive activity of Kingdom preaching. If the Branch Committee feels it is wise to take some steps to counteract negative reports that may adversely affect our work, they should make their recommendations to the Chairman's Committee. If approved, the Chairman's Committee will oversee the preparation of appropriate responses to false statements and negative media reports.

17. REFUSAL OF BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS: If our brothers' obedience to abstain from blood is being ignored by healthcare providers with or without court authority, legal action may be warranted. If you recommend such, provide us with a complete overview of the case. Set forth what you hope to accomplish. We are not inclined to get involved if winning will not help the brotherhood in general.

18. PERSONAL DECISIONS: Individuals in the congregations may ask the opinion of the Legal Department or Desk on what to do in matters involving citizenship, neutrality, marriage, divorce, employment, etc. However, if the person does not know what to do from his own knowledge of the Bible, it is wiser not to take the responsibility from him by telling him what to do. The Legal Department or Desk should limit its work to legal issues affecting the branch's interests rather than personal requests for legal advice or assistance.

19. REAL ESTATE AND TAX MATTERS: Secular authorities generally grant tax exemptions to religious organizations. You should endeavor to take advantage of these exemptions if they are available. Most countries extend favorable tax treatment to those engaged full time in religious endeavors. This relieves the branches of some financial burdens. Also it affords our endeavors tacit legal recognition. Keep the Publishing Committee informed of exemptions procured or in danger of being lost.—See 1:46; 2:81; 6:52-54.

20. Additionally there may be other laws in your country that must be complied with when a person does business for a corporation whether organized locally or in another country. If you are not sure that you are operating legally, consult a lawyer and find out what the requirements are. The Branch Committee should know the laws of the country as they pertain to corporations or business matters.—See 1:39; 6:68.

21. In times of emergency or war, Branch Committee members should be familiar with all decrees affecting our work and the operation of the branch. The Branch Committee should watch carefully so that the work will be protected and the brothers given whatever direction is necessary. Be alert as to what is going on in your country and keep the Chairman's Committee informed.

22. KEEP PROCLAIMING THE GOOD NEWS: In some places opposers will make every effort to stop our work, but we have to continue preaching. When advisable we do it in a quiet manner. If our literature is not available, we can talk about the truth using the Bible alone. Dedicated servants of Jehovah should be thoroughly acquainted with the Word of God so that they can continue to preach no matter what the circumstances might be right up to the end of the system of things.

Chapter 10

Literature Orders
— Branch and Congregational

1. Branch offices need literature in their own language in the form of Bibles, books, booklets, and so forth, to supply their pioneers, publishers and congregations for field activity. Please consult your Distribution Report (AB-9) each time you order literature to determine what your movement has been over a period of time for the items you wish to order. You should consider your present stock at the branch as well as in the congregations, your rate of movement, your storage facilities and what your campaigns will be.

2. It is sufficient if you keep a one-year stock of any literature you use. When replenishing your stock and a reprint is required in a language that is primarily used in your own country, the minimum quantity to be printed is 2,000 copies of any brochure or book. Meeting this minimum printing quantity may require that you request a two-year supply. Also, if an item of which you use just a small quantity appears on the Publications to Be Printed sheet, it is good to order a supply even if you only need 10 or 15 copies.

3. When you get the annual letter setting out monthly literature offers, you should consider whether you have sufficient stock for the next six months of campaigns. Submit your request well in advance to be sure that the congregations will have literature for each month's campaign. It will help you to avoid overstocking if you try to have in stock about a one-year supply of campaign literature.

4. Branches should use the electronic or the printed Branch Order form (AB-3) when requesting literature from another branch and will send these orders first to the Publishing Committee for approval. The branch will keep a copy of the form (AB-3). When you know in advance that the United States branch can fill certain items, but other items must come from a different branch, then two different Branch Orders should be sent. The office in Brooklyn retains a copy of each Branch Order and forwards a copy to the branch that is to fill the order. The small order form, AB-4, is used to transmit to other branches for filling orders for literature not available at Brooklyn, also requests for publications to be sent to an individual in another country. Some branches use them for sending very small orders to Brooklyn.

5. If a Branch Order is partially filled, this will be indicated on the Document Transmittal Letter (F-222a), and the remainder of that order will be held for a future shipment. As long as you are notified on the Document Transmittal Letter that the rest of the order will be filled later, there is no need to request again any of the pending items; this will avoid any duplications.

6. When a branch receives a shipment, the original request should be checked against the commercial invoice to see if it has been completely filled. Any items not listed on the commercial invoice will be shipped at a later date. Next, fill in the stub of the form F-222a indicating whether the shipment was received in good condition or not, and itemize duties and other expenses that were paid. Each branch should complete and return this form to the Brooklyn office immediately after receiving the shipment.

7. Items out of stock for a long time are announced in Our Kingdom Ministry when reprinted. Also, the Shipping Department in Brooklyn sends an annual summary sheet to each branch listing any unfilled Branch Orders. From this the branches can also determine whether anything has been canceled because of its being out of stock.

8. INFORMATION ON PRINTING: Every month the branches receive a Publications to Be Printed sheet, giving information on what the United States and other branches expect to print. This sheet keeps branches that are under the warehouse arrangement up-to-date on what is being produced. All other branches should closely review the sheet and indicate the quantity required of each item. Additionally, you should make out a Branch Order (AB-3) and immediately send it in with the properly filled-in form. If you have unfilled quantities of a publication on a previous order, please note this on the Publications to Be Printed form. Let us know how many more you want of that reprint. Make clear the total quantity desired of the item. The order will be held until the material is printed. But do not order if you have a sufficient stock of the items listed for your needs.

9. Occasionally branches will repeat an order for certain items on subsequent AB-3 forms before the first order has been filled, and it is difficult to determine whether this is a duplication or a new order for additional literature. Always indicate if you put in a second order that it is an additional request. Then we know we should fill both.

10. It should be possible to determine by checking back on inventory files, Distribution Reports and movement of literature as to the needs of the branch. It should not be necessary to send in two orders within a few months' time for the same literature. Check previous records on literature movement before ordering. Based on previous campaigns you can judge how much you will need for new special campaigns.

11. Literature is not usually sent to branches on consignment. Branches are notified in advance of what will be printed so that orders can be sent in. This is safer than sending on consignment. If anything is sent on consignment, we will notify you in advance if time permits.

12. Never use symbols when ordering literature, but write out in full the name of the publication and the language.

13. Some branches need to obtain a license for the importation of literature. This should be indicated on the Branch Order (AB-3). You should also indicate how it will affect the timing of the shipment.

14. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Be sure to write on every Branch Order (AB-3) your shipping instructions. Do not depend on the Shipping Desk to remember details about your country. You are interested in getting your publications, so you should be anxious to write out the instructions each time you order so that your shipment will be sure to reach you. Always advise the shipping department of any change in import regulations. It is always good to keep up with shipping information. Therefore, make inquiry from time to time as to changes governing importation into your country.

15. OVERSTOCKING LITERATURE: Stock inventories and Distribution Reports (AB-9) are a great aid to avoid having too much literature on hand. Overstocking of literature occurs when inventories and Distribution Reports are not checked before submitting your order. If you see that certain items are moving slowly we recommend that you plan a campaign to move them out rather than letting them accumulate in stock. We appreciate that sometimes certain items move more rapidly than others, but if you are not sure of the possible movement of certain items please order conservatively. When a new supply is received, be sure that the old stock of the item is used up first to avoid deterioration. Because a special campaign is planned for the United States is no reason for the branches to try to follow it if their stock supplies would indicate something else should be offered so that excess stock can be used up.

16. In considering requirements for literature we do not take into consideration the population, but rather how many people can read the publications and how many of similar publications, books or booklets, have been placed previously in that territory. Never order literature on the basis of enthusiasm or one copy for every person speaking the language, because oftentimes only one copy will be placed for two or three families. You also have to consider how many publishers you have who speak the language and who will share in its distribution.

17. Branches should not stock expensive non-Watch Tower publications. The brothers can obtain items on their own rather than the branch providing this service. However, a branch may still provide foreign language Bibles if there is a sufficient demand, the New World Translation is not already in that language, and the Bibles are not readily available from local vendors. The Bible should be a standard nondeluxe edition to keep costs to a minimum.

18. DISTRIBUTION REPORT: The Branch Committee representative should consult the Distribution Report (AB-9) and present stock figures every time an order is made out for an additional supply. The Distribution Report will show the movement of all the different books and booklets for the past three years, year by year. Here you can see the trend of movement and see how some books are going out slowly, while others may be faster moving. Whether you have a campaign to use a particular item will affect its movement. By checking the present inventory, you can also determine whether an additional supply will be required for any one item. You should also check whether an order may have already been submitted to replenish your stock.

19. CONGREGATIONAL LITERATURE REQUESTS: Each branch is responsible for proper handling of requests from the congregations. The organization has published a Watchtower Literature Request Guide (S(d)-15a). This sets out detailed instructions as to how a congregation should request literature. It would be good for each branch office that has many congregations to publish a letter dealing with shipping literature and magazines, following the guidelines set forth in the Watchtower Literature Request Guide, making any necessary adjustments as are required due to local circumstances. This can be sent to all congregations.

20. During each visit the circuit overseer should check that congregations are not overstocked and that literature requests are in proportion to the number of publishers and pioneers in the congregation. He should also verify that literature servants are not indiscriminately passing out literature. A check should be made on the quantity requested of publications that will not be placed in the field during campaigns. The objective is to make sure there are proper controls for literature distribution in congregations.

21. SPECIAL REQUEST ITEMS: Insight books, concordances, bound volumes, Yearbooks, videocassettes, and so forth, are special request items. These should be requested by the congregation only when there is a specific request on hand.

22. PACKING LITERATURE: When literature is mailed or packages are sent by fast carrier or by freight, it should be packed well so that it will arrive at its destination undamaged. We should always try to give good service to congregations and pioneers; and when they request literature, we must assume that they are in need of it and so we should dispatch it within a week from the time the mail was received in the office, if at all possible. If the branch knows for sure that the item out of stock will be in stock within four weeks' time, the item on the packing list can be marked "Later," and a label is then made out for that item. The label will be held in the Shipping Department until the item is received. If an item will be out of stock for more than four weeks, do not put it on the Shipping Acknowledgement Notice but mention in your Our Kingdom Ministry that the item is out of stock, and later, when it is in stock, announce it in Our Kingdom Ministry. In that way the congregations will be kept informed and can make request in the future.

23. LOBBY REQUESTS: For branches under the warehouse arrangement, this provision is mainly for the public and publishers visiting the branch. There should be a balance in the amount of literature or items a person may be given. For example, a person could obtain individual cassettes, but a request for an album of cassettes would not be filled from the lobby. For special request items, someone may obtain a personal copy, but a larger quantity should be handled through his congregation. Additionally, congregations should be directed to submit their Literature Requests (S-14) form to the branch office and not obtain their supply from the branch lobby. In countries not under the warehouse arrangement, if brothers bring a congregation Literature Request to the branch, we want to do what we can to give them quick service. Often the request can be entered by computer onto a packing list and filled without undue delay. If not, the request can still be filled from the S-14 form, and the packing list can be sent to the congregation with the next mailing.

Chapter 11

Literature Distribution

1. Our work has always been and continues to be supported by voluntary donations. The simplified literature distribution arrangement underscores the fact that we are not motivated by financial interest when we preach the good news. We are "not peddlers of the word of God as many men are, but as out of sincerity, yes, as sent from God," we are declaring the good news of the Kingdom.—2 Corinthians 2:17; Matthew 24:14.

2. The inevitable expenses incurred in the production and distribution of Bible literature are taken care of by donations. Jehovah's dedicated servants are the principal source of this support. However, small donations from sincerely interested persons who are found in the field are also appreciated.

3. When a publisher or interested person wishes to pick up literature or magazines at the Kingdom Hall, he may do so without having to pay for the items requested. He should take only the literature that he expects to place. Also, if one is obtaining literature for personal use, he should feel a responsibility to contribute. We do want all family members who can read to have their personal copies of the magazines and the publications used at the book study. For the larger-size publications, such as the Proclaimers and Insight books, those with little means in this life may benefit by having one copy for the whole family.

4. Those who are motivated to contribute not only for the publishing and distributing of the literature but for all that is involved in preaching this good news should put their donations in the boxes marked "Contributions for Worldwide Work.—Matthew 24:14." These boxes should be made available near the magazine and literature counters. The funds received in these boxes will be sent monthly to the branch office.

5. Our principal concern is to locate and feed the Lord's sheep and help equip them for survival into Jehovah's new world. Publishers should not refrain from offering literature in order to accomplish this objective. However, it would be a waste to leave literature with individuals who do not have an appreciation for spiritual things. Therefore, literature should not be given indiscriminately to those who do not appreciate it, those who would not read it, or those who want to sell it.—Isaiah 26:10.

6. It would not be appropriate to supply our literature to vendors. If you receive requests for our publications, you may advise the vendor to direct individuals who have an interest in our literature to contact a local Kingdom Hall for their needs.

7. When an individual sends a request to the branch for a certain item of literature without including a donation, the branch will send to the appropriate congregation the slip showing the name and address of the party and what item has been requested. The slip should be given to a reliable, experienced publisher who will call on the person, ascertain the interest, and provide the requested literature. At the same time, the publisher can explain about the worldwide work and how it is supported by voluntary donations. Donations received by mail should be acknowledged by the branch office. In the United States we have found it advisable to send out acknowledgements when the donation is $5.00 or more. Some branches may wish to acknowledge smaller contributions.—See 5:17.

8. Special request items include deluxe Bibles, Insight on the Scriptures, reference Bibles, bound volumes, videocassettes, and audiocassettes. These items should only be requested by the congregation when there is a specific individual request. If such items could not be obtained by the brothers previously because of cost, it would be incorrect to assume they can now obtain them because there is no longer any charge for literature. Good judgment by the literature servant and service overseer on how literature is dispersed at the counters is very important. Additionally, the brothers will need to be alert to note requests for unusual quantities of literature and magazines from persons who formerly obtained or placed few publications. Such situations should be monitored closely. Everyone involved in magazine and literature handling should make every effort to insure that the literature is not wasted.

9. We want sincerely interested ones to receive the valuable magazines on a regular basis. When the interested one is initially found, the publishers can include them on a magazine route and in this way cultivate the interest. Or if the person is genuinely interested and not easily reached by a magazine route, a subscription may be offered. Usually it is best to start a new subscriber with a six-month subscription, which can be renewed if there is sustained interest. Generally those who are truly interested show it by a donation.

10. Publishers are encouraged to obtain their personal copies of the magazines at the Kingdom Hall from the supply they request for placing in the field service.

11. When slips for expiring subscriptions are received in the congregation, the publisher who obtained the subscription should promptly follow up in hand-delivering the magazines to the former subscribers, or in obtaining the renewal subscriptions if appropriate. (See 13:21, 34.) Additionally, the publisher may inform the person that the magazines are provided as part of a worldwide Bible educational work carried on by Jehovah's Witnesses. This work is supported entirely by voluntary donations. If the person wishes to make a donation toward the work, the publisher would be happy to accept it. Thereafter, the publisher should place the amount donated in the contribution box designated for the worldwide work.

12. Congregations will be advised of literature and magazines sent them by the Shipping Acknowledgment Notice. Donations received from the congregations will be acknowledged by a donation acknowledgment.

13. During each congregation visit, the circuit overseer should check the accounts. He should make sure that literature and magazines are being distributed properly and are not overstocked. His findings may indicate that words of commendation are in order or loving reminders may be required. The circuit overseer will also want to keep the branch office informed on any trends so that assistance and encouragement can be made in letters and/or articles in Our Kingdom Ministry.

14. KINGDOM HALL LITERATURE: Each Kingdom Hall that is used by more than one congregation should share one common supply of literature, even if the congregations speak different languages. One congregation will be responsible for sending in a monthly literature request to the branch office and will be referred to as the coordinating congregation. It is preferred that the congregation speaking the major language of the country serve as the coordinating congregation. This arrangement applies to literature only and not to any shipments of Our Kingdom Ministry or magazines.

15. Congregations may submit emergency rush requests for campaign literature or publications currently being used in meetings. With congregations sharing a common inventory and the literature coordinator and servants being alert, such emergency requests should be rare. If there is a need, these should be directed through the literature coordinator in the normal way. The coordinating congregation will be billed for any special handling. Each participating congregation would share in contributing toward the extra expense as appropriate.

16. With a regular monthly literature request being sent to the branch office, it should not be necessary for the congregations to stock a large amount of literature. A three- or four-months' supply should be adequate. The branch office should have a sufficient stock on hand or have requested what is required well in advance from their supplying branch.

17. BRANCH PUBLICATIONS LIST: From time to time each branch should furnish its congregations with a list of all publications in stock. This can be produced on one or two sheets of paper, depending upon the number of items you have in stock. The organization prints a Watchtower Publications List (S(d)-15) for the publications currently in stock in all languages. Other items are shown on the Publications to Be Printed sheet when they are produced, and branches using such language publications would be aware of their availability if something is required for their territory.

Chapter 12

Literature Handling and Shipping

1. Branches not under the warehouse arrangement ship literature to congregations and pioneers. In many instances, where the branch is small, the Branch Committee coordinator is the shipping clerk, or there may be one assigned to look after the shipping department. The shipping clerk should be very much interested in his brothers all over the territory. He should be careful to send out good publications. If he knows a book is bad or broken he should also know that a pioneer or publisher receiving that book will be unhappy. Use good judgment in determining whether the damaged literature should be scrapped.

2. COST OF SHIPPING: The Watchtower Publications List has much information about shipping publications, magazines, and other literature. It should be read carefully by every shipping clerk. If he does not understand English, then the Branch Committee should inform him of this information.

3. Most countries have different means of shipping such as railroad, trucks, boats, and mail, and sometimes there is express or other service that gives special attention to speed and small parcels. The shipping clerk should acquaint himself with the cost of all these different methods of transportation and know where the line is drawn between shipping a package one way or the other as to cost. Usually every country has a book on rates and shipping costs. The shipping clerk should have one, for the branch can realize good savings if he is alert to check on reduced or special rates. We want to ship literature and magazines by the most economical way. Sometimes time is important, but congregations and pioneers should know how long it takes to get literature from the branch office to their address and should give the branch ample time to ship the cheapest way. Maybe the cheapest way is only when one or two hundred pounds of literature is shipped to one address. But if the congregation or pioneer would never use 200 pounds of literature in a long time, then it would be very impractical to ship that quantity of literature to certain locations. If we do not need that quantity of literature at that place, we make the right-size shipment even though the smaller quantity may cost us more.

4. The shipping clerk works from a label or picking list. These should be made out clearly with shipping addresses, showing quantity and symbols of items requested. The one filling the order must check off each item listed and initial the picking list. In this way, in case of an error, you can consider it with the right individual. When a picking list or label is filled and shipped, the list or label should indicate the ship date. The amount of postage is noted on the office file copy. Usually the shipping clerk looks after putting the postage on packages, making out bills of lading, and figuring shipping rates.

5. When goods are delivered to freight stations or carriers, we should get signed receipts if this is the normal practice of the shipping concerns of the country. Small branches do not have to make deliveries of small orders every day, but at least twice a week you should make deliveries to the carriers. In large branches, where there are a number of people working in the Shipping Department, deliveries should be made daily or arrangements made for the carrier to pick up the shipments.

6. EXPORTING: When a printing branch ships publications out of its country, the shipping clerk should be thoroughly familiar with all export regulations. He should be sure that the proper papers, bills of lading, commercial invoices, export declaration, and, if required, consular and pro-forma invoices and export licenses are made out. The Branch Committee coordinator should familiarize himself with the proper and required way of packing things before shipment. Cartons sent by mail are subject to very rough handling and require all carton lids to be fully taped and cord tied or closed with strong reinforced tape. Books manufactured by outside firms should be spot checked before being shipped so no defective, unusable books are sent. The mixing of different commodities in the same carton or case may sometimes result in a higher freight or mail rate, besides possible inconvenience and extra expense clearing customs and unnecessary delay of delivery. When a shipment has been made, it is important that you make sure that all the necessary documents or papers are immediately airmailed to the consignee or addressee, so he will be informed of the shipment and have ample time to clear the goods through customs.

7. Sometimes mail shipments need special handling at the post office, and special papers may have to be attached to the packages.

8. Receiving branches can help shipping branches by informing them whenever new regulations or controls are enforced. Customs and import laws may be changed from time to time.

9. IMPORTING: The Branch Committee coordinator receives supplies from other branches and he should be thoroughly acquainted with all important matters regarding ocean freight companies, import licenses and deliveries. Anything that the shipping branch should know should always be put on every Branch Order (AB-3).

10. When a freight shipment is on the way and expected, the importing branch should have the proper shipping documents so Custom House entry can be made as soon as the shipment arrives. Delayed entry may result in a fine or an additional expense. This in many cases also applies to shipments of mail. On dutiable or taxable goods the rates should be checked against the tariffs. Each Branch Committee coordinator should be very alert to check on these shipping requirements so as to avoid extra expense or delay in receiving shipments.

11. INVENTORY AND STOCK: The shipping clerk can help the Branch Committee coordinator considerably in placing orders. Handling the stock continually gives him a fair idea of its movement. The shipping clerk or, in larger branches, the inventory office should keep an accurate progressive inventory month by month. Once a year you should take an actual count of all stock, including audiocassettes, videocassettes, forms, and so forth. This actual count would be taken at the end of August so that subsequent inventories sent to the Publishing Committee are accurate. The actual count inventory should be compared with the progressive inventory to see how they correspond. If the progressive inventory and the count do not correspond on some particular item, then that item should be recounted very carefully so that your inventory will be correct. If there is still a discrepancy after the second count, you will have to make an entry showing the difference as received or shipped out on your inventory records (AB-2).—See 15:51; 16:24.

12. In order to make it easier in taking the actual count inventory, many slow-moving books and booklets can be wrapped up in packages. Then each of these packages should be labeled accurately as to the item and the quantity each contains, and at the next actual count inventory, if the sealed package has not been broken, it will simplify the taking of such inventory by just adding up the labeled packages. Packaged literature will also aid in keeping slow-moving stock in better condition, and prevent it from being soiled or discolored by the light.

13. In addition to keeping an inventory of the literature on hand, inventories of miscellaneous shipping supplies, such as cartons, tape, wrapping paper, envelopes, twine, and so forth, should also be watched very carefully and periodically checked so these items will not run out of stock, as this may cause a delay in filling orders and thereby inconvenience the brothers in the field.

14. RECEIVING CLERK: Usually the shipping department handles the receiving of incoming supplies, because the shipping department is convenient for exit of material and hence should be convenient for the entrance of supplies. Therefore the shipping department in printing plants is also the receiving department.

15. When packages are received at a branch, it is important that a proper receipt is made out for the items. Small branches with one or two workers may use a plain slip of paper to note goods received or show it by writing the information on the shipping or delivery papers. Some branches are using Receipt form F-226 a,b,c. This form should be made out in triplicate. The original copy goes to the department that ordered the goods; the duplicate copy goes to the office that checks and vouchers all bills; the triplicate copy remains in the receiving department. The department that ordered and now has received the goods fills out the lower part of the original receipt, giving an itemized listing of the goods received, that is, yards, pounds, color, gallons, and so forth, and then sends the original receipt together with a sample of the goods received, if practical, to the office that will check all bills for payments. This should be done no later than forty-eight hours after the goods arrive. This assures the office making payment and the Branch Committee coordinator what was actually received, and this is checked against and attached to the bill so that, when approved, payment can be made. This procedure is intended for major items to verify that what was received is what we ordered. In the event of a purchase out of petty cash, all that is necessary is for the cash receipt to be grouped together with other such receipts, indicating approval and receipt of payment. For larger items an approved requisition should be issued with documentation for receipt and approvals for payment to be handled in the usual way. If this can be done by means of a computer program and the check routines are adequate so that the function is kept as described on the F-226, there is no objection.

16. The receiving clerk, before signing for a shipment, first makes certain by counting the packages that the right number is being delivered, that the address on the packages and delivery papers is the same. He should check for any obvious signs of damage. Should there be a shortage or damage, EXCEPTION should be written on the carrier's receipt above the receiving clerk's signature and also shown on the Receipt form F-226. In rare cases the goods may not be accepted at all.

17. Where damage to a shipment or a shortage is noted on receipt, we pay the complete freight charge and then file a claim for damage or shortage. But before making payment for the goods we prefer to deduct from the bill for any damage or shortage. However, this can be worked out with the company involved, as they may give a discount for slight damage or request full payment and then replace the damaged or broken items, etc.

18. CLAIMS ON SHIPMENT LOSS OR DAMAGE: It is essential that you always check every package in all shipments as soon as you receive them. If you discover damage or a shortage in the shipment, note all missing or damaged items on the delivery receipt. Show the exact condition of what you received. If the freight carrier will not make delivery unless the delivery receipt shows no exceptions, accept delivery and send a letter to the freight carrier describing the damage. Save the receipt or letter and any other documents relating to the shipment. Protect your property from further damage. Set the damaged items aside so that later inspection can be made. Only if there is a shortage should the entire shipment be held if the insurance company will inspect it promptly.

19. If the value of the missing or damaged items is US$2,500 or more, send a formal claim letter to the insurance company's agent. Show the policy number, dates of coverage and name of insurance company. State that the purpose of your letter is to notify the agent of your claim and to permit the agent to arrange for a survey of the damage or loss if necessary. State (1) the dates and freight carriers for the shipment and (2) the type of damage or loss (water damage, missing items, etc.). Send (1) a formal claim letter and (2) a claims invoice to all the freight carriers involved. Send these to everyone who handled the shipment in question—the steamship line, trucking company, railroad, and port authority. In your letter state that you are making a claim and identify the shipment and type of damage or loss. In your claims invoice, itemize your claim.

20. You will need (1) your formal claim letter(s) to the freight carrier(s) and claims invoice, also any replies you have received. (2) If you are claiming items that were never received by you, you should get written confirmation by the freight carriers involved stating they could not make delivery. (3) If you did receive part or all of the shipment, copies of all delivery receipts, with missing or damaged items noted will be needed with inspection reports from the freight carrier which confirm your loss or damage. (4) You should have copies of all ocean, air, and inland Bills of Lading covering the entire shipment, including paid freight bills. (5) A copy of the branch's commercial invoice covering the entire shipment. (6) A copy of the packing list(s). (7) An original copy of the survey if one was made and given to you. (Sometimes the survey is sent directly to the insurance company's home office, but it is good to request a copy and also ask that it be sent to the insurance company.) (8) Repair bills for any damaged goods you received. (9) "Certificate of Condition" if issued by port, terminal, or other authority or freight carrier. (10) If applicable, Duty Consumption Entry Report bearing entry number. Where duty is insured, send a copy of your letter filing claim on customs for refund of duty.

21. Send a copy of all documents and correspondence as listed above to the Brooklyn Office, Attn: Risk Management Office, along with a brief letter giving the date and circumstances of the loss or damage. The Brooklyn office will care for the claim and will correspond with you further if necessary. Also notify the branch which sent the shipment.

22. If the value of the damaged or missing items is less than US$2,500, write to the freight carriers involved in handling the shipment as shown in paragraph 21. Do not pursue claims with the freight carriers if the amount of the damaged or missing items is less than $50, since it is not worthwhile to do so. If the freight carriers do not pay your claim, your branch should assume the loss and notify the Brooklyn Office, Attn: Risk Management Office, giving the date of the shipment, the vessel, the freight carrier(s), the amount of the loss, and a brief description of the damage or loss.

23. SUGGESTIONS FOR LITERATURE BIN AND WORKTABLE: The three layout drawings of a typical arrangement for a branch shipping department, found at the end of this chapter, may be of value to branches in working out a practical arrangement according to available space and volume of work. The basic working unit consists of a large working table and a literature bin, as shown on drawing No. 1. The usual height for a standard all-around working table is 33". If the table is to be used primarily for full large cartons, then it would be an advantage to have the table a little lower. If it is going to be used for light work and smaller cartons, then it may be an advantage to have it a little higher. The material for the table top can be made of Masonite, a good working surface of linoleum, asphalt tile, sheet metal or a well varnished wood surface. The top of the table should be kept well waxed to save wear and make moving of cartons easier. The literature bin does not necessarily have to be the overall dimensions as shown, as long as the basic dimensions of each compartment within the literature bin are maintained so as to fit well with the literature storage. These basic measurements are determined by the size of the books and booklets. Our standard 43"-long compartments are well suited to take 6 rows of books or booklets. The bin has a working ledge that is 33" high, or the same height as the working table. Then for convenience and accessibility the first compartment above the working ledge is 19" high. This is found to be an advantage, as it is your main compartment for the current books and booklets. Below the working ledge flat cartons or packing material could be stored.

24. Drawing No. 2 shows practical carton storage bins; one is suggested for a single-carton rack wherein cartons are stored one high and one deep on each shelf and the other is a two-carton rack, where cartons are stored two high and two deep on each shelf. These are accessible from all sides, or as arranged back to back or against the wall.

25. Drawing No. 3 shows a typical floor plan with the working table and the literature bin near or facing the windows for the best light arrangements, but not with sunlight shining on the literature. When the open literature bin is not being used for a period of time, then the literature should be protected from the sunlight and dust by use of a draw curtain or cardboard or whatever is convenient. The back part of the literature bin is equipped with single-carton shelves. Here you may store less-used stock and other-language stock. It should be kept in single cartons on the shelves in order to keep it clean, and each carton should be properly labeled showing the contents. If additional space is required for less-used literature, then portions of the carton racks may be used. This is particularly true in regard to the two-carton racks where there are three or four cartons of each item. If the quantity of each item gets larger so as to involve several cartons, then an area of floor space should be allotted for the storage of these cartons as shown in this drawing. One arrangement shows four cartons per block, the other arrangement 11 cartons per block.

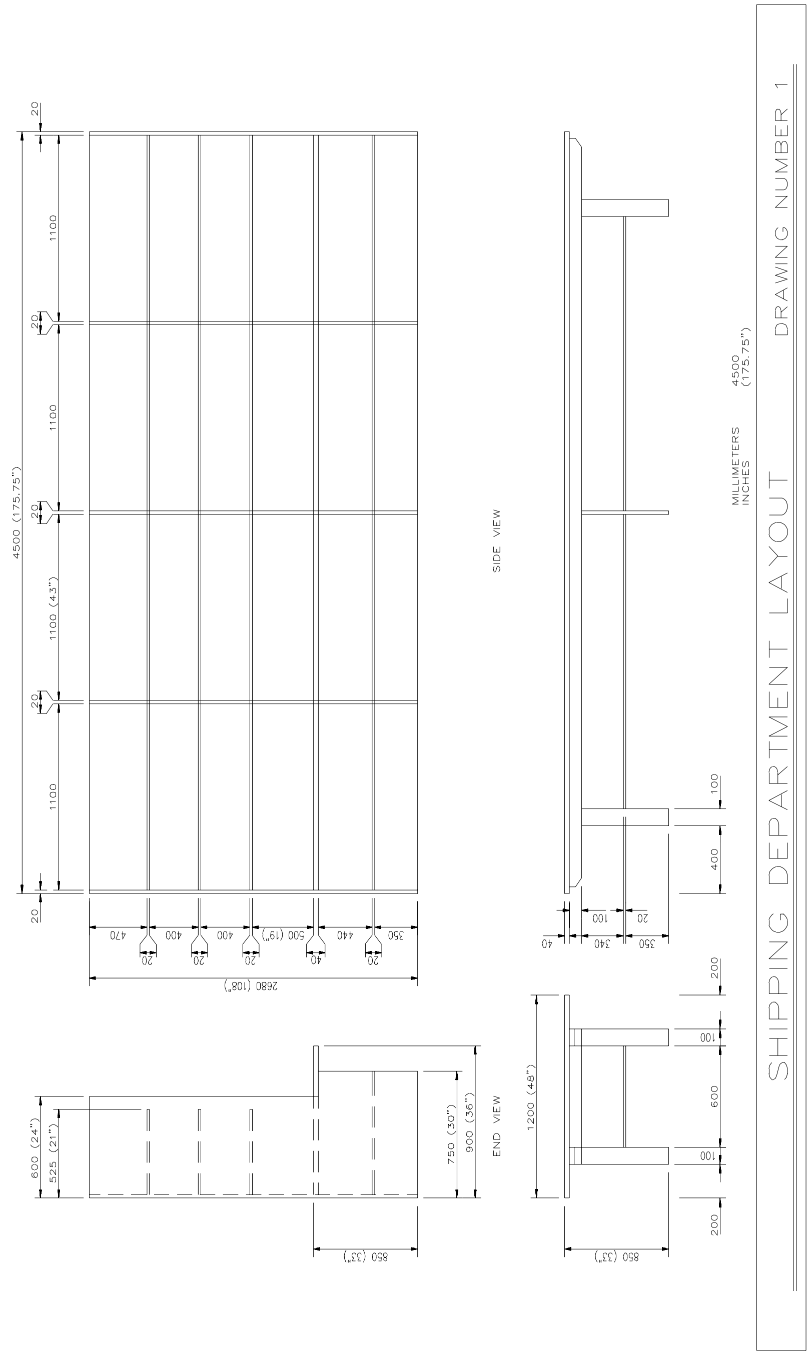
26. Forms that move steadily can be placed in one of the compartments above the working ledge of the literature bin next to the working table.—See drawings Nos. 1 and 3.

27. LITERATURE STORAGE: Be sure that cartons of literature are stacked properly. Book and booklet cartons should never be stacked on their side. If cartons bulge because moisture swells the publications, these cartons can be set aside and used first. The flat cartons should be stacked first. If necessary, bulging cartons can be opened before stacking, some of the literature taken out and the carton renumbered as to quantity. This will avoid damaging the literature by stacking cartons sideways.

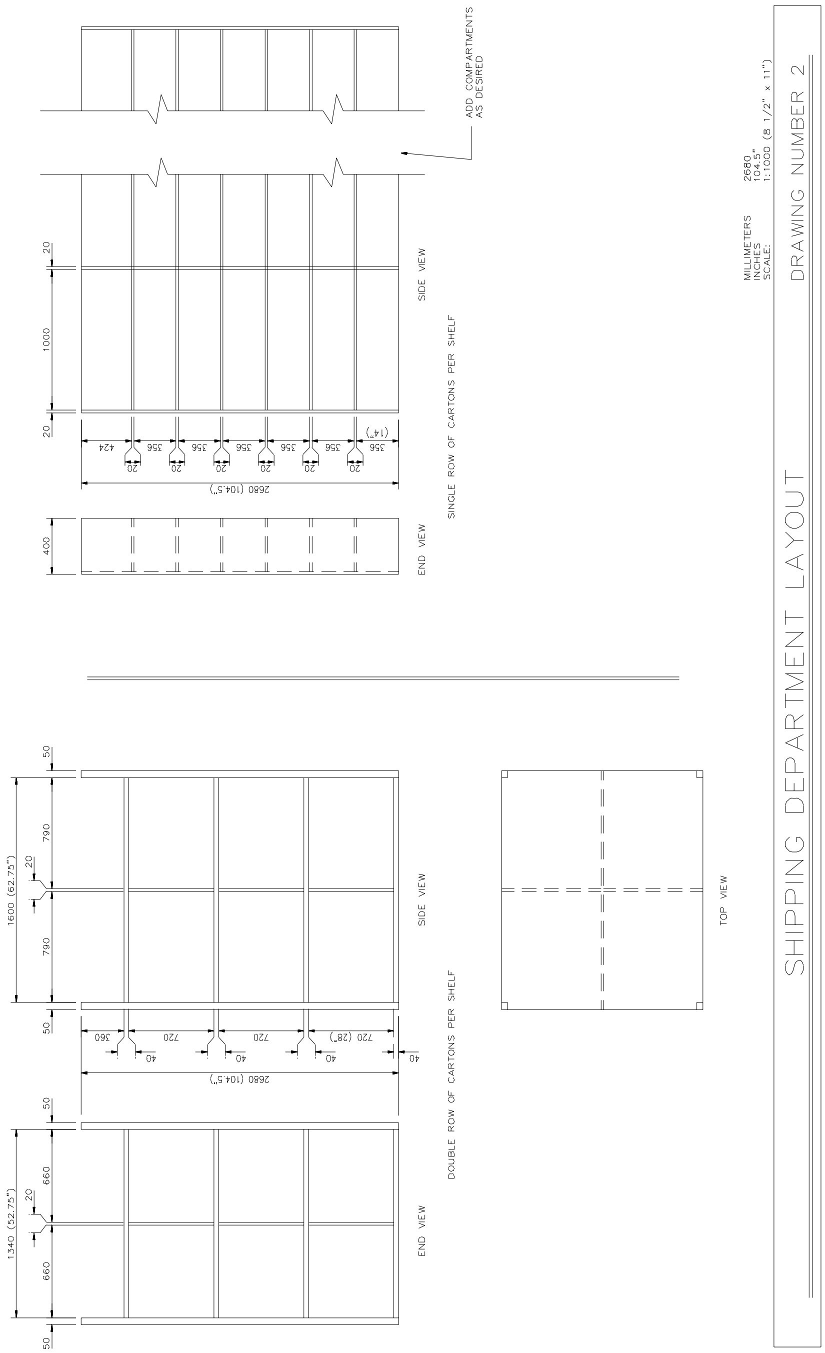
28. Bright sunlight will fade most colors and turn paper brown. Always see to it that all the literature is properly protected so that it will not become damaged by being submitted to constant sunlight or excessive moisture or heat. If the storage of literature is in a location where there may be insects that will damage the literature, then precautions should be taken by placing insect poison around the cartons in an endeavor to keep the insects or roaches from damaging the literature. Always let air circulate around stacks of cartons if stored in places that get damp at certain times of the year. Keep them off the floor about two or three inches.

29. CONGREGATION LITERATURE SUPPLIES: These should be checked carefully every year by using the Literature Inventory form (S-18). This form (S-18) should be filled out September 1 by each congregation unless the congregations will not receive the form in time in which case the congregations may be instructed to take their inventory on January 1 rather than September 1.

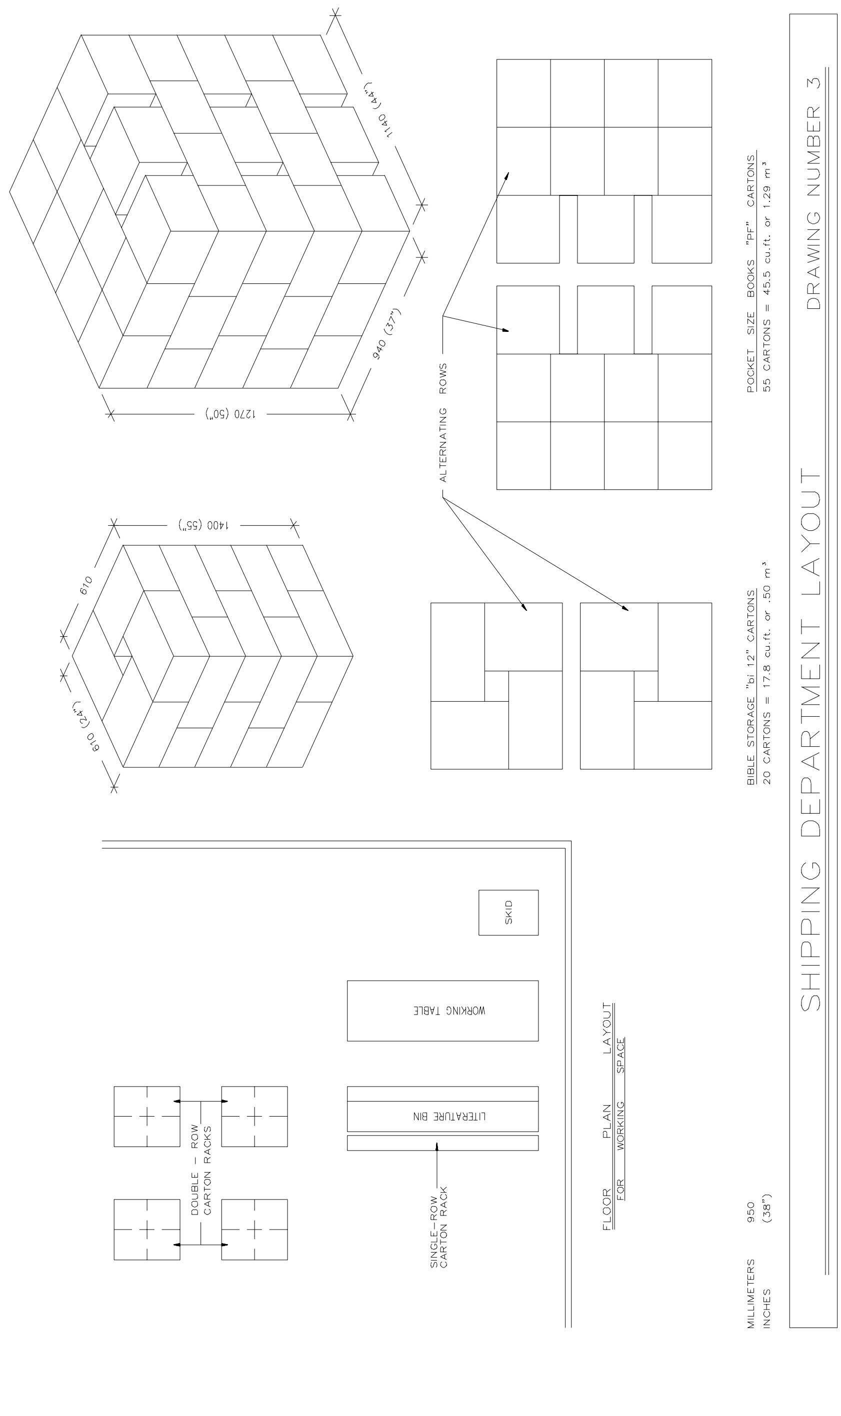
30. It is not necessary to total all the Literature Inventory forms in large branches. Approximate figures can be calculated by projecting a sampling of perhaps ten to fifteen percent of the S-18's to determine what stock is available in the congregations. This will help determine future literature campaigns as well as determining if congregations are over-ordering so that the office should reduce future literature orders for some items.



SHIPPING DEPARTMENT LAYOUT
DRAWING NUMBER 1
MILLIMETERS
INCHES
4500
(175.75")
SIDE VIEW
END VIEW
4500 (175.75")
1100 (43")
2680 (108")
500 (19")
600 (24")
525 (21")
750 (30")
900 (36")
1200 (48")
850 (33")



SHIPPING DEPARTMENT LAYOUT
DRAWING NUMBER 2
MILLIMETERS 2680
INCHES 104.5"
SCALE: 1:1000 (8 1/2" x 11")
ADD COMPARTMENTS AS DESIRED
SINGLE ROW OF CARTONS PER SHELF
DOUBLE ROW OF CARTONS PER SHELF
SIDE VIEW
END VIEW
TOP VIEW
2680 (104.5")
1600 (62.75")
1340 (52.75")
720 (28")



SHIPPING DEPARTMENT LAYOUT
DRAWING NUMBER 3
MILLIMETERS 950
INCHES (38")
FLOOR PLAN LAYOUT FOR WORKING SPACE
DOUBLE - ROW CARTON RACKS
SINGLE-ROW CARTON RACK LITERATURE BIN
WORKING TABLE
SKID
BIBLE STORAGE "bi 12" CARTONS
20 CARTONS = 17.8 cu.ft. or .50 m³
POCKET SIZE BOOKS "PF" CARTONS
55 CARTONS = 45.5 cu.ft. or 1.29 m³
ALTERNATING ROWS
610 (24")
610
1400 (55")
1270 (50")
940 (37")
1140 (44")

Chapter 13

Magazines

1. IMPORTANCE OF MAGAZINE DISTRIBUTION: Jehovah has blessed the distribution of magazines, and every Branch Committee should see the importance of placing The Watchtower and Awake! magazines with the people. The Branch Committee should stimulate the circuit and district overseers in this matter and they should show the congregation publishers and overseers the value of distributing magazines. Our Kingdom Ministry urges the distribution of magazines primarily from house to house and also on the streets, from store to store, on return visits and in the Bible study activity.

2. However, the same methods of distribution are not used in every country. Each Branch Committee must decide what methods are best to use in its country, so as not to make the preaching work overly conspicuous where this would do harm to it. The methods you use depend much on the laws of your land. What is said in the United States edition of Our Kingdom Ministry does not always apply in other branches. Discretion must be used. Keep the work open and these most important journals circulating in your land.

3. The information in The Watchtower has a place in all countries of the world. The Watchtower is the one publication used to bring Jehovah's people "their food at the proper time" and this should be delivered to God's people under all circumstances. We desire to have The Watchtower available in as many languages as possible, and it should always be our leading magazine. Awake! is also an excellent help in stimulating interest in the truth. It is another means to spread the good news; therefore, it will be stressed in our magazine work.

4. RENDERING GOOD SERVICE: Magazines are dated material. This makes people conscious of receiving the issues on time. Congregation magazine request forms (M-202) should be processed weekly. Process special requests promptly, especially when current issues are involved. Always be alert to ways that service can be improved and maintained. If it is necessary to bring in extra volunteers during rush periods, do so. Good service must be balanced with keeping delivery costs reasonable.

5. CONGREGATION MAGAZINE REQUESTS: The use of magazines in regular witnessing by the publishers has built up the circulation of the magazines. Continue to encourage this. These magazines are usually sent in bulk quantities directly to the congregations.

6. The congregation magazine request record file is arranged according to language, then alphabetically by country, state or province, and city. If a particular city has more than one congregation in it, the orders would be arranged in alphabetical order by the names of the congregations within the city.

7. Congregations generally have standing orders for The Watchtower and Awake! and Our Kingdom Ministry in the language of their country, and some have standing orders for foreign-language and audiocassette editions of the magazines. For branches that use a paper ledger system to handle magazine requests, a pencil notation of the total number of both issues of The Watchtower is listed first in the upper right-hand corner of the ledger, and under this is listed the total number of both issues of Awake! (Example: 100 w 1/1 and 100 w 1/15 totals 200 w, so 200 w will be the pencil figure.) When there is a change in the standing order, the Magazine Department will record the new quantity and the issue with which the change is effective. When the change in the standing order is effective with the 1st or 8th issue, the pencil figure on the ledger will be changed to double the number on the checking slip for semimonthly magazines. When a change is effective with the 15th or 22nd issue, the former penciled quantity (total of two issues) would be crossed out and the quantity of each issue sent to the congregation would be penciled in to the left of the former figure (for example: 100 w 1/1, 90 w 1/15). After the ledger has been posted, any pencil figures in the upper right-hand corner of the ledger sheet, regarding a change effective with the 15th or 22nd issue, would be erased, and a penciled figure of the new total quantity of both issues of the magazines would be shown. These figures will be used until another change is made. The standing orders for semimonthly foreign-language and audiocassette editions of the magazines are handled the same way.

8. The number of magazines shown in the description column of the ledger sheets and the Congregation Shipping Summary is taken from the upper right-hand corner of the ledger sheet or the computerized record. When posting, the pencil figures are recorded in date-of-issue order. The issue dates of all magazines should be shown.

9. When a congregation orders some magazines in addition to their regular standing order (a special order is submitted using the M-202 form), the Magazine Department will record the quantity, issue, and name of congregation. This information will be filed for the Shipping Summary to be posted at the proper time. These additional magazines will be listed on the summary below the standing orders in all languages.

10. To help keep the magazine records accurate, the Magazine Department of each printing branch will send checking slips on every congregation for the Magazine Departments of all branches involved. This will be done with the 1st and 8th issues of the January, May, and September magazines. These checking slips should be airmailed to the branches immediately so they may be compared before the month's summaries are posted. Any discrepancies should be promptly clarified. Instead of sending checking slips, printing branches using computers would send to each branch a complete list of their orders in January, May, and September. This would not necessarily show the quantities being mailed with the 1st and 8th issues of January, May, and September, but would show all orders at the time the list was produced. Branches would check this against their ledgers after posting regular order changes made before the list was produced.

11. The congregations send their standing orders for the printed and audiocassette editions of the magazines and Our Kingdom Ministry and any quantity changes to previous requests to the local branch on M-202 forms, and the branch sends these to the printing branch on M-229 or S-86 forms. However, there is no objection to sending M-202 forms that have been made out clearly directly to the printing branch for entry to save duplication of work. In such cases the M-229 or S-86 form would not need to be typed and forwarded, nor would the local branch need to keep a congregation magazine or audiocassette request file, or even an Our Kingdom Ministry order file. These requests should be sent to the printing branch at least once a week. Requests for 30 magazines or more should be submitted in multiples of 10. Requests for any quantity of audiocassette editions of the magazines may be made.

12. SPECIAL REQUESTS: Special requests are submitted for magazine quantities in addition to the regular congregation or branch request. These should be submitted to the printing branches on M-229 forms. Requests for more than 30 should be shown in multiples of 10. Special requests should be submitted to the printing branches on a separate M-229 form and not on the same form showing a change in the quantity. It is important that special requests reach the printing branches before the printing date of a particular issue. This will eliminate the need to reprint a particular issue, or have the request decreased or canceled. Since the magazines are mailed shortly after they are printed, the column "Mailed Before Issue Date" on the Watchtower and Awake! Mailing List can be used to determine the approximate printing dates of the various issues. Requests for individual issues of the audiocassette editions of the magazines should be submitted on a Literature Request form (S-14) as special request items.

13. INTERBRANCH MEMOS: Each week all congregation requests on hand for the printed and audiocassette editions of the magazines, and for Our Kingdom Ministry should be sent to the printing branches. These requests should be submitted as described in 13:11. A covering interbranch memo should always be sent with the slips, diskette, or with files sent by electronic mail. All memos for congregation supplies of printed and audiocassette editions of the magazines and Our Kingdom Ministry, whether sent through branch mail or by electronic mail, should be numbered in one sequential order. The individual M-229, M-202, or S-86 forms do not need to be numbered. Begin new files and numbers each September 1. The first memo of the new service year should state the number of the last memo of the previous service year to ensure no packages have been missed.

14. For regular branch mail, type the magazine interbranch memo in triplicate. Send the first and second copies to the printing branch. On the second copy type at the top "Please return to _____ branch." Keep the third copy on file until the printing branch returns the second copy. Receipt of this copy will confirm that the diskette or slips were received by the printing branch. If confirmation is not received within four to six weeks, an inquiry should be sent to the printing branch. If the slips were lost, send a duplicate set or file to the printing branch. Indicate on the covering interbranch memo that this package is a duplicate.

15. Electronic interbranch memos should include the heading "Please confirm receipt." The receiving branch will then return a copy of the memo via electronic mail with a message "Receipt confirmed" as confirmation that the original memo was received. Thus, whether the memo is sent via regular mail or electronically, a receipt confirmation should be sent to the sending branch. Follow the same procedures outlined in 13:14 if an electronic receipt confirmation is not received. Packages or envelopes that contain only magazine-related correspondence for the United States branch may be mailed to Watchtower; Wallkill, New York 12589; U.S.A.

16. ELECTRONIC FORMS: Branch and congregation requests for printed or audiocassette editions of the magazines and Our Kingdom Ministry (M-229, M-202, S-86) may be sent electronically. Depending on the local circumstances, the printing branch may accept an interbranch memo listing in column format the following information: congregation number and name, edition and language, current request quantity, and new quantity. The sending branch should first correspond with the printing branch to determine if they are agreeable to receiving these electronically.

17. MAGAZINE SUPPLIES: On September 1, when the literature inventory is taken, each congregation will make a report on the S-18 form to show total magazines on hand. If the supply is larger than needed, it would be appropriate for the circuit overseer to discuss the matter.

18. Sometimes a publisher may live within a congregation's territory, but due to distance or some other circumstances he desires the magazines to come to him directly from the branch. If the circumstances warrant, this will be done upon the approval of the body of elders and the branch.

19. ISOLATED GROUPS: When an isolated group of publishers wishes to receive literature and magazines from the branch, this will be arranged upon receiving favorable recommendations from the circuit overseer.

Supplies for pioneers working in isolated territory may be handled through the congregation they are associated with.

20. MAGAZINE INVOICES: For airmail magazine shipments made directly to a branch or congregation in another branch territory, a magazine invoice is sent to that branch each month covering only the airmail postage charges. Airmail charges will be billed when the receiving branch or congregation has requested this additional service and agrees to pay for the airmail postage rather than dropping behind in the study schedule. As to Our Kingdom Ministry, no charge will be billed when airmail service is the only viable shipping method to insure receipt in time for use by the local congregations.

21. SUBSCRIPTIONS: Publishers and other regular meeting attenders should receive their personal copies of the printed and audiocassette editions of the magazines from the bulk congregation supply. A subscription list can be kept for those living in remote areas who are not in contact with a congregation. There may be other exceptions for magazines to be mailed, but it is our desire to keep these to a minimum. All such subscriptions should be approved by the secretary or another member of the congregation service committee. Subscriptions to the braille editions of the magazines, to The Watchtower or Awake! on audiocassette that can be mailed free to impaired subscribers, and airmail subscriptions for which the subscribers pay the mailing cost may continue to be sent. (See 13:43, 44.) Gift subscriptions should not be accepted.

22. SUBSCRIPTION FILES: Branches that do not print their magazines have two files of subscription slips, one file for the handwritten slips, and the other for the typewritten slips. When a local branch receives the confirmation from a printing branch of the receipt of a group of slips, then the local branch can file their copies of the typewritten slips into the typewritten slip file. This file is arranged alphabetically by state or province, city and name of the subscriber; or by postal code and name of subscriber. One alphabetical file of the copies of typewritten slips is sufficient regardless of the type of magazine, language or printing branch to which the original typed slips were sent. The original handwritten slips are filed away in the order in which they were sent to each printing branch.

23. When a branch sends subscriptions electronically, only the original subscription slips need to be filed. However, a copy of the electronic file should be kept until the receiving branch confirms receipt. The original slips can be filed as part of the entry pack. Each pack can have the date it was processed noted on the front of the pack. Thus, when researching questions, this date can be used to locate the original subscription slip.

24. On January 1 of each year the subscription slips and memos over 16 months old are destroyed. For example, on January 1, 2003, the subscription slips and memos for the 2001 service year (dated 9/1/00 through 8/31/01) would be destroyed. When subscriptions for more than one year are filed in the typewritten slip file, they can be marked with a paper clip. Then when the slips over 16 months old are destroyed, the slips with clips can be removed and refiled in the current file.

25. THE EXPIRATION DATE: The expiration date is determined by the first copy sent to the subscriber. There are 24 expiration dates per year for each semimonthly magazine. Show the expiration date in a month, day, year format. For example, if the first issue sent is the 10/15/01w, the expiration date would be 10/1/02 for a one-year subscription, or 4/1/02 for a six-month subscription. The magazine, language symbol and expiration date should appear on the address label.

26. TYPING THE SUBSCRIPTIONS: When preparing to send subscriptions to another branch, be sure to proofread the typed copies against the original for accuracy. Type the name of the post office in all capital letters. Type the language in the upper right corner and the congregation number just above the subscriber's name. This will avoid any confusion with the postal code number or address. The branch sending the subscription and also the printing branch should be shown. Check the Watchtower and Awake! Mailing List to determine the printing branch. The calendar date that the subscriptions are mailed should be shown. When submitting subscriptions on documents sent electronically, this same information should be included. Work out any details of sending subscriptions electronically with the branch that will receive them. If a branch has only one or two slips for a particular printing branch, these can be sent by way of the United States branch. Packages or envelopes that contain only magazine-related correspondence for the United States branch may be mailed to Watchtower; Wallkill, New York 12589; U.S.A.—See 13:13-15.

27. The slips are sorted according to the language, magazine type (w, g, or w&g), term and whether it is a new or renewal subscription. Watchtower and Awake! subscriptions for the same person are processed as renewals if one is a renewal and the other is a new subscription.

28. Check each subscription for the following items: (1) Verify the postal code and spelling of the post office and other address information. Endeavor to obtain a postal directory for this purpose. It is not necessary to check these items for subscriptions sent in by a branch for countries under its jurisdiction. (2) Check the legibility and make any necessary clarifications. (3) Arrange the information consistently with the rest of the subscription file. (4) Illegible or incomplete information that cannot be corrected should be returned to the congregation or branch from which they came for the needed information.

29. In preparation for typing, the slips are grouped into packages convenient to handle. Be careful not to get the information mixed up when typing the addresses. We do not want the subscriber to receive the wrong magazine. The important parts of each address should be carefully verified for accuracy, and any discrepancies should be corrected.

30. A branch may receive a subscription to enter at an address that is under the jurisdiction of another branch. It would be appropriate to inform the branch of the potential interest and the local congregation can be instructed to follow up and deliver magazines to the interested person.

31. SUBSCRIPTION CHANGE OF ADDRESS TO THE PRINTING (MAILING) BRANCH: Locate the subscriber's former address and expiration date, and forward the old and new address to the printing branch. If the change of address is for a subscription which had become undeliverable and was being held in the stopped subscriptions file by the printing branch, indicate this on the slip and show the advanced expiration date.

32. PROCESSING RENEWAL SUBSCRIPTIONS: Attempt to locate the present subscription on file. If there is no subscription on file, enter the subscription as a new one. If there is a subscription on file, compare the address and make any needed corrections. If the subscription has missed an issue, start it with the next issue to be mailed. If the subscription has not missed an issue, advance the expiration date according to the term of the renewal.

33. RENEWAL NOTICES: Renewal notices may be used for subscribers with extenuating circumstances. This would include audiocassette subscribers who are impaired, those that subscribe to the printed braille editions of the magazines, or those that live in isolated territories. These notices are mailed to the subscriber's home.

34. EXPIRING SUBSCRIPTION SLIPS: Expiring subscription slips (M-91 and M-191) are prepared and sent to the congregations. These should be given to the publisher who obtained the subscription at the next meeting if possible so that they can promptly follow up in delivering the magazines to the former subscribers, or in obtaining the renewal subscriptions if appropriate. Expiring subscription slips received back from the congregations should be processed as described in 13:32 above.

35. Around the first of each month, subscriptions which expired with the previous month's issues may be purged. Example: Subscriptions that expired with the July issues may be purged on or after August 1.

36. In the United States, each congregation is assigned a unique number that is shown on subscriptions obtained in their assigned territory. When the subscription is entered, the congregation number is included on the record. Then, when the expiring subscription slips are sent to the congregations, the one sorting the slips can easily determine to which congregation the slips should be sent.

37. CHANGE OF ADDRESS, UNDELIVERABLE SUBSCRIPTIONS: When notification of an address change is received from a branch, an individual or the postal service, locate the present subscription on file and change the address. Since there has been no interruption in mailing, no change needs to be made in the expiration date for the subscription.

38. Notification may be received from the postal service that a subscription is undeliverable. The subscription is removed from the active file and put in the stopped subscriptions file alphabetically by the name of the subscriber. The remaining term and the reason for stopping are recorded on the subscription record. Then a notification is sent to the branch or congregation having the territory in which the subscriber was located. If the postal service notification was sent in by a branch, it should have already notified the congregation and is now asking that mailing be held until the correct address is obtained. When a response is received from the congregation or the branch, the correct address is entered and the subscription reactivated. The expiration date is advanced according to the number of issues missed while the subscription was in the stopped subscriptions file. Mailing would begin with the next issue.

39. CANCELLATIONS: Remove the subscription from the active file and put it in the stopped subscriptions file showing the remaining term and the reason for stopping.

40. When correspondence is received reporting non-receipt of a subscription, the file is carefully checked. If the subscription is not on file and sufficient time has elapsed since the subscription was reported as sent in, it can be assumed that the subscription was lost. Enter the subscription in the file.

41. If the subscription is in the file properly, the expiration date can be advanced to account for the issues the subscriber missed. Then, inform the subscriber what we have on file and suggest he contact the local post office regarding the problem. Advise the subscriber to let us know if this does not produce satisfactory results. A simple inquiry regarding a subscription problem can be sent to the printing branch.

42. Some branches may have different ways of following up on undeliverable subscriptions. Keep in mind that they should be followed up somehow at reasonable expense to the organization and the congregations.

43. AIRMAIL SUBSCRIPTIONS: Individuals needing magazines in languages other than those spoken in the country in which they reside may request these as airmail subscriptions. For instance, missionaries, Bethel family members, or others serving in a foreign field may receive the magazines in their native language by this method in order to receive their personal copies before date of issue. Airmail subscriptions are usually sent from the printing branch with the lowest airmail postage rate. However, the branch may inform the subscriber of one of the higher rates because of the poor service they may have experienced from the country with the lowest rate. Please consult the Airmail Subscription Rates From Magazine Printing Branches chart to determine which printing branch the subscription would be sent from for the major languages listed. Inquiry can be made of a printing branch to obtain the airmail cost if the desired language is not listed in the rates chart. The Watchtower and Awake! Mailing List may be consulted for other languages that are handled by these printing branches.

44. Airmail subscriptions are sent only if the subscriber covers the additional airmail postage costs. Airmail subscriptions should not be accepted for a term of more than one year, and should not be sent in a native language of a country. (For instance, an English airmail subscription would not be sent to the United States.)

45. STOPPED SUBSCRIPTIONS FILE: Subscriptions which were undeliverable or canceled and have time remaining on them are filed by the name of the subscriber. Around the first of each month, subscriptions in this file which expired with the previous month's issues may be purged.

Chapter 14

Monthly Campaigns for Announcing the Good News

1. About November of each year the Governing Body sends out a general letter to all branches as to the month-by-month campaigns. It is the proposed plan of the year for making known the good news.

2. Usually certain months highlight the distribution of magazines. If these are not the best months for your branch, adjustments can be made. Take the matter up with the Service Committee. If your reasons are good for offering magazines at another time of the year rather than during these "magazine months," a change could be made. The Governing Body desires each branch to set aside some months every year to offer the magazines to those who show interest and to emphasize the magazine work. This is arranged as an aid in spreading the truth and also because our printing operations are now able to provide ample magazines to help in publishing the good news.

3. MORE MAGAZINES IN MORE LANGUAGES: The Governing Body is very desirous of distributing The Watchtower in as many languages as possible. It is for all interested persons in all territories. To do this, however, we must have good translators and be sure of the regular supply of copy. We must print at least 2,500 copies of each issue to make it worthwhile. If you are sure you could build up a demand for that many, consideration will be given to that language. We do have a few smaller editions which are mimeographed.

4. We would like to put the Awake! magazine out in more languages too. This depends on whether translators can supply good copy and enough copy for both The Watchtower and Awake!—See Translation, Chapter 25.

5. It would be good to encourage development of magazine routes. Particularly during the months set aside for magazine campaigns the brothers could be encouraged to start magazine routes or develop those they already have. Magazine routes do offer a basis for becoming friendly with the readers and consequently lead to Bible studies. It may be good to offer subscriptions to those who appreciate the material and who are not easily reached by a magazine route.–See 13:21.

6. Having magazines going into homes every month means a wider witness to the Kingdom and a better sowing of seed to prepare the people to accept the truth. It is very clearly seen that the distribution of The Watchtower magazine regularly each month in any language is of great benefit to Jehovah's people. The interested persons benefit, too, because of the house-to-house visiting done with magazines. So the magazines The Watchtower and Awake! play a prominent part in our campaigns for the year.

7. BOOKS, BOOKLETS, BIBLES: Not all branches have a large variety of publications, and therefore some cannot follow the monthly campaign outlined. Under these circumstances the branch should write the Service Committee recommending a change. The only things you can offer are the things you have in stock.

8. There are times during the year that you may want to do something special to dispose of older literature. Paper sometimes turns brown with time so it is good to place the literature before it discolors. Your recommendations can be made to the Service Committee, but have in mind that it costs money to print the literature as well as to ship it. Just because it does not move out of stock does not mean that it is of no value. We should try to use it to aid the people in the territory.

9. OUR KINGDOM MINISTRY*:* The United States' Our Kingdom Ministry emphasizes the field offers that are outlined in the annual letter. Your issue of Our Kingdom Ministry is for your branch territory, so you should print what is applicable to your field.

10. Some countries a long distance from the United States use the edition of Our Kingdom Ministry printed at Brooklyn. If it arrives late, the branch can instruct the local brothers to fall a month or more behind on all campaigns. Some branches have a problem because their issue of Our Kingdom Ministry is not simultaneous. However this can be handled by a supplement to the congregations giving any updates or suggestions necessary with regard to magazine presentation or other matters. Another option is to send a letter to the congregations giving necessary adjustments or campaign offer suggestions. Branch Committees should have in mind that the edition of Our Kingdom Ministry printed in the United States is for the brothers of that country. Your reports and conditions may be different for your field. Conventions are held at other times. Articles in the United States' Our Kingdom Ministry can be rewritten or completely new ones written, if it is in the best interests of the work. You should, however, write articles that will encourage and help the brothers in your territory to present better the message of the Kingdom. You may have had a new peak in publishers, so why not write a short article about it that will encourage and build up your brothers? Things that do not apply to your territory should not be reprinted; rather, write something new that applies. However, what you write should deal with the field ministry and other activity pertaining to the preaching and teaching work, Kingdom Hall matters, etc., in your country. You should not write articles or inserts that feature Biblical counsel and direction on various Scriptural topics, or that deal with marriage or funeral customs, or superstitious practices of some in your country, etc. That type of information is found in the organization's other publications, such as books, booklets, brochures, and magazines. If you want to feature a "Question Box" or an insert on a certain subject that is field-related, you should first submit your proposed draft to the Brooklyn office before printing such information. It is helpful to submit such drafts to the Service Committee well ahead of your scheduled printing for your local edition of Our Kingdom Ministry, so that there is time to review what you may have in mind printing, after which you will be informed if permission is granted to print such information. If time does not permit such new articles to be submitted to Brooklyn the Branch Committee can approve them, but if the topic is questionable, hold them back and send them to the Service Committee for comment and/or approval.

11. Usually there is no reason to mail individual copies of Our Kingdom Ministry to persons in other countries. If there is a congregation existing in another country that needs your language edition of Our Kingdom Ministry for its service meetings, then the request for a bulk supply for the whole congregation should be made through the branch office and thence through the Brooklyn office. A regular order (S-86) should be put through. If a congregation wishes to receive its supply by airmail, the cost of the airmail postage will be charged to the branch originating the request to be charged in turn to the congregation account.—See 13:20.

12. But when individuals request copies of Our Kingdom Ministry in another language to be sent to them in another country, you will not handle this mailing as a rule unless the branch in that country makes a special request. The edition of Our Kingdom Ministry of one country usually will not apply in another, and there is no reason for you to use time, postage, stencils and envelopes sending out such material. In general brothers should get the local edition of Our Kingdom Ministry through their own congregation.

13. However, if there is a Spanish or other-language congregation in Germany, or a Greek or other-language congregation in France, and so forth, and all the brothers who attend the congregation speak that language and you need a supply of Our Kingdom Ministry from another country, then send through a regular order (S-86) to the branch that prints them. As long as that congregation exists we will send Our Kingdom Ministry; but if the congregation ceases to function, then, of course, the order should be canceled and the branch supplying Our Kingdom Ministry should be notified.

14. Supplies of Our Kingdom Ministry sent to other countries are not chargeable. The cost is always considered a local printing and mailing expense unless a congregation requests supplies of Our Kingdom Ministry sent airmail.—See 13:20 and 14:11.

15. INFORMATION FOR CONGREGATIONS: In countries where the available editions of Our Kingdom Ministry will not fit your conditions, you may provide a monthly letter. This monthly letter need not be as lengthy as Our Kingdom Ministry. The objective of Our Kingdom Ministry is to outline the work for the local congregations. It does not have to be elaborate. The outlines for service meetings can be made by the local overseers of the congregations if necessary. This will give them good experience. It is understood, however, that the more uniform the work is throughout the world, the more unity is shown, the more positive is the message expressed and a better witness is given.

16. All branches will follow the outline in the annual letter if possible, but whether you can or not, there is one thing we can all do and that is preach the good news of the Kingdom, and that is the important thing. The ultimate goal of Jehovah's servants is to proclaim the good news worldwide for a witness, because this is the command that Jehovah has given to every one of his servants in the earth. If the brothers have the Bible, we want them to use it as the basis for conversations, always seeking to improve their ability to communicate and to convince others of the truth. The big thing is to keep sharing the good news everywhere, from house to house, and in many other places, whether with literature or without, with the Bible or just by word of mouth. Declare the truth in favorable season or troublesome season.

Chapter 15

Correspondence and Monthly Reports to the Governing Body

1. Branches should always feel free to ask any questions pertaining to the work in their country when they write to the Governing Body. It is noted that oftentimes small details are presented to the zone overseer when he visits that might easily have been handled by correspondence. We want to be as helpful as possible to the branches, so feel free to submit your inquiries in correspondence. We want to assist the branches in serving their territory and in handling matters properly.—See 1:82-88.

2. We do appreciate it when the Branch Committees keep us informed of any matters of general interest pertaining to their field so that the Governing Body is kept up-to-date on trends, whether it reflects outstanding field activity or a weakness in the field. Just a few lines or a paragraph from time to time, in a covering letter with the monthly branch reports, helps us keep in touch with the field and any new developments in your territory. We are not interested in lengthy letters with unnecessary details or many experiences. However, if you do have outstanding experiences from time to time, they can be written on a separate sheet and sent to the Writing Committee. There is no need to go to great lengths analyzing your field reports or expenditures in letters. Sometimes a few lines on something outstanding helps us get the picture here.

3. Rather than referring to previous letters in your correspondence, which means going back and checking our files here, it is very helpful if the points you have in mind can be summarized in a few lines unless, of course, the matter is quite detailed and would require extensive retyping. There is no need to ask a committee in Brooklyn or the Governing Body to read letters already handled unless it really bears on the current correspondence. We do have the former correspondence if it is needed.

4. All correspondence to and from the branch should be read by the Branch Committee coordinator or his substitute (when the coordinator is absent). The entire Branch Committee should have access to such files. The coordinator is responsible to approve all documents to headquarters before they are sent and he is responsible to carefully review incoming matters from headquarters. An individual or department in one branch should not communicate directly with an individual or department in another branch whether by correspondence, E-mail, or telephone unless this has been approved by the Branch Committee coordinator (or in the United States, a representative of a Governing Body committee) and he is aware of the content of any communications. Of course personal correspondence to and from individuals does not go through the coordinator.

5. Correspondence need not be long, but all of the facts should be stated. When you write about problems or present questions dealing with individuals, be sure to be specific and let us know whom you are writing about. The important thing in correspondence is to be specific, to the point, stating the facts clearly, and yet briefly.

6. Every effort should be made by the brothers at the branch, including the Branch Committee coordinator, to maintain a fine standard of neatness, grammar, spelling, and punctuation in all correspondence.

7. To facilitate sending correspondence to headquarters or other branches, a desk or department in the branch may be asked by the Branch Committee to prepare a draft for review by the Branch Committee coordinator or the entire committee, as needed, before sending.

8. It is good to have outgoing correspondence proofread by someone other than the writer. If the language of the country is not the native language of the Branch Committee coordinator, he may ask that someone else who is qualified put the correspondence in final form, so that it is properly written. If correspondence is not neat and well typed, it should be corrected or typed over. No letters should be sent out with words crossed out or that have a messy appearance.

9. Correspondence between branches and headquarters should be sent as either a numbered letter or memorandum as described in subsequent paragraphs. The formats used by headquarters and the US branch may serve as a sample for your own document templates. Such correspondence may be sent electronically or by hardcopy mail. The branch should use good judgment so as to insure timely mail service at a reasonable cost.

10. Hardcopy items that are not urgent may be held in a pending file for mailing once a week by airmail. This might include interest follow-up visit slips, interbranch memos, and other miscellaneous slips.—See 1:88; 5:32; 13:13.

11. Electronic documents may be sent daily by CompuServe. Matters that need immediate attention may be sent by fax. When sending correspondence electronically, indicate at the top of the material how it is sent to insure receipt, e.g., "Via CompuServe," "Via Fax," or "Via CompuServe and Fax."

12. There is usually no need to send correspondence by more than one method at the same time. However, if this is needed, then please make sure the original and copy are identical and are clearly marked so there will be no confusion when the items are received as to whether or not an item is a copy or an original.

13. If an item is urgent, then clearly state that at the top of the correspondence in bold letters. If an answer is required by a certain date then please be sure to indicate that specifically in the correspondence so that the matter is not inadvertently circulated in the normal routing of correspondence.

14. When making a reply to letters or memos, please commence your correspondence with a reference to the date, desk symbol(s), and letter number, if applicable.

15. If other documents or items are sent with a document then this should be noted at the bottom of the document by the words "Enclosures" or "Attachments." If numerous enclosures are sent, it would be good to itemize the enclosures to be sure they are all received and kept together as one package.

16. Numbered letters and memorandums to headquarters should usually be addressed to only one committee or department to handle. If a committee of the Governing Body finds it appropriate to pass it on to another committee, that will be done by the headquarters staff. This way only one committee will be expected to reply.—See 1:87.

17. A copy of all consequential correspondence between branches should be sent to the Administration Offices. This would be true especially of matters pertaining to policy, doctrine, branch finances, payment of bills, the purchase of large items of equipment, or arrangements to send personnel from one place to another. There is no need to send us a copy of inconsequential memos, such as those transmitting service records, floppy disks, and manuscripts for other branches.

18. NUMBERED LETTERS: Numbered letters are limited to correspondence between Branch Committees and world headquarters. The term "world headquarters" refers to the Governing Body, the six committees of the Governing Body, the Administration Support Committee, and the Administration Offices.

19. The numbering system insures all numbered letters are received by both headquarters and the branch office. Numbered letters are different than memorandums and should not say "MEMORANDUM" at the top of the letter. At the start of each service year branches should begin numbering letters to the Governing Body with No. 101 and the Administration Offices in Brooklyn will do the same with correspondence sent to the branches. Each branch will keep two cards on file with a series of numbers starting with 101. One will be marked "Dispatched," and the other "Received." When you send a letter to headquarters, check off the first unused number and put this same number on your letter next to the desk symbol(s) and date. On your received cards check off the numbers that appear on the letters received from headquarters.

20. If you find a received number has not been checked off after a reasonable period of time, then first check your files to see if you did receive the letter with the number but forgot to mark it off. Sometimes branches overlook the fact that some circular form letters are also numbered. However, if you do not find a letter with that number on it, then write to the Administration Offices for a copy, giving the number of the missing letter. The Administration Offices will do the same to all branches if letters are not received.

21. The inside address on numbered letters sent to the headquarters should say "Governing Body of Jehovah's Witnesses," a specified Governing Body committee, or the Administration Offices. The Administration Offices will check in all numbered letters from the branches and distribute them accordingly.

22. Numbered letters from branches to headquarters are to be signed by the Branch Committee coordinator or his substitute (when the coordinator is absent) on behalf of the Branch Committee. When sending letters regarding appointments of brothers to responsible positions of oversight or other serious matters, all available members of the Branch Committee who are in agreement should sign the numbered letter and the recommendation sheet. (See 1:82.) If a letter is sent by hardcopy, the signature(s) should be hand-signed in ink. If a letter is sent electronically, the signature(s) should be typed. Numbered letters from headquarters will be signed by the responsible Governing Body committee or the Administration Offices.

23. Every month each Branch Committee coordinator will send certain reports to the Governing Body. Branches should make a practice of sending a numbered covering letter with the reports for each month and for the year. This letter should itemize enclosures and be numbered so we can tell if we get all of the correspondence from your office. They should be sent no later than the 20th of each month and preferably sooner if the mail service in your country permits you to receive field reports in time to finalize them at an earlier date.

24. MEMORANDUMS: Memorandums are to be used for interbranch correspondence and for routine matters of lesser importance between branches and headquarters. Memorandums to headquarters or other branches should not be numbered except for memos accompanying magazine requests. (See 13:13-15.) The title "MEMORANDUM" (when addressed to headquarters) or "INTERBRANCH MEMORANDUM" (when writing another branch) should appear at the top of such correspondence so it is distinguished from a numbered letter.

25. To insure that certain material sent with memorandums is actually received, you may ask the recipient to return a copy of the memorandum to your branch as is done with interbranch memos for subscriptions.

26. The inside address on memorandums should state the name of the branch or "World Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses." If desired, you may also specify a particular department. The Administration Offices will route all incoming memorandums to the responsible desks and departments at headquarters and in the US branch.

27. Interbranch memos are customarily signed with the name of the branch, not the name of any individual. However, if the interbranch memo relates to the transfer of personal funds, the memo should be signed by the Branch Committee coordinator or someone appointed to do so as mentioned at 8:45.

28. REQUESTS FOR FUNDS: Requests to the Publishing Committee for funds should be submitted using a numbered letter, not a memorandum. The branch sending the funds should be sure to have some confirmation that the funds sent are actually received. The information can either be conveyed by a copy of the numbered letter or memorandum. And, of course, the branches receiving funds should watch this very closely also as sometimes remittances are delayed for quite some time.—See 22:53-56.

29. BRANCH ORDERS AND REQUISITIONS: Items to be purchased by another branch should be itemized on a Branch Order form (AB-3) that you send to headquarters. For items to be purchased locally costing US$1,000 or more, please submit a Requisition form (F-102), unless the branch has been advised otherwise. Always provide sufficient details in English so we will know just what you want, why you feel it is needed, and the price. Specify whether the cost is per item or a total per line. On Branch Orders, be sure to provide complete shipping instructions.—See 22:29.

30. MONTHLY FIELD SERVICE REPORT (S-81): This report should be carefully checked for accuracy before being sent. The figures for the Monthly Field Service Report as well as for Our Kingdom Ministry are taken from the compilation of the Congregation Reports (S-1), Special Pioneer Reports (S-212), Missionary Home Reports (A-24), and traveling overseers' Monthly Reports (S-301). All publishers are encouraged to report through a congregation if feasible. Isolated publishers and isolated pioneers can send in reports on the publisher's Field Service Report (S-4), marking it to show it is from an "isolated publisher" or "isolated pioneer."

31. The figure for the "Public by Mail" column on the Monthly Field Service Report (S-81) you will get from your correspondence clerk. When small literature orders from strangers are made out, the clerk should keep a record month by month of books, booklets, and magazines sent out in this manner, when it appears that the correspondence comes from strangers. Of course if it is clear that the order is from a brother or sister, no such notation would be made because the publisher will report through the congregation. All advertisement coupons that are sent in would usually be listed as public by mail. Once a month the correspondence clerk will turn over to the one compiling the Monthly Field Service Report these totals of literature orders sent out to the public.

32. Special pioneers or missionaries who report less than 70 hours a month may be counted as regular pioneers, or as publishers if their time in service is less than 50 hours. This includes missionaries on leave. It is found that in the United States the number who are not counted as special pioneers in any one month is about the same as the number on the infirm list. In other countries where some special pioneers may be involved in translation work or missionaries may be taking much leave of absence or vacation time, their reports may be handled in the same way, as far as their field service is concerned. Regular and auxiliary pioneers would all be counted as regular or auxiliary pioneers, if reported as such, even if their hours are low.

33. The figure shown for "Congregations registered" should be the total currently registered, not the number reporting. In reporting the number baptized you should report only those baptized within the country, not those baptized in some other country. Thus if any persons from one country go to another country to a convention and are baptized there, that country reports the baptism total. The country from which they came will not make a separate report, as we do not want a duplication of figures. So each country will report its total baptisms within the country regardless of where the candidates came from.

34. Under "Remarks" we appreciate your comments about new peaks in publishers or other highlights of the work or trends in the field. Any remarks that would help us get a better picture of the field or that would be of interest are appreciated. Many branches show convention attendances and the number baptized. Memorial attendance figures and the number of partakers are to be shown for the current and previous years. You should never ask questions under "Remarks" as these should be written separately in a letter. Your Monthly Field Service Report (S-81) is a record of what took place in the field in your country during the month.

35. A separate field report should be submitted for each country under the direction of your branch. There is no need to hold up the reports waiting for the last few reports as these can be included in the report for the following month.

36. The Monthly Field Service Report will probably be the last report that you are able to prepare for mailing. It is helpful if all of the reports for the month are sent in together, not later than the 20th of the following month.

37. In some countries where the mail service is very bad, there may be many late reports from congregations for a month. These are added on to the next month's report, so that we get a true picture of the work done in the country for the year. Be sure any peak shown does not include reports in excess of the total number of congregations for that month.

38. POSTING: The special pioneer, missionary, and circuit and district overseer reports are tabulated and the individual reports are recorded by computer.—See 17:42.

39. The Congregation Reports (S-1) are not posted. They are kept for a month or two and then thrown out, but first the branch will want to be sure that they have received a report from each congregation. Reports S-212 and S-301, the same as missionary home reports, are kept for seven years after posting since they show money requests.

40. BRANCH MONTHLY FINANCIAL PACKAGE: An Excel spreadsheet has been prepared to help branches compile their monthly financial information. One spreadsheet should be prepared each month for each different corporation or association or country office that you are using and for which you are responsible. All financial activity of the branch and all funds held by the branch should be included in this monthly report. Foreign currency holdings and transactions should be combined into the appropriate report. Wherever possible, the activity associated with operating Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls should not be included in this report. However, if legal requirements make it necessary or practical to do so, please contact the Publishing Committee for further direction. Please send the entire spreadsheet(s) to the Publishing Committee via CompuServe by the 20th of the following month.

41. The Monthly Financial Package for cash basis branches has six worksheets labeled: (1) Information, (2) Cash, (3) Supplemental, (4) Investments, (5) Construction, and (6) Accruals. Branches using the accrual basis of accounting will use five worksheets labeled: (1) Information, (2) Accrual, (3) Supplemental, (4) Investments, and (5) Construction. The first two worksheets are needed to complete the A-13 and Special Funds Report (A-46) and should be filled out every month. The “Supplemental” worksheet can be used to explain any significant or unusual transaction that occurs in any general ledger account. (See also 16:12.) The “Investments” worksheet should be filled out any month that the branch has more than the equivalent of US$1,000,000 of cash on hand. Other branches may do so if they wish. The “Construction” worksheet provides information that is needed whenever a branch is involved in a construction project that will be reported to Brooklyn on the Project Financial Report (AO-8). The “Accruals” worksheet is needed to complete the Balance Sheet (A-44) and Operating Statement (A-45) for branches using the cash-basis of accounting. This only needs to be completed once a year at the end of August.

42. Once this information has been entered, please check the reports for completeness and accuracy. When completed, this spreadsheet will contain a Branch Monthly Report of Receipts and Disbursements (A-13) and Branch Special Funds Report (A-46) along with supplemental information. These reports are based on cash transactions and will not include any other activity. Whenever you fill out the accrual information, the spreadsheet will also prepare a Branch Balance Sheet (A-44) and Branch Operating Statement (A-45). These two reports will include all activity, both cash and non-cash, and so will provide a complete picture of the standing of the accounts in the branch. Please write if you need any assistance in completing the spreadsheet.

43. As a reminder, these reports have been designed for internal use by the branch. Whenever you provide financial reports to the local authorities or others outside the organization, the statements will probably have to be adapted to conform to your local legal requirements.

44. If the rate of exchange in your country changes during the month then show the new official rate. You do not have to worry about minor fluctuations during the month, but just use the rate that you have at the end of the month for figuring the entire report. This would customarily be the "official rate." If you feel that the market rate is more accurate than the "official" rate in representing the true value of the dollar, then you may consult the Publishing Committee about computing your figures on that basis. Otherwise, always use the "official" rate.

45. HOME REPORT: One copy of a Home Report (A-24) is sent to the branch office each month for each missionary home. They should be checked very carefully for accuracy and then be retained in the branch files. If the Branch Committee coordinator wishes to make any comments to the home servant regarding the need for further explanation of large expenses or other questions he may have, then he should write to the home servant about such questions.

46. The home servant or the Branch Committee coordinator should mark at the bottom of the Home Report any vacation and leave-of-absence dates pertaining to the missionaries, showing the date of departure and also the date of return for regular vacation time with separate dates for leave-of-absence time. In this way the branch can keep its records straight and we also know what the missionaries are doing and when they are in their assignments.

47. The Branch Committee should be interested in the well-being of the missionaries and how they are doing in reaching their missionary goals as well as any health problems that may confront them. They should want to help them make a success of the work. If a missionary does not meet his goal of hours it would be appropriate for him to make a notation at the bottom of the Home Report as to the reason.

48. THOSE WITH MISSIONARY STATUS NOT IN MISSIONARY HOMES: It is not necessary to get reports on the field activity of Gilead graduates who may be in the regular or auxiliary pioneer service for an annual Home Report. However, you may have some persons in the country with missionary status who are not in missionary homes. They may be in the circuit or district work, special pioneer service, or Bethel service. You will need to receive monthly reports of field activity of such brothers for the year to send in the annual Home Report. Annual reports will not be required for those with missionary status serving in Australia, the British Isles, Canada, branches in Western Europe and the United States except for those in missionary homes.

49. You may have some living in a home with missionary status basis who have not gone through Gilead School. Their report of field activity should also be shown so we know who is in each home and what they are accomplishing when we receive the annual Home Report. The monthly Home Report goes to the branch office. The home servant should be sure to fill in the portion of the report that asks for the number of extra persons who can be conveniently accommodated in the home, also other details requested on the form.

50. SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT ON MISSIONARY HOME LOCATIONS AND PERSONNEL: Each branch having missionary personnel should submit a plain sheet headed Semi-Annual Report on Missionary Home Locations and Personnel. This should be sent each year on June 1 and December 1. For each home please list the following: city where home is located; complete street address; complete mailing address; phone contact (if any); name of home servant; names of all in the home, indicating if with missionary status, special pioneers, or circuit overseers. Also please include a list of missionaries located at the branch office. Be sure to show the name of the branch and the month and year of the report.

51. LITERATURE INVENTORY: Each branch should send in a monthly inventory of literature unless the branch is under the warehouse arrangement and its stock is minimal. A complete inventory of all stock on hand should be sent in monthly by all branches if it is convenient to do this electronically. If not, you should send a monthly inventory listing either one or two languages if you use a large quantity of a second language in your country. For February you should send in a complete inventory of all stock on hand using forms AB-1, AB-2 and AB-2b if you are not sending the information in the electronic format. A monthly Literature Inventory may be filled out by the branches to record the movement of literature in August and any adjustments necessary due to the actual count of literature.—See 12:11.

52. PRODUCTION REPORT: This is not a printed form. You can use a plain sheet of paper to type up the information for this form. Not all branches reproduce material, but those that do should send in a monthly report of the number of bound books, booklets, magazines they print each month. Please list each publication as well as each different magazine and the quantity completed and delivered to the shipping or mailing departments. We need the quantity and the date of the issue with production figures for The Watchtower and Awake! listed separately. Show total figures for books, booklets, The Watchtower, Awake!, and the grand total. The per-item production cost for literature need be shown only on the annual production report.

53. Any Bibles, concordances, and so forth, purchased locally should also be listed on this report. Show separate entries for audiocassettes, videocassettes, compact disks (CDs), and digital video disks (DVDs) produced locally, but do not include these in your printing total.

54. It is helpful to us if printing branches will list Our Kingdom Ministry by language, showing the quantity sent to each country using the language that is being printed, as well as the total quantity for the language, as this helps us keep tabs on the size of the language groups in various countries for which you print Our Kingdom Ministry.

55. Only one copy of the monthly Production Report need be sent with other monthly reports.

Chapter 16

Annual Reports

1. ANNUAL WRITE-UP: This write-up should be sent before the other annual reports, being sent to Brooklyn electronically if possible by August 1. It should be no more than two or three pages typed double-spaced. First give one or two of the highlights of the year, the outstanding events or developments as you see them, and then just one or two outstanding experiences that may have come to hand during the year may be related briefly against the background of the country. Try to make these experiences really live by giving them local color, quoting if possible the words actually used by those involved, at the same time keeping them fairly short and to the point. This material is helpful to us in preparing the Yearbook report, and the outstanding experiences may also be used later during the year by the Writing Department.

2. On the heading of the write-up be sure to show the branch or the country you are writing about as well as the year on which you are reporting. Branches handling several territories do not need to give a separate write-up on each territory if just a few publishers are involved. But we do want write-ups on major countries and any outstanding experiences from throughout your territories. Please be sure to send in this write-up electronically by August 1 ahead of the other annual reports.

3. Do not put anything in these write-ups that you would not like to have printed or that you feel might cause problems for the work in your country if it were printed. Any such matters that you want to inform us about should be covered in separate correspondence by letter, not in a write-up that we might use for publication. This annual write-up should contain new material, not something you have already submitted for The Watchtower or Awake! for publication. Please do not ask questions in your write-up as they may be overlooked. Any questions should be put in a separate letter and preferably not in the letter transmitting the annual reports. In this way they will be given earlier attention. Your annual report should have a numbered transmittal letter with it so we can check to see if we have received everything itemized.

4. ANNUAL REPORT FORMS: These should be sent to Brooklyn no later than September 20, as any delay in getting these reports results in delay in preparing the Yearbook material by the Governing Body.

5. All of your annual reports should be prepared in duplicate. The originals should be sent to the Governing Body electronically by September 20, or earlier if convenient. The branch will keep the second copy for its files.

6. ANNUAL FIELD SERVICE REPORT: The field service report for twelve months ending August 31 is made out on the S-81 form. Just cross out the word "Monthly" and put above it "Annual." This report will have the total of 12 months of field activity. If any of the reports are not for the 12 months of the service year, please indicate the months included in the report.

7. When the report is made out at the end of the service year, the line for publishers should be used to show the average number of special pioneers, regular pioneers, auxiliary pioneers and congregation publishers for the year and the total average number of all preaching for the year. Report average Bible studies also. Any reports for less than 12 months can be divided by the number of months reported. Remember that special pioneer, regular pioneer, auxiliary pioneer, congregation publishers and total publishers must be divided by the same number of months even though some columns may not have the same number of monthly reports. At least one publisher must be shown if a report was received during the year even if the average is less than one half, and the other figures must be adjusted if necessary to add up to the correct total average publisher figure.

8. Under the headings for average hours, magazines, return visits and Bible studies, show monthly averages, not yearly averages, and show only one decimal place for each figure. For example, divide the total pioneers for 12 months into the total pioneer hours for the 12 months and then you will get an accurate average for hours. Do not divide the average pioneers per month into the average hours per month. To get your averages of total Bible studies for the year divide total Bible studies for the year by the total publishers for the year in the respective columns. Do not divide average Bible studies by the average publisher figure.

9. All of the other field service figures on the form should be the totals for the 12 months, or the number of months of the service year for which reports were received for the country on which you are reporting.

10. When preparing all annual reports for the year, please specify only the service year being reported on rather than showing two partial calendar years covered by the service year. You are making out the report at the end of August so show the current year, not the previous year. On the upper part of your Annual Field Service Report (S-81), just under the entry for "All-time peak," show the population for the country and the ratio of publishers to population using your peak publisher figure for the current service year to calculate this. The "All-time peak" figure shown should not be just the highest figure for the service year.

11. Under "Remarks" on the annual report please list the following information showing the figures for the current service year with a separate column of figures for the previous service year: (1) total congregations in the country at the end of the year, (2) total circuits, (3) total districts in the country, (4) peak total publishers and the month of the peak. Also show (5) the peak and the month for special pioneers, (6) regular pioneers, (7) auxiliary pioneers, (8) combined peak for regular and auxiliary pioneers, (9) peak congregation publishers during the year, and (10) average auxiliary pioneers. Show (11) the total immersed during the whole service year, (12) Memorial attendance and (13) the number of partakers. Show (14) the percentage of publisher increase based on average publishers, not peaks, (15) the number of persons disfellowshipped during the year, (16) the number of persons reinstated during the year, (17) the total currently disfellowshipped, (18) total aided to learn to read and write, and the number of months covered in the report if it is not a full year, showing these figures for the current service year and the previous service year, so we will have the necessary information for comparison.

12. ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTS: When completing the Branch Monthly Financial Report for August each year, you should include a list of all branch accounts receivable. Along with any other supplementary information you might provide for that month's activity, please list each branch separately in the "Supplemental" worksheet for August, showing the name of the branch and the corresponding balance. Simply repeat the general ledger account number as often as needed to list all of the branches for which you are carrying a balance. Also, if you are not recording donations of materials, equipment, vehicles, or buildings in your books, please provide the Publishing Committee with a breakdown of the total amounts donated during the previous fiscal year by the respective asset and/or expense account.

13. Along with the regular monthly financial reports, the Branch Committee should review a copy of the Branch Balance Sheet (A-44) and Branch Operating Statement (A-45) at the end of August each year. These reports are automatically prepared by the Branch Monthly Financial Package and can be printed once all of the accrual entries have been made. The Branch Committee may wish to review these reports more frequently. If so, simply update the accrual information in the package before printing these reports.

14. At the end of July each year, the Annual Estimate of Branch Receipts and Disbursements should be completed. A template in the form of a spreadsheet will be sent to all branches in June. Please use this form to return your estimate and adhere closely to any instructions that are provided. The estimate should be mailed to the Publishing Committee along with the regular July reports by the 20th of August each year.

15. Some branches hold property and/or undertake local activities as a branch or in the name of a foreign corporation, such as Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania or International Bible Students Association. Wherever this is the case, the branch office where the society or association is legally incorporated should clarify what, if any, additional reporting requirements there might be to meet legal requirements in their respective countries. Copies of any of such correspondence should always be provided to the Publishing Committee.

16. ANNUAL HOME REPORT: The A-24 Home Report should be used for sending in annual reports on missionary homes. The Home Report should show money on hand at the first of the previous September, the receipts and disbursements for the whole year and the balance on hand at the end of August. The beginning figure must coincide with the amount of money on hand the start of the previous September or whenever the home started and the concluding figure must coincide with the final balance on hand from the August Home Report. It will be the responsibility of the branch in charge of the missionary home to check the figures that come on the annual report and make any corrections necessary, advising the home servant of the changes. This would also be true of any petty cash or other fund allocated by the branch. If the home was not in operation for twelve months, the home servant will total up the report for missionaries during the time the home was open and up through August, the close of the service year, stating at the bottom of the report what months were included. At the bottom of the Home Report the home servant will show in U.S. dollars the average cost of a meal per person and the average monthly cost per missionary.

17. Either on the bottom or the back of the annual Home Report the home servant should show the dates covering vacation time with separate dates covering leave time for any time taken by the missionaries during the year.

18. The figure shown for Bible studies should be an average monthly figure for the individual, to one decimal place.

19. If a missionary serves in more than one home in the country during the year, then his annual field service report would appear in part on two reports. However, we prefer to have the combined report. So when the reports come in from the two homes the Branch Committee coordinator can strike through the report of field activity for the missionary on the home that he moved out of as well as the new home which shows a partial report. Then put a new line on the report for the home where the missionary is now located showing the total report for the entire year.

20. If a missionary transfers from one home to another during the year or leaves missionary service, this should be noted on the bottom of the monthly report as well as on the annual report and even if a person is gone by the end of the service year, we would like to have his service totals shown on the annual Home Report up to the time he terminated his service. Also show the date he left missionary service.

21. On the annual report the total numbers of publishers and pioneers reporting in the congregation(s) with which the missionaries are associated is requested as well as the figure for the same month last year. These should be the figures for the latest month available.

22. An annual report of field service for all persons with missionary status including those who are not in missionary homes should also be tabulated from the monthly reports except for Australia, the British Isles, Canada, branches in Western Europe and the United States and submitted on a Home Report form (A-24). It should include information on the number of years in foreign service and the number brought to the point of dedication and publishing. All those with missionary status still in special full-time service, not including regular or auxiliary pioneers, should be listed with their field totals for the year, including Bethel family members who have missionary status.—See 15:48.

23. On the top right of the annual Home Report please show the population of the city in which the home is located, the number of publishers in the city, and the ratio of publishers to population.

24. DISTRIBUTION REPORT: At the close of the service year fill out the Distribution Report on forms AB-9 and AB-9b. They are based on your monthly stock inventory forms (AB-2). During the year following, please use this Distribution Report to watch movement of stock and to avoid over-ordering literature. The "Bal. on Hand" figures on Distribution Report forms AB-9 and AB-9b should reflect the actual count of literature and other items listed. The Distribution Report is not required from branches under the warehouse arrangement with minimal stocks of literature. However, if there are items of literature in stock in excess of what will be needed for one year it would be appropriate for the branch to submit the annual Distribution Report for such items with a copy to the warehouse branch. Also consider any special campaign thought appropriate to move out such excess stock whether it is at the branch or in the congregations.

25. ANNUAL PRODUCTION REPORT: At the end of the year total the monthly production reports, showing the total number of bound books, the total number of booklets, not distinguishing titles or languages; and the total number of magazines for The Watchtower and Awake! for each language. Also be sure to list any Bibles or concordances that are purchased from outside firms for branch distribution. Please list as separate figures audiocassettes and videocassettes produced locally by your branch as well as CDs. These figures should not be included with your printing totals.

26. On your annual production report please show the current per-item production cost in U.S. currency for any books, booklets, magazines, audiocassettes, videocassettes, and CDs produced locally.

27. VOLUNTEER LISTINGS: We need separate listings of volunteers as follows: (1) Bethel elders, (2) complete listing of Bethel family volunteers, (3) circuit and district overseers, listing also their wives if married, (4) international servants, (5) Kingdom Hall construction servants. Show volunteers serving as of August 31.

28. These listings should be formatted for printing on 8-1/2 by 11-inch sheets of paper.

29. On each listing set out the full name of each individual. After the name show in columns: volunteer number, date of birth, baptism date, male or female, single or married, anointed or other sheep, total number of years in full-time service, and specifically show the present service assignment in the branch.

30. Please list the individuals in alphabetical order. Show the date and branch name at the top of each page. In order to have a complete listing of the worldwide Bethel family, please show all those approved by the Personnel Committee to be Bethel family members, including those serving at a translation center or Country Committee office. The name of the country should be listed in the heading for those serving away from the branch office.

31. The listings for circuit and district overseers should show each group separately, but on the same page.

32. ANNUAL BRANCH REPORT OF ACTIVITIES AND FINANCIAL STATUS (A-3): On this form you will fill in the information requested from the various annual reports you have made up. It is the same information that is asked for on the yearly report form (A-1), so for further information on how to fill it in, please see the remarks which follow.

33. It is good to look over your A-1 form and if there are any details that have been changed on that form then it would be helpful to note these under "Remarks" on the A-3 form, so that we can keep our copy in Brooklyn up to date and accurate with the same information you show on your copy. For any countries where the work is under ban or where it is inadvisable for us to publicize the work, under "Remarks" please type "Inadvisable to publish figures. Please list in 'Other Countries' section of the chart."

34. YEARLY REPORT (A-1): After the annual reports have been acknowledged and found to be in order, the figures that appear on the A-3 form should be accurately posted on your A-1 form. The A-1 form is the most complete single record of branch activity and should be kept neat and clean and should be available for zone overseers who come to serve your branch. The Branch Committee should take an interest in developments as shown on this report, and the coordinator will do well to consult it periodically in his work, as it contains helpful information regarding the growth of the work. Both sides of the form should be kept up-to-date.

35. Under the heading, "Printing Done Commercially or By Branch" (A-3), include material printed by commercial firms for the branch such as books and magazines as well as items such as Bibles and concordances whether used locally or shipped to other branches.

36. On the A-1 form for "All Other Printing" show the total of cassettes and CDs as shown on the A-3 form.

37. Since some adjustments have been made on the A-3 form, the columns on your A-1 form should be made to coincide with the A-3 forms, so that all of the figures will be shown.

38. COST OF LIVING CHART (A-40): Each branch is provided with a Cost of Living Chart for countries under its jurisdiction. There is no need to fill out the Cost of Living Chart for small countries where there are no special pioneers as the Chart is used to give some gauge as to the need for reimbursements. Each year in June the branch will fill in the requested information on its copy of the chart.

39. Then whenever suggestions are made for changing reimbursements for special full-time servants, this Chart can be consulted to see how much the cost of living has actually increased. If there seems to be some need to adjust the reimbursements during the year, and there has been a considerable increase, branches should submit updated figures with the request for comparison with the June figures previously submitted on the Cost of Living form.

Chapter 17

Pioneers

1. Jehovah's Witnesses who are accepted for pioneer work should be good congregation publishers before ever being put on the pioneer list. A pioneer should be a respectable person, modest and clean in body and spirit, one who uses the spirit of a sound mind and manifests the fruitage of God's spirit in speech and conduct. He should be able to give a good presentation of the truth in the field service. Pioneer service is an honored privilege, and those who serve as pioneers should be diligent workers and should have a fine reputation in all respects. It is important that the special, regular and auxiliary pioneer ranks not be built up with just numbers, but, rather, with persons who have God's spirit and the spirit of a sound mind.

2. THE PIONEER'S ROLE: When someone is appointed as a regular pioneer, special pioneer or missionary, it does not put him in a higher position than one who is a congregation publisher. He should cooperate closely with the local body of elders and should also appreciate the importance of showing active concern for others in the congregation. He should be grateful that he can arrange his personal affairs to be in the full-time service, but there is no reason for him to have a high-minded or superior attitude.

3. If a pioneer is appointed to serve as an elder or a ministerial servant, it would be done only because of the recommendation on the part of the local body of elders and the circuit overseer that he meets all of the Scriptural qualifications.

4. PIONEER REQUIREMENTS: It is expected that regular pioneers will devote an average of 70 hours a month to field service with a total of 840 hours for an entire year. Those who enroll at a time other than at the beginning of the service year are required to report a share of the 840 hours proportionate to the number of months they served in the service year; 700 hours if they served ten months, etc. Pioneers who are regular Bethel commuters have a reduced requirement of 780 hours per year. This will allow time for a vacation and to care for personal needs.

5. Pioneers should be workers and they are expected to accomplish things in the field. Their chief interest should be the Kingdom-witnessing and disciple-making work, being able to use the Bible effectively at the doors, making return visits on those who show interest, starting and conducting home Bible studies, helping people to learn the truth and getting them into the congregational arrangement. Those who lack such ability or experience should be encouraged to serve as auxiliary pioneers for a few months in order to qualify prior to taking up regular pioneer service.

6. PROCEDURE FOR ENROLLING PIONEERS: All information called for on the Application for Regular Pioneer Service (S-205) should be supplied. If necessary, a slip (S-215) is sent asking for missing information. The applicants should meet the requirements outlined in the publications of the organization.

7. The applicant's field service averages for the last six months should be carefully considered. If only a few hours are averaged per month and the activity is otherwise quite limited, the application should be rejected. If the applicant is highly recommended, however, and there are extenuating circumstances, exceptions can be made. If there is no basis for making an exception, a letter should be sent to the congregation service committee along with the application form, giving the reason why the application is rejected and recommending the auxiliary pioneer service for the applicant for four to six months in order to give him opportunity to build up his field activity and otherwise qualify for the regular pioneer service.

8. If the elders do not feel that a person qualifies to serve as a regular pioneer, they can discuss matters with him, letting him know what he needs to work on for improvement so as to qualify in the future. In such a case, the application would not be sent to the branch.

9. Persons who have been reproved and put under any restrictions by a judicial committee would not qualify for pioneer service privileges until a minimum of one year has passed since the reproof and all restrictions have been removed. A person who was disfellowshipped previously would not be considered for any pioneer service until a minimum of one year after reinstatement and after all restrictions following reinstatement are lifted. Persons previously removed from the pioneer list due to judicial action will be considered for enrollment only after a period of at least one year from the date of their removal.

10. If the Application for Regular Pioneer Service is approved, make out an appointment letter (S-202) and an envelope. (Note: After each operation has been completed in connection with handling an application, the symbol for such operation should be checked off on the application in the box "For Office Use Only.")

11. The appointment letter (S-202) and the letter of introduction (S-236) are sent to the congregation along with a copy of the annual encouragement letter (S-221a) if any remain in stock. Also, a blank Application for Regular Pioneer Service (S-205) should be included.

12. The Application for Regular Pioneer Service will become the office record for the new pioneer. A Volunteer Card (S-217) will not be made for regular or auxiliary pioneers. If there are any previous applications in the inactive file for the applicant, they should stay in the inactive file. If the pioneer records are kept in a computer, the application should be filed numerically according to the Pioneer Identification Number (PIN). The new application should have some indication that there was previous full-time service. After the new appointment letter has been mailed to the congregation, if the applicant pioneered before, his full-time service history should be compiled and entered in the computer. Whenever a regular pioneer leaves full-time service, the discontinuation date should be entered in the computer to the right of the appointment date. Any correspondence carried on with regular pioneers can be filed in the office file of the congregation to which the pioneer is assigned or filed alphabetically in a separate file.

13. Whenever a person is transferred to the special pioneer, circuit or district work, or goes to Bethel or Gilead, if a Volunteer Card (S-217) is not in the file, one should be filled out. Any previous full-time service seniority should be entered in the lower left-hand section of the Volunteer Card in addition to the date of entry into special full-time service. When the individual leaves special full-time service, show the date and reason on the lower right-hand section of the Volunteer Card.

14. When a regular pioneer transfers to another congregation, the secretary should send the pioneer's appointment letter (S–202) to the new congregation along with a letter of introduction and his Congregation's Publisher Record cards. The secretary of the new congregation should then fill out the "CHANGE OF CONGREGATION" section of the pioneer's appointment letter and submit it to the branch. After we have adjusted our records, a revised appointment letter will be sent to the new congregation. If the pioneer moves to another country, the appointment letter should be returned to the branch with a letter of explanation.

15. A pioneer assigned to work isolated territory receives an Isolated Territory Assignment (S-63). Only one regular pioneer would be given a certain isolated territory assignment. If more than one pioneer will be working in the same isolated assignment, the other pioneers are assigned by a written letter from the office to work with the one holding the territory. The one holding the territory is responsible to make the necessary reports to the office on the progress being made in the assignment.

16. PIONEER CHECKUP: Once a year, generally at the beginning of the service year, a checkup to review their field service activity for the service year just ended is made by the bodies of elders on all regular pioneers. If any pioneers have fallen considerably below the pioneer requirement, the elders should meet with such pioneers to see if improvements can be made, or if their removal should be recommended. If after talking with the pioneer it is determined that the problem is of a temporary nature, matters need not be taken beyond the giving of encouragement and helpful suggestions. Should the elders decide that the problem is not of short duration and repeated efforts have been made to help the pioneer with little success, they should kindly explain to the pioneer that he is being recommended for deletion. The elders will return the Pioneer Appointment Letter (S–202) to the branch, giving the date and reason for the pioneer's deletion. If the circuit overseer will be visiting in a few weeks, the elders may decide to delay returning the S–202 form for his insight if the matter is complicated.

17. Credit should be given to pioneers who attended the Pioneer Service School or Kingdom Ministry School during the year or who were called in by the branch to do pre- or post-convention work. Pioneers who attended the Pioneer Service School will be given a credit of 40 hours. Pioneer elders who attended the Kingdom Ministry School will be given a credit of 10 hours. Those doing convention work are given credit to the extent that the total for the month (for hours in field service plus time spent in convention work) does not exceed the monthly requirement. Thus, if for a particular month 40 hours are reported in field service and 60 hours in pre- or post-convention work, only 30 of the hours spent in convention work would be credited toward meeting the 70-hour requirement for that month.

18. Each pioneer will receive a copy of the annual encouragement letter (S-221a). Congregations that have no pioneers should nevertheless be sent the S-201 letter to the body of elders, the S-221a letter, and the outline for the meeting that elders will conduct with the pioneers, so the elders will be alert to ways they can encourage pioneering.

19. Once a year, the appropriate number of letters (S-221a) is counted out for the total pioneers listed, along with one copy of this letter for the elders, an S-201 letter, and a copy of the outline. These letters may be sent in an envelope as a special mailing or included in the monthly congregation statement mail.

20. CERTIFICATE FOR PIONEER MINISTER: A person on the regular or special pioneer list for at least three months may be sent, on request only, a certificate stating that he is a pioneer minister if he has met or exceeded the pioneer requirements. If a person is not doing well in meeting the requirements, he will not be given a certificate. If a pioneer requests a certificate, he should clearly state why he is making the request. His letter should be signed by the service committee of his congregation and they should provide a record of his field service activity with their letter. Certificates are not issued merely because one serves as a regular or special pioneer. Rather, a certificate is issued only when there is a specific need for it. Certificates should be signed by the Branch Committee coordinator, or someone else having authority to do so. It may be notarized if required.

21. Auxiliary pioneers will not be sent a pioneer certificate. Such a certificate is available, only upon request and where the need exists, for regular and special pioneers or for circuit and district overseers. A Certificate for Ordained Minister may be requested, if it is needed for some good reason, for those who are ministerial servants or elders.

22. PROCEDURE FOR REMOVING PIONEERS: If a regular pioneer asks to be removed from the pioneer list, and you do not feel that unusual circumstances might make it advisable to encourage him to stay on the pioneer list, then his removal could be processed and he could reapply after six months. The application should be taken from the active file and the effective date of the deletion entered in the box marked "For Office Use Only." If the records are kept in a computer, the date and reason for discontinuing are entered and the application remains in the numerical file. The S-202 form can then be filed in the congregation temporary file. Some branches may find it more convenient to keep the S-202 forms alphabetically by month in a separate file for one year before discarding them. They may be kept longer if it is deemed necessary.

23. Generally the elders can announce such a deletion immediately. However, if the removal is initiated by the elders and the pioneer is not in agreement with his being deleted, a letter from the pioneer and one from the elders, explaining the situation, should accompany the S-202 form.

24. In such case an announcement should not be made to the congregation before the branch office has had an opportunity to review the matter. The elders and the pioneer should be informed of the final decision by the branch.

25. If a pioneer is being removed from the pioneer list because of improper conduct, incompetence for one reason or another, or has been reproved with restrictions of privileges applied by the judicial committee, this should also be briefly noted on the application. In some cases correspondence should be marked "DO NOT DESTROY" and then be preserved indefinitely. Where there is correspondence being retained in the files on an indefinite basis, this should be indicated on the application or Volunteer Card (S-217) with a notation "DND" (for "Do Not Destroy"). This notation will help in preventing undesirables from reentering the pioneer service if they move to another congregation that does not know their background, etc. Even though a person may qualify for pioneer service later on, it is good to have this information in the records.

26. Some lazy persons may take up pioneer work because they think people will then take care of them. Such type of people should be removed from the pioneer ranks. If an individual does not have a good recommendation, the body of elders, after talking with the pioneer and trying to help him but without results, should write a factual letter to the branch, recommending the pioneer's removal. The pioneer field is not a place for people trying to avoid work. The reason for arranging the pioneer service is to help people put in more time preaching the good news of the Kingdom.

27. INFIRM PIONEERS: Pioneers who have been exemplary and have served for at least 15 full years and who are over 50 years of age, but who are unable to meet the hour requirement because of infirmity, and who desire to remain on the list, may be permitted to do so if they make such a request and the elders give them a good recommendation. Those placed on the infirm pioneer list should be encouraged to do as much as they can in field service, even though they may not be able to meet the requirement of hours. The infirm arrangement is not a provision for an individual to take care of his sick relatives, do added secular work, etc. Rather, it is an arrangement that enables one who is advanced in years and/or with infirmities who is no longer able to meet the hour requirement to continue as a pioneer.

28. Elderly persons entering the pioneer service do not come under this infirm list. Some individuals enter the pioneer service when they are sixty or seventy years of age. If they do, they are expected to meet requirements or transfer to the publisher ranks. The infirm pioneer list is kept only for persons who have been pioneering for a good portion of their lives, at least 15 years. Just because a person is old is no reason to put him on the infirm list. If an older pioneer who develops health problems is willing to transfer to the publisher ranks, there is no need to encourage the individual to become an infirm pioneer. Rather, the infirm list is a provision only for those who desire to remain on the pioneer list, feeling they would be taking a backward step if they adjusted to the publisher ranks, or who have had a heartfelt desire to serve always as regular pioneers.

29. OBTAINING LITERATURE: All pioneers should get their literature supplies from the congregation with which they associate. Those who may be assigned to work in isolated territory as temporary special pioneers may request the literature they will need for that service through the congregation they are associated with even though they may want it delivered to another location for convenience in working the territory. Only one in the group should make arrangements for literature supplies to work the isolated territory. Literature that may remain after working the isolated territory may be returned to their home congregation or in some cases left with the congregation near the territory if it can be conveniently used by that congregation.

30. When the organization releases a new publication at a convention, branches should follow the letter dealing with such releases when it comes to distribution. The organization will also advise branches on ordering such publications.

31. FIELD SERVICE REPORTS FROM PIONEERS: Regular and auxiliary pioneers report their field service to the congregation on the S-4 form. If a pioneer has put in only a few hours in a particular month, he would still be counted as a pioneer publisher. (Certainly he should try to spend some time in service, otherwise he would become an irregular publisher.) He may make the time up later in the year so the report will average out. If sickness or other extenuating circumstances caused the shortage of hours and it would be hard to make up the time later, the body of elders may grant special consideration in such cases. An isolated pioneer in such circumstance may write directly to the branch. Isolated pioneers send their reports directly to the branch each month on the S-4 form. They show their name and the words “isolated pioneer” on the front of the form. They should retain a copy for their own file.

32. AUXILIARY PIONEERS: Branches should exhort publishers whose circumstances permit to share in auxiliary pioneer work. To build up this interest they can follow the articles in Our Kingdom Ministry as published in Brooklyn. The applications for auxiliary pioneer service (S-205b) should be submitted to the presiding overseer for approval by the congregation’s service committee, and these applications are retained in the congregation file.

33. The requirements for auxiliary pioneer service are not as extensive as for regular pioneers, only 50 hours per month instead of 70.

34. SPECIAL PIONEERS: From pioneer ranks we usually find individuals who are willing to take up special pioneer assignments in isolated territories or assist congregations needing help. The Branch Committee should be keenly interested in opening up new territories in the branch territory. In selecting special pioneers, give preference to those who are capable of organizing small groups into congregations. Select pioneers whose reports prove that they are effective in developing interest and conducting productive Bible studies. A special pioneer does not have to be a highly educated individual, but he needs to have the fruits of the spirit, humility, determination, endurance and a good knowledge of the truth. He needs to be one who is convincing and can mix well with people. Under all circumstances he should be an exemplary disciple of Christ Jesus, not an odd person or a fanatic. If you have congregation publishers that meet the above requirements and they are willing to go wherever they are assigned as special pioneers, then they can be approached as to their availability.

35. If a branch has territory where there is one publisher for every 1,000 inhabitants, generally special pioneer help would not be needed. But there may be provinces or some towns that do not have that ratio. So we might consider special pioneers for a territory that has only one publisher for every 3,000 inhabitants or more, but generally not less than this, unless there are interested persons in some scattered sections that should be built up and trained by the special pioneer. Or, there may be congregations that are doing well in covering their territory but a well-qualified brother is needed as an elder and the need cannot be filled in any other way.

36. If your branch sees a need to add special pioneers to the list from time to time, you may send your request to the Service Committee and it will be considered with the Publishing Committee. Please state the number you wish to add when qualified ones become available and why additional special pioneers are needed.

37. Care should be exercised in appointing special pioneers. The primary purpose behind this arrangement is to add impetus to the preaching of the good news in areas where little is being done. Increasing economic pressures make it difficult for special pioneers to continue. Also, the rigorous schedule requires stamina and good health. In isolated areas, upbuilding association may be limited. Applicants should be encouraged to view themselves and their circumstances realistically. If good judgment confirms that they really are not in position to serve with joy and effectiveness, it would be better for them to stay in the regular pioneer service where they are free to adjust their activities according to their own circumstances. Of those that do apply, consideration can be given to those who have demonstrated a genuine interest in helping people, an ability to get results and a determination to stick with an assignment when things are difficult. It is best not to enroll individuals with limited ability, health problems, or those motivated by a spirit of adventure, or by the prospect of financial income.

38. Often special pioneers are assigned to work with congregations. Unless there are unusual circumstances, they will ordinarily be assigned in pairs. Jesus gave assignments to his disciples in this way. (Luke 10:1) There are definite advantages in having a close companion to work with. (Eccl. 4:9-12) For that reason, married couples often prove to be best suited for this type of assignment. In cases where sisters are assigned as partners or brothers are put together as a team, consideration should be given to the compatibility of their personalities, their age differences and backgrounds. If a conflict in personalities persists despite encouragement over a period of time, it would be better to reassign these individuals with other specials with whom they are more compatible.

39. ENROLLING SPECIAL PIONEERS: When one is recommended for special pioneer service by the elders of the congregation or the circuit overseer and reports on field activity obtained from the elders indicate he is qualified, he can be sent a letter explaining arrangements and requirements for special pioneers and a Questionnaire for Prospective Special Pioneer (S-208). Upon receipt, the questionnaire is carefully checked. If the individual is qualified but is not going to be given an assignment, he can be told that his application is being placed in the files to be considered along with others when openings occur in the future. When the individual is assigned to serve as a special pioneer, a personal letter is written, making the assignment. A copy of the assignment letter can be provided to the elders of the congregation he will be working with and also the circuit overseer. A file folder should be made and the copy of the assignment letter is placed in it. If it does not already exist, a Volunteer Card (S-217) should be made out, and a notation is made of the date of appointment as a special pioneer. A record should also be kept of their monthly field service.

40. Special pioneers and missionaries are required to put in 140 hours a month. Sisters who are 40 years of age or older have a requirement of 130 hours a month. If faithful in their service month by month, the individuals receive a reimbursement from the branch office. This reimbursement varies in different countries. The reimbursement for each country is established by the Publishing Committee of the Governing Body, based on recommendations submitted by the branches. (See 16:38, 39) Brothers on Service Desks dealing with special pioneers should get a listing of all in that service early in March and again at the close of the service year to see if they are really accomplishing the service to which they are assigned. If not, it may be appropriate to delete some unless they have been a long time in that service or are infirm, in which case special consideration might be shown. If some have more than two children and are not in a good position to support their families and accomplish the work they have been assigned, it often is appropriate to take them off the list so they can do justice to their family and support them appropriately.

41. In addition to the regular monthly reimbursement, special pioneers may request a travel and housing reimbursement if approved for your territory by the Publishing Committee. The housing reimbursement may be given to special pioneers according to the actual amount they pay for housing and utilities up to the maximum shown on the Record of Reimbursements form (A-29). Any exception for high-rent areas should be referred to the Publishing Committee. Special pioneers on approved emergency leave for more than a month may receive the regular and rent reimbursement due them if requested, also the travel reimbursement. Gilead graduate circuit overseers and missionaries taking leave of absence and vacation continue to receive their regular reimbursements.—See 8:25.

42. SPECIAL PIONEER REPORT: On receipt of the special pioneer reports (S-212), they are placed in alphabetical order according to the names of the individuals. Each report is carefully checked. Since the S-216 Pioneer Eight-Year Office Record form has been discontinued, branches that have the Branch Administration computer program can use the computer to keep this record. If a branch does not have this available, they may make up their own record system to keep track of vacation time, PEA credits, and so forth.–Note 7:32 in regard to keeping track of special pioneer field service activity.

43. SICKNESS: If for unavoidable reason a special pioneer fails to meet the hour requirement, he may request all or part of the reimbursement, stating the reason why he was unable to meet the hour requirement. The branch office can determine if a full or partial reimbursement should be sent in view of the circumstances.

44. Usually special pioneers who are ill, limited in field service due to storms, floods, and so forth, will be sent the reimbursement. A letter of encouragement may be sent. After posting the field service activity, the S-212 forms are filed by month and kept for seven years, or as long as required by the Statute of Limitations in your country.

45. Special pioneers who are ill will be given reimbursements and Personal Expense Account credits, even if the illness requires them to be out of their assignments, as long as they continue on the special pioneer list. If one is not well physically after six months of illness, he may have to leave the missionary or special pioneer work, particularly if he has not been in special service (Bethel, circuit and district, special pioneer and missionary) for a minimum of 15 years. The Branch Committee should consider each case. Those who have been in such special service for 15 years can be given more consideration as the individual circumstances may require and their hour requirement could probably be lowered if necessary. Personal Expense Accounts will be paid and the account closed if there is a break of more than three months in one's record of continuous service.—See 8:25; also 2:72, 79.

46. If a special pioneer consistently falls short of his requirements, just taking off from his assignment for no valid reason or if he takes time off to engage in secular work or other pursuits, it would be appropriate to write him about the matter. (See 17:40) Usually reimbursements and the PEA credits are given regardless of the time spent in the service month by month by special pioneers. Thus branches usually can determine the credits to be given by consulting their file showing when individuals were enrolled as special pioneers. However, if someone in special full-time service takes a month or more off to do secular work, the individual would not be entitled to receive his monthly reimbursement or PEA credit even if he or she is released from the vow of poverty during that period. Any questions on this can be determined by the Branch Committee or someone assigned by the committee to handle such matters.

47. CONTINUOUS SERVICE: Where an individual has had to break his record of continuous service, he will count up the number of days that he was in full-time service and count the total as a continuous service record no matter how long he was out of such service. The number of complete years of full-time service, as outlined above, will be counted toward vacations and the Personal Expense Account.—See also Bethel Family, 2:42-44.

48. PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNT: At the beginning of each calendar year, the amount established by the Publishing Committee will be credited to the account of the person in special full-time service according to the number of years he has spent in full-time service. Time spent as a regular pioneer will count toward Personal Expense Account credits.—See 2:43, 44.

49. Personal expense account credits will be paid and the account closed if one leaves the list of those in special service for a period of more than three months.—See "Personal Expense Account," 2:72-80 for additional details, also Pioneers, 17:45-48.

50. VACATION ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPECIAL PIONEERS: All those who enter the special pioneer work are entitled to two weeks' vacation each year for the first two years of their full-time service. (A week here means any seven consecutive calendar days.) Following those first two years he will receive extra days of vacation which will be available to him after August 31 of each service year. For example, those who sometime during the service year complete two years in full-time service, including service in regular, special, or missionary service, will qualify for one extra day of vacation after August 31 of that service year. Those who pass the four-year mark sometime during the service year qualify for two extra days of vacation after August 31 of that service year. (A service year runs from September 1 through August 31 of the next calendar year.) This means that they will be credited for two days in addition to their regular two weeks' vacation as of September 1 of the new service year. The chart below sets out the information:

Full-time Service		Extra Vacation Days for Special Pioneers
After	2 years	1	extra day
After	4 years	2	extra days
After	6 years	3	extra days
After	8 years	4	extra days
After	10 years	5	extra days
After	12 years	* 7	extra days
After	14 years	8	extra days
After	16 years	9	extra days
After	18 years	10	extra days
After	20 years	11	extra days
After	22 years	12	extra days
After	24 years	13	extra days
After	26 years	14	extra days
After	28 years	15	extra days
After	30 years	16	extra days
After	32 years	* 18	extra days
After	34 years	19	extra days
After	36 years	20	extra days

 One extra day given

51. There will be no additional accumulation of time after 36 years of full-time service. This means that the maximum of vacation time would be two weeks plus 20 days.

52. VACATION ARRANGEMENTS FOR MISSIONARIES: All those in missionary service are given two weeks of vacation time (14 days including Saturday and Sunday) each service year on September 1. Newly graduated Gilead missionaries are credited with two weeks of vacation time on the day of their graduation for the current service year. An additional six days of vacation time is given to missionaries over a period of twelve years. One extra vacation day is credited on September 1 for every two years of missionary service, making a total of 20 days of vacation. The following chart will show how such time is accumulated, one extra day for each two years of missionary service, credited September 1, each year:

Years in Missionary Service		Extra Vacation Days for Missionaries
After	2 years	1	extra day
After	4 years	2	extra days
After	6 years	3	extra days
After	8 years	4	extra days
After	10 years	5	extra days
After	12 years	6	extra days

53. LEAVE OF ABSENCE FOR MISSIONARIES: In addition to vacation time missionaries also are granted two weeks or 14 days (including Saturdays and Sundays) for leave of absence. This time is credited to the missionary on the anniversary date of entry into the country to which the missionary is assigned. The leave of absence time may be used after three years of missionary service. After three years, the accrued leave of absence time may be used each year when credited. Combined with the vacation time, the full amount of time a missionary receives each year after twelve years in missionary service comes to 34 days (14 days of vacation + 6 extra days of vacation + 14 days of leave of absence). There is no further accumulation of vacation or leave of absence time for missionaries beyond the extra vacation time granted after 12 years in missionary service.—See 8:33.

54. In cases where an individual has been in and out of full-time service activities as a regular pioneer, special pioneer, missionary, circuit or district overseer or Bethel member, the number of days he served in full-time service will be counted. Auxiliary pioneer activity does not count.

55. FIRST INCOMPLETE SERVICE YEAR IN SPECIAL PIONEER SERVICE: When one first enters special pioneer service and has not previously been in full-time service which would qualify him for vacation, then he will receive a credit of one vacation day for each full calendar month that he or she has worked. Partial months which one has worked would not count for vacation time. For example, if someone started special pioneer work January 1, 2003, then after August 31, 2003, he would have eight days of vacation time available to use from the 2003 service year. On September 1, 2003, he would be credited with two weeks (14 days) of vacation time for the 2004 service year.

56. SCHEDULING MISSIONARY AND SPECIAL PIONEER VACATIONS: It is up to the missionaries and special pioneers to schedule their vacation time as they wish during the service year. Many find it advantageous to take their vacation time in connection with a convention or toward the end of the service year. However, it is up to each one to schedule his vacation as he wishes according to the time available during the service year.

57. Missionaries and special pioneers who take two weeks of vacation in one month are expected to report at least half the normal requirement of hours of field service. If one is eligible for additional days of vacation time, then when such days are used, whether in connection with the two weeks' vacation or otherwise, he will be allowed to deduct five hours of field service from his total field service time for the month for each vacation day used and still receive his reimbursement. Of course, missionaries and special pioneers who are eligible for four weeks of vacation and who take all of this time in one month will want to report some field service time so as to continue regular in field service. For a month when one takes some vacation time he should mention the dates of his vacation and the number of days used on the monthly report form under "remarks concerning report" or at the bottom of the form.

58. Missionaries and special pioneers will receive a number of days off for the yearly district convention (or international convention) in addition to their regular vacation. Five hours are allowed for each district or international convention day. Thus, if attending a four-day district convention, one would have to report only 120 hours to receive the reimbursement for that month. This time allowance for attending a district or international convention is granted in connection with only one convention a year. The time allowance does not apply to circuit assemblies. For the month when one attends a district or international convention, this should be stated on the report form for the month under "remarks concerning report."

59. From time to time there may be some personal matters that those who are special pioneers or missionaries may wish to attend to other than when they are on their vacation. In such a case they may leave their assignment for one or two days without taking vacation time. Of course, they would still need to meet the normal hour requirement. If more than two consecutive days are involved, then vacation time would need to be used. It is not the intention to add such days to regular vacation time, but they may be taken at times other than when one is on vacation.

60. EMERGENCIES: If there are extenuating circumstances or personal problems which make it necessary for one in the full-time service to be away from his assignment for more than the normal vacation time, including extra accumulated days under this new arrangement, it would be appropriate for him to correspond with the branch office for his country and explain the problem. If it is just a matter of a few more weeks that he would be away, or if he has had a serious surgical operation and needs a period of recovery, or a serious automobile accident has occurred, or some other problem, it would be good to set out in the letter to the branch what the situation is and how much extra time it appears will be needed.

61. In many cases it may be possible to work out some arrangement so that one will be able to continue in full-time service and still have some vacation time available to use later. On the other hand, if one would have to be away for many months, then it would be practical to terminate full-time service and make application again when the problem has been cleared up. Certainly it will not hurt to bring the problem to the attention of the branch office and in some instances arrangements might be made to allow one to continue on the full-time list until he is able to resume his assigned work. Each individual case will be considered separately according to the circumstances that exist at the time that an emergency occurs.

62. CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT OVERSEERS: Some who are in circuit or district work may wonder how they will work out vacation arrangements where a portion of a week may be involved. Where there are four days remaining in a week, a congregation could be scheduled for an abbreviated visit. Where less time is available, congregations may be visited that need some assistance or where there are problems, without considering it to be a regular visit, due to the shortness of time, unless arrangements are made to spend more than a week with the congregation. Circuit overseers may choose to visit a group of special pioneers or an isolated group in their circuit for the remainder of the week after they have taken their accumulated vacation time. If a congregation is not going to be served, it would be appropriate for those who are in the circuit work to notify the office well in advance as to what they feel should be done on those days for the advancement of the Kingdom work. If the branch office finds that there is a greater need in a different area than suggested by the visiting overseer, then the branch office will make some other suggestion. District overseers who will have extra vacation days for a part of a week should let the branch know, so that they may be assigned something to do for the balance of the week. They may be assigned by the office to serve a congregation for several days or to serve a circuit assembly on the weekend. Circuit and district overseers should report the number of working days used and the dates covered on the Monthly Report form (S-301).

63. It is helpful when circuit and district overseers take all or part of their vacation after completing post-convention work following the summer district conventions. However, it is not necessary that they take vacation time at this period. If they wish to return immediately to their usual schedule of serving congregations or assemblies, they may do so and take their vacation at some other time. It is helpful when circuit and district overseers take a minimum of one week of vacation time when scheduling their vacations.

64. It would be very much appreciated by the branch office if district overseers could advise the office three months or more in advance, about their vacation plans, so the office can properly schedule circuit assemblies for them.

65. SHARING VACATION TIME: Married persons may not have been in the service the same length of time. For example, one special pioneer or missionary may have more vacation time due than his mate. So a married person is permitted to share his vacation time with his mate if he wishes to do so. Thus, if the man has three weeks' vacation due him and his wife only two weeks, he may give his wife half of the third week and notification of this would be made to the branch. Additional days allowed under the vacation arrangement also may be shared in this way.

66. SAVING VACATION TIME: If someone wishes to carry over vacation time from one service year to the next and then use the available time to take a longer vacation, he may do so. Sometimes brothers have long trips they may want to take and when spending the funds to travel that distance they would like to have a longer vacation period. So one may save the accumulated time to use later.

67. INFIRM SPECIAL PIONEERS: Recommendations to put special pioneers on the infirm list who are 50 years of age or older, and who have spent 15 full years or more in full-time service, can be taken up with the Service Committee of the Governing Body. State all of the facts when you make your recommendation as to what should be done in the future in view of the many years spent in full-time service.

68. Those who have been approved for consideration as infirm special pioneers, and are now serving as such, may receive not only the regular reimbursements, but also may be given credits annually on the Personal Expense Accounts. Some of them may be receiving pension payments and not have need to withdraw funds from the Personal Expense Account, but in appreciation of their years of faithful service we wish to make this arrangement available to them for any time of need.

69. CIRCUIT OVERSEER VISITS: All special pioneers should be visited regularly by the circuit overseer. If they are in isolated assignments not connected with a congregation, a day or two or even a full week will be spent with them. Usually on the first visit of each service year the circuit overseer will submit to the branch office a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on each special pioneer. After other visits during that year, the circuit overseer should write a brief letter commenting on the overall activity and progress of each special pioneer whenever there is a need. The branch office will write a letter addressed to all special pioneers once a year to give encouragement and recommend objectives. Letters may be written to individual special pioneers as the need exists.—See 4:67,68.

70. TERRITORY COVERAGE: The circuit overseer should advise the branch office when special pioneers are no longer required in the territory. Also, he can submit recommendations in regard to where special pioneers are needed to get the work done. In assigning specials, the primary consideration is the making of disciples in territory where little has yet been accomplished. We are mainly interested in having them make known the good news in the territory rather than becoming overly involved in caring for congregational problems. Obviously, though, if a brother is an elder, his presence and activity will be an influence for good.

71. From time to time the branch office should analyze its territory to determine where the need is greatest. If there are certain areas that need more attention, it would be preferable to arrange for some nearby congregations to assume the responsibility for them, if possible. If, for some reason that is not practical, then regular pioneers and publishers interested in serving where the need is greater can be encouraged to move there. If necessary, temporary special pioneers can be enrolled periodically to care for territory needing attention, whether unassigned territory or territory not worked for more than a year that is assigned to a congregation. If this will not be sufficient to care for the need, then consideration can be given to assigning special pioneers there on a permanent basis.

72. In branches where the territory is well cared for and workers are plentiful, some of the more capable ones might consider moving to another country where their services could be put to good use.

73. TRANSFER TO REGULAR PIONEER SERVICE: If a special pioneer returns to the regular pioneer service due to economic factors or for personal reasons, his Volunteer Card (S-217) should be properly marked and placed in the inactive file. The S-205 form should be placed in the active file for regular pioneers. He will return his special pioneer supplies. The congregation will be notified of his appointment as a regular pioneer either by receiving a copy of the branch's letter to him or by some other written notice. If he leaves the regular pioneer service, then the same procedure is followed as outlined for removing regular pioneers.

74. TEMPORARY SPECIAL PIONEER SERVICE: (See 4:24.)

75. SPECIAL PIONEER MOVING EXPENSES: In reassigning special pioneers, we usually select a territory which is not too far distant from their previous location in order to avoid unnecessary expenses. In countries using various languages this usually has the benefit of keeping the special pioneer in the area where his accustomed language is used. If for some reason the Branch Committee feels it necessary to reassign a special pioneer to a location some distance away and he feels he cannot cover the expense of the transfer personally, he may request such assistance from the Branch Committee.

The Branch Committee may reimburse the special pioneer up to $200 depending on his needs if he makes that request. If the cost will be higher than that then the recommendation for reimbursement should be referred to the Publishing Committee.

76. YEARLY SUPPLIES TO SPECIAL PIONEERS: The branch sends directly to special pioneers at the beginning of the new service year thirteen special pioneer report and request forms (S-212) and thirteen service report envelopes. An initial supply of vacation and Personal Expense Account requisition forms is provided for special pioneers and traveling overseers at the time of appointment.

77. When the second copy of a vacation request form is returned to the individual showing the balance of vacation time still available, two blank copies of that form are mailed with it. When a Personal Expense Account check is sent, one blank request form is sent with it. Only if payment is in cash is it necessary to have the requisition signed on the "received" line. The individual is informed of the balance due him on this account when the annual credit is applied. Also, a statement may be sent when there is a withdrawal if the branch finds this convenient.

78. MEDICAL CARE AND EMERGENCY MEDICAL NEEDS: See 1:72-77.

Chapter 18

Printing (Production)

Note: Volunteers at branches not involved with printing are not required to read this chapter.

1. Approval for new publications will continue to originate at Brooklyn. Text for locally produced publications must first be submitted to the Writing Committee in English for approval. In addition, approval to translate literature and magazines is given by the Writing Committee.

2. The branch producing the item will receive approved Branch Orders from Brooklyn after the item has been listed on the Publications To Be Printed sheet. The total requested from the various branches plus what the printing branch may require, minus the stock on hand, would be the total quantity to print. This will allow the printing branches to print in foreign languages without having to send a requisition to Brooklyn and wait for a response before printing. Branches will ordinarily print what is needed for a one-year supply unless the run is very small and a two-year supply is needed to make it viable.

3. The many forms and letters printed at the United States branch are used because it saves time instead of repeatedly typing the same information. Many of these forms and letters will never be needed in quantity at small branches. When a congregation writes in, you can answer their question, and it may be that that question will be asked only once a year. You have sample copies of forms and you may use the information as it applies to your country when you reply. Therefore, there is no need for small branches to have as many printed forms and letters as larger ones.

4. Please keep in mind the cost involved in printing and mailing forms. First, they must be translated, composed, typeset, and printed. This takes time. It takes paper, which is expensive. So if we print a lot of forms and they are simply stocked on shelves in the branches and rarely used, this is not a wise use of funds. The principles regarding the ordering of forms are similar to those followed when a branch office orders literature or miscellaneous merchandise. If you have no great use for certain forms, there is no need to stock them. If your branch prints forms, you should be conservative as to quantity. Generally, it is good not to print more than a year's supply, as forms may be altered from time to time.

5. PRINTERY OPERATION: Things need to keep moving through the printery. Items should not bog down and be held until the last minute, but should be handled promptly so that the flow of work moves smoothly. As we go about the work, an eye should be kept on quality first, then the quantity.

6. Throughout the entire printery operation, appropriate ones who are responsible, qualified individuals should be appointed to ensure (1) planning and scheduling; (2) requisitioning necessary materials and supplies; (3) making out and distributing job orders; (4) following jobs through to completion; (5) keeping necessary records, files, and samples; and (6) working closely with the volunteers to know their abilities and to understand their problems.

7. Schedules need to be planned to keep the work in the printery in its proper order. Qualified brothers should be appointed to handle this scheduling work. In scheduling the work, prepare a written schedule for all the departments concerned, showing when the various operations on a particular book, magazine, Our Kingdom Ministry, and so forth, are due to begin in that department. With non-simultaneous magazines, the schedules for each issue are prepared by working backward from the day the magazines should go to the post office to allow sufficient time for them to reach the subscribers and congregations. Allow sufficient time for all operations in the printery, such as packaging, trimming, stitching, folding, printing, typesetting, proofreading, and set the date copy must be in the hands of the proofreaders. The amount of time to allow for these operations can be established from the previous six months' average of the time required for each operation. As needed, brothers should be assigned the responsibility to see that these schedules are adhered to by all so that the work can be done in good order and the publications reach the people at the right time. Those publishing magazines and Our Kingdom Ministry simultaneously with English should make workable schedules that take into consideration mailing times from Brooklyn and local shipping needs.

8. In order to have an efficient flow of work, the necessary materials and supplies must be on hand. A good way to check on all items of stock, such as paper, ink, field service forms, literature, and so forth, is to have a monthly inventory taken and posted as a progressive inventory. This inventory would show stock on hand plus that received and minus supplies used; then at the end of the month you will have a new balance on hand. This will assist in ordering because it will show the rate of movement and will prevent running out of stock of forms, literature, and necessary supplies or materials. Inventories should be very carefully checked when ordering stock so as not to get overstocked. Those designated should make out requisitions for supplies required to print books, booklets, magazines, and forms, such as paper, ink, glue, paste, and so forth, in sufficient time to keep all machines busy and the items in stock. When reprinting forms, always consult your "forms file" for latest changes in the form, if any.

9. The printing operation is detailed; therefore written instructions are essential for accuracy. A job number is assigned from a consecutive list of numbers. Appropriate information pertaining to that job should be retained in a permanent file, either electronically or in a major file envelope (F-108). The filed press order (F-104) from the previous printing should always be used as a guide to write up a reprinted item. Any problems experienced in the previous printing should have been marked on the press copy of the Job Order. Essential information such as paper size and weight, ink colors, and trim size will be shown. On first printings the information must be worked out by the one assigned who, after analyzing it, should consult similar jobs handled previously. Waste of time and material can be avoided if care is taken to get the most forms out of a given sheet with the least number of impressions on the press. The department job orders (F-104) should be proofread after typing and routed to each department handling the item. Text copy or artwork is first sent to proofreading before being processed for production. All questions should be answered before work is started on any printing item.

10. The brother designated must follow a job through to completion. He must be thorough and check regularly on the work under his supervision, and so should the Branch Committee coordinator. A responsible brother should make regular tours through the publishing section of the branch at least twice daily. Brothers should be designated as responsible for coordinating all activities between translators, proofreaders, printery, and shipping. All jobs should be followed through, making certain that things are done on time and correctly. Checks must be made with Invoicing and Shipping to see that forms and literature are kept in stock, that orders are not unnecessarily held up, and that all items and materials are on hand to fill orders quickly. This gives our brothers in the field good service. Responsible brothers must always be alert to look for things that may be wrong or that need attention or correction. Try to improve methods of handling the work so that it can be done well in the most convenient, efficient, and least expensive manner. Everyone in the printery operation should be educated to be concerned with quality control and waste reduction.

11. Records are kept by a central printery office to supply vital information to other departments. A file of job press printings should be kept up-to-date with one copy of the latest printing of each item. Pertinent information should be written on the forms, such as job number, quantity, date of printing, and the storage location of the printing flats. This information is vital for expediting reprints. A sample of each book and booklet printing should be filed with a library card (F-110) inside the cover, showing all the printing data.

12. An important responsibility in printery operation is to work closely with the volunteers. All overseers should always be very considerate of, and interested in, their brothers. They should regularly converse with them in an endeavor to learn their problems and then give them the required assistance. An overseer should not be a boss, lording it over the volunteers, but must exercise proper love as a servant. Then he will get good cooperation, which is essential for efficient functioning of the printery. He must be observant of the abilities of each brother or sister so that he will be better able to make recommendations to the printery overseer or Branch Committee concerning the assignment of volunteers.

13. In large branches the brothers with overall printery oversight will work mainly through the department overseers in assigning out the work and transmitting information and instructions. Problems relating to volunteers, their work habits, getting along with others, cooperation, job recommendations, and so forth, will usually be handled by the elder group responsible for such volunteers.

14. A big job in printery operation is planning, coordinating the various departments, and keeping things moving on schedule. Overseers should know the abilities of the different workers so that the brothers can be assigned from one job to another to get things done when they need to be done. Whenever possible there should be a back-up man for each job. Brothers with the responsibility of overall printery oversight should be servants to all departments, having an interest in production and quality printing.

15. HANDBILLS: Samples of handbills for congregations are sent to all branches from the United States branch office. On the back of the handbill an advertisement is printed. You do not need to print the same advertisement that appears on the sample. The United States branch first prints an advertisement on the back of our regular-size handbills and then stocks them. When we want to print handbills for a congregation to show the various meetings, we just take whatever backs we have, print on the reverse side, and send them out. What is printed on the back is not the important thing. The important thing is the front side of the handbill showing the schedule of congregation meetings. So if you print handbills, do not be concerned about matching certain backs with a certain front. If you do not have time to print the backs or it is too expensive, then just print the front of the handbills. The purpose of the handbill is to get people to the various meetings. The reason we have printed an advertisement on the back is to use it as a tract to give a message and invite people to order some literature if they are so inclined. We do not bill our costs for printing handbills. We charge this cost to advertising.

16. In printing handbills, try to make things as uniform as possible. By using the “Redefine” keys and “Submit” function on the MEPS system, the entry and proofreading of handbills can be expedited and much time saved.

17. Placards or window signs will no longer be printed by printing branches except by special permission. If there seems to be some real need or value in supplying them, they may be ordered from a printing branch on the Handbill Request form (S-16). Manuscript copy for all the information desired on the placard or window sign should be typewritten and supplied along with the order form. The words “Placard” or “Window Sign Order” should be typed across the top of the Handbill Request form. Instead of showing the name of the congregation, the name of the circuit should be shown in the space provided. Placard and window sign orders should not be included on the same Handbill Request blank with handbills but should be placed on a separate Handbill Request blank (S-16).

18. MNEMONIC SYMBOLS: When a branch publishes literature in a language that is not assigned a mnemonic symbol, send a request to the Brooklyn office to assign a symbol for the publication. This is done so that there will be no repetition in symbols anywhere in the world. While we do not use symbols in sending orders between branches, we do use symbols when writing our local invoices and the same symbols should be used worldwide. The Brooklyn office controls symbols.

19. Symbols for new languages and publications printed in Brooklyn will be shown on the Publications to Be Printed sheet. Branches can watch for these and keep their records up-to-date. A listing is also found in the back of the Watchtower Publications List.

20. When making domestic invoices or orders where one principal language is spoken in a country, the branch can use the mnemonic symbols without the language symbol. For example, there is no need in Germany to put “X” after every item to indicate a German publication, or in Spanish countries to put “S” to indicate Spanish publications. If, however, such a country has an order for an English publication, the branch can use the symbol “E” to show the publication to be sent is English and not in the national language. Always show the language fully spelled out on Branch Orders.

21. When you have any forms printed or mimeographed, you should always show the form number in the lower left-hand corner, except for such items as letterheads, envelopes, postcards, and membership or similar certificates. There should never be two different forms bearing the same number. The mnemonic symbol for the language is shown following the form number when it is translated into another language. (Example: S-4-S 6/86) The date that is shown on the English form should be shown on the translation. Dates are changed when forms are revised in English, not when they are translated.

22. SAMPLES OF PRINTED FORMS AND PUBLICATIONS: All branches that do printing of magazines should send one sample copy to Watchtower Farms Magazine Department if the branch does not send a bulk supply. If a bulk supply is sent, the sample will be taken from the bulk supply. All branches printing books, booklets, brochures, and English editions of Our Kingdom Ministry should send one sample copy of each to the Brooklyn office. This is done only on the initial printing and when major revisions are made, such as copy adjustments resulting in copyright date changes, format changes (i.e. hardcover to paperback), or changes in the cover artwork. It is not necessary to send samples of printed forms or non-English editions of Our Kingdom Ministry. Branches should also retain in their file a first-run sample copy or sample copy with major revisions of all printed or duplicated material.

23. The United States branch office sends to all branches one copy of everything printed that we feel branches should have. When you receive these copies, read them through carefully, then put them in your form file. The Brooklyn office does not send all of its forms to you because some are used only within the United States printery or the Bethel home itself, or maybe for local conventions. We are selective in sending some forms only to larger branches that may have a need for them.

24. THE PRINTING OF FORMS: Small branches will find it expensive to have forms printed, and we suggest that such branches reproduce their needs, possibly by mimeograph. Generally, it will be impractical for the branch to have forms printed in quantities less than 500. Lesser amounts if needed may be reproduced locally.—See 18:4.

25. Branches may order English forms from Brooklyn as well as forms in other languages if we print them. Always write out the name of the form and the form number on the order blank. Never order less than 500 copies of a form if it is necessary for the form to be printed for you alone. If it is a stock item, there is no minimum quantity. We will not print forms in other languages unless we feel that they are needed by the branch ordering. Branches may use forms even though they have the Brooklyn office address on them instead of the branch address. Under such circumstances, you may add your local address under the Brooklyn address by neatly printing it with a rubber stamp or by typewriter. In many places it is most economical for the branches to have letterheads and forms printed locally due to the high import duties on forms. Where the branches know that forms are duty free, they can order from a printing branch, but check into these matters before ordering. When ordering letterheads, envelopes, or other forms from a printing branch, a copy or a sample of the previous form showing exactly the way the form is to appear should be attached to the Branch Order. This does not apply to stocked service forms or handbills but to forms to be printed that are unique to your country.

26. Even though some changes have been made in forms and you have old ones, continue to use the old forms until they are gone unless advised otherwise. Generally, changes are not major enough to throw away old forms. Before you run out of the old ones, order the new supplies to be used, allowing ample time to receive them.

27. When the Brooklyn office revises and prints an English form, no reprints of the old form will be made in any language, but the branch will use up its old supply. When a branch needs a new supply, it should revise the form to conform to the latest English form.

28. No branches are authorized to institute new forms of their own unless the Publishing Committee has been given reasons for it and approval has been received. When a new branch is opened, it is unwise to introduce many new forms to the publishers to use at once. Forms are not of key importance. The important thing is the preaching of the good news of the Kingdom, organizing the publishers into congregations, and helping them to be spiritually strong and active. Do not burden them down with a lot of book-work. It is only when there are many congregations that a number of forms are really needed. A good rule to follow is that the fewer forms you have to use, the better it is. The brothers should get accustomed to using the essential forms that have to do with reporting to the congregation and the congregation's reporting to the branch office. There are very few other forms that are needed in smaller branches. Some branches have used computers to generate forms. However, it is our recommendation that, to avoid extra work, branches should not electronically produce new or existing forms without prior approval. This is not intended to rule out necessary local production of charts or listings of material that may be needed in certain departments, but forms for general branch use should best be referred to Brooklyn with your recommendation.

29. PRINTING OF BOOKS AND BOOKLETS: Any branch that prints books or booklets should check carefully to be sure the quantity to be printed is appropriate based on the movement of such publications, including requests from other branches. It will be the responsibility of the printing branch to check carefully before making out the printing requisition.

30. When a Branch Committee approves a printing requisition, the approval also includes permission to purchase paper, cardboard, or anything else that goes into the making of that publication.

31. Branches should keep accurate cost records of all publications produced. In addition to production cost, you will need to add in the cost of freight, insurance, and duty. Insurance generally runs about 16 cents per one hundred dollars of value.—See Expenses, Chapter 19.

32. PUBLICATIONS TO BE PRINTED SHEET: Before printing any publication at Brooklyn or any other printing branch, it is good to have it listed on the Publications to Be Printed sheet some time before you plan to print it. If you have approval to print a publication locally, send a memorandum to the Brooklyn office requesting that it be listed on an upcoming Publications to Be Printed sheet. Be sure to allow sufficient time before an item is to be printed for it to appear on the sheet and for the branches to send in their orders. Then when the orders from various branches reach the printing branch, it can be determined just how many to print for other countries.

33. ART PROOFS, FILM, ETC.: When art proofs or film are sent to a printing branch, be sure that certified invoices, if required for customs purposes, are sent to the printing branch at the time the proofs or film are mailed. One or two copies of the certified invoice should be placed inside the parcel for customs purposes depending on local requirements. Additionally, two more copies of the certified invoice should be mailed immediately to the printing branch.

34. When furnishing such material for printing, be sure it is properly identified. Remember that persons working in printing branches do not necessarily understand your language. Therefore, you should be careful to make everything as foolproof as possible for the printing branch. It is important that a cover memorandum be sent along with the material being supplied to your printing branch. The information in this memorandum should do the following: (1) Clearly identify the job; (2) state the reason why the job is being supplied to the printing branch; (3) specifically state which version of art should be used (African, International, Oriental, etc.); and (4) include any other special instructions.

35. When sending film for magazines, be sure to send a complete control document. A control document can be a signed printed sample, a signed blue-line (Dylux) proof, or signed laser proofs or photocopies. Composed Postscript files of magazines sent via CompuServe can be sent without a control document.

36. When putting advertisements in a book or booklet, you should never advertise publications that are not already in stock in your language. It would be better to leave pages blank than to advertise publications that do not appear in the language in which the new publication appears. Dates as to when to expect to receive publications from your printing branch are only estimates. Delays often occur. Therefore, it is better to wait until you have the publication in hand before advertising it in another publication.

37. Due to postal regulations in the United States, we do not advertise The Watchtower and Awake! in books or booklets.

38. When receiving electronic files or film, we occasionally experience difficulty because not enough room has been allowed to insert a picture. Care is needed in following the layout of the English picture to allow sufficient spacing. It may be necessary to reword the text or change the font size or line spacing to ensure adequate space for the picture.

39. The organization has many four-color pictures in its books, brochures, and magazines. It will greatly complicate matters and result in increased expense if each individual language edition of these publications has its own layout with its own location of four-color pictures.

Therefore, before sending electronic files or negatives to your printing branch, please make sure that the text follows exactly the same page layout and location as the English edition. It is desirable that each printing branch keep on hand standard master flats of all four-color artwork and match these with the text in any given language. This will require that the color pictures for all languages editions of our magazines or other publications to be printed in four colors fall in exactly the same location on the same pages as in the English edition. This would include any tints that are part of the art and not produced on MEPS. This is becoming more important now that so many editions of our magazines, and also books, are published simultaneously.

40. If you are producing a monthly or quarterly edition of the magazines, please keep these points in mind concerning imposition: (1) If your printing branch will be printing your monthly or quarterly edition on a Harris/Hantscho press, four-color pictures will only remain as such if they are placed on a four-color page according to the Harris/Hantscho imposition. Otherwise, a black-only picture will be made. (2) An effort to keep pictures on the same odd/even side of the page as English will ensure that the magazine pictures have sufficient bleed to print properly.

41. PAGE AND TEXT-AREA SIZES: It is important to follow the English text-area sizes when preparing art proofs or film because they are based on machinery limitations and publication standardization. The standard page size in a regular-size hard cover book, Bible, or booklet is 4 1/2" x 6 1/2" (114.3 mm x 165.1 mm). Text-area size is 86.0 mm x 143.0 mm. For pocket-size hard cover books, page size is 4 1/8" x 6 1/4" (104.8 mm x 158.75 mm). Text-area size is 84.0 mm x 145.0 mm. Magazine-size book page size is 7" x 9" (177.8 mm x 228.6 mm). Text-area size is the same as the English publication. The paperback book page size is 4 3/8" x 6 1/4" (111.0 mm x 158.75 mm). Text-area size is 86.0 mm x 143.0 mm. If a set number of pages is established for a particular publication, you should adjust text composition and/or wording to fit your language translation into the allotted space.

42. In supplying electronic files or film to a printing branch that uses offset rotary presses, endeavor to keep your publications in 32-page units. Ten signatures make a book of 320 pages; twelve signatures, 384; and so forth. However, no publication should be supplied to the printing branch in sections. Instead the entire publication should be sent at the same time unless special permission has been granted by the printing branch.

43. Good quality should be maintained on any text or halftone film sent to the printing branch. There must be no wrinkles, creases, or tears in the film, nor stains or smudges that might show up when the materials are processed. On all text material it is very important that the density of blackness be consistent over the entire page and from page to page. This needs to be checked closely.

44. At times, new artwork is requested by a branch for a special article in a magazine, Our Kingdom Ministry, or other publication. Permission should be received for this from the Writing Committee before proceeding with any work. When permission is granted, the branch should prepare a new layout or adjust the existing layout. If desired, a request can be made, through a regular Branch Order, for Brooklyn to scan slides and send them to you on a CD.

45. We feel sure that overseers who are acquainted with printing to any extent at all will see the importance of having things right in the beginning, because if there is an error in proofs or film and that error is printed, then thousands of errors will be printed. If you have an edition of 100,000 of a publication, there are going to be 100,000 mistakes made. That is why it is so important that the text be correct. The Branch Committee coordinator should see to it that good copy or clean proofs are always provided. Then when the literature is printed, it will be something that the publishers of the whole country will be proud of and happy to have.

46. THE PRINTING OF MAGAZINES: Accuracy in determining the printing quantity is important to ensure having enough copies to fill orders while not having many left over, which would waste time and money. Therefore, printing quantities should be carefully determined based on the following figures: congregation magazine requests (regular requests, special requests on hand, and special requests anticipated for special issues), any subscriptions, waste during mailing operations, and a small amount for stock quantity (no more than 25-100 copies for most small languages).

47. At times there may be a shortage of a particular issue. To avoid the need for small reprints, some of the regular congregation magazine requests may be reduced in quantity if the shortage is noted during mailing. If an issue goes out of stock after all orders on hand are filled, it is not necessary to reprint the issue. Reprints may be made for a specially advertised issue or issues on which there are large quantities of late orders. On an offset rotary press, 2,000-3,000 is generally the minimum quantity that would warrant a reprint.

48. In order to handle leftover magazines due to small overruns, after the main mailing of magazine requests is completed, take an inventory. Deduct the amount needed for stock. The remainder should be mailed out as soon as possible as "EXTRAS." Mail them to the congregations in your country or in a country that uses large quantities of that language. To accomplish the sending out of extras, follow through a consecutive list of congregations, sending about five percent of the amount of the regular magazine request to each congregation until the leftover quantity is exhausted. Indicate on the list where you leave off so that you can begin with the next congregation the next time you need to send out extras. When the end of the list is reached, start over from the beginning. On the label for these extras include the word "EXTRA" at the top so that the congregation will know why they are receiving these magazines. The congregation can distribute them in the same way as the regular congregation magazines. If this arrangement is new in your country, you may inform the congregations about it by means of Our Kingdom Ministry. The intent should be to hold such overruns to a minimum.

49. As to the type of paper used for printing The Watchtower and Awake!, this is determined by the Publishing Committee. New language editions of the magazines may be started on newsprint or a paper using a large percentage of ground-wood. If it is thought practical to print The Watchtower on a better quality paper than Awake!, your reasons and recommendations should be submitted to the Publishing Committee for consideration.

50. It is fully appreciated that many branches would like to have their magazines in two or more colors, but this is a matter to be decided by the Publishing Committee. There is no objection to your making recommendations and showing the Publishing Committee how it can be done and what costs will be involved. At all times we are anxious to improve the standard of the magazine and increase its circulation. If a Branch Committee believes color would help the distribution of magazines, the committee should make its recommendation.

51. It is desirable that The Watchtower and Awake! be available in various languages to as many people as possible. Our production and distribution costs include the cost of translation, paper, typesetting, and mailing. These expenses are covered by the voluntary donations of those receiving and appreciating this spiritual food. To provide small printings or new editions of the magazines, contributions are needed to keep making them available to the people since these magazines are being offered without charge.

52. MEPS SOFTWARE: Multilingual computer programs that provide text entry, composition, picture placement, research, corrections compare, typesetting, and other functions are provided to prepare publications. When updates to MEPS software are sent to the branches, it is best to install these as soon as it is practical. Having all the branches at more or less the same level of MEPS software makes maintenance and support tenable.

53. TEXT ENTRY: Translators generally enter their translation directly on a computer. After publications are translated, they must be checked and proofread before they are composed. When text is delivered for composition, it should be clean and press-ready. After composition, publications are proofread and checked to ensure that they are complete and contain all the information provided by the translators. These principles of production must be applied to all publications produced by the organization.

54. TRAINING AND MAINTENANCE: The complexity of the whole process of translation, proofreading, composition, and typesetting makes it vital to train thoroughly all personnel involved. It is also necessary to train backup personnel in the event of unexpected emergencies. When a computer system is installed, training is often provided. However, each branch must be conscious of their responsibility for ongoing training to get the maximum benefit from the computer equipment and to minimize waste due to personnel not knowing how to use the equipment.

55. MANUALS: Manuals are provided for both hardware and software. As improvements and updates are made to the computer systems, maintenance personnel should familiarize themselves with such adjustments. To operate properly, computers generally require a clean, air-conditioned environment free of dust and static electricity. Problems with the computers, hardware or software, must quickly be reported on the appropriate forms.

56. SECURITY: The Branch Committee is responsible to ensure that reasonable steps are taken to confine confidential material to the duly appointed personnel. The Branch Committee must have assurance that all confidential computer-readable information cannot be accessed by unauthorized parties. Also, proper arrangements must be in place to ensure that all active work is backed up in the event of equipment failure. Backup procedures should be performed at least on a daily basis.

57. NEW LANGUAGES: Full computer support may not be necessary for a new language if the Writing Committee determines that only a few tracts or a simple brochure will be printed in that language. However, if the Writing Committee gives approval to produce books, The Watchtower, or Our Kingdom Ministry in a new language, MEPS Programming will need specific information about the requirements of the new language. Keyboard layout, hyphenation rules, composition rules, typesetting requirements, and fonts are needed.

58. FONTS: "Fonts" refer to the groups of characters used by a language. MEPS Programming is responsible to provide full capability for the new language on the computer equipment that the branch uses. MEPS Programming collaborates with other departments to find suitable fonts and collect the necessary language information. The printing branch is informed so that training in the use of the computer system can be arranged and production schedules be prepared.

59. Branches will benefit from purchasing available fonts instead of drawing them. This can potentially save many years of drawing characters. Branches interested in new or updated fonts should contact MEPS Programming.

60. Fonts should be installed and used on a predetermined schedule worked out between the translation branch and the printing branch. Good communication between the translation branch, printing branch, and MEPS Programming is important to make sure that publications are typeset properly.

61. COOPERATION WITH PROOFREADING: It has been found advantageous to give proofreaders a brief course on MEPS operation so that they are acquainted with its capabilities. This helps measurably in communication between the two departments.

62. PREPARING PRINTING FLATS: After typesetting and preparing the negatives, the next step is to assemble the individual page negatives onto printing flats. Then offset plates are made.

63. OFFSET PRINTING AND PLATEMAKING: In offset printing, the negative is placed over an inexpensive lithographic plate and exposed to a bright light. The plate then becomes harder where the light shines through. With a chemical developer (supplied by the platemaker), we develop the plate. The developer makes the area where the letters have been exposed greasier, adding a coat of material where the image or type was on the negative.

64. Then the plate is put on the press. The press puts water on the plate first. The water does not stick on the greasy image area, but it does flow across the rest of the plate, wetting it. Then ink rollers come across the plate. The ink sticks only on the greasy areas and not where the water is. Then the plate comes in contact with a pliable yet firm rubber blanket that is especially prepared to accept the ink from the plate. The paper is pressed between the rubber blanket that now has the image in ink on it and a steel impression cylinder. The ink comes off the blanket onto the paper, and the form is printed.

65. The quality of printing depends basically upon (1) proper packing of both plate and blanket cylinders to get the right impression, (2) properly set ink and water rollers, and (3) ink and water adjustment. It is very essential to keep rollers in good condition. It is not economical to try to run rollers beyond the point of their expected life. The rollers should always be true round and have a good, tacky surface. The ink rollers should be washed down every night to avoid caking of ink. Sometimes the plate may need to be gummed up if the press has to sit idle awhile and then washed before starting to print again. The quality of printing is highly dependent, too, on correct ink distribution, which should be constantly watched and kept in adjustment.

66. Setoff, which is wet ink transferred from one sheet to another, is a constant hazard to printing where dryers are not used. It can easily be caused by too much ink and water being used or by the wrong type of ink for the particular paper being used. Setoff can also be caused by allowing the pile of printed sheets to stack too high. A third cause is the lifting up of the pile unevenly when you are inspecting during the time of printing and before the ink is dry. A fourth cause is the cutting of the material before it is sufficiently dried. All these steps should be watched carefully, because a well-arranged print job and a well-printed job can be ruined in the last stages with setoff.

67. Static electricity is another problem quite often found present around presses. One simple operation that is often very effective is to get a cord of copper tinsel and stretch it across the press so that the surface of the sheet will come in contact with the tinsel as it passes underneath it just before piling. The tinsel should be tied to metal parts of the press to act as a ground. On larger presses a "static eliminator" device may be required.

68. Good production of a press can be obtained by careful organization on the part of the pressman and a well-maintained machine that is operated at a proper speed. Organization includes having the work so well planned in the order of printing of the different jobs that it minimizes the amount of time a press is not running. Generally, the next job for the press should be readied in the stripping and platemaking areas while the previous job is running on the press. The cleanliness of the machine with proper lubrication is also essential to maintain a good quality of production.

69. INK: In acquiring ink it is not always the lowest-priced ink that turns out to be the cheapest ink. The way to determine the value of the ink is by figuring the number of impressions obtained per pound. Whenever you purchase ink, you should always consult with the ink-maker, submitting samples of paper so as to obtain ink suitable for the particular press and type of paper you will use. Some branches get their ink from Brooklyn where it is made in our Ink Room. There is no objection to branches buying ink locally if a good supplier can be found. Before ordering ink from Brooklyn, the cost of local ink should be taken into consideration.

70. If at any time you desire to obtain ink from Brooklyn, you should always send along a sample of the paper (8 1/2" x 11") that the ink is to be used on; also tell us the type and speed of press on which you print.

71. OBTAINING MACHINERY: It is usually not worthwhile to acquire old or heavily worn machines, even free. It costs too much to make them work properly. Brand new machines are not always necessary, however. Used machines of recent manufacture are often as good, and much less expensive.

72. CARE OF MACHINERY: The best maintenance is preventive maintenance. It is more economical and practical to keep a machine well maintained than to let it be neglected and break down. This will be more expensive and cause greater delay. Therefore, regularly scheduled machine inspection should be followed.

73. Lubrication is the life of the machine. It is good from time to time to have a person with a good understanding of the machinery, possibly a plant mechanic, check over all the machines to make certain that all points are being lubricated. A most vital and essential part of the machine operation is proper lubrication, seeing that all the oil holes are kept clean so that oil gets to the proper place. It is better to oil a machine more frequently with a small amount of oil than with a large amount less frequently, as then a greater portion runs off the machine unused. This is wasteful and is not good for the machine, as it runs with less lubrication.

74. Cleanliness of the machine is very important. It gives increased life to the machine and results in a better quality of production. Eighty-five percent of all machine problems are caused by dirt. Therefore, the machines as well as the whole work area should be kept clean. To help ensure this, there are daily, weekly, monthly, and semiannual chores to be performed that should not be neglected under any circumstances. Negligence, particularly in the daily chores, can quickly ruin major parts of the machine. However, one rule that should always be followed is: A machine should never be cleaned while it is in motion. This is too dangerous, in that the cloth may get caught in the machine and result in injury to the operator of the machine.

75. It is too often thought that production comes by speed, but this is not the case. A machine should not run above a practical speed. It is not speed that makes production; it is steadiness. Therefore, if a machine is run at a practical speed, it will result in better quality as well as satisfactory production and a longer life for the machine and less strain on the operator.

76. SAFETY: We do not want to have anyone get hurt working around machinery; to prevent this requires effective safety measures. Any part of the machine that appears to be dangerous should have proper guards installed so that volunteers are protected. You should always watch that all guards are used and in position. Whenever a new person is assigned a machine, explain to him each section of the entire machine and caution him about any dangerous things to avoid. All machine operators should be constantly cautioned as to the importance of safety. In recent years governments have been requiring volunteers working in noisy areas or on loud presses and machinery to wear hearing protection, such as ear-plugs and ear-muffs. Also, steps to deaden or lessen the sound to acceptable levels must be taken. Branch Committees, printery overseers, and department overseers should become acquainted with what is required and see that some reasonable measures are taken to comply with such regulations for the good of all.–See 3:89.

77. UNUSED MACHINERY: If you have machinery that has not been used for some time but can be made to produce, do not dispose of it without getting permission from the Publishing Committee. It may be that it can be sent to another branch. If you have any machines not in use, inform the Publishing Committee in a separate memorandum when you send in your annual report.

Chapter 19

Expenses

1. Any manufacturing plant needs to have a record of expenses if it is to operate efficiently and provide information concerning the cost of items being produced. Therefore a cost accounting system needs to be set up in all printing branches to provide manufacturing and shipping costs on the books, booklets and magazines as well as other items of production. Such information not only provides a check on efficiency but is needed to establish a manufacturing cost required on shipping invoices and in determining the feasibility of having certain items printed by an outside firm where duty fees and shipping costs make it seem impractical to use our own facilities. How elaborate the accounting system needs to be is in most cases determined by the reports required by the branch organization as well as the extent of manufacturing being done. It should be a very simple matter to keep a record of costs where merely a small amount of job printing is involved. Certainly one should avoid spending a lot of time working up information that is not needed. Also it is good to avoid duplication of effort wherever possible. For instance, it may be that much of the information compiled in the treasurer's office at the branch can be utilized by the cost accountant in developing some of the costs needed. While bookkeeping as carried on in the treasurer's office needs to take into consideration all costs in order to balance out the books, cost accounting is concerned only with expenses that affect the manufacturing or other costs being developed.

2. COSTS NOT CHARGEABLE TO PRODUCTION: Every branch has operational expenses that are necessary in looking after the Kingdom interests, but only certain items contribute to manufacturing costs. Expenses that a branch would ordinarily have if printing was being done by an outside firm are not included in the cost of producing books, magazines or other literature. Following is a list of expenses that should not be included in the manufacturing costs or, at least, not charged directly.

3. Bethel home expenses consisting of reimbursements, meals, housing, furniture and illness, as well as repairs, rent, mortgages, dividends, taxes, light, heat and power for the portion of the branch building comprising the Bethel home, are charged to labor costs. Eventually a portion of these costs will get into the manufacturing cost through the labor rate (see labor costs) but none of these Bethel home expenses are to be charged directly to production.

4. Branch overhead expenses involving the various offices, service department, translation and proofreading of copy, correspondence, bookkeeping, invoicing and the handling of pioneers as well as the handling and expenses, including reimbursements, of circuit and district overseers, missionaries and special pioneers, are not charged to production.

5. Cars and trucks are not chargeable if the branch has conveyances for business purposes other than those used for manufacturing or shipping. Those used for various purposes may be prorated for cost accounting purposes.

6. Conventions and their expenses are not charged to production.

7. Educational expenses involved in maintaining schools at a branch such as the Kingdom Ministry or Pioneer Service Schools, special training given to missionaries learning a language, or instruction to circuit and district overseers, as well as motion picture films and slides would not be included in production costs.

8. Legal expenses involving estates or property other than that being used for manufacturing.

9. Maintenance of outside property or the sale thereof would not affect the cost of production.

10. Shipping costs involving the storage, packaging and shipping of literature and magazines.

11. Other expenses too may not be included in the cost of manufacturing a book or magazine, the reason being that if we had our literature printed outside by a local printer we would still have all of the above expenses. What we want to ascertain in our cost system is the exact cost of manufacturing the book, booklet or magazine as though the manufacturing or printing division were an outside concern.

12. COSTS THAT ARE CHARGEABLE TO PRODUCTION: The only branches that will have to set up a cost accounting system are those that manufacture books, booklets or magazines, or do considerable printing on a small scale, and then they would need to know what these things cost in order to make a comparison with outside printing. Therefore the items that are to go into production costs are as follows:

13. Building: Just that portion of the building that is used for manufacturing and storage of supplies for manufacturing would be charged to production. This would include depreciation, rent, taxes and maintenance costs to the printery building.

14. Heat: If one central heating system is used for the heating of the Bethel home, the office and the printery, then a percentage of the heat cost would be worked out for charging to the printery. The rest would go against the Bethel home and office.

15. Ink would include all inks, oils and dryers used in printing as well as any costs of manufacturing ink or distributing it to the presses.

16. Labor costs will include everything contributing directly or indirectly to the following: reimbursements, Personal Expense Account payments, home, meals and sickness. The totals of the above items contributing to the labor rate for the current month are added to the totals for the previous eleven months and the resultant total for the year is then divided by twelve to provide an average cost of labor for the month involved. The total cost of labor should then be divided by the number of persons working in the printery, the office and such schools as may be in operation at the branch. It will not include those who work in the kitchen or dining room in connection with meals, nor will it include housekeepers or others engaged in home maintenance. The above procedure will provide a labor rate per person for cost-accounting purposes and will be the same for each individual whether serving in the printery, the office or a school being operated by branch volunteers. However, only the labor cost of those who work in the printery and have to do either directly or indirectly with the manufacture of literature will be charged against production. The labor cost of all others falls against the nonprinting operations of the branch.

17. Light and Power: If the lights are on a separate meter from the rest of the power then the cost can be distributed in the same manner as shown in paragraph 14 with respect to heat. If there is not a separate meter then a survey will have to be made to determine the portion of the expense that applies to lights and the balance will then be charged to the various departments and/or machinery that utilize power.

18. Machinery and Equipment: Separate ledger accounts must be maintained for these in order to keep a record of the depreciation.

19. Maintenance: A record should be kept of all maintenance costs for machinery and equipment in the various departments. This would include maintenance supplies.

20. Stock: This has to do with materials such as paper supplies, cardboard, bogus, crash, stitching wire, or any other material that goes into the making of a book, booklet or magazine. It is part of the cost of production.

21. The details of the actual cost-accounting procedure will be supplied to printing branches on request to the Brooklyn office. Branches that do not do printing need not be concerned with this information.

22. Cost accounting can be simplified by developing an average cost for the production of all identical publications rather than individual costing. For example, since all pocket-size books of 192 pages use identical paper, endsheets and covers, and also use the same department-processing operations, one average cost can be developed for this type of publication instead of a separate cost for each of the production runs, titles, or languages. The same costing can be done for other books of the same size. Following this principle, if the same paper is used for both The Watchtower and Awake! magazines, then you can develop one average cost for both magazines. However, if different paper is used for each magazine, then you could develop one average cost for all Watchtower magazines and one average cost for all Awake! magazines.

Chapter 20

Program and Arrangements for Conventions, Circuit Assemblies, and Special Assembly Days

1. The Governing Body writes a letter to the branches each year setting out the program for the coming year, including information about convention plans. This letter directs whether you should have many district conventions, a national convention or an international convention. All branches will make arrangements according to the advice given in this annual letter.

2. PROGRAM: As to international, national or district conventions, the Teaching Committee makes up the program. Since district or national conventions in the United States are held before other branches hold theirs, the program arranged for the United States' conventions will be followed by the branches. However, each Branch Committee should know the condition of their country better than anyone else and they can also consult with the district and circuit overseers as to the material that may be most beneficial. There may be times when it is advisable to add or delete certain parts to fit the needs of the field. However, generally the material provided should be used since it has been prepared by the Teaching Committee for the world field. You should keep the Teaching Committee informed of any adjustments you plan in the program. Always be sure to arrange a program that will bring spiritual blessings to God's servants, and be sure that it is in good taste. The conventions should be practical and scheduled at a time of the year that will be best for the majority of the brothers to attend.

3. LOCATION OF CONVENTIONS: When national conventions are arranged, then one of the larger cities of the country should be selected. As for district conventions, be sure to have them in cities able to handle the crowd you expect. Over a period of time it is best to have conventions in as many different large cities as is possible and practical, for the sake of the witness that will be given.

4. EXPENSES: The branch will take care of the expenses and receive the contributions for national and district conventions. It should always be remembered that conventions are a real stimulus to the brothers and an encouragement to the interested persons, hence they should be well organized. If the convention runs smoothly due to good organization and loving oversight, the brothers will generally support it well. If some branches find it necessary to provide bottled water, a beverage, or some basic food items at district conventions, circuit assemblies, or special assembly days, this should be explained in writing to the Publishing and Teaching Committees with a recommendation on how to handle the costs. At all such gatherings it is appropriate to remind the brothers of their privilege to support the convention arrangements and the worldwide work by their donations.

5. PERSONNEL: The Branch should appoint a Convention Committee made up of the convention overseer, program overseer, and rooming overseer. These brothers should be elders, good organizers, and have adequate free time to devote to their assignments. If necessary a traveling overseer may be used. It is important for these brothers to be spiritual men who fully manifest the fruits of the spirit, even when under pressure. Usually members of the Convention Committee should also be alert, good businessmen, and capable of dealing with officials and to some extent with business concerns. After the Branch Committee approves and sends letters of appointment to each of these brothers, they will then function together as a committee of three to assign all other department heads as well as to oversee the overall convention operation.

6. CIRCUIT ASSEMBLIES AND SPECIAL ASSEMBLY DAYS: Each of these is arranged by the branch office once each year, according to the recommendations of the circuit overseers. Again the program may be adjusted according to the local needs of the brothers, but keep the Teaching Committee informed of any proposed changes. Small countries with only one circuit, or larger countries where publishers are very poor and cannot afford to attend three assemblies a year, may wish to organize just two assemblies each year, namely the circuit assembly and district convention. Whether this will be done is left to the judgment of the Branch Committee. In countries where restrictions make it impossible to hold district conventions or circuit assemblies, perhaps selected material can be presented to the brothers at their Kingdom Halls.

7. ACCIDENT PREVENTION AND SECURITY: When setting up and dismantling at conventions, transporting equipment or chairs, or groups of brothers, to and from the convention site, give attention to safety. Make sure that well-trained and responsible adults are selected in connection with any installation or use of potentially dangerous equipment, including electrical equipment. Keep in mind the danger of theft and vandalism. Assign alert brothers to keep watch over money and any valuable equipment at the convention site, such as sound equipment.

Chapter 21

News Service and Public Information

1. It is beneficial for the branch offices to establish good relations with the public news media wherever possible and practical.

2. GENERAL INFORMATION DESK: Branch Committees should be on the alert as to the possibilities of advancing the Kingdom message and its good news through newspapers, radio, television and magazines. While we have a news service representative at all circuit assemblies, it is good to have someone appointed by the Branch Committee and working in the branch office to handle general news service matters in case such needs arise at the branch. The overseer handling such a General Information Desk should be one who is capable, tactful, has a good mature knowledge of the truth and knows how to speak to strangers. He will be in contact with news representatives for circuit and district meetings as the need arises. Discernment should be used in deciding whether, or to what extent, inquiries should be answered, especially if a news representative is not known to the branch or may be antagonistic to our work.—Ps. 109:2, 3.

3. A good news service overseer should have available copies of the Yearbook, appropriate brochures, issues of The Watchtower and Awake!, or other items that have something outstanding to say about the organization so that people can get an overall picture of our work. A fact sheet with contact information for the local or branch news representative may be supplied. It is not very often that people call on the branch for information, but if a reporter for the news media is calling for a story, it is always good to turn the inquiry over to the same person who will be alert to the fact that he must be tactful and give out good and accurate information. The Teaching and Writing Committees have selected certain videos that are especially appropriate for public broadcast. This list will be updated from time to time. If a station is willing to broadcast one of our videos, be sure to review our public broadcasting guidelines with the station management. If they agree to adhere to the conditions outlined, a broadcast may be arranged and a copy of the video may be provided to the station. Occasionally libraries or schools get in touch with the branch and ask for some literature to be contributed to them. There is no objection to your sending a reasonable amount of this material free of charge. This may be charged off as advertising. If the brothers in the Bethel home know that a certain individual is the news service overseer for the branch, then they will not take it upon themselves to act as spokesmen when people call, but they will always refer such matters to the right individual.

4. A news service representative is selected for each circuit by the circuit overseer. A Circuit News Service Representative card (S-304) showing the name and address of this brother is then sent to the branch to update its file. This brother has the responsibility to cooperate closely with the circuit overseer, or as directed by the branch office, in promoting news service within the circuit. For district conventions a news overseer may be assigned by the Convention Committee. It is appropriate for these brothers to contact local media representatives to be sure they have basic information on our work and know who to contact if questions arise. The Teaching Committee provides a news kit to branches for use in connection with district, national, and international conventions.

5. In some countries we do not seek to publicize the work because local circumstances indicate the advisability of working quietly and not becoming too prominent. We must always use our good judgment in this regard. However, in some cases what might be misconstrued by the media can become a positive report if they are supplied appropriate information early on.

6. We will not ordinarily use any newspaper advertising for conventions unless it is free; nor do we customarily pay for radio or television time. However, if it seems advisable to pay to publicize our convention activities in your country in some way, the Branch Committee may submit a recommendation to the Teaching Committee. We can provide material that can be passed on in typed or mimeographed form as news releases.

7. OFFICE OF PUBLIC INFORMATION: The Office of Public Information in Brooklyn is established to help counteract the increasing use of the media to slander Jehovah's name and His organization. When the Governing Body or the Branch Committee deem it advisable to publicize accurate information and correct misconceptions and prejudices about us in our work, the Public Information Desk in a branch may handle the matter as assigned by the Branch Committee. Or, if the branch requests help, the Office of Public Information in Brooklyn may be assigned by the Chairman's Committee to assist by preparing a response to the media giving an accurate picture of our beliefs, activities, and intent.

8. PUBLIC INFORMATION DESK: Branches may find that occasional questions related to public information can be handled through normal communication from the Branch Committee to the Chairman's Committee. If it is apparent that there is an urgent need in your area for more to be done to correct misconceptions and prejudices about us and our work, the Branch Committee can make a request to the Chairman's Committee that a Public Information Desk be established in your branch. This may call for a brother to be assigned part time or full time to care for this work under the supervision of the Branch Committee. If more than one brother is needed, request can be made to the Chairman's Committee. To counteract misinformed or slanderous media attacks against us, this desk would provide the media with an accurate picture of our beliefs and activities. In this respect the work of a Public Information Desk is complementary to the work done by a General Information Desk, which provides general information concerning our work and also handles assembly- and convention-related news service matters under the supervision of the Teaching Committee as described in paragraphs 2-6. Be sure to include a complete explanation of the reason for the establishing of a Public Information Desk when making your recommendation.

9. If the Chairman's Committee approves establishing a Public Information Desk for your branch, the desk will work under the supervision of your Branch Committee. Therefore, in the same way that you send correspondence regarding this matter to the Chairman's Committee, responses to such correspondence will be sent to the Branch Committee.

10. As a general rule, we avoid controversy when it comes to minor misconceptions that appear in the media. However, if some in the media spread false information of a serious nature about Jehovah's organization, what can be done? The Branch Committee generally knows the situation in their country, and they will often be able to judge whether it would be wise to try to contact the media and counter the misinformation or to ignore the matter. There is "a time to speak and a time to keep silent." (See The Watchtower December 1, 1998, pages 17-18, paragraphs 15-18.) In a media-related emergency, such as the publication of a slander that could have repercussions on our preaching work in a certain part of the territory or perhaps may affect the work countrywide, the Branch Committee has the responsibility to handle the matter quickly. If deemed necessary, the Branch Committee may wish to communicate with the Chairman's Committee for suggestions and direction. (See 1:7.) If your branch has factual information that neighboring branches need to know, this can also be communicated to them directly with a copy to the Chairman's Committee if it is expected that problems will spill over due to media reports. The nearby branches may then determine what needs to be done, if anything. If slanderous or lying reports appear in the media, it may be appropriate that these be reviewed by your Legal Department, if you have one, or you may write to the Chairman's Committee for such assistance, and request further direction.

11. In many lands where the work is under sustained media attack, the branch may direct responsible brothers, such as circuit news representatives or city overseers, to visit news editors and others with appropriate information. By providing them something in print in our publications they have a source for reference and they may also wish to obtain information from our official website (www.jw-media.org). It is beneficial if there is available a flow of truthful information that news editors and concerned individuals may be able to obtain and thus know what our position is on vital issues that arise.

Chapter 22

Donations and Purchasing

1. All funds received by the branches should be carefully used for the advancement of the Kingdom interests. It is always good to count the cost and weigh the need carefully before recommending or authorizing any unusual expenditures. While the organization supplies the various branch offices the necessary funds for operational expenses, we depend on the Branch Committee to use these funds wisely. Additionally, you have the opportunity from time to time to show the local publishers that they have a privilege to share in meeting local expenses. Finally, every Branch Committee has a responsibility to keep accurate records so that all funds can be accounted for by government auditors or by visiting zone overseers.

2. VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS: The Kingdom work is carried on by voluntary contributions, and the brothers in your country are encouraged to have a share in making such voluntary contributions for the advancement of this work just as the brothers do in all other countries throughout the world. Just because a branch has been aided financially for many years does not mean that it must always continue that way. As a branch grows in publishers it should grow in financial strength and eventually be able to carry its own financial burdens. With the expansion of the work reaching the ends of the earth, all branches have the privilege of carrying some share of the burden of expense. This can be brought to the attention of the brothers at circuit assemblies and district and national conventions in a kind way without soliciting.

3. Voluntary contributions help support the cost of producing and shipping literature to branches and congregations. The organization ships literature and magazines to all the branches either as gifts or at established rates. Congregations receive it without charge. The branches should order only what is needed for field activity. Care should be exercised not to order excess amounts that will just have to be stored for long periods of time, so that funds that could be used in other features of the Kingdom work are not unnecessarily tied up in the form of printed literature.

4. GIFTS AND WILLS: Frequently persons who are Jehovah's Witnesses inquire about the proper procedure for making gifts to the worldwide work or making the branch the beneficiary of their will. The following paragraphs indicate various ways in which that can be done. Similar details can be found in the November 1st issues of The Watchtower.

5. Even though gifts are made during lifetime, it is good that every owner of property or money make a will. Persons desiring to make such a will should have such Last Will and Testament prepared by an attorney. It is good to inquire of the attorney if the person can legally give to the branch the bequest that he desires to give. If it is desired to give the entirety of the estate to the branch, it is appropriate to check with the attorney to see if such can be done under the laws of your country. If the branch is named as beneficiary, it would be good to send the local branch office the executed original will, for the branch to hold in safekeeping, if there is no objection to this. It is helpful in handling the probating of a will if the branch also has a list of names and addresses of all relatives and a general list of assets and where such property is located.

6. Donations of money may be made in the form of contributions payable to Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania, in the United States; or if from a donor located in a country outside the United States, then donations may be mailed to the branch office for that country and made payable to the local corporation. Every contribution should be accompanied by a brief letter stating that it is sent to the branch as a donation.

7. Property other than cash or money can also be donated to the branch during the lifetime of the giver, should that be desired. This would include jewelry, stocks, bonds, mortgages receivable, notes receivable and other such property or equipment from which the branch can eventually benefit. If a person wishes to donate such to the branch that person should write to the branch office concerning his wish and explain what the property consists of, and the branch can then reply informing the person if the gift can be accepted and giving information as to how to make the transfer to the branch.

8. Donations and gifts are acknowledged by the branch when they are received. In some countries such gifts are tax deductible. By making such contributions during his lifetime a donor is ensured that the gift is received by the branch and that his wishes are carried out.—See 5:17.

9. CONDITIONAL DONATIONS: It is possible for money to be given the branches under a special arrangement which provides that in case of personal need it may be returned to the donor. Conditional donations may be made in the name of more than one individual so that if one person dies the other may still receive the benefits, if needed. They may also be made by congregations and circuits. This arrangement is not made by all branches, but can be done where there is branch property or funds that would more than cover any conditional donations made to the local organization, so that there would be no problem in returning the funds at any time. If your branch is regularly receiving remittances from other branches to support the work locally, then it would most likely be inadvisable to institute the conditional donation arrangement.

10. In the case of real estate from which the owner wishes the branch to benefit, the owner may have the choice of either selling the property and donating whatever portion of the proceeds he/she wishes to the branch or simply transferring title to the property directly to the branch for Kingdom service. Local law needs to be ascertained which is most prudent. Taxes may be involved. If the person prefers to deed the real estate to the branch, it is important that the branch first be consulted before the step of deeding property is taken. Also, the branch should determine if the proposed gift of property poses any liability issues for the branch due to environmental concerns or titling problems. If it is the donor's wish for the branch to receive the real estate in the event of his death, then a provision can be made to this effect in his will. If your Branch Committee has any questions, you should feel free to write the Publishing Committee about such matters, giving all information.

11. INSURANCE: Occasionally persons desire the branch to be the beneficiary of their insurance policies and this can be arranged. If the branch or the Brooklyn office is named as beneficiary in an insurance policy we would like to be informed, depending on the named beneficiary.

12. SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNTS IN TRUST FOR THE BRANCH: Frequently persons have funds that they would like the branch to have in the event of death but on which they desire to earn interest and also which they wish to have available for personal needs that may arise. Some such persons put these accounts in their names, but the accounts are also "in trust for Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania," or the appropriate local corporation. Regulations regarding such trust accounts vary from place to place, so a person who is interested in such an arrangement should discuss it with his bank. If it is agreeable to the bank and in accordance with law, the one desiring to set up such an account may do so, naming the Society or the local corporation, whichever is appropriate. A letter should be written to the branch stating that the account has been set up and showing just how the title of the account appears, that is, the name of the depositor and the rest of the wording of the account, the name and address of the bank or association where the account is, and the number of the account.

13. BETHEL, MISSIONARY AND SPECIAL PIONEER EXPENSES: Large amounts of money are spent to support Bethel workers, missionaries and special pioneers with a view to expanding the Kingdom work. Often the local congregation publishers cannot cover this expense by local contributions and so funds are sent to many branches to help with such costs.

14. However, the Branch Committee should be careful to see that those who receive funds for expenses and have such privileges of service are deserving persons who are accomplishing something in the field. If you have persons on the list who are not accomplishing much in the way of preaching the good news and in bringing people to a knowledge of the truth, it may be better to remove them from that field and assign others. Compare their activity with that of others in similar territory. We do not want to be wasteful or spend funds for persons who are not whole-souled in accomplishing the work to which they are assigned.

15. The same principle applies to persons working at the Bethel home. We want dedicated, hard-working brothers and sisters to help with the work, not persons who may be disinterested or more concerned about material benefits than in the privilege of sharing in this spiritually-upbuilding work. We desire to really use those who are devoted to God and take seriously their commission as ministers. We want to support them in every way, whether at Bethel or in the field.

16. The Branch Committee should take a keen interest in helping new missionaries to adjust, so that they will feel "at home" and become effective in gathering in new ones. We fully appreciate that some missionaries are more successful than others and if a missionary is working hard at his field activity, then we are happy to have him in that service even though he may not be quite as effective as someone else.

17. In many places missionary homes are established and Kingdom Halls are provided for in these homes. The local congregation may meet there, and they should be informed that they may contribute something for the upkeep of the Kingdom Hall. Sometimes meetings are held in Bethel homes and a reasonable amount should be contributed for upkeep of the Kingdom Hall on the part of the brothers using it.

18. KINGDOM HALL CONSTRUCTION THROUGH REGIONAL BUILDING COMMITTEES: Many branches have established Regional Building Committees to care for their Kingdom Hall construction needs. Under the supervision of the Service Committee this arrangement functions in harmony with the "Memorandum for Regional Building Committees." Standard Kingdom Hall designs on CAD are used and modified as required. A Kingdom Hall Desk in the Service Department oversees the work of such committees and maintains a file on the schedules of each committee and what is accomplished in its territory. This desk processes appointments of Regional Building Committee members, evaluates loan applications, checks reports on completed Kingdom Hall projects and reviews reports from district overseers following their annual meeting with the Regional Building Committee(s) in their respective region. Each Regional Building Committee maintains a list of local volunteers and trains brothers with good potential for key assignments. As the need arises for additional committees, recommendations are made of qualified brothers who gain considerable experience in this field and new committees are formed.

19. KINGDOM HALL CONSTRUCTION IN LANDS WITH LIMITED RESOURCES: As specified by the Governing Body, in certain lands in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, and Latin America, there is an urgent need for help to build Kingdom Halls. In such places where assistance is requested, the Chairman's Committee assigns the Design/Build Department in Brooklyn to help establish a Kingdom Hall construction program. For the benefit of these particular branches direction is supplied in the "Kingdom Hall Construction Guidelines for Lands with Limited Resources." These guidelines are available to such branches for their review.

20. In such lands provision is made to establish a Kingdom Hall Construction Desk which cares for a variety of responsibilities. These include some or all of the following: The desk assists with the design of buildings, takes steps to meet all legal requirements for property ownership, obtains planning and construction approvals, develops construction schedules, and confirms that all materials are ordered and on site before construction is started. This desk also assigns approved Kingdom Hall construction servants and volunteers as well as arranges for their housing. If necessary, international servants are provided to assist in a training capacity. The Kingdom Hall Construction Desk works closely with the branch Service Department that is responsible for considering where Kingdom Halls are needed and their priority, accessibility, number of congregations expected to use the hall, and related circumstances, while the Kingdom Hall Construction Desk organizes and administers their construction.

21. KINGDOM HALL CONSTRUCTION GROUPS: In lands with limited resources these groups are formed and operate in line with the "Kingdom Hall Construction Guidelines." They are usually comprised of skilled long-term and short-term volunteers who are in a position to devote their full time to construction and are supplied with needed construction equipment and transport. A construction overseer and assistant are appointed to take the lead in each group. Local brothers with the potential for oversight are identified and provided with adequate training to oversee additional groups as the need arises. In some lands with limited resources Regional Building Committees were appointed but their functions were limited because of economic problems, a lack of personnel and resources, or for other reasons. Still they may fill a supporting role to construction groups by locating suitable property, obtaining permits, and assisting with construction projects as circumstances permit.

22. KINGDOM HALL FINANCING: The Governing Body is pleased to help congregations fund their Kingdom Hall construction projects, and the Branch Committee will have the responsibility of approving and monitoring this funding. It should be the goal of each branch to have a self-supporting Kingdom Hall Fund. Unless otherwise directed, no interest will be required on funding provided from the Kingdom Hall Fund. Congregations should be encouraged to contribute to the Kingdom Hall Fund as their circumstances permit, thus helping other congregations build suitable meeting places. The Branch Committee has the responsibility to see that the congregations follow through on any agreements they make to support the Kingdom Hall Fund. Records showing funds provided to the congregations should be kept in local currency. If significant change in currency valuation occurs in your country, you may feel some adjustment should be made, in which case you may write the Publishing Committee outlining your recommendation. If funds are needed from outside the branch, a letter of request should be submitted to the Publishing Committee showing the amount and date when funds are needed. (See 22:53, 54)

23. Before funding is provided for a Kingdom Hall, it is the responsibility of the Branch Committee to make sure that all of the necessary information regarding the project is reviewed and approved. The Branch Committee should be assured that the property selected is zoned properly and suitable for construction of a Kingdom Hall, that the congregation can obtain clear ownership of the property, that the entity taking title to the property is legally valid and current, and that the costs for the Kingdom Hall and its furnishings are modest and reasonable for the area.

24. If the congregation is not financially able to cover the cost of the project, the branch may still agree the project is appropriate and may buy the property and construct the Kingdom Hall with some exceptions. In such cases, the branch would assume responsibility for all legal and financial matters pertaining to the property and may hold title to it. Although available funds should not be the determining factor whether a congregation receives help to build a Kingdom Hall, the congregation should still be willing to contribute to the building costs as they are able and also to cover the maintenance and operating costs of the Kingdom Hall. Since property and construction costs vary widely depending on the country and location, branches should request approval of the Publishing Committee for land purchase and construction for any Kingdom Hall project with an estimated cost above US$200,000.

25. A meeting should be arranged with the elders of the congregation(s) involved and representatives of the branch Kingdom Hall Construction Desk or the Regional Building Committee, if they will be handling the matter. Information should be provided about the importance of properly evaluating the property whether it is donated or purchased. If the congregation is to own the property, it will be necessary to obtain an estimation of the cost of the project so that the congregation will be informed. If the congregation will be requesting funding from the Kingdom Hall Fund, they should determine how much they could realistically contribute month by month to help defray the costs in addition to supporting the maintenance of the Kingdom Hall. To assist the congregation(s) in preparing for a Kingdom Hall project, the branch may find it helpful to supply forms to provide direction and assist the congregation(s) in the approval process. Forms are available from Brooklyn to assist in evaluating the property, to explain what is involved in ownership of property, to encourage regular maintenance and safety checks, and to request financial assistance. These forms may be adapted for local use with Branch Committee approval if the circumstances warrant it. Before the branch releases funds for Kingdom Hall building, all of this information is to be thoroughly reviewed and approved.

26. KINGDOM HALL ASSISTANCE ARRANGEMENT (KHAA): This arrangement provides assistance in the event of property loss or liability claims against branches and congregations. Branches may write the Publishing Committee to request enrollment in the KHAA. Upon approval, branches will be provided with instructions to set up and administer the KHAA for their branch and its congregations. The suggested contribution for each congregation can be adjusted locally according to branch discretion. Contributions to the arrangement are used to pay for losses whenever they may occur. Although availability of funds should not be the determining factor whether a congregation is included in the KHAA, each congregation should contribute what it can.

27. ASSEMBLY HALLS: Branches may request assistance in connection with Assembly Hall construction. Since the construction of Assembly Halls involves a considerable expenditure of funds from the local brothers or from the branch's funds, the Publishing and Service Committees desire to be informed of any plans to build Assembly Halls with basic information as to location, proposed size, seating capacity, initial estimate of cost, and how many weekends it would be used each year.

28. BETHEL HOME EXPENSES: At times brothers working in a Bethel home or printery are careless, not realizing the expense involved when things are broken. If some brothers are careless or indifferent in such matters, it is good to speak to them about it so they realize what is involved. The cost of everything is increasing these days, and the brothers are not always aware of how expensive things can be. Sometimes some individuals put much food on their plates and then do not eat it. This is wasteful and can be expensive in the long run when many brothers are involved. At times they may leave lights burning when they leave their offices, the bathroom or their own room. It is appropriate to talk to brothers in a kindly way to avoid such waste.

29. PURCHASE AUTHORIZATION: Purchases involving the regular daily operation of a branch as well as requisitions for items up to U.S. $1,000 are approved by the Branch Committee unless the branch has been given other authorization. However, requests for any purchase involving the acquiring of property, enlargement of branch buildings, obtaining additional machinery, including computers, buying of vehicles or any other major purchases for the home or printery should be submitted to the Publishing Committee for approval. (The same is true of disposal of property, machinery, etc.) Provide complete and specific information relative to the equipment you intend to purchase, including the cost of the equipment and the reasons why you need such equipment. If anything is purchased at a sale without prior authorization, which might occur on rare occasions, please give similar details. Any brochures or illustrations of the item can be very helpful, especially if the description is provided in English. If you have any equipment you can trade in, find out what you can get for it and show this on the requisition too, so that the net cost can be ascertained by the Publishing Committee.

30. No agreement, either implied or written, should be made with any prospective supplier unless prior authorization has been obtained as outlined above, although it is usually good to obtain several proposals from sellers which can be submitted along with the requisition requesting permission to purchase. Even though a supplier offers an attractive limited-time discount, no contract should be entered without proper authorization.

31. BUYING WISELY: The one who buys goods or services should remember that he is spending funds provided for the Kingdom work, and therefore he should be desirous of obtaining full value for the money that is spent. Often an item which can be obtained at a cheap price will actually end up costing more in the long run due to excessive waste, short lifespan, frequent time- or production-consuming breakdowns, unavailability of parts, etc. One might be tempted to stock up on something like paper, because the price is going up, but before doing so consider how much interest will be lost on the money tied up in the stock. Inventories of all supplies should be kept reasonably low.

32. When choosing suppliers you should look for those who are well established and will back up their products. Usually this means the items will cost somewhat more, but the extra cost is well worth the investment. Generally it is best to stay with a reliable supplier and not be switching from one to another. Because they can depend on your business, they may be able to effect savings in their purchases which they will pass along in the nature of discounts. And in the event of shortages they will usually give preferential treatment to valued customers who cooperate with them and pay their bills on time. Though it is good to check with other suppliers from time to time in order to check the prices of your present suppliers, it is well to bear in mind that some merchants will artificially lower prices in order to wean away a prospective client from his competitor. Later he will raise his prices again. Generally your present supplier will work out an agreeable price with you if he knows that his price is too high. For the most part it is usually best to keep prices and suppliers as proprietary information and not reveal them to competitors.

33. Because of the increasing number of incidents of receipt of damaged goods, poor quality, substitutes or wrong merchandise, it is necessary to keep very complete records and to follow through with the supplier immediately once the problem has been ascertained. Delays may prove to be costly. This requires the cooperation of those in the branch who take delivery of the goods as well as those who will be using them. No attempt should be made to use the merchandise unless and until an agreement has been worked out with the supplier. It is best to have this in writing. Obviously, it may be necessary to withhold complete payment until the matter has been satisfactorily resolved. Some suppliers give a discount if bills are paid promptly. This should be carefully watched to qualify for such discounts. In a year's time much money can be saved by taking such discounts.

34. It is good to acquaint businessmen with the nature of our work. Many prove to be quite favorable and even extend courtesies that assist us in our activities. Help them to appreciate the scope of the work and give them literature if appropriate. Always be courteous and respectful even if they prove to be persistent. A time may come when we could use their services.

35. PURCHASE AND STORAGE OF PAPER: You will want to keep records of the kind of paper used and the quantity as it will help in ordering supplies for the next year. The production report may be helpful in this regard, showing the exact quantity of books, booklets, or magazines that are printed. You can usually get a better price by ordering paper in large quantities or on a yearly contract. On the other hand you should consider the amount of interest you will lose because your money is tied up in paper or other items. If the price is going up, it may be advantageous to increase your stock; otherwise keep your inventory at a reasonable level to avoid possible deterioration and unnecessarily tying up your funds in inventory.

36. While we must anticipate our printing for the coming year, we always want to work with facts and go on past records. If over the past three or four years we have had a 10 percent increase in the amount of paper that was used and we have another increase this year, then we might anticipate a 5 or 10 percent increase in supplies needed. Contracts should be made flexible if possible so that we can buy more or less than our contract calls for. We never want to be overstocked with large supplies of paper that cannot be used later on or that may deteriorate considerably before they can be used. The Branch Committee should use care in ordering supplies just as they must consider past distribution in ordering literature from printing branches.

37. When purchasing paper, the grade and physical properties of the paper should be determined based on the intended usage of the paper. Do not use an expensive grade if a less expensive one will do as well. Usually grain direction is a critical consideration; but if not, you may be able to size the paper so that savings can be effected. Again it may be possible to obtain "job" lots of paper at reduced prices which are not the exact size wanted but will work out to a savings in the long run. Acquainting suppliers with the nature of our work may move them to offer discounts. Prompt payments, or cash payments, may yield further discounts.

38. Anticipate paper needs well in advance of usage so that there will be ample time to purchase at a good price and the paper will be delivered when needed, thus avoiding costly delays. Keep a monthly progressive inventory of paper. From this you will be able to determine when to order. If you can, order in quantities large enough to take advantage of price "breaks." Check with your supplier to find out where such quantity discounts occur. Analyze your paper needs each month. If you must have a small order of a certain grade but it will be expensive to order the small amount, you may be able to supplement the order and obtain a discount with an order of another grade.

39. Bear in mind that the proper storage of paper is essential to prevent damage and waste. Paper should always be kept away from heat, sunlight, oil and water. If you open up a bundle and use only a part of it, make sure the remainder is properly rewrapped to protect it from light, dust, moisture, etc. The amount you store of each grade should be carefully determined. For example, some grades of newsprint usually cannot be kept in stock more than three or four months as they tend to lose their strength, become brittle and turn yellow if exposed to air and light. However newsprint kept within its wrapper and properly stored, can last from six months to a year without harm to the paper quality. It is not good to overcrowd your shop with paper resulting in constant shuffling of your stock. Usually a three-month supply of regular, moving stock is sufficient unless there are special circumstances. For security purposes it is preferable to have a local source of paper. However if you have no reliable local paper suppliers and must depend on suppliers from another country, you will have to allow additional time for shipping the paper. Therefore, orders must be placed early enough to ensure that a sufficient stock is maintained. You must never allow your paper supply to run out. Any items for a particular job should be bought only in the amounts required for approved printings.

40. When ordering job press paper, you should show the sheet size and color. Grain direction is important on heavier stock and should be indicated on your order. It is good to send a sample of the type of paper you would like with your order. A sheet 8-1/2" x 11" will suffice.

41. MISCELLANEOUS SUPPLIES: From time to time we receive orders from branches for household supplies or various types of equipment. If your branch finds that you just cannot get things locally that you feel are essential, and the only place you can get them is in another country, you may put through your order and explain why. However we feel it is generally best to get equipment and supplies locally as generally you will have a better and faster opportunity of getting additional supplies, parts and service. In addition it saves much work for someone at another branch in purchasing and shipping and there may be savings in shipping and duty costs. We cannot start buying supplies at the United States branch or other large branches for Kingdom Halls or assembly halls to be sent to other countries as too much is involved. So all Kingdom Halls, circuit assembly halls, and for that matter, branches, if possible, should get their supplies and equipment locally.

42. If a branch finds it necessary to order something from another branch, such request should be made on a regular Branch Order (AB-3) and not by means of an interbranch memo or letter. If machinery parts are requested from another branch, always give complete information, such as manufacturer, make, model number, serial number, any name plate information, etc. For electrical items, give details such as voltage, frequency (cycles), phase, etc. Be specific and give full information on any item you request. These items should be listed on a separate Branch Order and not on an order requesting literature.

43. PURCHASING DEPARTMENT: We want to be sure to buy what is in the branch's best interests in the long term, so it is important to realize there is more to value than initial cost. To obtain the best equipment and materials involves team effort between the shop or department requiring the items and the Purchasing Department. This requires good cooperation between those concerned. The following procedure is recommended.

44. Departments and shops may do preliminary research in any catalogs or brochures they may have. They may also communicate with other departments using similar products. However, before requesting additional catalogs or technical information or if further research is needed, contact the purchase agent first. Purchasing should also be notified when telephone calls need to be made to outside companies. It may be best for the purchase agent to call, or it may be decided to have the department make the call. However, both parties need to be kept informed. Often a three-way conference call will adequately care for communication between the department, purchase agent, and the supplier. If an outside source contacts someone in the department, the purchase agent should be made aware of it.

45. It should be noted that before any large research project is started the supervisory committee should grant approval and the purchasing representative should be informed. At times the supervisory committee may have brothers other than purchase agents take the lead in representing the branch with outside companies.

46. Any written correspondence for information, samples, etc., should be typed on branch letterhead, signed by a purchase agent and either mailed or faxed to the supplier. Purchasing will accept drafts prepared by departments and will forward the requested mail to the department when it arrives.

47. TRADE SHOWS AND TRIPS TO VIEW EQUIPMENT: All trips to trade shows or other business trips to view equipment or products should be made through or with the knowledge of the Purchasing Department. Reminders will often be given as to what information may or may not be appropriate to share with manufacturers and suppliers. All such visits must have the approval of the supervisory committee.

48. SELECTION OF GOODS AND SERVICES: It is usually in the branch's best interests to standardize on products where possible. Not only can inventories be shared but it permits purchasing in larger quantities that will afford a greater price advantage. For new products it may be wise to have an evaluation period and have representatives from other departments view and use the product. Through a collective review process a determination can be made that will benefit all concerned. If there is a difference between what is requisitioned and what Purchasing feels should be ordered, the department will be consulted prior to placing the order. The supervisory committee should be informed if there are significant changes in cost on an approved requisition, or differences of opinion as to what should be ordered.

49. QUOTATIONS AND TERMS OF AGREEMENT: All solicitation for quotations whether oral, written, or faxed are to be made through Purchasing. Purchasing will accept drafts prepared by a department or shop, but these will be put into final form and signed by the purchase agent. When meeting with a sales representative to discuss the terms of an agreement, a purchase agent is responsible for the negotiations. The terms of an agreement include more than prices. There are usually questions of warranties, service manuals, schematics, shipping responsibilities, payment schedule, documentation, etc., that must be resolved. The organization has certain policies that have been set up regarding purchasing. Since the purchase agents are familiar with these policies it is their responsibility to follow through. However, it is important to involve office personnel, the user, installers, material handlers, engineering, etc., as needed before agreements are finalized.

50. Any follow-up needed to insure delivery, quality, return of damaged or defective goods and warranty matters will be cared for by Purchasing. Purchasing should arrange for a line of communication between the department and the supplier for necessary technical information. The information should be shared with departments and purchase agents. It is necessary for departments to work with Purchasing in a united and structured way to get the greatest price benefit and to speak for the branch in a united way.

51. CAREFUL USE OF FUNDS: The Publishing Committee knows that money is needed to expand the work through missionary, special pioneer, circuit and district activity. However, at the same time we want to watch to be sure that all funds are carefully spent. Is your literature shipped the cheapest way? Do you purchase food in quantities? Do you buy foods in season? Or do you buy expensive canned goods because it is convenient to do so? Can incidental trips be combined to save time and transportation costs? Are you a careful buyer to be sure you get the true value of things?

52. It is very much appreciated if the Branch Committee will assist in keeping unnecessary expenses to a minimum. The funds being used are not our own but are contributed by the brothers from all parts of the world. The brothers have made sacrifices to help with the Kingdom work, so we want to act as wise stewards of these funds to use them to greatest advantage.—Matt. 25:14-17, 19-23.

53. REQUESTING ADDITIONAL FUNDS: It is practical in the smaller branches to have sufficient funds to cover expenses for a two- to three-month period. We want to keep each branch supplied with the necessary funds, but we do not want to have large amounts in countries where the economy is poor or where there is high inflation and the funds are subject to sudden devaluation. Generally if your balance at the end of a month is two or three times as high as your expenses for the month, you have sufficient funds. But if you begin to drop below that amount, then it would be appropriate to ask the Publishing Committee for additional funds to build your branch account up so you do not run short. While funds can usually be transferred quickly, do not wait until the last minute to make your request. We prefer branches to make occasional supplemental requests for funds to cover Kingdom Hall construction when you anticipate the funds will be needed rather than requesting a transfer every time a loan approval is requested.

54. When requesting funds for branch expenses, please give complete details each time on how to send the remittance, including the name and address of the bank, the bank's SWIFT number, title and number of the account, and your address for the account. Usually we will transfer funds month by month to branches needing financial support in an amount somewhat less than their actual needs and then send a supplementary remittance from time to time. However if you find your funds are building up so that you have more than a three-month supply of funds on hand, then you should write the Publishing Committee about this suggesting that an adjustment be made, perhaps skipping remittances for a month or two until your balance is reduced somewhat.

55. If you find you usually have some balance of funds from month to month that you do not use, you may consider putting some funds in a savings account to earn interest. However, we do not want smaller branches to build up funds for that purpose unless your local income is greater than your expenditure.

56. Each branch requesting funds should have a system for checking to make sure that the funds sent are actually received by them. And the branch sending funds should also be sure that the funds they send reach the branch or branch account safely. When your branch sends funds to another branch, you should request that acknowledgement of receipt be sent to your branch. Then you will be sure the funds have been received.—See 15:28.

57. ENCOURAGING CONTRIBUTIONS: The Watchtower from time to time has articles on the matter of contributing to advance the Kingdom interests, and at times information is given at assemblies as to how the work is carried on and the privilege each publisher has in this regard. It is not amiss to inform the brothers how the organization is supported in its expansion work, just as a congregation must be supported by contributions in order to pay the rent on a Kingdom Hall. With this in mind, we put out contribution boxes at conventions labeled “Contributions” so that the brothers may have the privilege of assisting in covering expenses and in sharing in the advancement of the Kingdom work. At no time, however, do we want to solicit funds so that the brothers feel they are being pressured, but we do want them to be informed as to how the organization operates and their privilege in this connection.—Luke 21:1-4.

58. The brothers also have the privilege of helping with the work by caring for the housing and meals for circuit and district overseers and branch speakers from time to time. All of these are privileges of service and require a willing spirit on the part of the brothers.

59. If your country is one where the income of the brothers is low, they may be limited in what they can do, but at the same time we do not want the brothers to leave the responsibility for caring for the expenses entirely to brothers in other countries. It is just a matter of proper education, patience, and time. If they are never told and the branch just goes ahead and pays all of the expenses, they will not come to appreciate their obligation and privilege. Just as we have to instruct the brothers in the congregation as to the need to cover Kingdom Hall expenses, so we have the privilege of helping them understand how the expenses of the branch organization and special pioneers and circuit and district overseers can be covered with their help. So it starts in the congregation. If the congregation is informed each month of their income and their expenditures so they can meet their obligations as a congregation in God’s organization should, then they can also be helped to see how they can have a share also in expanding the Kingdom work throughout the branch territory by their contributions.

60. INVESTMENTS: Any funds on hand that are not needed for day-to-day operations should be invested wisely. With each investment decision consider (1) the safety of the principal, (2) the availability of the funds, and (3) the return on the investment. Dedicated funds should never be put at a significant risk of being lost. Only invest in financial instruments and institutions that are generally deemed safe. Any speculative investments are to be avoided, even if they seem attractive because of a higher rate of return. Always carefully select the length or maturity of any investment so that the funds will be available when they are needed.

61. If the branch actually holds any securities, they should be kept in a locked safe or vault. Securities which are purchased from banks or other brokers, however, should generally be held for safekeeping in the branch's name in a sound financial institution. Any person who is authorized to purchase or redeem investments for the branch should generally not be allowed to perform the record keeping with respect to the investments. Wire transfers or other payments to settle investment purchases should always be signed or approved by two persons.

62. A good investment strategy must include spreading the risk. This is accomplished primarily by using more than one bank or financial institution and, sometimes, be investing in more than one type of instrument or investment fund. Good judgment is needed, however, to balance the safety of the funds with the opportunity to earn a good return. Common types of investments include savings and money market accounts at banks, certificates of deposit and other time deposits at banks or other financial institutions, and government or corporate bonds and paper. If the branch is considering any other types of investments or making investments that are longer than one year, or if there are any other questions about how surplus funds should be invested, the Publishing Committee should be written for further direction.

Chapter 23

Schools for Theocratic Training

1. KINGDOM MINISTRY SCHOOL: The revised Kingdom Ministry School program will offer about 15 hours of study for elders, and when applicable, about 8 hours of study for ministerial servants. The program will be presented in the form of lectures, demonstrations, and class discussions. In most cases brothers from Bethel and traveling overseers will conduct the school. Wherever practical, all of the elders in a given area will meet together for the school over a two-day period; ministerial servants, when invited, will meet for one day. From time to time refresher courses may be arranged by the Teaching Committee to offer progressive training through this school program.

2. Scheduling of the school sessions can be flexible. The school could be conducted over a weekend. Or, portions could be covered for three hours each evening with the course running for five evenings. In some cases midweek daytime classes may be preferable, with the course running for two days. It will be up to the branch office to schedule school sessions in harmony with what is best locally.

3. This school is primarily open to the appointed elders in the congregations. It is recommended for the entire local body of elders of a congregation to attend the school at the same time. For this reason the Governing Body has authorized a special program whereby all the elders in a given branch area may be offered the same course in a comparatively short time, perhaps three to five weeks. This will be organized by the branch. The branch should make arrangements for adequate facilities for such schools, and where available and practical, assembly halls may be used.

4. In some countries congregations may have only a few elders or none at all, with ministerial servants serving in place of overseers, or in rare cases, some may not even have ministerial servants, yet those available are used to help local groups keep functioning and handle correspondence. These may be helped by the circuit overseer when he visits the group.

5. The most recent textbook is entitled "Pay Attention to Yourselves and to All the Flock." (*ks*91) A further refresher course may be offered periodically using additional textbook supplements or other suitable material provided by the Teaching Committee. If there is a supplement the student will be permitted to take his copy home with him for further use. In this way every congregation will have several of these textbooks available for the elders to use to guide the congregations in unity and harmony. In countries that are under ban or where there are serious restrictions, branches may supply the congregations with at least one copy of a current revised textbook to be kept in a safe place for the local elders to use and to study on their own. When the circuit overseer visits, he can help the elders by teaching them from the material they already have on hand.

6. PIONEER SERVICE SCHOOLS: Pioneer Service Schools are established with the objective of training full-time publishers who qualify to open up new territories and organize new congregations. In quite a number of branch territories there are large towns and cities that need to receive a Kingdom witness. There are good prospects of starting new congregations in such places if qualified publishers are available. So pioneers, after training in the Pioneer Service Schools, will be used in this activity in their own countries if they are willing. Even in lands where a good witness has been given, much interest that is encountered could be developed by starting more home Bible studies. Pioneer Service Schools will provide training with this in view also.

7. Good central locations, probably where a Kingdom Hall is available, can be determined upon and classes of 20 to 25 students will be enrolled. The students will undergo a study course in lessons contained in the textbook Shining as Illuminators in the World. The class sessions will be conducted by qualified brothers who are capable instructors. The study units can be spread over two weeks or covered in a shorter period, depending on the circumstances and the needs. In addition to class study and discussions, provision will also be made, where possible, for application of the things learned right in the field, since certain hours will be set aside for participation in the field by both students and instructor.

8. Regular and special pioneers who have been on the list for at least a year and who are qualified otherwise may be invited to attend the school. It will be appropriate for missionaries and wives of circuit and district overseers to be included in this program of training if they have been a year or more in their assignment.

9. Since some special pioneers and others attending the Pioneer Service School may have to travel some distance, there may be need for the school instructor to organize room accommodations as required. It may be that the local congregation publishers will be happy to provide such temporary accommodations. As far as may be possible students will not be asked to come from too great a distance.

10. The branch will care for the travel and food expense of special pioneers and missionaries attending the schools. Congregations in the larger centers may wish to contribute in some measure. It is not the wish of the organization that anyone become unduly burdened in caring for such expense. In each case the instructor will inform the branch office of the needs at each school location.

11. We are sure that this provision of the Pioneer Service School will be of assistance and encouragement to our full-time brothers and sisters, and eventually do much to extend the witness and result in the organizing of many new congregations of Jehovah's worshipers.

12. BETHEL ENTRANTS' SCHOOL: Some of the larger branches have arranged a program for new members of the Bethel family, consisting of a series of lecture periods and classroom discussions following the Bethel family Watchtower Study Monday evening. The Bible, together with other publications, such as Dwelling Together in Unity, are the basis for this course. All branches will receive a copy of this material when they begin operating as a branch. Smaller branches may use the material as practical in their situation.

13. Bible reading is also a part of this program. Before completing their first year at Bethel, new members of the family are expected to read the complete Bible during the first year, beginning with the book of Genesis and ending with the book of Revelation. Maintaining a record of when each one completes the reading will be helpful; appreciation is often expressed by family members for this arrangement.

14. ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS: New members of the family are also given a preliminary series of four lectures relating to Bethel life, work schedule, health, study and other appropriate items. A brief outline of such topics is available from the Teaching Committee and can be adjusted by the Branch Committee to fit local needs as desired.

15. GILEAD SCHOOL: This school has been arranged for persons desirous of entering the missionary service and who have spent more than two years in full-time service. For additional details on qualifications, see 8:2, 3. The Gilead course covers 20 weeks and provides intensive training in Bible study and organization.

16. THEOCRATIC MINISTRY SCHOOL: Instructions as to how the School is to be conducted each year appear on page one of each Theocratic Ministry School Schedule. The publications to be used during the school year are also shown therein. Branches may request exceptions as to material covered, if necessary.

17. MINISTERIAL TRAINING SCHOOL: This school provides training for unmarried elders and ministerial servants who meet the requirements for enrollment. They are given training to care for responsibilities involving shepherding, teaching, evangelizing, and handling other congregational and organizational assignments. From time to time classes are held in the territory of selected branches where suitable facilities are available. The two-month course, prepared by the Teaching Committee, is conducted in English and some other major languages. Under supervision of the Service Committee, qualified brothers are invited to attend. After graduating, they are invited either to serve where there is a need in their own country or to take up assignments in other lands.

Chapter 24

Writing Articles for "The Watchtower" and "Awake!"

1. WRITING DESKS: The Governing Body of Jehovah's Witnesses has approved of setting up Writing Desks on a permanent basis in a number of the branch offices. The objective of the arrangement is: (1) to produce articles that are better adapted to the needs of the world field, and to avoid the "American" flavor that results when most articles are produced in the United States; (2) to include in our journals articles that are most helpful to Christians living under circumstances in various parts of the world, not just those conditions found in the United States; (3) to achieve a redistribution of the writing load; (4) to find additional individuals who are qualified to write and thus give greater diversity to the style of writing in our magazines, while also achieving a broader interest in our publications.

2. The overseer of the Writing Desk in the larger branches that have been asked to set up such desks will be responsible to supply finished copy to the Writing Department according to the schedule made by the Assignment Desk at Brooklyn. Where the assignment is on a part-time basis, he will give it priority over other things when that is necessary. At times these branch representatives of the Writing Department may get in touch with other branches, requesting certain information or special facts not available elsewhere. If this occurs, carbon copies of all such correspondence between branches should be sent to the Writing Department in Brooklyn. Branches that have not been asked to set up a Writing Desk are encouraged to contribute written copy for The Watchtower and Awake! as they have opportunity. In branches where there is such a desk the brother caring for this work, as the branch representative of the Writing Department in Brooklyn, is considered a reporter for Awake! In branches where no Writing Desk has been set up, the Branch Committee coordinator generally is an Awake! reporter. If you have someone who is particularly qualified to write, we would encourage you to try to send in at least one article a year, or more if you are able. If there is no one in your branch territory who has writing ability, you should at least keep alert to what is happening in your part of the world. When an event occurs that would be of interest to your brothers and others in other countries, for example, if an earthquake or other calamity should strike, then you should be quick to tell us about it. If nothing more, you can promptly send us news clippings and your report on such matters.

3. At times an Awake! reporter may choose to submit through the Writing Desk a complete article instead of sending a preview outline to Brooklyn. Probably it would be preferable to handle matters in this way when some newsworthy event takes place (such as an earthquake or disaster), since we want to publish this material in the earliest possible issue of Awake! Of course, the copy submitted under these circumstances should be well written and ready for publication. First-person news reports based on personal experiences and interviews not only are factual but also have human interest that can never be captured in an article that is based on other news sources. Be careful about covering political events, since we are neutral as to politics and avoid taking sides. Nevertheless, at times we can report on governmental news that may be of interest to our readers.

4. Those used as writers must be dedicated, baptized brothers or sisters in good standing with their local congregations and who have writing ability. They should be exemplary, modest, not inclined to talk loosely to others about their writing activity. Sisters may be found to be especially talented in writing articles of interest to women. However, they should not be used to prepare articles that are basically an exposition of Scripture. Whenever anyone is given an assignment to write an article for The Watchtower or Awake!, that person should be given a copy of the memorandum "Writing for Our Journals." It is not necessary that the person read the Standards Manual if that is available locally. However, the one in the branch responsible for sending in the article should be well acquainted with this publication and follow its rules when editing material submitted. This will do much to assure that articles will be usable for publication.

5. PREPARING MATERIAL: The subjects on which articles may be written are quite varied. Some articles will deal with spiritual matters, and these should be written by brothers. Awake! articles may be on such subjects as commerce, economics, government, national customs, science, religion, geography, various occupations, history, social science, and natural history. Since the articles will be read by people in many lands, the subjects and titles should have broad appeal. They do not have to be about the country where the writer is located, although they may often beneficially contain material that reflects the relationship of that country to the subject. This can be accomplished by doing research in books and periodicals published in that land and by mentioning places and customs peculiar to that country, if it is appropriate to do so. There may be other more resourceful ways to achieve this goal.

6. Time in which to do the work of writing will vary with the individual. Those who are not in full-time service can work matters out according to the free time they have available. Bethel family members who are given the privilege of writing can be asked whether they are in a position to do this on their own time or will need working hours. Some may be happy to use evening hours, or weekends for this type of work. None, however, should be discouraged from asking permission to use working time for such an assignment. Generally the morning hours rather than late evening hours are the best time for writing. A missionary, special pioneer or regular pioneer can be granted a time allowance by the Branch Committee if this is needed to care for a writing assignment. In many cases allowing the equivalent of a work week may suffice for an article. Some assignments may not require that much time, whereas for others more time will be needed. For those in missionary or special pioneer service, it would be best to care for a writing assignment within a single calendar month.

7. Article previews should be submitted in most cases before an article is written. In a branch having a permanent Writing Desk, the responsible brother will be expected to work closely with the Writing Department in Brooklyn. In most cases he will submit his suggestions for articles to Brooklyn for approval before proceeding with the actual writing of the articles. This will act as a check preventing two branches from preparing articles on the same subject. If ideas for articles are submitted by other individuals in the country, the representative of the Writing Department can attach his own notes to such an article preview when sending it to Brooklyn. The Brooklyn Writing Department may have other suggestions to offer as to what should be incorporated in the article. These article previews should bear the name of the prospective writer as well as the suggested title. They should be dated and should bear the signature of the Writing Desk representative and of the Branch Committee coordinator. Generally it is preferred that these previews be in outline form, complete with introduction, body and conclusion. Of course, it is understood that if the article is approved, the writer may make some adjustments in the outline as he works on the subject. Branches that do not have a permanent Writing Desk are also invited to submit preview outlines for prospective articles, addressing the covering letter to the Assignment Desk, Writing Department, Brooklyn. All article previews may be sent in unnumbered letters, but completed articles should be sent with a numbered covering letter.—See 1:86, 87.

8. Field experiences and life stories have been used in The Watchtower and Awake! Often the circumstances, attitudes and customs of the people living in the country where these articles originate are reflected in what is written. We should be sure that there is an obvious and worthwhile point made by the experience or the life story. Regarding the qualifications of those featured in life stories, please see the memorandum “Writing for Our Journals.”

9. In addition to suggestions for articles that you would like to write, there may be other articles that you feel would be of value to readers of The Watchtower and Awake! For instance, from time to time subject material for a semi-special issue of one of our journals might be developed. If your Writing Desk or branch does not feel that it can handle such a subject, feel free to submit outlines for such a semi-special issue and perhaps it can be worked out with cooperation from Writing Desks in other branches. Also, there may be topics or questions that could be handled in Scriptural articles, though you may not have anyone in your branch territory who is in position to prepare such material. The Writing Department in Brooklyn would be pleased to receive your suggestions.

10. If you receive worthwhile news clippings, we would appreciate having you send them to the Writing Department in Brooklyn. You can determine the type of items that are likely to be of use by observing the material appearing in fillers and “Watching the World.” Items from newspapers and magazines as well as quotations from books should be accompanied by the complete name of the author, publication, its publisher and place of origin, its date and page number(s). Kindly indicate the specific article—putting a mark in the margin next to any statements of particular interest—and send it to the Writing Department in Brooklyn in its entirety. Please submit a good English translation for any foreign-language clippings or copies of material that you send to Brooklyn. Kindly direct these letters to the Writing Department, Clippings Desk.

11. POINTS TO CHECK BEFORE SENDING IN ARTICLES: Before signing and submitting an article to the Writing Department in Brooklyn, the Writing Desk overseer or an assigned Branch Committee member (in the case of branches lacking a Writing Desk) should read the article very carefully. It should have a good title, an interesting introduction, a well-outlined and developed body and a fitting conclusion. The article should be appraised in the light of what is said in the memorandum “Writing for Our Journals.” It should be good enough to publish for millions of readers. Also, have in mind the possible effect of the article on the people living in your territory. Sometimes it is best not to say certain things, even though they are true. Be careful not to submit material for publication that might cause difficulty for our brothers or for the work in your country. There are many things about which we can write that will not hurt our work and may actually engender goodwill. Of course, no matter what is written, the truth should be presented. Nevertheless, we can be tactful about how we say things.

12. DOCUMENTING ARTICLES: When articles are submitted for possible publication in The Watchtower or Awake! or as a brochure, booklet, etc., it is important that they be properly documented. Do not simply put a bibliography at the end of the article. Throughout the article, please put reference numbers in brackets at the end of quotations and next to facts, which should be documented. Then attach to the article a separate sheet listing the sources alongside the corresponding numbers.

This information is useful to us in many ways and may even determine whether an article can be published or not. With the first reference to each source document, please show the following with regard to books: Full title, author's name, date published, place of publication, volume and/or page numbers. Regarding magazines and newspapers: Full name of publication, a clear statement as to whether it is a magazine or a newspaper (some translators have to know this), city and state and country where published, full date, page number. Subsequent references to the same publication may be abbreviated.

13. If there are direct quotations from magazines, newspapers, books, or other sources (apart from the Bible) in your article, please submit a photocopy, whether the material is in English or any other language. In the latter event, include a translation into English. Keep the original on hand for future use in your branch, as for example in translation. If you are aware that a particular quotation that you use has appeared previously in the organization's publications, please state where it is to be found. Branch Committees can check that the above details are being supplied when sending in articles.

14. When an article is sent to the Writing Department in Brooklyn it must be accurate in every detail. Basically, that responsibility rests with the writer. We should use as writers only individuals whom we know will do dependable research and present the facts carefully. However, when the Branch Committee coordinator or the branch representative of the Writing Department reads an article and sees anything at all in it that raises a question, this point should be checked with the original writer, or it should be looked up to make sure that what is said is absolutely right. If the point is in error, an appropriate correction should be made. Similarly, if statements are ambiguous, they should be clarified. Matters should be expressed, not only with a view to explaining them, but so that they will not be misunderstood by translators or by readers. Avoid use of expressions having unnecessary political or propagandistic overtones.

15. Where possible, photographs or pictures (preferably in color) should be sent along with the article. Photographic negatives and clear slides are preferred. This material will help the artists to prepare good illustrations and give the article real local color. Photographs should be accompanied by signed releases, as explained in the memorandum "Writing for Our Journals."

16. Any article that is sent to the Writing Department in Brooklyn should bear the name of the writer. It should also be dated and the name of the branch should be given. In the upper right-hand corner should appear the Branch Committee coordinator's signature as well as that of the branch representative of the Writing Department if you have a Writing Desk. Such signature(s) would indicate that everything is in order and that the article is approved for publication.

17. Articles of local interest that have been prepared by your branch for use in certain-language editions of Awake! should be approved first by the Branch Committee. Then, before they are ever scheduled for your magazine, they should be sent, together with a translation into English, to the Writing Committee for approval. Branches translating Awake! may fill an average of up to ten percent of the total pages of their Awake! magazine with local articles, but these must first be approved by the Writing Committee as stated above. There may be exceptions, such as "Watching the World," reports on branch dedication and expansion, publishing a report on your conventions in an early edition (while the information is still "news") or making a report on the brothers' loving actions during some local disaster. In such exceptional cases, you have our permission to publish the article with approval of the Branch Committee only. However, please be careful not to say anything that could put Jehovah's people in a bad light, or cause legal or other problems, in your own country or other countries where your magazine may circulate. Send such articles, together with English translations, clippings (including translation), references, etc., to the Writing Committee. Have in mind that we may also be able to use the material.

18. All correspondence and articles from branch Writing Desks will be channeled through the Branch Committee coordinator, the same as other branch correspondence.

Chapter 25

Translation

1. Jehovah God is providing for his people a banquet of rich spiritual food. (Isa. 65:13, 14) For the most part, this spiritual food is initially prepared in English. Since only a minority of Jehovah's servants understand English, the majority depend on translations of the English material for spiritual sustenance.

2. Ideally, all the provisions available in English should be made available to all language groups. However, the publications to be translated are determined by the particular needs of the field and the availability of qualified translators in each language.

3. The Writing Committee decides on the order of priority of publications for translation and issues a list that serves as a guideline for the Branch Committee. If there is a special need locally, the Branch Committee may request that the Writing Committee make an exception to the order on this list.

4. Announcement of new publications will usually be made in the annual letter. However, translation approval should not be requested at that time. When the text is submitted for processing the Writing Committee will send a letter describing the nature of the publication in some detail along with the projected schedule for mailing the translation materials. At that time requests can be made either for permission to translate or for an evaluation copy of the early branch mailing. This arrangement should help branches to avoid feeling obligated to produce a publication that may not be particularly useful in their field. Additionally, branches should not hesitate to request cancellation of translation approval if the material does not really suit their territory or is too difficult to translate.

5. Before initiating the translation of any older publication, you should first obtain approval from the Writing Committee. When permission is granted to translate, a copy of all adjustments (and approved updates) that have been issued since the publication's release will be provided, to correspond with the copyright that will appear on the publishers' page. Approval must also be obtained from the Writing Committee if you wish to publish The Watchtower or Awake! in an additional language, increase the number of pages in the magazine, or publish it more frequently or simultaneously with English. When making such requests, please advise which translators are available to handle the extra work, and the recommended date of issue for the change.

6. The Branch Committee should recommend material that is best suited to the branch territory. In new languages, you usually start out with some tracts, perhaps followed by a brochure. If this proves fruitful, if there is indication of ongoing need, and if sufficient translators are available, additional publications may be recommended for translation.

7. CONTENT OF THE WATCHTOWER: Regardless of language or number of pages, The Watchtower should always carry the study articles. For monthly editions that have fewer than 32 pages, some study articles may have to be omitted. However, where The Watchtower is published in a monthly edition of 32 pages or less, or twice a month, all study articles should be published if at all possible. In such editions, any other articles used are selected by the Branch Committee, not by the translators.

8. When approval is given to publish The Watchtower simultaneously with English, the Branch Committee must determine how the study articles that would otherwise be missed should be handled. Additional study articles may be included in several issues before going simultaneous. Or they may be published as 32-page brochures. These articles may be studied at the Congregation Book Study.

9. The issues of The Watchtower that deal with the yeartext and the world report for the past service year should be published simultaneously with the English or as early as possible in other editions of The Watchtower.

10. Should it be necessary to replace material in *The Watchtower, the Branch Committee may select material from the current Yearbook, Insight, or Awake! (if Awake! is not semimonthly). However, this should be done only in exceptional cases. Generally, such replacement articles should be spiritually upbuilding rather than of a secular nature, in harmony with the general makeup of The Watchtower. Please advise the Writing Committee of any such adjustments and the reason.

11. The early branch mailing of the English magazines will be sent to all branches requesting them. Even if a particular language is not simultaneous, all translators should receive copy containing the comments inserted for translators.

12. CONTENT OF AWAKE!: Where you cannot publish all the material that appears in the English Awake!, the most suitable articles for the territory should be used. The Branch Committee selects the articles to be translated for *Awake!

13. In non-English editions of Awake!, the Branch Committee may wish to use a few local items for "Watching the World." See 24:17 for the procedure to follow in such cases. In monthly or quarterly editions, you may wish to replace "Watching the World" with articles from Awake! that would otherwise be missed.

14. QUARTERLY EDITIONS OF AWAKE!: These may be published when there are not enough translators to produce a semimonthly or monthly edition, or where the demand is limited. These are not listed on the publishers' page of Awake! as "Languages Available by Mail" and are available as congregation magazine requests only. If they can be sent abroad, they are listed in the Watchtower Publications List and in the mailing lists sent to the branches.

15. The Branch Committee may believe that parts of their territory could be served well by a quarterly Awake! in an additional language. Before making a recommendation to the Writing Committee, they should be sure that there are sufficient translators to handle the extra work load and that at least 2,000 copies of each issue will be needed.

16. The publishers' pages of The Watchtower and Awake! show the average number of copies printed per issue in all languages, as well as the number of languages. The publishers' pages of vernacular editions should also contain the latest figures for these items, as they appear in the English magazine. This page should be kept up to date in all respects, including the branch addresses.

17. TEXTUAL CHANGES: At times certain Western items or customs mentioned by way of illustration in the English text are completely foreign to people in some parts of the earth. For example, where "iced tea" is unknown, the translator may wish to recommend replacing it in the illustration with some local drink that would fit the context. In the same way there may be unfamiliar animals, flowers, plants, games, and so forth, that would best be changed to something that will be understood locally, if the context allows for it. Hence, when the translator comes across words and expressions that he believes would present a problem, the text may be changed as outlined in paragraphs 18 and 19.

18. For dated publications, such as The Watchtower, Awake!, and Our Kingdom Ministry, the translator should submit his suggestions for minor changes to the Branch Committee. If the Branch Committee approves, he may then make such changes, and the Branch Committee should report them to the Writing Committee.—See 14:10 in connection with changes to Our Kingdom Ministry.

19. For undated material, such as books, brochures, and other publications of a permanent nature, the translator should submit his recommendations to the Branch Committee who, in turn, should submit them to the Writing Committee for approval before the changes are made.

20. When such are considered essential, changes in artwork should be handled in the same manner as textual changes. If the Branch Committee feels that it is advisable to substitute, for example, an African for a Caucasian, and Brooklyn did not provide alternative artwork, such changes may be made as outlined in paragraphs 18 and 19 for textual changes if someone is available to do first-class artwork. Hence, if the artwork appears in dated publications, the Branch Committee may give the approval. A printed copy of the altered page, with the original attached, should be sent to the Writing Committee. If the change in artwork is for an undated publication, the suggested change along with the suggested new artwork should first be submitted to the Writing Committee for approval. It is best to keep such changes to a minimum.

21. TEXTUAL ADJUSTMENTS: Adjustment Notices from the Writing Department will give direction as to how the adjustments listed are to be handled. If certain textual adjustments are authorized for the next printing of a publication, such usually are made only once during any calendar year. Translation errors may not be corrected without permission of the Writing Committee, and the Branch Committee should clearly explain in English what such errors are and what their impact is.

22. GOAL: Those who are privileged to translate spiritual food into their respective languages should strive to produce publications that are both delightful and accurate. (Eccl. 12:10) However, accuracy takes precedence over beauty of language. Translators should be conscious of being reasonably productive.

23. THE TRANSLATOR'S RESPONSIBILITY: Serious responsibility rests upon a translator, who must see that what is published in the English is translated clearly and exactly for the non-English edition. The translator should get the true spirit and understanding of the material and then make an accurate translation. Quality should never be sacrificed for the sake of production. You have noted the high quality of the language used in the English Watchtower and Awake! magazines. A translation should be of the same high quality in grammar and in choice of words. Translations of publications should be understandable and easy to read. Above all, they should convey the truth as it is expressed in the original English. The translator is not the author. He has no liberty to insert his own ideas, nor is he authorized to summarize a paragraph and put it in his own words.—Compare Luke 1:3, 4.

24. If, for any reason, something must be taken out of an article, the Branch Committee decides what should be deleted. Harm is not likely to be done when something is left unsaid, but great harm can be done by someone's putting in his own ideas or compromising the organization over some sensitive issue. All adjustments made by the Branch Committee should be approved by the Writing Committee before printing.

25. The matter of good translation cannot be overemphasized. It is essential that translated material be carefully checked against the English and proofread before it is released for composition. Please make all changes in the copy before it leaves the hands of the translator, checker, and proofreaders. Following the proper procedures will eliminate the need for copy changes on composed pages.

26. Once approval is given to translate a magazine into an additional language, each issue should be produced on time. (Matt. 5:37) For that to happen, the translation and printing must be done dependably according to the schedule prepared by the printing branch. Once you start publishing a magazine, there is a heavy responsibility to keep producing the publication regularly.

27. PERSONNEL: Translators must have an excellent command of their own language. They also need a good understanding of the language from which they are translating. Although the translation is checked, the responsibility for what is finally printed rests with the translator. Therefore, a translator must be trustworthy and faithful. If the translation of a passage presents a problem with regard to doctrine or policy, the Branch Committee should be consulted. If the matter is not resolved, it should be submitted to the Writing Committee for determination. If the translation is not made directly from English, it would be well for someone who knows English to check the translation against the English for accuracy.

28. Because it is not always possible to convey the full meaning, flavor, or nuance of the English original due to translating from another language, it is preferable to translate directly from English if at all possible. It is therefore good to look for prospective translators among persons who know English. The time constraints of simultaneous publication also recommend that translation be done directly from the English text.

29. The number of translators and proofreaders must be proportionate to the amount of work, contingent on the needs of the field. Their abilities and experience will also affect the size of the team. In order to preserve the well-being of the translators and maintain the organization's high standards of quality, care must be taken that the translators are not overloaded. Seasonal work (such as convention releases, Yearbook, Examining the Scriptures booklet, Index, assembly program letters, convention talks and outlines, drama scripts, and public talks) should be considered when deciding whether additional items on the priority list can be undertaken. Otherwise the production of regular publications, such as semimonthly magazines, Our Kingdom Ministry, and inserts may be delayed or rushed. Additionally, before asking to translate the New World Translation, realize that you will need a separate team of translators. A Bible translation team is composed of a minimum of three translators, a secretary, and a translation coordinator.

30. It would not be reasonable to expect to have a full complement of experienced translators when starting to translate the organization's publications into a new language. But work might start on tracts or brochures with only two translators. They can check each other's work and also proofread the copy. As the workers gain experience and additional translators are added to the team, more work can be assigned if the need in the field warrants it.

31. While the translator's aptitude is important, a good attitude is even more important. So a translator's spiritual qualifications cannot be overemphasized. Younger brothers, though, do not have to be ministerial servants to be considered for translation work. Where possible, translators should not have weighty family responsibilities. Persons in full-time service are preferred.

32. The development of new translators (and proofreaders) should receive ongoing attention. This is especially important when publishing of dated material begins. The aim should be to develop a translation team that can support the work even when a member is away or has to leave permanently.

33. There are a number of ways to find new translators. (1) Members of the Bethel family should be considered first, as well as Bethel applicants. (2) Potential translators may be located among those who attend district conventions. To this end, capable brothers can be alerted to take note of those interested in Bethel service who have a good knowledge of both their own language and English. (3) Traveling overseers can be notified to look for potential translators who have the qualifications and the desire to serve at Bethel.

34. Prospective translators should be assigned some English text to translate. The material should be representative of the work that they would be doing as a new translator. Candidates may use dictionaries and other reference works while doing the test translation, but they should not ask others to help them. Where possible, their work should be evaluated by experienced translators. We should not expect candidates to manifest the skills or breadth of knowledge of experienced translators. Yet their test translation should indicate basic potential, sufficient to warrant further effort, a potential to grow with training and experience. Only if a person meets these criteria should he be selected as a translator. Since all new Bethelites are "tested as to fitness" during their first year at Bethel, those called in to assist with translation should understand that they may be reassigned to other work or be asked to leave Bethel if they do not qualify as a translator.

35. When a new candidate is selected, an experienced translator is assigned to train him if available. After checking each article, the trainer should explain to the new one the reasons for any changes. Discussions with the new translator after each of his articles has been checked are essential if he is to make progress.

36. Not everyone receiving training will eventually qualify as a translator. During the training it may become clear that a person who seemed promising does not have the necessary ability. As soon as this is determined, the training should end. Only those who truly qualify should be used as translators.

37. The overseer of the translation department should be a loyal, spiritual brother who takes a keen interest in communicating and cooperating with the translation team. He should make sure that translation, checking, and proofreading procedures are followed and that schedules are met. He needs to watch the quality and quantity of the work, but he need not personally check all translated material before it is released. The overseer should keep the Branch Committee informed, so that the department is neither overloaded with work, nor overstaffed.

38. EQUIPMENT: Each translator should be equipped with his own set of basic dictionaries and reference works that are used frequently. Normally a translator should have at his desk a copy of the English Reference Bible, the standard vernacular Bible(s), the organization's standard English dictionary, a dictionary of English idioms, an accurate and up-to-date English-vernacular dictionary, and a grammar reference for the vernacular language. The Translation Department and/or branch library may contain other reference works less frequently consulted.

39. The text of the translation is preferably entered directly on computer, since the organization's composition is done by computer. Only in unusual circumstances would it be necessary to use a typewriter or write by hand.

40. An environment conducive to concentration is necessary for efficient production of quality work. The translator should have a suitable desk and a comfortable chair. Adequate lighting and good ventilation are also important. For these reasons, a quiet office environment in Bethel is ideal for translation.

41. PROCEDURES: At least two workers are needed to follow the standard translation, checking, and proofreading procedure. (With small teams, translators may also do proofreading.) Though there is no end to the amount of checking that could be done, once the translated copy has gone through the following process it should be reasonably free of error. The steps are:

(1) Material approved for translation is assigned to a translator who does the initial translation. Articles for study and those on the Christian congregation, duties of elders, teaching, counseling, and field service could better be translated by experienced brothers, if available, who are well acquainted with these fields. However, articles that deal with Scriptural matters of a general nature, or about the home, women's occupations, the beauties of creation, and the like, might be translated by either brothers or sisters.

(2) Another qualified person checks the material by comparing the translation with the original text and writes suggestions on the copy. The copy is now returned to the translator so that he can review the checker's marks. Or, if preferred, the copy can be sent directly to the proofreaders, and then the translator will check both the checker's and the proofreaders' marks at the same time.

(3) The copy is then read by two proofreaders, who concentrate on grammar and do mechanical checks. They should ensure that the style conforms to the organization's standards and that the spelling, grammar, and punctuation are correct and consistent. While a proofreader may make suggestions for improvement if necessary, he will not change the translation.

(4) The original translator determines which of the checker's and proofreaders' suggestions he will accept. Circulating and checking the text in this way increases the accuracy of the translation and helps to develop the translator's skills.

(5) After the copy is approved by the original translator, corrections are made to the text. From this stage on, compares should always be printed out after any corrections have been made, to ensure that no inadvertent errors have been introduced.

(6) After the text is composed, if at all possible, the same two proofreaders who read the copy previously should read the composed page proofs.

(7) A final check should be made by a member of the Branch Committee or a capable brother assigned by the committee and signed as approved before forwarding the translation to the printers.

42. Schedules should be reasonable and allow for all of the above steps to be followed before releasing the composed text for printing. The translators should recognize the importance of following reasonable schedules and meeting production dates, but they should not be forced to rush their work, nor should they be expected to work overtime for months on end.

43. Magazines may be divided up between different translators, but good judgment is required when doing so. Certain articles, such as a set of study articles or an introductory series, require a high level of consistency. It is usually best for these groups of related articles to be assigned to only one person. This is also true of a series of articles in consecutive magazines. Study articles are usually assigned to more experienced translators.

44. A book should normally be translated by only one person for better consistency. Because of its nature, the Yearbook may be divided into logical sections for two or more translators. On a major project such as the Bible or Insight, more than one translator will be used.

45. A brief meeting should be arranged with the entire translation department each week. This allows all to benefit from the experience of others by asking questions, bringing up translation or proofreading problems and sharing helpful information. Such open communication promotes unity and productivity.

46. BIBLE TRANSLATION: When there are sufficient translators and there is the prospect of an adequate circulation of the complete Bible, a request may be made to the Writing Committee to begin work on the New World Translation. A regular edition of the Christian Greek Scriptures without marginal references will be published first. It is not necessary for Bible translators to know Hebrew and Greek. They do not necessarily have to be the translators with the most experience, but they should be good translators who are both faithful and willing to follow directions very closely. Both brothers and sisters may be used.

47. If the New World Translation is not available in the vernacular, translators do not have to translate every quoted scripture directly from the *New World Translation when working on magazine articles or other publications. If a good vernacular translation is available that brings out the general meaning of the New World Translation, use it.

48. However, if there is a specific need for the New World Translation, as when a particular point in question is made only by it, then the verse may be translated from it. If just one word or phrase from the New World Translation is inserted in the text, it should be placed in brackets [], and the New World Translation should be cited in italics inside the brackets as the source. For example: "The Lord ["Jehovah," NW] is my shepherd." Whenever passages are translated directly from the New World Translation, the translators should keep a file of these scriptures as they have been rendered into the vernacular. By using this file, such scriptures will be rendered consistently in the future. The file should be accessible to all the translators, either on cards or electronically. If duplicate files need to be kept for use by translators outside Bethel, all of these should be kept up to date.

49. On the publishers' page of magazines, books, and brochures, the primary Bible translation used should be indicated. If you have the New World Translation in your language, follow the pattern of recent English publications. Otherwise, use the vernacular Bible that you consider to be the best, stating: "Unless otherwise indicated, Scripture quotations in this book [or magazine] are from the ___________________ translation. Where NW follows a quotation, it indicates that the translation is from the English-language New World Translation of the Holy Scriptures—With References." Where you do not have a vernacular Bible and scriptures are quoted primarily from the New World Translation, you should state: "Unless otherwise indicated, Scripture quotations in this book [or magazine] are translated from the English-language New World Translation of the Holy Scriptures—With References."

50. CONFIDENTIALITY: It is important that translators keep their work confidential. Apart from the responsible brothers and those involved in the project, others (including marriage mates and other Bethelites) do not need to know (a) what is being translated and (b) who is translating a particular item. No publication should ever be associated with a particular person. This is especially so in the case of Bible translators. This confidentiality protects both the organization and the translators.

Chapter 26

Proofreading

1. Proofreaders play a vital role in ensuring that our publications are of high quality. The work of proofreaders involves two broad areas. First, there is proofreading of copy before it is submitted for composition. This involves spelling, grammar, punctuation, consistency, and aspects of style to conform to the organization's standards. Second, proofreading involves the checking of proofs of the composed material to ensure that the composed text conforms to copy and to the organization's style, as well as to characteristics associated with a given language. The net result is that the proofreading process confirms that the composed material represents precisely what we wish to print.

2. It is the proofreader's responsibility to check that spelling, grammar, and punctuation are correct and that the organization's style is followed. The proofreader is not to edit copy, change the translation, or reword expressions that are not according to his preference. If the translation is correct, the proofreader must abide by the decision of the translator.

3. Proofreaders work on material only after the translator has completed his work on it and the translation has been checked by the checker. It is the responsibility of the checker to verify that the translator has conveyed the English thoughts accurately. He does so by checking the translation phrase for phrase against the English. Thus, there is no need for the proofreader to check the text against the English or to alter the translator's style of writing. A proofreader should distinguish between what is grammatically wrong and what is simply different from the way he himself might have worded it. There are obviously many different ways of saying things. The intent in proofreading is, not to present alternatives for each statement, but rather to mark changes and queries when grammatical accuracy demands it.

4. It is important that proofreaders maintain their perspective and make sure of the more important things. They have many grammar and style rules to guide them, but the art of proofreading also requires balance and good judgment. While a high standard must be maintained, reasonableness should be displayed. There must be a good reason for each mark. If marks are made without due thought, their effect will be compromised. Marking should therefore be conservative, limited to necessary things.

5. PROCEDURES: The work of the translation proofreaders includes the following:

(1) After the translation has been checked by both the translator and the checker, two proofreaders read the translation, and one of them also does a mechanical check. The copy with the proofreaders' marks is then returned to the translator for his approval. After the translator has reviewed their marks, the approved changes are entered.—For more details, see 25:41.

(2) The corrected copy is compared with the earlier level by using computer programs. The compare results are checked by the proofreader to ensure that all approved marks have been entered correctly and that no inadvertent changes have been made. If mistakes are found, the correction-and-compare cycle is repeated until the text is "perfect," ready for composition. The clean, print-ready text is thus called perfect copy. This perfect copy is composed into pages following the pattern set by the English original.

(3) After composition, the text of the composed pages is compared with the clean text that was received from the proofreaders to ensure that no inadvertent changes were made during the composition process. The compares are sent to the proofreaders for checking along with the page proofs.

(4) The page proofs should be proofread by the same two proofreaders who read the copy before composition. One of these proofreaders must also do a thorough mechanical check. The proofreaders keep the clean pages but return the pages needing correction to the compositor. New page proofs and compares are returned to the proofreaders along with the marked page proofs. This cycle is repeated until all the pages are clean. Clean pages are typeset. (From this point on, the Graphics Department takes over the responsibility to get the publication to press.)

Note: Because the translators, proofreaders, and compositor work so closely together, many branches have found it practical to have the translation overseer coordinate the activities of all these workers.

6. Proofreaders must initial every proofread page of the text and every proof copy of any artwork, such as front covers and maps, requiring proofreading. This assures other departments that each page and each proof of artwork has been proofread even though some may not need to have any corrections marked on them. Otherwise, it may appear that the proof was overlooked and not read. Magazine page proofs are normally kept for one year. In the case of magazines, the old page proofs of the same issue of the previous year may be discarded when the new page proofs are filed.

7. The purpose of reading composed pages is to ensure conformity to the original perfect copy, not to retranslate or refine the translation. It is important that copy changes not be made at this point. Copy changes create much extra work for all concerned, resulting in a waste of time and money. Only in cases of extreme need and with permission of a member of the Branch Committee may changes from the original copy be made at this time.

8. The greater part of translating and proofreading has to do with dated publications, such as magazines and Our Kingdom Ministry. Since dated publications are on tight schedules, proofreading of these should be given first priority so that they may be printed and mailed on time.

9. A systematic approach to proofreading will increase quality and efficiency. It is therefore important that proofreaders make a list of things that need mechanical checking before and after composition. Such a list should be used each time a mechanical check is done to ensure that no points are overlooked. For the sake of accuracy, it is best to check only one point at a time and to check that point throughout the section being processed. Such a list will not necessarily be the same for each language. For example, for languages that use a non-roman character set or read from right to left, proofreaders will need to check some things that an English proofreader does not check, and vice versa. Also, the mechanical-check list for the magazines will be different from that for Our Kingdom Ministry, a brochure, or a book. The main point is that the proofreaders should check for all the things that are necessary to bring the vernacular publication to the same high standard as the English.

10. All proofreaders must use standard proofreading marks. Most proofreaders use the marks detailed in Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary under "Proofreaders' Marks." When a symbol in Webster's is followed by the word "or" and another symbol, only the first symbol is used.

11. STANDARDS MANUAL: The Standards Manual is a guide to the organization's style for English publications. These style standards should be followed as closely as the target language permits. If the grammar, usage, and style principles of the target language differ from those of English, the vernacular standards should be followed. To maintain consistency in these areas, rules and examples that apply to the target language should be determined and recorded, perhaps as a vernacular manual or in some other form convenient for all translators and proofreaders of a language.

12. TRAINING NEW PROOFREADERS: The Branch Committee has the responsibility for ensuring that materials released for printing meet the high standards of the organization. Branch Committees do this, not by proofreading the text themselves, but by making sure that qualified volunteers are adequately trained to do the necessary proofreading (including a thorough mechanical check) before and after composition.

13. A proofreader does not necessarily need to know English, although this may be advantageous. Since the proofreader is mainly concerned with his own language, a careful person with a good knowledge of the target language often makes a good proofreader.

14. A new proofreader should become thoroughly familiar with the organization's style standards as well as the vernacular standards of the target language. This can be achieved by studying the Standards Manual, "Language Information," and books on vernacular grammar, usage, and style. Then, by working closely with an experienced proofreader, who regularly reviews the new one's work and gives instruction in target language principles, the new proofreader will steadily learn the art of proofreading.

15. RESPONSIBILITY: Printing branches are not responsible for the accuracy of the content of publications they print for other branches. Materials sent out by translating branches should be clean and press-ready. A thorough mechanical check needs to be done by the proofreaders before material is typeset. If this is not done, it creates much extra work, correspondence between the printing and translating branches, and delays, or it results in lower-quality publications if the material is printed as submitted.

16. When the coordinator or another member of the Branch Committee finally approves materials that will be sent to the printing branch, he should feel confident that everything possible has been done to ensure that the materials meet the high standards of the organization and can be printed without further correction. Translating branches should produce high-quality publications in a reasonable time, rather than rush to multiply inferior products. Well-trained proofreaders play a vital role in maintaining this high standard.

17. While quantity is important, our production motto, "Better and more books," shows that quality comes first. We want our publications to be of high quality when they reach the public. This includes not only the appearance of the publication but even more important the accuracy of the text. The reader should not be distracted in any way by errors caused by deficient workmanship. It is therefore hoped that the high standard of our English publications will be maintained in every language.

Chapter 27

Zone Overseer Service

1. When it is conveniently possible, a zone overseer visit will be arranged for each branch approximately once a year. The zone overseer is sent out as a representative of the Governing Body to aid the branch volunteers in handling their assignments and to see that matters are being conducted in accord with the Scriptures, and in harmony with directions from the Governing Body. He may be a member of the Governing Body or another qualified brother. During the visit the zone overseer is accessible to all members of the Bethel family for discussion on work that is done at the branch, or on personal matters on which help is required by the individual.

2. During the visit a talk will be given to local Kingdom publishers at a place and time arranged for by the Branch Committee. The time should be one that is convenient to the majority of the publishers who will be invited to attend.

3. During his stay at the branch the zone overseer will meet with the Branch Committee who will be prepared to discuss questions or problems affecting the Kingdom work in the territory assigned to that branch. There will also be a meeting with one or more of the traveling overseers. in the country in order to consider the conditions in the field and the congregations. Also, if there are missionaries in the country, there will usually be a meeting of those having missionary status with the zone overseer unless you are advised otherwise. Where convenient, this may be followed by a special meal for them with the Bethel family and the Branch Committee and their wives in the truth. In some places due to the distance and expense involved in bringing all of the missionaries to one location, you may arrange another place for them to meet with the zone overseer, perhaps on his inbound or outward-bound trip. (See also 8:40.) The Branch Committee will arrange for these things.

4. The zone overseer will be able to observe whether correct procedures are being followed in each branch that is visited and before leaving the visited branch will make suggestions as necessary to assist in providing for conformity to the Scriptures and the branch procedures. He will be especially interested in the spiritual condition of the branch field and in helping to build up the spirituality of the flock. It will be his responsibility to leave with the branch a letter setting out his observations and recommendations, together with a copy of the completed Questionnaire for Zone Overseer’s Visit. He should make it clear that the Branch Committee should follow through on his report in making their own specific recommendations to the Governing Body. The zone overseer should forward to the Governing Body a copy of the above letter to the branch together with the original set of Questionnaire sheets. At the same time, in a separate letter, he may advise the Governing Body of any matters and observations of a more confidential nature.

5. The wife of the zone overseer may travel with him at the branch’s expense if they so desire whenever the trip will require 11 Bethel working days or more. She will be assigned work during the regular working hours in the field service with local publishers or in a Bethel home or branch according to the circumstances. For any trips on branch business requiring less than 11 Bethel working days, any working days that are used by a wife in traveling with her husband will be counted as vacation days and her travel would not be at the branch’s expense. The same principle would apply in the case of wives in full-time service of other representatives of the home branch such as missionaries, circuit or district overseers, members of a Branch Committee and Bethel family who may be sent out on special assignments that require them to be away from their regular assignments for 11 Bethel working days or more. In addition, since a number of brothers travel several times during a year for various reasons, after a brother has been on assignment(s) totaling 11 Bethel working days or more within a service year, the brother's wife may accompany him if he again is assigned to be away from Bethel for a period of at least 5-1/2 working days.

6. By having a thorough discussion of the activities of the branch and the work in the field, there should be a stimulation of Kingdom activities and improvement in the service that is provided to the brothers throughout the world through the branch organizations. The Branch Committees can aid the zone overseer in covering all the important matters by having their data and questions thoroughly prepared ahead of time and available to the zone overseer immediately upon his arrival at the branch. The Questionnaire for Zone Overseer’s Visit to Branches (A-26) should be filled out in duplicate prior to his arrival.

7. While he is with a branch, the zone overseer will usually preside at the Bethel table and he will preside at the Branch Committee meeting(s) held during his visit.

Chapter 28

Responsibility of Branch Committee Members

1. The first responsibility of each member of a Branch Committee is to Jehovah God. He must appreciate his relationship to his Maker and he must give him exclusive devotion. Doing this, he will want to be faithful in Jehovah's organization and his service to his brothers. He will recognize, too, that Jehovah places members in the body as it pleases him. Having been placed in the position of a member of a Branch Committee, he will certainly want to be faithful in his service. At no time should a Branch Committee member get the attitude that he is very important and thus can never be replaced, because if that attitude exists he will not be of genuine benefit to his brothers and in due time may have to be replaced. It is especially important that members of the Branch Committee cooperate together, thus setting the proper example.—Ps. 133:1; Phil. 2:2-4.

2. DEALING WITH PEOPLE: The attitude of the Branch Committee member should be one of friendliness and loving-kindness in dealing with his brothers as well as with businessmen and officials. In some instances he may be a stranger in the country where he serves. If so, he should recognize that the people of that country have a measure of pride in their land, their culture and their manner of doing things. They were raised to appreciate the things around them. They rightly feel they are just as good as other people in the world. Whether a foreigner to the country or not, a Branch Committee member should never take the position that the people he serves are ignorant, or that they are below standard, and thus speak to them as inferiors, but, rather, he must deal with them in kindness and try to please them. He must maintain a good reputation on behalf of his heavenly Masters and set a good example at all times in work, morals and field service.

3. Officials in small countries generally feel as proud of their country as do those in large countries. They do not like to have anyone speak ill of them and make them feel inferior. You can get good results by being kind, loving, peaceful, self-controlled, showing the Christian spirit and being decent to people. Causing friction and using strong, harsh language against anyone causes distrust. Branch Committee members should learn to always control their spirit and keep alert when doing business with officials, businessmen or anybody else. Keep in mind that officials have the right to say who goes into their countries and who may live there. It is not our business to tell them how to run the country. We may be able to have missionaries there and do many things only because of their kind consideration. Let us show appreciation. If you do that you will always get better results. Always be tactful and remember it is Kingdom interests we are interested in primarily.

4. KNOW THE ORGANIZATION: Branch Committee members, whether in a large or small branch, should seek to become acquainted with all the operations carried on in the branch. They should study to see how the work can be done in the most effective and beneficial way and do all they reasonably can to help it to be done that way. A Branch Committee should know if the brothers are producing the best they can and, if they are not, they may be able to show them how to do better. They should be in position to speak to people intelligently about their problems and difficulties in connection with printing, housekeeping and the field service. They should check from time to time with various departments to see how things are going and not leave it up to other people to carry all the responsibility. They share the responsibility. Branch Committees should be interested in everything in connection with the Kingdom work in their country and should seek to expand the work and to carry it on most effectively. Branch workers should love their work and want to see the work improve and increase. All should do everything within their power and with Jehovah's help to get the Kingdom work done.

5. Branch Committee coordinators as well as elders overseeing various departments will find it helpful to keep a calendar of activities. This will assist in making sure that matters that are coming in the future, even though only once a year, will be handled on schedule and not overlooked. This may include such things as the actual count inventory of equipment and supplies at the end of February, scheduled cleaning of Bethel rooms, mailing of reports, the annual write-up, numbering letters starting September 1, crediting vacation time and Personal Expense Accounts, payment of rents and taxes and a variety of other things.

6. A wonderful trust has been committed into the hands of the Branch Committee. They should appreciate thoroughly what a privilege Jehovah has given them, and they should look well to the interests of the work and the brothers in the territory. Keep alive spiritually and "in the morning sow your seed and until the evening do not let your hand rest; for you are not knowing where this will have success, either here or there, or whether both of them will alike be good."—Eccl. 11:6.

7. As overseers in the Christian congregation, all of us "are keeping watch over . . . souls as those who will render an account." (Heb. 13:17) This emphasizes our great responsibility before Jehovah God in looking after the ones who belong to Jehovah. Paul expressed it well: "Pay attention to yourselves and to all the flock, among which the holy spirit has appointed you overseers, to shepherd the congregation of God, which he purchased with the blood of his own Son."—Acts 20:28.

8. Be of good courage and keep going forward with this work. We count it a privilege to be working together with you in the wonderful service of Jehovah.

Your brothers and fellow servants,

Governing Body of Jehovah's Witnesses

«Vigilante, o que ha de noite?

A manhã vem e uma noite tambem." Isa. 21:12

Vol. 1 Publicado de dois em dois mezes N. 1

Anno Mundi 6052 Nov. e Dez. 1923

ESTE NUMERO CONTEM:

«Estarei de sentinella collocando-me na Torre e vigiarei para ver o que Elle me dirá, e quaes as respostas que darei aquelles que se oppuzerem a mim». Hab. 2: 1.

E na terra consternação das gentes pela perplexidade; e o bramido do mar e das ondas (os descontentos desassocegados); mirrando-se os homens de susto e na expectação do que virá sobre todo o mundo (ordem social) porque os poderes dos céos (ecclesiasticismo) se abalarão... Assim tambem, quando vós virdes tudo isso, sabei que está perto, "ás portas, o Reino de Deus. Olhae para cima, levantae as vossas cabeças e regosijae pois está perto a vossa salvação". — S. Math. 24:33; S. Marcos 13:29; S. Lucas 21:25-31

FEVEREIRO DE 2024

A SENTINELA
ANUNCIANDO O REINO DE JEOVÁ

ESTUDOS PARA AS SEMANAS DE:
8 DE ABRIL–5 DE MAIO DE 2024

ESTUDO 5

CÂNTICO 27

A vitória dos filhos de Deus

OBJETIVO

Garantir aos servos de Deus que eles não serão abandonados depois que os ungidos forem para o céu.

‘Eu nunca o abandonarei’!

“[Deus] disse: ‘Eu nunca deixarei você e nunca o abandonarei.’” — HEB. 13:5b.

ANOS atrás, o povo de Jeová se perguntava: ‘Quando os últimos ungidos irão para o céu?’ Antes, achávamos que depois do Armagedom os ungidos viveriam por um tempo no Paraíso na Terra. Mas na Sentinela de 15 de julho de 2013, nós aprendemos que todos os ungidos já estarão no céu antes da guerra do Armagedom começar. — Mat. 24:31.

2 Talvez alguns se perguntem: ‘O que vai acontecer com as “outras ovelhas” de Cristo que estarão servindo a Jeová fielmente na Terra durante a “grande tribulação”?’ (João 10:16; Mat. 24:21) Alguns talvez fiquem preocupados de não saber o que fazer ou de não ter ninguém para guiá-los depois que os ungidos forem para o céu. Vamos ver dois relatos bíblicos que mostram por que não precisamos nos preocupar.

O QUE NÃO VAI ACONTECER?

3 Alguns ficam com medo de que as outras ovelhas parem de servir a Jeová quando não tiverem mais os irmãos do Corpo Governante para guiá-las. Talvez eles pensem assim por causa de alguns relatos bíblicos. Vamos ver dois deles. O primeiro é o do sumo sacerdote Jeoiada. Ele era um servo fiel de Deus. Ele e sua esposa, Jeosabeate, protegeram um jovem chamado Jeoás e o ajudaram a se tornar um rei bom e fiel. Enquanto Jeoiada estava vivo, Jeoás serviu fielmente a Jeová e fez coisas boas. Mas depois que Jeoiada morreu, Jeoás começou a fazer coisas

1. Quando todos os ungidos estarão no céu?

2. Que pergunta talvez surja, e o que vamos ver neste estudo?

3-4. O que alguns talvez se perguntem, e por quê?

erradas. Ele deu ouvidos aos príncipes maus e parou de servir a Jeová. — 2 Crô. 24:2, 15-19.

4 Outro exemplo é o dos cristãos que viveram depois dos apóstolos. João foi o último dos apóstolos a morrer. Enquanto ainda estava vivo, ele ajudou muitos cristãos a permanecer fiéis a Jeová. (3 João 4) Junto com outros apóstolos de Jesus, João fez de tudo para proteger as congregações contra a apostasia. (2 Tes. 2:7; 1 João 2:18) Mas depois que João morreu, a apostasia se espalhou como um incêndio numa floresta. Nos anos seguintes, os apóstatas estavam ensinando muitas ideias falsas e permitindo coisas erradas nas congregações.

5 Será que relatos assim indicam que isso vai acontecer com as outras ovelhas quando os ungidos forem para o céu? Será que os cristãos fiéis na Terra vão começar a fazer o que é mau, como Jeoás? Ou existe o risco de os cristãos se tornarem apóstatas, como muitos fizeram depois que os apóstolos morreram? Claro que não! Podemos ter certeza que, quando os ungidos forem para o céu, as outras ovelhas vão continuar adorando a Jeová da maneira certa, e ele vai continuar cuidando delas. Por que podemos ter essa certeza?

A ADORAÇÃO PURA VAI CONTINUAR PARA SEMPRE

6 Por que podemos ter certeza que a adoração pura não vai acabar, mesmo durante o período mais difícil que a humanidade vai enfrentar? Porque a Bíblia explica que nossos dias são bem diferentes do tempo dos israelitas e da época depois dos apóstolos. Então vamos entender melhor o que aconteceu nestes três períodos: (1) no antigo Israel, (2) depois que os apóstolos morreram e (3) em nossos dias, no "tempo do restabelecimento de todas as coisas". — Atos 3:21.

7 No antigo Israel. Pouco antes de sua morte, Moisés disse aos israelitas: "Eu sei muito bem que, depois da minha morte, vocês certamente farão o que é mau e se desviarão do caminho que lhes ordenei." (Deut. 31:29) Moisés também avisou que, se os israelitas se rebelassem, eles seriam levados para o exílio. (Deut. 28:35, 36) Será que essas palavras se cumpriram? Sim. Durante centenas de anos, muitos reis desobedeceram a Jeová e fizeram o povo praticar a adoração falsa. Por causa disso, Jeová rejeitou seu povo rebelde e não permitiu que nenhum rei israelita governasse o povo. (Eze. 21:25-27) Mas os israelitas que eram fiéis viram as palavras de Jeová se cumprir e ficaram mais determinados a servi-lo com coragem. — Isa. 55:10, 11.

8 Depois que os apóstolos morreram. Será que a congregação cristã ter sido contaminada pela apostasia foi algo inesperado? Não, porque Jesus já tinha profetizado que isso iria acontecer. (Mat. 7:21-23; 13:24-30, 36-43) Os apóstolos Paulo, Pedro e João explicaram que essa profecia de Jesus já estava se cumprindo. (2 Tes. 2:3, 7; 2 Ped. 2:1; 1 João 2:18) Pouco depois da morte do último apóstolo, os apóstatas se tornaram parte de Babilônia, a Grande (as religiões falsas). Mais

---

5. Com o que não precisamos nos preocupar?

6. Que três períodos vamos ver?

7. Por que os israelitas fiéis ficaram determinados a servir a Jeová?

8. Será que a apostasia foi algo inesperado?

Moisés (à esquerda) e Elias (à direita) treinaram alguém para liderar o povo de Deus uma vez, o que Jesus tinha predito se cumpriu.
(Veja o parágrafo 12.)

9 No "tempo do restabelecimento de todas as coisas". Nossos dias são diferentes da época do antigo Israel e de quando os primeiros cristãos se tornaram apóstatas. Nós costumamos dizer que vivemos nos "últimos dias" deste mundo mau. (2 Tim. 3:1) Mas a Bíblia também mostra que, quando os últimos dias começaram, um período muito mais importante e mais longo também começou. E esse período só vai terminar quando o Reino, nas mãos de Jesus, levar a humanidade à perfeição e transformar a Terra num paraíso. Todo esse período é chamado de "o tempo do restabelecimento de todas as coisas" e começou em 1914. (Atos 3:21) Mas o que foi restabelecido? Bem, Jesus se tornou Rei no céu. A partir daí, Jeová novamente tinha um governante herdeiro de Davi para representá-lo. Logo depois, a adoração pura finalmente também começou a ser restaurada! (Isa. 2:2-4; Eze. 11:17-20) Mas será que a adoração pura vai ser corrompida de novo?

9. Por que nossos dias são diferentes da época do antigo Israel e da época depois dos apóstolos?

10 Leia Isaías 54:17. Pense nesta profecia: "Nenhuma arma fabricada contra você será bem-sucedida"! Essa profecia está se cumprindo hoje. Além disso, as palavras de Isaías 54:13, 14 também estão se cumprindo e nos dão muito consolo: "Todos os seus filhos serão ensinados por Jeová, e grande será a paz dos seus filhos. Você será firmemente alicerçada na justiça . . . Você não temerá nada nem terá motivo para terror, porque este não se aproximará de você." Nem mesmo Satanás, "o deus deste mundo", consegue parar o trabalho que está sendo feito para ensinar as pessoas sobre Jeová. (2 Cor. 4:4) A adoração pura foi restaurada e nunca mais será contaminada. Ela vai continuar por toda a eternidade; nenhuma arma vai conseguir eliminar o povo de Jeová!

O QUE VAI ACONTECER?

11 O que vai acontecer quando os ungidos forem para o céu? Lembre-se que Je-

10. (a) O que a Bíblia prediz sobre a adoração pura nos nossos dias? (Isaías 54:17) (b) Por que essas profecias nos animam?

11. O que nos garante que a grande multidão não ficará abandonada depois que os ungidos forem para o céu?

sus é o nosso Pastor e o cabeça da congregação cristã. Jesus deixou isso bem claro quando disse: "O seu Líder é um só, o Cristo." (Mat. 23:10) Nosso Rei já está reinando e ele nunca vai falhar em cumprir sua designação. Já que o próprio Jesus está no controle, nós aqui na Terra não precisaremos ter medo de nada. Mas é claro que não sabemos exatamente como Jesus vai guiar seu povo no futuro. Então vamos ver alguns exemplos bíblicos que podem nos tranquilizar.

12 Moisés morreu antes de o povo de Israel entrar na Terra Prometida. E agora? Será que sem a ajuda de Moisés eles ficariam sem saber o que fazer? Não. Jeová cuidaria deles enquanto continuassem leais. Antes de Moisés morrer, Jeová disse que ele deveria designar Josué para ser líder do povo. Moisés já estava treinando Josué por muitos anos. (Êxo. 33:11; Deut. 34:9) Além disso, outros homens também estavam preparados para liderar o povo — chefes de mil, chefes de cem, chefes de cinquenta e até chefes de dez. (Deut. 1:15) O povo de Deus estava muito bem cuidado. Outro bom exemplo que temos é o de Elias. Durante muitos anos, ele ajudou o povo de Israel a continuar na adoração pura. Mas, em certo momento, Jeová deu uma nova designação a Elias: servir em Judá. (2 Reis 2:1; 2 Crô. 21:12) Será que os israelitas fiéis do reino de dez tribos ficariam abandonados? Não. Elias treinou Eliseu por alguns anos. E ainda havia os "filhos dos profetas", que provavelmente estavam organizados em grupos e tinham recebido treinamento. (2 Reis 2:7) Ou seja, havia muitos homens fiéis e prontos para liderar o povo de Jeová. Assim, Jeová continuou cumprindo seu propósito e cuidando muito bem dos seus servos.

13 Depois de ver esses exemplos, o que você acha que vai acontecer quando o último dos ungidos for para o céu? Nem precisamos pensar muito. Na Bíblia, encontramos uma verdade bem simples e que nos deixa tranquilos: Jeová nunca vai abandonar o seu povo aqui na Terra. (Leia Hebreus 13:5b.) Hoje, há um

---

12. Como Jeová cuidou do seu povo (a) depois que Moisés morreu? (b) depois que Elias recebeu uma nova designação? (Veja também a imagem.)

13. O que Jeová nos promete em Hebreus 13:5b? (Veja também a imagem.)

O Corpo Governante tem trabalhado duro para treinar seus ajudantes e organizar escolas bíblicas para treinar anciãos, superintendentes de circuito, membros das Comissões de Filial, superintendentes em Betel e missionários ao redor de todo o mundo pequeno grupo de cristãos ungidos liderando o povo de Deus: o Corpo Governante. Assim como Moisés e Elias, eles estão treinando homens das outras ovelhas para ajudar a cuidar do povo de Deus. Por exemplo, o Corpo Governante organiza muitas escolas para treinar anciãos, superintendentes de circuito, membros de Comissões de Filial, superintendentes em Betel e outros irmãos. Eles mesmos fazem questão de treinar os ajudantes das várias comissões do Corpo Governante. Esses ajudantes já têm muita responsabilidade hoje e estão bem preparados para continuar o trabalho de cuidar das ovelhas de Cristo.
(Veja o parágrafo 13.)

14 Uma coisa está bem clara: quando o último dos ungidos for para o céu, perto do fim da grande tribulação, os servos de Jeová vão continuar adorando a ele fielmente. Graças à liderança de Jesus Cristo, nós não vamos deixar de adorar a Jeová. É verdade que seremos atacados por Gogue de Magogue, uma coalizão de nações. (Eze. 38:18-20) Mas esse ataque será curto e vai falhar. Não vai ser o suficiente para impedir o povo de Jeová de adorá-lo. Jeová com certeza irá nos salvar! Em uma visão, o apóstolo João viu a "grande multidão" das outras ovelhas de Cristo. E João ficou sabendo que "esses são os que saem da grande tribulação". (Apo. 7:9, 14) Com certeza, nós estaremos seguros!

15 Mesmo assim, alguns talvez se perguntem: 'Mas o que vai acontecer com os ungidos? O que eles vão fazer quando estiverem no céu?' A Bíblia responde claramente a essa pergunta. Ela explica que os governos deste mundo "batalharão contra o Cordeiro". Mas é claro que eles vão perder, porque "o Cordeiro os vencerá". Mas quem vai ajudar Jesus? A Bíblia diz: "Os chamados, escolhidos e fiéis." (Leia Apocalipse 17:14) Quem são esses? São

14. O que ficou bem claro neste estudo?

15-16. De acordo com Apocalipse 17:14, o que os ungidos vão fazer durante a guerra do Armagedom, e por que isso nos deixa tranquilos?

os ungidos ressuscitados! Então, quando o último dos ungidos na Terra for para o céu, perto do fim da grande tribulação, uma das primeiras designações que eles receberão será a de lutar. Essa vai ser uma designação e tanto! Alguns dos ungidos, antes de se tornarem Testemunhas de Jeová, estavam acostumados a lutar com outros. Alguns até serviram no exército. Mas, quando se tornaram cristãos, passaram a conhecer o caminho da paz. (Gál. 5:22; 2 Tes. 3:16) Eles deixaram de apoiar as guerras. Mas, depois de serem levados para o céu, eles vão estar junto com Jesus e seus santos anjos e vão lutar na batalha final contra os inimigos de Deus.

16 Pense nisto: hoje, aqui na Terra, alguns ungidos são muito idosos e não têm mais forças. Mas, quando forem ressuscitados para viver no céu, eles serão criaturas espirituais, imortais, poderosas e vão lutar junto com o Rei guerreiro, Jesus Cristo. Depois que a guerra do Armagedom terminar, eles vão trabalhar junto com Jesus para ajudar os humanos a se tornar perfeitos. Sem dúvida, quando estiverem no céu, eles vão conseguir fazer mais coisas pelos seus amados irmãos na Terra do que conseguiram fazer quando eram humanos imperfeitos!

17 Você faz parte das outras ovelhas? Então, o que você vai precisar fazer quando o Armagedom, a maior guerra que a humanidade já viu, começar? É simples: confie em Jeová e siga a orientação dele. O que pode estar envolvido nisso? A Bíblia diz em Isaías 26:20: "Entre nos seus quartos e feche as portas atrás de si. Esconda-se por um instante, até que passe o furor." Todos os servos fiéis de Jeová, tanto no céu quanto na Terra, vão estar seguros durante o Armagedom. Assim como o apóstolo Paulo escreveu, temos certeza que nenhum 'governo, nem coisas presentes, nem coisas por vir . . . serão capazes de nos separar do amor de Deus'. (Rom. 8:38, 39) Nunca se esqueça: Jeová te ama muito e nunca vai te abandonar!

---

17. Como sabemos que todos os servos de Jeová estarão seguros durante a guerra do Armagedom?

DEPOIS QUE TODOS OS UNGIDOS FOREM PARA O CÉU,

- o que não vai acontecer?
- como ficará a adoração pura?
- por que podemos ter certeza que Jeová vai continuar cuidando de nós?

CÂNTICO 8

Jeová é um refúgio

CÂNTICO 10

A Jeová vou agradecer!

OBJETIVO

Relembrar o que nos motiva a louvar o nome santo de Jeová em toda a oportunidade.

"Louvem o nome de Jeová"

"Deem louvor a ele, servos de Jeová, louvem o nome de Jeová." — SAL. 113:1.

IMAGINE esta situação: alguém que você gosta muito fala algo terrível de você. Você sabe que isso é uma mentira, mas algumas pessoas acreditam. E o pior, elas começam a espalhar essa mentira, e outras pessoas também acreditam. Como você se sentiria? Se essas pessoas são importantes para você e você dá valor à sua boa reputação, você se sentiria muito mal com tudo isso, não é verdade? — Pro. 22:1.

2 Essa situação nos ajuda a entender como Jeová se sentiu quando a reputação dele foi manchada. Um de seus anjos contou uma mentira sobre ele para a primeira mulher, Eva, e ela acreditou na mentira. Por causa disso, nossos primeiros pais se rebelaram contra Jeová, e o resultado foi que o pecado e a morte se espalharam para todos os humanos. (Gên. 3:1-6; Rom. 5:12) Todos os problemas que vemos no mundo hoje, como morte, guerras e sofrimento, só existem por causa das mentiras que Satanás contou no jardim do Éden. Como será que Jeová se sente ao ver todos os problemas que essas mentiras causaram? Com certeza isso é muito doloroso para Jeová. Mesmo assim, ele não se tornou um Deus amargo ou ressentido. Na verdade, Jeová continua sendo o "Deus feliz". — 1 Tim. 1:11.

3 Nós temos o privilégio de ajudar a provar que Satanás mentiu sobre o nome de Jeová. Mas como? Uma maneira é obedecendo a um mandamento simples: "Louvem o nome de Jeová." (Sal. 113:1) Fazemos isso por falar bem

---

1-2. O que nos ajuda a entender como Jeová se sente depois de tantas mentiras sobre ele terem sido espalhadas?

3. Que privilégio nós temos?

Assim como um pai fica feliz quando sua filhinha mostra amor e gratidão, Jeová fica feliz quando louvamos o seu nome (Veja o parágrafo 4.)

da pessoa representada por esse nome santo. Você está disposto a fazer isso? Vamos ver três bons motivos que vão nos ajudar a louvar o nome de Jeová de todo o nosso coração.

JEOVÁ FICA FELIZ QUANDO LOUVAMOS SEU NOME

4 Nosso Pai celestial fica muito feliz quando damos louvor ao seu nome. (Sal. 119:108) Algumas pessoas são carentes ou inseguras e querem que outros fiquem elogiando e falando bem delas. Será que Jeová é assim? Claro que não. Pense nesta ilustração: Uma menininha abraça seu pai de maneira muito carinhosa e diz: “Você é o melhor pai do mundo!” O pai fica muito feliz e até emocionado com o que sua filhinha faz. Mas por quê? Será que ele é um homem inseguro e carente que depende dos elogios da filha? Não. Ele sabe que é um bom pai, mas fica muito feliz de ver sua filhinha mostrando amor e gratidão. Ele sabe que essas qualidades são importantes para que ela seja uma pessoa feliz quando crescer. Por esse mesmo motivo, Jeová, nosso Pai, fica feliz quando damos louvor a ele.

4. Por que Jeová fica feliz quando louvamos a ele? Ilustre. (Veja também a imagem.)

5 Quando louvamos a Jeová, também ajudamos a provar que Satanás mentiu sobre nós. Como assim? Ele disse que nenhum humano conseguiria permanecer leal a Jeová e defender o nome dele. Ele também disse que todos nós abandonaríamos a Jeová em troca de algo que pareça melhor. (Jó 1:9-11; 2:4) Mas o fiel Jó provou que Satanás estava mentindo. E no nosso caso? Cada um de nós hoje tem o privilégio de mostrar nosso apoio leal ao nome de Jeová e de servir fielmente a ele. (Pro. 27:11) Essa é uma honra e tanto!

6 O amor por Jeová faz com que pessoas fiéis queiram louvar o nome dele. O rei Davi escreveu: “Que a minha alma louve a Jeová; que tudo que há em mim louve o seu santo nome.” (Sal. 103:1) Davi entendia que louvar o nome de Jeová era louvar o próprio Jeová. Isso porque o nome de Jeová inclui sua reputação, suas belas qualidades e as coisas maravilhosas que ele faz. Por isso, Davi considerava o nome de Jeová santo e o louvava. E Davi queria fazer isso com ‘tudo o que havia’ nele, isto é, de todo o

5. Quando louvamos a Jeová, o que ajudamos a provar?

6. Como podemos imitar o rei Davi e os levitas? (Neemias 9:5) coração. Da mesma maneira, os levitas davam o exemplo ao louvar a Jeová. Eles admitiam de maneira humilde que suas palavras nunca poderiam expressar totalmente o louvor que o nome sagrado de Jeová merecia. (Leia Neemias 9:5.) Sem dúvida, isso trouxe muita alegria para o coração de Jeová.

7 Nós também podemos louvar a Jeová falando dele com carinho, gratidão e amor. Quando estamos na pregação, podemos lembrar que o nosso objetivo principal é aproximar as pessoas de Jeová para que elas o vejam como um Pai amoroso. (Tia. 4:8) Para nós, é um prazer usar a Bíblia e mostrar às pessoas que Jeová é um Deus de amor, justiça, sabedoria, poder e outras qualidades maravilhosas. Outra maneira de louvar e agradar a Jeová é fazendo nosso melhor para imitá-lo. (Efé. 5:1) Ao fazermos isso, as pessoas podem perceber que somos diferentes da maioria. (Mat. 5:14-16) Ao convivermos com elas no dia a dia, talvez tenhamos a chance de explicar por que somos diferentes. Como resultado, algumas pessoas sinceras podem se interessar em aprender mais sobre o nosso Deus. Quando louvamos a Jeová dessas maneiras, ele fica muito feliz. — 1 Tim. 2:3, 4.

JESUS FICA FELIZ QUANDO LOUVAMOS O NOME DE JEOVÁ

8 De todas as criaturas inteligentes no céu e na Terra, ninguém conhece melhor o Pai do que o Filho. (Mat. 11:27) Jesus ama seu Pai e toma a iniciativa em louvar o nome dele. (João 14:31) Em uma oração a seu Pai na noite antes de morrer, ele resumiu seu ministério na Terra da seguinte maneira: "Eu tornei o teu nome conhecido a eles." (João 17:26) O que Jesus quis dizer?

9 Jesus fez mais do que só dizer às pessoas que o nome de Deus é Jeová. Os judeus com quem Jesus conversava já sabiam o nome de Deus. Mas Jesus fez questão de 'revelar' tudo sobre seu Pai. (João 1:17, 18) Por exemplo, as Escrituras Hebraicas dizem que Jeová é misericordioso e compassivo. (Êxo. 34:5-7) Mas Jesus deixou isso ainda mais claro na parábola do filho pródigo. Jesus disse que o pai viu seu filho "enquanto ele ainda estava longe" e correu para abraçá-lo. Daí, o pai perdoou a seu filho de todo o coração. Isso nos ajuda a entender perfeitamente a que ponto chega a misericórdia e a compaixão de Jeová. (Luc. 15:11-32) Assim, Jesus nos mostrou seu Pai como ele realmente é.

10 Será que Jesus queria que outros usassem o nome de seu Pai? Com certeza. Alguns líderes religiosos acreditavam que era um desrespeito pronunciar o nome de Deus. Mas Jesus nunca deixou que tradições sem base nas Escrituras o impedissem de honrar o nome de seu Pai. Uma vez, Jesus curou um homem que vivia na região dos gerasenos e que estava possuído por demônios. As pessoas ficaram com tanto medo do que aconteceu que imploraram para que Jesus deixasse a região. (Mar. 5:16, 17) Mesmo assim, Jesus

---

7. Como podemos louvar a Jeová na pregação e no nosso dia a dia?

8. Como Jesus tomou a iniciativa em louvar o nome de Jeová?

9. Que parábola Jesus contou para nos ajudar a entender melhor como Jeová é?

10. (a) Como sabemos que Jesus usava o nome de seu Pai e queria que outros também fizessem isso? (Marcos 5:19) (Veja também a imagem.) (b) O que Jesus quer que façamos hoje?

Jesus disse para o homem que tinha sido possuído por demônios contar para as pessoas como ele tinha sido ajudado por Jeová queria que as pessoas ali conhecessem o nome de Deus. Então ele disse para o homem que tinha sido curado que ele deveria falar, não o que Jesus tinha feito, mas o que Jeová tinha feito por ele. (Leia Marcos 5:19.) E Jesus ainda quer que o nome de seu Pai seja conhecido em toda a Terra! (Mat. 24:14; 28:19, 20) Quando divulgamos o nome de Jeová, deixamos o nosso Rei Jesus Cristo muito feliz.
(Veja o parágrafo 10.)

11 Jesus sabia que o objetivo de Jeová é santificar Seu nome e mostrar que Satanás é um mentiroso. Foi por essa razão que Jesus ensinou seus seguidores a orar: "Pai nosso, que estás nos céus, santificado seja o teu nome." (Mat. 6:9) Jesus entendia que essa é uma questão que envolve toda a criação. (Leia Ezequiel 36:23.) Nenhuma outra criatura no Universo fez mais coisas para santificar o nome de Jeová do que Jesus. Mas, ao prenderem Jesus, seus inimigos o acusaram de quê? De ter desrespeitado a Deus! Com certeza Jesus sabia que caluniar o santo nome de seu Pai era o pior pecado que alguém poderia cometer. Ser acusado e condenado por esse crime o incomodou profundamente. Talvez essa tenha sido a principal razão pela qual Jesus ficou "tão angustiado" momentos antes de ser preso. — Luc. 22:41-44.

12 Para santificar o nome de seu Pai, Jesus enfrentou tortura, insultos e acusações falsas. Ele sabia que tinha obedecido a seu Pai em todas as coisas e não tinha nada do que se envergonhar. (Heb. 12:2) Naqueles momentos difíceis, Jesus também sabia que estava sofrendo ataques diretos de Satanás. (Luc. 22:2-4; 23:33, 34) Satanás fez de tudo para que Jesus fosse infiel, mas ele não conseguiu. Jesus provou que Satanás é um mentiroso cruel e que Jeová tem servos fiéis que continuam leais a ele, mesmo enfrentando as provações mais difíceis.

* Temos bons motivos para acreditar que Marcos usou o nome de Jeová ao citar essas palavras de Jesus. Por isso, a Tradução do Novo Mundo usa o nome Jeová nesse versículo. Veja a nota de estudo nesse versículo.

11. (a) Jesus ensinou seus seguidores a orar pelo quê? (b) E de acordo com Ezequiel 36:23, por que isso é tão importante?

12. Como Jesus santificou o nome de seu Pai da melhor maneira possível?

13 Você quer deixar Jesus feliz? Então, continue a louvar o nome de Jeová, ajudando outros a aprender sobre as qualidades maravilhosas do nosso Deus. Ao fazer isso, você estará seguindo os passos de Jesus. (1 Ped. 2:21) Assim como Jesus, você está fazendo Jeová feliz e provando que Seu inimigo, Satanás, é um mentiroso terrível!

SALVAMOS VIDAS QUANDO LOUVAMOS O NOME DE JEOVÁ

14 Quando louvamos o nome de Jeová, ajudamos a salvar vidas. Como nós fazemos isso? Satanás "cegou a mente dos descrentes". (2 Cor. 4:4) As pessoas acreditam nas mentiras de Satanás, por exemplo, que Deus não existe, que está longe de nós, que não se importa com a humanidade, que é cruel e que tortura os pecadores para sempre. Satanás conta essas mentiras porque ele quer arruinar o nome de Jeová e impedir as pessoas de se achegar a ele. Mas, quando pregamos, não deixamos Satanás fazer isso. Nós ensinamos as pessoas a verdade sobre o nosso Pai, louvando o nome santo dele. Qual é o resultado?

15 As verdades da Palavra de Deus têm grande poder. Quando ensinamos as pessoas sobre Jeová e como ele realmente é, algo incrível acontece. A venda que Satanás colocou nos olhos das pessoas cai, e elas passam a enxergar as qualidades maravilhosas do nosso Pai. Elas ficam impressionadas com o poder ilimitado de Jeová. (Isa. 40:26) Elas começam a confiar nele por causa da sua justiça perfeita. (Deut. 32:4) Essas pessoas também aprendem muito com a grande sabedoria dele. (Isa. 55:9; Rom. 11:33) E elas são consoladas quando aprendem que Jeová é amor. (1 João 4:8) Quanto mais elas se achegam a Jeová, mais a esperança de viver para sempre se torna real. Que privilégio maravilhoso nós temos: ajudar as pessoas a se achegar ao nosso Pai!

13. Como você pode deixar Jesus feliz?

14-15. Que coisas maravilhosas podem acontecer quando ensinamos as pessoas sobre Jeová?

Nós louvamos a Jeová quando ensinamos as pessoas sobre o nome dele e suas maravilhosas qualidades
(Veja o parágrafo 17.)

Quando fazemos isso, Jeová nos considera como seus "colaboradores". — 1 Cor. 3:5, 9.

[16] Talvez a primeira coisa que ensinamos para as pessoas é que o nome de Deus é Jeová. Isso já pode ter um grande impacto em alguém que tem um coração sincero. Por exemplo, uma jovem chamada Aliyah* foi criada numa família que não era cristã. Mas ela não estava satisfeita com a religião dela e não se sentia perto de Deus. Isso mudou quando ela começou a estudar com as Testemunhas de Jeová. Ela começou a enxergar a Deus como seu amigo e ficou admirada quando aprendeu que o nome de Deus tinha sido tirado de muitas Bíblias e substituído por títulos, como "Senhor". Aprender o nome de Jeová mudou a vida dela. Ela disse: "Meu melhor amigo tem um nome! Agora, eu tenho muita paz no coração, e é um privilégio conhecer o nome dele." Um homem chamado Steve era um músico que foi criado de maneira rigorosa na religião judaica. Ele não queria mais fazer parte de uma religião organizada porque tinha visto muita hipocrisia. Mas depois que a mãe dele morreu, ele aceitou assistir a um estudo da Bíblia com as Testemunhas de Jeová. Aprender o nome de Deus mexeu muito com ele. Ele disse: "Foi a primeira vez que eu ouvi o nome de Deus. Finalmente eu entendi que Deus é uma pessoa real. Naquele momento, eu percebi que tinha encontrado um verdadeiro amigo."

* Os nomes foram mudados.

16. Como as pessoas se sentem quando aprendem o nome de Deus? Dê exemplos.

[17] Você ensina o nome santo de Jeová para as pessoas na pregação? Você as ajuda a enxergar as qualidades maravilhosas do nosso Deus? Ao fazer isso, você louva o nome dele. Então, continue ajudando os outros a conhecer a Pessoa por trás desse nome. Dessa maneira, você vai estar salvando vidas. Além disso, você estará seguindo os passos do nosso Rei Jesus Cristo. E, acima de tudo, você vai deixar nosso amoroso Pai Jeová muito feliz. Por isso, continue 'louvando o nome de Jeová para todo o sempre'! — Sal. 145:2.

17. Por que você quer continuar louvando o nome de Jeová? (Veja também a imagem.)

COMO LOUVAR O NOME DE DEUS . . .

- deixa Jeová feliz?
- deixa Jesus feliz?
- ajuda a salvar vidas?

CÂNTICO 2

Teu nome é Jeová

ESTUDO 7

CÂNTICO 51

Dedicamos nossa vida a Jeová

OBJETIVO

Ver como o exemplo dos nazireus nos ajuda a ter coragem e disposição para fazer sacrifícios para Jeová.

O que podemos aprender com os nazireus?

"Ele será santo para Jeová durante todos os dias do seu nazireado." — NÚM. 6:8.

VOCÊ dá valor à sua amizade com Jeová? Com certeza! E você não é o único. Muitas pessoas, mesmo nos tempos antigos, também consideravam essa amizade valiosa. (Sal. 104:33, 34) Muitos fizeram sacrifícios para adorar a Jeová. E foi isso que os nazireus no Israel antigo fizeram. Mas quem eram eles, e o que podemos aprender com o exemplo deles?

2 A palavra "nazireu" vem do termo hebraico que significa "selecionado", "separado" ou "dedicado". Os nazireus eram israelitas zelosos que faziam certos sacrifícios para servir a Jeová de uma maneira especial. A Lei mosaica permitia que um homem ou uma mulher fizesse um voto especial para Jeová, escolhendo viver como um nazireu por um período de tempo.* (Leia Números 6:1, 2.) Quando um israelita fazia esse voto, era necessário seguir certos requisitos que os outros israelitas não precisavam seguir. Mas por que um israelita escolheria fazer esse voto? Provavelmente, por causa do seu amor a Jeová e sua gratidão sincera pelas bênçãos dele. — Deut. 6:5; 16:17.

3 Quando "a lei do Cristo" substituiu a Lei mosaica,

* Embora alguns nazireus fossem escolhidos por Jeová, a maioria dos israelitas que eram nazireus escolheram servir assim por vontade própria. — Veja o quadro "Nazireus escolhidos por Jeová".

1. O que muitos adoradores de Jeová no passado fizeram?

2. (a) Quem eram os nazireus? (Números 6:1, 2) (b) Por que alguns israelitas escolheram fazer o voto de nazireu?

3. Como o povo de Deus hoje mostra a mesma atitude dos nazireus?

ninguém mais poderia se tornar nazireu. (Gál. 6:2; Rom. 10:4) Mas, assim como os nazireus, o povo de Jeová hoje continua mostrando um forte desejo de servi-lo de todo o coração, alma, mente e força. (Mar. 12:30) Quando nós dedicamos nossa vida a Jeová, fazemos um voto a ele de coração. Para viver de acordo com esse voto, nós precisamos fazer a vontade de Jeová e fazer sacrifícios para servi-lo. Ver como os nazireus cumpriam o seu voto vai nos ajudar a também cumprir nosso voto de dedicação a Jeová.* (Mat. 16:24) Vamos ver alguns exemplos.

Nazireus escolhidos por Jeová

Jeová escolheu alguns israelitas para serem nazireus pela vida toda. Eles não fizeram votos como os outros nazireus fizeram. A Bíblia menciona apenas três homens que foram escolhidos por Jeová como nazireus:

- Sansão (Juí. 13:2-5, 24, 25)
- Samuel (1 Sam. 1:10, 11, 20, 27, 28)
- João Batista (Luc. 1:13-15)

Este estudo fala sobre os que escolheram ser nazireus, conforme mostra Números 6:2-7.

FAÇA SACRIFÍCIOS

4 Leia Números 6:3, 4. Os nazireus não podiam tomar bebidas alcoólicas nem comer coisas como uvas ou uvas-passas. Os outros israelitas podiam tomar bebidas alcoólicas e comer produtos da videira, já que essas coisas não eram erradas. A Bíblia diz que o vinho "alegra o coração do homem" e é um presente de Deus. (Sal. 104:14, 15) Mesmo assim, os nazireus estavam dispostos a fazer esses sacrifícios.#

5 Assim como os nazireus, nós também abrimos mão de algumas coisas para fazer mais para Jeová. Veja o exemplo de um irmão chamado Madián e sua esposa, Marcela.* Esse casal tinha uma vida confortável. Madián tinha um bom emprego, e eles moravam num apartamento muito bom. Mas eles queriam trabalhar mais para Jeová. Para alcançar esse alvo, eles decidiram ajustar algumas coisas. Eles contam: "Começamos a reduzir as despesas. A gente se mudou para um apartamento menor e vendeu o carro." Madián e Marcela não precisavam ter feito esses sacrifícios, mas eles escolheram fazer isso porque queriam fazer mais no serviço a Jeová. Eles estão muito felizes com as decisões que tomaram.

* Às vezes, nossas publicações comparam os nazireus com aqueles que estão no serviço de tempo integral. Mas, neste estudo, vamos focar em como todos nós, dedicados a Jeová, podemos imitar os nazireus.

No geral, parece que o nazireu não tinha nenhuma designação de trabalho que precisasse fazer para cumprir seu voto.

* Veja no jw.org o artigo "Nós decidimos simplificar a vida", na série de artigos "Relatos da Vida de Testemunhas de Jeová".

4. De acordo com Números 6:3, 4, que sacrifícios os nazireus estavam dispostos a fazer?

5. Que sacrifícios Madián e Marcela escolheram fazer, e por quê?

Você está disposto a fazer sacrifícios assim como os nazireus fizeram?
(Veja os parágrafos 4 a 6.)

[6] Os servos de Jeová hoje ficam felizes em fazer sacrifícios para terem mais tempo para servi-lo. (1 Cor. 9:3-6) Jeová não nos obriga a fazer esses sacrifícios, e as coisas de que alguns abriram mão não são erradas. Por exemplo, alguns deixaram para trás um emprego que gostavam, uma casa ou até mesmo um animal de estimação. Muitos decidiram esperar mais tempo para se casar ou ter filhos. Outros escolheram servir onde há mais necessidade, mesmo que isso signifique morar longe da família e dos amigos. Muitos de nós fazemos esses sacrifícios porque queremos dar a Jeová o nosso melhor. Pode ter certeza que Jeová dá muito valor a qualquer sacrifício, grande ou pequeno, que você faz para servi-lo. — Heb. 6:10.

ESTEJA DISPOSTO A SER DIFERENTE

[7] Leia Números 6:5. Os nazireus não podiam cortar o cabelo. Esse era um jeito de mostrar a submissão completa a Jeová. Se o voto do nazireu durasse muito tempo, seu cabelo ficaria bem longo e outros iriam facilmente perceber. É claro que seria mais fácil para o nazireu ser diferente se as outras pessoas o respeitassem e apoiassem. Mas, infelizmente, às vezes os nazireus não eram respeitados nem recebiam apoio de outros israelitas. Na época do profeta Amós, israelitas apóstatas 'davam vinho aos nazireus', provavelmente tentando fazer com que eles desobedecessem à ordem de Jeová. (Amós 2:12) Os nazireus precisavam de muita coragem para cumprir seu voto e ser diferentes dos outros.

[8] Com a ajuda de Jeová, nós também podemos ser corajosos e diferentes, mesmo se formos tímidos. Veja o exemplo de Benjamin, que tem 10 anos e mora na Noruega. Por causa da guerra na Ucrânia, a escola dele fez um evento para mostrar apoio às pessoas da Ucrânia. Os alunos tinham que cantar uma música e usar roupas com as cores da bandeira da Ucrânia. Para evitar participar desse evento nacionalista, Benjamin ficou a uma certa distância. Mas uma professora o viu e gritou: "Vem logo pra

6. Por que nós fazemos sacrifícios? (Veja também a imagem.)

7. Por que pode ter sido difícil para um nazireu cumprir seu voto? (Números 6:5) (Veja também a imagem.)

8. Como a experiência de Benjamin encorajou você?

cá, nós estamos te esperando!" Benjamin se aproximou da professora e disse com coragem: "Eu sou neutro e não participo em coisas de política. Na verdade, muitas Testemunhas de Jeová estão presas porque não querem ir para a guerra." A professora aceitou essa explicação e disse que ele não precisava participar. Mas os colegas de Benjamin começaram a perguntar para ele por que ele não estava participando. Benjamin ficou tão nervoso que quase começou a chorar. Mesmo assim, ele repetiu para a classe inteira o que tinha dito para a professora. Depois, Benjamin contou para seus pais que sentiu que Jeová o ajudou a defender sua fé.

9 As pessoas percebem que nós somos diferentes porque obedecemos a Jeová. Nós precisamos de coragem para falar a outros, no trabalho ou na escola, que somos Testemunhas de Jeová. Quanto mais a situação do mundo piora, mais difícil será viver de acordo com os princípios da Bíblia e falar das boas novas para outros. (2 Tim. 1:8; 3:13) Sempre se lembre que 'alegramos o coração de Jeová' quando temos coragem de ser diferentes daqueles que não servem a ele. — Pro. 27:11; Mal. 3:18.

9. Como podemos alegrar o coração de Jeová?

COLOQUE JEOVÁ EM PRIMEIRO LUGAR NA SUA VIDA

10 Leia Números 6:6, 7. Os nazireus não podiam se aproximar de uma pessoa morta. Para nós, isso talvez não seja um grande sacrifício. Mas seria um grande desafio para um nazireu se um parente próximo morresse. Naquela época, durante o funeral, era comum as pessoas ficarem perto do corpo. (João 19:39, 40; Atos 9:36-40) Mas o nazireu não podia seguir esse tipo de costume. Mesmo quando passava por esse período difícil de luto, ele continuava cumprindo seu voto. Isso mostrava que ele tinha uma fé muito forte. Com certeza, Jeová dava força para os nazireus lidarem com esses desafios.

11 Nós levamos muito a sério nossa

10. Por que era difícil para os nazireus seguirem a ordem que está em Números 6:6, 7?

11. O que nós queremos fazer quando tomarmos decisões sobre assuntos familiares? (Veja também a imagem.)

Um nazireu que era leal a seu voto estava disposto a ser diferente
(Veja o parágrafo 7.)

Você está disposto a colocar a vontade de Jeová em primeiro lugar mesmo quando a situação for muito difícil?
(Veja o parágrafo 11.)

dedicação a Jeová. Por isso pensamos bem antes de tomar decisões sobre assuntos familiares. Nós nos esforçamos para cuidar das necessidades da nossa família, mas nunca colocamos a vontade da nossa família acima da vontade de Jeová. (Mat. 10:35-37; 1 Tim. 5:8) Às vezes, temos que tomar decisões que nossos parentes não gostam, mas que agradam a Jeová.

12 Veja o exemplo de Alexandru e sua esposa, Dorina. Eles começaram a estudar a Bíblia e, depois de um ano, Dorina decidiu parar e queria que Alexandru parasse também. Com calma e com jeito, ele disse que não ia parar. Dorina não gostou disso e tentou fazer com que ele parasse de estudar. Alexandru explica que tentava entender por que ela estava agindo assim, mas não foi fácil para ele. Às vezes, quando Dorina criticava Alexandru e falava de modo rude com ele, ele ficava com vontade de desistir do estudo da Bíblia. Mesmo assim, Alexandru continuou colocando Jeová em primeiro lugar e, ao mesmo tempo, mostrando amor e respeito por sua esposa. Por causa do bom exemplo de Alexandru, ela decidiu voltar a estudar a Bíblia e depois foi batizada. — Veja no jw.org o vídeo Alexandru e Dorina Văcar: "O Amor É Paciente e Bondoso", na série "A Verdade Transforma Vidas".

13 Jeová é o criador da família e quer que a nossa família seja feliz. (Efé. 3:14, 15) Se quisermos ser felizes de verdade, precisamos fazer as coisas do modo de Jeová. Nunca duvide que Jeová fica feliz com os sacrifícios que você faz para servi-lo enquanto cuida de sua família e a trata com amor e respeito. — Rom. 12:10.

INCENTIVE OUTROS A IMITAR OS NAZIREUS

14 Todos os que escolhem servir a Jeová hoje precisam estar dispostos a fazer sacrifícios por amor a ele. Às vezes, fazer isso não é fácil. Como podemos ajudar outros a fazer sacrifícios a Jeová? Podemos encorajá-los por meio das nossas palavras. (Jó 16:5) Será que alguns irmãos da sua congregação es-

12. Como Alexandru agiu ao lidar com sua esposa?

13. Como podemos mostrar amor por Jeová e pela nossa família?

14. Precisamos encorajar principalmente quem com nossas palavras?

tão tentando simplificar a vida para fazer mais para Jeová? Você conhece jovens que estão mostrando coragem para ser diferentes de outros na escola, mesmo que isso seja muito difícil? Consegue pensar em algum irmão ou estudante da Bíblia que está lutando para continuar fiel apesar da oposição da família? Esteja determinado a fazer de tudo para encorajar essas pessoas e falar o quanto você as admira pela coragem que mostram e por tudo o que estão fazendo por Jeová. — Filêm. 4, 5, 7.

15 Às vezes, também podemos oferecer alguma ajuda para nossos irmãos que estão no serviço de tempo integral. (Pro. 19:17; Heb. 13:16) Foi isso que uma irmã idosa, que mora no Sri Lanka, quis fazer. Ela recebeu um aumento na aposentadoria e quis ajudar duas irmãs pioneiras que estavam com dificuldades financeiras a continuar no serviço. Então ela separava uma quantia todo mês para ajudá-las a pagar a conta de telefone. Essa foi uma atitude muito bonita dessa irmã!

15. Como alguns ajudam os que estão no tempo integral?

16 Com certeza, nós aprendemos muito com os nazireus! Entre outras coisas, o exemplo deles nos ensina sobre nosso Pai, Jeová. Ele sabe que nós queremos agradá-lo e que estamos dispostos a fazer sacrifícios para cumprir nossa dedicação. Jeová dá a cada um de nós a honra de escolher como queremos mostrar o amor que sentimos por ele. (Pro. 23:15, 16; Mar. 10:28-30; 1 João 4:19) Estudar sobre os nazireus nos ajuda a ver que Jeová valoriza nossos sacrifícios e nos ama por tudo o que fazemos por ele. Vamos fazer de tudo para continuar servindo a Jeová e sempre estar dispostos a dar a ele o nosso melhor.

16. O que podemos aprender com os nazireus?

DESCRIÇÃO DA IMAGEM Página 18: Do terraço de casa, um nazireu vê o funeral de um parente amado. Por causa do seu voto a Jeová, ele não pode participar do funeral.

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- De que maneiras os nazireus eram corajosos e estavam dispostos a fazer sacrifícios?
- Como nós podemos incentivar outros a imitar os nazireus e fazer sacrifícios a Jeová?
- O que você aprendeu sobre nosso Pai, Jeová?

CÂNTICO 124

Sempre leais

ESTUDO 8

Confie na maneira de Jeová guiar seu povo

CÂNTICO 123

Obedecemos a Jeová e à sua organização

OBJETIVO

Entender como Jeová está guiando o seu povo hoje e ver as bênçãos que recebemos quando confiamos na sua maneira de nos guiar.

"Eu, Jeová, sou . . . Aquele que o guia." — ISA. 48:17.

IMAGINE que você está perdido no meio do mato. Há perigos por toda parte: animais selvagens, insetos que transmitem doenças, plantas venenosas, buracos e pedras. Você se sentiria muito mais tranquilo se tivesse um guia experiente que soubesse exatamente onde é perigoso e como se manter seguro! O mundo hoje é como esse lugar; está cheio de perigos que ameaçam principalmente o nosso bem-estar espiritual e nossa amizade com Jeová. Mas nós já temos o Guia perfeito: Jeová. Ele nos leva para bem longe do perigo e nos ajuda a chegar ao nosso destino — a vida eterna no novo mundo.

2 Como Jeová nos guia? Principalmente por meio da sua Palavra, a Bíblia. Mas ele também usa humanos para nos guiar. Por exemplo, ele usa "o escravo fiel e prudente" para nos dar alimento espiritual e nos ajudar a tomar boas decisões. (Mat. 24:45) Jeová também usa outros homens, como os superintendentes de circuito e os anciãos da congregação. Eles nos dão encorajamento e instrução para nos ajudar a enfrentar dificuldades. Nós somos muito gratos por Jeová nos guiar tão bem durante os tempos difíceis em que vivemos hoje, antes de o fim chegar. Toda essa orientação nos ajuda a continuar sendo amigos de Jeová e a continuar andando no caminho para a vida eterna.

3 Mesmo assim, às vezes pode ser difícil seguir a orientação de Jeová, ainda mais quando essa orientação é dada por homens imperfeitos. Mas por quê? Talvez o conselho não seja o que a gente gostaria de ouvir. Ou podemos pensar que a orientação não faz muito sentido e achar que ela

---

1. Que ilustração nos ajuda a entender que precisamos de Jeová como nosso Guia?

2. Como Jeová nos guia?

3. O que vamos ver neste estudo?

não veio de Jeová. É nesses momentos que mais precisamos confiar que Jeová está liderando seu povo e que seguir sua orientação é sempre bom para nós. Para nos ajudar a fortalecer nossa confiança, este estudo vai analisar: (1) como Jeová guiou seu povo no passado, (2) como ele está guiando seu povo hoje e (3) por que é importante continuar confiando na orientação de Jeová.

COMO JEOVÁ GUIOU A NAÇÃO DE ISRAEL?

4 Jeová designou Moisés para levar os israelitas para fora do Egito. E Jeová deu aos israelitas provas bem claras de que ele estava usando Moisés para guiá-los. Por exemplo, Jeová usou uma coluna de nuvem durante o dia e uma de fogo durante a noite. (Êxo. 13:21) Moisés seguiu essa coluna e assim levou os israelitas para o Mar Vermelho. O povo entrou em pânico quando viu que estavam cercados entre o mar e o exército do Egito. Eles começaram a pensar que Moisés tinha cometido um grande erro por guiá-los até o Mar Vermelho. Mas Moisés não tinha cometido nenhum erro; foi Jeová que levou seu povo até lá e usou Moisés para fazer isso. (Êxo. 14:2) Essa foi a oportunidade que Jeová queria para mostrar seu poder de uma maneira incrível. — Êxo. 14:26-28.

5 Pelos próximos 40 anos, Moisés continuou confiando nas orientações de Jeová para guiar Seu povo pelo deserto.* Por um tempo, Jeová deixou que a coluna de nuvem ficasse sobre a tenda de Moisés para que todos os israelitas pudessem vê-la. (Êxo. 33:7, 9, 10) Jeová falava com Moisés de dentro da coluna, e Moisés passava todas as instruções para o povo. (Sal. 99:7) Os israelitas podiam ver claramente que Jeová estava usando Moisés para guiá-los.

6 Infelizmente, a maioria dos israelitas ignorou todas as provas de que Jeová estava falando por meio de Moisés. (Leia Números 14:2, 10, 11.) Várias vezes, eles se recusaram a reconhecer que Jeová estava usando Moisés. Por causa disso, Jeová não permitiu que aquela geração de israelitas entrasse na Terra Prometida. — Núm. 14:30.

7 Por outro lado, alguns israelitas seguiram a orientação de Jeová. Por exemplo, Jeová disse: "Calebe . . . persistiu em me seguir de todo o coração." (Leia Números 14:24.) Jeová recompensou Calebe e deixou que ele escolhesse onde queria morar na Terra Prometida. (Jos. 14:12-14) A geração seguinte de israelitas também continuou seguindo a orientação de Jeová. Depois da morte de Moisés, Josué se tornou o líder, e os israelitas "o respeitaram profundamente durante todos os dias da vida dele". (Jos. 4:14) O resultado foi que Jeová abençoou os israelitas e deu a eles a terra que tinha prometido. — Jos. 21:43, 44.

8 Anos depois, Jeová escolheu juízes para guiar seu povo. E durante o período dos reis, Jeová escolheu profetas para fazer isso. Os reis que eram fiéis

---

* Jeová também designou um anjo "que ia à frente do povo de Israel", guiando a nação até a Terra Prometida. Fica claro que esse anjo era Miguel; esse é o nome usado para se referir a Jesus como líder de todos os anjos. — Êxo. 14:19; 32:34.

4-5. Como Jeová mostrou que estava usando Moisés para guiar Israel? (Veja a imagem da capa.)

6. Como os israelitas reagiam às orientações que Jeová dava a eles? (Números 14:2, 10, 11)

7. Como alguns israelitas mostraram que confiavam na maneira de Jeová guiar seu povo? (Números 14:24) (Veja também a imagem.)

8. Explique como Jeová guiou seu povo na época dos reis. (Veja também a imagem.)

Desde os tempos antigos até os dias de hoje, Jeová tem usado homens para guiar seu povo
(Veja o parágrafo 3.)

Moisés e seu sucessor, Josué
(Veja os parágrafos 5 e 7.)

O rei Ezequias e o profeta Isaías
(Veja o parágrafo 8.)

a Jeová podiam contar com o conselho dos profetas. Por exemplo, o rei Davi aceitou com humildade a correção do profeta Natã. (2 Sam. 12:7, 13; 1 Crô. 17:3, 4) O rei Jeosafá seguiu o conselho do profeta Jaaziel para saber o que fazer com o povo e os incentivou a 'ter fé nos profetas de Deus'. (2 Crô. 20:14, 15, 20) Já o rei Ezequias procurou pelo profeta Isaías quando estava aflito. (Isa. 37:1-6) Sempre que os reis seguiam a orientação de Jeová, eles eram abençoados e toda a nação ficava protegida. (2 Crô. 20:29, 30; 32:22) Era óbvio que Jeová estava usando os profetas para guiar Seu povo. Mesmo assim, o povo e a maioria dos reis rejeitaram os profetas de Jeová. — Jer. 35:12-15.

COMO JEOVÁ GUIOU OS PRIMEIROS CRISTÃOS?

[9] Jeová formou a congregação cristã no Pentecostes do ano 33. Mas como ele guiou aqueles primeiros cristãos? Jeová designou Jesus como cabeça da congregação. (Efé. 5:23) Só que Jesus não falava diretamente com cada pessoa para dizer o que deveria fazer. Ele usou os apóstolos e os anciãos que estavam em Jerusalém para orientar os primeiros cristãos. (Atos 15:1, 2) Além disso, anciãos também foram designados para orientar as congregações. — 1 Tes. 5:12; Tito 1:5.

[10] Será que os primeiros cristãos confiaram na maneira de Jeová guiar seu povo? Sim! A maioria deles ficava feliz e 'se alegrava com o encorajamento' e as instruções que recebiam. (Leia Atos 15:30, 31.) Mas e hoje? Como Jeová está guiando seu povo?

COMO JEOVÁ NOS GUIA HOJE?

[11] Jeová continua guiando o seu povo hoje. Ele faz isso por meio da sua Palavra, a Bíblia, e por meio do seu Filho Jesus, o cabeça da congregação. Mas será que

9. Quem Jeová usou para guiar os primeiros cristãos? (Veja também a imagem.)

10. (a) Como os primeiros cristãos reagiam às orientações que recebiam? (Atos 15:30, 31) (b) Por que alguns não confiavam nos homens que Jeová usava para guiar seu povo? (Veja o quadro "Por que alguns não aceitam que Jeová use humanos para guiar seu povo?".)

11. Dê um exemplo de como Jeová está guiando seu povo atualmente.

Os apóstolos e anciãos em Jerusalém
(Veja o parágrafo 9.)

O Corpo Governante atualmente
(Veja o parágrafo 14.)

temos provas claras de que Jeová continua usando humanos para guiar seu povo? Sim. Veja por exemplo o que aconteceu a partir do ano 1870. Charles Russell e seus amigos, que também estudavam a Bíblia, começaram a entender que o ano de 1914 seria um ano importante relacionado ao estabelecimento do Reino de Deus. (Dan. 4:25, 26) Para chegar a essa conclusão, eles estudaram bastante as profecias da Bíblia. Será que Jeová estava orientando as pesquisas que eles faziam? Com certeza sim. Os acontecimentos em 1914 foram uma prova de que o Reino de Deus realmente tinha sido estabelecido. Nesse ano, a Primeira Guerra Mundial começou e, a partir daí, as doenças, os terremotos e a fome aumentaram. (Luc. 21:10, 11) Fica claro que Jeová usou aqueles homens sinceros para ajudar seu povo.

12 Pense também no que aconteceu durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial. Depois de analisarem Apocalipse 17:8, os irmãos que estavam na liderança, na sede mundial, entenderam que aquela guerra não levaria ao Armagedom, mas sim a um período de relativa paz que traria novas oportunidades para o aumento da pregação. Então eles tomaram uma decisão que parecia não fazer muito sentido: criar a escola de Gileade e treinar missionários para pregar e ensinar em vários lugares ao redor do mundo. Muitos missionários foram enviados, mesmo durante a guerra. Além disso, o escravo fiel também criou o Curso do Ministério Teocrático* para que todos nas congregações fossem melhores publicadores e instrutores. Dessa maneira, o povo de Deus foi preparado para o grande trabalho que teria à frente.

13 Olhando para trás, dá para ver claramente que Jeová estava guiando o seu povo naquele período difícil. E desde a Segunda Guerra Mundial, o povo de Jeová em vários países tem conseguido realizar o trabalho de pregação com certa liberdade. Na verdade, a pregação no mundo inteiro só tem aumentado.

12-13. O que foi feito durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial para aumentar o trabalho de pregação?

* O Curso do Ministério Teocrático depois mudou para a Escola do Ministério Teocrático. Hoje, esse treinamento faz parte da nossa reunião do meio de semana.

Por que alguns não aceitam que Jeová use humanos para guiar seu povo?

Por que alguns ignoram as provas claras de que Jeová está usando humanos para guiar seu povo? Muitas vezes, porque são orgulhosos e querem fazer as coisas da sua maneira. (João 3:19; 2 Ped. 3:3, 4; Judas 18) Por exemplo, alguns israelitas se recusaram a aceitar que Jeová tinha designado Moisés como líder porque eles se achavam mais importantes do que Moisés. (Núm. 16:1-3) Foi por esse mesmo motivo que muitos rejeitaram a Jesus, mesmo vendo todos os milagres que ele fazia. (João 12:37, 43) Por outro lado, pessoas humildes que realmente amam a verdade conseguem enxergar claramente as evidências de que Jeová está usando homens para guiar seu povo. (Mat. 16:16, 17) Seguir a orientação de Jeová sempre é bom para todos nós.

[14] Hoje, os membros do Corpo Governante continuam seguindo a orientação de Jesus. Eles fazem isso por se certificar de que suas decisões estejam de acordo com o que Jeová e Jesus querem. Além disso, os superintendentes de circuito e os anciãos são usados para transmitir essas orientações às congregações.* Os anciãos ungidos e, por extensão, todos os anciãos nas congregações estão "na mão direita" de Jesus. (Leia Apocalipse 2:1.) É claro que todos os anciãos são imperfeitos e cometem erros. Moisés e Josué erraram às vezes, e os apóstolos também. (Núm. 20:12; Jos. 9:14, 15; Rom. 3:23) Mesmo assim, nós podemos ver claramente que Jesus continua guiando o escravo fiel e os anciãos. E ele vai continuar usando esses homens "todos os dias, até o final do sistema de coisas". (Mat. 28:20) Então nós temos todos os motivos para confiar na orientação que Jesus está nos dando por meio desses homens fiéis.

POR QUE É BOM CONFIAR NO MODO DE JEOVÁ NOS GUIAR HOJE?

[15] Quando seguimos a orientação de Jeová, percebemos claramente os benefícios disso. Por exemplo, André e sua esposa, Roberta, seguiram o conselho do escravo fiel sobre manter uma vida simples. (Veja a nota de estudo "focado", em Mateus 6:22.) Assim, eles tiveram a oportunidade de trabalhar como voluntários em projetos de construção da organização. Roberta conta: "Algumas vezes nós tivemos que viver em lugares bem pequenos e que nem tinham cozinha. Eu também tive que vender vários equipamentos de fotografia, algo que eu gostava muito de fazer. Eu até chorei quando vendi meus equipamentos. Mas, assim como Sara, esposa de Abraão, eu estava decidida a não olhar para trás." (Heb. 11:15) Como André e Roberta se sentem depois de terem feito essas mudanças? Roberta explica: "Nós sentimos uma alegria imensa de saber que estamos dando a Jeová tudo o que temos. Quando trabalhamos para a organização

* Veja o quadro "O papel do Corpo Governante", na Sentinela de fevereiro de 2021, p. 18.

14. Por que podemos confiar na orientação da organização de Jeová e dos anciãos? (Apocalipse 2:1) (Veja também a imagem.)

15-16. O que você pode aprender com o exemplo de pessoas que seguiram os conselhos de Jeová?

de Jeová, nós podemos ter uma pequena amostra de como será a vida no novo mundo." André concorda. Ele diz: "Nós temos a alegria de saber que estamos dando todo o nosso tempo e nossa energia para Jeová."

16 Veja outro exemplo de como é bom seguir a orientação de Jeová. Depois de terminar o ensino médio, Márcia quis seguir o conselho que recebeu para ser pioneira. (Mat. 6:33; Rom. 12:11) Ela conta: "Eu ganhei uma bolsa para estudar quatro anos numa universidade, mas eu queria fazer mais para Jeová. Então eu decidi fazer um curso técnico e aprender uma profissão que me ajudasse a me sustentar como pioneira. Essa foi uma das melhores decisões da minha vida. Atualmente eu sou pioneira; meu horário de trabalho me permite servir como commuter em Betel e ainda fazer outras coisas incríveis no serviço a Jeová."

17 Às vezes, recebemos conselhos da organização que nos protegem do materialismo e de outras coisas que nos colocam em risco de desobedecer às leis de Deus. Quando seguimos esses conselhos, sentimos como é bom obedecer à orientação de Jeová. Nós podemos ter uma consciência tranquila e evitar muitos problemas. (1 Tim. 6:9, 10) Fazendo isso, podemos servir a Jeová de todo o nosso coração. Não há nada no mundo que possa nos dar mais alegria, tranquilidade e satisfação! — Leia Isaías 48:17, 18.

18 Sem dúvida, Jeová vai continuar usando humanos para nos dar orientação durante a grande tribulação e durante o Reinado de Mil Anos. (Sal. 45:16) Será que vamos seguir essa orientação, mesmo quando preferirmos fazer outra coisa? Vai ser mais fácil seguir qualquer orientação de Jeová se desde agora obedecermos aos conselhos que ele dá. Portanto, queremos sempre seguir a orientação de Jeová. Isso inclui todos os conselhos que ele dá por meio dos homens que designou para cuidar de nós. (Isa. 32:1, 2; Heb. 13:17) Podemos ter certeza que, por seguirmos a Jeová, nosso Guia perfeito, vamos chegar em segurança ao nosso destino final: a vida eterna no novo mundo.

17. Que outros benefícios temos quando seguimos os conselhos de Jeová? (Isaías 48:17, 18)

18. Por que você está decidido a continuar seguindo a orientação de Jeová?

DESCRIÇÃO DA IMAGEM Capa: Moisés confiava na orientação que Jeová dava por meio da coluna de nuvem para guiar o povo no deserto.

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Como Jeová guiou a nação de Israel?
- Como Jeová guiou os primeiros cristãos?
- Por que é bom sermos guiados por Jeová?

CÂNTICO 48

Caminhamos sempre com Jeová

ele foi designado como ajudante da Comissão de Serviço do Corpo Governante.

O irmão Winder foi criado em Murrieta, na Califórnia, nos Estados Unidos. Ele aprendeu a verdade com seus pais e se batizou em 29 de março de 1986. Logo no mês seguinte, ele saiu de pioneiro auxiliar. Ele gostou tanto que quis continuar. Depois de vários meses servindo como pioneiro auxiliar, ele começou como pioneiro regular, em 1.º de outubro de 1986.

Quando era adolescente, o irmão Winder visitou seus dois irmãos mais velhos que estavam servindo em Betel. Naquela época, essa visita despertou nele o desejo de ir para Betel. Em maio de 1990, ele foi convidado para servir no Betel de Wallkill.

Em Betel, o irmão Winder trabalhou em vários departamentos, inclusive na Limpeza, na Fazenda e no Escritório de Betel. Em 1997, ele casou com sua esposa, Angela, e eles estão servindo em Betel até hoje. Em 2014, eles foram transferidos para Warwick, onde ele ajudou na construção da sede mundial. Em 2016, eles se mudaram para o Centro Educacional da Torre de Vigia em Patterson, e o irmão Winder trabalhou nos Serviços de Áudio e Vídeo. Quatro anos depois, eles voltaram para Warwick, e o irmão Winder foi designado para trabalhar no Escritório da Comissão do Pessoal. Em março de 2022, ele foi designado como ajudante da Comissão do Pessoal do Corpo Governante.

Nós oramos para que Jeová continue abençoando esses irmãos, que são “dádivas em homens”, e que eles possam continuar trabalhando duro para apoiar o Reino. — Efé. 4:8.

Atualmente, nove irmãos servem no Corpo Governante: Kenneth Cook Jr., Gage Fleegle, Samuel Herd, Geoffrey Jackson, Stephen Lett, Gerrit Lösch, Mark Sanderson, David Splane e Jeffrey Winder.

Jeffrey Winder e sua esposa, Angela

O que a Bíblia diz sobre Jeová saber o que vai acontecer no futuro?

■ A Bíblia deixa claro que Jeová pode dizer o que vai acontecer no futuro. (Isa. 45:21) Mas ela não explica todos os detalhes sobre como ou quando Jeová faz isso e nem o quanto ele escolhe prever. Então não temos como saber tudo sobre essa habilidade de Jeová. Mas de algumas coisas nós podemos ter certeza.

Jeová pode fazer tudo o que quiser, mas às vezes ele escolhe não fazer algo. Jeová pode usar sua infinita sabedoria para prever qualquer coisa no futuro. (Rom. 11:33) Mas Jeová pode escolher não fazer isso, porque ele tem perfeito controle de si mesmo. — Veja também Isaías 42:14.

Jeová garante que sua vontade sempre será feita. O que isso tem a ver com seu poder de predizer o futuro? Isaías 46:10 explica: "Desde o princípio anuncio o final, e desde os tempos antigos as coisas que ainda não foram feitas. Digo: 'O que eu decidi ficará de pé e farei tudo o que for do meu agrado.'"

Uma razão pela qual Jeová pode predizer o futuro é que ele tem o poder de fazer as coisas acontecerem. Ele pode decidir que algo aconteça no momento que ele quiser. Ou seja, Jeová não precisa ver o que vai acontecer no futuro como se os eventos já tivessem acontecido, igual à última página de um livro que uma pessoa lê para saber o final. Mas Jeová se certifica de que o que ele decidiu aconteça exatamente no momento certo. — Êxo. 9:5, 6; Mat. 24:36; Atos 17:31.

É por isso que a Bíblia usa termos como "preparei", "formei" e "estabeleci" para descrever o que Jeová faz com respeito ao que vai acontecer no futuro. (2 Reis 19:25; nota; Isa. 46:11) Esses termos são traduções de uma palavra no idioma original que está relacionada a uma palavra que significa "oleiro". (Jer. 18:4) Assim como um oleiro habilidoso pode moldar o barro e transformá-lo em um lindo vaso, Jeová pode moldar ou manobrar as coisas para que sua vontade seja feita. — Efé. 1:11.

Jeová deu livre-arbítrio a cada pessoa, e ele respeita isso. Ele não determina um destino para cada pessoa e nem faz com que pessoas boas façam algo ruim, o que resultaria na destruição delas. Ele permite que cada um escolha seu próprio caminho e até incentiva as pessoas a seguirem o caminho correto.

Veja o exemplo dos habitantes de Nínive. Jeová predisse que essa cidade seria destruída por causa de sua maldade. Mas, quando eles se arrependeram, Jeová "reconsiderou a calamidade que tinha dito que traria sobre eles, e não a trouxe". (Jonas 3:1-10) Jeová decidiu não fazer o que tinha predito porque os ninivitas usaram o seu livre-arbítrio e responderam bem à mensagem de Jonas. Eles se arrependeram e não foram destruídos.

Outro exemplo é o da profecia sobre um líder chamado Ciro, que libertaria os judeus do cativeiro e ordenaria a reconstrução do templo de Jeová. (Isa. 44:26–45:4) O rei Ciro da Pérsia cumpriu essa profecia. (Esd. 1:1-4) Jeová usou Ciro para cumprir essa profecia sem forçar Ciro a adorar a ele. Ou seja, Ciro tinha livre-arbítrio para tomar suas próprias decisões e escolher a quem iria adorar. — Pro. 21:1.

É claro que existem muitos outros fatores sobre a capacidade de Jeová saber o que vai acontecer no futuro. E para dizer a verdade, nenhum humano pode entender completamente os caminhos de Jeová, ou seja, como ele pensa e o que ele faz. (Isa. 55:8, 9) Mas tudo o que Jeová já nos revelou fortalece a nossa fé de que ele sempre faz o que é certo — inclusive quando prediz o futuro.

VOCÊ SABIA?

Por que a Bíblia repete algumas frases e palavras?

ÀS VEZES, alguns escritores da Bíblia repetiram as mesmas frases — palavra por palavra. Veja três motivos de por que talvez eles tenham feito isso.

Quando foi escrito. No antigo Israel, a maioria das pessoas não tinha uma cópia da Lei para uso pessoal. Muitas vezes, a única oportunidade que tinham para ouvir a Lei era quando o povo se reunia na frente do tabernáculo e do templo. (Deut. 31:10-12) Nessas ocasiões, era fácil alguém se distrair enquanto ficava de pé ouvindo a Lei durante várias horas e no meio de tantas pessoas. (Nee. 8:2, 3, 7) Por isso, para que o povo se lembrasse do que estava sendo lido e depois aplicasse os conselhos na vida, era essencial que se repetissem as frases importantes. Assim, o povo poderia se lembrar dos detalhes das leis de Jeová. — Lev. 18:4-22; Deut. 5:1.

Como foi escrito. Algumas partes da Bíblia foram escritas na forma de canções, como os livros de Salmos, o Cântico de Salomão e Lamentações. Algumas canções têm refrãos com palavras que se repetem, e isso destaca o tema da canção, ajudando também os que ouvissem a lembrar das palavras. Veja, por exemplo, o que está escrito no Salmo 115:9-11: "Ó Israel, confie em Jeová: Ele é a sua ajuda e o seu escudo. Ó casa de Arão, confie em Jeová: Ele é a sua ajuda e o seu escudo. Vocês que temem a Jeová, confiem em Jeová: Ele é a sua ajuda e o seu escudo." Você consegue ver como a repetição dessas palavras ajudaria os cantores a gravar a letra na mente e no coração?

Por que foi escrito. Os escritores bíblicos às vezes repetiam frases importantes. Por exemplo, quando Jeová deu instruções para os israelitas sobre não comer sangue, Jeová mandou Moisés repetir os motivos várias vezes. Jeová queria enfatizar que o sangue representa a vida. (Lev. 17:11, 14) Algum tempo depois, quando os apóstolos e anciãos em Jerusalém escreveram sobre o que os cristãos precisavam fazer para agradar a Jeová e o que evitar para desagradá-lo, eles novamente enfatizaram a necessidade de se abster de sangue. — Atos 15:20, 29.

É verdade que a Bíblia repete várias frases, mas isso não significa que Jeová quer que fiquemos repetindo sempre essas frases. Por exemplo, Jesus disse: "Quando orar, não diga as mesmas coisas vez após vez." (Mat. 6:7) Jesus mencionou alguns assuntos que podemos incluir em nossas orações. (Mat. 6:9-13) Por isso, embora evitemos repetir exatamente as mesmas palavras em nossas orações, nós podemos mencionar os mesmos assuntos. — Mat. 7:7-11.

Existem bons motivos para a Bíblia repetir algumas palavras e frases. Essa é uma das muitas maneiras de Jeová, nosso Grandioso Instrutor, nos ensinar o que é melhor para nós. — Isa. 48:17, 18.

A SENTINELA®
ANUNCIANDO O REINO DE JEOVÁ
February 2024 | Vol. 145, No. 2 PORTUGUESE (Brazil)

NESTA REVISTA

Esta revista não é vendida. Ela faz parte de um trabalho voluntário para ajudar as pessoas no mundo todo a entender a Bíblia. As despesas desse trabalho são cobertas por donativos. Para fazer um donativo, acesse donate.jw.org.

Se não houver nenhuma observação, os textos bíblicos citados nesta revista são da Tradução do Novo Mundo da Bíblia Sagrada.

A Sentinela, fevereiro de 2024. A Sentinela (ISSN 0043-1087) é publicada pela Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Inc., Wallkill, New York, U.S.A., e pela Associação Torre de Vigia de Bíblias e Tratados, Cesário Lange, São Paulo, Brasil. Impressa no Brasil.

DICA DE ESTUDO

Encontre joias espirituais para usar no dia a dia

Ao lermos a Bíblia, podemos fazer pesquisas e procurar joias espirituais. Mas como fazer isso da melhor maneira possível?

Pesquise mais a fundo alguns detalhes dos relatos bíblicos. Por exemplo, pergunte-se: 'Quem foi o escritor? Para quem ele estava escrevendo? Quando esta passagem foi escrita? Quais foram as circunstâncias? O que aconteceu antes? O que aconteceu depois?'

Pense nas lições que você pode aprender. Pergunte-se: 'Como as pessoas se sentiram? Que qualidades elas demonstraram? Por que eu deveria imitar essas qualidades? Que atitudes erradas eu deveria evitar?'

Aplique as lições que você aprendeu quando for à pregação e no seu dia a dia. Se fizer isso, você estará mostrando sabedoria, assim como a Bíblia diz no Salmo 107:43: "Quem é sábio refletirá nessas coisas."

- Dica: Veja como as informações que encontramos na parte Tesouros da Palavra de Deus, na reunião do meio de semana, nos ajudam a aplicar aquilo que aprendemos. Essa parte costuma ter perguntas que podemos nos fazer, pontos para meditar e imagens que nos fazem pensar.

Acesse o site jw.org ou capture o código

w24.02-T
231011

Este é o primeiro de dois artigos em números consecutivos de A Sentinela que examinam questões eruditas sobre a data da destruição da Jerusalém antiga. Esta série de duas partes apresenta respostas com base na Bíblia e em pesquisa meticulosa a perguntas que intrigam alguns leitores.

Quando a Jerusalém antiga foi destruída?

PARTE UM POR QUE ISSO É IMPORTANTE O QUE AS EVIDÊNCIAS MOSTRAM

"Segundo historiadores e arqueólogos, 586 ou 587 AEC é geralmente aceito como o ano da destruição de Jerusalém.[*] Por que vocês, Testemunhas de Jeová, dizem que foi em 607 AEC? Com que base apontam para essa data?"

ESSA foi a pergunta de um de nossos leitores. Mas por que se interessar na data exata em que o rei babilônio Nabucodonosor II destruiu Jerusalém? Primeiro, porque esse evento marcou um importante ponto de virada na história do povo de Deus. Certo historiador disse que isso levou a "uma catástrofe, sim, à grande catástrofe". A data marcou o fim de um templo que havia sido o centro da adoração do Deus Todo-Poderoso por mais de 400 anos. "Ó Deus", lamentou um salmista, "profanaram o teu santo Templo e deixaram Jerusalém em ruínas". — Salmo 79:1, Bíblia na Linguagem de Hoje.[#]

Segundo, porque saber o ano exato em que essa "grande catástrofe" começou e entender como a restauração da verdadeira adoração em Jerusalém cumpriu uma profecia exata da Bíblia vai fortalecer sua confiança na autenticidade da Palavra de Deus. Então, por que as Testemunhas de Jeová defendem uma data que difere em 20 anos da cronologia amplamente aceita? Em poucas palavras, por causa das evidências na própria Bíblia.

"Setenta anos" para quem?

Anos antes da destruição, o profeta judeu Jeremias forneceu uma pista fundamental para se entender a cronologia bíblica relacionada a esse evento. Ele avisou "todos os habitantes de Jerusalém", dizendo: "Toda esta terra virá a ser uma desolação e um espanto; estas nações servirão ao rei de Babilônia setenta anos." (Jeremias 25:1, 2, 11, Versão Brasileira) Mais tarde, o profeta acrescentou: "Pois assim disse Jeová: 'De acordo com o cumprimento de setenta anos em Babilônia, voltarei minha atenção para vós, e vou confirmar para convosco a minha boa palavra por trazer-vos de volta a este lugar.' " (Jeremias 29:10) Qual é o significado dos "setenta anos"? E como esse período nos

---

* As duas datas são mencionadas em fontes seculares. Para simplificar, usaremos 587 AEC nessa série. AEC significa "antes da Era Comum".

# As Testemunhas de Jeová produzem uma tradução confiável da Bíblia conhecida como Tradução do Novo Mundo das Escrituras Sagradas. No entanto, se você não é Testemunha de Jeová, talvez prefira usar outras traduções ao analisar assuntos bíblicos. Este artigo cita várias traduções da Bíblia amplamente aceitas.

ajuda a determinar a data da destruição de Jerusalém?

Em vez de dizer 70 anos "em Babilônia", muitas traduções dizem "para Babilônia". (VB) Por isso, alguns historiadores alegam que esse período de 70 anos se aplica ao Império Babilônico. Segundo a cronologia secular, os babilônios dominaram o território das antigas Judá e Jerusalém por uns 70 anos, de cerca de 609 AEC a 539 AEC, quando a capital de Babilônia foi capturada.

A Bíblia, porém, mostra que os 70 anos seriam um período de punição severa da parte de Deus — dirigida especificamente ao povo de Judá e de Jerusalém, que estavam num pacto para obedecer a ele. (Êxodo 19:3-6) Quando eles se recusaram a mudar seu proceder errado, Deus disse: "Enviarei . . . Nabucodonosor, rei de Babilônia, . . . contra esta terra, e contra os seus habitantes, e contra todas estas nações ao redor." (Jeremias 25:4, 5, 8, 9, VB) Apesar de as nações ao redor também sofrerem a ira de Babilônia, a destruição de Jerusalém e os 70 anos de exílio que se seguiriam foram chamados por Jeremias de "punição do meu povo", pois Jerusalém tinha cometido "graves pecados". — Lamentações 1:8; 3:42; 4:6, Nova Versão Internacional.

Portanto, segundo a Bíblia, os 70 anos eram um período de severa punição contra Judá, e Deus usou os babilônios como instrumento para infligir esse castigo. Mas Deus disse aos judeus: "Quando se completarem os setenta anos . . . cumprirei a minha promessa . . . de trazê-los de volta para este lugar" — Judá e Jerusalém. — Jeremias 29:10, NVI.

Quando começaram os "setenta anos"?

O historiador inspirado Esdras, que viveu depois do cumprimento dos 70 anos da profecia de Jeremias, escreveu o seguinte sobre o Rei Nabucodonosor: "[Ele] levou para o exílio, na Babilônia, os remanescentes, que escaparam da espada, para serem seus escravos e dos seus descendentes, até a época do domínio persa. A terra desfrutou os seus descansos sabáticos; descansou durante todo o tempo de sua desolação, até que os setenta anos se completaram, em cumprimento da palavra do SENHOR anunciada por Jeremias." — 2 Crônicas 36:20, 21, NVI.

Assim, os 70 anos seriam um período em que a terra de Judá e de Jerusalém teria "descansos sabáticos". Isso significava que o solo não seria cultivado — não haveria semeadura nem poda de vinhedos. (Levítico 25:1-5, NVI) Por causa da desobediência do povo de Deus, cujos pecados talvez incluíssem não cumprir todos os anos sabáticos, a punição era que sua terra seria abandonada e ficaria sem cultivo por 70 anos. — Levítico 26:27, 32-35, 42, 43.

Quando foi que a terra de Judá ficou desolada e sem cultivo? Na verdade, os babilônios sob Nabucodonosor atacaram Jerusalém em duas ocasiões, com um intervalo de vários anos. Quando começaram os 70 anos? Certamente não foi depois que Nabucodonosor sitiou Jerusalém pela primeira vez. Por que não? Embora nessa ocasião ele tenha levado muitos cativos de Jerusalém para Babilônia, ele deixou outros para trás. Ele também não destruiu a cidade. Durante anos, depois dessa primeira deportação, os que ficaram em Judá, "a classe de condição humilde do povo", viveram da terra. (2 Reis 24:8-17) Mas então as coisas mudaram drasticamente.

Uma rebelião dos judeus trouxe os babilônios de volta a Jerusalém. (2 Reis 24:20; 25:8-10) Eles arrasaram a cidade, incluindo o templo sagrado, e levaram cativos para Babilônia muitos de seus habitantes. Em menos de dois meses, "todo o povo [que tinha sido deixado no país], desde as crianças até os velhos, inclusive os líderes do exército, fugiram para o Egito, com medo dos babilônios". (2 Reis 25:25, 26, NVI) Só então, no sétimo mês judaico daquele ano, tisri (setembro/outubro), se podia dizer que havia começado o descanso sabático daquela terra, agora desolada e não mais cultivada. Por meio de Jeremias, Deus disse aos judeus refugiados no Egito: "Vocês viram toda a desgraça que eu trouxe sobre Jerusalém e sobre todas as cidades de Judá. Hoje elas estão em ruínas e desabitadas." (Jeremias 44:1, 2, NVI) Portanto, tudo indica que esse acontecimento marcou o começo dos 70 anos. Em que ano foi isso? Para saber a resposta precisamos ver quando esse período terminou.

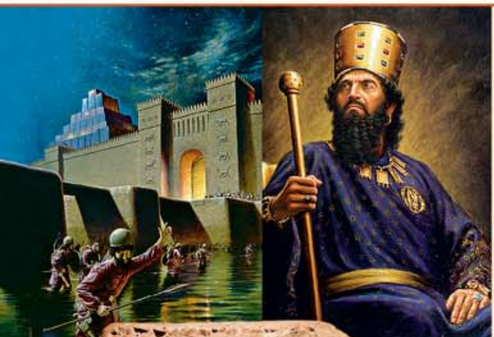
Quando terminaram os "setenta anos"?

O profeta Daniel, que viveu até o começo do "domínio persa" e estava em Babilônia quando isso aconteceu, calculou quando os 70 anos terminariam. Ele escreveu: "Eu, Daniel, compreendi pelas Escrituras, conforme a palavra do SENHOR dada ao profeta Jeremias, que a desolação de Jerusalém iria durar setenta anos." — Daniel 9:1, 2, NVI.

Esdras meditou nas profecias de Jeremias e relacionou o fim dos "setenta anos" com o tempo em que "o SENHOR tocou no coração de Ciro, rei da Pérsia, para que fizesse uma proclamação". (2 Crônicas 36:21, 22, NVI) Quando é que os judeus foram libertados? O decreto que pôs fim ao seu exílio foi emitido no "primeiro ano de Ciro, rei da Pérsia". (Veja o quadro "Uma data fundamental na História".) Assim, no outono de 537 AEC, os judeus já tinham voltado a Jerusalém para restaurar a adoração verdadeira. — Esdras 1:1-5; 2:1; 3:1-5.

Portanto, segundo a cronologia da Bíblia, os 70 anos foram um período literal que terminou em 537 AEC. Contando 70 anos para trás, o começo desse período seria em 607 AEC.

Mas se as evidências das Escrituras inspiradas apontam claramente para 607 AEC como a



UMA DATA FUNDAMENTAL NA HISTÓRIA

A data de 539 AEC, quando o Rei Ciro II conquistou Babilônia, é calculada com base em:

■ Fontes históricas e tabuinhas cuneiformes antigas: Diodoro da Sicília (c. 80-20 AEC) escreveu que Ciro se tornou rei da Pérsia no "ano de abertura da Quinquagésima Quinta Olimpíada". (Historical Library [Biblioteca Histórica], Livro IX, 21) Esse ano foi 560 AEC. O historiador grego Heródoto (c. 485-425 AEC) disse que Ciro foi morto depois de ter reinado por 29 anos, ou seja, no 30.° ano de seu reinado, em 530 AEC. (Histórias, Livro I, Clio) Tabuinhas cuneiformes mostram que Ciro governou Babilônia por nove anos antes de morrer. Assim, contando nove anos antes de sua morte, em 530 AEC, chegamos a 539 AEC, concluindo assim que foi nesse ano que Ciro conquistou Babilônia.

◂ Confirmação de uma tabuinha cuneiforme: Uma tabuinha cuneiforme babilônica de argila (BM 33066), com dados de astronomia, confirma a data da morte de Ciro em 530 AEC. Embora essa tabuinha contenha alguns erros de posicionamento de astros, ela descreve dois eclipses lunares que segundo ela ocorreram no sétimo ano de Cambises II, o filho e sucessor de Ciro. Esses eclipses são identificados com os eclipses lunares visíveis em Babilônia em 16 de julho de 523 AEC e em 10 de janeiro de 522 AEC, apontando assim para a primavera de 523 AEC como o começo do sétimo ano de Cambises. Isso faz com que o seu primeiro ano de reinado seja 529 AEC. Portanto, o último ano de Ciro teria sido 530 AEC, fazendo de 539 AEC seu primeiro ano como governante de Babilônia.

data da destruição de Jerusalém, por que muitas autoridades defendem 587 AEC? Elas se baseiam em duas fontes — os escritos de historiadores clássicos e o Cânon de Ptolomeu. Será que essas fontes são mais confiáveis do que as Escrituras? Vejamos.

Historiadores clássicos — até que ponto são confiáveis?

Os historiadores que viveram próximo da época em que Jerusalém foi destruída dão informações contraditórias sobre os reis neobabilônios.* (Veja o quadro "Reis neobabilônios".) A linha do tempo baseada em suas informações cronológicas não bate com a da Bíblia. Mas até que ponto seus escritos são confiáveis?

Um dos historiadores que viveram mais próximo do período neobabilônico foi Beroso, um sacerdote babilônio do deus Bel. Sua obra original, Babyloniaca, escrita por volta de 281 AEC, foi perdida, e só foram preservados fragmentos em obras de outros historiadores. Beroso alegava ter usado "livros que haviam sido preservados com muito cuidado em Babilônia".[1] Será que Beroso era realmente um historiador confiável? Veja um exemplo.

Beroso escreveu que o rei assírio Senaqueribe sucedeu "seu irmão no reinado"; "depois dele seu filho [Esar-Hadom reinou por] 8 anos; e então Samuges [Samas-Sum-Iuquin] 21 anos". (III, 2.1, 4) No entanto, documentos históricos babilônicos escritos bem antes da época de Beroso dizem que Senaquerибe sucedeu seu pai, Sargão II, não seu irmão; que Esar-Hadom reinou por 12 anos, não 8; e que Samas-Sum-Iuquin reinou por 20 anos, não 21. O erudito R. J. van der Spek, embora reconheça que Beroso consultou as crônicas babilônicas, escreveu: "Isso não o impediu de fazer seus próprios acréscimos e interpretações."[2]

Qual é a opinião de outros eruditos sobre Beroso? "No passado, Beroso era considerado historiador", diz S. M. Burstein, que fez um estudo abrangente das obras de Beroso. Mas ele conclui: "Considerado como tal, seu desempenho deve ser declarado inadequado. Mesmo levando em conta seu estado atual, incompleto, Babyloniaca contém uma série de erros surpreendentes sobre fatos simples . . . Para um historiador, esses erros comprometeriam o seu trabalho, mas o objetivo de Beroso não era histórico."[3]

Em vista disso, o que você acha? Será que os cálculos de Beroso devem ser considerados sempre exatos? E o que dizer de outros historiadores clássicos que, na maioria das vezes, basearam sua cronologia nos escritos de Beroso? Suas conclusões históricas podem realmente ser chamadas de confiáveis?

O Cânon de Ptolomeu

O Cânon Real de Cláudio Ptolomeu, astrônomo do segundo século EC, também é usado

* O império neobabilônico começou com o reinado do pai de Nabucodonosor, Nabopolassar, e terminou com o reinado de Nabonido. Esse período é de interesse para os eruditos porque abrange a maior parte dos 70 anos da desolação de Jerusalém.

Foto tirada por cortesia do Museu Britânico

REIS NEOBABILÔNIOS

Se estes historiadores são confiáveis, por que não estão de acordo?

Reis	BEROSO c. 350-270 AEC	POLISTOR 105-? AEC	JOSEFO 37-?100 EC	PTOLOMEU c. 100-170 EC
Nabopolassar	21	20	—	21
Nabucodonosor II	43	43	43	43
Amel-Marduque	2	12	18	2
Neriglissar	4	4	40	4
Labasi-Marduque	9 meses	—	9 meses	—
Nabonido	17	17	17	17

Duração do governo de cada rei (em anos) segundo historiadores clássicos para apoiar a data tradicional de 587 AEC. A lista de reis feita por Ptolomeu é considerada a espinha dorsal da cronologia da história antiga, incluindo o período neobabilônico.

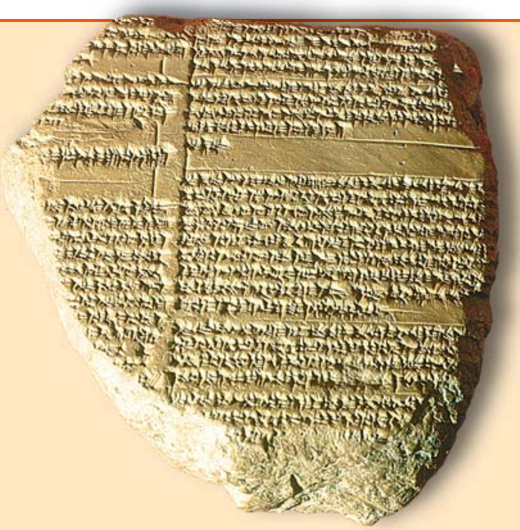
Ptolomeu compilou sua lista uns 600 anos após o fim do período neobabilônico. Então, como ele chegou à data em que o primeiro rei da lista começou a reinar? Ptolomeu explicou que por usar cálculos de astronomia, baseados em parte em eclipses, "conseguimos calcular para trás até o começo do reinado de Nabonassar", o primeiro rei da lista.[4] Por isso, Christopher Walker, do Museu Britânico, diz que o Cânon de Ptolomeu era "um esquema artificial para fornecer aos astrônomos uma cronologia coerente" e "não para fornecer aos historiadores um registro preciso da ascensão e morte de reis".[5]

"Já por muito tempo se sabe que o Cânon é confiável no aspecto astronômico", escreveu o professor universitário Leo Depuydt, um dos defensores mais entusiásticos de Ptolomeu, "mas isso não quer dizer que ele seja automaticamente confiável no aspecto histórico". Sobre a lista de reis, Depuydt acrescenta: "No que diz respeito aos primeiros governantes [incluindo os reis neobabilônios], o Cânon precisaria ser comparado com os registros cuneiformes reino por reino."[6]

O que são esses "registros cuneiformes" que permitem avaliar a exatidão histórica do Cânon de Ptolomeu? Incluem crônicas babilônicas, listas de reis e tabuinhas econômicas — documentos cuneiformes escritos por escribas que viveram durante a época neobabilônica ou próximo dela.[7]

O que revela uma comparação da lista de Ptolomeu com os registros cuneiformes? O quadro "Comparação entre o Cânon de Ptolomeu e as tabuinhas antigas" (veja abaixo) mostra uma parte do Cânon e o compara com um documento cuneiforme antigo. Note que Ptolomeu alista apenas quatro reis babilônios entre Candalanu e Nabonido. No entanto, a lista de reis de Uruk — parte do registro cuneiforme — revela que sete reis governaram nesse

Foto tirada por cortesia do Museu Britânico



As crônicas babilônicas fazem parte de um registro cuneiforme que nos ajuda a avaliar a exatidão do Cânon de Ptolomeu

COMPARAÇÃO ENTRE O CÂNON DE PTOLOMEU E AS TABUINHAS ANTIGAS

Ptolomeu omite alguns reis na sua lista. Por quê?

O CÂNON DE PTOLOMEU	A LISTA DE REIS DE URUK CONFORME ENCONTRADA EM TABUINHAS ANTIGAS
Nabonassar
Nabu-Nadin-Zeri (Nadinu)
Muquin-Zeri e Pul
Ululaia (Salmaneser V) "Rei da Assíria"
Merodaque-Baladã
Sargão II "Rei da Assíria"
Primeiro período sem reis
Bel-Ibni
Assur-Nadin-Sum
Nergal-Uchezibe
Muchezibe-Marduque
Segundo período sem reis
Esar-Hadom "Rei da Assíria"
Samas-Sum-Iuquin
Candalanu	Candalanu
	Sin-Sum-Lisir
	Sin-Sar-Ichcun
Nabopolassar	Nabopolassar
Nabucodonosor	Nabucodonosor
Amel-Marduque	Amel-Marduque
Neriglissar	Neriglissar
	Labasi-Marduque
Nabonido	Nabonido
Ciro
Cambises

intervalo. Será que o reinado deles foi breve e insignificante? Um deles, de acordo com tabuinhas econômicas cuneiformes, durou sete anos.[8]

Também há fortes evidências em documentos cuneiformes de que antes do reinado de Nabopolassar (o primeiro rei do período neobabilônico), outro rei (Assur-Etel-Ilani) governou por quatro anos em Babilônia. Além disso, por mais de um ano, aquela terra não teve rei.[9] O Cânon de Ptolomeu não menciona nenhum desses fatos.

Por que Ptolomeu omitiu alguns governantes? Pelo visto, ele não os considerava governantes legítimos de Babilônia.[10] Por exemplo, ele excluiu Labasi-Marduque, um rei neobabilônio. Mas, de acordo com documentos cuneiformes, os reis que Ptolomeu omitiu realmente governaram Babilônia.

Em geral, o Cânon de Ptolomeu é considerado exato. Mas, em vista de suas omissões, será que ele deveria realmente ser usado para fornecer uma cronologia histórica definitiva?

A conclusão à base dessas evidências

Em resumo: a Bíblia diz claramente que houve um exílio de 70 anos. Há fortes evidências — e a maioria dos eruditos concorda — que em 537 AEC os judeus exilados já haviam voltado para sua terra natal. Se contarmos para trás a partir desse ano, a destruição de Jerusalém foi em 607 AEC. Apesar de os historiadores clássicos e o Cânon de Ptolomeu não concordarem com essa data, há questões legítimas sobre a exatidão de seus escritos. De fato, as provas fornecidas por essas duas fontes de evidências não são suficientes para derrubar a cronologia da Bíblia.

No entanto, ainda restam outras perguntas. Será que não há nenhuma evidência histórica que apoie a data de 607 AEC, calculada com base na Bíblia? Que evidências são reveladas pelos documentos cuneiformes, muitos dos quais foram escritos por testemunhas oculares antigas e podem ser datados? Consideraremos essas perguntas no próximo número.

UM BREVE RESUMO

- Os historiadores geralmente dizem que Jerusalém foi destruída em 587 AEC.
- A cronologia bíblica indica fortemente que a destruição ocorreu em 607 AEC.
- Esses historiadores baseiam-se principalmente nos escritos de historiadores clássicos e no Cânon de Ptolomeu.
- Os escritos de historiadores clássicos contêm erros significativos e nem sempre estão de acordo com o registro em tabuinhas de argila.

Foto tirada por cortesia do Museu Britânico

Notas

1. Babyloniaca (Chaldaeorum Historiae), Livro Um, 1.1.
2. Studies in Ancient Near Eastern World View and Society, página 295.
3. The Babyloniaca of Berossus, página 8.
4. Almagest, III, 7, tradução de G. J. Toomer, em Ptolemy's Almagest, publicado em 1998, página 166. Ptolomeu sabia que os astrônomos babilônios usavam tabelas matemáticas para "calcular" as épocas de eclipses passados e futuros porque descobriram que eclipses do mesmo tipo ocorrem a cada 18 anos. — Almagest, IV, 2.
5. Mesopotamia and Iran in the Persian Period, páginas 17-18.
6. Journal of Cuneiform Studies, Volume 47, 1995, páginas 106-107.
7. Escrita cuneiforme é uma forma de escrita em que o escriba gravava vários símbolos na superfície lisa de uma tabuinha de argila usando um estilete com uma ponta afiada em forma de cunha.
8. Sin-Sar-Ichcun governou por sete anos, e 57 tabuinhas econômicas desse rei datam desde o ano de sua ascensão ao sétimo ano de seu reinado. Veja Journal of Cuneiform Studies, Volume 35, 1983, páginas 54-59.
9. A tabuinha econômica C.B.M. 2152 data do quarto ano de Assur-Etel-Ilani. (Legal and Commercial Transactions Dated in the Assyrian, Neo-Babylonian and Persian Periods—Chiefly From Nippur, de A.T. Clay, 1908, página 74.) As Inscrições de Nabonido de Harã, (H1B), I, linha 30, também o alistam antes de Nabopolassar. (Anatolian Studies, Vol. VIII, 1958, páginas 35, 47.) Para o período sem reis, veja Crônica 2, linha 14, em Assyrian and Babylonian Chronicles, páginas 87-88.
10. Eruditos alegam que alguns reis foram omitidos por Ptolomeu — que supostamente alistou apenas reis de Babilônia — porque esses eram chamados pelo título de "Rei da Assíria". No entanto, como pode notar no quadro da página 30, outros reis na lista do Cânon de Ptolomeu também tinham o título de "Rei da Assíria". Tabuinhas econômicas, cartas cuneiformes e inscrições revelam claramente que os reis Assur-Etel-Ilani, Sin-Sum-Lisir e Sin-Sar-Ichcun governaram Babilônia.

Este é o segundo de dois artigos em números consecutivos de A Sentinela que examinam questões eruditas sobre a data da primeira destruição da Jerusalém antiga. Esta série de duas partes apresenta respostas com base na Bíblia e em pesquisa meticulosa a perguntas que intrigam alguns leitores.

Quando a Jerusalém antiga foi destruída?

PARTE DOIS O QUE OS DOCUMENTOS DE ARGILA REALMENTE MOSTRAM

Foto tirada por cortesia do Museu Britânico

A PARTE UM DEIXOU CLARO OS SEGUINTES PONTOS:

- Os historiadores seculares dizem que Jerusalém foi destruída em 587 AEC.*
- A cronologia bíblica indica que a destruição ocorreu em 607 AEC.
- Os historiadores seculares baseiam suas conclusões nos escritos de historiadores clássicos e no Cânon de Ptolomeu.
- Alguns escritos de historiadores clássicos contêm erros significativos e nem sempre estão em harmonia com os registros em tabuinhas de argila.#

A BÍBLIA diz que os judeus cativos ficariam em Babilônia até se completarem "os setenta anos, . . . em cumprimento da palavra do SENHOR anunciada por Jeremias". Quando eles foram libertos? No "primeiro ano [de reinado] de Ciro, rei da Pérsia". (2 Crônicas 36:21, 22, Nova Versão Internacional) A história bíblica e secular concordam que esse exílio terminou após Ciro conquistar Babilônia e libertar os judeus, que retornaram para Jerusalém em 537 AEC. Visto que a Bíblia diz claramente que o exílio durou 70 anos, tudo indica que ele começou em 607 AEC.

No entanto, a maioria dos eruditos diz que a destruição de Jerusalém ocorreu em 587 AEC. Isso só deixaria um período de 50 anos de exílio. Por que chegaram a essa conclusão? Eles baseiam seus cálculos em antigos documentos cuneiformes que contêm detalhes sobre Nabucodonosor II e seus sucessores.[1] Muitos desses documentos foram escritos por homens que viveram durante a época da destruição de Jerusalém, ou perto dessa época. Mas até que ponto esses cálculos que apontam para 587 AEC são exatos? O que esses documentos realmente mostram?

Para responder a essas perguntas, vejamos três tipos de documentos a que os eruditos muitas vezes recorrem: (1) As crônicas babilônicas, (2) as tabuinhas econômicas e (3) as tabuinhas astronômicas.

---

* Existem várias maneiras de se falar sobre datas. AEC significa "antes da Era Comum".

Veja o artigo "Quando a Jerusalém antiga foi destruída? — Por que isso é importante, O que as evidências mostram", no número de 1.° de outubro de 2011 desta revista.

● As crônicas babilônicas.

O que são? As crônicas babilônicas são uma série de tabuinhas que registram eventos importantes da história babilônica.[2]

O que os eruditos dizem? R. H. Sack, uma destacada autoridade em documentos cuneiformes, declara que as crônicas fornecem um registro incompleto de eventos importantes.* Ele escreveu que os historiadores precisam recorrer a "fontes secundárias . . . na esperança de determinar o que realmente aconteceu".

O que os documentos mostram? Que há lacunas na história registrada nas crônicas babilônicas.[3] (Veja o quadro abaixo.) Assim, é lógico perguntar: até que ponto as conclusões baseadas nesse registro tão incompleto são confiáveis?

● Tabuinhas econômicas.

O que são? A maioria das tabuinhas econômicas do período neobabilônico são registros legais de transações comerciais. As tabuinhas registravam o dia, o mês e o ano de reinado do monarca que estava no poder. Por exemplo, há uma tabuinha que registra uma transação em "nisã, no 27.° dia, no 11.° ano de Nabucodorosor [também chamado de Nabucodonosor II], rei de Babilônia".[4]

Quando o rei morria ou era destituído e um novo rei subia ao trono, os meses restantes daquele ano de reinado eram considerados o ano de ascensão do novo governante.*[5] Ou seja, a transição de um rei para outro se dava no mesmo ano civil babilônico. Assim, as datas nas tabuinhas do ano de ascensão do novo rei deveriam logicamente se referir a meses posteriores ao último mês do rei anterior.

O que os eruditos dizem? R. H. Sack examinou várias tabuinhas econômicas do período neobabilônico. Em 1972, Sack escreveu que novos textos não divulgados do Museu

* Nota: Nenhum dos eruditos citados defende que Jerusalém foi destruída em 607 AEC.

* O ano de ascensão não era contado como ano de reinado. Referia-se aos meses do ano civil que restavam até o novo rei ser entronizado oficialmente no início do ano civil seguinte.

Britânico postos à sua disposição "derrubam totalmente" as conclusões anteriores sobre a transição do reinado de Nabucodonosor II para seu filho Amel-Marduque (também chamado de Evil-Merodaque).[6] Como assim? Sack tinha conhecimento de tabuinhas que mostravam que Nabucodonosor II ainda reinava no sexto mês de seu último ano (43.°). Mas essas novas tabuinhas recém-decifradas do ano de ascensão do rei seguinte, Amel-Marduque, datavam do quarto e quinto meses daquele que se supunha ser o mesmo ano.[7] É evidente que há uma discrepância.

O que os documentos mostram? Que há mais discrepâncias na transição de um rei para outro. Por exemplo, um documento mostra que Nabucodonosor II ainda governava no décimo mês — seis meses depois de seu sucessor supostamente ter começado a reinar.[8] Existe uma discrepância similar na transição de Amel-Marduque para seu sucessor, Neriglissar.[9]

Por que essas discrepâncias são relevantes? Como já mencionado, as lacunas na história registrada pelas crônicas babilônicas indicam que talvez não tenhamos um registro cronológico contínuo.[10] Poderiam outros ter governado entre o reinado desses reis? Nesse caso, seria necessário acrescentar anos ao período neobabilônico. Assim, nem as crônicas babilônicas nem as tabuinhas econômicas fornecem uma base para se determinar com certeza que Jerusalém foi destruída em 587 AEC.*

● Tabuinhas astronômicas.

O que são? São tabuinhas cuneiformes contendo descrições da posição do Sol, da Lua, de planetas e de estrelas combinadas com informações históricas, como o ano de reinado de determinado rei. Por exemplo, o diário astronômico abaixo registra um eclipse lunar que ocorreu no primeiro mês do primeiro ano do reinado do Rei Muquin-Zeri.[11]

O que os eruditos dizem? Os eruditos concordam que os babilônios desenvolveram extensas tabelas e listas para predizer quando era mais provável que ocorresse um eclipse.[12]

Mas poderiam os babilônios ter feito cálculos para trás no tempo a fim de saber quando os eclipses ocorreram? O professor universitário John Steele diz: "É possível que algumas das primeiras predições tenham sido feitas por meio de cálculos para trás na época em que o texto foi compilado." (O grifo é nosso.)[13] O professor universitário David Brown, que

* Há tabuinhas para todos os anos tradicionalmente atribuídos aos reis neobabilônios. Quando se somam todos os anos em que esses reis governaram e se calcula do último rei neobabilônio, Nabonido, para trás, chega-se à data de 587 AEC para a destruição de Jerusalém. Mas esse método de datação só é válido se cada rei sucedeu ao próximo imediatamente, sem que outros tenham governado entre eles.

DIÁRIO ASTRONÔMICO BM 32238

Esta tabuinha inclui um registro de eclipses lunares, mas ela foi compilada só depois do último desses eclipses, uns 400 anos após o primeiro. Visto que o escriba não presenciou todos esses eventos, ele talvez tenha usado cálculos matemáticos para determinar quando os eclipses anteriores ocorreram. A menos que haja outras evidências que confirmem suas conclusões, cálculos desse tipo podem não ser uma fonte confiável de informações cronológicas.

acredita que as tabelas astronômicas incluíam predições feitas pouco antes dos eventos registrados, reconhece que é concebível que algumas delas fossem "cálculos retroativos realizados por escribas no quarto século a.C ou em séculos posteriores".[14] Se esses cálculos forem retroativos, será que podem ser considerados absolutamente confiáveis sem que outras evidências os confirmem?

Mesmo que um eclipse tenha ocorrido em certa data, será que isso significa que a informação histórica que o escritor da tabuinha atribuiu àquela data é exata? Não necessariamente. O erudito R. J. van der Spek explica: "Os compiladores eram astrólogos, não historiadores." Ao falar de partes de tabuinhas com registros históricos, ele as descreve como "mais ou menos casuais", e alerta que esse tipo de informação histórica precisa "ser usada com cautela".[15]

O que os documentos mostram? Veja o exemplo de uma tabuinha conhecida como VAT 4956. A primeira linha dessa tabuinha diz: "Ano 37 de Nabucodonosor, rei de Babilônia."[16] Em seguida, ela faz uma descrição detalhada da posição da Lua e de planetas em relação a diferentes estrelas e constelações. Também inclui um eclipse lunar. Os eruditos dizem que todas essas posições ocorreram em 568/567 AEC, o que faria com que o 18.° ano de Nabucodonosor II, quando ele destruiu Jerusalém, fosse 587 AEC. Mas será que essas referências astronômicas apontam irrefutavelmente apenas para o ano de 568/567 AEC?

A tabuinha menciona um eclipse lunar que, segundo os cálculos, ocorreu no 15.° dia do terceiro mês babilônico, simanu. Realmente ocorreu um eclipse lunar nesse mês em 568 AEC — 4 de julho no calendário juliano. No entanto, também houve um eclipse 20 anos antes, em 15 de julho de 588 AEC.[17]

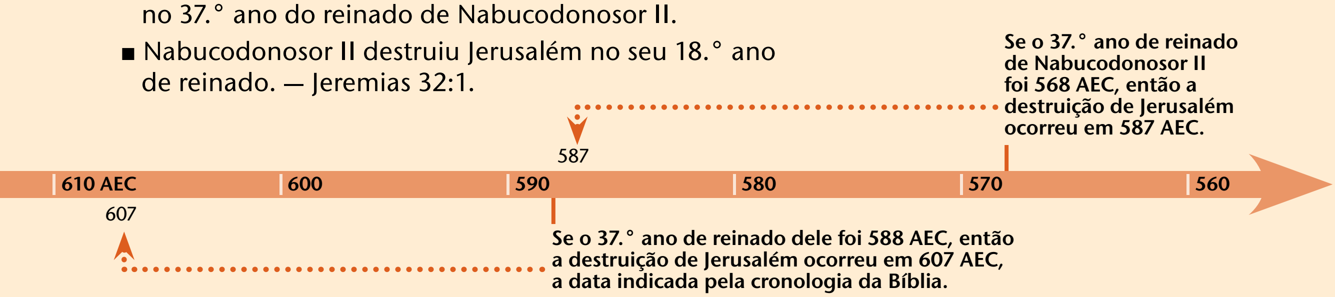
Se 588 AEC marcou o 37.° ano de Nabucodonosor II, então seu 18.° ano cairia em 607 AEC — exatamente o ano que a cronologia bíblica indica para a destruição de Jerusalém. (Veja a linha do tempo abaixo.) Mas será que a VAT 4956 fornece mais evidências para o ano 607 AEC?

Além do eclipse já mencionado, a tabuinha contém 13 grupos de observações lunares e 15 observações planetárias. Elas descrevem a posição da Lua ou de planetas em relação a certas estrelas ou constelações.[18] Há também oito intervalos de tempo entre o nascer e o pôr do sol e o nascer e o pôr da lua.[18a]

Por causa da confiabilidade superior das posições lunares, os pesquisadores examinaram cuidadosamente os 13 grupos de posições lunares na VAT 4956. Eles analisaram os dados com a ajuda de um programa de computador capaz de mostrar a localização de corpos celestes em determinada data no passado.[19] O que

QUE ANO A VAT 4956 INDICA COMO O ANO DA DESTRUIÇÃO DE JERUSALÉM — 587 AEC OU 607 AEC?

- A tabuinha descreve eventos astronômicos que ocorreram no 37.° ano do reinado de Nabucodonosor II.
- Nabucodonosor II destruiu Jerusalém no seu 18.° ano de reinado. — Jeremias 32:1.



- A VAT 4956 aponta com mais certeza para 607 AEC

O QUE A VAT 4956 REALMENTE DIZ?

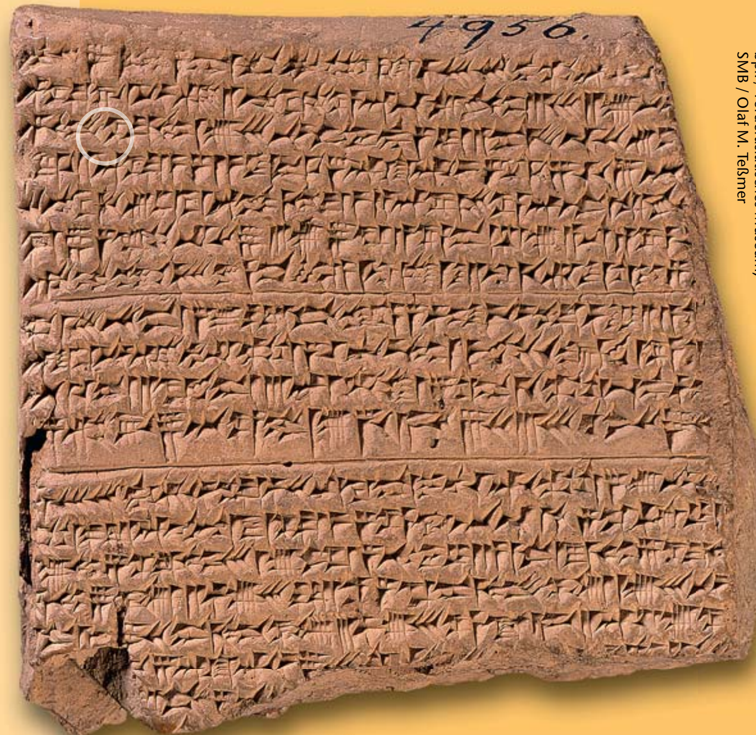
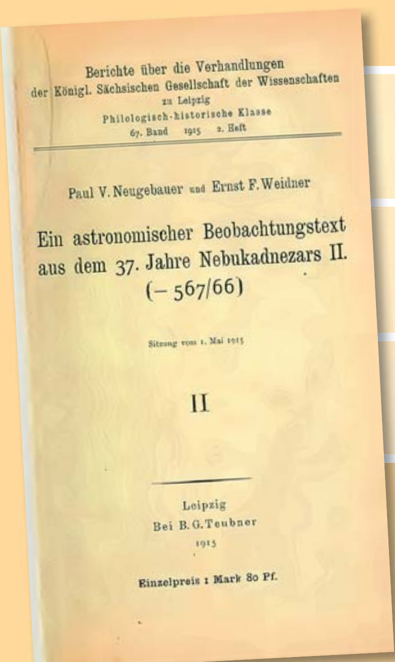
1

Por que a pergunta? A terceira linha desta tabuinha diz que na "noite do dia 9" do primeiro mês (nisanu/nisã), "a Lua estava 1 côvado em frente à ß Virginis". Mas em 1915 Neugebauer e Weidner, escrevendo sobre o ano 568 AEC (que apontaria para 587 AEC como o ano da destruição de Jerusalém), disseram que "a Lua estava 1 côvado em frente a essa estrela no dia 8 de nisã, e não no dia 9 de nisã". (O grifo é nosso.) Mas há uma combinação exata da posição da Lua para o dia 9 de nisã de 588 AEC, o que aponta para a data de 607 AEC.





Berichte über die Verhandlungen der Königl. Sächsischen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Leipzig
Philologisch-historische Klasse
67. Band 1915 2. Heft

Paul V. Neugebauer und Ernst F. Weidner

Ein astronomischer Beobachtungstext aus dem 37. Jahre Nebukadnezars II. (– 567/66)

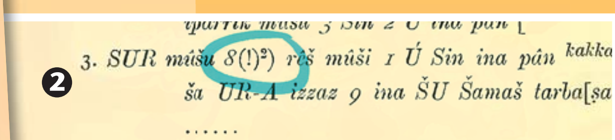
Sitzung vom 1. Mai 1915

II

Leipzig
Bei B. G. Teubner
1915

Einzelpreis: Mark 80 Pf.

2



3. SUR mûšu 8(!)²) rêš mûši 1 Ú Sin ina pân kakka
ša UR-A izzaz 9 ina ŠU Šamaš tarba[ṣa
......

3

1) Der Originaltext soll in den Vorderasiatischen Schrift
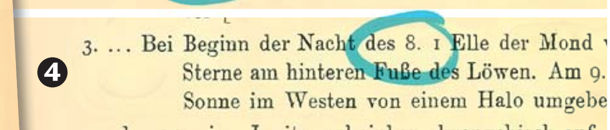
veröffentlicht werden.
2) Text: 9.

4



3. ... Bei Beginn der Nacht des 8. 1 Elle der Mond Sterne am hinteren Fuße des Löwen. Am 9.
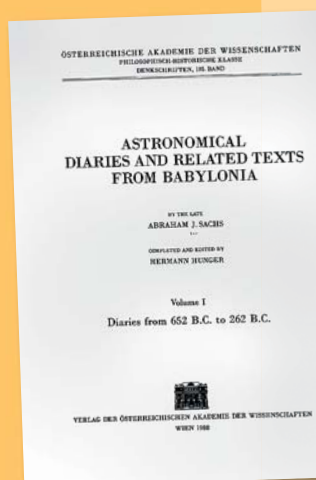
Sonne im Westen von einem Halo umgebe



ÖSTERREICHISCHE AKADEMIE DER WISSENSCHAFTEN
PHILOSOPHISCH-HISTORISCHE KLASSE
DENKSCHRIFTEN, 195. BAND

ASTRONOMICAL DIARIES AND RELATED TEXTS FROM BABYLONIA

BY THE LATE
ABRAHAM J. SACHS

COMPLETED AND EDITED BY HERMANN HUNGER

Volume I
Diaries from 652 B.C. to 262 B.C.

VERLAG DER ÖSTERREICHISCHEN AKADEMIE DER WISSENSCHAFTEN
WIEN 1988

essa análise revelou? Ao passo que nem todos esses grupos de posições lunares são compatíveis com o ano 568/567 AEC, os 13 grupos são compatíveis com posições calculadas para 20 anos antes, ou seja, para o ano 588/587 AEC.

Um dos lugares onde as observações lunares combinam ainda mais com 588 AEC do que com 568 AEC é mostrado na tabuinha reproduzida nestas páginas. Na linha 3 dessa tabuinha, lemos que a Lua estava em determinada posição na "noite de 9 [de nisanu]". No entanto, os primeiros eruditos que disseram que esse evento ocorreu em 568 AEC (astronômico -567) admitiram que nesse ano a Lua estava nessa posição em "8 de nisanu e não em 9". Para apoiar a data de 568 AEC, eles alegaram que o escriba se equivocou, escrevendo "9" em vez de "8".[20] Mas a posição lunar na linha 3 se encaixa perfeitamente com 9 de nisanu de 588 AEC.[21]

Fica claro então que muitos dos dados astronômicos na VAT 4956 combinam com o ano de 588 AEC como o 37.° ano de Nabucodonosor II. Assim, esses dados apoiam o ano de 607 AEC como a data da destruição de Jerusalém — exatamente como a Bíblia indica.

Por que confiar na Bíblia?

Hoje, a maioria dos historiadores seculares acreditam que Jerusalém foi destruída em 587 AEC. No entanto, os escritores bíblicos Jeremias e Daniel dizem claramente que os judeus ficaram no exílio 70 anos, não 50. (Jeremias 25:1, 2, 11; 29:10; Daniel 9:2) Essas declarações indicam fortemente que Jerusalém foi destruída em 607 AEC. Como as evidências citadas mostram, essa conclusão tem algum apoio secular.

A exatidão da Bíblia tem sido frequentemente questionada por eruditos seculares. Mas quando aparecem mais evidências, a veracidade do registro bíblico vez após vez é comprovada.* Aqueles que confiam na Bíblia têm bons motivos para isso. Baseiam suas conclusões em evidências que provam que a Bíblia é exata em sentido histórico, científico e profético. Essas evidências os levam a acreditar na afirmação da Bíblia de ser a Palavra inspirada de Deus. (2 Timóteo 3:16) Que acha de pesquisar pessoalmente essas evidências? É bem possível que você chegue à mesma conclusão.

* Para exemplos específicos, veja os capítulos 4 e 5 do livro A Bíblia — Palavra de Deus ou de Homem?, publicado pelas Testemunhas de Jeová.

Deveria ser o nono ou o oitavo dia?

(1) Como mostra a foto ao lado, o símbolo acadiano representando o número 9 aparece claramente.

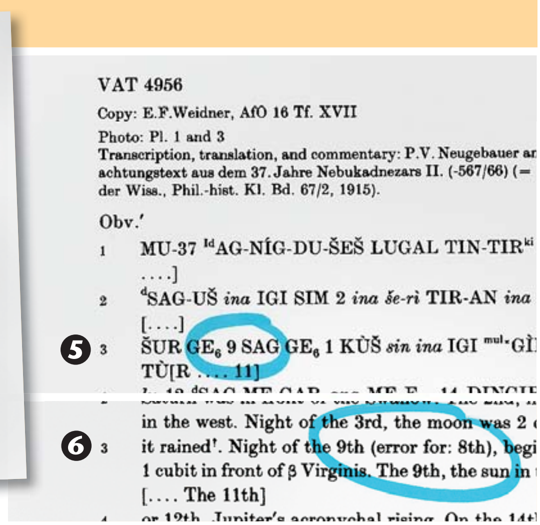
(2) Na sua transliteração desse texto cuneiforme, Neugebauer e Weidner mudaram "9" para "8".

(3) Apenas a nota de rodapé indica que havia um "9" no texto original.

(4) Até mesmo na sua tradução em alemão, eles colocaram "8".

(5) Em 1988, Sachs e Hunger publicaram o texto na forma como ele realmente era, com o "9".

(6) Mesmo assim, eles mantiveram a alteração na sua tradução para o inglês, chamando o "9" de erro, dizendo que o certo seria o "8".



VAT 4956

Copy: E.F.Weidner, AfO 16 Tf. XVII

Photo: Pl. 1 and 3

Transcription, translation, and commentary: P.V. Neugebauer an[...] achtungstext aus dem 37. Jahre Nebukadnezars II. (-567/66) (= [...] der Wiss., Phil.-hist. Kl. Bd. 67/2, 1915).

Obv.′

1 MU-37 IdAG-NÍG-DU-ŠEŠ LUGAL TIN-TIRki [...] ....]

2 dSAG-UŠ ina IGI SIM 2 ina še-ri TIR-AN ina [...] [....]

5 3 ŠUR GE6 9 SAG GE6 1 KÙŠ sin ina IGI mul·GÌ[...] TÙ[R .... 11]

[...]

in the west. Night of the 3rd, the moon was 2 [...]

6 3 it rained?. Night of the 9th (error for: 8th), begi[...] 1 cubit in front of β Virginis. The 9th, the sun in [...] [.... The 11th]

4 or 12th. Jupiter's acronychal rising. On the 14th [...]

Notas para o artigo "Quando a Jerusalém antiga foi destruída? — Parte Dois"

1. Cuneiforme é um estilo de escrita em forma de cunha. Consistia em um escriba gravar vários símbolos na superfície lisa de uma tabuinha de argila usando um estilete com ponta afiada em forma de cunha.

2. Assyrian and Babylonian Chronicles, de A. K. Grayson, publicado em 1975, reimpresso em 2000, página 8.

3. O período neobabilônico começou durante o sétimo século AEC, quando a dinastia caldeia de reis governou o Império Babilônico. O primeiro governante foi Nabopolassar, pai de Nabucodonosor II. Esse período terminou quando o último rei, Nabonido, foi derrubado pelo rei persa, Ciro, em 539 AEC.

4. Neo-Babylonian Business and Administrative Documents, de Ellen Whitley Moore, publicado em 1935, página 33.

5. Archimedes, Volume 4, New Studies in the History and Philosophy of Science and Technology, "Observations and Predictions of Eclipse Times by Early Astronomers", de John M. Steele, publicado em 2000, página 36.

6. Amel-Marduk 562-560 B.C.—A Study Based on Cuneiform, Old Testament, Greek, Latin and Rabbinical Sources. With Plates, de Ronald H. Sack, publicado em 1972, página 3.

7. As tabuinhas BM 80920 e BM 58872 são datadas do quarto e do quinto mês do ano de ascensão de Evil-Merodaque. Elas foram publicadas por Sack em Amel-Marduk 562-560 B.C.—A Study Based on Cuneiform, Old Testament, Greek, Latin and Rabbinical Sources. With Plates, páginas 3, 90, 106.

8. A tabuinha no Museu Britânico (BM 55806) é datada do décimo mês, 43.° ano.

9. As tabuinhas BM 75106 e BM 61325 são datadas do sétimo e décimo mês do que é considerado o último (segundo) ano do reinado de Evil-Merodaque. Contudo, a tabuinha BM 75489 é datada do segundo mês do ano de ascensão de Neriglissar, seu sucessor. — Catalogue of the Babylonian Tablets in the British Museum, Volume VIII, (Tablets From Sippar 3) de Erle Leichty, J. J. Finkelstein e C.B.F. Walker, publicado em 1988, páginas 25, 35.

Catalogue of the Babylonian Tablets in the British Museum, Volume VII, (Tablets From Sippar 2) de Erle Leichty e A. K. Grayson, publicado em 1987, página 36.

Neriglissar—King of Babylon, de Ronald H. Sack, publicado em 1994, página 232. O mês que aparece na tabuinha é ajaru (segundo mês).

10. Considere o exemplo de Neriglissar. Uma inscrição real sobre ele declara que ele era "o filho de Bel-Sum-Ichcun", o "rei de Babilônia". (O grifo é nosso.) Outra inscrição chama Bel-Sum-Ichcun de "príncipe sábio". A palavra original traduzida por "príncipe", rubû, é um título que também significa "rei, governante". Visto que há uma contradição óbvia entre o reinado de Neriglissar e de seu predecessor, Amel-Marduque, poderia esse "rei de Babilônia", Bel-Sum-Ichcun, ter governado por um tempo entre os dois? O professor universitário R. P. Dougherty reconheceu que "a evidência de que Neriglissar era de linhagem nobre não pode ser desconsiderada". — Nabonidus and Belshazzar—A Study of the Closing Events of the Neo-Babylonian Empire, de Raymond P. Dougherty, publicado em 1929, página 61.

11. Astronomical Diaries and Related Texts From Babylonia, Volume V, editado por Hermann Hunger, publicado em 2001, páginas 2-3.

12. Journal of Cuneiform Studies, Volume 2, N.° 4, 1948, "A Classification of the Babylonian Astronomical Tablets of the Seleucid Period", de A. Sachs, páginas 282-283.

13. Astronomical Diaries and Related Texts From Babylonia, Volume V, página 391.

14. Mesopotamian Planetary Astronomy-Astrology, de David Brown, publicado em 2000, páginas 164, 201-202.

15. Bibliotheca Orientalis, L N° 1/2, Januari-Maart, 1993, "The Astronomical Diaries as a Source for Achaemenid and Seleucid History", de R. J. van der Spek, páginas 94, 102.

16. Astronomical Diaries and Related Texts From Babylonia, Volume I, de Abraham J. Sachs, finalizado e editado por Hermann Hunger, publicado em 1988, página 47.

17. Babylonian Eclipse Observations From 750 BC to 1 BC, de Peter J. Huber e Salvo De Meis, publicado em 2004, página 186. Segundo a VAT 4956, esse eclipse ocorreu no 15.° dia do terceiro mês babilônico, o que indica que o mês de simanu começou 15 dias antes. Se o eclipse aconteceu em 15 de julho de 588 AEC, de acordo com o calendário juliano, então o primeiro dia de simanu seria 30 de junho/1.° de julho de 588 AEC. Portanto, o primeiro mês babilônico (nisanu) teria dado início ao novo ano dois meses antes, em 2/3 de maio. Ao passo que normalmente o ano desse eclipse teria começado em 3/4 de abril, a VAT 4956 menciona na linha 6 que um mês extra (intercalar) foi acrescentado depois do décimo segundo (último) mês (adaru) do ano anterior. (A tabuinha diz: "8.° dia do mês XII_2 [13.° mês].") Portanto, isso significa que o novo ano realmente não começou antes de 2/3 de maio. Assim, a data desse eclipse em 588 AEC se encaixa bem na data mencionada na tabuinha.

18. Segundo Berichte über die Verhandlungen der Königl. Sächsischen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Leipzig; Volume 67; 1.° de maio, 1915; no artigo "Ein astronomischer Beobachtungstext aus dem 37. Jahre Nebukadnezars II", de Paul V. Neugebauer e Ernst F. Weidner, páginas 67-76, há 13 grupos de observações da Lua em que ela é descrita em relação a certa estrela ou constelação. Eles também alistam 15 grupos de observações planetárias. (Páginas 72-76) Embora o símbolo cuneiforme para a Lua seja claro e sem ambiguidade, alguns dos símbolos para os nomes dos planetas e suas posições não são claros. (Mesopotamian Planetary Astronomy—Astrology, de David Brown, publicado em 2000, páginas 53-57) Por causa disso, as observações planetárias estão abertas a especulação e a várias interpretações. Visto que a Lua pode facilmente ser rastreada, as posições dos outros corpos celestes mencionados na VAT 4956 e relacionados à Lua podem ser identificados, e suas posições datadas com boa medida de certeza.

18a. Estes intervalos de tempo são a medição de tempo, por exemplo, do pôr do sol ao pôr da lua no primeiro dia do mês e durante dois outros períodos mais tarde no mês. Os eruditos têm relacionado essas medições de tempo a datas calendares. ("The Earliest Datable Observation of the Aurora Borealis," de F. R. Stephenson e David M. Willis, em Under One Sky—Astronomy and Mathematics in the Ancient Near East, editado por John M. Steele e Annette Imhausen, publicado em 2002, páginas 420-428) Para antigos observadores, medir esse período exigia um tipo de relógio. Essas medições não eram confiáveis. (Archimedes, Volume 4, New Studies in the History and Philosophy of Science and Technology, "Observations and Predictions of Eclipse Times by Early Astronomers", de John M. Steele, publicado em 2000, páginas 65-66) Por outro lado, o cálculo da posição da Lua em relação a outros corpos celestes era feito com maior certeza.

19. Essa análise foi feita com o software de astronomia chamado TheSky6®. Além disso, a análise foi ampliada por um abrangente programa freeware chamado Cartes du Ciel/Sky Charts (CDC) e um conversor de dados fornecido pelo Observatório Naval dos Estados Unidos. Visto que os símbolos cuneiformes das posições planetárias estão abertas a especulação e a várias interpretações, essas posições não foram usadas nessa pesquisa para apontar o ano intencionado por esse diário astronômico.

20. Berichte über die Verhandlungen der Königl. Sächsischen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Leipzig; Volume 67; 1.° de maio de 1915; "Ein astronomischer Beobachtungstext aus dem 37. Jahre Nebukadnezars II, (-567/66)" de Paul V. Neugebauer e Ernst F. Weidner, página 41.

21. A VAT 4956 diz na terceira linha: "A Lua estava 1 côvado [ou 2 graus] em frente à ß Virginis." A análise já mencionada concluiu que em 9 de nisanu a Lua estava 2°04′ em frente à estrela ß Virginis e 0° abaixo dela. Foi considerada uma combinação exata.

ESTUDO 46

Jeová nos garante que a Terra será um paraíso

"Todo aquele na terra que procurar uma bênção para si mesmo será abençoado pelo Deus da verdade." — ISA. 65:16.

CÂNTICO 3

Jeová, minha força e esperança

O QUE VAMOS VER

Neste estudo, vamos ver como Jeová nos garante que a promessa do Paraíso vai se cumprir. Toda vez que compartilhamos essa garantia com outros, nós também fortalecemos nossa confiança nas promessas de Jeová.

O PROFETA Isaías disse que Jeová é o "Deus da verdade". A palavra traduzida como "verdade" significa literalmente "amém". (Isa. 65:16, nota) "Amém" significa "assim seja", ou "certamente". Quando a palavra "amém" é usada na Bíblia para falar de Jeová ou Jesus, isso é uma garantia de que o que eles dizem é verdade. Por isso, a mensagem de Isaías para os israelitas era bem clara: sempre que Jeová diz que vai fazer algo, é certo que isso vai acontecer. O fato é que Jeová cumpre tudo o que promete.

[2] Será que também podemos confiar que as promessas que Jeová fez para o futuro vão se cumprir? Uns 800 anos depois da época de Isaías, o apóstolo Paulo explicou por que podemos ter certeza que as promessas de Deus sempre se cumprem. Paulo disse: "É impossível que Deus minta." (Heb. 6:18) Pense no seguinte: se uma fonte natural produz água doce, ela nunca vai produzir água salgada. Da mesma forma, Jeová, que é a fonte da verdade, nunca vai mentir. Por isso é que nós podemos confiar em tudo o que Jeová diz. Isso

---

1. Qual foi a mensagem de Isaías para os israelitas?

2. (a) Por que podemos confiar nas promessas que Jeová fez para o nosso futuro? (b) Que perguntas vamos responder neste estudo?

inclui as promessas que ele fez para o nosso futuro. Neste estudo, vamos responder a duas perguntas: O que Jeová prometeu nos dar no futuro? E que garantia Jeová nos deu de que isso vai acontecer mesmo?

O QUE JEOVÁ PROMETEU?

3 Vamos ver uma promessa que é muito especial para todos nós. (Leia Apocalipse 21:3, 4.) Jeová diz que um dia "não haverá mais morte, nem haverá mais tristeza, nem choro, nem dor". Muitos de nós lemos esses versículos consoladores para tocar o coração das pessoas na pregação e para mostrar como será a vida no Paraíso. Mas qual é a reação de algumas pessoas? Talvez elas digam: "Isso é bom demais para ser verdade."

4 Quando Jeová inspirou o apóstolo João a escrever sobre a promessa do Paraíso, Ele já sabia que iríamos usar esses versículos ao pregar as boas novas do Reino. Jeová também sabia que muitas pessoas achariam difícil acreditar que as coisas mudariam no futuro. (Isa. 42:9; 60:2; 2 Cor. 4:3, 4) Então, como podemos ajudar as pessoas a se convencer de que as bênçãos prometidas em Apocalipse 21:3, 4 vão se cumprir?

---

3. (a) Que promessa de Jeová é muito especial para nós? (Apocalipse 21:3, 4) (b) Como alguns reagem quando falamos sobre essa promessa?

4. (a) Quando Jeová fez a promessa do Paraíso, o que ele sabia que iria acontecer? (b) Além de fazer essa promessa, o que mais Jeová fez?

E como podemos fortalecer nossa confiança em Jeová e na sua promessa? Jeová nos deu fortes motivos para acreditarmos que ele vai cumprir sua promessa. Que motivos são esses?

JEOVÁ NOS GARANTE QUE VAI CUMPRIR SUA PROMESSA

5 Logo em seguida, em Apocalipse 21:5,6, encontramos alguns motivos para confiar na promessa de Jeová sobre o Paraíso. Lá, nós lemos: "Aquele que estava sentado no trono disse: 'Veja! Estou fazendo novas todas as coisas.' Ele disse também: 'Escreva, pois essas palavras são fiéis e verdadeiras.' E ele me disse: 'Elas se cumpriram! Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega, o princípio e o fim.'"

6 Por que esses versículos da Bíblia fortalecem a nossa confiança na promessa de Deus? O livro Clímax de Revelação explica que é como se o próprio Jeová assinasse um documento, ou uma garantia, referente a essas bênçãos futuras para a humanidade fiel.* Em Apocalipse 21:3, 4 nós encontramos a promessa de Deus.

---

* Veja o livro Revelação — Seu Grandioso Clímax Está Próximo!, pp. 303-304, pars. 8-9.

---

5. Quais versículos nos ajudam a confiar na promessa de Deus, e o que eles dizem?

6. Por que a garantia que se encontra em Apocalipse 21:5, 6 fortalece nossa confiança na promessa de Jeová?

Mas nos versículos 5 e 6, nós encontramos a assinatura de Jeová, por assim dizer, que garante que essa promessa vai se cumprir. Vamos ver agora mais detalhes sobre essa garantia de Jeová e por que podemos confiar nele.

7 Repare como começa o versículo 5: "Aquele que estava sentado no trono disse." (Apo. 21:5a) Essas palavras são especiais porque introduzem uma das três vezes que Jeová falou no livro de Apocalipse. Não foi um anjo, nem mesmo Jesus, que deu essa garantia, mas sim o próprio Jeová! Isso prova que podemos confiar plenamente no que ele disse nesses versículos. Por quê? Porque Jeová "não pode mentir". (Tito 1:2) Então podemos confiar nas palavras que João registrou em Apocalipse.

"VEJA! ESTOU FAZENDO NOVAS TODAS AS COISAS"

8 Repare na primeira palavra que Jeová falou: "Veja!" (Apo. 21:5) A palavra grega traduzida como "veja!" é usada várias vezes no livro de Apocalipse. Certa obra de referência diz que essa palavra junto com a exclamação é usada para "ajudar o leitor a pres-

---

7. De quem são as palavras no versículo 5, e por que isso é tão especial?

8. O que Jeová disse para mostrar que sua promessa vai se cumprir? (Isaías 46:10) tar atenção ao que se segue". E o que Deus disse depois? Ele disse: "Estou fazendo novas todas as coisas." Jeová só vai fazer essas mudanças no futuro. Mas ele tem tanta certeza que vai cumprir o que prometeu que fala como se essas mudanças já estivessem acontecendo. — Leia Isaías 46:10.

[9] Jeová disse em Apocalipse 21:5: "Estou fazendo novas todas as coisas." O que isso significa? Nesse capítulo, essa frase mostra que Jeová vai destruir este sistema de coisas e trazer um novo mundo. Em Apocalipse 21:1, nós lemos: "O céu anterior e a terra anterior tinham passado." O "céu anterior" se refere aos governos controlados por Satanás e seus demônios. (Mat. 4:8, 9; 1 João 5:19) Já a palavra "terra" pode ser usada para se referir aos habitantes da Terra. (Gên. 11:1; Sal. 96:1) Dessa forma, a "terra anterior" se refere às pessoas más. Jeová não vai tentar consertar ou dar um jeito no "céu" e na "terra" anteriores. Em vez disso, ele vai se livrar deles completamente e substituí-los por "um novo céu e uma nova terra" — ou seja, um novo governo que vai reinar sobre pessoas justas.

[10] O que mais Jeová vai realizar para 'fazer novas todas as coisas'? (Apo. 21:5) Ele vai restaurar a Terra e fazer com que os humanos sejam perfeitos. Como disse

---

9. (a) O que significa a expressão "fazendo novas todas as coisas"? (b) O que vai acontecer com o "céu" e a "terra" anteriores?

10. Como Jeová vai fazer novas todas as coisas?

a profecia de Isaías, Jeová vai fazer com que toda a Terra seja um lugar lindo, parecido ao jardim do Éden. Essa restauração também vai refletir nas pessoas. Jeová promete que seremos curados de todas as doenças. Os cegos, os surdos e os mancos serão curados, e até os mortos serão ressuscitados. — Isa. 25:8; 35:1-7.

"ESSAS PALAVRAS SÃO FIÉIS E VERDADEIRAS . . . ELAS SE CUMPRIRAM!"

11 O que mais Deus disse para nos ajudar a confiar na promessa dele? Jeová disse para o apóstolo João: "Escreva, pois essas palavras são fiéis e verdadeiras." (Apo. 21:5) Além de pedir para João escrever, Jeová também deu a ele o motivo para fazer isso. Jeová acrescentou: "Pois essas palavras são fiéis e verdadeiras." Isso quer dizer que as palavras de Deus são confiáveis. Nós somos muito gratos por João ter obedecido a essa ordem e ter escrito essas palavras. Por causa disso, hoje nós podemos ler sobre a esperança do Paraíso e meditar nas maravilhosas bênçãos que nos esperam.

12 O que mais Jeová falou? Ele disse: "Elas se cumpriram!" (Apo. 21:6) Nesse versículo, Jeová está falan-

---

11. O que Jeová pediu para João fazer, e que motivo Jeová deu a ele?

12. Por que Jeová disse: "Elas se cumpriram!"?

do como se as coisas que ele prometeu sobre o Paraíso já tivessem acontecido. Jeová pode falar desse modo porque nada vai impedir que seu propósito se cumpra. E Jeová disse outra coisa que reforça ainda mais que sua promessa vai se cumprir. O que ele disse?

“EU SOU O ALFA E O ÔMEGA”

13 Como já vimos, foi o próprio Jeová quem falou três vezes nas visões de João. (Apo. 1:8; 21:5, 6; 22:13) Em cada uma dessas ocasiões, Jeová disse: “Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega.” No alfabeto grego, alfa é a primeira letra, e ômega é a última. Ao falar “eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega”, Jeová mostra que quando começa algo ele chega até o fim e faz com que tudo dê certo.

14 Depois de Jeová ter criado Adão e Eva, ele disse qual seria seu propósito para a humanidade e a Terra. A Bíblia diz: “Deus os abençoou e Deus lhes disse: ‘Tenham filhos e tornem-se muitos; encham e dominem a terra.’” (Gên. 1:28) Quando Jeová declarou o seu propósito é como se ele tivesse dito: “Alfa.” O propósito de Jeová só vai se cumprir quando os descendentes obedientes de Adão e Eva forem perfeitos, encherem a Terra e a transformarem num paraíso. Quando isso acontecer, é como se Jeová dissesse: “Ômega.”

---

13. Por que Jeová disse: “Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega”?

14. (a) Quando Jeová falou “Alfa”? E quando vai falar “Ômega”? (b) Que garantia encontramos em Gênesis 2:1-3?

Quando Jeová terminou de criar "os céus, a terra e tudo que há neles", ele disse o que encontramos em Gênesis 2:1-3. (Leia.) Jeová declarou que o sétimo dia seria sagrado. O que isso significa? Significa que ele determinou que no sétimo dia seu propósito se cumpriria completamente. Então temos a garantia de que até o final desse dia o propósito de Jeová será realizado.

15 Depois que Adão e Eva desobedeceram a Jeová, eles se tornaram pecadores e por isso passariam o pecado e a morte a seus filhos. (Rom. 5:12) Satanás poderia pensar que tinha conseguido impedir que Jeová cumprisse seu propósito de encher a Terra com pessoas perfeitas e obedientes e que Jeová nunca poderia dizer "Ômega". Satanás deve ter pensado que Jeová teria poucas opções para resolver esse assunto. Uma opção talvez fosse destruir Adão e Eva e criar outro casal perfeito para cumprir seu propósito para a humanidade. Mas se Jeová tivesse feito isso, Satanás poderia acusá-lo de ser um mentiroso. Por quê? Porque de acordo com Gênesis 1:28, Jeová tinha dito a Adão e Eva que os filhos deles encheriam a Terra.

16 Que outra coisa Satanás poderia ter pensado que Deus faria? Talvez ele tenha pensado que Jeová deixa-

---

15. Por que Satanás talvez tenha pensado que tinha conseguido impedir Jeová de cumprir seu propósito?

16. Por que talvez Satanás tenha pensado que poderia acusar Jeová de ser um fracasso?

Quando Jeová começa algo, ele sempre termina
(Veja os parágrafos 14 e 17.)

ria que Adão e Eva tivessem filhos, mas que eles nunca seriam perfeitos. (Ecl. 7:20; Rom. 3:23) Nesse caso, Satanás sem dúvida teria acusado Jeová de ser um fracasso. Por quê? Porque Deus não teria conseguido cumprir seu propósito de a Terra ser um paraíso cheio de humanos obedientes e perfeitos que fossem filhos de Adão e Eva.

17 Mas Satanás nunca poderia imaginar o que Jeová faria. Jeová resolveu as coisas de maneira perfeita

---

17. Como Jeová resolveu a rebelião de Satanás e de Adão e Eva, e qual será o resultado final? (Veja também a imagem.)

Três motivos para confiar na promessa de Jeová

“Aquele que estava sentado no trono disse: ‘Veja! Estou fazendo novas todas as coisas.’ ” — Apo. 21:5

“Ele disse também: ‘Escreva, pois essas palavras são fiéis e verdadeiras . . . Elas se cumpriram!’ ” — Apo. 21:5, 6

“Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega.” — Apo. 21:6

para que seu propósito se cumprisse. (Sal. 92:5) Ele permitiu que Adão e Eva tivessem filhos. Dessa forma, Jeová mostrou que não era mentiroso. Ele também proveu um “descendente” que resgataria os filhos obedientes de Adão e Eva e se certificou assim que seu propósito se cumpriria. (Gên. 3:15; 22:18) Assim, Jeová não poderia ser acusado de ser um fracasso. O descendente que Jeová prometeu daria sua vida como resgate para salvar a humanidade. Provavelmente, essa solução pegou Satanás de surpresa. Por quê? Porque o resgate se baseia no imenso amor de Jeová. (Mat. 20:28; João 3:16) Satanás é completamente egoísta, ele não sabe o que é sentir amor pelas pessoas. Então, o que vai acontecer graças ao resgate? No final do Reinado de Mil Anos de Cristo, os descendentes obedientes e perfeitos de Adão e Eva encherão a Terra, que será um paraíso — exatamente como Jeová disse que ia acontecer. Nessa época, Jeová finalmente dirá: "Ômega."

COMO FORTALECER NOSSA CONFIANÇA NA PROMESSA DE JEOVÁ DO PARAÍSO?

[18] Neste estudo, vimos várias coisas que nos dão motivos para acreditar que a Terra vai ser um paraíso. Então, o que podemos dizer para aqueles que duvidam que isso vai acontecer? Primeiro, é o próprio Jeová que faz a promessa. O livro de Apocalipse diz: "Aquele que estava sentado no trono disse: 'Veja! Estou fazendo novas todas as coisas.'" Jeová tem a sabedoria, o poder e o desejo de cumprir o que prometeu. Segundo, do ponto de vista de Jeová, o que ele prometeu é tão certo que é como se já tivesse acontecido. É por isso que ele disse: "Essas palavras são fiéis e verdadeiras . . . Elas se cumpriram!" Terceiro, nada pode impedir Jeová de terminar algo que ele começou. Por isso, ele disse: "Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega." No final, ficará provado que é Satanás, e não Jeová, que é um mentiroso e um fracasso.

---

18. Que três garantias Jeová nos dá? (Veja também o quadro "Três motivos para confiar na promessa de Jeová".)

[19] Lembre-se: toda vez que você falar para uma pessoa na pregação que ela pode confiar nas promessas de Jeová, na verdade, você também estará fortalecendo sua própria confiança nas promessas Dele. Então, da próxima vez que você ler a maravilhosa esperança do futuro Paraíso descrita em Apocalipse 21:4 e alguém disser que isso é bom demais para ser verdade, o que você pode fazer? Você pode ler e explicar os versículos 5 e 6, mostrando para a pessoa que o próprio Jeová assinou a garantia de que ele vai cumprir tudo o que prometeu. — Isa. 65:16.

---

19. Se as pessoas acham difícil acreditar na promessa de Deus do Paraíso, o que você pode fazer?

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Por que é consolador saber que foi o próprio Jeová que prometeu o Paraíso?
- O que Deus disse para garantir que sua promessa vai se cumprir?
- Como podemos fortalecer nossa confiança na promessa de Jeová?

CÂNTICO 145

Deus prometeu um paraíso

Continue viajando no "Caminho de Santidade"

"Ali haverá uma estrada, sim, um caminho chamado Caminho de Santidade." — ISA. 35:8.

CÂNTICO 31
Ande com Deus

O QUE VAMOS VER

Jeová chamou de "Caminho de Santidade" a estrada simbólica que levaria os judeus de Babilônia a Israel. Será que Jeová também preparou um caminho como esse para seu povo em nossos dias? Com certeza! Desde 1919, milhões de pessoas têm saído de Babilônia, a Grande, e começado a andar no "Caminho de Santidade". Todos nós devemos continuar nesse caminho até chegarmos ao nosso destino.

O REI anunciou: os judeus, que estavam presos em Babilônia por uns 70 anos, podiam voltar para sua terra, Israel. (Leia Esdras 1:2-4.) É claro que Jeová estava por trás disso, porque Babilônia não costumava libertar seus prisioneiros. (Isa. 14:4, 17) Mas Babilônia foi conquistada, e seu novo governante permitiu que os judeus deixassem o país. Por isso, cada judeu, especialmente os chefes de família, precisava tomar uma decisão — sair de Babilônia ou continuar ali. Essa decisão não era nada fácil. Por quê?

2 Muitos judeus já eram idosos, por isso essa viagem seria muito difícil para eles. E como a maioria dos judeus tinham nascido em Babilônia, aquele era o único lar que eles conheciam. Para eles, Israel era apenas a terra de seus pais ou avós. Alguns judeus aparentemente tinham se tornado ricos em Babilônia. Seria difícil abrir mão de suas casas confortáveis e seus negócios e começar do zero num lugar desconhecido.

3 Para os judeus fiéis, as bênçãos de retornar a Israel superavam qualquer sacrifício que talvez tivessem que fazer. A maior bênção de todas tinha a ver com a adoração a Jeová. Em Babilônia havia mais de 50 templos para a adoração falsa, mas lá os israelitas não tinham nenhum templo para adorar a Jeová. Eles também não tinham um altar nem sacerdotes organizados para oferecer os sacrifícios que a Lei mosaica exigia. Além disso, o povo de Jeová estava cercado por um grande número de pessoas que não tinham o menor respeito pelas leis de Jeová. Por isso, milhares de judeus leais não viam a hora de voltar para a sua terra e restaurar a adoração pura.

1-2. Que decisão importante os judeus em Babilônia tiveram que tomar? (Esdras 1:2-4)

3. Por que voltar para Israel seria muito bom para os judeus fiéis?

4 A viagem de Babilônia até Israel não era fácil e podia durar uns quatro meses. Mas Jeová prometeu eliminar qualquer coisa que pudesse impedir seu povo de voltar. Isaías escreveu: "Preparem o caminho para Jeová! Façam no deserto uma estrada reta para o nosso Deus . . . O terreno acidentado se tornará plano; e o terreno irregular, uma planície." (Isa. 40:3, 4) Imagine a cena: uma estrada reta no meio de um deserto, uma área plana entre as montanhas. Todos que andassem por essa estrada iam gostar bastante! Seria muito mais fácil e mais rápido viajar por uma estrada reta do que ter que subir, descer ou contornar vales e montes.

5 Hoje muitas estradas são identificadas com um nome ou um número. A estrada simbólica que Isaías descreveu também recebeu um nome. Isaías 35:8 diz: "Ali haverá uma estrada, sim, um caminho chamado Caminho de Santidade. O impuro não passará por ele." Como essa promessa se cumpriu na época dos israelitas? E por que ela é importante para nós hoje?

O "CAMINHO DE SANTIDADE" — NO PASSADO E EM NOSSOS DIAS

6 "Caminho de Santidade" — esse é um nome bem bonito! Mas por que ele é chamado de santo? Em Israel, não haveria lugar para "o impuro", ou seja, para ninguém que praticasse imoralidade, idolatria ou outros pecados graves. Aqueles que saíssem de Babilônia se tornariam "um povo santo" para Jeová. (Deut. 7:6) Mas é claro que, para agradar a Jeová, eles teriam que fazer algumas mudanças.

7 Como já vimos, a maioria dos judeus tinham nascido em Babilônia. E muitos aparentemente tinham se acostumado ao modo de pensar dos babilônios. Quase 70 anos depois de os primeiros judeus voltarem para Israel, Esdras descobriu que alguns deles tinham se casado com mulheres que não serviam a Jeová. (Êxo. 34:15, 16; Esd. 9:1, 2) E mais tarde, o governador Neemias ficou revoltado ao saber que as crianças que já tinham nascido em Israel nem chegaram a aprender a língua dos judeus. (Deut. 6:6, 7; Nee. 13:23, 24) A maior parte da Palavra de Deus estava escrita em hebraico. Como essas crianças iam aprender a amar e a adorar a Jeová se não conseguissem entender esse idioma? (Esd. 10:3, 44) Dá para perceber que esses judeus tinham que fazer grandes mudanças na vida. Mas seria bem mais fácil fazer isso em Israel, onde a adoração pura estava sendo restaurada aos poucos. — Nee. 8:8, 9.

8 Alguns talvez pensem: 'Tudo isso é bem interessante. Mas o que a gente tem a ver com o que aconteceu com os judeus tanto tempo atrás?' Temos tudo a ver, porque, em certo sentido, nós estamos andando no "Caminho de Santidade". Não importa se somos ungidos ou

---

4. O que Jeová prometeu aos judeus que retornassem para Israel?

5. A estrada descrita por Isaías recebeu que nome?

6. Por que o "Caminho de Santidade" recebeu esse nome?

7. Que mudanças alguns judeus precisavam fazer? Dê um exemplo.

8. Por que devemos nos interessar por coisas que aconteceram tanto tempo atrás? (Veja a imagem da capa.)

das "outras ovelhas", todos nós temos que continuar andando nesse caminho. Isso vai nos ajudar a continuar adorando a Jeová agora e também no futuro, quando recebermos as bênçãos do Reino.* (João 10:16) Desde 1919, milhões de homens, mulheres e crianças têm saído de Babilônia, a Grande, ou seja, da religião falsa, e começado a viajar por essa estrada simbólica. Você provavelmente está entre essas pessoas. Foi nesse ano que essa estrada foi inaugurada, mas muito trabalho precisou ser feito antes disso.

PREPARANDO O CAMINHO

[9] No passado, Jeová fez com que os obstáculos que estavam no caminho dos judeus fossem removidos. (Leia Isaías 57:14.) Será que, em nossos dias, Jeová fez algo parecido com o "Caminho de Santidade"? Sim. Centenas de anos antes de 1919, ele usou homens de fé para tornar possível que outros saíssem de Babilônia, a Grande. (Veja também Isaías 40:3.) Esses homens prepararam o caminho para que pessoas de bom coração pudessem sair da religião falsa e adorar a Jeová junto com seu povo. Mas como eles prepararam o caminho? Vamos ver alguns exemplos do que foi feito.

[10] Impressão. Até cerca de 1450, a Bíblia era copiada à mão, e isso levava muito tempo. Além disso, havia pouquíssimas cópias da Bíblia, e elas eram muito caras. Mas quando o processo de impressão usando tipos móveis foi inventado, ficou mais fácil produzir e distribuir Bíblias para as pessoas.

[11] Tradução. Por centenas de anos, a maioria das Bíblias estavam disponíveis em latim. O problema é que apenas pessoas bem instruídas podiam entender esse idioma. Mas o trabalho de impressão se intensificou. Então pessoas que temiam a Deus trabalharam duro para traduzir a Bíblia em idiomas falados por pessoas comuns. Isso permitiu que as pessoas pudessem comparar o que elas aprendiam nas igrejas com o que a Bíblia realmente ensina.

[12] Ferramentas para o estudo da Bíblia. Ao ler a Palavra de Deus, estudantes cuidadosos da Bíblia aprendiam bastante. E para a tristeza dos líderes religiosos, eles costumavam compartilhar com outros o que aprendiam. Por exemplo, por volta de 1835, homens que respeitavam a Palavra de Deus começaram a publicar panfletos que revelavam ensinos falsos das igrejas.

[13] Nessa época, um homem que gostava de estudar a Bíblia chamado Henry Grew publicou um panfleto falando sobre o que acontece quando morremos. A maioria das igrejas ensinavam que todas as pessoas já nascem com uma alma imortal. Usando textos bíblicos, Henry Grew provou que isso era mentira e que a imortalidade era um presente dado por Deus. Em 1837, um ministro religioso chamado George Storrs encontrou uma cópia desse panfleto enquanto viajava de trem. Depois de ler o panfleto, ele ficou convencido de que tinha encontrado uma verdade muito importante. Então ele decidiu com-

* Veja o livro Profecia de Isaías — Uma Luz para Toda a Humanidade II, pp. 56-57.

9. De acordo com Isaías 57:14, o que foi feito para preparar o "Caminho de Santidade"?

10-11. Como o trabalho de impressão e tradução da Bíblia ajudou as pessoas? (Veja também a imagem.)

12-13. Dê um exemplo de como estudantes cuidadosos da Bíblia mostraram que alguns ensinos religiosos eram falsos.

partilhar o que tinha aprendido. Em 1842, ele fez uma série de palestras com um tema intrigante: "Uma questão — São os ímpios imortais?" As explicações dadas por George Storrs tiveram um efeito positivo sobre um jovem chamado Charles Taze Russell.

14 Como o irmão Russell e aqueles que o ajudavam se beneficiaram de todo o trabalho de preparação do caminho feito antes deles? Em seus estudos, eles puderam consultar ferramentas que já estavam disponíveis como dicionários, índices de termos bíblicos e várias traduções da Bíblia. E as pesquisas da Bíblia feitas por homens como Henry Grew e George Storrs também os ajudaram. Além disso, o próprio irmão Russell e seus colaboradores deram sua contribuição para preparar o caminho. Eles produziram uma grande quantidade de livros e folhetos que falavam sobre temas bíblicos.

15 Em 1919, Babilônia, a Grande, perdeu o poder que tinha sobre o povo de Deus. Nesse ano, o "escravo fiel e prudente" foi designado e pôde ajudar as pessoas a começar a andar no "Caminho de Santidade". (Mat. 24:45-47) O trabalho feito para preparar o "Caminho de Santidade" ajudou aqueles que passaram a andar por ele a aumentar seu conhecimento sobre Jeová e seus propósitos. (Pro. 4:18) Eles puderam fazer mudanças para viver de acordo com os princípios de Jeová. Mas Jeová não exigiu que seu povo fizesse as mudanças necessárias de uma só vez. Isso aconteceu pouco a pouco. (Veja o quadro "Jeová refina seu povo aos poucos".) E no futuro, vai ser muito bom quando pudermos agradar a Jeová em tudo o que fizermos! — Col. 1:10.

---

14. Como o irmão Russell e seus colaboradores se beneficiaram de todo o trabalho de preparação do caminho que foi feito antes deles? (Veja também a imagem.)

15. Que coisas importantes aconteceram em 1919?

Centenas de anos antes de 1919, homens de fé ajudaram a preparar o caminho para que outros saíssem de Babilônia, a Grande
(Veja os parágrafos 10 a 14.)

Jeová refina seu povo aos poucos

1927-1928: Os irmãos entendem que o Natal é uma festividade pagã

1928-1936: Aos poucos, os servos de Jeová param de usar a cruz

1931: O povo de Deus recebe o nome Testemunhas de Jeová

1938: Os anciãos deixam de ser eleitos pela congregação

1944-1945: O povo de Jeová entende melhor a questão da santidade do sangue

1952: A importância da desassociação é reforçada

1956: A santidade do casamento se torna mais clara

1972: Um corpo de anciãos designado por espírito santo passa a tomar a liderança em cada congregação

1973: Os irmãos entendem que o uso do tabaco é um pecado grave

1976: As Testemunhas de Jeová recebem orientações sobre os tipos de trabalho que são aceitáveis para os cristãos

2000: O uso das frações do sangue é explicado em detalhes

2006, 2012: Os irmãos são claramente alertados sobre a gravidade de ver formas repulsivas de pornografia

O “CAMINHO DE SANTIDADE” CONTINUA ABERTO

[16] Toda estrada precisa de manutenção para ficar em boas condições. Desde 1919, o “Caminho de Santidade” também tem passado por manutenção constante, e por isso muitos saíram de Babilônia, a Grande. Logo depois de ser designado, o escravo fiel e prudente começou a trabalhar e, em 1921, publicou uma ferramenta para ajudar as pessoas a estudar a Bíblia. Ela se chamava A Harpa de Deus. Foram feitas quase 6 milhões de cópias desse livro, em 36 idiomas, e muitas pessoas aprenderam a verdade com a ajuda dele. Nos últimos anos, foi lançada uma nova publicação para dirigir estudos bíblicos, Seja Feliz para Sempre!. Graças a Jeová e à sua organização, não tem faltado alimento espiritual durante estes últimos dias. Esse alimento tem ajudado todos nós a continuar andando no “Caminho de Santidade”. — Leia Isaías 48:17; 60:17.

16. Desde 1919, que manutenção tem sido feita no “Caminho de Santidade”? (Isaías 48:17; 60:17)

[17] Podemos dizer que, quando uma pessoa aceita estudar a Bíblia, ela começa a andar no “Caminho de Santidade”. Algumas fazem isso por pouco tempo e logo deixam o caminho. Outras estão decididas a continuar andando nele até chegarem ao seu destino. Mas que destino é esse?

[18] Para os que têm esperança celestial, o destino é o “paraíso de Deus” no céu. (Apo. 2:7) Já para os que têm esperança de viver na Terra, o destino é o fim do Reinado de Mil Anos de Cristo, quando todos nós seremos perfeitos. Se você está andando no “Caminho de Santidade” agora, não olhe para trás e não deixe esse caminho até chegar ao seu destino, o novo mundo! Desejamos a você uma “boa viagem”.

17-18. Para onde o “Caminho de Santidade” nos leva?

IMAGEM Página 17: O irmão Russell e seus colaboradores usaram ferramentas para o estudo da Bíblia que tinham sido preparadas antes de sua época.

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Para os judeus, o que era o “Caminho de Santidade”?
- Quando foi que as pessoas começaram a andar no “Caminho de Santidade” em nossos dias, e o que foi feito para preparar esse caminho?
- Quem está andando no “Caminho de Santidade” hoje em dia, e para onde ele nos leva?

CÂNTICO 24

Venham para o monte de Jeová!

ESTUDO 19

Apocalipse — O que significa para você?

"Feliz aquele que lê em voz alta . . . as palavras desta profecia." — APO. 1:3.

CÂNTICO 15
Louve o Filho de Jeová!

O QUE VAMOS VER

Estamos vivendo em uma época emocionante! As profecias do livro de Apocalipse estão se cumprindo hoje. Mas o que elas significam para nós? Neste estudo e nos dois próximos, vamos ver alguns pontos do livro de Apocalipse. Vamos ver que para Jeová aceitar a nossa adoração precisamos obedecer às coisas que estão escritas nesse livro.

VOCÊ já teve a chance de olhar um álbum de fotos de outra pessoa? É provável que você veja nas fotos muitas pessoas que não conhece. Mas daí aparece uma foto que chama a sua atenção. Por quê? Porque você está na foto. Então você tenta se recordar onde e quando essa foto foi tirada. Você também tenta se lembrar das outras pessoas que aparecem ao seu lado. Por fim, essa foto acaba tendo um significado especial para você.

2 O livro de Apocalipse é como essa foto por duas razões. Primeira, esse livro foi escrito especialmente para nós. Já no primeiro versículo, lemos: "Revelação de Jesus Cristo, que Deus lhe deu, para mostrar aos seus escravos as coisas que têm de ocorrer em breve." (Apo. 1:1) Fica claro que as coisas escritas nesse livro não são para as pessoas em geral, mas para os servos dedicados de Deus. Para nós, não é nenhuma surpresa saber que participamos do cumprimento das profecias desse livro tão fascinante. Em outras palavras, é como se nós estivéssemos na foto.

3 O segundo motivo que temos para nos interessar pelas profecias de Apocalipse envolve o tempo em que essas profecias vão se cumprir. O apóstolo João disse

---

1-2. Que motivo temos para nos interessar pelo livro de Apocalipse?

3-4. Quando as profecias de Apocalipse começaram a se cumprir, e o que precisamos fazer?

o seguinte: “Por inspiração estive no dia do Senhor.” (Apo. 1:10) João escreveu essas palavras por volta do ano 96 depois de Cristo, e o “dia do Senhor” ainda estava bem longe. (Mat. 25:14, 19; Luc. 19:12) De acordo com as profecias bíblicas, o dia do Senhor começou em 1914, quando Jesus se tornou Rei no céu. Daquele ano em diante, as profecias de Apocalipse que envolvem o povo de Deus começaram a se cumprir. Então agora já estamos vivendo “no dia do Senhor”.

4 Estamos vivendo numa época muito emocionante. Por isso, precisamos prestar atenção ao conselho amoroso escrito em Apocalipse 1:3: “Feliz aquele que lê em voz alta e os que ouvem as palavras desta profecia e obedecem às coisas escritas nela, pois o tempo determinado está próximo.” Então, mais do que nunca, precisamos ‘ler em voz alta’, ‘ouvir as palavras dessa profecia’ e ‘obedecer às coisas escritas nela’. Mas quais são algumas dessas palavras que precisamos obedecer?

SERÁ QUE JEOVÁ ACEITA A SUA ADORAÇÃO?

5 Desde o primeiro capítulo do livro de Apocalipse, percebemos que Jesus sabe de tudo o que acontece nas congregações. (Apo. 1:12-16, 20; 2:1) Isso fica claro pelas mensagens que ele enviou às sete congregações na Ásia Menor. Nessas mensagens, Jesus deu orientações específicas para ajudar os primeiros cristãos a adorarem a Jeová de um modo aceitável. O que podemos aprender com isso? Assim como no passado, nosso Líder, Jesus Cristo, sabe muito bem como está a espiritualidade de todos os cristãos. Jesus nos orienta e nos protege, e sabe de tudo o que está acontecendo. Ele também sabe o que precisamos fazer para continuar tendo a aprovação de Jeová. Que orientação Jesus deu em Apocalipse que precisamos obedecer?

---

5. Como o livro de Apocalipse destaca a importância de adorarmos a Jeová de modo aceitável?

[6] Leia Apocalipse 2:3, 4. Não podemos perder o amor que tínhamos por Jeová no início. A mensagem que Jesus enviou aos irmãos da congregação de Éfeso mostra que, apesar de muitos desafios, eles continuavam a servir a Jeová com perseverança. Mas infelizmente eles perderam o amor por Jeová que tinham no início. Então era muito importante que eles voltassem a amar a Jeová como antes. Só assim Jeová aceitaria a adoração deles. Da mesma forma, precisamos fazer mais do que perseverar ao servirmos a Jeová. Precisamos perseverar pelas razões certas. Nosso Deus, Jeová, observa não apenas o que fazemos, mas também o porquê fazemos. A nossa motivação é muito

---

6. (a) De acordo com Apocalipse 2:3, 4, qual era o problema da congregação em Éfeso? (b) Que lição podemos tirar disso?

Depois de ter sido expulso do céu, como Satanás tem atacado o povo de Deus?
(Veja os parágrafos 12 a 16.)

importante para Jeová. Por quê? Porque ele quer que nossa adoração seja baseada em um profundo amor e gratidão por ele. — Pro. 16:2; Mar. 12:29, 30.

[7] Leia Apocalipse 3:1-3. Precisamos continuar alertas. Os irmãos da congregação em Sardes tinham um problema diferente. Eles tinham servido a Jeová com muito zelo no passado, mas depois diminuíram o passo. Por isso, Jesus disse que eles deveriam 'despertar'. Qual é a lição para nós? É claro que Jeová nunca vai esquecer do trabalho que fizemos. (Heb. 6:10) Mesmo assim, não podemos achar que, só porque fizemos muito para Jeová no passado, agora podemos dimi-

7. (a) De acordo com Apocalipse 3:1-3, qual era o problema dos irmãos da congregação em Sardes? (b) O que nós precisamos fazer?

nuir o passo. Mesmo que agora tenhamos certas limitações que antes não tínhamos, precisamos continuar ocupados "na obra do Senhor" para conseguirmos ficar alertas até o fim. — 1 Cor. 15:58; Mat. 24:13; Mar. 13:33.

[8] Leia Apocalipse 3:15-17. Precisamos ser zelosos e adorar a Jeová de todo o coração. A mensagem que Jesus enviou à congregação de Laodiceia indicava outro problema. Eles estavam 'mornos', ou seja, desinteressados pelas coisas espirituais. Por causa disso, Jesus disse que eles eram 'miseráveis' e 'coitados'. Eles precisavam voltar a adorar a Jeová com zelo. (Apo. 3:19) Qual é a lição para nós? Se percebermos que estamos perdendo nosso zelo, precisamos mostrar gratidão por todas as coisas boas que Jeová nos dá. (Apo. 3:18) Não queremos acabar nos distraindo em busca de uma vida confortável em sentido material e, por fim, deixarmos nossas atividades espirituais em segundo lugar.

[9] Precisamos rejeitar os ensinos dos apóstatas. Jesus censurou alguns irmãos em Pérgamo porque eles estavam causando divisão na congregação. (Apo. 2:14-16) Mas ele elogiou os irmãos em Tiatira que tinham fugido das "coisas profundas de Satanás" e disse para

---

8. O que aprendemos com o que Jesus disse para os irmãos de Laodiceia?

9. De acordo com as palavras de Jesus para os irmãos de Pérgamo e Tiatira, com o que precisamos ter cuidado?

eles ‘se apegarem’ à verdade. (Apo. 2:24-26) Os cristãos que tinham começado a seguir ensinos falsos precisavam se arrepender. Que lição podemos tirar disso? Precisamos rejeitar qualquer ensino que seja contrário ao que Jeová diz. Os apóstatas podem ter “uma aparência de devoção a Deus”. Em outras palavras, eles parecem se importar com o que a Bíblia diz, mas as ações deles provam o contrário. (2 Tim. 3:5) Para identificar ensinos falsos e rejeitá-los, precisamos ser bons estudantes da Palavra de Deus. — 2 Tim. 3:14-17; Judas 3, 4.

[10] Não podemos apoiar, tolerar ou aceitar qualquer forma de imoralidade. Os irmãos de Pérgamo e Tiatira ainda tinham outro problema. Jesus condenou alguns deles porque não rejeitavam a imoralidade. (Apo. 2:14, 20) Qual é a lição para nós? Não podemos achar que só porque servimos a Jeová por muitos anos ou porque temos certos privilégios que ele vai abrir uma exceção para nós caso nos envolvamos em atos imorais. (1 Sam. 15:22; 1 Ped. 2:16) Jeová quer que tenhamos um alto padrão de moral, não importa o quanto o padrão do mundo piore. — Efé. 6:11-13.

[11] Como podemos resumir o que aprendemos até

---

10. O que mais podemos aprender com o que Jesus disse para as congregações de Pérgamo e Tiatira?

11. O que aprendemos até aqui? (Veja também o quadro “Lições para nós”.)

Lições para nós

- Não perca o amor que você tinha por Jeová no início
- Continue alerta
- Seja zeloso e adore a Jeová de todo o coração
- Rejeite os ensinos dos apóstatas
- Não apoie nem aceite qualquer forma de imoralidade

aqui? Vimos que é muito importante adorar a Jeová da maneira correta. Se estivermos fazendo alguma coisa que não seja certa aos olhos de Jeová, precisamos fazer mudanças o mais rápido possível para ter a aprovação dele. (Apo. 2:5, 16; 3:3, 16) Mas teve outra coisa que Jesus falou para as congregações. O quê?

ESTEJA PREPARADO PARA PERSEGUIÇÃO

[12] Vamos ver agora o que Jesus disse para as congregações de Esmirna e Filadélfia. Ele disse para os

12. O que podemos aprender do que Jesus disse para os irmãos de Esmirna e Filadélfia? (Apocalipse 2:10)

irmãos não ficarem com medo de serem perseguidos porque Jeová os recompensaria se eles continuassem fiéis. (Leia Apocalipse 2:10; 3:10) Qual é a lição para nós? Vamos sofrer perseguição e precisamos estar prontos para isso. (Mat. 24:9, 13; 2 Cor. 12:10) Por que esse lembrete é tão importante?

[13] O livro de Apocalipse diz que o povo de Deus seria perseguido "no dia do Senhor", isto é, em nossos dias. Apocalipse capítulo 12 diz que assim que Jesus se tornou Rei houve uma guerra nos céus. Miguel, o glorificado Jesus Cristo, e seus anjos lutaram contra Satanás e os demônios. (Apo. 12:7, 8) Esses inimigos de Deus foram derrotados e expulsos do céu. É por isso que existe tanto sofrimento aqui na Terra. (Apo. 12:9, 12) Mas como tudo isso afeta o povo de Deus?

[14] Bem, o próprio livro de Apocalipse diz qual seria a reação de Satanás. Ele não tem mais acesso ao céu, por isso ele concentra toda a sua raiva nos servos ungidos de Deus aqui na Terra. Esses ungidos representam o Reino de Deus e eles "têm a obra de dar testemunho de Jesus". (Apo. 12:17; 2 Cor. 5:20; Efé. 6:19, 20) Como tudo isso tem se cumprido?

[15] No início dos últimos dias, Satanás usou os inimi-

13-14. Como o povo de Deus é afetado pelos acontecimentos registrados em Apocalipse capítulo 12?

15. Quem as "duas testemunhas" de Apocalipse capítulo 11 representam, e o que aconteceu com elas?

gos de Deus aqui na Terra para atacar os irmãos ungidos que tomavam a liderança na obra. No livro de Apocalipse, esses homens foram representados pelas "duas testemunhas" que foram mortas.* (Apo. 11:3, 7-11) Isso se cumpriu em 1918, quando oito desses homens da liderança foram acusados injustamente e condenados a muitos anos de prisão. A maioria das pessoas achava que o trabalho desses ungidos tinha acabado ali.

16 A profecia do capítulo 11 de Apocalipse também diz que as "duas testemunhas" voltariam a viver depois de um curto período de tempo. Essa profecia se cumpriu de modo inesperado. Em março de 1919, menos de um ano depois de terem sido presos, aqueles irmãos ungidos foram libertados e, mais tarde, as acusações foram retiradas. Esses irmãos voltaram imediatamente a tomar a liderança no trabalho de pregação e ensino. Mas isso não impediu que os ataques de Satanás contra o povo de Deus continuassem. Desde então, ele tem perseguido cada vez mais os servos de Deus. (Apo. 12:15) É por isso que todos nós precisamos ter "perseverança e fé". — Apo. 13:10.

---

* Veja "Perguntas dos Leitores", na Sentinela de 15 de novembro de 2014, página 30.

---

16. Que coisa inesperada aconteceu em março de 1919, mas o que Satanás não deixou de fazer?

Que duas mensagens o povo de Deus está declarando?
(Veja os parágrafos 18 e 19.)

FAÇA SEU MELHOR NO TRABALHO QUE JEOVÁ NOS DEU

17 O capítulo 12 de Apocalipse mostra que, ao enfrentar perseguição, o povo de Deus receberia ajuda de uma fonte inesperada. Apocalipse descreve essa ajuda dizendo que "a terra" ia engolir "o rio" de perseguição. (Apo. 12:16) E é exatamente isso o que tem acontecido. Às vezes, de forma inesperada, algumas partes do sistema de Satanás, como o sistema judicial de alguns países, são mais razoáveis e acabam ajudando o povo de Deus. Muitas vezes os servos de Jeová ganharam nos tribunais o direito de ter certa liberdade de adoração. Como eles usam essa liberdade? Apro-veitando toda oportunidade para fazer o trabalho que Jeová nos deu. (1 Cor. 16:9) Mas que trabalho é esse?

17. Que ajuda inesperada o povo de Jeová tem recebido?

18 Jesus profetizou que o povo de Deus iria declarar as "boas novas do Reino" em toda a Terra antes do fim. (Mat. 24:14) Para conseguir isso, eles teriam a ajuda dos anjos. Esses anjos têm "boas novas eternas para declarar aos que moram na terra, a toda nação, tribo, língua e povo". — Apo. 14:6.

19 Hoje em dia, o povo de Deus não declara apenas as boas notícias do Reino. Eles também apoiam o trabalho dos anjos descrito em Apocalipse, nos capítulos 8 a 10. Esses anjos anunciam uma série de dificuldades para aqueles que rejeitam o Reino de Deus. Por isso, as Testemunhas de Jeová declaram uma mensagem que é comparada a "granizo e fogo", e que fala sobre a condenação de Deus contra o mundo mau de Satanás. (Apo. 8:7, 13) As pessoas precisam saber que o fim está muito perto e que elas têm que fazer mudanças drásticas na vida se quiserem sobreviver ao dia da ira de Jeová. (Sof. 2:2, 3) Mas essa não é uma mensagem que as pessoas gostam de ouvir e, por isso, precisamos ter muita coragem. Durante a grande

---

18. Qual é o trabalho mais importante que temos que fazer nestes últimos dias?

19. Que outra mensagem precisa ser pregada por aqueles que amam a Jeová?

tribulação, a mensagem final de julgamento vai ser ainda mais dura e direta. — Apo. 16:21.

OBEDEÇA ÀS PALAVRAS DA PROFECIA DE APOCALIPSE

[20] Nós realmente precisamos obedecer às "palavras desta profecia" porque fazemos parte do cumprimento do que está escrito no livro de Apocalipse. (Apo. 1:3) Mas como podemos continuar pregando com coragem e permanecer fiéis apesar de perseguição? Duas coisas vão nos fortalecer: (1) saber o que o livro de Apocalipse revela sobre os inimigos de Deus e (2) pensar nas bênçãos futuras que receberemos se continuarmos fiéis. É sobre isso que vamos falar nos dois próximos estudos.

---

20. O que vamos ver nos dois próximos estudos?

COMO VOCÊ RESPONDERIA?

- Que lições podemos aprender das mensagens de Jesus às sete congregações?
- Por que precisamos estar preparados para a perseguição?
- Que trabalho precisa ser feito pelo povo de Deus no tempo em que vivemos?

CÂNTICO 32

Escolha o lado de Jeová!

ESTUDO 20

Apocalipse — O que significa para os inimigos de Deus?

"Elas os reuniram no lugar que em hebraico se chama Armagedom." — APO. 16:16.

CÂNTICO 150
Busquem a Deus para obter livramento

O QUE VAMOS VER

O livro de Apocalipse usa símbolos para revelar quem são os inimigos de Deus. E o livro de Daniel nos ajuda a entender esses símbolos. Neste estudo, vamos comparar algumas profecias do livro de Daniel com algumas profecias de Apocalipse. Isso vai nos ajudar a saber quem são os inimigos de Deus. Depois, vamos ver o que vai acontecer com eles.

O LIVRO de Apocalipse diz que o Reino de Deus está governando no céu e que Satanás foi expulso para a Terra. (Apo. 12:1-9) Isso resultou em paz no céu, mas criou muitos problemas para o povo de Deus aqui na Terra. Por quê? Porque Satanás desconta toda sua raiva nos servos fiéis de Jeová. — Apo. 12:12, 15, 17.

[2] Como podemos nos manter leais a Jeová apesar dos ataques de Satanás? (Apo. 13:10) Uma coisa que vai nos ajudar é saber o que vai acontecer no futuro. Por exemplo, em Apocalipse, o apóstolo João fala de algumas das bênçãos que em breve vamos ter. Uma delas é que os inimigos de Deus vão ser destruídos. Vamos ver agora como Apocalipse descreve esses inimigos e o que vai acontecer com eles.

OS INIMIGOS DE DEUS SÃO REPRESENTADOS POR SÍMBOLOS

[3] Já no primeiro versículo de Apocalipse entendemos que algumas informações nesse livro são apresentadas "em sinais", ou seja, em símbolos. (Apo. 1:1) Percebemos que os inimigos de Deus são repre-

---

1. O que Apocalipse diz sobre o povo de Deus?

2. O que vai nos ajudar a continuar leais a Jeová?

3. Quais são alguns dos símbolos que encontramos em Apocalipse?

sentados por feras. Por exemplo, uma delas ‘sobe do mar’ e tem “dez chifres e sete cabeças”. (Apo. 13:1) Depois dela, aparece ‘outra fera subindo da terra’. Essa fera ‘fala como um dragão’ e “faz descer fogo do céu”. (Apo. 13:11-13) Daí vemos uma fera diferente, uma “fera cor de escarlate”, e nela está montada uma prostituta. Essas três feras representam inimigos que têm lutado contra Jeová e seu Reino já por muito tempo. Por isso, é muito importante saber quem essas feras representam. — Apo. 17:1, 3.

[4] Antes de saber quem são esses inimigos, precisamos entender quem as feras e a prostituta representam. E a melhor maneira de entendermos isso é deixando que a própria Bíblia explique. Muitos dos símbolos usados em Apocalipse já foram explicados em outros livros da Bíblia. Por exemplo, o profeta Daniel teve um sonho em que viu ‘quatro animais enormes saindo do mar’. (Dan. 7:1-3) Daniel explica que esses animais enormes representam quatro “reis”, ou governos. (Leia Daniel 7:15-17.) Essa explicação nos ajuda a entender que as feras de Apocalipse também devem representar governos.

[5] Vamos ver agora alguns dos símbolos que são usados em Apocalipse e como a Bíblia nos ajuda a

---

4-5. Como Daniel 7:15-17 nos ajuda a entender o significado das feras de Apocalipse?

entender cada um deles. Vamos começar entendendo o que as feras representam. Depois, veremos o que acontece com essas feras e o que esses eventos significam para nós.

OS INIMIGOS DE DEUS SÃO IDENTIFICADOS

[6] O que representa a fera de sete cabeças?* (Leia Apocalipse 13:1-4.) Essa fera parece um leopardo, mas tem patas de urso e boca de leão. Ela também tem dez chifres. Essas são as mesmas características das quatro feras mencionadas no capítulo 7 de Daniel. Mas no livro de Apocalipse, essas características são encontradas em apenas uma fera. Só que essa fera não representa apenas um governo. O apóstolo João disse que ela tem "autoridade sobre toda tribo, povo, língua e nação". Por isso, ela é muito mais poderosa do que um único governo. (Apo. 13:7) Então essa fera deve representar todos os governos da humanidade até agora.* — Ecl. 8:9.

---

* Outro detalhe que indica que a fera de sete cabeças representa todos os poderes políticos é que ela tem "dez chifres". O número dez geralmente é usado na Bíblia para indicar que algo é completo.

---

6. O que representa a fera de sete cabeças mencionada em Apocalipse 13:1-4?

[7] O que cada uma das sete cabeças representa? O capítulo 17 de Apocalipse nos dá uma pista. Esse capítulo descreve uma fera já mencionada no capítulo 13. Em Apocalipse 17:10, lemos: "Há sete reis: cinco já caíram, um é, e o outro ainda não chegou, mas, quando chegar, terá de permanecer por pouco tempo." De todos os poderes políticos que Satanás usou, sete são comparados a "cabeças" porque eles tiveram muito poder. E esses poderes políticos tiveram um impacto muito grande sobre o povo de Deus. Na época do apóstolo João, cinco desses poderes já tinham aparecido no cenário mundial: Egito, Assíria, Babilônia, Medo-Pérsia e Grécia. O sexto poder, Roma, ainda estava governando quando João recebeu as visões do livro de Apocalipse. Mas qual seria a sétima e última potência, ou cabeça?

[8] Vamos ver agora que as profecias do livro de Daniel nos ajudam a identificar a sétima e última cabeça da fera. Que potência tem governado durante o "dia do Senhor", ou no tempo do fim? (Apo. 1:10) Essa potência é formada por dois governos poderosos que trabalham juntos: o Reino Unido e os Estados Unidos da América. Eles formam a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana. Podemos concluir que

---

7. O que representam as sete cabeças?

8. Que poderes políticos representam a sétima cabeça da fera?

essa é a sétima cabeça da fera mencionada em Apocalipse 13:1-4.

[9] O capítulo 13 de Apocalipse nos mostra que a sétima cabeça, ou seja, a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana, também é representada por uma fera com 'dois chifres semelhantes aos de um cordeiro, mas começa a falar como um dragão'. Essa fera "realiza grandes sinais, até mesmo faz descer fogo do céu para a terra à vista da humanidade". (Apo. 13:11-15) Os capítulos 16 e 19 de Apocalipse chamam essa fera de "o falso profeta". (Apo. 16:13; 19:20) Daniel fala algo parecido quando diz que a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana 'causaria devastação terrível'. (Dan. 8:19, 23, 24, nota) E foi exatamente isso o que aconteceu durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial. As duas bombas atômicas que puseram fim à guerra no Pacífico foram resultado do trabalho conjunto entre cientistas britânicos e americanos. Dessa forma, a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana fez "descer fogo do céu para a terra".

[10] Em seguida, vemos outra fera. Ela é bem parecida com a fera de sete cabeças. A diferença é que

---

9. A fera com "dois chifres semelhantes aos de um cordeiro" representa quem?

10. O que "a imagem da fera" representa? (Apocalipse 13:14, 15; 17:3, 8, 11) a cor dela é escarlate, isto é, um vermelho bem vivo. Ela é chamada de "a imagem da fera" e é descrita como "um oitavo rei".* (Leia Apocalipse 13:14, 15; 17:3, 8, 11.) João explica que esse "rei" iria aparecer, depois desaparecer e, por fim, apareceria de novo. Essa é uma boa descrição da Organização das Nações Unidas, que trabalha pelos interesses políticos dos governos do mundo. Primeiro, ela apareceu tendo o nome de Liga das Nações. Daí, durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial ela deixou de existir. E depois, ela reapareceu como é conhecida hoje: as Nações Unidas.

[11] Essas feras, ou governos, influenciam as pessoas a ficarem contra Jeová e os servos dele. João diz que é como se elas reunissem os "reis de toda a terra habitada" para a guerra do Armagedom, o "grande dia de Deus, o Todo-Poderoso". (Apo. 16:13, 14, 16) Mas nós não precisamos ficar com medo. Jeová, o nosso Deus todo-poderoso, vai agir rapidamente para salvar todos aqueles que apoiam seu Reino. — Eze. 38:21-23.

---

* Diferente da primeira fera, a imagem da fera não tem coroas, ou "diademas", em seus chifres. (Apo. 13:1) Isso porque ela depende dos outros sete reis para exercer sua autoridade. — Veja o artigo "O que é a fera cor de escarlate de Apocalipse capítulo 17?", no site jw.org.

---

11. O que as feras fazem, e por que não precisamos ter medo?

[12] O que vai acontecer com todas as feras? Apocalipse 19:20 responde: "A fera foi apanhada, e junto com ela o falso profeta, que realizava na frente dela os sinais com que enganava os que tinham recebido a marca da fera e os que adoravam a sua imagem. Ainda vivos, ambos foram lançados no lago ardente que queima com enxofre." Em breve, enquanto ainda estiverem governando, esses inimigos de Deus serão destruídos para sempre.

[13] O que isso significa para nós? Como cristãos, precisamos ser leais a Deus e ao seu Reino. (João 18:36) Para isso, precisamos continuar neutros e não nos envolver nos assuntos políticos deste mundo. Mas isso não é fácil, porque os governos do mundo exigem apoio total tanto em palavras, como em ações. Aqueles que acabam cedendo a essa pressão recebem a marca da fera. (Apo. 13:16, 17) E qualquer um que receber essa marca deixa de ter a aprovação de Jeová e perde a chance de ter vida eterna. (Apo. 14:9, 10; 20:4) Por isso, é muito importante mantermos a nossa neutralidade, não importa quanta pressão os governos façam!

---

12. O que vai acontecer com todas as feras?

13. Que desafios os cristãos enfrentam por causa dos governos do mundo?

UM FIM VERGONHOSO PARA A GRANDE PROSTITUTA

[14] O apóstolo João disse que ficou "muito espantado" com o que viu. Ele viu uma mulher sentada sobre uma das feras. (Apo. 17:1, 2, 6) Essa mulher é a "grande prostituta" e é chamada de "Babilônia, a Grande". Ela comete "imoralidade sexual" com "os reis da terra". — Leia Apocalipse 17:3-5.

[15] Quem é "Babilônia, a Grande"? Essa mulher não pode ser uma organização política, porque Apocalipse diz que ela comete imoralidade com os líderes políticos deste mundo. (Apo. 18:9) Na verdade, o fato de ela estar montada na fera mostra que ela tenta controlar esses líderes. Ela também não é o sistema comercial ganancioso do mundo de Satanás. Esse sistema é mencionado em outra parte de Apocalipse e é chamado de "os comerciantes da terra". — Apo. 18:11, 15, 16.

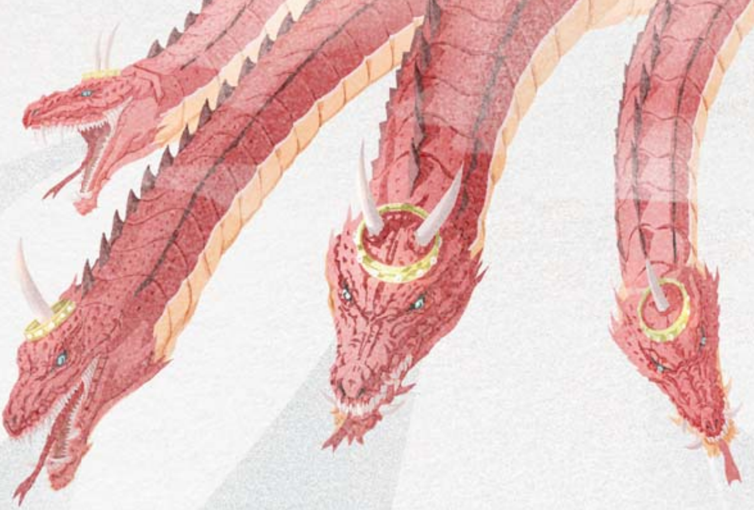
[16] Na Bíblia, a palavra "prostituta" pode se referir àqueles que dizem servir a Deus, mas que se envolvem com idolatria ou que se tornam amigos do mundo. (1 Crô. 5:25; Tia. 4:4) Por outro lado, a

---

14. Conforme registrado em Apocalipse 17:3-5, que visão impressionante João teve?

15-16. O que "Babilônia, a Grande", representa? E como sabemos disso?

As feras registradas em Daniel e Apocalipse



QUATRO ANIMAIS ENORMES

(parágrafos 4 e 7)

Eles ‘saem do mar’. (Dan. 7:1-8, 15-17)

Eles representam os governos que tiveram impacto sobre o povo de Deus desde a época de Daniel.

A FERA DE SETE CABEÇAS

(parágrafos 6 a 8)

Ela ‘sobe do mar’, tem sete cabeças, dez chifres e dez diademas. (Apo. 13:1-4)

Ela representa todos os governos da humanidade até os nossos dias. As sete cabeças representam sete potências que tiveram impacto sobre o povo de Deus.

BABILÔNIA

MEDO-PÉRSIA

GRÉCIA

ROMA

O MAR (A HUMANIDADE)

O DRAGÃO COR DE FOGO

(parágrafos 19 e 20)

Satanás dá autoridade para a fera.
(Apo. 12:3, 9, 13; 13:4; 20:2, 10)

Satanás é o maior inimigo de Jeová e vai ser lançado no abismo por mil anos. Depois disso, Satanás será lançado “no lago de fogo e enxofre”.

A FERA COM DOIS CHIFRES SEMELHANTES AOS DE UM CORDEIRO

(parágrafo 9)

Ela ‘sobe da terra’ e fala “como um dragão”. Ela faz “descer fogo do céu” e realiza sinais; também é chamada de o “falso profeta”. (Apo. 13:11-15; 16:13; 19:20)

A Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana é representada pela fera de dois chifres. Ela é chamada de falso profeta porque desencaminha a humanidade e diz a ela para ‘fazer uma imagem da fera’ que tem sete cabeças e dez chifres.

A FERA COR DE ESCARLATE

(parágrafos 10, 14 a 17)

Uma prostituta, Babilônia, a Grande, está montada nessa fera. A fera é descrita como um oitavo rei. (Apo. 17:3-6, 8, 11)

No início, é a prostituta que controla a fera, mas depois ela é morta pela própria fera. A prostituta representa todas as religiões falsas. A fera representa as Nações Unidas, que trabalham pelos interesses do sistema político do mundo.

O LAGO DE FOGO

Bíblia diz que aqueles que servem fielmente a Deus são 'castos', ou "virgens". (2 Cor. 11:2; Apo. 14:4) A antiga Babilônia era o centro da adoração falsa. Por isso Babilônia, a Grande, deve representar todas as formas de adoração falsa; em outras palavras, todas as religiões falsas. — Apo. 17:5, 18; veja o artigo "O que é Babilônia, a Grande?", no site jw.org.

17 O que vai acontecer com Babilônia, a Grande? Apocalipse 17:16, 17 responde a essa pergunta dizendo: "Os dez chifres que você viu e a fera odiarão a prostituta; eles a deixarão devastada e nua, comerão a sua carne e a queimarão completamente no fogo. Porque Deus pôs no coração deles o desejo de executarem o pensamento dele." Jeová vai fazer com que as nações usem a fera cor de escarlate, ou seja, as Nações Unidas, para atacar todas as religiões falsas e destruí-las completamente. — Apo. 18:21-24.

18 O que isso significa para nós? Significa que precisamos ter "a forma de adoração que é pura e imaculada do ponto de vista de nosso Deus". (Tia. 1:27) Nunca devemos ser influenciados por ensinos fal-

---

17. O que vai acontecer com Babilônia, a Grande?

18. Como podemos deixar claro que não apoiamos Babilônia, a Grande?

sos, celebrações pagãs, baixos padrões de moral e práticas de ocultismo de Babilônia, a Grande! Além disso, temos que avisar as pessoas para 'saírem' de Babilônia, a Grande, se não quiserem ser cúmplices dos pecados dela. — Apo. 18:4.

O MAIOR INIMIGO DE DEUS É JULGADO

[19] O livro de Apocalipse também fala de "um grande dragão cor de fogo". (Apo. 12:3) Esse dragão luta contra Jesus e seus anjos. (Apo. 12:7-9) Ele ataca o povo de Deus e dá poder às feras, ou seja, os governos humanos. (Apo. 12:17; 13:4) Quem é esse dragão? É "a serpente original, que é o Diabo e Satanás". (Apo. 12:9; 20:2) É ele quem está por trás de todos os inimigos de Jeová.

[20] O que vai acontecer com o dragão? Apocalipse 20:1-3 diz que um anjo vai lançar Satanás num abismo. Isso vai ser como uma prisão para ele. Quando estiver nesse abismo, Satanás não vai mais conseguir enganar 'as nações até que os mil anos tenham terminado'. Por fim, Satanás e seus demônios vão ser lançados "no lago de fogo e enxofre". Isso significa que eles vão ser destruídos para sempre. (Apo. 20:10) Já parou para pensar como vai

---

19. Quem é o "grande dragão cor de fogo"?

20. O que vai acontecer com o dragão?

ser o mundo sem Satanás e os demônios? Vai ser maravilhoso!

[21] É muito bom entender o significado desses símbolos registrados em Apocalipse. Nós aprendemos quem são os inimigos de Jeová e o que vai acontecer com eles. Como diz Apocalipse 1:3: "Feliz aquele que lê em voz alta e os que ouvem as palavras desta profecia." Mas depois que os inimigos de Deus forem destruídos, que bênçãos os servos fiéis de Deus vão receber? Vamos ver isso no último estudo desta série.

---

21. Por que podemos ficar felizes com o que lemos no livro de Apocalipse?

COMO VOCÊ RESPONDERIA?

- O que nos ajuda a entender o significado dos símbolos no livro de Apocalipse?
- Por que precisamos nos manter neutros com relação aos assuntos políticos deste mundo?
- Como podemos mostrar que não somos influenciados por "Babilônia, a Grande"?

CÂNTICO 23

Jeová começou a reinar!

ESTUDO 21

Apocalipse — O que significa para o seu futuro?

"Amém! Venha, Senhor Jesus." — APO. 22:20.

CÂNTICO 142

A esperança que nos dá coragem

O QUE VAMOS VER

Este é o terceiro e último estudo que fala sobre o livro de Apocalipse. Vamos ver que as pessoas leais a Jeová vão ter um futuro maravilhoso e feliz, e que aqueles que não aceitarem o governo de Deus terão um fim humilhante.

CADA um de nós precisa tomar uma decisão muito importante: apoiar a Jeová como Soberano do Universo ou ficar do lado do seu inimigo cruel, Satanás, o Diabo. Só existem essas duas opções, e cada pessoa precisa escolher o lado que quer apoiar. Essa decisão vai resultar em vida eterna ou em morte. (Mat. 25:31-33, 46) Durante a "grande tribulação", as pessoas vão ser separadas para sobreviver ou para ser destruídas. — Apo. 7:14; 14:9-11; Eze. 9:4, 6.

[2] Leia Hebreus 10:35-39. Se você escolheu apoiar o governo de Jeová, você tomou a melhor decisão. E com certeza, você quer muito ajudar outras pessoas a tomar a mesma decisão. Para isso, você pode usar as informações do livro de Apocalipse. Esse livro impressionante mostra o que vai acontecer com os inimigos de Jeová, mas também fala de todas as bênçãos que os servos leais de Jeová vão receber. Esses são assuntos muito importantes que precisamos estudar, porque só assim vamos conseguir fortalecer a nossa determinação de ser leais a Jeová. Além disso, nós podemos usar o que aprendemos para ajudar outras pessoas a tomar a decisão certa e continuar servindo ao nosso Deus.

[3] Neste estudo, vamos ver a resposta para as seguin-

---

1. Que decisão importante todas as pessoas precisam tomar?

2. (a) O que Hebreus 10:35-39 nos incentiva a fazer? (b) Como o livro de Apocalipse pode nos ajudar?

3. O que vamos ver neste estudo?

tes perguntas: Que recompensa aqueles que apoiam o governo de Deus vão receber? E o que vai acontecer com aqueles que apoiam a fera cor de escarlate descrita no livro de Apocalipse?

O QUE VAI ACONTECER COM AQUELES QUE SÃO LEAIS A JEOVÁ?

[4] O apóstolo João teve uma visão de dois grupos que apoiam o governo de Jeová e recebem vida eterna. O primeiro grupo é formado por 144 mil pessoas. (Apo. 7:4) Elas foram escolhidas para viver no céu e reinar junto com Jesus no Reino de Deus. Lá dos céus, eles vão governar a Terra. (Apo. 5:9, 10; 14:3, 4) Na visão, João viu os 144 mil no céu junto com Jesus no Monte Sião. — Apo. 14:1.

[5] Desde os dias dos apóstolos até os nossos dias, muitas pessoas foram escolhidas para fazer parte dos 144 mil. (Luc. 12:32; Rom. 8:17) Mas em sua visão, João fica sabendo que dos 144 mil só um “restante”, ou seja, um pequeno número, estaria vivo na Terra durante os últimos dias. Eles vão receber o “selo” final de aprovação de Jeová antes do início da grande tribulação. (Apo. 7:2, 3; 12:17) Daí, durante a grande tribulação, eles vão ser levados para o céu. Lá, vão se juntar

---

4. Quem o apóstolo João vê junto com Jesus no céu?

5. O que vai acontecer com os ungidos que ainda estiverem na Terra nos últimos dias?

com os outros ungidos que foram fiéis a Jeová até a morte e reinar junto com Jesus. — Mat. 24:31; Apo. 5:9, 10.

6 Depois de ter visto os ungidos que vão para o céu, João vê uma "grande multidão". Diferente dos 144 mil, a Bíblia não diz quantas pessoas fazem parte dessa "grande multidão". (Apo. 7:9, 10) O que nós sabemos sobre esse grupo? Lemos o seguinte em Apocalipse 7:14: "Esses são os que saem da grande tribulação; eles lavaram suas vestes compridas e as embranqueceram no sangue do Cordeiro." Depois de passar com vida pela grande tribulação, a "grande multidão" vai viver aqui na Terra para sempre e ter muitas bênçãos. — Sal. 37:9-11, 27-29; Pro. 2:21, 22; Apo. 7:16, 17.

7 Apocalipse capítulo 7 fala sobre as bênçãos que tanto os ungidos quanto a grande multidão vão receber: reinar com Jesus no céu ou viver aqui na Terra para sempre. Independentemente de qual seja a sua esperança, você consegue se ver recebendo essas bênçãos? Precisamos fazer isso. Esse vai ser um momento muito feliz para todos os que servem a Jeová! Com certeza, vamos ficar muito contentes de ter escolhido apoiar o governo de Deus. Mas que outras coisas o li-

---

6-7. (a) Que outro grupo João vê depois dos 144 mil, e o que sabemos sobre esse novo grupo? (b) Por que tanto os ungidos quanto a "grande multidão" devem se interessar pelo capítulo 7 de Apocalipse?

vro de Apocalipse fala sobre a grande tribulação? — Mat. 24:21.

O QUE VAI ACONTECER COM OS INIMIGOS DE DEUS?

[8] Como vimos no estudo anterior, os poderes políticos deste mundo logo vão atacar Babilônia, a Grande, que representa todas as religiões falsas. (Apo. 17:16, 17) Esse ataque vai dar início à grande tribulação. Será que isso vai fazer com que muitas pessoas comecem a servir a Jeová? Não. Pelo contrário, Apocalipse capítulo 6 mostra que, nesse momento difícil, as pessoas que não servem a Jeová vão buscar proteção nos sistemas político e comercial deste mundo, que são comparados a montanhas. Por não dar apoio ao Reino de Deus, essas pessoas vão se tornar inimigas de Jeová. — Luc. 11:23; Apo. 6:15-17.

[9] Durante os tempos difíceis da grande tribulação, os servos fiéis de Jeová vão ficar em evidência. Eles vão ser o único grupo de pessoas na Terra que estarão servindo a Jeová e se recusarão a apoiar a "fera". (Apo. 13:14-17) A lealdade deles a Jeová vai deixar seus inimigos com muita raiva. Por isso, as nações vão

---

8. O que vai dar início à grande tribulação, e o que a maioria das pessoas vai fazer?

9. Por que os servos de Jeová vão ficar em evidência durante a grande tribulação, e qual vai ser o resultado disso?

se juntar para atacar o povo de Deus em toda a Terra. A Bíblia chama esse acontecimento de o ataque de Gogue de Magogue. — Eze. 38:14-16.

[10] Como Jeová vai reagir quando seu povo for atacado? Ele nos diz: "O meu grande furor se acenderá." (Eze. 38:18, 21-23) E o capítulo 19 de Apocalipse diz o que vai acontecer depois. Jeová vai enviar seu Filho para proteger seu povo e eliminar seus inimigos. "Os exércitos no céu" — que são formados pelos anjos fiéis e os 144 mil — vão lutar junto com Jesus contra Gogue de Magogue. (Apo. 17:14; 19:11-15) Mas qual vai ser o resultado dessa guerra? Todos os humanos e organizações que não estão do lado de Jeová vão ser completamente destruídos! — Leia Apocalipse 19:19-21.

UM CASAMENTO DEPOIS DA GUERRA

[11] Tente imaginar a alegria que os servos fiéis de Jeová vão sentir por ter sobrevivido à destruição dos inimigos de Deus. Com certeza, esse vai ser um momento muito feliz! A destruição de Babilônia, a Grande, vai ser motivo de gritos de alegria no céu. (Apo. 19:1-3) Mas algo vai trazer ainda mais alegria: o "casamento do Cordeiro". Esse na verdade é o ponto alto do livro de Apocalipse. — Apo. 19:6-9.

---

10. De acordo com Apocalipse 19:19-21, qual vai ser a reação de Jeová quando seu povo for atacado?

11. Qual é o ponto alto do livro de Apocalipse?

12 Quando esse casamento vai acontecer? É verdade que todos os 144 mil já vão estar no céu para lutar na guerra do Armagedom. Mas esse não vai ser o momento para o casamento do Cordeiro. (Leia Apocalipse 21:1, 2.) O casamento do Cordeiro vai acontecer depois que a guerra do Armagedom tiver acabado e todos os inimigos de Deus tiverem sido destruídos. — Sal. 45:3, 4, 13-17.

13 O que vai acontecer no casamento do Cordeiro? Um casamento une um homem e uma mulher. Do mesmo modo, o casamento do Cordeiro vai unir o Rei Jesus Cristo com sua "noiva", os 144 mil. Esse acontecimento tão importante vai dar início ao novo governo que vai cuidar da Terra por mil anos. — Apo. 20:6.

O QUE UMA CIDADE GLORIOSA TEM A VER COM O SEU FUTURO?

14 Depois do casamento, o capítulo 21 de Apocalipse compara os 144 mil com uma cidade extremamente bonita, chamada "Nova Jerusalém". (Apo. 21:2, 9) A cidade está apoiada sobre 12 pedras de alicerce que têm "os nomes dos 12 apóstolos do Cordeiro". Por que esse

---

12. De acordo com Apocalipse 21:1, 2, quando o casamento do Cordeiro vai acontecer?

13. O que vai acontecer no casamento do Cordeiro?

14-15. O capítulo 21 de Apocalipse compara os 144 mil com o quê? (Veja a imagem da capa.)

Quem vai receber as bênçãos simbolizadas por “um rio” e pelas “árvores”?
(Veja os parágrafos 16 e 17.)

detalhe chamou a atenção de João? Porque ele viu o nome dele escrito em uma das pedras. Esse era um grande privilégio para ele! — Apo. 21:10-14; Efé. 2:20.

15 Essa cidade simbólica é diferente de todas as outras. A rua principal dela é de ouro puro. Ela tem 12 portões de pérolas e os alicerces e as muralhas são feitos de muitas pedras preciosas. Todas as medidas da cidade são perfeitas. (Apo. 21:15-21) Mas João percebe que alguma coisa estava faltando. Veja só o que ele diz: “Não vi templo nela, pois Jeová Deus, o Todo-Poderoso, é o seu templo, e o Cordeiro também é. A cidade não tem necessidade do sol nem da lua para brilhar sobre ela, pois a glória de Deus a ilumina, e a sua lâmpada é o Cordeiro.” (Apo. 21:22, 23) Aqueles que fazem parte da Nova Jerusalém vão ter acesso direto a Jeová. E visto que eles são liderados por Jesus, que já é Sumo Sacerdote no céu, eles não precisam mais de um templo. (Heb. 7:27; Apo. 22:3, 4) Dessa forma, Jeová e Jesus são o templo daquela cidade.

[16] Com certeza, aqueles que são ungidos se sentem emocionados ao pensar nessa cidade. Mas aqueles que têm esperança de viver na Terra também devem ver essa cidade como algo importante. Por quê? Porque durante o Reinado de Mil Anos, a Nova Jerusalém vai trazer muitas bênçãos para a Terra. João vê "um rio de água da vida", que simboliza essas bênçãos. Os dois lados do rio estão cheios de "árvores da vida", e as folhas dessas árvores são usadas "para a cura das nações". (Apo. 22:1, 2) Todas as pessoas na Terra vão ter a oportunidade de receber essas bênçãos. E, aos poucos, a humanidade vai se tornar perfeita. Não vão mais existir doenças, nem dor, nem lágrimas de tristeza. — Apo. 21:3-5.

[17] Quem vai receber essas bênçãos? Todos aqueles que sobreviverem ao Armagedom e os filhos que eles talvez tenham no novo mundo. O capítulo 20 de Apocalipse promete que outros também vão receber essas bênçãos. Ali diz que os mortos serão ressuscitados. (Leia Apocalipse 20:11-13.) Os "justos", servos fiéis de Jeová que já morreram, vão ser ressuscitados para

---

16. O que vai acontecer com a humanidade durante o Reinado de Mil Anos?

17. De acordo com Apocalipse 20:11-13, quem vai receber as bênçãos que o Reinado Milenar vai trazer?

viver na Terra junto com os "injustos", aqueles que não tiveram uma oportunidade razoável de aprender a respeito de Jeová. (Atos 24:15; João 5:28, 29) Mas será que isso quer dizer que todas as pessoas que morreram vão ser ressuscitadas para viver aqui na Terra durante o Reinado de Mil Anos? Não. Existem aquelas pessoas que tiveram a oportunidade de servir a Jeová e, ainda assim, rejeitaram fazer isso de propósito, sabendo muito bem o que estavam fazendo. Essas pessoas não vão ser ressuscitadas. Elas já tiveram a sua chance e mostraram que não são dignas de viver no Paraíso na Terra. — Mat. 25:46; 2 Tes. 1:9; Apo. 17:8; 20:15.

O TESTE FINAL

18 No final dos mil anos, todas as pessoas na Terra serão perfeitas. O pecado que herdamos de Adão vai deixar de existir. Ninguém mais vai sofrer com os efeitos desse pecado. (Rom. 5:12) Depois dos mil anos, todas as pessoas na Terra vão 'voltar a viver', ou seja, serão perfeitas. — Apo. 20:5.

19 Mesmo tendo sido testado por Satanás, Jesus não cedeu e foi leal. Mas será que todos os humanos perfeitos fariam o mesmo? Cada um vai ter a oportunidade de provar sua lealdade a Jeová quando Satanás for

---

18. Como as pessoas vão estar no final dos mil anos?

19. Que oportunidade todos os humanos perfeitos vão ter no teste final?

solto do abismo depois dos mil anos. (Apo. 20:7) Aqueles que provarem que são leais nesse teste final vão receber vida eterna e finalmente ser livres. (Rom. 8:21) Mas aqueles que se rebelarem vão ser destruídos para sempre junto com Satanás e seus demônios. — Apo. 20:8-10.

[20] Como você se sente depois de ter analisado alguns pontos do livro de Apocalipse? Não é empolgante pensar que podemos fazer parte do cumprimento dessas profecias? Você não sente vontade de ajudar outros a também adorar a Jeová de modo puro? (Apo. 22:17) Esses estudos sem dúvida encheram nossos corações de alegria ao pensar na esperança que temos para o futuro. Assim como o apóstolo João, somos motivados a dizer: "Amém! Venha, Senhor Jesus." — Apo. 22:20.

---

20. Como você se sente depois de ter estudado as profecias que encontramos em Apocalipse?

COMO VOCÊ RESPONDERIA?

- Que decisão precisamos tomar agora?
- O que é "o casamento do Cordeiro"?
- Que bênçãos os servos fiéis de Jeová vão receber?

CÂNTICO 27

A vitória dos filhos de Deus

ESTUDO 49

A ressurreição — uma esperança segura!

‘Eu tenho esperança em Deus de que haverá uma ressurreição.’ — ATOS 24:15.

CÂNTICO 151
Ele chamará

O QUE VAMOS VER

O capítulo 15 de 1 Coríntios fala sobre a ressurreição. Por que esse ensino é importante para nós? Por que podemos ter certeza de que Jesus foi ressuscitado? Este estudo vai responder a essas e a outras perguntas importantes sobre a ressurreição.

TER esperança é muito importante. A esperança de algumas pessoas é ter um casamento feliz, criar filhos saudáveis ou se recuperar de uma doença grave. Nós, cristãos, também queremos essas coisas. Mas temos uma esperança que vai além disso. Nós esperamos viver para sempre e reencontrar nossos amigos e parentes que morreram.

2 O apóstolo Paulo disse: 'Eu tenho esperança em Deus de que haverá uma ressurreição tanto de justos como de injustos.' (Atos 24:15) Paulo não foi o primeiro a dizer que acreditava numa ressurreição. O patriarca Jó também tinha essa esperança. Ele tinha certeza de que Deus se lembraria dele e o traria de volta à vida. — Jó 14:7-10, 12-15.

3 "A ressurreição dos mortos" é parte do "alicerce", ou da "doutrina básica", de todos os ensinos cristãos. (Heb. 6:1, 2) Em 1 Coríntios, capítulo 15, Paulo fala sobre a ressurreição. O que ele escreveu deve ter fortalecido muito os cristãos de sua época. E mesmo que você já acredite na ressurreição há muito tempo, esse capítulo também pode encorajar você e fortalecer a sua esperança.

1-2. Que esperança maravilhosa os servos de Jeová têm?

3. Por que é bom estudar 1 Coríntios, capítulo 15?

4 A ressurreição de Jesus Cristo nos faz ter certeza de que, se um parente ou um amigo falecer, vai haver uma ressurreição. A ressurreição de Jesus era parte das "boas novas" que Paulo declarou aos coríntios. (1 Cor. 15:1, 2) Ele até disse que, se um cristão não acreditasse na ressurreição, a fé dele seria inútil. (1 Cor. 15: 17) Crer na ressurreição de Jesus é a chave para acreditarmos que outros serão ressuscitados.

5 Logo no começo de sua explicação sobre a ressurreição, Paulo destacou três fatos: (1) "Cristo morreu pelos nossos pecados." (2) Ele "foi sepultado". (3) Ele "foi levantado no terceiro dia, segundo as Escrituras". — Leia 1 Coríntios 15:3, 4.

6 O que a morte, o sepultamento e a ressurreição de Jesus significam para nós? O profeta Isaías predisse que o Messias seria "cortado da terra dos vivos" e receberia "uma sepultura entre os maus". Mas não só isso. Isaías acrescentou que o Messias carregaria "o pecado de muitos". Jesus fez isso por dar sua vida como resgate. (Isa. 53:8, 9, 12; Mat. 20:28; Rom. 5:8) Dessa forma, a morte, o sepultamento e a ressurreição de Jesus nos fazem ter certeza de que podemos ser libertados do pecado e da

---

4. Qual é a chave da nossa esperança na ressurreição?

5-6. O que as palavras de 1 Coríntios 15:3, 4 significam para nós?

morte e de que nossos parentes e amigos falecidos vão voltar a viver.

CONFIRMADA POR MUITAS TESTEMUNHAS

7 Para acreditarmos que vai haver uma ressurreição, temos que acreditar que Jesus foi ressuscitado. Por que podemos ter certeza de que isso aconteceu?

8 Muitas pessoas viram Jesus depois de ele ser ressuscitado e confirmaram isso. (1 Cor. 15:5-7) A primeira testemunha mencionada por Paulo foi o apóstolo Pedro (Cefas). Um grupo de discípulos confirmou que Pedro tinha visto o ressuscitado Jesus. (Luc. 24:33, 34) Além disso, 'os Doze', ou seja, os apóstolos, viram Jesus depois de ser levantado. Daí, Cristo "apareceu a mais de 500 irmãos de uma só vez" — provavelmente naquela reunião feliz na Galileia mencionada em Mateus 28:16-20. Jesus também "apareceu a Tiago". Esse Tiago provavelmente era o meio-irmão de Jesus, que antes não acreditava que ele fosse o Messias. (João 7:5) Depois de ver Jesus, Tiago ficou convencido. É interessante notar que, no ano 55, quando Paulo escreveu essa carta, muitas testemunhas da ressurreição de Jesus ainda estavam vivas. Então, se alguém tivesse alguma dúvida, era só conversar com uma delas.

---

7-8. O que ajuda os cristãos a ter certeza de que Jesus foi ressuscitado?

[9] Mais tarde, Jesus apareceu para o próprio Paulo. (1 Cor. 15:8) Paulo (Saulo) estava indo para Damasco quando ouviu a voz de Jesus e teve uma visão de Cristo no céu. (Leia Atos 9:3-5.) O que aconteceu com Paulo foi mais uma prova de que a ressurreição de Jesus realmente tinha acontecido. — Atos 26:12-15.

[10] Para alguns, o testemunho de Paulo podia ser especialmente interessante. Afinal, ele costumava perseguir os cristãos. Mas quando ficou convencido de que Jesus tinha sido ressuscitado, Paulo se esforçou muito para convencer outros dessa verdade. Ele até mesmo suportou espancamentos, prisões e naufrágios para divulgar a outros que Jesus tinha morrido, mas voltado a viver. (1 Cor. 15:9-11; 2 Cor. 11:23-27) Paulo tinha tanta certeza de que Jesus tinha sido ressuscitado que estava disposto a morrer para defender sua convicção. Sem dúvida, o testemunho desses primeiros cristãos fortalece

---

9. Como lemos em Atos 9:3-5, que outra prova Paulo podia dar de que Jesus tinha sido ressuscitado?

10. A certeza que Paulo tinha da ressurreição de Jesus o motivou a fazer o quê?

nossa confiança de que Jesus foi ressuscitado e aumenta nossa fé na ressurreição.

CORRIGINDO PONTOS DE VISTA ERRADOS

[11] Alguns na cidade grega de Corinto tinham pontos de vista errados sobre a ressurreição. Eles até diziam: "Não há ressurreição dos mortos." Por quê? (1 Cor. 15:12) Filósofos em outra cidade grega, Atenas, zombavam da ideia de que Jesus tinha sido ressuscitado. Esse modo de pensar deve ter influenciado alguns em Corinto. (Atos 17:18, 31, 32) Outros talvez achassem que a ressurreição não era literal. Eles diziam que a pessoa antes estava "morta" por causa do pecado, mas ao se tornar cristã, tinha "voltado a viver". Qualquer que fosse o motivo, não acreditar na ressurreição tornava sua fé inútil. Afinal, se Deus não tivesse ressuscitado Jesus, nenhum resgate teria sido pago e todos continuariam no pecado. Assim, todos aqueles que não acreditassem na ressurreição não teriam nenhuma esperança válida. — 1 Cor. 15:13-19; Heb. 9:12, 14.

[12] Paulo sabia por experiência própria que 'Cristo

---

11. Por que alguns em Corinto tinham pontos de vista errados sobre a ressurreição?

12. De acordo com 1 Pedro 3:18, 22, por que a ressurreição de Jesus foi diferente das que tinham acontecido antes?

Jesus foi o primeiro de muitos que foram ressuscitados para viver no céu tinha sido levantado dentre os mortos'. A ressurreição de Jesus foi superior àquelas que já tinham acontecido; isso porque as pessoas que tinham sido ressuscitadas acabaram morrendo de novo. Paulo disse que Jesus foi "as primícias [literalmente: os primeiros frutos] dos que adormeceram na morte". Em que sentido? É que ele foi o primeiro humano a ser ressuscitado como ser espiritual e o primeiro a subir ao céu. — 1 Cor. 15:20; Atos 26:23; leia 1 Pedro 3:18, 22.
(Veja os parágrafos 15 e 16.)

AQUELES QUE "RECEBERÃO VIDA"

13 Em que sentido a morte de um homem pode trazer vida para milhões? Paulo dá uma resposta lógica para essa pergunta. Ele explicou a diferença entre o que Adão nos causou e o que Jesus fez por nós. Sobre Adão, Paulo escreveu: "A morte veio por meio de um homem." Quando Adão pecou, ele trouxe a morte para si mesmo e para seus descendentes. Até hoje sentimos os efeitos trágicos da desobediência dele. Por outro lado, quando Deus ressuscitou seu filho, nós passamos a ter uma esperança maravilhosa para o futuro! Paulo explicou: "A ressurreição dos mortos também vem por meio de um homem", Jesus. E ele também disse: "Porque, assim como em

---

13. Que diferença Paulo disse que havia entre Adão e Jesus?

Adão todos morrem, assim também em Cristo todos receberão vida." — 1 Cor. 15:21, 22.

14 O que Paulo quis dizer com a frase: "Em Adão todos morrem"? Paulo estava pensando nos descendentes de Adão. Como herdaram dele o pecado e a imperfeição, eles estão condenados a morrer. (Rom. 5:12) Adão não está entre os que "receberão vida". O sacrifício de Cristo não cobre o pecado dele, porque Adão era um homem perfeito que, por vontade própria, desobedeceu a Deus. O que aconteceu com Adão é o mesmo que vai acontecer com aqueles que "o Filho do Homem" julgar como "cabritos": "o decepamento eterno". — Mat. 25:31-33, 46; Heb. 5:9.

15 Note o que Paulo disse: "Em Cristo todos receberão vida." (1 Cor. 15:22) Paulo escreveu sua carta para cristãos ungidos em Corinto que seriam ressuscitados para viver no céu. Esses cristãos tinham sido "santificados em união com Cristo Jesus, chamados para ser santos". E Paulo mencionou "os que adormeceram na morte em união com Cristo". (1 Cor. 1:2; 15:18; 2 Cor. 5:17) Em outra carta inspirada, Paulo escreveu que aqueles "unidos a [Jesus] na semelhança da sua morte" serão "unidos a ele na semelhança da sua ressurreição". (Rom.

---

14. Adão vai ser ressuscitado? Explique.

15. Quem está incluído em "todos" que "receberão vida"?

6:3-5) Jesus foi ressuscitado como ser espiritual e foi para o céu. E é isso que vai acontecer com todos aqueles "em união com Cristo", ou seja, com todos os cristãos ungidos por espírito santo.

16 Paulo escreveu que Cristo tinha sido ressuscitado como "as primícias dos que adormeceram na morte". É verdade que outros, como Lázaro, já tinham sido ressuscitados na Terra. Mas Jesus foi o primeiro a ser ressuscitado como espírito e a receber vida eterna. Ele podia ser comparado aos primeiros frutos da colheita que os israelitas ofereciam a Deus. Além disso, por chamar Jesus de "as primícias", Paulo deu a entender que outros depois de Jesus também seriam ressuscitados para viver no céu. Os apóstolos e outros "em união com Cristo", por fim, também seriam ressuscitados para viver no céu, assim como tinha acontecido com Jesus.

17 Quando Paulo escreveu aos coríntios, a ressurreição daqueles "em união com Cristo" ainda não tinha começado. Paulo indicou que isso aconteceria em uma época futura. Ele disse: "Cada um na sua própria ordem: como primícias, Cristo; depois

---

16. O que Paulo quis dar a entender quando chamou Jesus de "as primícias"?

17. Quando aqueles "em união com Cristo" seriam ressuscitados para viver no céu?

os que pertencem a Cristo, durante a sua presença.” (1 Cor. 15:23; 1 Tes. 4:15, 16) Hoje estamos vivendo nesse período chamado “presença” de Cristo. Os apóstolos e outros cristãos ungidos tiveram que esperar até essa presença para ser ressuscitados para viver no céu e ser “unidos a [Jesus] na semelhança da sua ressurreição”.

VOCÊ TEM UMA ESPERANÇA SEGURA!

[18] E aqueles que não têm a esperança de viver no céu com Cristo? Eles também têm a esperança de uma ressurreição. A Bíblia diz que Paulo e outros que vão para o céu participam da “ressurreição dentre os mortos que ocorrerá mais cedo”. (Fil. 3:11) Ou seja, esse texto dá a entender que uma outra ressurreição aconteceria mais tarde. Isso estaria de acordo com o que Jó disse sobre seu futuro. (Jó 14:15) “Os que pertencem a Cristo”, ressuscitados “durante a sua presença”, estarão no céu com Jesus quando ele reduzir a nada todo governo, autoridade e poder. Até mesmo o “último inimigo”, a morte, vai ser reduzido a nada. Todos aqueles ressuscitados para a vida no céu nunca vão morrer. Mas e os outros? — Leia 1 Coríntios 15:24-26.

---

18. (a) Por que podemos concluir que haverá outra ressurreição além da celestial? (b) De acordo com 1 Coríntios 15:24-26, o que acontecerá no céu?

Acreditar na ressurreição nos faz olhar para o futuro com confiança
(Veja o parágrafo 20.)

[19] Que esperança aqueles que vão viver na Terra podem ter? A descrita pelas palavras de Paulo: 'Eu tenho esperança de que haverá uma ressurreição tanto de justos como de injustos.' (Atos 24:15) Como no céu não entra nenhuma pessoa injusta, essas palavras indicam uma futura ressurreição na Terra.

[20] Com certeza, "haverá uma ressurreição"! Aqueles que forem ressuscitados para a vida na Terra terão a oportunidade de viver para sempre. Você pode confiar nessa promessa! Essa esperança

19. Aqueles que vão viver na Terra podem ter que esperança?
20. Como esse estudo fortaleceu a sua esperança?

pode trazer consolo quando você pensar em seus parentes e amigos que morreram. Eles podem ser ressuscitados na época em que Cristo e outros 'reinarem durante os mil anos'. (Apo. 20:6) Você também pode ter a esperança segura de que, se morrer antes do Milênio começar, você será ressuscitado. Essa "esperança não leva a decepção". (Rom. 5:5) Ela pode fortalecer você agora e aumentar sua alegria no serviço a Deus. Mas podemos aprender mais do capítulo 15 de 1 Coríntios. É o que vamos ver no próximo estudo.

IMAGENS Página 8: Jesus foi o primeiro a ser ressuscitado para viver no céu. (Atos 1:9) Outros discípulos com esperança celestial foram Tomé, Tiago, Lídia, João, Maria e Paulo. Página 13: Um irmão perdeu sua esposa amada, com quem serviu a Jeová por muito tempo. Ele acredita que ela vai ser ressuscitada, e isso o motiva a continuar servindo lealmente a Jeová.

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- O que prova para você que Jesus foi ressuscitado?
- Por que a ressurreição de Jesus é tão importante para nós?
- Como 1 Coríntios, capítulo 15, fortalece sua fé na ressurreição?

CÂNTICO 147

A vida eterna — que bela promessa!

ESTUDO 50

“Como é que os mortos serão levantados?”

“Morte, onde está a sua vitória? Morte, onde está o seu aguilhão?” — 1 COR. 15:55.

CÂNTICO 141
O milagre da vida

O QUE VAMOS VER

A segunda metade do capítulo 15 de 1 Coríntios contém detalhes a respeito da ressurreição, especialmente da ressurreição dos cristãos ungidos. Mas o que Paulo escreveu também é importante para as outras ovelhas. Este estudo vai mostrar como a esperança da ressurreição deve influenciar nossa vida agora e nos ajudar a olhar para o futuro com confiança.

A MAIORIA dos servos de Jeová hoje tem a esperança de viver para sempre na Terra. Mas um pequeno grupo de cristãos tem a esperança de ser ressuscitado para viver no céu. Esses ungidos estão muito interessados em saber como será a vida no céu. As outras ovelhas também precisam saber disso porque, como vamos ver neste estudo, a ressurreição para a vida no céu também trará bênçãos para elas. Então, não importa qual seja a nossa esperança — celestial ou terrestre — entender a ressurreição para a vida no céu é importante para todos nós.

2 Deus inspirou alguns dos primeiros discípulos de Jesus a escrever sobre a esperança de vida no céu. O apóstolo João explicou: "Agora somos filhos de Deus, mas ainda não foi revelado o que seremos. Sabemos que, quando ele for manifestado, seremos semelhantes a ele." (1 João 3:2) Então, os ungidos não sabem como será a vida deles no céu depois que forem ressuscitados. O que eles sabem é que, depois que receberem sua recompensa, eles vão ver Jeová. A Bíblia não conta todos os detalhes de como será a vida no céu. Mas o apóstolo Paulo nos dá algumas informações sobre isso. Os ungidos estarão com Cristo quando ele tiver "reduzido a nada todo governo, toda autoridade e poder", o que inclui "o último inimigo", a morte. Por fim, Jesus e os ungidos vão se sujeitar a Jeová e sujeitarão todas as coisas a ele. (1 Cor. 15:24-28) Com certeza, esses serão acontecimentos emocionantes!*

---

1-2. Por que entender a ressurreição para a vida no céu é importante para todos nós?

3 A fé que Paulo tinha na ressurreição o ajudou a enfrentar várias dificuldades. (Leia 1 Coríntios 15:30-32.) Ele escreveu aos irmãos em Corinto: "Eu enfrento a morte diariamente." Paulo também escreveu: "Eu lutei com feras em Éfeso." Talvez Paulo estivesse falando de sua luta contra animais de verdade em uma arena em Éfeso. (2 Cor. 1:8; 4:10; 11:23) Ou estivesse se referindo a judeus e outros que agiam como "feras" contra ele. (Atos 19:26-34; 1 Cor. 16:9) Qualquer que fosse o caso, Paulo passou por grandes perigos, mas não perdeu o ponto de vista positivo sobre o futuro. — 2 Cor. 4:16-18.

4 Estamos vivendo em tempos perigosos. Alguns de nossos irmãos são vítimas de crimes. Outros vivem em áreas devastadas pela guerra, onde se sentem muito inseguros. Ainda outros moram em países

* Para uma explicação das palavras de Paulo em 1 Coríntios 15:29, veja "Perguntas dos Leitores" nesta revista.

3. De acordo com 1 Coríntios 15:30-32, como a fé de Paulo na ressurreição o ajudou?

4. Como a esperança da ressurreição fortalece os cristãos hoje? (Veja a imagem da capa.)

onde nossa obra de pregação está restrita ou até mesmo proibida, e servir a Jeová pode custar sua vida ou sua liberdade. Mesmo assim, todos esses irmãos e irmãs não desistem de adorar a Jeová e são um exemplo para nós. Eles não têm medo porque sabem que, mesmo se perderem a vida agora, Jeová pode ressuscitá-los para uma vida muito melhor no futuro.

5 Paulo alertou seus irmãos contra um ponto de vista perigoso que alguns tinham: "Se os mortos não serão levantados, 'comamos e bebamos, pois amanhã morreremos'." Esse ponto de vista já existia antes dos dias de Paulo. Talvez ele estivesse se referindo ao que Isaías tinha dito sobre os israelitas em Isaías 22:13. Em vez de se achegarem a Jeová, os israelitas buscavam uma vida de prazeres. Basicamente, o que os israelitas pensavam era: "Vamos aproveitar o agora, porque amanhã pode ser tarde demais." Esse conceito também é muito comum em nossos dias. Mas o que aconteceu com os israelitas serve de lição para nós. — 2 Crô. 36:15-20.

6 A fé na ressurreição deve influenciar nossa escolha de amigos. Os irmãos em Corinto precisavam tomar cuidado para não se tornar amigos de pessoas

---

5. Que ponto de vista perigoso poderia enfraquecer nossa fé na ressurreição?

6. Por que a esperança da ressurreição deve influenciar nossa escolha de amigos?

que não acreditavam na ressurreição. Isso serve de alerta para nós hoje. Se tivermos amizade com pessoas que só pensam no agora, podemos ter resultados ruins. Esse tipo de amizade pode arruinar o ponto de vista e os bons hábitos de um cristão verdadeiro e pode até levá-lo a fazer coisas que Jeová odeia. É por isso que Paulo deu o seguinte alerta: "Recuperem o bom senso fazendo o que é justo e não pratiquem o pecado." — 1 Cor. 15:33, 34.

QUE TIPO DE CORPO?

7 Leia 1 Coríntios 15:35-38. Uma pessoa que questionava a fé na ressurreição talvez perguntasse: "Como é que os mortos serão levantados?" É bom pensarmos na resposta de Paulo porque muitas pessoas hoje têm suas próprias ideias sobre a vida após a morte. Mas o que a Bíblia ensina?

8 Quando uma pessoa morre, seu corpo se decompõe. Mas resolver isso não é nenhum problema para quem criou o Universo do zero. Deus pode ressuscitar essa pessoa e dar a ela um corpo adequado. (Gên. 1:1; 2:7) Paulo fez uma ilustração para mostrar que Deus não precisa ressuscitar a pessoa no mesmo

---

7. Que pergunta mencionada em 1 Coríntios 15:35-38 alguns talvez fizessem?

8. Que ilustração nos ajuda a entender a ressurreição para a vida no céu?

corpo. Ele usou o exemplo de “um simples grão” ou “semente” de planta. Quando uma semente é plantada no solo, ela brota e se torna uma nova planta. Essa nova planta é bem diferente daquela pequena semente. Paulo fez essa comparação para mostrar que nosso Criador pode dar ao ressuscitado “um corpo conforme lhe agrada”.

[9] Leia 1 Coríntios 15:39-41. Paulo mencionou que Deus criou muitos corpos diferentes. Por exemplo, o corpo dos bois, das aves e dos peixes são todos diferentes uns dos outros. Daí, Paulo disse que existem

---

9. O que 1 Coríntios 15:39-41 diz sobre os diferentes tipos de corpo?

Paulo usou uma semente e uma planta para ilustrar que Deus pode dar um corpo adequado àqueles que são ressuscitados (Veja o parágrafo 8.)

diferenças entre o Sol e a Lua. E ele mencionou que "uma estrela difere de outra estrela em glória". Mesmo que não consigamos vê-las a olho nu, existem estrelas que os cientistas chamam de gigantes vermelhas, de anãs brancas e de estrelas amarelas, como é o caso do nosso Sol. Paulo também disse que "há corpos celestiais e corpos terrenos". Como assim? Bem, na Terra existem corpos de carne e osso, mas no céu existem corpos espirituais, como aqueles que os anjos têm.

10 Note o que Paulo disse em seguida: "O mesmo se dá com a ressurreição dos mortos. Semeado

---

10. Que tipo de corpo os ressuscitados para a vida no céu vão ter?

perecível, o corpo é levantado imperecível." Nós sabemos que, quando uma pessoa morre, seu corpo se decompõe e volta ao pó. (Gên. 3:19) Então, como é possível que um corpo seja "levantado imperecível"? Paulo não estava falando de um humano ressuscitado para a vida na Terra, como aqueles ressuscitados por Elias, Eliseu e Jesus. Na verdade, Paulo estava se referindo a alguém ressuscitado com um corpo celestial, ou seja, "um espiritual". — 1 Cor. 15:42-44.

11 Quando Jesus estava na Terra, ele tinha um corpo carnal. Mas quando foi ressuscitado, ele "se tornou um espírito que dá vida" e voltou para o céu. Da mesma forma, os cristãos ungidos seriam ressuscitados com um corpo apropriado para a vida no céu. Paulo explicou: "Assim como levamos a imagem daquele feito do pó, levaremos também a imagem do celestial." — 1 Cor. 15:45-49.

12 Paulo estava chegando no ponto alto da sua consideração sobre a ressurreição. É importante lembrar que Jesus não foi ressuscitado com um corpo humano. Paulo explicou o motivo: "Carne e sangue não podem herdar o Reino de Deus" no céu. (1 Cor. 15:50) Da mesma forma, os apóstolos e os outros ungidos não seriam ressuscitados para a vida no céu com

---

11-12. Por qual mudança Jesus passou quando foi ressuscitado, e que mudança parecida acontece com os cristãos ungidos?

corpos perecíveis de carne e sangue. E quando eles seriam ressuscitados? Paulo destacou que essa ressurreição aconteceria mais para frente. Não aconteceria logo após eles morrerem. Na época em que Paulo escreveu 1 Coríntios, alguns discípulos já tinham "adormecido na morte"; como, por exemplo, o apóstolo Tiago. (Atos 12:1, 2) Os outros apóstolos e ungidos ainda precisariam 'adormecer na morte'. — 1 Cor. 15:6.

VITÓRIA SOBRE A MORTE

13 Tanto Jesus como Paulo falaram de uma época especial na história — a presença de Cristo. Essa presença seria marcada por guerras, terremotos, doenças e outros acontecimentos ruins no mundo todo. Desde 1914, estamos vendo essa profecia bíblica se cumprir. Mas outro acontecimento importante também marcaria a presença de Jesus. Ele disse que as boas novas do Reino de Deus seriam pregadas "em toda a terra habitada, em testemunho a todas as nações, e então [viria] o fim". (Mat. 24:3, 7-14) Paulo explicou que, na "presença do Senhor", também aconteceria a ressurreição dos cristãos ungidos que tinham "adormecido na morte". — 1 Tes. 4:14-16; 1 Cor. 15:23.

---

13. Que eventos marcariam a presença de Jesus?

Os que forem ressuscitados "num piscar de olhos" vão ajudar Jesus a acabar com toda a maldade na Terra (Veja o parágrafo 15.)

14 Os ungidos que falecem agora, durante a presença de Cristo, são imediatamente ressuscitados para viver no céu. Paulo confirma isso em 1 Coríntios 15:51, 52: "Nem todos adormeceremos na morte, mas todos seremos transformados, num momento, num piscar de olhos, durante o toque da última trombeta." Essas palavras de Paulo estão se cumprindo

14. O que acontece com os ungidos que morrem durante a presença de Cristo?

agora! Quando forem ressuscitados, os cristãos ungidos terão grande alegria. Eles estarão "sempre com o Senhor". — 1 Tes. 4:17.

15 A Bíblia nos diz qual será o trabalho dos ungidos no céu depois que forem ressuscitados "num piscar de olhos". Jesus disse sobre eles: "Àquele que vencer e guardar os meus caminhos até o fim, eu darei autoridade sobre as nações, e ele as pastoreará com vara de ferro, de modo que serão despedaçadas como vasos de barro, assim como recebi autoridade do meu Pai." (Apo. 2:26, 27) Seguindo seu Comandante, Jesus, os ungidos vão pastorear as nações com vara de ferro. — Apo. 19:11-15.

16 Com certeza, os ungidos vão vencer a morte; eles serão ressuscitados. (1 Cor. 15:54-57) Então, durante a guerra do Armagedom, eles estarão em condições de participar de outra vitória: a vitória sobre toda a maldade. Outros milhões de servos de Deus vão sobreviver à grande tribulação e entrar no novo mundo. (Apo. 7:14) Esses sobreviventes terão o privilégio de ver com os próprios olhos mais uma vitória sobre a morte: a ressurreição de bilhões de pessoas. Imagine a nossa alegria quando isso acontecer! (Atos 24:15) E todos os que forem totalmente leais a Jeová

---

15. Que trabalho os ungidos vão realizar no céu?

16. Como muitos humanos vão vencer a morte?

serão vitoriosos em outro sentido. Eles vencerão a morte que herdaram de Adão e viverão para sempre.

[17] Cada cristão deve ser grato pelas palavras consoladoras de Paulo sobre a ressurreição em 1 Coríntios. Temos todos os motivos para mostrar que aceitamos o conselho de Paulo de fazer o nosso melhor "na obra do Senhor". (Leia 1 Coríntios 15:58.) Se estivermos bem envolvidos nesse trabalho, poderemos ter uma vida muito feliz no futuro. Nossa vida vai ser muito melhor do que podemos imaginar. Todo o nosso trabalho árduo no Senhor não terá sido em vão.

---

17. Que incentivo 1 Coríntios 15:58 nos dá?

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Como a esperança da ressurreição nos fortalece quando enfrentamos perigos?
- Que trabalho os ungidos ressuscitados vão realizar com Cristo?
- Por que o conselho em 1 Coríntios 15:58 é apropriado para nós hoje?

CÂNTICO 140

Vida eterna, enfim!

ESTUDO 19

“O rei do norte” no tempo do fim

“No tempo do fim, o rei do sul se envolverá com ele [o rei do norte] em uma troca de empurrões.”
— DAN. 11:40.

CÂNTICO 150
Busquem a Deus para obter livramento

O QUE VAMOS VER

O livro de Daniel traz a profecia sobre “o rei do norte” e “o rei do sul”. Temos provas de que essa profecia continua a se cumprir. Como podemos ter certeza disso? E por que precisamos entender os detalhes dessa profecia?

O QUE o futuro reserva para o povo de Jeová? Isso não é um mistério para nós. Nós temos as profecias da Bíblia. Elas são como uma janela para o futuro que nos mostra os grandes acontecimentos que vão afetar cada um de nós. Uma dessas profecias nos permite ver o que alguns dos governos mais poderosos da Terra vão fazer. É a profecia em Daniel, capítulo 11. Ela fala sobre duas forças inimigas: o rei do norte e o rei do sul. A maior parte dessa profecia já se cumpriu. Por isso, não temos dúvida de que o resto dela também vai se cumprir.

2 Para entendermos a profecia de Daniel 11, temos que levar em conta dois fatos. Primeiro: ela só fala de reis e governos que tiveram algum tipo de influência direta sobre o povo de Deus. É verdade que os servos de Deus sempre foram um grupo pequeno em relação à população mundial. Apesar disso, eles muitas vezes se tornaram o alvo de governos. Por quê? Porque Satanás e todo o sistema dele têm um único objetivo — acabar com as pessoas que servem a Jeová e a Jesus. (Leia Gênesis 3:15 e Apocalipse 11:7; 12:17.) Segundo: a profecia de Daniel deve estar

---

1. O que as profecias da Bíblia nos mostram?

2. De acordo com Gênesis 3:15 e Apocalipse 11:7 e 12:17, que dois fatos temos que levar em conta para entendermos a profecia de Daniel?

de acordo com as outras profecias da Palavra de Deus. Na realidade, só vamos conseguir entender a profecia de Daniel do jeito certo se a compararmos com outros textos da Bíblia.

3 Levando em conta esses dois fatos, vamos fazer agora uma análise de Daniel 11:25-39. Vamos saber quem foi o rei do norte e quem foi o rei do sul no período entre 1870 e 1991. Também vamos ver por que faz sentido corrigir nosso entendimento sobre uma parte dessa profecia. Já o próximo estudo vai considerar o trecho de Daniel 11:40–12:1. Ele vai mostrar como essa profecia se aplica ao período entre 1991 e a guerra do Armagedom, e que partes de nosso entendimento sobre ela precisam ser corrigidas. Ao estudar esses dois artigos, consulte a linha do tempo "Reis inimigos no tempo do fim". Ela vai ajudá-lo bastante. Mas primeiro, vamos descobrir quem são os dois reis dessa profecia.

COMO SABER QUEM É O REI DO NORTE E QUEM É O REI DO SUL

4 Inicialmente, o título "rei do norte" era dado para os reis que governavam as terras ao norte de

---

3. O que vamos ver neste estudo e no próximo?

4. Que três pontos nos ajudam a identificar o rei do norte e o rei do sul?

Israel, e o título “rei do sul”, para os que governavam as terras ao sul de Israel. Como sabemos disso? Bem, o anjo que transmitiu a profecia a Daniel disse o seguinte: “Vim para fazer você entender o que acontecerá ao seu povo [povo de Deus] na parte final dos dias.” (Dan. 10:14) Quem era o povo de Deus? Até o Pentecostes do ano 33, era a nação de Israel. Depois do Pentecostes, Jeová deixou claro que os discípulos fiéis de Jesus tinham se tornado o povo dele. Por isso, boa parte da profecia de Daniel 11 não se aplica à nação de Israel, e sim aos seguidores de Cristo. (Atos 2:1-4; Rom. 9:6-8; Gál. 6:15, 16) Com o passar do tempo, vários governos assumiram os papéis de rei do norte e de rei do sul. Mesmo assim, é possível identificá-los porque eles sempre tiveram três pontos em comum: (1) eles tiveram alguma influência direta sobre o povo de Deus; (2) provaram seu ódio pelo Deus verdadeiro, Jeová, pela maneira como trataram o povo dele; e (3) brigaram entre si pelo poder.

[5] Algum tempo depois do ano 100, a congregação cristã ficou cheia de falsos cristãos que promoviam ensinos errados e escondiam as verdades da Palavra

---

5. Dava para saber quem era o rei do norte e quem era o rei do sul entre os anos 100 e 1870? Explique.

A Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana nas profecias da Bíblia

A Potência Anglo-Americana, que hoje é o rei do sul, recebe nomes diferentes em várias profecias da Bíblia. Ela é chamada de . . .

os pés de ferro e argila
(Dan. 2:41-43)

de Deus. A partir daí até 1870, não havia um grupo organizado de servos de Deus na Terra. Assim como o joio que se espalha numa plantação, o número de falsos cristãos aumentou tanto que ficou bem difícil identificar os verdadeiros cristãos. (Mat. 13:36-43) Por que é importante sabermos disso? Porque isso mostra que nenhum governante que estava no poder entre o ano 100 e o ano 1870 podia atuar como rei do norte ou como rei do sul. Não havia um grupo organizado de servos de Deus nesse período para ser atacado por esses reis. Mas certamente, pouco depois de 1870, foi possível um chifre que cresceu na cabeça de um animal assustador (Dan. 7:7, 8)

a sétima cabeça da fera (Apo. 13:1) a fera de dois chifres (Apo. 13:11-15)

"o falso profeta" (Apo. 19:20)

identificar novamente o rei do norte e o rei do sul. Por quê?*

[6] A partir de 1870, o povo de Deus começou a se organizar como grupo. Foi nesse ano que Charles

---

* Por causa do que foi explicado neste parágrafo, não parece correto dizer que o imperador romano Aureliano (que governou entre os anos 270 e 275) era o "rei do norte" ou que a rainha Zenóbia (que governou entre os anos 267 e 272) desempenhou o papel de "rei do sul". Isso muda nosso entendimento publicado nos capítulos 13 e 14 do livro Preste Atenção à Profecia de Daniel!.

---

6. Quando foi que o povo de Deus pôde ser identificado novamente? Explique.

Russell e outros formaram um grupo de estudo da Bíblia. O irmão Russell e seus amigos agiram como o predito 'mensageiro que preparou o caminho' antes do estabelecimento do Reino messiânico. (Mal. 3:1) Novamente o povo de Deus podia ser identificado! Nessa época, será que alguma potência ou governo mundial tinha influência direta sobre os servos de Deus? Vamos ver alguns fatos sobre isso.

QUEM É O REI DO SUL?

[7] Por volta de 1870, a Grã-Bretanha tinha se tornado o maior império da Terra, com a força militar mais poderosa. O profeta Daniel se referiu a esse império como um pequeno chifre que conquista outros três chifres — França, Espanha e Holanda. (Dan. 7:7, 8) Dessa época até boa parte da Primeira Guerra Mundial, a Grã-Bretanha assumiu o papel de rei do sul. Foi também durante a Primeira Guerra Mundial que os Estados Unidos da América se tornaram o país mais rico do mundo e iniciaram uma parceria com a Grã-Bretanha.

[8] Durante a Primeira Guerra Mundial, os Estados Unidos e a Grã-Bretanha lutaram juntos e se tornaram muito poderosos. Naquela época, essas duas po-

---

7. Quem foi o rei do sul até boa parte da Primeira Guerra Mundial?

8. Desde a Primeira Guerra Mundial, quem é o rei do sul?

tências formaram uma aliança, a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana. A profecia de Daniel se refere a essa potência como um rei que reúne "um exército extremamente grande e poderoso". (Dan. 11:25) Durante os últimos dias, a aliança Anglo-Americana tem sido o rei do sul.* Mas e o rei do norte?

O REI DO NORTE APARECE DE NOVO

9 Como vimos, o grupo de estudo da Bíblia que Russell e outros formaram surgiu em 1870. No ano seguinte, 1871, o rei do norte apareceu outra vez. Naquele ano, vários reinos da Europa se juntaram e formaram o Império Alemão. Nas décadas seguintes, a Alemanha ficou muito poderosa. Ela assumiu o controle de vários países na África e na região do oceano Pacífico e começou a desafiar o poder da Grã-Bretanha. (Leia Daniel 11:25) O Império Alemão formou um exército bem forte, e a Marinha alemã se tornou a segunda maior do mundo. Quando a Primeira Guerra Mundial estourou, a Alemanha usou toda a sua força militar contra seus inimigos.

---

* Veja o quadro "A Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana nas profecias da Bíblia".

---

9. Em que ano o rei do norte apareceu novamente, e como Daniel 11:25 se cumpriu?

[10] Em seguida, Daniel fala o que aconteceria com o Império Alemão e com seu exército poderoso. A profecia diz: "Ele [o rei do norte] não se manterá de pé." Por quê? "Porque planejarão tramas contra ele. Aqueles que comem as suas iguarias causarão a sua ruína." (Dan. 11:25b, 26a) Nos dias de Daniel, entre os que comiam as "iguarias do rei" estavam autoridades da realeza que 'serviam o rei'. (Dan. 1:5) De quem a profecia está falando aqui? Das grandes autoridades do Império Alemão — o que incluía generais e conselheiros militares do imperador. Essas autoridades colaboraram para que o imperador perdesse o poder e para que a Alemanha por fim deixasse de ser uma monarquia.* A profecia de Daniel não falou apenas da queda do Império Alemão, mas também do resultado de sua guerra contra o rei do sul. Ela diz sobre o rei do norte: "Quanto ao seu exército, será arrasado, e muitos cairão mortos." (Dan. 11:26b) Foi exatamente isso o que aconteceu durante a Primeira Guerra Mundial. O exército alemão 'foi arrasado' e muitos 'caíram mortos'. Nunca antes na história da humanidade houve tantos mortos em uma única guerra.

---

* Essas autoridades aceleraram a queda do Império Alemão de vários modos. Por exemplo, elas pararam de apoiar o imperador, vazaram informações confidenciais sobre a guerra e forçaram o imperador a deixar o trono.

---

10. Como Daniel 11:25b, 26 se cumpriu?

[11] A profecia descreve o período que veio antes da Primeira Guerra Mundial. Daniel 11:27, 28 diz que o rei do norte e o rei do sul 'se sentariam à mesma mesa e mentiriam um ao outro'. A profecia também diz que o rei do norte acumularia "grande quantidade de bens". Novamente, a profecia se cumpriu. A Alemanha e a Grã-Bretanha diziam uma para a outra que queriam paz, mas quando a guerra começou em 1914, ficou claro que tudo era mentira. E nas décadas antes de 1914, a Alemanha enriqueceu e se tornou a segunda maior economia do mundo. Daí, assim como Daniel 11:29 e a primeira parte do versículo 30 tinham predito, a Alemanha lutou contra o rei do sul, mas acabou derrotada.

OS REIS LUTAM CONTRA O POVO DE DEUS

[12] De 1914 em diante, os dois reis começaram a lutar cada vez mais um contra o outro e contra o povo de Deus. Por exemplo, na Primeira Guerra Mundial, tanto a Alemanha como a Grã-Bretanha perseguiram os servos de Deus porque eles se recusavam a lutar na guerra. E o governo dos Estados Unidos prendeu os irmãos que exerciam a liderança no trabalho de

---

11. O que o rei do norte e o rei do sul fizeram?

12. O que tanto o rei do norte como o rei do sul fizeram durante a Primeira Guerra Mundial?

pregação. Essa perseguição cumpriu a profecia registrada em Apocalipse 11:7-10.

13 Então, na década de 1930 e principalmente na Segunda Guerra Mundial, o rei do norte atacou o povo de Deus sem dó nem piedade. Nessa época, o partido nazista tomou o controle da Alemanha, e Hitler e seus apoiadores proibiram a obra do povo de Deus. Cerca de 1.500 Testemunhas de Jeová foram mortas e milhares foram enviadas a campos de concentração. Todos esses acontecimentos foram preditos por Daniel. A profecia diz que o rei do norte 'profanaria o santuário' e 'removeria o sacrifício constante'. Isso aconteceu quando a Alemanha proibiu totalmente a obra de pregação. (Dan. 11:30b, 31a) Hitler, líder do governo naquela época, tinha até mesmo jurado exterminar o povo de Deus da Alemanha.

UM NOVO REI DO NORTE

14 Depois da Segunda Guerra Mundial, surgiu um novo rei do norte. Os grandes territórios que antes pertenciam à Alemanha passaram a ser controlados

---

13. O que o rei do norte fez na década de 1930 e durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial?

14. Quem se tornou o rei do norte depois da Segunda Guerra Mundial? Explique.

pela União Soviética. Assim como o governo nazista alemão, o governo comunista soviético exigia obediência total das pessoas. Por isso, aqueles que colocavam a obediência a Deus em primeiro lugar se tornavam vítimas do ódio das autoridades.

15 Logo após o fim da Segunda Guerra Mundial, o novo rei do norte atacou o povo de Deus. A União Soviética e seus aliados proibiram a obra de pregação e mandaram milhares de servos de Jeová para o exílio. Isso cumpriu a profecia registrada em Apocalipse 12:15-17. De fato, durante todo o período dos últimos dias, Satanás tem usado o rei do norte para despejar "um rio" de perseguição contra o povo de Deus. Mas nada pode impedir que os servos de Jeová realizem seu trabalho de pregação.*

16 Leia Daniel 11:37-39. A profecia diz que o rei do norte não daria nenhuma "consideração ao Deus dos seus pais". Como isso se cumpriu? Com o objetivo de eliminar as religiões, a União Soviética tentou tirar o

---

* Daniel 11:34 indica que os cristãos que vivessem sob o governo do rei do norte sentiriam algum tipo de alívio da perseguição. Um dos modos como isso aconteceu foi quando a União Soviética se dissolveu em 1991.

---

15. O que o rei do norte fez depois do fim da Segunda Guerra Mundial?

16. Como a União Soviética cumpriu Daniel 11:37-39?

poder das organizações religiosas tradicionais. Para conseguir isso, o governo soviético já tinha criado lá em 1918 uma lei que serviu de base para que o ateísmo fosse ensinado nas escolas. Outra coisa que a profecia de Daniel diz é que o rei do norte 'daria glória ao deus das fortalezas'. Como isso aconteceu? A União Soviética gastou quantidades enormes de dinheiro montando seu exército e produzindo milhares de armas nucleares para aumentar seu poder. Tanto o rei do norte como o rei do sul conseguiram juntar armas suficientes para matar bilhões de pessoas!

UM ATO INCOMUM DE COOPERAÇÃO

17 O rei do norte e o rei do sul trabalharam juntos em uma tarefa importante. Eles 'estabeleceram a coisa repugnante que causa desolação'. (Dan. 11:31) A "coisa repugnante" é a ONU, a Organização das Nações Unidas.

18 A ONU é chamada de "coisa repugnante" porque ela diz que pode fazer algo que só o Reino de Deus pode — trazer a paz mundial. E a profecia diz que a coisa repugnante "causa desolação" porque a ONU vai atacar e destruir todas as religiões falsas. — Veja a linha do tempo "Reis inimigos no tempo do fim".

---

17. O que é "a coisa repugnante que causa desolação"?

18. Por que a ONU é chamada de "coisa repugnante"?

POR QUE PRECISAMOS SABER DE TUDO ISSO?

[19] Nós precisamos saber de tudo isso porque fica claro que, de 1870 até 1991, a profecia de Daniel sobre o rei do norte e o rei do sul se cumpriu. Isso nos faz confiar que todo o resto da profecia também vai se cumprir.

[20] Em 1991, a União Soviética deixou de existir. Então, quem é o rei do norte hoje? O próximo estudo vai responder a essa pergunta.

19-20. (a) Por que precisamos saber de tudo isso? (b) Que pergunta vai ser respondida no próximo estudo?

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Que três pontos nos ajudam a identificar "o rei do norte" e "o rei do sul"?
- De 1870 até 1991, quem assumiu o papel de rei do norte e de rei do sul?
- Por que precisamos saber de tudo isso?

CÂNTICO 128

Persevere até o fim

Reis inimigos no tempo do fim

Algumas das profecias mencionadas aqui acontecem ao mesmo tempo. Todas elas provam que estamos vivendo no “tempo do fim”. — Dan. 12:4.

ANOS FORA DE ESCALA

1870

REI DO NORTE

ALEMANHA (a partir de 1871, o rei do norte é identificável) →

2

REI DO SUL

GRÃ-BRETANHA (rei do sul identificável) →

1

A PARTIR DA DÉCADA DE 1870
Russell e seus associados são o “mensageiro”

3

A PARTIR DE 1881
A Torre de Vigia de Sião incentiva os leitores a pregar as boas novas

1

COMEÇA O TEMPO DO FIM

1914 ▼ 1917 ▼ 1918 ▼ 1919 ▼

POTÊNCIA ANGLO-AMERICANA →

1914-1918
PRIMEIRA GUERRA MUNDIAL

DURANTE A PRIMEIRA GUERRA
Sétima cabeça é ferida

DE 1917 EM DIANTE
Sétima cabeça é curada, e a fera se recupera

DE 1917 EM DIANTE
Surgimento dos pés de ferro e argila

5

DE 1914 EM DIANTE
Época da colheita; joio é separado do trigo

4

1919
Cristãos ungidos são reunidos na congregação restaurada

6

DE 1919 EM DIANTE
Obra de pregação ganha mais força

1914-1918 GRÃ-BRETANHA E ALEMANHA
Estudantes da Bíblia são presos

1918 ESTADOS UNIDOS
Membros da sede são presos

TEMPO DO FIM

ANOS FORA DE ESCALA

1920 · 1939 · 1945

→ ALEMANHA → · UNIÃO SOVIÉTICA E ALIADOS →

→ POTÊNCIA ANGLO-AMERICANA →

1939-1945
SEGUNDA GUERRA MUNDIAL

1920
Fundação da Liga das Nações

1945
Fundação da ONU

Pregação do Reino continua

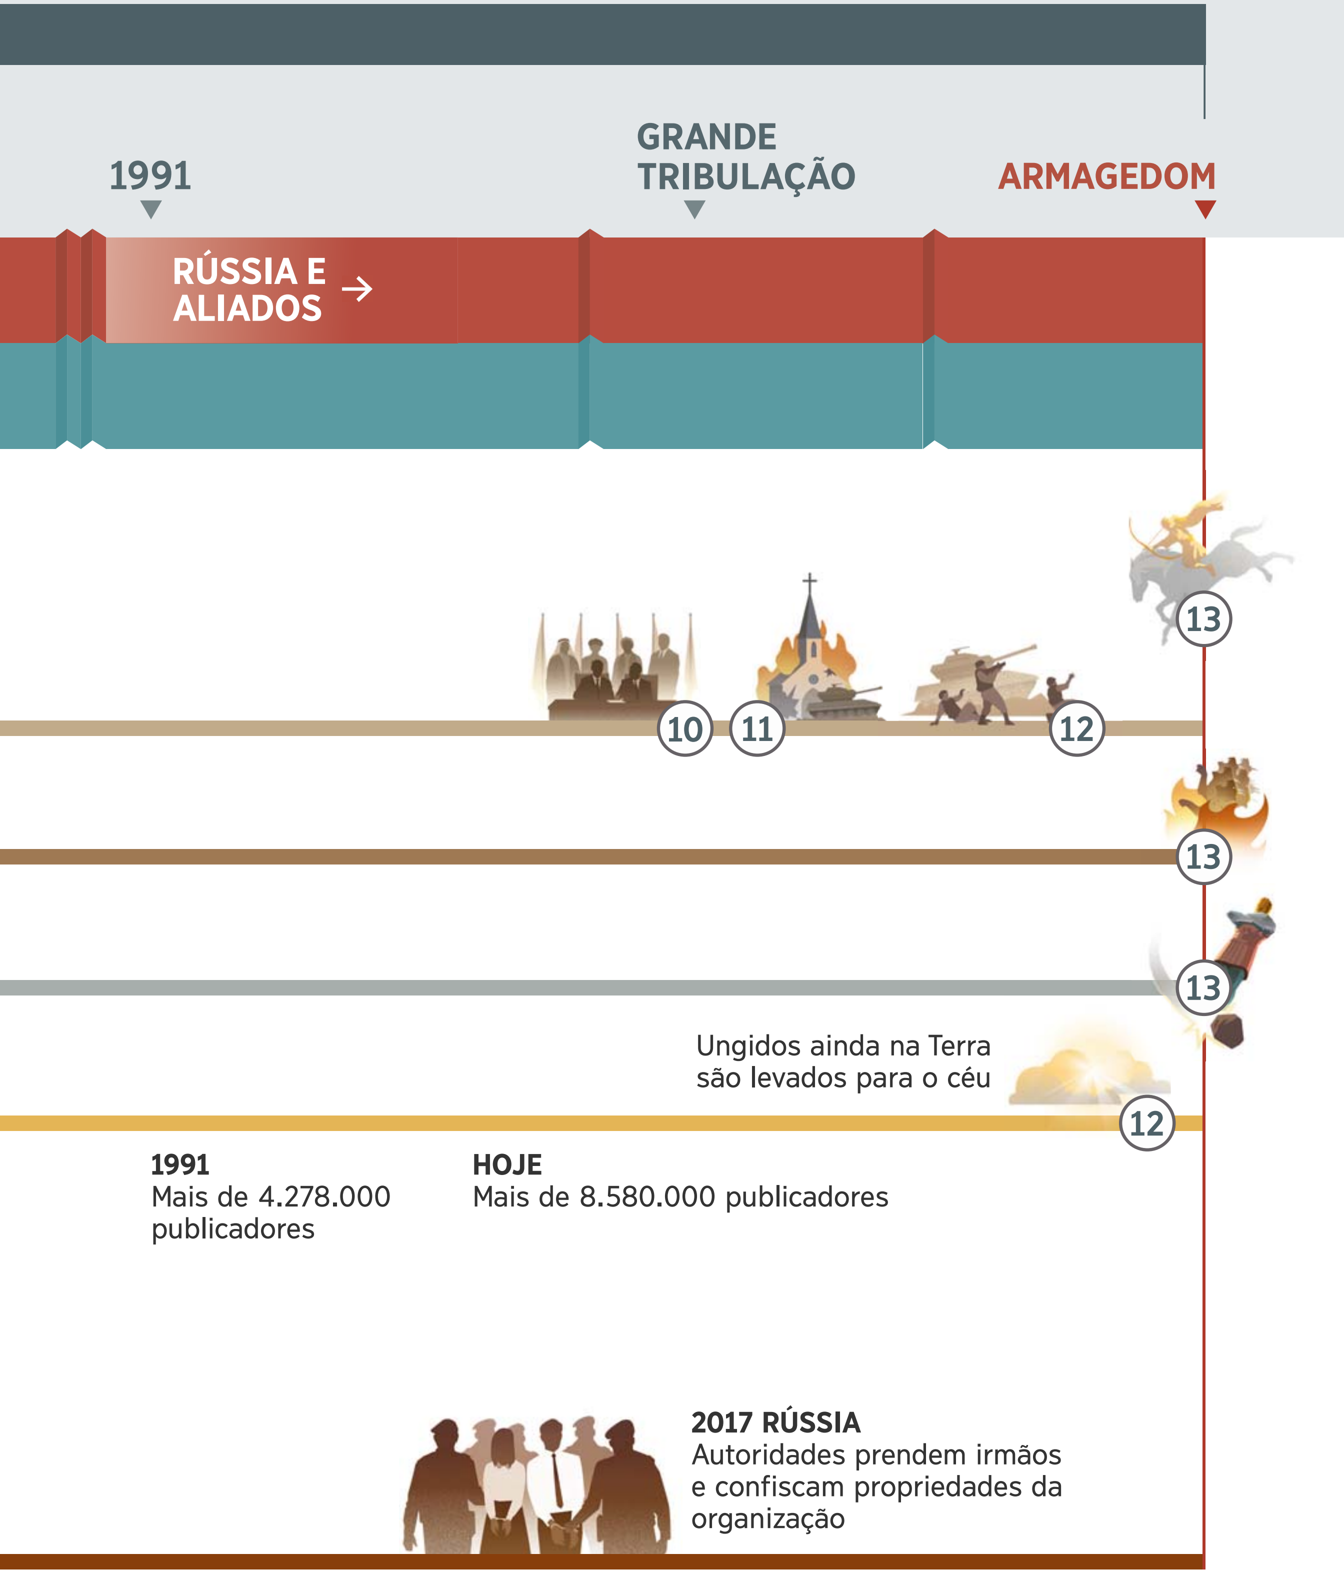
1945
Mais de 156.000 publicadores

1933-1945
ALEMANHA
Mais de 11.000 irmãos são presos

1939-1945 GRÃ-BRETANHA
Quase 1.600 irmãos são presos

1940-1944
ESTADOS UNIDOS
Mais de 2.500 ataques em grupo contra irmãos

1945-década de 1950
UNIÃO SOVIÉTICA
Milhares de irmãos deportados para a Sibéria



1991
GRANDE TRIBULAÇÃO
ARMAGEDOM
RÚSSIA E ALIADOS →
10
11
12
13
13
13
Ungidos ainda na Terra são levados para o céu 12
1991
Mais de 4.278.000 publicadores
HOJE
Mais de 8.580.000 publicadores
2017 RÚSSIA
Autoridades prendem irmãos e confiscam propriedades da organização

1

Texto(s) Apo. 11:7; 12:13, 17; 13:1-8, 12

Profecia "A fera" percorre a Terra durante milhares de anos. No tempo do fim, a sétima cabeça dela é ferida. Mais tarde, a cabeça se recupera e "toda a terra" segue a fera. Satanás usa essa fera para "travar guerra com o restante".

Cumprimento Depois do Dilúvio, surgem governos humanos inimigos de Jeová. Milhares de anos depois, durante a Primeira Guerra Mundial, o Império Britânico perde bastante força, mas se recupera quando os Estados Unidos se unem a ele. Principalmente no tempo do fim, Satanás usa todo seu sistema político para perseguir o povo de Deus.

2

Texto(s) Dan. 11:25-45

Profecia Durante o tempo do fim, o rei do norte e o rei do sul brigam entre si pelo poder.

Cumprimento A Alemanha e a Potência Anglo-Americana disputam poder. Em 1945, a União Soviética e seus aliados se tornam o rei do norte. Em 1991, a União Soviética entra em colapso e, com o tempo, a Rússia e seus aliados assumem o papel de rei do norte.

3

Texto(s) Isa. 61:1; Mal. 3:1; Luc. 4:18

Profecia Jeová envia seu "mensageiro" para 'preparar o caminho' antes do estabelecimento do Reino Messiânico. Esse grupo começa a "declarar boas novas aos mansos".

Cumprimento De 1870 em diante, Charles Russell e alguns amigos começam a estudar a Bíblia para descobrir o que ela realmente ensina. Na década de 1880, eles enfatizam que os servos de Deus devem pregar. Eles publicam artigos como "Precisa-se de mil pregadores" e "Ungidos para pregar".

4

Texto(s) Mat. 13:24-30, 36-43

Profecia Um inimigo planta joio no campo de trigo de um homem. O homem deixa o joio crescer e esconder o trigo até a época da colheita. Na colheita, o joio é separado do trigo.

Cumprimento A partir de 1870, começa a ficar clara a diferença entre os cristãos verdadeiros e os falsos. Durante o tempo do fim, os cristãos verdadeiros são ajuntados e separados dos cristãos falsos.

5

Texto(s) Dan. 2:31-33, 41-43

Profecia Os pés de ferro e argila que fazem parte de uma estátua feita de vários metais.

Cumprimento A argila representa pessoas governadas pela Potência Anglo-Americana que protestam contra ela. Por causa disso, essa potência não consegue usar totalmente sua força, que é representada pelo ferro.

6

Texto(s) Mat. 13:30; 24:14, 45; 28:19, 20

Profecia "O trigo" é ajuntado no "celeiro", e "o escravo fiel e prudente" é encarregado de cuidar dos "domésticos". As "boas novas do Reino" passam a ser pregadas "em toda a terra habitada".

Cumprimento Em 1919, o escravo fiel é encarregado de cuidar do povo de Deus. A partir de então, os Estudantes da Bíblia intensificam sua obra de pregação. Hoje, as Testemunhas de Jeová pregam em mais de 200 países e territórios e produzem material baseado na Bíblia em mais de mil idiomas.

7

Texto(s) Dan. 12:11; Apo. 13:11, 14, 15

Profecia Uma fera de dois chifres diz aos que moram na Terra que façam “uma imagem da fera” e dá “fôlego à imagem”.

Cumprimento A Potência Anglo-Americana toma a iniciativa de criar a Liga das Nações. Essa organização recebe o apoio de outros países. O rei do norte também se junta à Liga, mas apenas de 1926 a 1933. As pessoas colocam suas esperanças de paz mundial na Liga e em sua sucessora, as Nações Unidas (ONU). Mas isso é algo que só o Reino de Deus pode trazer.

8

Texto(s) Dan. 8:23, 24

Profecia Um rei de aparência feroz causa “destruição de modo extraordinário”.

Cumprimento A Potência Anglo-Americana já causou muita destruição. Por exemplo, durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial, os Estados Unidos causaram uma destruição nunca vista quando lançaram duas bombas atômicas em um dos inimigos da Potência Anglo-Americana.

9

Texto(s) Dan. 11:31; Apo. 17:3, 7-11

Profecia A “fera cor de escarlate” com dez chifres sobe do abismo e é um oitavo rei. O livro de Daniel chama esse oitavo rei de “a coisa repugnante que causa desolação”.

Cumprimento A Liga das Nações fica inativa durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial. Depois da guerra, a ONU é ‘estabelecida’. Assim como a Liga, a ONU diz que vai trazer a paz, algo que só o Reino de Deus pode fazer. A ONU vai atacar as religiões.

10 11

Texto(s) 1 Tes. 5:3; Apo. 17:16

Profecia As nações proclamam "paz e segurança", e "os dez chifres" e "a fera" atacam "a prostituta" e a destroem. Em seguida, as nações são destruídas.

Cumprimento As nações talvez digam que conseguiram trazer paz e segurança para o mundo. Então, as nações que apoiam a ONU destroem a religião falsa. Isso marca o começo da grande tribulação. Ela termina com a destruição de todo o mundo de Satanás no Armagedom.

12

Texto(s) Eze. 38:11, 14-17; Mat. 24:31

Profecia Gogue invade a terra do povo de Deus. Então, os anjos reúnem os "escolhidos".

Cumprimento O rei do norte, junto com os outros governos do mundo, ataca o povo de Deus. Algum tempo depois do começo desse ataque, os ungidos ainda na Terra são reunidos no céu.

13

Texto(s) Eze. 38:18-23; Dan. 2:34, 35, 44, 45; Apo. 6:2; 16:14, 16; 17:14; 19:20

Profecia 'O que está montado' num "cavalo branco" completa "sua vitória" quando destrói Gogue e seu exército. "A fera" é 'lançada no lago ardente' e a estátua gigante é esmigalhada.

Cumprimento Jesus, o Rei do Reino de Deus, vem para salvar o povo de Deus. Com os 144 mil reis e os exércitos de anjos, ele destrói a coalizão de nações. O inteiro sistema político de Satanás é destruído.

ESTUDO 20

Quem é “o rei do norte” hoje?

“[Ele] chegará ao seu fim, e não haverá quem o ajude.”
— DAN. 11:45.

CÂNTICO 95
A luz clareia mais e mais

O QUE VAMOS VER

Quem é “o rei do norte” hoje? Como ele chegará ao seu fim? As respostas para essas perguntas vão deixar nossa fé mais forte e vão nos preparar para as provações que virão em breve.

NÓS estamos vivendo no final dos últimos dias deste mundo mau. Nunca antes tivemos tantas provas disso. Em breve, Jeová e Jesus Cristo vão destruir todos os governos que são contra o Reino. Mas antes que isso aconteça, o rei do norte e o rei do sul vão continuar lutando um contra o outro e contra o povo de Deus.

[2] Neste estudo, vamos considerar a profecia registrada em Daniel 11:40–12:1. Vamos saber quem é o rei do norte hoje e como podemos continuar confiantes apesar das dificuldades que virão no futuro.

SURGE UM NOVO REI DO NORTE

[3] Com o fim da União Soviética em 1991, o povo de Deus que morava naquela grande área recebeu "um pouco de ajuda", ou seja, ganhou um período de liberdade. (Dan. 11:34) A pregação podia ser feita livremente, e não demorou para o número de publicadores na antiga União Soviética chegar a centenas de milhares. Mas pouco a pouco, a Rússia e países aliados foram se tornando o rei do norte. Como vimos no estudo anterior, para um

---

1-2. O que vamos ver neste estudo?

3-4. Quem é o rei do norte hoje? Explique.

governo assumir o papel de rei do norte ou de rei do sul, ele precisa fazer três coisas: (1) ter uma influência direta sobre o povo de Deus, (2) agir de um modo que prove que é inimigo de Jeová e de seu povo e (3) competir com o rei inimigo.

[4] Veja por que podemos dizer que a Rússia e seus aliados são o rei do norte hoje. (1) Eles afetam diretamente o povo de Deus, porque proíbem a pregação e perseguem centenas de milhares de irmãos nesses países. (2) Essa perseguição prova que eles odeiam Jeová e o povo dele. (3) Eles competem contra o rei do sul, a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana. Vamos ver o que a Rússia e seus aliados estão fazendo e como isso prova que eles são o rei do norte.

O REI DO NORTE E O REI DO SUL CONTINUAM TROCANDO EMPURRÕES

[5] Leia Daniel 11:40-43. Essa parte da profecia dá uma visão geral do tempo do fim. Esses versículos destacam como o rei do norte e o rei do sul brigariam entre si. Conforme Daniel predisse, no tempo do fim, o rei do sul se envolveria com o rei do norte "em uma troca de empurrões", ou "chifradas". — Dan. 11:40; nota.

---

5. De que tempo a profecia em Daniel 11:40-43 fala, e o que acontece durante esse período?

6 O rei do norte e o rei do sul continuam competindo para conseguir o controle do mundo. Por exemplo, depois da Segunda Guerra Mundial, a União Soviética e seus aliados passaram a controlar boa parte da Europa. Por causa disso, o rei do sul fez um acordo com outros países e formou uma força militar contra o rei do norte, a Otan (Organização do Tratado do Atlântico Norte). O rei do norte e o rei do sul não economizam ao competirem na criação de armas poderosas. Às vezes, o rei do norte apoia as guerras dos inimigos do rei do sul, e o rei do sul faz o mesmo contra o rei do norte, como já aconteceu na África, na América Latina e na Ásia. Em anos recentes, a Rússia e seus aliados expandiram sua influência para outros países. E eles se envolveram com o rei do sul numa guerra cibernética, ou virtual. Os reis acusam um ao outro de usarem programas de computador perigosos para prejudicar sua economia e sua política. E como predito por Daniel, o rei do norte continua a atacar o povo de Deus. — Dan. 11:41.

---

6. Que provas existem de que os dois reis estão trocando empurrões?

O REI DO NORTE ENTRA NA “TERRA GLORIOSA”

7 Daniel 11:41 diz que o rei do norte vai entrar na “Terra Gloriosa”. O que é essa terra? Antigamente, essa expressão se referia à terra de Israel. Ela era considerada “a mais bela de todas as terras”. (Eze. 20:6) Essa terra era especialmente bela porque nela se praticava a adoração verdadeira. Mas desde o Pentecostes do ano 33, essa “terra” não fica mais em um lugar único, específico. Aliás, isso nem é possível, porque o povo de Jeová está espalhado pela Terra inteira. Então, o que é a “Terra Gloriosa” hoje? Essa expressão se refere à organização de Jeová. Ela é como um país onde os servos de Deus estão unidos em realizar todas as atividades relacionadas com a adoração verdadeira.

8 Durante os últimos dias, o rei do norte entrou várias vezes na “Terra Gloriosa”. Por exemplo, quando a Alemanha nazista era o rei do norte, ela entrou na “Terra Gloriosa”, principalmente na época da Segunda Guerra Mundial, quando perse-

---

7. O que é a “Terra Gloriosa”?

8. De que formas o rei do norte entrou na “Terra Gloriosa”?

guiu e matou muitos do povo de Deus. Depois, quando a União Soviética assumiu o papel de rei do norte, ela entrou na "Terra Gloriosa" quando perseguiu o povo de Deus e mandou muitos de nossos irmãos para o exílio.

[9] Em anos recentes, a Rússia e seus aliados também entraram na "Terra Gloriosa". Como? Em 2017, esse rei do norte proibiu a obra do povo de Jeová e prendeu vários de nossos irmãos e irmãs. Ele também proibiu nossas publicações, incluindo a Tradução do Novo Mundo. Além disso, confiscou o Betel da Rússia, Salões do Reino e Salões de Assembleias. Depois de tudo isso, o Corpo Governante identificou em 2018 a Rússia e seus aliados como o rei do norte. Mas, mesmo quando sofre perseguição intensa, o povo de Jeová não se revolta contra o governo nem tenta mudá-lo. Em vez disso, os servos de Deus seguem o conselho bíblico de orar por "todos os que estão em altos postos", principalmente quando eles tomam decisões que podem afetar a liberdade de adoração. — 1 Tim. 2:1, 2.

---

9. Como a Rússia e seus aliados entraram na "Terra Gloriosa" em anos recentes?

O REI DO NORTE VAI DESTRUIR O REI DO SUL?

10 A profecia registrada em Daniel 11:40-45 se concentra principalmente nas ações do rei do norte. Será que isso significa que esse rei vai destruir o rei do sul? Não. O rei do sul ainda estará 'vivo' na guerra do Armagedom, quando Jeová e Jesus destruírem todos os governos humanos. (Apo. 19:20) Por que podemos ter tanta certeza disso? Veja o que as profecias de Daniel e Apocalipse indicam.

11 Leia Daniel 2:43-45. O profeta Daniel fala de uma enorme estátua que tem as partes do corpo formadas por vários metais. Cada parte da estátua representa um governo mundial diferente que teria influência direta sobre o povo de Deus e que chegaria ao poder em épocas diferentes. Os pés da estátua, formados por uma mistura de ferro e argila, representam o último governo humano apontado por Daniel — a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana. A profecia de Daniel indica que essa potência ainda estará no poder quando o Reino de Deus trouxer a destruição de todos os governos humanos.

---

10. Será que o rei do norte vai destruir o rei do sul? Explique.

11. O que Daniel 2:43-45 indica? (Veja a imagem da capa.)

[12] O apóstolo João também falou sobre vários governos mundiais que teriam influência direta sobre o povo de Jeová. Na profecia de João, esses governos são representados por uma fera com sete cabeças. A sétima cabeça dessa fera é a Potência Mundial Anglo-Americana. É importante sabermos isso, porque depois dessa cabeça, não surge mais nenhuma outra na fera. A sétima cabeça dessa fera ainda vai estar no poder quando Cristo e suas forças celestiais vierem para destruir não só essa cabeça, mas a fera como um todo.* — Apo. 13:1, 2; 17:13, 14.

O QUE O REI DO NORTE VAI FAZER EM BREVE?

[13] A profecia de Ezequiel nos dá uma ideia do que vai acontecer antes da destruição do rei do norte e do rei do sul. Parece que os textos de Ezequiel 38:10-23; Daniel 2:43-45; 11:44–12:1 e Apocalipse 16:13-16, 21 falam das mesmas coisas. Se esse

* Para saber mais sobre Daniel 2:36-45 e Apocalipse 13:1, 2, veja A Sentinela de 15 de junho de 2012, páginas 7 a 19.

12. Quem é a sétima cabeça da fera, e por que é importante saber isso?

13-14. Quem é "Gogue da terra de Magogue", e o que pode levá-lo a atacar o povo de Deus?

entendimento estiver correto, veja o que achamos que vai acontecer.

[14] Algum tempo depois do começo da grande tribulação, os "reis de toda a terra habitada" vão formar uma coalizão, ou grupo, de nações. (Apo. 16:13, 14; 19:19) A Bíblia chama essa coalizão de nações de "Gogue da terra de Magogue". (Eze. 38:2) Gogue vai atacar o povo de Deus e tentar destruí-lo completamente. O que vai levar a esse ataque? Na visão que teve sobre essa época, João viu pedras de granizo bem grandes e pesadas caindo sobre os inimigos de Deus. Essa tempestade de granizo pode ser uma mensagem pesada de julgamento que o povo de Jeová vai anunciar. Pode ser que essa mensagem leve Gogue de Magogue a atacar o povo de Deus para eliminá-lo. — Apo. 16:21.

[15] Essa mensagem pesada e o ataque final dos inimigos de Deus parecem ser os mesmos acontecimentos mencionados em Daniel 11:44, 45. (Leia.) Ali, Daniel diz que "notícias procedentes do leste e do norte" vão incomodar o rei do norte. Então, o rei do norte "sairá com grande furor" para "en-

---

15-16. (a) Daniel 11:44, 45 parece se referir a que acontecimentos? (b) O que vai acontecer com o rei do norte e o resto de Gogue de Magogue?

Na guerra do Armagedom, Jesus Cristo e seus exércitos celestiais vão destruir o mundo mau de Satanás e livrar o povo de Deus tregar muitos à destruição”. Aparentemente, a palavra “muitos” se refere ao povo de Jeová.* É possível que Daniel esteja falando aqui sobre o último ataque total contra o povo de Deus.

(Veja o parágrafo 17.)

16 O ataque feito pelo rei do norte com a ajuda de outros governos do mundo deixará o Deus Todo-Poderoso furioso. Então, terá início a guerra do Armagedom. (Apo. 16:14, 16) Nesse momento, o rei do norte, junto com todas as nações que

* Para mais informações, veja A Sentinela de 15 de maio de 2015, páginas 29-30.

fazem parte de Gogue de Magogue, chegará ao seu fim e não haverá "quem o ajude". — Dan. 11:45.

[17] O versículo seguinte do relato de Daniel dá mais detalhes de como o rei do norte e seus aliados vão chegar ao seu fim e como nós seremos salvos. (Leia Daniel 12:1.) O que esse versículo significa? Miguel é outro nome para nosso Rei, Cristo Jesus. Ele "está de pé a favor" do povo de Deus desde 1914, ano em que seu Reino começou nos céus. Em breve, Miguel "se levantará", ou seja, destruirá todos os seus inimigos na guerra do Armagedom. Essa batalha será o evento final que Daniel chama de o maior "tempo de aflição" da história humana. A profecia de João em Apocalipse chama o período que leva a essa batalha de "grande tribulação". — Apo. 6:2; 7:14.

SERÁ QUE SEU NOME ESTARÁ "INSCRITO NO LIVRO"?

[18] Não precisamos ter medo do futuro. Tanto Daniel como João confirmam que os que servem a Jeová e a Jesus vão sobreviver a esse período tão atribulado. Daniel diz que os sobreviventes terão

---

17. Quem é Miguel, "o grande príncipe", citado em Daniel 12:1, e o que ele faz?

18. Por que não precisamos ter medo do futuro?

seus nomes 'inscritos no livro'. (Dan. 12:1) O que temos que fazer para que nossos nomes estejam nesse livro? Precisamos deixar bem claro que temos fé em Jesus, o Cordeiro de Deus. (João 1:29) Também temos que nos dedicar a Deus e nos batizar. (1 Ped. 3:21) E devemos mostrar que apoiamos o Reino de Deus por ajudar outros a aprender sobre Jeová.

[19] Agora é o momento para aprendermos a confiar em Jeová e em sua organização de servos leais. Agora é o tempo de apoiarmos o Reino de Deus. Se fizermos isso, seremos salvos quando o Reino de Deus destruir o rei do norte e o rei do sul.

---

19. O que devemos fazer agora, e por quê?

QUAL É A SUA RESPOSTA?

- Quem é "o rei do norte" hoje?
- Como o rei do norte entrou na "Terra Gloriosa"?
- O que vai acontecer com o rei do norte e com o rei do sul?

CÂNTICO 149

Um cântico de vitória

ESTUDO PERSPICAZ DAS ESCRITURAS

Volume 1

it-1-T
230116

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11

Fotos da Guarda

Página à esquerda

Jerusalém vista do sul. Note a alongada Cidade de Davi em primeiro plano, com o vale do Cédron à direita e o monte do Templo ao norte.

1 Monte Moriá, monte do Templo
2 Domo do Rochedo
3 Mesquita el-Aqsa
4 Muro Ocidental, Muro das Lamentações
5 Ofel
6 Vale do Cédron
7 Fonte de Giom
8 Monte Sião, Cidade de Davi, Jebus, Salém
9 Vale de Tiropeom
10 Reservatório de Siloé
11 Reservatório de Siloé (primeiro século EC)

Página à direita

No alto, à esquerda: Mulher carregando um cesto à maneira às vezes observada no Oriente Médio.

No alto, à direita: Formações salinas no Mar Morto.

Embaixo: Tradicional lugar do monte Sinai visto do norte, com a planície de er-Raha em primeiro plano. Ras Safsafa está ao centro, e Jebel Musa está atrás dele.

it-1-T

Fotos da Guarda

Página à esquerda

No alto, à esquerda: Carros de guerra assírios portando estandartes religiosos.

No alto, à direita: Cilindro de Ciro, que registra sua captura de Babilônia e libertar ele prisioneiros para retornarem à sua pátria.

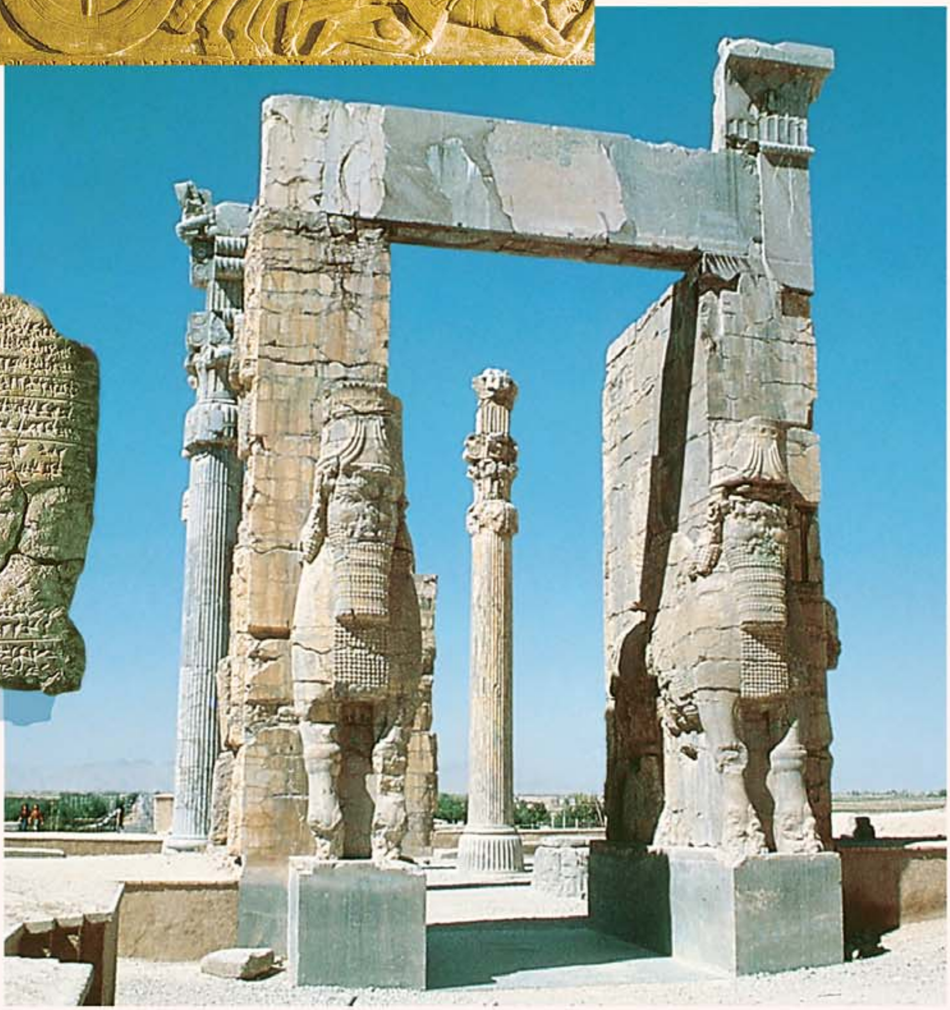
Embaixo, à esquerda: Tabuinha de argila relatando a captura de Jerusalém por Nabucodonosor II; 617 AEC.

Embaixo, à direita: Ruínas do portão perto do lugar da sala de audiências de Dario I, em Persépolis.

Página à direita

Babilônia invadida por soldados de Ciro, o Grande, em 539 AEC.

it-1-T



ESTUDO PERSPICAZ
DAS ESCRITURAS

Volume 1: Aará - Izri

Este livro não é vendido. Ele faz parte de um trabalho voluntário para ajudar as pessoas no mundo todo a entender a Bíblia. As despesas desse trabalho são cobertas por donativos.

Para fazer um donativo, acesse donate.jw.org.

Se não houver nenhuma observação, os textos bíblicos citados neste livro são da Tradução do Novo Mundo das Escrituras Sagradas com Referências.

Insight on the Scriptures
Edição de junho de 2022
Portuguese (Brazil) (it-1-T)

Editoras
Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Inc.
Wallkill, New York, U.S.A.
Associação Torre de Vigia de Bíblias e Tratados
Cesário Lange, São Paulo, Brasil
Made in Brazil

O Que Esta Publicação Contém

O objetivo desta publicação é ajudá-lo a fazer um estudo perspicaz das Escrituras. Como se faz isso? Por ajuntar de todas as partes da Bíblia os pormenores que se relacionam com os assuntos em consideração. Por trazer à atenção palavras das línguas originais e seu sentido literal. Por considerar informações relacionadas da história secular, das pesquisas arqueológicas e de outros campos de ciência, e pela avaliação disso à luz da Bíblia. Por prover ajudas visuais. Por ajudá-lo a discernir o valor de agir em harmonia com o que a Bíblia diz.

A Bíblia relata os tratos de Jeová Deus com a humanidade, e faz isso num contexto que reflete convincentemente a vida real. Identifica por nome pessoas e lugares, refere-se a nações e a governantes contemporâneos, e menciona tipos específicos de plantas e de animais. O conhecimento de fundo pode ajudá-lo a tirar proveito mais pleno das referências que a Bíblia faz a tais pessoas e coisas. Com o fim de auxiliá-lo, Estudo Perspicaz das Escrituras contém artigos informativos sobre mais de 3.000 pessoas mencionadas nas Escrituras, bem como fatos a respeito de 97 nações, tribos e povos. Há mais de 1.000 artigos que consideram lugares geográficos específicos, 96 referentes a diversas plantas, e 106 que tratam de aves e de animais. Além destes, há artigos sobre muitos outros assuntos bíblicos vitais.

Todos os livros da Bíblia recebem atenção especial. Um resumo sobre cada um dos livros dela traz à atenção as ideias principais desenvolvidas pelo escritor, e faz isso numa forma fácil de ler e de lembrar. A menos que haja outra indicação, a tradução da Bíblia citada nesta obra de referências é a Tradução do Novo Mundo das Escrituras Sagradas com Referências, Edição de 1986, embora se citem e mencionem mais de 40 outras traduções.

As ajudas visuais incluem dezenas de mapas, muitos deles destacando locais-chave à base de períodos históricos. Há também um grande número de ilustrações destinadas a ajudá-lo a visualizar terras bíblicas e eventos ocorridos ali. Algumas ilustrações são representações artísticas de importantes acontecimentos históricos. Muitas outras são fotografias de lugares específicos e de objetos expostos em museus, relacionados com o registro bíblico. Os créditos pelas fotografias de objetos expostos em museus e por outras são apresentados no Volume 2, página 1278.

Artigos de peso consideram o hebraico, o grego e o aramaico — os idiomas em que a Bíblia originalmente foi escrita. Os artigos são apresentados em harmonia com o sentido de expressões relevantes nas línguas originais, não simplesmente do modo em que esses termos são entendidos em outras línguas hoje em uso popular. O significado dos nomes bíblicos, nesta publicação, baseia-se na maneira em que os componentes dos nomes na língua original são realmente usados em outras partes da Bíblia.

Como poderá achar respostas às suas perguntas bíblicas? (1) Deseja saber o sentido de determinada expressão bíblica? Relaciona-se a sua pergunta com uma pessoa, um lugar ou talvez uma qualidade? Lembre-se de que todos os artigos estão em ordem alfabética, e que nomes e expressões bíblicas constam conforme vertidos na Tradução do Novo Mundo. Procure o artigo que tem por tópico o nome ou o assunto que tem em mente. Se não encontrar prontamente aquilo que quer, procure o Índice de Assuntos no fim do Volume 2; este indica com precisão matéria valiosa que talvez se encontre num lugar inesperado. (2) Se desejar ter a explicação dum texto bíblico específico, recorra diretamente ao Índice de Textos no Volume 2.

Nosso desejo sincero é que esta publicação aprofunde seu apreço pelo Autor da Bíblia, Jeová Deus, e lhe dê maior perspicácia quanto ao significado da Sua Palavra, e que sirva para induzi-lo a aplicar o conteúdo dela mais plenamente na sua própria vida e a transmitir as verdades vitais dela a outros.

Apresentações Especiais em Cores

Mapas estão alistados na página 8 do Volume 1.

Exemplos de aspectos úteis

Tópicos em letras maiúsculas indicam os artigos principais.

> ARÃO. Filho de Anrão e de Joquebede, da tribo de Levi, nasceu no Egito em 1597 AEC. Levi era bisavô de Arão. (Êx 6:13, 16-20) Miriã era sua irmã mais velha e Moisés era seu irmão três anos mais moço. (Êx 2:1-4; 7:7) Arão casou-se com

Usa-se tipo em negrito com iniciais maiúsculas para os subtópicos principais.

> Durante os Reinados de Davi e de Salomão. Parece que, quando Davi finalmente obteve o trono, Abiatar foi constituído sumo sacerdote. Alguns peritos sugerem que, depois da morte do sumo sacerdote Aimeleque, o Rei Saul fez empossar Za-

Palavras grifadas, em negrito, indicam uma subdivisão da matéria debaixo do subtópico principal.

> Princípios cristãos a respeito de estranhos. Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, o amor aos estranhos (gr.: xé·nos) é fortemente enfatizado como qualidade que o cristão precisa exercer. O apóstolo Paulo disse: "Não vos esqueçais da hospitalidade Significado do nome.

> ELIAS [Meu Deus É Jeová].
> 1. Um dos mais destacados profetas de Israel. Ele, evidentemente, era de Tisbé, que alguns julgam ser uma aldeia na terra de Gileade, ao L do rio Jordão. (1Rs 17:1) Iniciou sua longa carreira Pergunta respondida no(s) parágrafo(s) que segue(m).

> Por que não foi Arão punido por fazer o bezerro de ouro?
>
> Apesar de sua posição privilegiada, Arão tinha suas falhas. Durante a primeira permanência de Moisés no monte Sinai, por 40 dias, "o povo se

Um número em negrito, no início dum parágrafo, indica uma pessoa ou um lugar diferente com o mesmo nome.

> 1. Porteiro dos coraítas, designado por Davi; sétimo filho de Meselemias, da tribo de Levi. — 1Cr 26:1-3.
>
> 2. Filho de Zeraías, o qual, acompanhado por 200 varões da casa paterna de Paate-Moabe, retornou de Babilônia a Jerusalém, junto com Esdras.

As referências remissivas trazem à atenção artigos com valiosas informações adicionais, ou ajudas visuais.

> prata com a efígie de Tibério e que foi posto em circulação por volta do ano 15 EC. (FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 554) (Veja Lu 3:1, 2.) O fato de que Pôncio Pilatos era então o governador romano da Judeia foi também confirmado por uma laje de pedra encontrada em Cesareia, com os nomes latinos Pontius Pilatus e Tiberieum. — Veja PILATOS; FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 741.

Fornecem-se equivalentes modernos para pesos, medidas e dinheiro mencionados na Bíblia.

> Oseias pagou 15 moedas de prata (se foram siclos, US$ 33), e um ômer e meio (330 l) de cevada para comprar de volta a adúltera Gômer como esposa (Os 1:3; 3:1, 2), preço que alguns comentadores consideram equivalente ao preço de um escravo, 30 siclos de prata (US$ 66). (Êx 21:32) A 'oferta do ciúme' que a Lei exigia no caso de Todas as abreviaturas são explicadas no Volume 1, nas páginas 1276-1278.

> (Is 40:11) A expressão "mulher do [teu, seu] seio", conforme aparece em algumas traduções (Al; IBB; KJ; RS), tem um sentido mais claro quando vertida "mulher do teu coração [da tua afeição]" (BMD), "tua querida esposa". (NM) (De 13:6[7];

Nomes geográficos entre parêntesis são os equivalentes em outro idioma (usualmente o hebraico moderno).

> No período dos juízes, a cidade cananeia se situava numa elevação identificada com o Tell el-Fukhkhar (Tel 'Akko), a cerca de 1 km da baía e a 1,8 km a L da atual muralha da Cidade Antiga. No período persa, a partir do sexto século AEC, a cidade se estendeu para o oeste, incluindo a penín-

Lugares geográficos são indicados num mapa acompanhante; os textos bíblicos contam o que aconteceu ali durante o período histórico em consideração.

LUGARES NO MAPA
Com Textos Relacionados

Ai	Gên 12:8; 13:3, 4
Berseba	Gên 21:31-33; 22:19
Betel	Gên 12:8
Dã	Gên 14:14
Damasco	Gên 14:15
Gerar	Gên 20:1-18

Mapas

Índice dos lugares em todos os mapas:
Volume 1, páginas 1272-1275.

A

AARÁ. Terceiro filho de Benjamim. (1Cr 8:1) Provavelmente o mesmo que o Eí de Gênesis 46:21 e o Airão de Números 26:38.

AARÃO. Veja ARÃO.

AAREL. Descendente de Judá e filho de Harum. — 1Cr 4:8.

AASBAI. Maacatita cujo "filho" Elifelete foi um notável lutador a favor de Davi. (2Sa 23:34) A Maacá de onde Aasbai procedia poderia referir-se a Abel-Bete-Maacá, no território de Naftali, ou ao reino sírio de Maacá. (2Sa 20:14; 10:6, 8) Na lista paralela em 1 Crônicas 11:35, 36, aparece o nome Ur em lugar de Aasbai.

AAVA. Nome dado a um rio ou canal, bem como a um lugar próximo, localizado em Babilônia, a NO da cidade de Babilônia, onde Esdras ajuntou certos judeus e realizou um jejum, antes de empreenderem a jornada para Jerusalém. (Esd 8:15, 21, 31) Ficava evidentemente a oito ou nove dias de viagem de Babilônia. (Veja Esd 7:9; 8:15, 31.) Heródoto (I, 179) fala dum pequeno rio chamado Is, que desemboca no Eufrates, e declara que a cidade de Is, à margem deste rio, está a uma jornada de cerca de oito dias de Babilônia. Is tem sido identificada com a moderna Hit, e alguns sugerem que esta seja a provável localidade de Aava.

A respeito da cidade de Hit, The New Encyclopædia Britannica (A Nova Enciclopédia Britânica, 1987, Vol. 5, p. 949) afirma: "Situada junto ao rio Eufrates, Hit é uma pequena cidade murada construída sobre duas elevações, no lugar duma cidade antiga; poços de betume na vizinhança têm sido utilizados por pelo menos 3.000 anos, e foram usados na construção de Babilônia." Esta fonte de betume talvez corresponda ao relato bíblico da construção da Torre de Babel, em que o betume servia de argamassa. — Gên 11:3.

AB. Nome pós-exílico do 5.º mês lunar do calendário sagrado judaico, mas o 11.º do calendário secular. Corresponde a parte de julho e parte de agosto.

O significado do nome ab é incerto. Na Bíblia não é mencionado diretamente por nome, mas apenas como o "quinto mês". No entanto, o nome aparece na Míxena (Taʽanit 4:6) e em outros escritos judaicos pós-exílicos.

Ab era um mês de calor de verão, tempo em que começava a vindima em Israel. — Veja CALENDÁRIO.

Foi no primeiro dia de ab que Arão morreu no monte Hor. (Núm 33:38) Segundo Reis 25:8 diz que foi no sétimo dia deste mês que Nebuzaradã, servo do rei de Babilônia, "veio a Jerusalém". Entretanto, Jeremias 52:12 nos informa que foi no décimo dia deste mês que Nebuzaradã "entrou em Jerusalém". A obra Soncino Books of the Bible (Livros da Bíblia, de Soncino) comenta isso: "O intervalo de três dias poderá ser contado como representando a data da chegada de Nebuzaradã em cena e o começo das operações." (Editada por A. Cohen, Londres, 1949) De modo que parece que Nebuzaradã chegou a Jerusalém no sétimo dia, fez a sua inspeção desde o seu acampamento fora das muralhas da cidade, e deu instruções para a demolição das fortificações da cidade e o saque dos tesouros dela; finalmente, no décimo dia do mês, ele entrou na cidade e no santo templo dela. De acordo com Josefo (The Jewish War [A Guerra Judaica], VI, 250, 268 [iv, 5, 8]), o templo de Herodes foi queimado pelos romanos no décimo dia do quinto mês (70 EC), e Josefo faz menção da exata correspondência desta data com o incêndio do primeiro templo, no mesmo dia, pelos babilônios.

Durante o exílio babilônico de 70 anos que se seguiu, este quinto mês era uma ocasião de jejuns e de lamentações em lembrança da destruição do templo em Jerusalém. (Za 7:3, 5; 8:19) Foi também no mês de ab que Esdras retornou à restaurada Jerusalém para instruir os judeus na Lei de Jeová. — Esd 7:8, 9, 25.

ABA. A palavra 'ab·bá' em aramaico corresponde à forma enfática ou definida de 'av, significando literalmente "o pai" ou "ó Pai". Era o nome íntimo dado pelos filhos ao seu pai e combina de certo modo com a intimidade da palavra portuguesa "papá" ou "papai", retendo ao mesmo tempo a dignidade da palavra "pai", por ser informal e ainda assim respeitosa. Portanto, era uma forma carinhosa de tratamento, ao invés de um título, e achava-se entre as primeiras palavras que a criança aprendia a falar.

Esta palavra aramaica aparece três vezes nas Escrituras. Sempre ocorre numa forma transliterada no grego original e usualmente é transliterada nas traduções em português. Toda vez, o termo é logo seguido pela tradução ho pa·tér em grego, que literalmente significa "o pai", ou, usado como vocativo, "ó Pai". Em cada caso, é usada com referência ao Pai celeste, Jeová.

Marcos registra que Jesus usou tal termo ao orar a Jeová Deus em Getsêmani, pouco antes de sua morte, dizendo: "Aba, Pai, todas as coisas te são possíveis; remove de mim este copo. Contudo, não o que eu quero, mas o que tu queres." (Mr 14:36) Eis aqui o fervoroso apelo de um filho a um pai amado, seguido rapidamente pela garantia de que, em qualquer caso, ele permaneceria obediente.

As duas outras ocorrências são nas cartas de Paulo, em Romanos 8:15 e Gálatas 4:6. Em ambos os lugares, a palavra é usada em relação aos cristãos chamados para ser filhos de Deus, gerados pelo espírito, e indica a intimidade de sua relação com seu Pai. Ao passo que são "escravos de Deus" e foram "comprados por um preço", todavia, são também filhos na casa dum Pai amoroso, e, pelo espírito santo, mediante seu Senhor Jesus, tornam-se positivamente cônscios desta condição. — Ro 6:22; 1Co 7:23; Ro 8:15; Gál 4:6.

Em vez de o verem apenas como uma tradução do aramaico para o grego, alguns veem no uso de 'Ab·bá' e de "Pai" juntos, primeiro, o crédito, a confiança e a submissão de um filho, seguidos pelo apreço maduro da relação filial e das suas responsabilidades. Estes textos parecem tornar evidente que, nos tempos apostólicos, os cristãos utilizavam o termo 'Ab·bá' em suas orações a Deus.

A palavra 'Ab·bá' veio a ser aplicada como título de honra aos rabinos judeus, nos primeiros séculos da Era Comum, e é encontrada como tal no Talmude Babilônico. (Berakhot 16*b*) Quem atuava na qualidade de vice-presidente do Sinédrio judaico já tinha o título de 'Av, ou Pai, do Sinédrio. Em períodos posteriores, este título foi também aplicado aos bispos das igrejas cóptica, etíope e síria, e, mais especificamente, tornou-se o título do Bispo de Alexandria, tornando-o assim o "papá" ou "papa" daquela parte da igreja oriental. As palavras portuguesas "abade" e "abadia" derivam ambas da aramaica 'ab·bá'. Jerônimo, o tradutor da Vulgata latina, objetou ao uso do título "abade" conforme aplicado aos monges católicos no seu tempo, e fez isso baseado em que violava as instruções de Jesus em Mateus 23:9: "Além disso, não chameis a ninguém na terra de vosso pai, pois um só é o vosso Pai, o Celestial."

ABÃ. Filho de Abisur e de Abiail da tribo de Judá. — 1Cr 2:29.

ABADON [do hebr., significando "Destruição"]. Em Revelação 9:11, esta palavra hebraica está transliterada no texto em português. Lemos ali a respeito da simbólica praga de gafanhotos, que estes têm "um rei, o anjo do abismo. Seu nome, em hebraico, é Abadon, mas em grego ele tem o nome de Apolion".

No hebraico, a palavra 'avad·dóhn significa "destruição" e pode também referir-se ao "lugar de destruição". Aparece no texto hebraico original no total de cinco vezes, e em quatro das ocorrências é usada em paralelo com "sepultura", "Seol" e "morte". (Sal 88:11; Jó 26:6; 28:22; Pr 15:11) A palavra 'avad·dóhn, nestes textos, evidentemente refere-se aos processos destrutivos que resultam da morte humana, e estes textos indicam que a decomposição ou destruição ocorre no Seol, a sepultura comum da humanidade. Em Jó 31:12, 'avad·dóhn designa o efeito prejudicial dum proceder adúltero. Jó declarou: "[Tal proceder adúltero] é um fogo que consumiria até à destruição ['adh-'avad·dóhn], e se arraigaria entre todos os meus produtos." — Veja Pr 6:26-28, 32; 7:26, 27.

Abadon, o anjo do abismo — quem é ele?

Em Revelação 9:11, porém, a palavra "Abadon" é usada como o nome do "anjo do abismo". O correspondente nome grego, Apolion, significa "Destruidor". No século 19 fizeram-se esforços para mostrar que este texto se aplicava profeticamente a pessoas, tais como o imperador Vespasiano, Maomé e até mesmo Napoleão, e o anjo, em geral, era encarado como "satânico". Deve-se notar, porém, que Revelação 20:1-3 mostra que o anjo com "a chave do abismo" é representante de Deus, vindo do céu, e, em vez de ser "satânico", ele amarra Satanás e o lança no abismo. Comentando Revelação 9:11, The Interpreter's Bible (A Bíblia do Intérprete) diz: "Abadon, porém, não é um anjo de Satanás, mas de Deus, realizando sua obra de destruição às ordens de Deus."

Nos textos hebraicos que acabamos de considerar é evidente que 'avad·dóhn está em paralelo com o Seol e a morte. Em Revelação 1:18, encontramos Cristo Jesus declarando: "Eis que vivo para todo o sempre, e tenho as chaves da morte e do Hades." Seu poder com respeito ao abismo é demonstrado em Lucas 8:31. Que ele tem poder destrutivo, inclusive o poder de destruir Satanás, é evidente de Hebreus 2:14, que diz que Jesus participou de sangue e carne para que "pela sua morte, reduzisse a nada aquele que tem os meios de causar a morte, isto é, o Diabo". Em Revelação 19:11-16 ele é claramente representado como o Destruidor ou Executor designado por Deus. — Veja APOLION.

ABAGTA. Nome de um dos sete oficiais da corte que ministravam ao rei persa Assuero, marido da judia Ester, no seu palácio em Susã, naquele tempo capital da Pérsia. — Est 1:10.

Na Versão Rei Jaime (em inglês), Abagta é chamado de um de sete "camareiros", e a nota marginal diz "eunucos". Embora nos países do Oriente Médio os eunucos fossem frequentemente usados como servos de confiança dentro da casa real, a palavra original hebraica sa·rís tem primariamente o sentido de "oficial da corte" e apenas secundariamente tem referência a uma pessoa castrada. Visto que estes sete oficiais da corte eram ajudantes do rei e aparentemente não eram designados como guardiães das mulheres (como Hegai, eunuco do rei mencionado em Ester 2:3), eles talvez não fossem eunucos em sentido físico.

ABANA. Um dos dois rios de Damasco mencionados pelo comandante do exército sírio, Naamã, quando zombou das instruções de Eliseu, de se banhar nas águas do Jordão como cura para a sua lepra. — 2Rs 5:12.

Este rio é geralmente identificado com o Nahr Barada, que nasce nos montes Antilíbano, ao NO de Damasco, e, depois de atravessar as montanhas, emerge duma garganta um pouco ao O de Damasco. Daí percorre a parte setentrional da cidade e se espraia para irrigar uma ampla área antes de finalmente se perder numa série de pantanais ao L da cidade. Suas águas, usadas para irrigar campos e pomares por meio de canais e de regos, criam um extenso oásis verdejante. Bem que se pode dizer que Damasco deve sua existência ao Barada. Há muito tem sido o manancial de águas para as cisternas, as fontes e os banhos da cidade. Escritores clássicos o chamam de rio Dourado (Chrysorrhoas). Assim, parece que o alto conceito que Naamã tinha do rio possuía uma base sólida.

Usa-se a palavra "Amana" ou "Amaná" em vez de Abana em 2 Reis 5:12 na versão do Pontifício Instituto Bíblico, também na tradução em inglês publicada pela Sociedade Publicadora Judaica da América, e a nota marginal do texto massorético, bem como a Pesito siríaca, rezam assim. No Cântico de Salomão 4:8, em muitas traduções, faz-se referência ao "Amana", e entende-se que isso se refere aos montes Antilíbano, nos quais nasce o rio aqui em consideração. Portanto, o rio talvez tenha assumido o nome das montanhas nas quais se origina.

ABARIM [Vaus (Passagens de Rio); Terra Fronteiriça (Regiões Além)]. Este nome, sem dúvida, se aplica à região ao L do rio Jordão, e, mais especificamente, ao L do Mar Morto. Em Jeremias 22:20 é mencionado junto com regiões do Líbano e de Basã.

Em outros casos em que aparece no registro bíblico é relacionado com uma cordilheira ou cadeia de montanhas. O termo "Abarim", quando se refere a "regiões além", talvez indique que aqueles que originaram o termo estavam situados no lado ocidental do Jordão; e é possível que este termo fosse originalmente usado por Abraão e ainda fosse retido pelos israelitas ao partirem do Egito.

Foi perto do fim da peregrinação de 40 anos no ermo que os israelitas atingiram este território e acamparam "nos montes de Abarim". (Núm 33:47, 48) Depois desceram às planícies de Moabe, que se encontram ao L do Jordão na extremidade N do Mar Morto. Ali armaram seu último acampamento antes de cruzar o rio Jordão. Foi também ali que Jeová disse a Moisés: "Sobe a este monte de Abarim, o monte Nebo, que está na terra de Moabe, defrontando com Jericó, e vê a terra de Canaã que dou como propriedade aos filhos de Israel." — De 32:49; Núm 27:12.

Em vista disso, parece que a região de Abarim, junto com suas montanhas, encontrava-se na parte NO do território de Moabe. Entretanto, é possível que abrangesse toda a extensão da cadeia de montanhas costeiras que se erguem ao longo do inteiro lado L do Mar Morto, de N a S. Em Números 21:11 e 33:44, faz-se referência a um ponto de parada na rota dos israelitas chamado "Ijé-Abarim", e o contexto situa-o ao S de Moabe e junto à extremidade S do Mar Morto. Talvez tenha marcado o ponto mais sulino da região chamada Abarim. — Veja IJÉ-ABARIM.

O monte Nebo, evidentemente, era uma das mais elevadas montanhas de Abarim. — Veja NEBO N.º 3.

ABDA [Servo].

1. Pai de Adonirão. (1Rs 4:6) Seu filho, Adonirão, foi príncipe sobre os recrutados para trabalhos forçados durante os reinados de Davi, de Salomão e de Roboão, e é evidentemente o Adorão, ou Hadorão, mencionado em outros textos. (2Sa 20:24; 1Rs 12:18; 2Cr 10:18) Portanto, Abda provavelmente era contemporâneo do Rei Davi.

2. Descendente de Jedutum, da tribo de Levi. (Ne 11:17, 18) Abda, o levita, evidentemente é o mesmo que o "Obadias" mencionado em 1 Crônicas 9:16. Encontrava-se entre os exilados que voltaram de Babilônia a Jerusalém.

ABDEEL [Servo de Deus]. Pai de Selemias, um dos três homens enviados pelo Rei Jeoiaquim para prender o profeta Jeremias e seu secretário Baruque. — Je 36:26.

ABDI [forma abreviada de Abdiel].

1. Levita da casa de Merari. Era o pai de Quisi e provavelmente contemporâneo de Saul, cujo reinado se estendeu de 1117 a 1078 AEC. — 1Cr 6:31, 33, 39, 44.

2. Também era levita da casa de Merari. Era o pai de Quis. (2Cr 29:12) Por causa da similaridade dos nomes de seus filhos, este Abdi e o acima descrito são apresentados em alguns dicionários bíblicos como a mesma pessoa. Entretanto, o fato de que o filho deste segundo Abdi, Quis, viveu no tempo do Rei Ezequias, uns 250 anos depois do tempo de Davi, torna tal conclusão ilógica. Este segundo Abdi provavelmente era contemporâneo dos reis Jotão e Acaz, cujos reinados abrangeram o período de 777 AEC a cerca de 746 AEC.

3. Homem da família de Elão, que viveu em tempos pós-exílicos. (Esd 10:26) Ele era um dos israelitas que haviam tomado esposas estrangeiras, mas que as despediram em resposta à exortação de Esdras, depois do retorno deste a Jerusalém no sétimo ano do Rei Artaxerxes (Longímano) (468 AEC). — Esd 7:8; 10:1-4, 10-12, 26, 44.

ABDIEL [Servo de Deus]. Filho de Guni e pai de Aí, da tribo de Gade. (1Cr 5:15) Ele vivia na região de Gileade e de Basã, ao L do Jordão, numa região famosa pela criação de gado. — 1Cr 5:16.

ABDOM [duma raiz que significa "servo"].

1. Juiz, filho de Hilel, o piratonita de Efraim. (Jz 12:13-15) Segundo Josefo (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], V, 273 [vii, 15]), seu governo de oito anos foi de paz, e o registro bíblico não faz menção de guerras durante este período. Os 40 filhos e 30 netos de Abdom "montavam em setenta jumentos adultos", sinal de considerável riqueza e destaque naquele tempo. Ao fim do seu juizado, Abdom foi sepultado na sua terra natal, Efraim.

Alguns relacionariam Abdom com "Bedã", mencionado em 1 Samuel 12:11; no entanto, Bedã é mais provavelmente identificado com Baraque, cujo nome aparece neste texto tanto na Septuaginta grega como na Pesito siríaca.

2. Benjamita, filho primogênito de Jeiel, e evidentemente irmão de Ner, avô de Saul. — 1Cr 8:29, 30; 9:35, 36, 39.

3. Oficial na corte do Rei Josias (2Cr 34:20), chamado Acbor em 2 Reis 22:12. — Veja ACBOR N.º 2.

4. Filho de Sasaque, da tribo de Benjamim; um dos cabeças que morava em Jerusalém. — 1Cr 8:23-28.

5. Uma de quatro cidades no território de Aser, dada aos levitas da família de Gérson (Gersom). (Jos 21:27-31; 1Cr 6:71-75) Provavelmente trata-se de Khirbet ʽAbdeh (Tel ʽAvdon), cerca de 6 km ao L de Aczibe. Este lugar está ao lado N do uádi Qarn (Nahal Keziv) e ao sopé das colinas da Galileia, e, portanto, perto da extremidade N da Planície de Aser.

ABDOME. Veja VENTRE.

ABEDNEGO [provavelmente: Servo de Nebo (um deus babilônico)]. O nome dado a Azarias, um dos jovens, dentre a realeza ou nobreza judaica, levados cativos por Nabucodonosor em 617 AEC. — Da 1:3, 4, 7.

Alguns peritos creem que "Nego" seja uma corruptela intencional do nome Nebo, um deus babilônio, de modo a não ofender Azarias. (Veja NEBO N.º 4.) O nome Azarias significa "Jeová Ajudou", e parece que estes hebreus, entre si, continuavam a usar seus nomes originais. (Da 2:17) Em Babilônia, ele, junto com Daniel, Hananias e Misael passaram com distinção num curso de treinamento de três anos e um exame régio, dirigido pessoalmente por Nabucodonosor, depois de primeiro terem demonstrado integridade religiosa em questões de alimentação e bebida. (Da 1:4, 5, 8-20) Mais tarde, a pedido de Daniel, o rei constituiu Azarias e seus dois companheiros em administradores do distrito jurisdicional de Babilônia. — Da 2:49.

Abednego (Azarias) e seus dois companheiros hebreus foram subsequentemente denunciados ao rei, por certos caldeus, por se negarem a curvar-se diante da imagem de ouro, do rei, ao som de determinada música. (Da 3:5, 8, 12) Ao serem interrogados pelo enfurecido rei, sua firme recusa de violar a sua consciência e sua expressão de fé em Jeová resultou em o rei mandar que fossem lançados numa fornalha superaquecida, onde foram milagrosamente protegidos pelo representante angélico de Deus. Após serem libertos pelo abalado rei, e depois de membros da corte real verem que os três homens haviam escapado incólumes, estes foram readmitidos ao favor real. — Da 3:15-30; veja MESAQUE; SADRAQUE.

ABEL.

1. [possivelmente: Exalação; Vaidade]. O segundo filho de Adão e sua esposa, Eva, e o irmão mais novo do primogênito deles, Caim. — Gên 4:2.

É provável que, enquanto ainda vivia, Abel tivesse irmãs; o registro menciona o nascimento de filhas aos pais dele, mas não se registraram os nomes delas. (Gên 5:1-4) Quando homem adulto, tornou-se pastor de ovelhas; seu irmão, lavrador. — Gên 4:2.

Depois de um período não especificado de tempo, Abel fez uma oferenda a Jeová Deus. Caim também fez. Cada um trouxe do que possuía: Abel, das primícias de seus rebanhos; Caim, de seus produtos agrícolas. (Gên 4:3, 4) Ambos criam em Deus. Sem dúvida aprenderam a respeito Dele com seus pais, e devem ter sabido por que estavam todos fora do Jardim do Éden, sendo-lhes negada a entrada nele. Suas oferendas indicavam o reconhecimento de sua condição alienada e seu desejo de ter o favor de Deus. Deus expressou favor para com a oferenda de Abel, mas não para com a de Caim. O registro não mostra como se manifestaram tal aprovação e rejeição, mas, sem dúvida, eram evidentes a ambos os homens. O motivo de Deus aprovar somente a oferenda de Abel é esclarecido por escritos posteriores. O apóstolo Paulo alista Abel como o primeiro homem de fé, em Hebreus 11:4, e mostra que isto resultou em seu sacrifício ser de "maior valor" do que a oferenda de Caim. Em contraste, 1 João 3:11, 12, mostra ter sido má a atitude de coração de Caim; e sua rejeição posterior do conselho e do aviso de Deus, bem como seu homicídio premeditado de seu irmão, Abel, demonstraram isto.

Ao passo que não se pode dizer que Abel tivesse qualquer presciência do posterior desenrolar da promessa divina, de Gênesis 3:15, a respeito do "descendente [lit.: semente]" prometido, provavelmente pensara muito nesta promessa e cria que se teria de derramar sangue, que alguém teria de ter 'machucado o calcanhar', para que a humanidade pudesse ser soerguida novamente para a condição de perfeição que Adão e Eva usufruíam antes da sua rebelião. (He 11:4) Em vista disso, a oferenda de Abel, das primícias de seu rebanho, certamente era apropriada, e, sem dúvida, foi também um fator na expressão da aprovação por parte de Deus. Ao Dador da vida, Abel apresentou uma vida como sua dádiva, embora fosse apenas dentre o rebanho. — Compare isso com Jo 1:36.

Jesus mostra que Abel foi o primeiro mártir e alvo de perseguição religiosa movida por seu intolerante irmão, Caim. Ao assim fazer, Jesus fala de Abel como vivendo na "fundação do mundo". (Lu 11:48-51) A palavra grega para "mundo" é kó·smos, e neste texto refere-se ao mundo da humanidade. O termo "fundação" verte a palavra grega ka·ta·bo·lé e significa literalmente "lançamento para baixo [de semente]". (He 11:11, Int) Evidentemente, com a expressão "a fundação do mundo", Jesus referiu-se ao nascimento de filhos a Adão e Eva, produzindo-se assim um mundo de humanidade. Paulo inclui Abel entre a "nuvem de testemunhas" dos tempos pré-cristãos. — He 11:4; 12:1.

Em que sentido é que o sangue de Jesus "fala melhor do que o sangue de Abel"?

Por causa de sua fé e da aprovação divina, o registro das quais continua a dar testemunho, podia-se dizer que Abel, "embora morto, ainda fala". (He 11:4) Em Hebreus 12:24, o apóstolo se refere a "Jesus, o mediador dum novo pacto, e ao sangue da aspersão, que fala melhor do que o sangue de Abel". O sangue de Abel, embora derramado em martírio, não resgatou nem redimiu ninguém, assim como não o fez o sangue de sua ovelha sacrificada. Seu sangue, com efeito, clamava a Deus por vingança contra o assassino Caim. O sangue de Jesus, aqui representado como validando o novo pacto, fala de modo melhor do que o de Abel, no sentido de que clama a Deus por misericórdia para com todas as pessoas de fé como Abel, e é o meio pelo qual o resgate delas é possível.

Visto que Sete nasceu, evidentemente, pouco depois da morte de Abel, e quando Adão tinha 130 anos, é possível que Abel tivesse tantos quantos 100 anos na ocasião de seu martírio. — Gên 4:25; 5:3.

2. [Curso de Água]. Uma cidade também chamada Abel-Bete-Maacá ou Abel de Bete-Maacá. Em outras partes é usado como prefixo para os nomes de diversos lugares. — 2Sa 20:18; veja ABEL-BETE-MAACÁ.

3. Em 1 Samuel 6:18, a Versão Rei Jaime (em inglês; veja a versão Figueiredo) menciona "a grande pedra de Abel", ao passo que a nota marginal diz: "Ou, grande Abel, isto é, lamentação." Entretanto, as traduções modernas, em geral, dizem aqui simplesmente "a grande pedra". (Veja ALA, NM, BJ e outras.) Ao passo que o texto hebraico, massorético, usa neste versículo a palavra 'A·vél, a Septuaginta grega e os Targuns Aramaicos a traduzem como se fosse 'é·ven, isto é, "pedra". Isto concorda com o versículo 14 do mesmo capítulo. Não pode referir-se a Abel de Bete-Maacá, visto que o incidente registrado em 1 Samuel 6:18 ocorreu perto de Bete-Semes, em Judá.

ABEL-BETE-MAACÁ, ABEL DE BETE-MAACÁ [Curso de Água da Casa de Maacá]. Uma cidade fortificada de Naftali, na Palestina setentrional, provavelmente a 7 km ao ONO de Dã, identificada com Tell Abil (Tel Avel Bet Ma'akha). Estava situada convenientemente na estrada que de Hazor seguia para o norte, na encruzilhada da rota E-O de Damasco a Tiro.

Os homens de Davi, sob as ordens de Joabe, sitiaram a cidade quando o rebelde Seba se refugiou ali. Daí, uma mulher sábia, falando em nome 'dos pacíficos e dos fiéis de Israel', rogou a Joabe que não destruísse Abel, que desde a antiguidade era o lugar onde se indagava por julgamentos sábios, portanto, uma "mãe em Israel"; significando provavelmente também uma metrópole ou cidade com aldeias dependentes. Atendendo o pedido desta mulher, os habitantes lançaram a cabeça de Seba por cima da muralha e a cidade foi poupada. — 2Sa 20:14-22.

Instigado por Asa, de Judá, o sírio Ben-Hadade I derrubou Abel-Bete-Maacá para fazer Baasa, de Israel, desistir de construir Ramá. (1Rs 15:20; veja RAMÁ N.º 1.) Abel de Bete-Maacá foi capturada por Tiglate-Pileser III, da Assíria, durante o reinado de Peca, e seus habitantes foram mandados ao exílio. (2Rs 15:29) Esta cidade, chamada nos textos assírios de Abilakka, aparece nas inscrições de Tiglate-Pileser III, na lista das cidades que ele conquistou. Os circundantes campos férteis, bem regados, sem dúvida deram origem a outro nome merecido, Abel-Maim (significando "Curso de Água de Águas"). Sua localização tornava-a excelente lugar de armazenagem. — 2Cr 16:4.

ABEL DE BETE-MAACÁ. Veja ABEL-BETE-MAACÁ.

ABELHA [hebr.: devoh·ráh]. As referências bíblicas, na maior parte, relacionam-se evidentemente com abelhas silvestres. A descrição de Canaã como "uma terra que mana leite e mel" indica que as abelhas eram bem numerosas nessa terra, desde os tempos antigos. (Êx 3:8) O clima quente e a abundância de flores continuam a fazer dela uma terra apropriada para grande população de abelhas, e a apicultura é muito popular ali nos tempos modernos. Das mais de 20.000 variedades de abelhas conhecidas, a espécie mais comum em Israel é hoje uma abelha escura chamada de Apis mellifica syriaca.

O mel comido por Jonatã durante certa campanha militar foi encontrado na floresta, estando a colmeia de abelhas provavelmente numa árvore oca. (1Sa 14:25-27) Abelhas silvestres do vale do Jordão forneciam a João, o Batizador, grande parte de seu alimento. (Mt 3:4) As abelhas nidificam não só em árvores, mas também em outras cavidades, tais como fendas nas rochas e nas paredes. — De 32:13; Sal 81:16.

O relato em Juízes 14:5-9 tem suscitado algumas perguntas. Sansão, tendo matado um leão, voltou e encontrou "um enxame de abelhas no cadáver do leão, bem como mel". É bem conhecida a forte aversão que a maioria das abelhas têm a cadáveres e carniças. Deve-se notar, contudo, que o relato declara que Sansão voltou "depois de um tempo", ou, literalmente, no hebraico, "depois de dias", frase que pode referir-se a um período de até mesmo um ano. (Veja 1Sa 1:3 [A expressão "de ano em ano" no hebraico é, literalmente, "de dias em dias".]; compare isso com Ne 13:6.) O tempo decorrido permitiria que as aves ou animais necrófagos, e também insetos, tivessem consumido grande parte da carne, e que os raios ardentes do sol dessecassem o restante. Que se havia passado um bom tempo também se evidencia em que o enxame de abelhas não só havia formado uma colmeia dentro da carcaça do leão, mas também havia produzido certa quantidade de mel.

A ferocidade do ataque da parte duma colmeia de abelhas que fora perturbada é usada para descrever o modo como os amorreus expulsaram as forças israelitas do seu domínio montanhesco. (De 1:44) Comparando nações inimigas a um enxame de abelhas atacantes, o salmista diz que foram rechaçadas apenas pela fé no nome de Jeová. — Sal 118:10-12.

O profeta Isaías predisse vividamente a invasão da Terra da Promessa pelos exércitos do Egito e da Assíria, assemelhando suas tropas a enxames de moscas e de abelhas, aos quais Jeová Deus figurativamente assobia para virem e pousarem nos vales de torrente e nas fendas dos rochedos. (Is 7:18, 19) O 'assobio' não denota uma prática real entre apicultores, mas simplesmente indica que Jeová atrai a atenção das nações agressivas à terra de seu povo pactuado.

Na Bíblia, duas mulheres tinham o nome de Débora (significando "Abelha"): a ama de Rebeca (Gên 35:8) e a profetisa que cooperou com o juiz Baraque na derrota do rei cananeu Jabim. — Jz 4:4.

ABEL-MAIM. Veja ABEL-BETE-MAACÁ.

ABEL-MEOLÁ [Curso de Água de Dança]. Domicílio de Eliseu, onde Elias o encontrou arando e o ungiu sucessor de profeta. — 1Rs 19:16-19.

Numa data anterior, Abel-Meolá aparece no relato sobre a derrota dos midianitas pelo pequeno grupo de guerreiros de Gideão. Relata-se que a fuga desordenada dos midianitas levou-os "até as cercanias de Abel-Meolá, junto a Tabate". — Jz 7:22.

Visto que Tabate está ao L do rio Jordão, fizeram-se desde 1951 esforços para identificar Abel-Meolá com Tell el-Maqlub no uádi el-Yabis. Outro argumento aduzido para esta identificação tem sido que Elias, depois de partir de Horebe, parou em Abel-Meolá para ungir Eliseu, e tinha a comissão adicional de viajar "ao ermo de Damasco" para ungir Hazael como rei da Síria. (1Rs 19:15) A principal estrada antiga que levava de Horebe a Damasco existia ao L do Jordão, embora às vezes esta rota fosse controlada por nômades.

Entretanto, o relato da perseguição dos midianitas por Gideão na realidade indica que eles estavam ao O (em vez de ao L) do Jordão no ponto indicado em Juízes 7:22. (Veja Jz 7:24.) E, no que se refere à viagem de Elias ao ermo de Damasco, o registro mostra que ela não foi realizada imediatamente, mas, em vez disso, foi feita algum tempo depois pelo seu sucessor, Eliseu. (1Rs 19:15-19; 2Rs 8:7-13) Em vista disso, alguns textos geográficos continuam a recomendar um lugar ao O do Jordão, em vez de ao L dele. (The Geographical and Topographical Texts of the Old Testament [Os Textos Geográficos e Topográficos do Antigo Testamento], de J. Simons, Leiden, 1959; The Geography of the Bible [A Geografia da Bíblia], de D. Baly, 1957; e o Atlas of the Bible [Atlas da Bíblia], de L. H. Grollenberg, 1956) Tanto Jerônimo como Eusébio, dos primeiros séculos da Era Comum, identificaram Abel-Meolá com um lugar a 10 milhas romanas (15 km) ao S de Bete-Seã (ao O do Jordão). The Land of the Bible (A Terra da Bíblia), de Y. Aharoni, declara: "Abel-Meolá foi agora identificada com muita segurança com o Tell Abu Sus, na margem [ocidental] do Jordão, a 15 km ao sul de Bete-Seã." (Traduzido para o inglês e editado por A. Rainey, 1979, p. 313) A vizinha planície de Bete-Seã é bem apropriada para a lavoura em grande escala. — Veja 1Rs 19:19.

Outra indicação a favor de tal lugar ao O do Jordão é o fato de que Abel-Meolá constituiu mais tarde parte do quinto distrito administrativo de Salomão e está alistada junto com outros lugares ao O do Jordão. (1Rs 4:12) Era evidentemente o domicílio de Adriel, o meolatita, genro de Saul. (1Sa 18:19; 2Sa 21:8) Danças festivas durante celebrações da colheita talvez expliquem o nome Abel-Meolá.

ABEL-MIZRAIM. Veja ATADE.

ABEL-QUERAMIM [Curso de Água dos Vinhedos]. O ponto mais distante até onde Jefté perseguiu os amonitas na derrota deles. (Jz 11:33) Crê-se geralmente que se localize entre Hésbon e Rabá, ou Rabá Amom (a moderna ʽAmman [Amã]). Atualmente, de modo geral, é identificada com Khirbet es-Suq, cerca de 8 km ao S de Rabá (ʽAmman), o que possivelmente se enquadra na descrição feita por Eusébio. (Onomasticon [Onomástico], 32, 15-16) Alguns recomendam Naʽur, cerca de 14 km ao SO de Rabá Amom como provável localização.

ABEL-SITIM. Veja SITIM N.º 1.

ABI. Veja ABIAS N.º 7.

ABIAIL [(Meu) Pai É Energia Vital]. Nome usado na Bíblia para três homens e duas mulheres.

1. Homem da tribo de Levi e da família (ou clã) de Merari. Era o pai de Zuriel, maioral da casa paterna do clã por ocasião do Êxodo. — Núm 3:35.

2. Esposa de Abisur, que era da tribo de Judá. (1Cr 2:29) Ela teve dois filhos, Abã e Molide.

3. Homem da tribo de Gade, que se estabeleceu em Basã e em Gileade. Era filho de Huri e chefe de família. — 1Cr 5:14-17.

4. Filha de Eliabe, irmão mais velho de Davi. (Embora a palavra hebraica bath [filha], em 2 Crônicas 11:18, também possa significar "neta".)

A versão Almeida, revista e corrigida, diz em 2 Crônicas 11:18: "E Roboão tomou para si, por mulher, a Maalate, filha de Jerimote, filho de Davi; e Abiail, filha de Eliabe, filho de Jessé." Isto faria parecer que Abiail era a segunda esposa de Roboão. Entretanto, o hebraico original admite uma versão diferente, e, por isso, muitas traduções modernas rezam aqui: "Maalate, filha de Jerimote, filho de Davi, e de Abiail, filha de Eliabe, filho de Jessé." (Veja ALA, BJ, PIB.) A respeito disso, a obra Soncino Books of the Bible (Livros da Bíblia, de Soncino) diz numa nota ao pé da página sobre 2 Crônicas 11:18: "A conjunção é subentendida. Maalate era a filha de Jerimote e de Abiail. Alguns comentadores consideram Abiail como o nome de outra das esposas de Roboão." (Editada por A. Cohen, Londres, 1952) Os pronomes no singular, usados nos versículos seguintes (19, 20) apoiam o conceito de que o versículo 18 se refere apenas a uma esposa de Roboão. Portanto, parece mais provável que Abiail era a mãe da esposa de Roboão, Maalate.

5. Pai da Rainha Ester e descendente de Benjamim. Era o tio do primo de Ester, Mordecai. (Est 2:5, 15; 9:29) Ester 2:7 indica que ele e sua esposa faleceram quando sua filha Ester ainda era bastante jovem, e assim algum tempo antes do casamento dela com o Rei Assuero.

ABI-ALBOM. Benjamita e notável guerreiro alistado entre 37 dos mais valentes combatentes do Rei Davi. (2Sa 23:31) Evidentemente, ele é o Abiel mencionado numa passagem paralela em 1 Crônicas 11:32. É chamado de arbatita, talvez por ser da cidade de Bete-Arabá, situada perto da fronteira entre Benjamim e Judá, acima da extremidade N do Mar Morto. (Jos 15:6; 18:21, 22) Sua valentia como combatente estava em harmonia com a profecia de Jacó a respeito da tribo de Benjamim, proferida no leito de morte. — Gên 49:27.

ABIÃO. Veja ABIAS N.º 5.

ABIAS [Meu Pai É Jeová]. Em 2 Reis 18:2 ocorre Abi como abreviatura deste nome. Abijão é outra variante encontrada no texto massorético, em 1 Reis 14:31; 15:1, 7, 8. Entretanto, em 1 Reis 14:31, cerca de 12 manuscritos hebraicos e a edição Bomberg da Bíblia Hebraica de Jacob ben Chayyim (1524-1525) rezam "Abijah" ("Abias").

1. Neto de Benjamim, alistado em sétimo lugar entre os nove filhos de Bequer. — 1Cr 7:8.

2. De acordo com o texto massorético, a esposa de Esrom, neto de Judá por sua nora Tamar. Esta Abias talvez fosse a mãe de Assur, pai de Tecoa. — 1Cr 2:4, 5, 24; veja ESROM N.º 2.

3. Segundo filho do profeta Samuel, o qual, junto com o seu irmão mais velho, Joel, foi designado pelo seu pai idoso para ser juiz de Israel em Berseba. Visto que eles pervertiam o julgamento, aceitavam subornos e extorquiam lucros injustos, os anciãos de Israel exigiram que Samuel designasse um rei para governá-los. — 1Sa 8:1-5; 1Cr 6:28.

4. Descendente sacerdotal de Arão, o qual, nos dias do Rei Davi, era reconhecido como cabeça de uma das casas paternas de Israel. Davi dividiu o sacerdócio em 24 turmas, ou divisões, cada uma delas servindo no santuário de seis em seis meses por uma semana. A casa paterna de Abias foi escolhida por sortes para chefiar a oitava turma, a qual depois era conhecida como a "divisão de Abias". (1Cr 24:3-10; Lu 1:5) De modo que se disse que o sacerdote Zacarias, pai de João, o Batizador, era "da divisão de Abias".

5. Um dos 28 filhos de Roboão, também chamado Abijão, que se tornou o segundo rei do reino de Judá, de duas tribos, e reinou de 980 a 978 AEC. (1Rs 14:31-15:8) Era descendente régio de Davi, tanto por parte do pai como da mãe, sendo a 16.ª geração de Abraão na linhagem real de Jesus Cristo. (1Cr 3:10; Mt 1:7) Dentre as 18 esposas e 60 concubinas de Roboão, Maacá (chamada Micaia em 2 Crônicas 13:2), neta de Absalão, era a mais amada, e foi favorecida acima das demais por ter sido o seu filho, Abias, escolhido qual sucessor ao trono, embora ele não fosse o primogênito de Roboão. — 2Cr 11:20-22.

Com a ascensão de Abias ao trono, no 18.º ano do Rei Jeroboão I, de Israel, reiniciaram-se as hostilidades entre os reinos setentrional e meridional, seguindo-se guerra. Dispostos em formação de combate contra o exército escolhido de Judá, de 400.000 poderosos homens de guerra, achavam-se os 800.000 guerreiros de Jeroboão. Impávido diante de tal desvantagem, Abias, em um discurso arrebatado, dirigiu-se às massas de Jeroboão, condenando sua idólatra adoração de bezerros, e lembrando-lhes que o pacto de Jeová com Davi era para um reino que jamais findaria. "Conosco está à cabeça o verdadeiro Deus", declarou Abias, por conseguinte, "não luteis contra Jeová, . . . porque não vos mostrareis bem sucedidos". — 2Cr 12:16-13:12.

Na violenta batalha que se seguiu, a emboscada de Jeroboão foi providencialmente frustrada, e meio milhão de seus homens foram destruídos, assim exaurindo o poder militar de Jeroboão. Até mesmo foi capturada a cidade de Betel, onde um dos detestáveis bezerros de ouro, junto com um sacerdócio apóstata, haviam sido instalados. E tudo isso porque Abias se havia 'estribado em Jeová'. (2Cr 13:13-20) Todavia, Abias prosseguiu andando nos pecados de seu pai, Roboão, por permitir os altos, as colunas sagradas e até mesmo que os homens que se prostituíam a serviço dum templo continuassem no país. "Seu coração não se mostrou pleno para com Jeová, seu Deus." (1Rs 14:22-24; 15:3) No curso de sua existência possuiu 14 esposas e teve 38 filhos, e, ao morrer, seu filho Asa o sucedeu no trono. — 2Cr 13:21; 14:1.

6. Filho do Rei Jeroboão I, de Israel, que faleceu na sua juventude em resultado dum julgamento de Jeová. Em vista da apostasia de Jeroboão, sua casa passou a ser afligida por adversidades, inclusive a desesperada doença do jovem Abias. De modo que Jeroboão disfarçou a sua rainha e mandou-a consultar o idoso e cego profeta Aijá, em Silo. Mas, não se pode enganar a Jeová. Jeová declarou por meio do seu profeta Aijá que Ele exterminaria os herdeiros masculinos de Jeroboão, "assim como se varre o esterco até se dar cabo dele". (1Rs 14:10; 15:25-30) Abias, porém, foi o único descendente de Jeroboão que foi sepultado honrosamente, "visto que nele se achou algo de bom para com Jeová". — 1Rs 14:1-18.

7. Esposa do Rei Acaz, de Judá, e mãe do Rei Ezequias. Ela era filha de Zacarias. Em 2 Reis 18:2 o nome dela se encontra abreviado para Abi. — 2Cr 29:1.

8. Um dos cabeças das famílias de sacerdotes nos dias de Zorobabel e de Jesua, após o exílio babilônico. Abias encontra-se alistado entre mais de 20 "cabeças dos sacerdotes e de seus irmãos" que retornaram com Zorobabel a Jerusalém. (Ne 12:1-7) É bem provável que estivesse presente quando se lançou o alicerce do templo no segundo ano, quando se reorganizaram os serviços sacerdotais. (Esd 3:8-10) Uma geração mais tarde, nos dias de Joiaquim e de Neemias, a família sacerdotal de Abias foi representada por Zicri. — Ne 12:12, 17, 26.

9. Sacerdote, ou antepassado de sacerdote, o qual, nos dias de Neemias, participou da selagem do "arranjo fidedigno" ou da resolução para com Jeová. (Ne 9:38-10:8) Caso se trate do mesmo Abias alistado como o N.º 8, conforme alguns sugerem, então ele teria tido mais de 100 anos de idade.

ABIASAFE [(Meu) Pai Ajuntou]. Um dos três filhos de Corá, o levita, e descendente de Coate. (Êx 6:16-24) Seus irmãos eram Elcana e Assir. Pelo visto, ele é chamado de Ebiasafe em 1 Crônicas 6:37, e talvez seja o mencionado em 1 Crônicas 9:19 e 1 Crônicas 6:23.

Parece que os filhos de Corá não se juntaram ao pai na rebelião dele junto com Datã e Abirão, contra Moisés e Arão. Por isso, estes filhos não morreram junto com o pai naquela ocasião. (Núm 26:9-11) Assim, num período posterior, encontramos referências aos "filhos de Corá" nos cabeçalhos de muitos dos Salmos (42, 44-49, 84, 85, 87, 88), embora este termo tenha basicamente o sentido de "os descendentes de Corá", ou de "a casa de Corá".

ABIATAR [Pai de Excelência; Pai de Mais do Que o Suficiente (Superabundância)]. Filho do sumo sacerdote Aimeleque, da tribo de Levi e da linhagem de Eli. (1Sa 14:3; 22:11; 23:6) Viveu durante os reinados de Saul, Davi e Salomão, e durante o reinado de Davi tornou-se sumo sacerdote. Tinha dois filhos, Jonatã e Aimeleque (o mesmo nome do pai de Abiatar). — 2Sa 15:27, 36; 8:17.

Abiatar morava em Nobe, "a cidade dos sacerdotes", a uma curta distância de Jerusalém, quando o Rei Saul mandou que Doegue, o edomita, matasse o pai de Abiatar, o sumo sacerdote, e outros sacerdotes (85 ao todo), por causa do seu suposto apoio a Davi. Doegue também abateu com a espada todos os demais residentes da cidade. Somente Abiatar escapou. Fugiu para Davi, que também era fugitivo, evidentemente em Queila, a vários quilômetros ao SO. Davi, sentindo certa responsabilidade pessoal pela tragédia, disse a Abiatar: "Eu bem sabia, naquele dia, estando lá Doegue, o edomita, que ele ia sem falta contá-lo a Saul. Eu pessoalmente fiz mal a toda alma da casa de teu pai. Fica morando comigo. Não tenhas medo, pois, quem procura a minha alma também procura a tua alma, porque tu és quem necessitas de proteção comigo." — 1Sa 22:12-23; 23:6.

Abiatar viajou então com Davi durante o restante da condição deste como proscrito, e serviu como sacerdote para as forças de Davi. Primeiro Samuel 23:6 mostra que Abiatar tinha trazido consigo um éfode, e, ao passo que os sacerdotes em geral usavam um éfode de linho (1Sa 22:18), os versículos 9-12 do capítulo 23 indicam que este era, evidentemente, o éfode do pai de Abiatar, o sumo sacerdote, contendo o Urim e o Tumim.

Durante os Reinados de Davi e de Salomão. Parece que, quando Davi finalmente obteve o trono, Abiatar foi constituído sumo sacerdote. Alguns peritos sugerem que, depois da morte do sumo sacerdote Aimeleque, o Rei Saul fez empossar Zadoque como sumo sacerdote para substituir Aimeleque, destarte não reconhecendo Abiatar, que estava com Davi, futuro sucessor de Saul. Sustentam que Davi, depois de sua ascensão ao trono, fez de Abiatar sumo sacerdote associado, ao lado de Zadoque. Tal conceito é evidentemente derivado de que Zadoque e Abiatar são regularmente mencionados juntos, como se partilhassem uma alta posição no sacerdócio. (2Sa 15:29, 35; 17:15; 19:11; 20:25; 1Rs 1:7, 8, 25, 26; 4:4; 1Cr 15:11) No entanto, o registro inspirado não menciona em parte alguma qualquer designação de Zadoque como sumo sacerdote sob o Rei Saul. É possível que destacar-se Zadoque se deva a ele ser vidente ou profeta, assim como o profeta Samuel recebeu mais menção no registro divino do que o sumo sacerdote de seu tempo. (2Sa 15:27) A evidência indica que Abiatar era o único sumo sacerdote durante o reinado de Davi, e que Zadoque então ocupava uma posição secundária à dele. — 1Rs 2:27, 35; Mr 2:26.

O texto em 2 Samuel 8:17 tem suscitado algumas indagações neste respeito, porque diz que "Zadoque, filho de Aitube, e Aimeleque, filho de Abiatar, eram sacerdotes" naquele tempo, mas não menciona Abiatar como sumo sacerdote. Alguns sugerem que os nomes de Aimeleque e Abiatar foram transpostos por um erro de escriba, de modo que o texto deveria rezar "Abiatar, filho de Aimeleque", como ocorre na Pesito siríaca. No entanto, o registro de 1 Crônicas (18:16; 24:3, 6, 31) confirma a ordem dos nomes neste versículo, conforme se encontra no texto massorético. Por conseguinte, parece mais provável que Zadoque e Aimeleque sejam mencionados simplesmente como sacerdotes secundários sob o Sumo Sacerdote Abiatar, e que se presumia ser entendida a posição de Abiatar neste caso. — 1Cr 16:37-40; compare isso com Núm 3:32.

Abiatar participou junto com outros sacerdotes do privilégio de levar a arca de Jeová da casa de Obede-Edom para Jerusalém. (2Sa 6:12; 1Cr 15:11, 12) Além de ele ser sumo sacerdote, estava incluído no grupo de conselheiros de Davi. — 1Cr 27:33, 34.

Perto da parte final do reinado de seu pai Davi, Absalão formou uma conspiração contra ele. Abiatar novamente apoiou Davi quando as circunstâncias obrigaram o rei a fugir de Jerusalém. Como parte dum plano de frustrar o conselho do traiçoeiro Aitofel, conselheiro anterior de Davi, Abiatar e Zadoque, como sacerdotes leais, foram enviados de volta a Jerusalém para servirem como oficiais de ligação, a fim de manter Davi informado dos planos do seu filho rebelde. (2Sa 15:24-36; 17:15) Depois da morte de Absalão, Abiatar e Zadoque serviram como intermediários para providenciar a volta de Davi à capital. — 2Sa 19:11-14.

Em vista da sua atuação fiel em suportar muitas dificuldades na companhia de Davi, durante o tempo em que este era fugitivo de Saul, e, novamente, durante a rebelião de Absalão, e considerando-se que gozava da confiança, da amizade e do favor de Davi durante cerca de quatro décadas, é surpreendente verificar que Abiatar se ligou a outro filho de Davi, Adonias, numa conspiração posterior pelo trono. Embora tal trama também tivesse o apoio de Joabe, chefe do exército, ela falhou; Salomão foi designado rei, o sacerdote leal, Zadoque, realizando a unção, segundo as instruções de Davi. (1Rs 1:7, 32-40) Jonatã, filho de Abiatar, que previamente servira como correio de novas para Davi durante a insurreição de Absalão, agora foi avisar Adonias da frustração da trama. O Rei Salomão não tomou medidas imediatas contra Abiatar, mas, quando a evidência indicava que a trama ainda estava latente, ordenou a morte de Adonias e de Joabe, e baniu o sacerdote Abiatar de Jerusalém, dizendo: "Vai para Anatote, para os teus campos! Pois mereces a morte; mas neste dia não te entregarei à morte, porque carregaste a arca do Soberano Senhor Jeová diante de Davi, meu pai, e porque foste atribulado durante todo o tempo que meu pai foi atribulado." (1Rs 2:26) Zadoque foi então designado para substituir Abiatar em sua posição sacerdotal, e, com isto, o cargo de sumo sacerdote passou de novo para a linhagem de Eleazar, filho de Arão; e a linhagem sacerdotal da casa de Eli terminou completamente, em cumprimento da profecia de 1 Samuel 2:31. — 1Rs 2:27; 1Sa 3:12-14.

Ao passo que mais adiante no registro, em 1 Reis 4:4, de novo se refere a "Zadoque e Abiatar" como sacerdotes no reinado de Salomão, é provável que Abiatar seja alistado somente de forma honorífica, ou num sentido histórico. Alguns peritos sugerem que Salomão, depois de remover Abiatar, então o designou para servir como auxiliar de Zadoque, e que, ao passo que um oficiava no monte Sião, onde se mantinha a Arca, o outro servia no tabernáculo, que continuava em Gibeão, antes da construção do templo. (Veja 1Cr 16:37-40.) No entanto, 1 Reis 2:26 mostra que Salomão enviou Abiatar para os seus campos em Anatote, e, embora Anatote não fosse longe de Gibeão, a ordem de Salomão indica que Abiatar estava sendo removido de qualquer participação ativa no sacerdócio.

Em Marcos 2:26, a maioria das traduções apresenta Jesus como dizendo que Davi entrou na casa de Deus e comeu os pães da proposição "no tempo de Abiatar, sumo sacerdote". Visto que Aimeleque, pai de Abiatar, era o sumo sacerdote quando esse evento ocorreu, tal tradução resultaria num erro histórico. É digno de nota que vários manuscritos primitivos omitem a frase acima, e ela não se encontra nos trechos correspondentes em Mateus 12:4 e Lucas 6:4. No entanto, uma estrutura grega similar ocorre em Marcos 12:26 e Lucas 20:37, e aqui, muitas traduções usam a frase "no trecho sobre", "na passagem da". (BJ, NTP) Assim, parece que Marcos 2:26 permite apropriadamente a versão apresentada na Tradução do Novo Mundo, que reza: "Como entrou na casa de Deus, no relato sobre Abiatar, o principal sacerdote." Visto que o relato dos primeiros feitos de Abiatar começa logo depois do registro sobre a entrada de Davi na casa de Deus para comer os pães da proposição, e visto que Abiatar se tornou mais tarde o sumo sacerdote de Israel no reinado de Davi, tal tradução mantém a exatidão histórica do registro.

ABIBE [Espigas Verdes]. O nome original do primeiro mês lunar do calendário sagrado judaico e do sétimo mês do calendário secular. (Êx 13:4; 23:15; 34:18; De 16:1) Corresponde, em geral, a parte de março e parte de abril.

Entende-se que o nome abibe significa "espigas verdes", quando as espigas estão maduras, mas ainda macias. (Veja Le 2:14.) Era durante este mês que se fazia a colheita da cevada, à qual se seguia, algumas semanas mais tarde, a colheita do trigo. Também começavam as chuvas posteriores ou primaveris (hemisfério norte) e estas faziam com que o rio Jordão atingisse sua cheia. (Jos 3:15) Foi designado por Jeová como o mês inicial do ano sagrado, por ocasião do Êxodo do Egito. (Êx 12:1, 2; 13:4) Depois do exílio babilônico, este nome foi substituído pela denominação nisã. — Veja NISÃ.

ABIDA [Pai (Me) Conheceu]. Abida era filho de Midiã e neto de Abraão por sua esposa Quetura. Ele tinha quatro irmãos, chamados Efá, Efer, Anoque e Elda. — Gên 25:1, 2, 4; 1Cr 1:33.

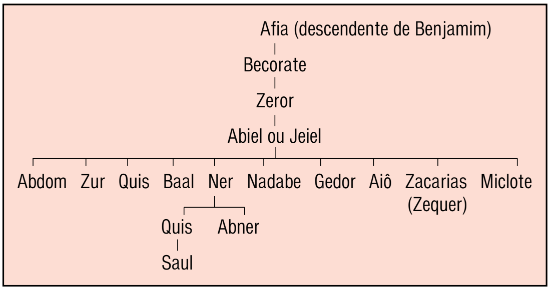
ABIDÃ [(Meu) Pai Julgou]. O maioral da tribo de Benjamim por ocasião do recenseamento de Israel no segundo ano após o Êxodo do Egito. (Núm 1:11, 16) Era chefe dos 35.400 homens de Benjamim de mais de 20 anos de idade, que se acampavam ao O do tabernáculo. — Núm 2:18, 22, 23.

Por ocasião da terminação do tabernáculo e da sua inauguração (1512 AEC), durante 12 dias, cada maioral apresentou uma oferta não competitiva de vasilhas de prata e de ouro no valor de cerca de US$ 1.720, além de ofertas de cereais, óleo, incenso e gado, e Abidã fez isso no nono dia. (Núm 7:10, 60-65) Ele faleceu durante a jornada de 40 anos no ermo. — Núm 14:29, 30.

ABIEL [(Meu) Pai É Deus].

1. Filho de Zeror, e descendente de Becorate e de Afia, da tribo de Benjamim. Uma comparação de 1 Crônicas 8:29-33 e 9:35-39 com 1 Samuel 9:1, 2 e 14:50, 51, fornece uma base para se crer que Abiel também seja chamado de "Jeiel" no relato de Crônicas, visto que se mostra ali que Jeiel é pai de Ner, que se tornou pai de Quis, pai de Saul. Primeiro Samuel 14:50, 51, mostra também que Abiel (ou Jeiel) era o pai de Ner. O registro em Crônicas indica que Jeiel (ou Abiel) teve outros nove filhos, dos quais um se chamava Quis, e este Quis mais velho seria assim o tio do filho de Ner, que tinha o mesmo nome.

Presumindo-se que tanto Abiel como Jeiel sejam nomes da mesma pessoa, chegamos a uma genealogia como a apresentada nesta tabela.



Portanto, ao lermos em 1 Samuel 9:1 que Quis (isto é, o segundo Quis, pai de Saul) era "filho de Abiel", parece que o sentido é que ele era neto de Abiel, conforme muitas vezes se dá na genealogia bíblica, quando simplesmente se omitem um ou mais elos na genealogia. (Assim, ao passo que se menciona "a família dos matritas" em 1 Samuel 10:21 como incluindo Quis e Saul, o nome de Matri não aparece nos relatos que aqui consideramos, nem no restante da Bíblia.)

O registro em 1 Crônicas (8:33; 9:39) parece bastante específico em apresentar Ner como pai imediato do segundo Quis, e este relato é claramente o mais explícito dos dois. — Veja QUIS N.º 2 e 3.

2. Também benjamita. — Veja ABI-ALBOM.

ABIEZER [(Meu) Pai É Ajudador].

1. Um dos "filhos de Gileade", neto de Manassés, primogênito de José. Uma comparação dos relatos de Números 26:28-30 e Josué 17:1, 2, mostra que ele é também chamado Iézer (Jezer, ALA), uma forma abreviada de Abiezer, retirado o prefixo "Ab" (pai).

Abiezer era chefe de família e antepassado do juiz Gideão. (Jz 6:11, 24, 34; 8:2) Parece que, depois da divisão da terra entre as tribos de Israel, a família de Abiezer, quer originalmente, quer posteriormente, estabeleceu-se na região de Ofra, no território de Manassés, ao O do Jordão.

O nome é também usado para representar a casa de Abiezer em sentido coletivo. — Jz 8:2; veja ABIEZRITA.

2. Filho de Hamolequete, que era irmã do neto de Manassés, Gileade. (1Cr 7:18) Alguns comentadores acham que este Abiezer seja o mesmo que o N.º 1.

3. Benjamita de Anatote, um dos 37 combatentes mais valentes do Rei Davi. (2Sa 23:27, 39) Era chefe duma casa paterna e chefe divisional duma força de 24.000 homens, servindo o rei durante o nono mês de cada ano. (1Cr 11:28; 27:1, 12) Junto com outros benjamitas, ele, pela sua valentia na guerra, cumpria a profecia de Gênesis 49:27. Sua cidade de Anatote ficava a poucos quilômetros ao NNE de Jerusalém, no território de Benjamim. — 1Cr 6:60.

ABIEZRITA [De (Pertencente a) Abiezer]. Descendente de Abiezer; da família de Abiezer. (Jz 6:11, 24; 8:32) Números 26:30 reza "iezeritas" ("jezeritas", ALA), que constitui uma contração de abiezritas. Este termo é aplicado na Bíblia aos descendentes de Abiezer, 'filho de Gileade', em vez de ao Abiezer dos tempos de Davi. — Veja ABIEZER N.º 1.

ABIGAIL [(Meu) Pai se Fez Alegre].

1. Uma das esposas de Davi. Originalmente, a esposa do abastado Nabal, de Maom, cidade à beira do ermo de Judá, ao O do Mar Morto. (1Sa 25:2, 3; Jos 15:20, 55) Ela possuía "boa discrição e bela figura", ao passo que seu primeiro marido, cujo nome significa "Insensato; Estúpido", era "duro e mau nas suas práticas".

Depois da morte do profeta Samuel, Davi e seus homens passaram para a região em que pastavam os rebanhos do marido de Abigail. Os homens de Davi, depois disso, eram como que uma "muralha" protetora em torno dos pastores e rebanhos de Nabal, noite e dia. Assim, quando chegou a época da tosquia, Davi enviou alguns moços a Carmelo, para trazer à atenção de Nabal os bons serviços que lhe foram prestados e para solicitar uma oferta de alimento da parte dele. (1Sa 25:4-8, 15, 16) Mas o sovina Nabal berrou invectivas contra eles e insultou Davi, como se ele fosse uma pessoa inconsequente, e como se todos eles fossem possíveis escravos fugitivos. (1Sa 25:9-11, 14) Isto irou tanto a Davi que ele se cingiu da espada e conduziu cerca de 400 homens em direção a Carmelo, para exterminar Nabal e os homens da sua casa. — 1Sa 25:12, 13, 21, 22.

Abigail, informada do incidente através dum servo perturbado, mostrou sua percepção sábia por imediatamente juntar amplo suprimento de alimentos e cereais, e então enviá-los à sua frente, aos cuidados de seus servos, assim como Jacó fizera antes de contatar Esaú. (1Sa 25:14-19; Gên 32:13-20) Sem dizer nada ao marido, cavalgou para encontrar-se com Davi e, num longo e fervoroso apelo, que manifestava sabedoria e lógica, bem como respeito e humildade, convenceu Davi de que as palavras insensatas do seu marido não justificavam o injusto derramamento de sangue, nem a falta de confiança em Jeová, de que Ele próprio resolveria este assunto dum modo correto. (1Sa 25:14-20, 23-31) Davi agradeceu a Deus o bom senso e a pronta ação de tal mulher. — 1Sa 25:32-35; compare isso com Pr 25:21, 22; 15:1, 2.

Voltando para casa, Abigail esperou que seu marido recobrasse a sobriedade, depois duma festa de bebedeira, e então o informou de suas ações. Então, "o coração dele ficou morto dentro dele e ele próprio ficou como pedra", e, depois de dez dias, Jeová o fez expirar. Quando as novas chegaram a Davi, ele enviou uma proposta de casamento a Abigail, que ela não hesitou em aceitar. Partilhou as afeições de Davi com Ainoã, uma jezreelita, a quem Davi tomara previamente como esposa. A primeira esposa de Davi, Mical, já havia sido dada por seu pai, Saul, a outro homem. — 1Sa 25:36-44.

Abigail esteve com Davi em Gate, na extremidade ocidental da Sefelá e, mais tarde, embaixo no NO do Negebe, em Ziclague. Durante a ausência de Davi, um grupo incursor de amalequitas do S incendiou Ziclague e levou todas as mulheres e crianças, inclusive Abigail e Ainoã. Davi, com a garantia de Jeová de que teria êxito, liderou seus homens em persegui-los e, num ataque de surpresa, sobrepujou os amalequitas, recuperando os cativos e os bens. — 1Sa 30:1-19.

De volta a Ziclague, três dias depois, chegaram as notícias da morte de Saul. (2Sa 1:1, 2) Abigail acompanhou então seu marido até Hébron, de Judá, onde Davi foi ungido como rei. Ali ela deu à luz um filho, Quileabe (2Sa 3:3), também chamado Daniel em 1 Crônicas 3:1. As esposas de Davi aumentaram para seis em Hébron, e nem Abigail nem seu filho são mais mencionados no relato. — 2Sa 3:2-5.

2. Uma das duas irmãs de Davi. (1Cr 2:13-17) Alguns peritos creem ter sido ela apenas meia-irmã, aparentada por parte de mãe, mas não por parte de pai. Em 2 Samuel 17:25, Abigail é chamada de "filha de Naás". A tradição rabínica sustenta que Naás é simplesmente outro nome de Jessé, pai de Davi. A Septuaginta grega (edição de Lagarde) reza "Jessé", ao invés de "Naás", neste versículo. Várias traduções modernas também rezam dessa forma. (Veja BJ; BMD.) No entanto, é digno de nota que o registro em 1 Crônicas 2:13-16 não chama Abigail e Zeruia de 'filhas de Jessé', mas, antes, de "irmãs" dos filhos de Jessé, inclusive Davi. Isto permite a possibilidade de que a mãe deles tivesse primeiro casado com um homem chamado Naás, a quem deu à luz Abigail e Zeruia, antes de se tornar esposa de Jessé e mãe de seus filhos. Não se pode, por conseguinte, declarar dogmaticamente que Abigail fosse filha de Jessé. — Veja NAÁS N.º 2.

Abigail, irmã de Davi, é mencionada como dando à luz apenas um filho, Amasa. O marido dela é chamado Itra, o israelita, em 2 Samuel 17:25, mas nos outros lugares é chamado Jeter (1Rs 2:5, 32), e em 1 Crônicas 2:17 é mencionado como "Jeter, o ismaelita". (Veja JETER N.º 6.) É possível que Abigail contraísse matrimônio com Jeter durante o tempo em que Jessé e sua família moravam na terra de Moabe. (1Sa 22:3, 4) Seu filho, Amasa, não recebeu nenhuma atenção evidente durante o reinado de Davi, até a rebelião de Absalão. O primo dele, Absalão, então o fez chefe de suas forças armadas. Todavia, depois da morte de Absalão, o irmão de Abigail, o Rei Davi, teve tratos com o filho dela, Amasa, para obter apoio para sua volta ao trono, e, depois disso, fez de Amasa o chefe do exército, substituindo Joabe. (2Sa 19:11-14) Esta designação logo trouxe a morte para o filho de Abigail, às mãos de seu amargurado primo, Joabe. — 2Sa 20:4-10.

ABIJÃO. Veja ABIAS N.º 5.

ABILENE. Distrito romano, ou tetrarquia, na região das montanhas do Antilíbano, ao norte do monte Hermom. Foi assim chamado segundo sua capital, Abila, cidade situada numa garganta pitoresca à margem do rio Abana (moderno Barada).

Em Lucas 3:1, diz-se-nos que no 15.º ano de Tibério César (28/29 EC) o distrito era regido por Lisânias. Tal fato é confirmado por uma inscrição achada em Abila com relação a uma dedicação de templo que datava do reinado de Tibério. Esta inscrição leva o nome de "Lisânias, o tetrarca". Antes disso, Abilene fazia parte do reino de Herodes, o Grande, mas, após a sua morte, por volta do ano 1 AEC, foi incluído na província da Síria. Josefo registra que a tetrarquia de Lisânias foi anexada à Palestina, em 37 EC, sob Herodes Agripa I, e que, depois disso, foi concedida por Cláudio, em 53 EC, a Herodes Agripa II.

ABIMAEL. Descendente de Sem através de Arpaxade. Seu pai era Joctã, cujo irmão, Pelegue, era antepassado de Abraão. (Gên 10:28; 1Cr 1:17-27) É provável que Abimael e seus 12 irmãos fossem os progenitores de 13 diferentes tribos árabes, que se fixaram na Península Arábica.

ABIMELEQUE [Meu Pai é Rei]. Quer um nome pessoal, quer um título oficial de vários reis filisteus, talvez similar ao título Faraó entre os egípcios, e César entre os romanos.

1. Rei da cidade de Gerar, onde Abraão e Sara residiram temporariamente por volta de 1919 AEC. Pensando que os dois fossem irmão e irmã, o rei tomou Sara para se tornar sua esposa, mas providencialmente, não tocou nela. Advertido por Jeová num sonho, o rei devolveu Sara a Abraão, junto com uma compensação consistindo em gado e escravos, e, além disso, em mil siclos de prata (c. US$ 2.200), como garantia da castidade de Sara. Algum tempo depois, este rei celebrou em Berseba um pacto de paz e de confiança mútua com Abraão. — Gên 20:1-18; 21:22-34.

2. Possivelmente outro rei de Gerar, no tempo em que Isaque foi para lá por causa duma fome. Isto aconteceu depois da morte de Abraão em 1843 AEC. Isaque, igual ao seu pai Abraão, tentou fazer Rebeca passar por sua irmã, mas quando o rei, por acaso, descobriu que ela era a esposa de Isaque, emitiu um decreto público concedendo-lhes proteção. No entanto, a prosperidade de Isaque, dada por Deus, tornou-se motivo de inveja, e o rei pediu assim que Isaque se mudasse dali. Algum tempo mais tarde, este rei de Gerar celebrou um pacto de paz com Isaque, similar ao que seu predecessor havia feito com Abraão. — Gên 26:1-31.

3. Rei filisteu da cidade de Gate, nos dias de Davi. — Sal 34:cab; veja AQUIS.

4. Filho do juiz Gideão, nascido de sua concubina em Siquém. Após a morte de seu pai, Abimeleque, com presunçosa desfaçatez, procurou fazer-se rei. Astuciosamente, apelou para os proprietários de terras de Siquém, por meio da família influente de sua mãe. Ao obter o apoio financeiro deles, contratou alguns facínoras, dirigiu-se à casa de seu pai em Ofra e ali massacrou seus meios-irmãos sobre uma só pedra. Dentre seus 70 meios-irmãos, apenas o caçula, Jotão, escapou da matança.

Abimeleque foi então proclamado rei, mas Jeová permitiu que um espírito mau se desenvolvesse entre os siquemitas e seu novo "rei", a fim de vingar a culpa de sangue de todos os ligados à conspiração. Gaal organizou uma revolta. Abimeleque rapidamente a esmagou, capturou e destruiu a cidade de Siquém, e polvilhou-a com sal. Daí, atacou a cripta da casa ou santuário de El-Berite, e a incendiou, e, na conflagração, cerca de mil de seus anteriores colaboradores, os proprietários de terras, da torre de Siquém, que se haviam refugiado ali, morreram queimados. Imediatamente, Abimeleque deu seqüência a este êxito por atacar Tebes, ao N, apenas para uma mulher, da torre da cidade, lhe lançar uma mó superior na cabeça. O "reinado" de três anos de Abimeleque chegou ao fim quando seu escudeiro, satisfazendo seu último pedido, o traspassou com a espada, de modo que não se pudesse dizer que fora uma mulher que o matara. — Jz 8:30, 31; 9:1-57; 2Sa 11:21.

5. O texto massorético, que a versão Almeida segue, reza "Abimeleque" em 1 Crônicas 18:16. A Septuaginta grega, a Vulgata latina, a Pesito siríaca e 12 manuscritos hebraicos rezam "Aimeleque", que concorda com 2 Samuel 8:17.

ABINADABE [Pai Está Disposto (É Nobre; Generoso)].

1. Habitante da cidade de Quiriate-Jearim, no território de Judá, a uns 14 km a ONO de Jerusalém, no lar de quem se guardou por um tempo a Arca do Pacto.

Quando a Arca sagrada foi trazida de Bete-Semes, depois duma desastrosa estada de sete meses entre os filisteus, ela foi depositada no lar de Abinadabe, e o filho dele, Eleazar, foi santificado para guardá-la. Neste lar, a Arca permaneceu por uns 70 anos, até que Davi providenciou sua transferência para Jerusalém. Durante a transferência, outro filho de Abinadabe, Uzá, caiu morto quando a ira de Jeová se acendeu contra ele por ter tocado a Arca, desconsiderando a ordem em Números 4:15. — 1Sa 6:20-7:1; 2Sa 6:1-7; 1Cr 13:6-10.

2. O segundo filho de Jessé, e um dos três irmãos mais velhos de Davi que foram à guerra com Saul contra os filisteus. — 1Sa 16:8; 17:13.

3. Um dos filhos do Rei Saul, morto pelos filisteus no monte Gilboa. — 1Sa 31:2; 1Cr 9:39.

4. Pai de um dos 12 prepostos, provisores de alimentos, do Rei Salomão. Este comissionado "filho de Abinadabe", também chamado de "Ben-Abinadabe", casou-se com a filha de Salomão, Tafate, e foi encarregado de prover alimentos para a casa de Salomão por um mês no ano, provenientes de todo o serro de Dor. — 1Rs 4:7, 11.

ABINOÃO [Pai É Agradabilidade]. O pai do juiz Baraque, e descendente de Naftali. Evidentemente, ele era habitante da cidade de refúgio de Quedes, no território de Naftali. — Jz 4:6, 12; 5:1, 12.

ABIRÃO [Pai É Elevado (Exaltado)].

1. Rubenita, filho de Eliabe e irmão de Datã e Nemuel. Era chefe de família, e um dos principais homens de Israel na época do Êxodo do Egito. — Núm 26:5-9.

Abirão e seu irmão Datã apoiaram Corá, o levita, em sua rebelião contra a autoridade de Moisés e Arão. Um terceiro rubenita, chamado Om, também é incluído no estágio inicial da rebelião, mas, depois disso, não é mais mencionado. (Núm 16:1) Tendo ajuntado um grupo de 250 maiorais, que eram "homens de fama", estes homens acusaram Moisés e Arão de arbitrariamente se elevarem sobre os demais da congregação. (Núm 16:1-3) Pelas palavras de Moisés a Corá, torna-se evidente que Corá e seus seguidores dentre os levitas ambicionavam o sacerdócio que fora conferido a Arão (Núm 16:4-11); mas isto evidentemente não se dava com Abirão e Datã, que eram rubenitas. Moisés lidou com eles em separado, e sua rejeição da convocação de Moisés para comparecerem perante ele contém acusações dirigidas unicamente contra Moisés, sem se mencionar Arão. Clamaram contra a liderança de Moisés sobre a nação e disseram que ele 'tentava bancar ao máximo o príncipe sobre eles', e que deixara de cumprir a promessa de guiá-los a uma terra que manasse leite e mel. A oração de Moisés a Jeová, em resposta a tais acusações, contém semelhantemente uma defesa de suas próprias ações, e não as de Arão. — Núm 16:12-15.

Disto pareceria que a rebelião tinha dois aspectos, e visava não só o sacerdócio arônico, mas também a posição de Moisés como administrador das instruções de Deus. (Sal 106:16) A situação talvez parecesse oportuna para a organização do sentimento popular em favor duma mudança, visto que pouco antes o povo se havia queixado duramente de Moisés, falara sobre a nomeação de novo cabeça para liderar a nação de volta ao Egito, e até mesmo falara de apedrejar Josué e Calebe por apoiarem Moisés e Arão. (Núm 14:1-10) Rubem era o primogênito de Jacó, mas perdera o direito à herança como tal, devido à ação errada. (1Cr 5:1) Assim, Datã e Abirão talvez expressassem ressentimentos pelo exercício de autoridade sobre eles por parte de Moisés, o levita, por desejarem recuperar o primado perdido de seu antepassado. Números 26:9, porém, mostra que sua luta não era só contra Moisés e Arão, mas também "contra Jeová", que havia divinamente comissionado Moisés e Arão para ocuparem posições de autoridade.

Visto que a família dos coatitas (em que estava incluída a família de Corá) acampava do lado S do tabernáculo, o mesmo lado que os rubenitas, é possível que a tenda de Corá ficasse próxima das de Datã e Abirão. (Núm 2:10; 3:29) Na ocasião em que Deus expressou seu julgamento, Datã e Abirão estavam de pé à entrada de suas tendas, ao passo que Corá e 250 apoiadores rebeldes se encontravam reunidos junto à entrada da tenda de reunião, com seus incensários na mão. Daí, depois da exortação de Moisés, para que os demais do povo se afastassem das proximidades das tendas dos três cabeças da rebelião, Deus manifestou sua condenação do proceder desrespeitoso deles por fazer com que o solo se abrisse sob as tendas de tais homens, tragando Datã e Abirão, e as famílias deles. (Núm 16:16-35; De 11:6; Sal 106:17) A família de Corá, com a exceção de seus filhos, pereceu também. O próprio Corá morreu junto com os 250 rebeldes, destruídos por fogo diante do tabernáculo. (Núm 16:35; 26:10, 11) Assim, a rebelião contra a autoridade divinamente designada teve um rápido fim, e, por causa da participação de Abirão nela, seu nome foi extirpado de Israel.

2. Filho primogênito de Hiel, o betelita. Em Josué 6:26 registra-se o juramento de Josué a respeito da destruída cidade de Jericó, predizendo que aquele que porventura a reconstruísse sofreria a perda de seu filho primogênito. O pai de Abirão, Hiel, desconsiderou este juramento, e, durante o reinado do Rei Acabe (c. 940-920 AEC), uns cinco séculos depois do tempo de Josué, ele lançou os alicerces de Jericó. Abirão, seu filho, morreu, evidentemente de modo prematuro, como historicamente registrado cumprimento da profecia. — 1Rs 16:34.

ABISAGUE. Jovem virgem da cidade de Suném, ao N de Jezreel e do monte Gilboa, no território de Issacar. (Jos 19:17-23) Ela era "extremamente bela", e foi escolhida pelos servos de Davi para se tornar a enfermeira e companheira do rei durante seus últimos dias. — 1Rs 1:1-4.

Davi tinha então cerca de setenta anos (2Sa 5:4, 5), e por estar debilitado, tinha pouco calor corporal. Abisague o servia durante o dia, sem dúvida alegrando o ambiente com seu viço e sua beleza juvenis, e, à noite, ela 'deitava-se ao peito do rei' para aquecê-lo, mas "o próprio rei não teve relações com ela". Todavia, a atitude posteriormente manifestada por Salomão a respeito dela indica que Abisague era considerada como tendo a posição de esposa ou concubina de Davi. Como tal, segundo uma regra no antigo Oriente, ela se tornaria propriedade do herdeiro de Davi, por ocasião da morte dele.

O relato sobre Abisague vem logo antes do relato da tentativa de obtenção da coroa por parte de Adonias, aquele que provavelmente era o filho sobrevivente mais velho de Davi, e parece ter sido colocado ali para esclarecer a ação subsequente de Adonias durante o reinado de Salomão. Após ascender ao trono, Salomão concedera a Adonias um perdão condicional. Depois, Adonias persuadiu a mãe de Salomão, Bate-Seba, a pedir a Salomão que lhe desse Abisague por esposa. Salomão, convicto de que a solicitação de Adonias não era somente devida à beleza de Abisague, mas, antes, indicava um esforço sutil de fortalecer as pretensões de Adonias ao trono, reagiu de forma irada, revogou o perdão concedido a Adonias e ordenou a morte dele. (1Rs 2:13-25) Não se menciona mais Abisague, mas é provável que ela continuasse como uma das esposas ou concubinas de Salomão. — Veja ADONIAS N.º 1.

ABISAI [possivelmente: Pai É (Existe)]. O filho de Zeruia, irmã ou meia-irmã de Davi, e irmão de Joabe e Asael. — 2Sa 2:18; 1Cr 2:15, 16.

Abisai veio a distinguir-se por sua bravura mais do que os 30 poderosos guerreiros sobre os quais servia de chefe, sua reputação até mesmo rivalizando com a dos três homens mais poderosos de Davi, pois certa vez abateu sozinho 300 inimigos, mas "não chegou à categoria dos primeiros três". — 2Sa 23:18, 19.

Abisai apoiava lealmente seu tio Davi em todas as suas campanhas militares, mas tendia a ser impulsivo e implacável, e, em algumas ocasiões, teve de ser restringido. Por exemplo, quando ele e Davi penetraram furtivamente à noite no acampamento militar de Saul, ele teria cravado na terra o adormecido Saul, "o ungido de Jeová", com a própria lança de Saul, se Davi não o tivesse restringido. (1Sa 26:6-9) Quando Absalão se rebelou, Abisai teve de ser duas vezes impedido de executar Simei, que amaldiçoava o rei. No entanto, Davi não conseguiu impedir que Abisai colaborasse na morte de Abner. — 2Sa 3:30; 16:9-11; 19:21-23.

Abisai ficou famoso por tomar a dianteira em abater 18.000 edomitas e, de novo, por liderar o desbaratamento dos amonitas. Ele também cooperou para acabar com a rebelião de Seba, um benjaminita imprestável. Na última batalha registrada de Davi, se não fosse por Abisai, Davi teria perdido a vida às mãos de um filisteu de avantajada estatura. — 1Cr 18:12; 19:11-15; 2Sa 20:1, 6; 21:15-17.

ABISALÃO. Veja ABSALÃO.

ABISMO. Segundo o Greek and English Lexicon to the New Testament (Léxico Grego e Inglês do Novo Testamento; Londres, 1845, p. 2) de Parkhurst, o grego á·bys·sos significa "muito ou extremamente profundo". Segundo o Greek-English Lexicon (Léxico Grego-Inglês, Oxford, 1968, p. 4) de Liddell e Scott, significa "insondável, ilimitado". A Septuaginta grega usa a palavra regularmente para traduzir o hebraico tehóhm (água de profundeza), como em Gênesis 1:2; 7:11.

Á·bys·sos ocorre nove vezes nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, sete das quais no livro de Revelação. É do "abismo" que procedem os gafanhotos simbólicos, sob a chefia de seu rei, Abadon, ou Apolion, "o anjo do abismo". (Re 9:1-3, 11) A "fera", que trava guerra contra as "duas testemunhas" de Deus e as mata, também é mencionada como saindo "do abismo". (Re 11:3, 7) Revelação 20:1-3 descreve o futuro lançamento de Satanás no abismo, por mil anos; algo que uma legião de demônios instou com Jesus que não fizesse com eles numa certa ocasião. — Lu 8:31.

Significância Bíblica. É digno de nota que a Septuaginta grega não usa á·bys·sos para traduzir a palavra hebraica she'óhl, e visto que criaturas espirituais são lançadas nele, não pode corretamente ser limitado no sentido a Seol ou Hades, visto que estas duas palavras claramente se referem à sepultura terrestre comum da humanidade. (Jó 17:13-16; veja HADES; SEOL.) Não se refere ao "lago de fogo", visto que é depois da soltura de Satanás do abismo que ele é então lançado no lago de fogo. (Re 20:1-3, 7-10) A declaração de Paulo em Romanos 10:7, em que ele fala de Cristo estar no abismo, também preclui tal possibilidade, bem como mostra que o abismo não é o mesmo que o Tártaro. — Veja TÁRTARO.

Romanos 10:6, 7, ajuda a esclarecer o significado do "abismo" ao declarar: "Mas a justiça resultante da fé fala da seguinte maneira: 'Não digas no teu coração: "Quem ascenderá ao céu?" isto é, para fazer descer a Cristo; ou: "Quem descerá ao abismo?" isto é, para fazer subir a Cristo dentre os mortos.'" (Veja De 30:11-13.) É evidente que o "abismo" aqui se refere ao lugar em que Cristo Jesus passou parte de três dias e do qual seu Pai o ressuscitou. (Veja Sal 71:19, 20; Mt 12:40.) Revelação 20:7 refere-se ao abismo como "prisão", e o confinamento em restrição absoluta resultante da morte, no caso de Jesus, certamente se harmoniza com isso. — Veja At 2:24; 2Sa 22:5, 6; Jó 38:16, 17; Sal 9:13; 107:18; 116:3.

A respeito do significado básico, "insondável", como característica do "abismo", é interessante observar a declaração da Encyclopædia of Religion and Ethics (Enciclopédia de Religião e Ética, 1913, Vol. I, p. 54) de Hastings, que, ao comentar Romanos 10:6, 7, diz: "A impressão transmitida pela linguagem de S. Paulo é da amplidão de tal domínio, como de um que tentaríamos explorar em vão." Paulo contrasta a inacessibilidade do "céu" e do "abismo" com a acessibilidade da justiça pela fé. O uso da palavra relacionada, bá·thos, feito por Paulo em Romanos 11:33, ilustra isto: "Ó profundidade [bá·thos] das riquezas, e da sabedoria, e do conhecimento de Deus! Quão inescrutáveis são os seus julgamentos e além de pesquisa são os seus caminhos!" (Veja também 1Co 2:10; Ef 3:18, 19.) Assim, em harmonia com Romanos 10:6, 7, o lugar representado pelo "abismo" evidentemente também subentende estar 'fora do alcance' de todos, exceto de Deus ou do seu anjo designado, que tem a "chave do abismo". (Re 20:1) Um dos significados atribuídos à palavra á·bys·sos no Greek-English Lexicon (p. 4) de Liddell e Scott é "o vazio infinito".

A forma plural da palavra hebraica metsoh·láh (ou metsu·láh) é traduzida "grande abismo" no Salmo 88:6, e significa literalmente "abismos" ou "profundezas". (Veja Za 10:11.) Relaciona-se com tsu·láh, que significa "água de profundeza". — Is 44:27.

ABISUA [possivelmente: Pai É Ajuda].

1. Benjamita da família de Bela. (1Cr 8:1-4) Embora ele pareça ter sido filho de Bela, a diferença entre os relatos de Números 26:40, 1 Crônicas 7:7 e 1 Crônicas 8:1-4 induz alguns a crer que a palavra "filhos" possa antes significar "descendentes".

2. Filho de Fineias e bisneto de Arão. Era o pai de Buqui. (1Cr 6:4, 5, 50, 51) Esdras 7:1-5 mostra ter sido ele um dos antepassados de Esdras. Josefo (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], V, 361, 362 [xi, 5]; VIII, 12 [i, 3]) refere-se a Abisua (chamado Abiezer no Livro V) como o sumo sacerdote, o que, se esta hipótese for aceita, faria dele o quarto sumo sacerdote de Israel. Isto se harmonizaria com a promessa de Jeová feita ao pai de Abisua, Fineias, de que o sacerdócio continuaria na sua família. — Núm 25:11-13.

ABISUR (Pai É Muro [Protetor]). Descendente de Judá por meio da linhagem de Esrom, da casa de Jerameel. Evidentemente, era o segundo filho de Samai e tornou-se pai de dois filhos por meio de sua esposa Abiail. — 1Cr 2:28, 29.

ABITAL [Pai É Orvalho]. Uma das seis esposas por meio das quais Davi teve filhos durante os sete anos e meio que reinou em Hébron (1077-1070 AEC). O filho dela chamava-se Sefatias. — 2Sa 3:4; 1Cr 3:3.

ABITUBE [Pai É Bondade]. Benjamita, evidentemente filho de Saraim por meio de sua esposa Husim. — 1Cr 8:8, 11.

ABIÚ [Ele É Pai]. Um dos quatro filhos de Arão por meio de sua esposa Eliseba; o irmão de Nadabe, Eleazar e Itamar. (Êx 6:23; 1Cr 6:3; 24:1) Nascido no Egito, Abiú, como o segundo filho de Arão, era um homem já maduro na época do Êxodo, seu pai tendo então 83 anos. — Núm 33:39.

Como filhos mais velhos, Nadabe e Abiú tiveram permissão, da parte de Jeová, de subir junto com seu pai e 70 dos anciãos de Israel até certo ponto do monte Sinai e de ali ter, à distância, uma visão magnífica da glória de Deus. (Êx 24:1, 9-11) Jeová honrou os filhos de Arão, designando-os a servir como sacerdotes junto com seu pai, o sumo sacerdote, e ordenando que dentre eles deveria sair o posterior sucessor de Arão. Eles trajariam vestes e coberturas para a cabeça, sacerdotais, "para glória e beleza". Moisés devia "ungi-los e encher-lhes as mãos de poder, e . . . santificá-los" para seu serviço a Deus. (Êx 28:1, 40-43) O sacerdócio seria deles "como estatuto por tempo indefinido". — Êx 29:8, 9.

Depois disso, foram continuamente incluídos nas instruções de Deus a respeito do sacerdócio e de suas funções. (Êx 29:10-46; 30:26-38) Também, Deus inculcou de modo enfático a eles, bem como à inteira nação, a importância vital de se respeitar a santidade das coisas relacionadas com a Sua adoração, inclusive o altar do incenso e acessórios. A vida deles dependia de respeitarem os regulamentos divinos.

Então, um ano depois do começo do Êxodo, veio o tempo para se estabelecer o tabernáculo e para a investidura do sacerdócio (1512 AEC). A nação inteira se reuniu diante da entrada da tenda de reunião para as cerimônias de investidura, e viu Arão, e Abiú e seus irmãos, serem lavados e obterem o turbante, recebendo a unção como sacerdotes de Deus, a fim de representar a nação perante Ele. Depois disso, os sacerdotes recém-investidos permaneceram à entrada da tenda de reunião durante sete dias para completar sua investidura, e, como Moisés disse, " 'para vos encher a mão de poder'. . . . E Arão e seus filhos passaram a fazer todas as coisas que Jeová ordenara por meio de Moisés". — Le 8:1-3, 13-36.

No oitavo dia, Arão começou a oficiar, tendo a Abiú e seus irmãos como auxiliares. (Le 9:1-24) Eles testemunharam a gloriosa manifestação da presença de Deus. Mas, evidentemente antes de terminar esse dia, o relato diz que 'Nadabe e Abiú apanharam e trouxeram cada um o seu porta-lume, e puseram fogo neles e colocaram incenso sobre ele, e começaram a oferecer fogo ilegítimo perante Jeová, que ele não lhes tinha prescrito. Saiu então fogo de diante de Jeová e os consumiu, de modo que morreram perante Jeová'. (Le 10:1, 2) Seus cadáveres foram levados para fora do acampamento pelos primos de Arão, conforme a instrução de Moisés. Seu pai e seus irmãos restantes foram instruídos por Deus a se absterem de demonstrar qualquer pesar por eles terem sido assim decepados da congregação. — Le 10:4-7.

Imediatamente depois disso, Deus forneceu a Arão um aviso contra o uso de bebidas alcoólicas inebriantes por parte dele ou de seus filhos nas ocasiões em que servissem no tabernáculo, "para que não morrais". Comentando o versículo 9, The Pentateuch and Haftorahs (O Pentateuco e as Haftorás) diz: "Os Rabinos estabeleciam um elo entre o incidente de Nadabe e Abiú e esta injunção contra as bebidas alcoólicas inebriantes antes de oficiarem no Santuário." (Editado por J. H. Hertz, Londres, 1972, p. 446) Portanto, a questão da bebedice poderá ter estado envolvida em seu grave pecado, mas a causa real da morte deles foi a violação do requisito de Deus para a adoração pura, por oferecerem 'fogo ilegítimo, que ele não lhes tinha prescrito'.

Abiú usufruiu grandes honras por parte de Deus e notável destaque perante toda a nação por um pouco de tempo; mas, quer por ambição, quer por um exaltado ego, ou devido a uma atitude frívola para com as instruções de Deus, seus privilégios foram de curta duração, e ele morreu sem ter filhos. — Núm 3:2-4; 26:60, 61; 1Cr 24:1, 2.

ABIÚDE [possivelmente: Pai É Dignidade].

1. Descendente de Benjamim por meio do seu primogênito, Bela. — 1Cr 8:1-3.

2. Descendente de Zorobabel e antepassado de Cristo Jesus. (Mt 1:13) O termo "pai", conforme usado por Mateus, pode ter o sentido de "antepassado". Alguns peritos sugerem que ele talvez seja o "Jodá" de Lucas 3:26. Entretanto, não há necessidade de relacionar estas pessoas como sendo a mesma pessoa, visto que as genealogias fornecidas por Mateus e por Lucas são apenas paralelas, não idênticas, ao passo que as de Primeiro Crônicas são mais abrangentes. O filho de Abiúde, Eliaquim, também está incluído como antepassado do Messias. — Mt 1:13.

ABNER [Pai É Uma Lâmpada]. Filho de Ner, da tribo de Benjamim. Primeiro Samuel 14:50, 51, evidentemente, refere-se a Abner como o "tio de Saul", embora esta frase no hebraico possa ser aplicada quer a Abner quer a Ner, seu pai. Josefo fala de Abner como sendo primo de Saul, e dos pais deles, Ner e Quis, como sendo irmãos. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], VI, 129, 130 [vi, 6]) No entanto, a história inspirada em 1 Crônicas 8:33 e 1 Crônicas 9:39 parece favorecer grandemente Quis como filho de Ner, e, por isso, irmão de Abner. Isto tornaria Abner o tio de Saul. — Veja também a tabela sob ABIEL N.º 1.

Abner serviu como chefe do exército de Saul, e sua força combatente às vezes assumia grandes proporções, com mais de 200.000 homens. (1Sa 15:4) Em ocasiões especiais, sentava-se ao lado do rei à mesa de banquetes. (1Sa 20:25) Embora, sem dúvida, Abner fosse homem poderoso e valente, foi censurado por Davi, quando este último era fugitivo no ermo de Zife, por ter falhado em proteger devidamente a pessoa de Saul como seu senhor e como "o ungido de Jeová". — 1Sa 26:14-16.

Depois da morte de Saul na esmagadora derrota imposta pelos filisteus, Abner retirou-se, cruzando o Jordão, para Maanaim, em Gileade, levando consigo Is-Bosete, filho de Saul. Embora Davi tivesse sido proclamado rei em Hébron, pela tribo de Judá, Abner estabeleceu Is-Bosete como rei rival em Maanaim. Abner era, claramente, o poder por trás do trono, e, com o tempo, obteve o apoio de todas as tribos a favor de Is-Bosete, exceto o de Judá. — 2Sa 2:8-10.

Finalmente, os exércitos dos dois reis oponentes se defrontaram numa prova de força junto ao reservatório de Gibeão, no território de Benjamim, a cerca de um terço da distância entre Hébron e Maanaim. Depois de os dois exércitos se avaliarem mutuamente, Abner propôs um combate entre doze jovens guerreiros de cada lado. Os lados se igualavam tanto, que resultou numa matança mútua, provocando um combate em plena escala entre os dois exércitos. As forças de Abner perderam 18 homens para cada baixa entre os soldados de Joabe, e recuaram em direção ao ermo. — 2Sa 2:12-17, 30, 31.

Abner, perseguido por Asael, o ligeiro irmão de Joabe, instou com ele, repetidas vezes, para que voltasse sua atenção para outra parte, e evitasse um encontro mortífero com ele. Quando Asael persistiu em recusar a fazê-lo, Abner finalmente deu poderoso golpe para trás e matou Asael com o conto da sua lança, atravessando-lhe o abdome. (2Sa 2:18-23) Diante do apelo de Abner, Joabe finalmente mandou parar a perseguição, ao pôr do sol, e ambos os exércitos iniciaram sua retirada para as suas respectivas capitais. Pode-se ver seu vigor nos 80 km ou mais que as forças de Abner marcharam, descendo à bacia do Jordão, vadeando o rio, então subindo o vale do Jordão até as colinas de Gileade, onde se puseram a caminho de Maanaim. Depois de sepultarem Asael em Belém (talvez no dia seguinte), os homens de Joabe fizeram uma caminhada de mais de 22 km, por toda a noite, através das montanhas, até Hébron. — 2Sa 2:29-32.

Abner apoiou o regime declinante de Is-Bosete, mas também fortaleceu sua própria posição, talvez de olho na realeza, visto que, afinal de contas, era irmão do pai de Saul. Quando repreendido por Is-Bosete, por ter tido relações sexuais com uma das concubinas de Saul (ato somente permitido ao herdeiro do falecido rei), Abner iradamente anunciou que se bandeava para o lado de Davi. (2Sa 3:6-11) Ele fez propostas de paz a Davi, destacando sua própria posição como virtual regente do restante de Israel, exceto Judá. Satisfazendo a exigência de Davi, de devolver-lhe sua esposa Mical, Abner dirigiu-se então em particular aos chefes das onze tribos apartadas de Judá, para consolidar o favor deles para com Davi, o rei designado por Jeová. (2Sa 3:12-19) Depois disso, foi cordialmente recebido por Davi em sua capital, Hébron, e, nesse mesmo dia, empreendeu persuadir todas as tribos a fazerem um pacto com Davi. Mas Joabe, ausente numa incursão, voltou, e, depois de denunciar Abner como espião conspirante, o chamou pessoalmente de volta e engodou Abner a uma situação em que pôde matá-lo. — 2Sa 3:20-27.

Com a morte de Abner, qualquer esperado apoio a Is-Bosete ruiu por terra e Is-Bosete logo foi assassinado por traidores. Com isto, chegou ao fim completo a regência da casa de Saul. — 2Sa 4:1-3, 5-12.

Muitos anos depois, quando se aproximava o tempo de sua própria morte, Davi lembrou-se da morte de Abner (bem como da de Amasa) e incumbiu Salomão da responsabilidade de remover a mancha da culpa de sangue que Joabe trouxera sobre a casa de Davi. (1Rs 2:1, 5, 6) Pouco depois, Joabe, matador de Abner, foi executado por ordens de Salomão. — 1Rs 2:31-34.

Apenas se alista um filho de Abner, Jaasiel, que era um líder na tribo de Benjamim durante o reinado de Davi. (1Cr 27:21) Primeiro Crônicas 26:28 também menciona as contribuições de Abner para o tabernáculo, dentre os despojos obtidos como chefe do exército.

ABOMINAÇÃO DA DESOLAÇÃO. Veja REPUGNANTE, COISA.

ABOMINÁVEL, COISA. A palavra hebraica nid·dáh ocorre 30 vezes nas Escrituras Hebraicas e possivelmente deriva do radical na·dháh, que significa "excluir; tirar da mente (negar-se a pensar em)". (Is 66:5; Am 6:3) Nid·dáh indica impureza, uma coisa abominável, quer em sentido físico, como, por exemplo, por causa da menstruação (Le 12:2, 5; 15:20, 24, 25, 33), quer em sentido moral, como devido à idolatria. (Esd 9:11; 2Cr 29:5) A mesma palavra hebraica é usada com respeito à "água da purificação" (Núm 19:9-21; 31:23, NM; "água usada em caso de menstruação", Núm 19:9, NM, n.; "água da separação", Al; "água purificadora", ALA; "água lustral", BJ), indicando água usada para eliminar aquilo que é impuro ou sujo.

Assim, em Lamentações 1:17 Jeremias diz que Jerusalém, na sua desolação, "tornou-se algo abominável ["como uma mulher manchada com as purgações mênstruas", So; "objeto de abominação", MC; "uma imundícia", PIB] entre eles [isto é, entre as nações circunvizinhas]".

Antes da destruição de Jerusalém por Babilônia, Jeová disse a respeito do povo de Israel, por meio do seu profeta Ezequiel: "A casa de Israel estava morando sobre o seu solo, e eles continuavam a fazê-lo impuro com o seu procedimento e com as suas ações. Seu procedimento tornou-se diante de mim como a impureza da menstruação [nid·dáh]." (Ez 36:17) Devido a práticas idólatras, Israel estava espiritualmente impuro e assim seria evitado pelo seu dono marital, Jeová Deus, e só seria reunido espiritualmente com ele após uma purificação. Neste respeito, Jeová diz no versículo 25: "E vou aspergir-vos com água limpa e vós vos tornareis limpos; purificar-vos-ei de todas as vossas impurezas e de todos os vossos ídolos sórdidos." — Veja Ez 18:6.

Em Ezequiel 7:19, 20, Deus expressa sua ira contra Israel por este ter feito imagens religiosas com sua prata e seu ouro, e diz que, portanto, ele fará com que lancem sua prata e seu ouro nas ruas como "uma coisa abominável [nid·dáh]". — Compare isso com Is 30:22; veja REPUGNANTE, COISA.

Abominação. Outras expressões hebraicas com o sentido de "abominação" são quts, referindo-se à reação emocional e definida como "abominar; sentir pavor mórbido de" (Gên 27:46; 1Rs 11:25; Núm 22:3), e ga·ʽál, que também significa "abominar", mas indica uma rejeição do objeto abominado. (Le 26:11, 15, 30; 2Sa 1:21 n.) Na Septuaginta grega, estas palavras hebraicas são às vezes traduzidas pro·so·khthí·zo, significando "aborrecer-se" (Gên 27:46; Le 26:15; veja He 3:10), e bde·lýs·so·mai, que transmite a ideia de "expressar abominação de; ter repugnância a". — Le 20:23; 26:11; veja Ro 2:22.

Visto que os cananeus eram culpados de imoralidade e perversão sexual, idolatria e práticas espíritas, o Altíssimo os abominava, e isto resultou em ele decretar a sua destruição. (Le 20:2-23) Os israelitas foram advertidos de que, se se tornassem desobedientes, Jeová também os abominaria, retirando deles sua proteção e bênção. Por motivo de lealdade ao seu pacto com Israel, porém, ele não os abominaria a ponto de exterminá-los completamente. (Le 26:11-45) No caso daqueles que se mostrarem iníquos, a ressurreição revelará ser uma de "abominação" (hebr.: de·ra·'óhn) eterna. Será a ressurreição para um julgamento condenatório, resultando num decepamento eterno. — Da 12:2; Jo 5:28, 29.

A rejeição deliberada das ordens, da repreensão e das provisões de Jeová constitui uma abominação imprópria. Os israelitas eram culpados disso, quando se recusaram a seguir as ordens de Jeová, bem como quando passaram a abominar o maná como "pão desprezível". (Núm 21:5; Le 26:15) Provérbios 3:11 aconselha contra 'abominar a repreensão de Jeová'.

Em Romanos 12:9, os cristãos são admoestados: "Abominai o que é iníquo." O termo grego traduzido aqui por "abominar" (a·po·sty·gé·o) é a forma intensiva do verbo grego que significa "odiar", e assim significa literalmente "odiar intensamente". Deixar alguém de abominar o que é iníquo, não mais tendo repugnância dele, pode resultar em ele se tornar objeto da abominação de Jeová.

ABORTO. A expulsão dum embrião ou dum feto antes de poder viver sozinho. No uso comum da palavra, costuma-se fazer a distinção entre o abortamento induzido e o abortamento espontâneo, sendo o primeiro definido como esvaziamento deliberado e induzido dum útero em estado de gravidez, e o segundo sendo considerado a interrupção acidental e inevitável da gravidez. A Bíblia não faz esta distinção entre o abortamento induzido e o espontâneo; ali, os termos são usados num sentido mais amplo e intercambiável. A palavra hebraica sha·khál, significando 'sofrer aborto' (Êx 23:26), é também vertida por 'privar [de algo]' (De 32:25), 'privar de filhos' (Le 26:22), 'sofrer aborto' (Os 9:14), e 'mostrar-se infrutífero' (Mal 3:11). A palavra hebraica yoh·tsé'th', vertida por "aborto" no Salmo 144:14, deriva duma raiz que significa "sair". (Compare isso com Gên 27:30.) As expressões "aborto" e "o nascido prematuramente" (Sal 58:8; Ec 6:3) vertem a palavra hebraica né·fel, que deriva da raiz na·fál, significando "cair [nascendo]". — Compare isso com Is 26:18.

O aborto inevitável ou espontâneo pode ser causado por acidente, doença infecciosa, estresse e tensão mental ou física, ou por uma fraqueza orgânica geral por parte da mãe. As águas perto de Jericó eram mortíferas, causando abortos, até que o profeta de Jeová, Eliseu, as curou. — 2Rs 2:19-22.

Provocar deliberadamente o aborto por meios artificiais, pelo uso de drogas ou por intervenção médica, com o objetivo exclusivo de evitar o nascimento dum filho não desejado, é um grave delito à vista de Deus. A vida, como preciosa dádiva de Deus, é sagrada. Por isso, a lei de Deus dada a Moisés protegia a vida dum bebê ainda por nascer contra mais do que apenas um aborto criminoso, pois, se numa luta entre homens uma mulher grávida sofresse um acidente fatal para ela ou o filho, "então terás de dar alma por alma". (Êx 21:22-25) Naturalmente, antes de aplicar essa penalidade, os juízes tomavam em consideração as circunstâncias e o grau de premeditação. (Veja Núm 35:22-24, 31.) Mas, dando ênfase à seriedade de qualquer tentativa deliberada de causar dano, o Dr. J. Glenn comenta: "O embrião capaz de viver, no útero, É uma pessoa humana, e, por conseguinte, destruí-lo é violação do sexto mandamento." — The Bible and Modern Medicine (A Bíblia e a Medicina Moderna), 1963, p. 176.

Encarado corretamente, o fruto do ventre é uma bênção da parte de Jeová. (Le 26:9; Sal 127:3) Portanto, quando Deus prometeu prosperar Israel, ele assegurou a culminação bem-sucedida da gravidez e a geração de filhos, dizendo: "Não existirá na tua terra nenhuma mulher que sofra aborto, nem mulher estéril." (Êx 23:26) Conforme indicado na oração dos justos, por outro lado, o desfavor de Deus para com os seus inimigos se evidenciaria em ventres que abortariam e em eles se tornarem como abortados que nunca veem o sol. — Sal 58:8; Os 9:14.

Jó, no seu estado lastimável, cogitou que teria sido melhor ele ter sido "um aborto encoberto". "Por que não passei a morrer desde a madre?" exclamou este homem atormentado. (Jó 3:11-16) Também Salomão raciocinava que um feto prematuramente expulso está em melhor situação do que alguém que vive por longo tempo, mas que nunca chega a usufruir a vida. — Ec 6:3.

O aborto contagioso, uma doença caracterizada por um nascimento prematuro, pode ocorrer entre os animais, tais como o gado bovino, as éguas, as ovelhas e as cabras. O aborto acidental devido a descuido ou doença de animais domésticos também já se conhece desde os dias dos patriarcas Jacó e Jó. — Gên 31:38; Jó 21:10.

ABRAÃO [Pai Duma Multidão]. O nome dado por Jeová a Abrão (que significa "Pai É Enaltecido (Exaltado)") quando este tinha 99 anos, e quando Ele reafirmou Sua promessa de que a descendência de Abraão seria numerosa. — Gên 17:5.

Origem Familiar e História Inicial. Abraão era a décima geração de Noé mediante Sem, e nasceu 352 anos após o Dilúvio, em 2018 AEC. Embora seja alistado primeiro entre os três filhos de Tera, em Gênesis 11:26, Abraão não era o primogênito. As Escrituras mostram que Tera tinha 70 anos quando nasceu seu primeiro filho, e que Abraão nasceu 60 anos depois, quando seu pai, Tera, tinha 130 anos. (Gên 11:32; 12:4) Evidentemente, Abraão é alistado primeiro entre os filhos de seu pai devido à sua notável fidelidade e proeminência nas Escrituras, prática seguida no caso de vários outros notáveis homens de fé, tais como Sem e Isaque. — Gên 5:32; 11:10; 1Cr 1:28.

Abraão era natural da cidade caldeia de Ur, próspera metrópole situada na terra de Sinear, perto da atual confluência dos rios Eufrates e Tigre. Estava situada a cerca de 240 km a SE da outrora cidade real de Ninrode, Babel ou Babilônia, tão notória por sua inacabada Torre de Babel.

No tempo de Abraão, a cidade de Ur estava mergulhada na idolatria babilônica e na adoração de seu deus-lua padroeiro, Sin. (Jos 24:2, 14, 15) Todavia, Abraão mostrou ser homem de fé em Jeová Deus, assim como seus antepassados, Sem e Noé; e, em consequência, granjeou a reputação de "pai de todos os que têm fé enquanto na incircuncisão". (Ro 4:11) Visto que a verdadeira fé se baseia em conhecimento exato, Abraão talvez obtivesse seu entendimento pela associação pessoal com Sem (suas vidas coincidiram durante 150 anos). Abraão conhecia e usava o nome de Jeová; para citá-lo: "Jeová, o Deus Altíssimo, Produtor do céu e da terra", "Jeová, o Deus dos céus e o Deus da terra". — Gên 14:22; 24:3.

Enquanto Abraão ainda vivia em Ur, "antes de fixar residência em Harã", Jeová ordenou que se mudasse para uma terra estranha, deixando para trás amigos e parentes. (At 7:2-4; Gên 15:7; Ne 9:7) Lá naquele país que Ele mostraria a Abraão, Deus disse que faria dele uma grande nação. Nessa época, Abraão era casado com sua meia-irmã, Sara, mas não tinham filhos e ambos já eram idosos. Assim, era preciso grande fé para obedecer, mas ele deveras obedeceu.

Tera, então com cerca de 200 anos e ainda o chefe patriarcal da família, concordou em acompanhar Abraão e Sara nesta longa jornada, e é por este motivo que se atribui a Tera, como pai, a mudança em direção a Canaã. (Gên 11:31) Parece que o órfão Ló, sobrinho de Abraão, fora adotado por seu tio e sua tia sem filhos, e, assim acompanhou-os. A caravana se moveu em direção ao noroeste, por uns 960 km, até alcançarem Harã, importante junção das rotas comerciais E-O. Harã se encontra onde dois uádis se juntam para formar um ribeirão que no inverno alcança o rio Balique, a uns 110 km acima do ponto em que o Balique desemboca no rio Eufrates. Abraão permaneceu ali até a morte de seu pai, Tera. — MAPA, Vol. 1, p. 330.

Peregrinação em Canaã. Tendo então 75 anos, Abraão passou a mudar sua família de Harã para a terra de Canaã, onde viveu os restantes cem anos de sua vida, em tendas, como residente temporário e migrante. (Gên 12:4) Foi depois da morte de seu pai Tera que Abraão saiu de Harã, em 1943 AEC, e atravessou o rio Eufrates, evidentemente no dia 14 do mês que mais tarde veio a ser conhecido como nisã. (Gên 11:32; Êx 12:40-43, LXX) Foi nessa época que entrou em vigor o pacto entre Jeová e Abraão, e começou o período de 430 anos de residência temporária, até se começar a celebrar o pacto da Lei, com Israel. — Êx 12:40-42; Gál 3:17.

Evidentemente, Abraão, com seus rebanhos e suas manadas, passou por Damasco e prosseguiu até chegar a Siquém (situada a 48 km ao N de Jerusalém), perto das grandes árvores de Moré. (Gên 12:6) Aqui Jeová apareceu de novo a Abraão, confirmando e ampliando Sua promessa pactuada por declarar: "Vou dar esta terra à tua descendência." (Gên 12:7) Abraão não só construiu um altar para Jeová aqui, mas, ao ir para o sul, atravessando o país, construiu outros altares pelo caminho; e invocava o nome de Jeová. (Gên 12:8, 9) Com o tempo, uma severa fome obrigou Abraão a mudar-se temporariamente para o Egito, e, a fim de proteger sua vida, apresentou Sara como sua irmã. Isto resultou em Faraó levar a bela Sara para sua casa, para ser sua esposa, mas, antes que pudesse violá-la, Jeová fez com que Faraó a devolvesse. Abraão voltou então para Canaã, para o lugar do acampamento entre Betel e Ai, e de novo invocou "o nome de Jeová". — Gên 12:10-13:4.

Tornou-se então necessário, devido ao tamanho crescente de seus rebanhos e de suas manadas, que Abraão e Ló se separassem. Ló escolheu a bacia do baixo Jordão, região bem regada, "semelhante ao jardim de Jeová", e mais tarde montou seu acampamento perto de Sodoma. (Gên 13:5-13) Abraão, de sua parte, depois de lhe ser dito que percorresse o país em toda a sua extensão, passou a morar entre as grandes árvores de Manre, em Hébron, cerca de 30 km ao SSO de Jerusalém. — Gên 13:14-18.

Quando quatro reis aliados, chefiados pelo rei elamita Quedorlaomer, tiveram êxito em esmagar uma revolta de cinco reis cananeus, Sodoma e Gomorra foram saqueadas, e Ló foi levado cativo, junto com todos os seus bens. Abraão, ao saber disso, rapidamente juntou 318 de seus servos domésticos treinados. Junto com os seus confederados, Aner, Escol e Manre, fez uma marcha forçada em intensa perseguição deles por talvez tantos quantos 300 km em direção ao norte, para além de Damasco, e, com a ajuda de Jeová, derrotou uma força muito superior. Ló foi assim liberto e recuperaram-se os bens roubados. (Gên 14:1-16, 23, 24) Enquanto Abraão voltava dessa grande vitória, um "sacerdote do Deus Altíssimo", Melquisedeque, que também era o rei de Salém, saiu e o abençoou, e Abraão, por sua vez, "deu-lhe um décimo de tudo". — Gên 14:17-20.

Surge a Prometida Semente (ou Descendente). Visto que Sara continuava estéril, parecia que Eliézer, o fiel mordomo doméstico, de Damasco, receberia a herança de Abraão. Todavia, Jeová de novo assegurou a Abraão que sua própria prole seria inumerável, como as estrelas do céu, e, assim, Abraão "depositou fé em Jeová; e este passou a imputar-lhe isso como justiça", muito embora isto ocorresse anos antes de ele ser circuncidado. (Gên 15:1-6; Ro 4:9, 10) Jeová concluiu então com Abraão um pacto formal, à base de sacrifícios animais, e, ao mesmo tempo, revelou que a descendência de Abraão seria afligida por um período de 400 anos, sendo até mesmo levada cativa em escravidão. — Gên 15:7-21; veja PACTO.

O tempo passou. Já estavam então em Canaã por cerca de dez anos, todavia, Sara continuava estéril. Por conseguinte, ela propôs ser substituída por sua serva egípcia, Agar, para que obtivesse um filho por meio dela. Abraão consentiu. E assim, em 1932 AEC, quando Abraão tinha 86 anos, nasceu Ismael. (Gên 16:3, 15, 16) Passou-se mais tempo. Em 1919 AEC, quando Abraão tinha 99 anos, como sinal ou selo para atestar a relação especial, pactuada, existente entre ele próprio e Abraão, Jeová ordenou que todos os varões da casa de Abraão fossem circuncidados. Ao mesmo tempo, Jeová mudou o nome de Abrão para Abraão, "porque vou fazer-te pai duma multidão de nações". (Gên 17:5, 9-27; Ro 4:11) Logo depois, três anjos materializados, a quem Abraão recebeu hospitaleiramente em nome de Jeová, prometeram que a própria Sara conceberia e daria à luz um filho, sim, no ano seguinte! — Gên 18:1-15.

E que ano momentoso mostrou ser este! Sodoma e Gomorra foram destruídas. O sobrinho de Abraão e as duas filhas dele mal conseguiram escapar. Abraão, junto com sua esposa Sara, se mudou para Gerar, resultando em que o rei daquela cidade filisteia tomasse Sara para seu harém. Jeová interveio; Sara foi liberta; e, no tempo designado, 1918 AEC, nasceu Isaque, o herdeiro há muito prometido, quando Abraão tinha 100 anos, e Sara tinha 90. (Gên 18:16-21:7) Cinco anos depois, quando Ismael, de 19 anos, meio-irmão de Isaque, zombou deste, Abraão viu-se obrigado a despedir Ismael e sua mãe, Agar. Foi então, em 1913 AEC, que começaram os 400 anos de aflição para a descendência de Abraão. — Gên 21:8-21; 15:13; Gál 4:29.

A suprema prova da fé de Abraão veio cerca de 20 anos depois. Segundo a tradição judaica, Isaque tinha então 25 anos. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], de F. Josefo, I, 227 [xiii, 2]) Em obediência às instruções de Jeová, Abraão tomou Isaque e viajou para o N, de Berseba, no Negebe, até o monte Moriá, situado diretamente ao N de Salém. Ali construiu um altar e preparou-se para oferecer Isaque, a semente prometida, como sacrifício queimado. E deveras Abraão “a bem dizer ofereceu Isaque”, pois “achava que Deus era capaz de levantá-lo até mesmo dentre os mortos”. Só no último instante é que Jeová interveio e proveu um carneiro como substituto de Isaque no altar sacrificial. Por conseguinte, foi esta fé implícita, apoiada pela completa obediência, que moveu Jeová a reforçar seu pacto com Abraão mediante um voto juramentado, uma garantia legal, especial. — Gên 22:1-18; He 6:13-18; 11:17-19.

Quando Sara morreu em Hébron, em 1881 AEC, com 127 anos, foi necessário que Abraão comprasse um lugar de sepultamento, pois ele era deveras apenas um residente forasteiro que não possuía nenhum terreno em Canaã. Assim, comprou dos filhos de Hete um campo, com sua caverna, em Macpela, perto de Manre. (Gên 23:1-20; veja COMPRA.) Três anos depois, quando Isaque atingiu 40 anos, Abraão enviou seu servo mais idoso, provavelmente Eliézer, à Mesopotâmia, a fim de encontrar para seu filho uma esposa adequada, uma que também fosse genuína adoradora de Jeová. Rebeca, sobrinha-neta de Abraão, mostrou ser a escolhida de Jeová. — Gên 24:1-67.

“Além disso, Abraão tomou novamente uma esposa”, Quetura, e subsequentemente gerou mais seis filhos, de modo que de Abraão provieram não só os israelitas, os ismaelitas e os edomitas, mas também os medanitas, os midianitas, e outros. (Gên 25:1, 2; 1Cr 1:28, 32, 34) Assim aconteceu que se cumpriu em Abraão a declaração profética de Jeová: “Vou fazer-te pai duma multidão de nações.” (Gên 17:5) Por fim, na boa velhice de 175 anos, Abraão morreu, em 1843 AEC, e foi sepultado por seus filhos, Isaque e Ismael, na caverna de Macpela. (Gên 25:7-10) Antes da sua morte, Abraão deu presentes aos filhos de suas esposas secundárias e os mandou embora, para que Isaque fosse o único herdeiro de “tudo o que possuía”. — Gên 25:5, 6.

Chefe Patriarcal e Profeta. Abraão era homem muito abastado, possuindo grandes rebanhos e manadas, muita prata e ouro, e uma bem numerosa casa, abrangendo muitas centenas de servos. (Gên 12:5, 16; 13:2, 6, 7; 17:23, 27; 20:14; 24:35) Por este motivo, os reis de Canaã o consideravam poderoso “maioral”, alguém com quem se deveriam fazer pactos de paz. (Gên 23:6; 14:13; 21:22, 23) Todavia, em nenhuma ocasião Abraão permitiu que o materialismo obscurecesse sua visão de Jeová e das promessas Dele, nem o tornasse orgulhoso, soberbo ou egoísta. — Gên 13:9; 14:21-23.

A primeira ocorrência da palavra “profeta” nas Escrituras Hebraicas refere-se a Abraão, embora outros, como Enoque, profetizassem antes dele. (Gên 20:7; Ju 14) O primeiro identificado nas Escrituras como “hebreu” é Abraão. (Gên 14:13) Abraão, como Abel, Enoque e Noé, era homem de fé. (He 11:4-9) Mas, a primeira ocorrência da expressão “depositou fé em Jeová” refere-se a Abraão. — Gên 15:6.

Deveras, este homem de fé incomum andava com Deus, recebia comunicações dele por meio de visões e sonhos, e acolheu Seus mensageiros angélicos. (Gên 12:1-3, 7; 15:1-8, 12-21; 18:1-15; 22:11, 12, 15-18) Estava bem familiarizado com o nome de Deus, embora Jeová, naquele tempo, não tivesse revelado o pleno significado do Seu nome. (Êx 6:2, 3) Vez após vez, Abraão construiu altares e ofereceu sacrifícios em nome de seu Deus, Jeová, e para o louvor e a glória Dele. — Gên 12:8; 13:4, 18; 21:33; 24:40; 48:15.

Como chefe patriarcal, Abraão não permitiu nenhuma idolatria nem impiedade na sua casa, mas constantemente ensinava a todos os seus filhos e servos para que “guardassem o caminho de Jeová para fazer a justiça e o juízo”. (Gên 18:19) Todo membro varão da casa de Abraão estava obrigado pela lei de Jeová a submeter-se à circuncisão. A escrava egípcia, Agar, invocou o nome de Jeová em oração. E o servo mais idoso de Abraão, numa muitíssimo tocante oração a Jeová, demonstrou sua própria fé no Deus de Abraão. Isaque, também, no início de sua varonilidade, mostrou sua fé e obediência a Jeová por permitir que suas mãos e pés fossem amarrados, e que fosse colocado sobre o altar para ser sacrificado. — Gên 17:10-14, 23-27; 16:13; 24:2-56.

Historicidade. Jesus e seus discípulos se referiram a Abraão mais de 70 vezes em suas palestras e escritos. Na sua ilustração do rico e Lázaro, Jesus referiu-se a Abraão em sentido simbólico. (Lu 16:19-31) Quando seus oponentes se jactaram de ser prole de Abraão, Jesus logo apontou a hipocrisia deles, dizendo: “Se sois filhos de Abraão, fazei as obras de Abraão.” (Jo 8:31-58; Mt 3:9, 10) Não, não é a linhagem carnal que conta, mas, antes, ter fé semelhante à de Abraão é o que habilita a pessoa a ser declarada justa, conforme disse o apóstolo Paulo. (Ro 9:6-8; 4:1-12) Paulo também identificou o verdadeiro descendente de Abraão como Cristo, junto com os que pertencem a Cristo quais “herdeiros com referência a uma promessa”. (Gál 3:16, 29) Ele também fala da bondade e hospitalidade de Abraão para com estranhos, e, na sua longa lista em Hebreus, capítulo 11, de ilustres testemunhas de Jeová, Paulo não despercebe Abraão. É Paulo quem indica que as duas mulheres de Abraão, Sara e Agar, realmente figuravam num drama simbólico que envolvia os dois pactos de Jeová. (Gál 4:22-31; He 11:8) O escritor bíblico Tiago acrescenta que Abraão apoiou sua fé por obras justas, e, por conseguinte, ficou conhecido como "amigo de Jeová". — Tg 2:21-23.

Descobertas arqueológicas também confirmam muitos assuntos relatados na história bíblica de Abraão: As localizações geográficas de muitos lugares e dos costumes daquela época, tais como a compra dum campo dos hititas, a escolha de Eliézer como herdeiro e o tratamento dispensado a Agar.

ABRÃO. Veja ABRAÃO.

ABROLHO, CARDO [hebr.: dar·dár; gr.: trí·bo·los]. Qualquer dentre uma variedade de plantas de folhas espinhosas, de bordos recortados, caule duro, e com capítulos arredondados ou cilíndricos que produzem flores macias e sedosas, de cor purpúrea, amarela ou branca. Adão, e mais tarde seus descendentes, tiveram de enfrentar incomodativos abrolhos, ao cultivarem o solo amaldiçoado. (Gên 3:17, 18) Visto que suas sementes são espalhadas pelo vento, os abrolhos facilmente ganham terreno em áreas abandonadas ou desoladas. (Veja Os 10:8.) Jesus Cristo referiu-se aos abrolhos ao fazer a ilustração de que as pessoas, assim como as plantas, são reconhecidas por seus frutos. (Mt 7:16) Na Palestina não é incomum ver vários cardos-estrelados ser levados como massa rolante pelos ventos outonais, característica talvez aludida no Salmo 83:13 e em Isaías 17:13.

ABRONA. Local de um dos acampamentos dos israelitas na sua jornada pelo ermo ao saírem do Egito. É alistado como estando entre Jotbata e Eziom-Géber e tem sido identificado com o oásis ʽAin Defiyeh (ʽEn ʽAvrona), situado a 14,5 km ao NNE de Eziom-Géber. — Núm 33:34, 35.

ABSALÃO [Pai [isto é, Deus] É Paz]. O terceiro dentre seis filhos varões de Davi, nascidos em Hébron. Sua mãe era Maacá, filha de Talmai, rei de Gesur. (2Sa 3:3-5) Absalão tornou-se pai de três filhos e uma filha. (2Sa 14:27) Ele é evidentemente chamado Abisalão em 1 Reis 15:2, 10. — Veja 2Cr 11:20, 21.

A beleza física imperava na família de Absalão. Ele era nacionalmente elogiado por sua notável beleza; seus cabelos, que cresciam profusamente, sem dúvida tornando-se ainda mais pesados pelo uso de óleo ou de unguentos, pesavam cerca de 200 siclos (cerca de 2,3 kg) quando cortados anualmente. A irmã dele, Tamar, também era linda, e a filha dele, com o mesmo nome da tia, tinha "aparência muitíssimo bela". (2Sa 14:25-27; 13:1) Ao invés de ser proveitosa, porém, tal beleza contribuiu para alguns eventos feios que causaram imenso pesar ao pai de Absalão, Davi, bem como a outros, e produziram grande tumulto na nação.

Assassinato de Amnom. A beleza de Tamar, irmã de Absalão, fez com que Amnom, meio-irmão mais velho dele, ficasse apaixonado por ela. Fingindo-se doente, Amnom conseguiu que Tamar fosse enviada a seus aposentos, a fim de cozinhar para ele, e então a violentou. O amor erótico de Amnom transformou-se em ódio depreciativo, e ele mandou que Tamar fosse posta na rua. Rasgando sua veste listrada que a distinguira como filha virgem do rei, e com cinzas sobre a cabeça, Tamar encontrou-se com Absalão. Este rapidamente avaliou a situação e expressou imediatamente suspeitas contra Amnom, indicando anterior apercebimento do desejo apaixonado de seu meio-irmão. Absalão, contudo, instruiu sua irmã a não levantar nenhuma acusação e levou-a para morar na casa dele. — 2Sa 13:1-20.

Segundo John Kitto, tomar Absalão conta de Tamar, ao invés de o pai dela o fazer, harmonizava-se com o costume oriental de que, numa família polígama, os filhos da mesma mãe são os mais intimamente achegados, e as filhas "ficam sob o cuidado e a proteção especiais de seu irmão, o qual, . . . em tudo o que atinge a segurança e a honra delas, é mais procurado do que o próprio pai". (Daily Bible Illustrations [Ilustrações Bíblicas Diárias], Samuel, Saul e Davi, 1857, p. 384) Muito antes, foram Levi e Simeão, dois irmãos germanos de Diná, que resolveram vingar a desonra de sua irmã. — Gên 34:25.

Sabendo da humilhação de sua filha, Davi reagiu com grande ira, mas, talvez devido a que não se fizera nenhuma acusação direta ou formal, com o apoio de evidência ou de testemunhas, não tomou nenhuma ação judicativa contra o ofensor. (De 19:15) É possível que Absalão preferisse não criar caso da violação da lei levítica por parte de Amnom (Le 18:9; 20:17), a fim de evitar publicidade desagradável para sua família e seu nome, mas, sem embargo, nutria ódio homicida a Amnom, ao passo que, exteriormente, se controlava até o momento propício de executar a vingança ao seu próprio modo. (Compare isso com Pr 26:24-26; Le 19:17.) Deste ponto em diante, sua vida é um estudo de perfídia, ocupando a maior parte de seis capítulos de Segundo Samuel. — 2Sa 13:21, 22.

Passaram-se dois anos. Chegou a época da tosquia das ovelhas, ocasião festiva, e Absalão organizou uma festa em Baal-Hazor, cerca de 22 km ao NNE de Jerusalém, convidando os filhos do rei e o próprio Davi. Quando seu pai se escusou de comparecer, Absalão pressionou-o a concordar em enviar Amnom, seu primogênito, em seu lugar. (Pr 10:18) Na festa, quando Amnom se estava "sentindo bem por causa do vinho", Absalão ordenou que seus servos o matassem. Os outros filhos retornaram a Jerusalém, e Absalão foi para o exílio junto a seu avô sírio, no reino de Gesur, ao L do mar da Galileia. (2Sa 13:23-38) A "espada" predita pelo profeta Natã tinha então penetrado na "casa" de Davi, e continuaria ali pelo resto de sua vida. — 2Sa 12:10.

Restauração ao Favor. Quando três anos haviam mitigado a dor da perda de seu primogênito, Davi sentiu saudades paternais de Absalão. Joabe, lendo os pensamentos de seu tio real, abriu, por meio de um estratagema, o caminho para que Davi estendesse um perdão condicional, permitindo que Absalão fosse repatriado, mas sem o direito de aparecer na corte de seu pai. (2Sa 13:39; 14:1-24) Absalão suportou esta condição de banimento por dois anos, e então começou a manobrar para obter pleno perdão. Quando Joabe, qual oficial da corte do rei, recusou-se a visitá-lo, Absalão peremptoriamente mandou incendiar o campo de cevada de Joabe, e, quando o indignado Joabe veio, ele lhe disse que queria uma decisão final do rei e "se houver em mim qualquer erro, então terá de entregar-me à morte". Quando Joabe transmitiu a mensagem, Davi recebeu seu filho, o qual então se prostrou em terra, em símbolo de completa submissão, e o rei deu-lhe o beijo de pleno perdão. — 2Sa 14:28-33.

Atividade Traiçoeira. Qualquer afeição natural ou filial que Absalão sentia por Davi, contudo, aparentemente se desvanecera nos cinco anos que ficou separado do pai. Três anos de associação com a realeza pagã talvez tivessem cultivado a influência corrosiva da ambição. Absalão talvez se encarasse como destinado ao trono, por descender de realeza tanto por parte do pai como da mãe. Visto que Quileabe (Daniel), que era o segundo em linha dentre os filhos de Davi, não é mais mencionado depois do relato de seu nascimento, é também possível que já tivesse morrido, destarte deixando Absalão como o filho vivo mais velho de Davi. (2Sa 3:3; 1Cr 3:1) Todavia, a promessa de Deus a Davi, de um futuro "descendente" que herdaria o trono, foi feita depois do nascimento de Absalão, e, por isso, este deveria saber que não era o escolhido de Jeová para a realeza. (2Sa 7:12) De qualquer modo, uma vez restaurado à categoria real, Absalão começou a realizar uma campanha política sub-reptícia. Com consumada perícia, fingiu sentir grande preocupação com o bem-estar público e apresentou-se como homem do povo. Insinuou cuidadosamente ao povo, em especial aos das outras tribos, fora da de Judá, que a corte do rei não se interessava por seus problemas e precisava muito de um homem cordial tal como Absalão. — 2Sa 15:1-6.

A frase "ao fim de quarenta anos", encontrada em 2 Samuel 15:7, tem aplicação incerta, e, na Septuaginta grega (edição de Lagarde), na Pesito siríaca e na Vulgata latina ela é traduzida "quatro anos". Mas não é provável que Absalão esperasse um total de seis anos para cumprir um voto, se os "quatro anos" fossem considerados como contando desde o tempo de sua readmissão completa. (2Sa 14:28) Visto que uma fome de três anos, uma guerra com os filisteus, e a tentativa de Adonias, de apoderar-se do trono, ocorreram todas durante o reinado de Davi, mas depois dos eventos agora considerados, é evidente que o ponto de partida do escritor, relativo aos "quarenta anos", teria de iniciar-se bem antes do começo do reinado de 40 anos de Davi, e talvez signifique 40 anos a partir de sua primeira unção por Samuel. Isto permitiria então que Absalão fosse ainda "moço" neste ponto do relato (2Sa 18:5), visto que nasceu em algum tempo entre 1077 e 1070 AEC.

Absalão, satisfeito de ter suscitado muitos seguidores em todo o reino, obteve permissão de seu pai, mediante um pretexto, para ir a Hébron, capital original de Judá. Dali, organizou rápido uma conspiração em plena escala para alcançar o trono, inclusive uma rede nacional de espiões, para proclamarem sua realeza. Depois de invocar a bênção de Deus sobre sua regência por oferecer sacrifícios, granjeou o apoio de Aitofel, o conselheiro mais respeitado de seu pai. Muitos então se bandearam para o lado de Absalão. — 2Sa 15:7-12.

Confrontado com uma grande crise, e prevendo um ataque em larga escala, Davi preferiu deixar o palácio, junto com todos os da sua casa, embora tivesse o apoio leal de grande grupo de homens fiéis, inclusive os principais sacerdotes, Abiatar e Zadoque. Estes dois foram por ele enviados de volta a Jerusalém, para servirem quais agentes de ligação. Enquanto subia ao monte das Oliveiras, descalço, com a cabeça coberta e chorando, Davi encontrou-se com Husai, o "companheiro" do rei, a quem ele semelhantemente enviou a Jerusalém para frustrar o conselho de Aitofel. (2Sa 15:13-37) Assediado por oportunistas, um procurando favores, outro cheio de espírito partidário e dando vazão ao ódio acumulado, Davi se destaca em nítido contraste com Absalão, por sua quieta submissão e sua recusa de retribuir o mal com o mal. Rejeitando o apelo de Abisai, seu sobrinho, de obter permissão para atravessar para o outro lado e 'arrancar a cabeça' de Simei, que lhe atirava pedras e o amaldiçoava, Davi arrazoou: "Eis que meu próprio filho que saiu das minhas próprias entranhas está procurando a minha alma; e quanto mais agora um benjaminita! Deixai-o, para que invoque o mal, pois Jeová lhe disse isso! Talvez Jeová veja com o seu olho e Jeová realmente me restitua a bondade em vez de sua invocação do mal neste dia." — 2Sa 16:1-14.

Ocupando Jerusalém e o palácio, Absalão aceitou a aparente defecção de Husai para seu lado, depois de inicialmente fazer uma referência sarcástica a Husai ser o fiel "companheiro" de Davi. Daí, atuando segundo o conselho de Aitofel, Absalão teve publicamente relações sexuais com as concubinas de seu pai, qual prova do completo rompimento entre ele e Davi, e de sua irredutível determinação de manter o controle do trono. (2Sa 16:15-23) Desta forma, a última parte da profecia inspirada de Natã teve seu cumprimento. — 2Sa 12:11.

Aitofel então instou com Absalão para que lhe concedesse autoridade para liderar uma força contra Davi naquela mesma noite, de modo a aplicar o golpe de morte antes que as forças de Davi se pudessem organizar. Embora satisfeito, Absalão ainda assim achou sábio ouvir a opinião de Husai. Compreendendo a necessidade de Davi ganhar tempo, Husai pintou um quadro vívido, visando possivelmente aproveitar-se de qualquer falta de genuína coragem em Absalão (que, até então, tinha demonstrado mais arrogância e astúcia do que valor varonil), bem como agradar a vaidade de Absalão. Husai recomendou que primeiro se tomasse tempo para organizar uma sobrepujante força de homens a ser então comandada pelo próprio Absalão. Pela direção de Jeová, foi aceito o conselho de Husai. Aitofel, evidentemente reconhecendo que a revolta de Absalão fracassaria, suicidou-se. — 2Sa 17:1-14, 23.

Como precaução, Husai mandou avisar Davi do conselho de Aitofel, e, apesar dos esforços de Absalão, de capturar os correios clandestinos, Davi recebeu o aviso e cruzou o Jordão, e subiu as colinas de Gileade até Maanaim (onde Is-Bosete tivera sua capital). Ali, foi recebido com expressões de generosidade e bondade. Preparando-se para o conflito, Davi organizou suas forças em expansão em três divisões, sob Joabe, Abisai e Itai, o geteu. Instado a permanecer na cidade, visto que sua presença seria de maior valor ali, Davi se submeteu a isso e, novamente, demonstrou surpreendente falta de rancor para com Absalão, por solicitar publicamente a seus três capitães: "Tratai suavemente o moço Absalão, por minha causa." — 2Sa 17:15-18:5.

Batalha Decisiva e Morte. As forças recém-formadas de Absalão sofreram esmagadora derrota por parte dos combatentes experientes de Davi. A batalha penetrou na floresta de Efraim. Absalão, fugindo montado em seu mulo real, passou sob os ramos baixos duma árvore grande, e, pelo que parece, ficou com a cabeça presa na forquilha dum ramo, de modo que ficou suspenso no ar. O homem que relatou a Joabe que o havia visto disse que não iria desobedecer à solicitação de Davi, matando Absalão, nem por "mil moedas de prata [se forem siclos, c. US$ 2.200]", mas Joabe não sentiu tal restrição e enfiou três hastes no coração de Absalão, após o que dez de seus homens uniram-se ao seu capitão em assumir a responsabilidade pela morte de Absalão. O corpo de Absalão foi, depois disso, lançado num barranco e coberto com um montão de pedras, como indigno de sepultamento. — 2Sa 18:6-17; compare isso com Jos 7:26; 8:29.

Quando mensageiros chegaram a Davi, em Maanaim, a primeira preocupação dele era com seu filho. Quando soube da morte de Absalão, Davi andou de um lado para o outro pelo piso do quarto do terraço, clamando: "Meu filho Absalão, meu filho, meu filho Absalão! Oh! que eu, eu mesmo, tivesse morrido em teu lugar, Absalão, meu filho, meu filho!" (2Sa 18:24-33) Apenas a linguagem e o raciocínio francos e diretos de Joabe fizeram Davi deixar seu grande pesar, devido ao proceder e ao fim trágicos deste moço fisicamente atraente e empreendedor, cuja ambição impetuosa o levara a lutar contra o ungido de Deus, destarte trazendo sobre si a ruína. — 2Sa 19:1-8; compare isso com Pr 24:21, 22.

O Salmo 3 foi escrito por Davi por ocasião da revolta de Absalão, segundo o cabeçalho do salmo.

Monumento de Absalão. Uma coluna fora erguida por Absalão na "Baixada do Rei", também chamada "Baixada de Savé", perto de Jerusalém. (2Sa 18:18; Gên 14:17) O monumento fora erigido por ele devido a não ter filhos varões para perpetuar seu nome depois de sua morte. Parece, assim, que seus três filhos, mencionados em 2 Samuel 14:27, tinham morrido quando jovens. Absalão não foi sepultado no local de seu monumento, mas foi deixado num barranco na floresta de Efraim. — 2Sa 18:6, 17.

No vale do Cédron existe uma coluna esculpida em rocha, que tem sido chamada de Túmulo de Absalão, mas sua arquitetura indica que é do período greco-romano, talvez do tempo de Herodes. Assim, não existe base para ligá-la ao nome de Absalão.

ABSINTO [hebr.: la·ʽanáh; gr.: á·psin·thos]. Esta palavra designa muitas plantas, frequentemente um tanto lenhosas, de sabor intensamente amargo, e forte aroma. Na Palestina podem ser encontradas diversas variedades de absinto, especialmente nas áreas desérticas. A mais comum é a Artemisia herba-alba, um pequeno arbusto da altura de 40 cm. Na Escritura, o absinto é comparado aos efeitos subsequentes da imoralidade (Pr 5:4) e à experiência amarga que devia sobrevir, e deveras sobreveio, a Judá e Jerusalém às mãos dos babilônios. (Je 9:15; 23:15; La 3:15, 19) Também representa a injustiça e a improbidade (Am 5:7; 6:12), e é usado com referência aos apóstatas. (De 29:18) Em Revelação 8:11, o absinto denota uma substância amarga e venenosa.

ABUTRE [hebr.: ra·hhám; ra·hhá·mah], ABUTRE-FUSCO (NEGRO) [hebr.: ʽoz·ni·yáh]. Uma grande ave necrófaga que presta valioso serviço em países de clima quente, consumindo cadáveres e carniça em putrefação que de outro modo poderiam provocar doenças. Esta ave é alistada entre as declaradas 'impuras' na Lei mosaica. — Le 11:13, 18; De 14:12, 17.

Em árabe, uma língua cognata do hebraico, uma palavra similar a ra·hhám designa o abutre-do-egito (Neophron percnopterus), frequentemente chamado de galinha de Faraó. Esta ave é branca, exceto por suas asas negras, e o bico e as pernas amarelas. É o menor dos abutres encontrados nas terras bíblicas, tendo cerca de 65 cm de comprimento. Com sua face enrugada e desnuda, olhos grandes, bico adunco e presas curvas, tem uma aparência bem repulsiva. Por causa da sua disposição de comer os restos desprezados até mesmo por outros abutres, ele é considerado a ave necrófaga mais nojenta do Oriente Médio e, pelo mesmo motivo, a mais útil, devido ao serviço que presta.

O grifo ou abutre-fouveiro (Gyps fulvus) é uma ave castanho-amarelada que tem cerca de 1,2 m de comprimento, com uma envergadura das asas de uns 2,7 m. O grifo era o símbolo da deusa egípcia Necbet e também aparecia nos estandartes de batalha dos egípcios, dos assírios e dos persas.

O abutre-dos-cordeiros ou abutre barbado (Gypaetus barbatus) é uma grande ave de rapina, de cerca de 1,2 m de altura. Com suas longas asas pontiagudas, de quase 3 m de envergadura, o abutre-dos-cordeiros voa com graça ímpar, e dá voltas com facilidade ao escrutinar o solo, lá embaixo, em busca de alimento. Dessemelhante de outros abutres, o abutre-dos-cordeiros possui plumas na cabeça e uma barba que se parece à de um bode. Tem preferência pelos ossos com tutano, levando-os a grandes alturas e então deixando-os cair sobre rochas para que se rompam, permitindo à ave alcançar o tutano que contêm.

A palavra hebraica ʽoz·ni·yáh evidentemente se refere ao abutre-fusco (negro) (Aegypius monachus), a maior ave de rapina existente em Israel. Sendo mais de cor castanha do que negra, possui a característica cabeça nua dos abutres; o pescoço é azul, e a cauda tem forma de cunha.

ACÃ [por meio dum jogo de palavras, relacionado com Acar, significando "Causador de Banimento (Dificuldade)"]. O filho de Carmi, da casa de Zabdi, da família de Zerá, da tribo de Judá; também chamado Acar. — 1Cr 2:7.

Quando os israelitas cruzaram o Jordão, Jeová ordenou explicitamente que os primeiros frutos da conquista, a cidade de Jericó, "tem de tornar-se algo devotado à destruição; . . . pertence a Jeová". Sua prata e seu ouro deviam ser entregues ao tesouro de Jeová. (Jos 6:17, 19) Acã, contudo, ao encontrar um manto caro de Sinear, um lingote de ouro, de 50 siclos (valendo uns US$ 6.400), e 200 siclos de prata (US$ 440), enterrou-os secretamente embaixo da sua tenda. (Jos 7:21) Realmente, roubara de Deus! Por causa desta violação das instruções explícitas de Jeová, quando Ai, a próxima cidade, foi atacada, Jeová reteve sua bênção, e Israel foi posto em fuga. Quem era culpado? Ninguém confessou. Todo o Israel foi então colocado em julgamento. Tribo por tribo, daí, família por família da tribo de Judá, e, finalmente, homem por homem da casa de Zabdi, passaram perante Jeová, até que Acã "foi selecionado". (Jos 7:4-18) Somente então ele admitiu seu pecado. A execução seguiu-se prontamente. Acã e sua família (que dificilmente desconhecia o que ele havia feito), e seu gado, foram primeiramente apedrejados até morrerem, e então queimados, junto com todos os seus bens, no vale de Acor, que significa "Banimento; Dificuldade". — Jos 7:19-26. Veja também ÁCÃ.

ÁCÃ. Último mencionado de três filhos do Xeque Ezer, dos seiritas. (Gên 36:20, 21, 27) O texto massorético reza "Jaacã" em 1 Crônicas 1:42, mas a Septuaginta grega (Códice Alexandrino) e 22 manuscritos hebraicos rezam "Ácã", em harmonia com Gênesis 36:27.

ACABA, GOLFO DE. Veja MAR VERMELHO.

ACABE [Irmão do Pai].

1. Filho de Onri, e rei do reino setentrional de Israel. Regeu em Samaria por 22 anos, desde cerca de 940 AEC. — 1Rs 16:28, 29.

Tolera a Adoração Falsa. A história da atuação de Acabe é uma das piores com relação ao campo vital da adoração verdadeira. Não só continuou a corrompida adoração a Jeová por meio dos bezerros de ouro de Jeroboão, mas Acabe permitiu também que a adoração de Baal contaminasse Israel numa escala sem precedentes, devido ao seu casamento, logo cedo, com Jezabel, a filha de Etbaal, rei de Sídon. Josefo, citando o antigo historiador Menandro, refere-se a Etbaal como Itobal, e o relato (Against Apion [Contra Apião], I, 123 [18]) conta que ele era o sacerdote de Astarteia antes de ascender ao trono por assassinar o rei.

Acabe permitiu que Jezabel, sua esposa pagã, o levasse à adoração de Baal, a construir um templo para Baal, e a erigir um poste sagrado em honra a Axerá. (1Rs 16:30-33) Não demorou muito até haver 450 profetas de Baal e 400 profetas do poste sagrado, todos sendo alimentados à mesa real de Jezabel. (1Rs 18:19) Os verdadeiros profetas de Jeová foram mortos pela espada, e somente as medidas tomadas por Obadias, um homem de fé, encarregado da casa de Acabe, preservaram a vida de 100 deles, por ocultá-los em cavernas, onde subsistiram a pão e água. — 1Rs 18:3, 4, 13; 19:10.

Em resultado de se voltar para a adoração de Baal, Acabe foi informado por Elias da vinda de grave seca que, segundo Lucas 4:25 e Tiago 5:17, abrangeu um período de três anos e seis meses. (1Rs 17:1; 18:1) Somente à palavra de Elias retornariam as chuvas, e, embora Acabe o procurasse em todas as nações e reinos circunvizinhos, Elias ficou fora de seu alcance até o tempo devido. (1Rs 17:8, 9; 18:2, 10) Acabe procurou então lançar a culpa da seca e da fome sobre Elias, acusação essa que Elias refutou, mostrando que a verdadeira causa era a adoração de Baal, patrocinada por Acabe. Uma prova realizada no topo do monte Carmelo mostrou que Baal não era uma entidade, e manifestou a Jeová como o Deus verdadeiro; os profetas de Baal foram mortos às ordens de Elias, e, pouco depois disso, um aguaceiro de encharcar trouxe fim à seca. (1Rs 18:17-46) Acabe voltou a Jezreel, e para sua esposa, a quem informou das ações de Elias contra o baalismo. Jezabel reagiu com violenta ameaça contra Elias, resultando na fuga dele para o monte Horebe. — 1Rs 19:1-8.

Construção da Capital; Vitórias sobre a Síria. Crê-se que as construções de Acabe incluíram a conclusão das fortificações da cidade de Samaria, reveladas pela arqueologia como consistindo em três muralhas imensamente fortes, de primorosa execução. As escavações revelaram uma plataforma palaciana, retangular, de cerca de 90 m por 180 m, com um muro circundante de excelentes pedras de cantaria. Encontraram-se numerosos painéis de marfim para decoração de mobília e painéis de parede, talvez relacionados com a "casa de marfim" de Acabe, mencionada em 1 Reis 22:39. — FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 948; veja também Am 3:15; 6:4.

A riqueza da cidade e a força de sua posição logo foram postas à prova por um sítio armado contra Samaria pelo sírio Ben-Hadade II, na chefia de uma coligação de 32 reis. De início aquiescendo mansamente às demandas do agressor, Acabe depois se recusou a concordar em permitir o virtual saque do seu palácio. As negociações de paz fracassaram, e, por orientação divina, Acabe utilizou um estratagema de batalha que apanhou desprevenido o inimigo, e levou à matança deste, embora Ben-Hadade escapasse. — 1Rs 20:1-21.

Convencido de que Jeová era apenas um 'deus dos montes', Ben-Hadade retornou no ano seguinte com uma força militar de igual tamanho, mas posicionou-se para a batalha no planalto, em geral sem relevos, perto de Afeque, no território de Manassés, em vez de avançar para a região montanhosa de Samaria. (Veja AFEQUE N.º 5.) As forças israelitas avançaram para o local da batalha, mas pareciam "dois minúsculos rebanhos de caprídeos", comparadas com o maciço acampamento sírio. Tranquilizadas pela promessa de Jeová, de demonstrar que Seu poder não era controlado pela topografia, as forças de Acabe impuseram uma esmagadora derrota ao inimigo. (1Rs 20:26-30) No entanto, bem semelhante ao que o Rei Saul fez com Agague, o amalequita, Acabe permitiu que Ben-Hadade sobrevivesse e concluiu com ele um pacto, pelo qual as cidades capturadas seriam devolvidas a Israel e se designariam a Acabe ruas em Damasco, evidentemente visando o estabelecimento de bazares ou mercados para promover os interesses comerciais de Acabe naquela capital síria. (1Rs 20:31-34) Similar a Saul, Acabe foi condenado por Jeová por causa disso, sendo predita a calamidade futura para ele e seu povo. — 1Rs 20:35-43.

Assassinato de Nabote, e Suas Consequências. Durante um intervalo de paz de três anos, Acabe voltou sua atenção para a aquisição do vinhedo de Nabote, de Jezreel, um terreno muito desejado por Acabe, porque se limitava com os terrenos do seu palácio residencial ali. Quando Nabote recusou a solicitação à base da lei de Deus sobre a inviolabilidade das possessões hereditárias, Acabe petulantemente retirou-se para sua casa, onde se deitou em seu divã, com o rosto voltado para a parede, recusando-se a comer. Ao saber da causa de seu desalento, a pagã Jezabel fez arranjos para o assassínio de Nabote, sob o manto dum julgamento de blasfêmia, usando cartas escritas em nome de Acabe. Quando Acabe foi apossar-se do terreno cobiçado, encontrou-se com Elias, que o denunciou duramente como assassino, e como alguém que se vendeu para praticar a iniquidade, movido pelas constantes incitações de sua esposa pagã. Assim como os cães lamberam o sangue de Nabote, assim também os cães lamberiam o sangue de Acabe, e a própria Jezabel e os descendentes de Acabe se tornariam comida para cães e aves necrófagas. Essas palavras calaram fundo, e, com profundo pesar, Acabe jejuou vestido de saco, alternadamente sentando-se e andando de um lado para o outro, abatido. À base disto, certa medida de misericórdia lhe foi estendida com respeito ao tempo em que a calamidade sobreviria à sua casa. — 1Rs 21:1-29.

As relações de Acabe com Judá ao S foram fortalecidas por meio duma aliança matrimonial em que Atalia, a filha de Acabe, casou-se com Jeorão, filho do Rei Jeosafá. (1Rs 22:44; 2Rs 8:18, 26; 2Cr 18:1) Durante uma visita amigável de Jeosafá a Samaria, Acabe o induziu a apoiá-lo no esforço de retomar Acácias, comuns na região do Sinai, forneceram a madeira para o tabernáculo.

Ramote-Gileade dos sírios, os quais evidentemente não cumpriram de forma plena os termos do pacto feito por Ben-Hadade. Ao passo que um grupo de falsos profetas expressou em coro suas garantias de êxito, por insistência de Jeosafá, foi chamado o profeta Micaías, odiado por Acabe, profeta que predisse certeira calamidade. Ordenando a prisão de Micaías, Acabe teimosamente prosseguiu com o ataque, embora tomando a precaução de disfarçar-se, mas foi atingido a esmo por uma flecha, de modo que morreu lentamente. Seu corpo foi levado a Samaria, para ser ali enterrado, e, quando "começaram a lavar o carro de guerra junto ao reservatório de Samaria . . . os cães lambiam o sangue dele". Escavou-se um grande tanque existente no canto NO do espaçoso pátio do palácio em Samaria, e este talvez seja o local do cumprimento da profecia. — 1Rs 22:1-38.

Inscrições Moabitas e Assírias. Faz-se menção da reconstrução de Jericó durante o reinado de Acabe, talvez como parte dum programa de fortalecimento do controle de Israel sobre Moabe. (1Rs 16:34; compare isso com 2Cr 28:15.) A Pedra Moabita, do Rei Mesa de Moabe, fala da dominação de Moabe pelo Rei Onri e seu filho.

Inscrições assírias que descrevem a batalha travada entre Salmaneser III e uma coalizão de 12 reis em Carcar incluem o nome A-ha-ab-bu como membro da coalizão. A maioria dos peritos aceita isto, em geral, como referência ao Rei Acabe, de Israel; contudo, quanto à evidência de que tal identificação está sujeita a dúvidas, veja o artigo SALMANESER N.º 1.

2. Falso profeta entre os exilados em Babilônia; filho de Colaías. Jeremias predisse que este profeta imoral e mentiroso, e seu associado, seriam assados no fogo por Nabucodonosor. — Je 29:21-23.

ACÁCIA [hebr.: shit·táh]. Uma árvore que crescia bem no ermo, onde os israelitas peregrinavam. Ela podia fornecer tábuas bastante grandes (de quase 4,5 m de comprimento, segundo Êx 36:20, 21), que os israelitas usaram para construir o tabernáculo portátil. Visto que esta árvore praticamente desaparece do registro bíblico após a entrada na Terra da Promessa, isto poderia também indicar uma árvore não comumente encontrada em toda a Palestina. Essa descrição ajusta-se às espécies de acácia conhecidas como Acacia seyal e Acacia tortilis muito melhor do que a qualquer outra vida vegetal daquela área. Tais acácias ainda são comuns no Negebe e na zona do Sinai, e encontram-se algumas ao longo do vale do Jordão, ao S do mar da Galileia, mas não na Palestina setentrional.

É interessante notar que seyal é a palavra árabe para "torrente", e o habitat da acácia são os vales de torrentes ou uádis, pelos quais escorre a água na estação chuvosa e que são encontrados nas regiões que, de outra forma, são áridas, desérticas, ao redor do Mar Morto, e, em direção ao S, no deserto da Arábia e na península de Sinai. Assim, a profecia de Joel (3:18) diz: "Da casa de Jeová procederá um manancial e terá de irrigar o vale da torrente das Acácias", o que claramente indica um lugar que, de outro modo, seria usualmente seco. (Veja SITIM N.º 2.) Em Isaías 41:19, Jeová diz: "Porei no ermo o cedro, a acácia e a murta, e o oleastro [árvore oleaginosa]." Aqui, profetiza-se que três árvores que normalmente crescem em solo rico e fértil se tornarão companheiras da acácia, que gosta do deserto, em resultado da provisão divina de irrigação. — Is 41:17, 18.

A acácia tem muitos espinhos longos que se projetam dos ramos amplamente espalhados. Esses ramos usualmente se entrelaçam com os das acácias vizinhas, formando uma mata cerrada; isto, sem dúvida, explica por que quase sempre se usa a forma plural shit·tím no registro bíblico. A acácia pode atingir alturas de 6 a 8 m, mas frequentemente tem a aparência dum arbusto. Possui folhas macias, penadas, e é coberta de flores amarelas, agradavelmente fragrantes, que produzem vagens falciformes como fruto. A rija casca negra recobre uma madeira muito dura, de fino grão, pesada, imune ao ataque dos insetos. Estas características e sua disponibilidade no deserto tornaram a acácia especialmente apropriada como material de construção do tabernáculo e da sua mobília. Foi empregada para construir a Arca do Pacto (Êx 25:10; 37:1), a mesa dos pães da proposição (Êx 25:23; 37:10), os altares (Êx 27:1; 37:25; 38:1), os varais para transportar tais itens (Êx 25:13, 28; 27:6; 30:5; 37:4, 15, 28; 38:6), as colunas para a cortina e o reposteiro (Êx 26:32, 37; 36:36) e as armações de painéis (Êx 26:15; 36:20), bem como as suas trancas (Êx 26:26; 36:31).

A acácia ainda é muito apreciada para armários, por causa de seu fino grão, forte cor castanho-alaranjada e durabilidade. Os antigos egípcios cerravam seus caixões de múmias com madeira de acácia, e usavam-na na construção de seus barcos. Certos tipos dessa árvore também produzem a goma-arábica comercial.

ACADE. Uma das quatro cidades fundadas por Ninrode e que formaram o "princípio do seu reino". (Gên 10:10) Acade (ou Akkad) tem sido identificada com a antiga cidade de Agade. A localização exata dela é incerta.

O nome Acade também é aplicado à inteira região setentrional do que mais tarde veio a ser chamado Babilônia (i.e., o país). Acade parece ter recebido destaque como a cidade principal ou real daquela região sob Sargão I (não o Sargão de Is 20:1). A região meridional da Mesopotâmia era conhecida como Suméria. Babilônia (i.e., o país) desenvolveu-se destas duas áreas, e, nos textos babilônicos, seus governantes ainda eram chamados de "rei de Acade" até o tempo da queda da cidade de Babilônia, em 539 AEC. No Cilindro de Ciro, o conquistador de Babilônia assume o título de "Rei de Babilônia, rei da Suméria e de Acade".

Os acadianos parecem ter ultrapassado os sumérios em excelentes esculturas e intricados entalhes de selos. O termo acadiano é hoje usado para descrever as antigas línguas assíria e babilônica.

AÇAFRÃO [hebr.: kar·kóm]. A palavra hebraica, que só aparece em O Cântico de Salomão (4:14), usualmente tem sido identificada com o croco produtor de açafroína (Crocus sativus), planta bulbosa com folhas semelhantes às das gramíneas, e flores purpurinas, que floresce no outono setentrional e que é bem parecida ao comum croco da primavera. Para produzir apenas 28 g de açafroína, substância de cor laranja-forte, composta dos estiletes e estigmas secos das flores, são necessárias cerca de 4.000 flores. Quando as flores desabrocham, ou pouco depois disso, o estigma e a parte superior do estilete são removidos e então secados. O açafrão é usado para colorir e para condimentar alimentos, e, anteriormente, era empregado mais extensivamente do que agora para tingir tecidos de amarelo. Era também usado como medicamento e como perfume.

O termo hebraico hhavats·tsé·leth, traduzido diversamente "açafrão", "croco", "lírio", "narciso" e "rosa" (veja Al, ALA, CBC, NM), possivelmente se refere a uma planta bulbosa. (Cân 2:1 n.; Is 35:1 n.) Segundo o lexicógrafo de hebraico, Gesenius, hhavats·tsé·leth provavelmente contém uma raiz que significa "bulbo", e ele considera o "açafrão das campinas" o equivalente mais exato para a palavra na língua original. (A Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament [Léxico Hebraico e Inglês do Velho Testamento], traduzido para o inglês por E. Robinson, 1836, p. 317) Um léxico hebraico-aramaico de Koehler e Baumgartner associa a palavra hhavats·tsé·leth com o termo acadiano que significa "caule", e o define como "asfódelo", planta da família dos lírios. — Hebräisches und Aramäisches Lexikon zum Alten Testament (Léxico Hebraico e Aramaico do Velho Testamento), Leiden, 1967, p. 275.

ACAIA. Antes da conquista romana em 146 AEC, Acaia se referia corretamente apenas à pequena região no Peloponeso, que se estendia através da costa meridional do golfo de Corinto, numa posição um tanto similar à ocupada atualmente pela área do mesmo nome.

Na poesia homérica, os gregos em geral são mencionados sob o nome de acaicos (acaios ou aqueus). Devido ao destaque da Liga Acaica, uma confederação de cidades, como o conjunto político mais poderoso na Grécia no tempo de sua conquista, os romanos depois disso se referiam em geral a toda a Grécia como Acaia.

Em 27 AEC, quando César Augusto reorganizou as duas províncias da Grécia, a Macedônia e a Acaia, o nome Acaia aplicava-se então a todo o Peloponeso e a uma parte da Grécia continental. A província da Acaia estava sob a administração do Senado de Roma, sendo governada por intermédio dum procônsul desde a sua capital, Corinto. (2Co 1:1) Outras cidades da província da Acaia mencionadas nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs eram Atenas e Cencreia. A Acaia e sua província vizinha ao N, a Macedônia, eram amiúde vinculadas no uso comum. — At 18:1, 18; 19:21; Ro 15:26; 16:1; 1Te 1:7, 8.

No ano 15 EC, em resposta a queixas contra a severidade da tributação, Tibério colocou a Acaia e a Macedônia sob controle imperial, para serem governadas desde a província de Mésia. Isto continuou até 44 EC, quando o Imperador Cláudio restaurou tais províncias ao controle senatorial, destarte fazendo com que um procônsul de novo assumisse poderes governamentais em Corinto. Devido à ignorância destes fatos, alguns críticos, no passado, objetavam à referência da Bíblia a Gálio como "procônsul da Acaia", perante quem Paulo foi trazido. (At 18:12) Entretanto, a descoberta duma inscrição em Delfos tornou evidente que havia deveras um procônsul na Acaia chamado Gálio, no tempo descrito pelo historiador Lucas, o escritor de Atos. — Veja GÁLIO.

Em Romanos 15:26, o apóstolo Paulo fala da generosidade dos cristãos na província da Acaia em fornecer ajuda aos seus irmãos necessitados em Jerusalém. Durante a sua segunda e a sua terceira viagem missionária, Paulo passou considerável parte do seu tempo na Acaia e expressou forte amor pelos irmãos daquela região. — 2Co 11:10.

ACAICO [De (Pertencente a) Acaia]. Um dos associados maduros da congregação coríntia, o qual, junto com Estéfanas e Fortunato, visitou Paulo enquanto estava em Éfeso. — 1Co 16:17, 18.

ACAMPAMENTO. A palavra hebraica para "acampamento" (ma·hhanéh) deriva da raiz verbal hha·náh, que significa "acampar; acampar-se; armar acampamento". (Jz 15:9; Êx 14:2; Gên 33:18) Estes termos são usados com referência a um local transitório de nômades (Gên 32:21; 33:18), ao arranjo temporário e móvel de tendas dos israelitas na sua peregrinação pelo ermo (Núm 2:17) ou ao cercado protetor em volta dum exército (2Rs 25:1). A palavra grega para "acampamento" é pa·rem·bo·lé. — Veja EXÉRCITO.

Acampamento de Israel. O Êxodo de Israel do Egito não ocorreu em confusão tumultuada, mas em bem ordenada "formação de batalha", apropriada para "os exércitos de Jeová". (Êx 13:18; 12:41; 6:26) Esta formação de batalha foi possivelmente similar à dum exército composto de cinco partes, com vanguarda ou destacamento dianteiro, corpo principal, retaguarda e duas alas laterais. Naquela época, os israelitas ainda se encontravam sob os arranjos patriarcais, e isto se refletia na designação às tribos e famílias de seus lugares na ordem de marcha. Segundo este costume, os servos, os dependentes e os outros ligados à família eram considerados como parte da casa, de modo que a "vasta mistura de gente" provavelmente encontrava-se no meio das diversas tribos, clãs e famílias. — Êx 12:38; Núm 11:4; De 29:11.

Com o estabelecimento do tabernáculo, o arranjo do acampamento foi organizado segundo as instruções divinas, perto do início do segundo ano. O centro do acampamento, tanto na localização como na importância, era a tenda da presença de Jeová, ou o tabernáculo, com seu pátio circundante. Sua entrada dava para o L, onde Moisés, Arão e os sacerdotes estavam acampados. (Núm 3:38) O restante dos levitas (somando 22.000 varões, a partir de um mês de idade) acampava-se nos três lados remanescentes: os coatitas ao S, os gersonitas ao O, e os meraritas ao N. (Núm 3:23, 29, 35, 39) Com estes últimos dois grupos associavam-se certa bagagem, carroças e animais usados no transporte do tabernáculo e de seu equipamento. De modo que os designados para servir no santuário de Jeová viviam perto do tabernáculo e ao redor dele, provendo um cordão protetor contra a intrusão de não levitas, "para que não surja indignação contra a assembleia". — Núm 1:53; 7:3-9.

Mais além das tendas levíticas acampavam-se as 12 tribos num arranjo quadrilátero, orientado pelos quatro pontos cardeais. Parece que o povo em geral ficava afastado uma distância considerável do tabernáculo; alguns comentadores sugerem uns 900 m, porque devia haver uma distância "de cerca de dois mil côvados" entre o povo e a Arca do Pacto quando se iniciou a travessia do Jordão. (Jos 3:4) As 12 tribos foram divididas em quatro grandes divisões, cada uma chamada pelo nome da tribo central da divisão. De modo que a divisão de três tribos ao L do tabernáculo se chamava Judá, com Issacar de um lado de Judá e Zebulão do outro. (Núm 2:3-8) Quando este arranjo foi estabelecido em 1512 AEC, esta divisão de três tribos de Judá tinha 186.400 homens aptos, da idade de 20 anos para cima. (Núm 1:1-3; 2:9) No sentido em que caminham os ponteiros do relógio, ao S, estava a divisão de três tribos de Rubem, com Simeão e Gade ladeando Rubem, com 151.450 homens de guerra. (Núm 2:10-16) Estas duas divisões ao L e ao S, junto com os levitas, eram os descendentes de Jacó por Leia e sua serva Zilpa. (Gên 35:23, 26) Incidentalmente, acamparem-se tanto Rubem como os coatitas ao S do santuário explica a associação física entre os rebeldes rubenitas Datã e Abirão, e o coatita Corá. (Núm 16:1) Do lado O, havia a divisão de três tribos de Efraim, tendo aos lados Manassés e Benjamim, todos descendentes de Raquel, e somando 108.100 homens do exército. (Núm 2:18-24) Finalmente, ao N estava a divisão de três tribos de Dã, associada com Aser e Naftali, no total de 157.600 homens combatentes. (Núm 2:25-31) Dã e Naftali eram descendentes da serva de Raquel, Bila, mas Aser o era da serva de Leia, Zilpa. — Gên 35:25, 26.

Este acampamento de Israel era muito grande. As cifras acima somam 603.550 homens combatentes, além de mulheres e de crianças, de idosos e de incapacitados, 22.000 levitas, e "uma vasta mistura" de estrangeiros — totalizando talvez 3.000.000 de pessoas, ou mais. (Êx 12:38, 44; Núm 3:21-34, 39) Não há certeza sobre a área que tal acampamento abrangeria; as estimativas variam muito. Quando o acampamento estava armado defronte de Jericó, nas Planícies de Moabe, ele é descrito como estendendo-se "desde Bete-Jesimote até Abel-Sitim". — Núm 33:49.

A forma, ou disposição, do acampamento é usualmente ilustrada como retangular ou quadrada, arranjo considerado superior em eficiência e segurança. Os limites específicos do acampamento são indicados por referências à saída do acampamento e à entrada nele. (Le 13:46; 16:26, 28; 17:3) E havia 'portões' ou portas de entrada no acampamento. (Êx 32:26, 27) Josefo, na sua descrição, menciona que se traçaram estradas dentro do acampamento. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], III, 289 [xii, 5]) Tudo isso exigia planejamento e organização, se os israelitas haviam de armar rapidamente o acampamento num novo lugar, com um mínimo de esforço e de demora.

Proveram-se "sinais para a casa de seus pais", a fim de ajudar a pessoa a achar o seu respectivo lugar no acampamento. (Núm 2:2) Visto que a expressão hebraica dé·ghel, vertida "divisão de três tribos", também significa "estandarte" (como em Cân 2:4), é possível que houvesse indicadores de tribos, bem como insígnias de família. A Bíblia não fornece nem o número, nem a descrição de tais indicadores.

O governo do acampamento de Jeová era muito eficiente. Sob o arranjo teocrático, designaram-se chefes de 10, de 50, de 100 e de 1.000. Estes eram "homens capazes, tementes a Deus, homens fidedignos, que [odiavam] o lucro injusto". (Êx 18:21; De 1:15) Sob a direção deles, provia-se boa supervisão e manutenção, bem como um sistema judicial equitativo; também se conseguia por meio deles uma comunicação rápida com todo o povo. Toques codificados de trombeta convocavam as pessoas para se apresentarem na tenda de reunião. Dependendo do tipo de toque, toda a assembleia era convocada ou, às vezes, apenas os maiorais dos milhares como representantes das tribos. — Núm 1:16; 10:2-4, 7, 8.

Um meticuloso código de leis regulava todos os aspectos da vida no acampamento. A saúde e a pureza do acampamento eram preservadas por meio de diversos regulamentos sanitários. Os leprosos, aqueles que tinham doenças infecciosas ou um fluxo, e aqueles que haviam tocado num cadáver, eram excluídos do acampamento até serem declarados limpos. (Núm 5:2, 3) Os mortos eram enterrados fora do acampamento. (Le 10:4, 5) Dava-se fim às cinzas dos sacrifícios queimados, bem como às carcaças de certos sacrifícios, do lado de fora do acampamento. (Le 4:11, 12; 6:11; 8:17) Os criminosos eram executados lá fora (Le 24:14; Núm 15:35, 36), e os cativos de guerra e os guerreiros que voltavam eram mantidos fora por um período de purificação. — Núm 31:19.

O deslocamento deste vasto acampamento de um lugar para outro (cerca de 40 de tais campos são recapitulados por Moisés em Números 33) também era uma maravilhosa demonstração de organização. Enquanto a nuvem pousasse sobre o tabernáculo, o acampamento permanecia no lugar. Quando a nuvem se mudava, o acampamento se mudava. "Acampavam-se à ordem de Jeová e partiam à ordem de Jeová." (Núm 9:15-23) Duas trombetas de prata, batidas ao martelo, comunicavam estas ordens de Jeová ao acampamento em geral. (Núm 10:2, 5, 6) Toques trêmulos especiais assinalavam o levantamento do acampamento. A primeira vez que isto ocorreu foi "no segundo ano [1512 AEC], no segundo mês, no dia vinte". Com a Arca do Pacto na dianteira, a primeira divisão de três tribos, encabeçada por Judá, seguida por Issacar e depois por Zebulão, partiu. Seguiam-lhes os gersonitas e os meraritas, carregando as peças do tabernáculo que lhes foram designadas. A seguir vinha a divisão de três tribos encabeçada por Rubem, seguida por Simeão e Gade. Após ela vinham os coatitas com o santuário, daí a terceira divisão de três tribos, a tribo de Efraim seguida por Manassés e Benjamim. Por fim, na retaguarda, estava a divisão encabeçada por Dã, acompanhada por Aser e Naftali. De modo que as duas divisões mais numerosas e poderosas tomavam as posições de vanguarda e de retaguarda. — Núm 10:11-28.

"Prosseguiram assim marchando desde o monte de Jeová numa jornada de três dias . . . E a nuvem de Jeová estava sobre eles." (Núm 10:33, 34) Não se revela o comprimento desta coluna de marchadores, guiados pela nuvem, nem a velocidade ou a distância percorrida num dia. Com os seus pequeninos e seus rebanhos, eles provavelmente viajavam devagar. Nesta marcha, que levou três dias, provavelmente não se estabelecia formalmente o acampamento com a ereção do tabernáculo para um pernoite temporário; antes, havia apenas os ajustes necessários para comer e dormir.

Acampamentos Militares. O uso do termo "acampamento" varia em conexão com a guerra. Por exemplo, pode denotar o quartel-general, ou a base das operações, do qual saíam os grupos de incursores; Gilgal e Silo são exemplos disso. (Jos 4:19; 5:10; 9:6; 10:6, 15, 43; 18:9; Jz 21:12) Ou "acampamento" às vezes significa o próprio exército, em vez de o lugar onde este armava suas tendas à noite. (Jos 10:5; 11:4, 5) "Acampar-se contra" uma cidade tinha o significado de guerrear contra a cidade, assim como 'acampar-se' também indicava preparativos para a guerra. — Jz 9:50; 1Sa 11:1; 28:4; 2Rs 25:1.

Diversos fatores influenciavam a escolha dum lugar para um acampamento militar. Um terreno elevado com acesso limitado oferecia uma proteção natural e exigia menos vigilância do que lugares abertos e vulneráveis. (1Sa 26:3) O acampamento tinha de ter acesso à água. (2Rs 3:9) Josué derrotou uma confederação de reis acampados junto às águas de Merom. (Jos 11:5) As forças de Gideão acamparam-se junto ao poço de Harode (Jz 7:1), e um terço do exército de Davi acampou-se no vale da torrente de Besor, até seus companheiros voltarem da vitória. — 1Sa 30:9, 10.

Um cercado protetor, como aquele em volta do acampamento de Saul, talvez fosse feito com a bagagem, as carroças e os animais. (1Sa 26:5, 7) Os exércitos que tinham carros de guerra talvez usassem a estes para cercar seus acampamentos. Acampamentos mais permanentes às vezes eram protegidos por fossos e barreiras de terra em volta deles. As batalhas não costumavam ser travadas no lugar do acampamento, exceto num ataque de surpresa. (Jos 11:7) Por isso não se costumavam construir extensas trincheiras e fortes cercados murados.

As histórias seculares fornecem vislumbres da vida num acampamento de exército entre os pagãos, como era nos dias bíblicos. O acampamento egípcio de Ramsés II, por exemplo, era cercado por escudos. O acampamento fortificado assírio em geral era circular e reforçado por paredões e torres. Todas as tendas nos acampamentos persas davam para o L, e os acampamentos deles eram protegidos por trincheiras e barragens. Os acampamentos militares gregos também eram circulares, com a tenda do oficial comandante no meio do acampamento. Quando o exército romano se acampava, cavava-se um substancial fosso em volta de todo novo acampamento.

ACAR. Veja ACÃ.

ACASO. Veja ACIDENTE, ACASO.

ACAZ [forma abreviada de Jeoacaz, significando "Que Jeová se Apodere; Jeová se Apoderou"].

1. Filho do Rei Jotão, de Judá. Acaz começou a reinar à idade de 20 anos e continuou durante 16 anos. — 2Rs 16:2; 2Cr 28:1.

Visto que Ezequias, filho de Acaz, tinha 25 anos quando começou a reinar, isto significaria que Acaz tinha menos de 12 anos quando se tornou pai dele. (2Rs 18:1, 2) Embora a puberdade masculina costume ocorrer entre os 12 e 15 anos de idade no clima temperado, pode ocorrer mais cedo em clima quente. Os costumes de casamento também variam. Zeitschrift für Semitistik und verwandte Gebiete (Revista para Assuntos Semíticos e Relacionados, editada por E. Littmann, Leipzig, 1927, Vol. 5, p. 132) relatou que o casamento entre crianças é uma ocorrência frequente na Terra da Promessa mesmo nos tempos modernos, citando-se o caso de dois irmãos casados, da idade de 8 e 12 anos, sendo que a esposa do mais velho frequentava a escola com seu marido. Entretanto, um manuscrito hebraico, a Pesito siríaca, e alguns manuscritos da Septuaginta grega, em 2 Crônicas 28:1, dão a idade de Acaz ao começar a reinar como "vinte e cinco anos".

Qualquer que tenha sido sua idade exata, Acaz morreu relativamente jovem e deixou um registro de contínua delinquência. Apesar de Isaías, Oseias e Miqueias terem todos profetizado ativamente durante o tempo de Acaz, seu reinado estava marcado pela crassa idolatria. Ele não só a permitiu entre seus súditos, mas também, pessoalmente, e com regularidade, empenhou-se em fazer sacrifícios pagãos, a ponto de oferecer seu(s) próprio(s) filho(s) no fogo, no vale de Hinom. (2Rs 16:3, 4; 2Cr 28:3, 4) Por tal deserção para a adoração falsa, a regência de Acaz foi afligida por um dilúvio de dificuldades. A Síria e o reino setentrional de Israel se combinaram para atacar Judá desde o N, os edomitas aproveitaram a oportunidade para atacar desde o SE, e os filisteus invadiram do O. O valioso porto de Elate, no golfo de Acaba, foi perdido. Zicri, poderoso efraimita, matou um filho do rei e dois dos homens principais de Acaz durante a incursão por parte do reino setentrional, que resultou na matança de 120.000 em Judá, e em cerca de 200.000 judeus serem levados cativos. Apenas a intervenção do profeta Odede, com o apoio de certos homens da liderança de Efraim, fizeram com que tais cativos fossem libertos, para voltar a Judá. — 2Cr 28:5-15, 17-19; 2Rs 16:5, 6; Is 7:1.

O 'coração estremecente' de Acaz deveria ter ficado fortalecido pela mensagem do profeta Isaías, da parte de Jeová Deus, garantindo-lhe que este não permitiria que o conluio siro-israelita destruísse Judá e colocasse no trono um homem que não era da linhagem davídica. Mas quando convidado a solicitar um sinal de Deus, o idólatra Acaz replicou: "Não o pedirei, nem porei Jeová à prova." (Is 7:2-12) Todavia, foi predito que, como sinal, uma donzela daria à luz um filho, Emanuel (Conosco Está Deus), e que, antes de o menino ter crescido, o conluio siro-israelita teria deixado de constituir uma ameaça para Judá. — Is 7:13-17; 8:5-8.

Com respeito aos "sessenta e cinco anos" citados em Isaías 7:8, os quais Isaías profetizou que seriam o período em que Efraim seria "desbaratado", o Commentary on the Whole Bible (Comentário sobre Toda a Bíblia), de Jamieson, Fausset e Brown, declara: "Uma deportação de Israel ocorreu dentro de um ou dois anos a contar deste tempo [o tempo da profecia de Isaías], sob Tiglate-Pileser (2 Reis 15. 29). Outra, no reinado de Oseias, sob Salmaneser (2 Reis 17. 1-6), deu-se cerca de vinte anos depois. Mas a última, que 'despedaçou' inteiramente Israel, de modo a 'não ser povo', acompanhada por uma colonização de Samaria por estrangeiros, deu-se sob Esar-Hadom, que levou também Manassés, rei de Judá, no vigésimo segundo ano do seu reinado, sessenta e cinco anos a contar do proferimento desta profecia (cf. Esdras 4.2, 3, 10, com 2 Reis 17.24; 2 Crônicas 33.11)."

Vassalagem à Assíria, e Morte. No entanto, ao invés de ter fé em Jeová, Acaz, por medo da conspiração siro-israelita, preferiu adotar o plano míope de subornar Tiglate-Pileser III, da Assíria, para vir em sua ajuda. (Is 7:2-6; 8:12) Qualquer que fosse o alívio que o ambicioso rei assírio tenha então trazido a Acaz, por esmagar a Síria e Israel, foi apenas temporário. No fim, "causou-lhe aflição, e não o fortaleceu" (2Cr 28:20), visto que Acaz impusera então a Judá o pesado jugo da Assíria.

Como rei vassalo, Acaz aparentemente foi convocado a ir a Damasco para render homenagem a Tiglate-Pileser III, e, enquanto estava naquela cidade, admirou o altar pagão ali, copiou seu projeto e mandou que o sacerdote Urija construísse uma réplica a ser colocada diante do templo em Jerusalém. Acaz então presumiu oferecer sacrifícios neste "grande altar". O original altar de cobre foi colocado a um lado até que o rei decidisse o que fazer dele. (2Rs 16:10-16) No ínterim, ele mutilou grande parte do equipamento de cobre do templo e rearranjou outras modalidades da área do templo, tudo "por causa do rei da Assíria", talvez para pagar o pesado tributo imposto a Judá, ou, possivelmente, para ocultar parte das riquezas do templo dos olhos do cobiçoso assírio. As portas do templo foram fechadas e Acaz "fez para si altares em cada esquina de Jerusalém". — 2Rs 16:17, 18; 2Cr 28:23-25.

Depois de 16 anos de mau governo e de crassa apostasia, Acaz morreu, e, embora fosse sepultado como seus antepassados o foram, "na Cidade de Davi" (2Rs 16:20), seu corpo não foi colocado nas sepulturas régias dos reis. (2Cr 28:27) Seu nome se acha alistado nas genealogias reais. — 1Cr 3:13; Mt 1:9.

O nome de Acaz aparece numa inscrição de Tiglate-Pileser III como Yauhazi.

2. Bisneto de Jonatã, filho do Rei Saul. — 1Cr 8:35, 36.

ACAZIAS [Jeová se Apoderou]. O nome de dois reis, um de Israel, o outro de Judá.

1. Filho de Acabe e Jezabel, e rei de Israel por dois anos, a partir de cerca de 919 AEC. Ele acompanhou seus pais idólatras na adoração de Baal. (1Rs 22:51-53) Com a morte do pai de Acazias, Moabe aproveitou a oportunidade para revoltar-se, e, destarte, livrar-se do pesado tributo de 100.000 cordeiros e igual número de carneiros, com sua lã. (2Rs 1:1; 3:4, 5) Esta revolta é descrita pelo Rei Mesa, de Moabe, na inscrição da Pedra Moabita. Talvez devido a seu subsequente acidente e à morte prematura, Acazias não fez nenhum esforço de subjugar os moabitas.

Acazias formou uma aliança marítima com Jeosafá, de Judá, para um empreendimento de construção de navios em Eziom-Géber, no golfo de Acaba. O projeto foi desaprovado por Deus por causa da iniquidade de Acazias, e os navios naufragaram. (2Cr 20:35-37) O relato de 1 Reis 22:48, 49, mostra que Acazias desejava a autorização de Jeosafá para que os marujos israelitas tripulassem os navios junto com os de Judá, solicitação esta recusada por Jeosafá. Caso tal solicitação tenha sido feita antes do naufrágio dos navios, a recusa talvez simplesmente indicasse falta de confiança de Jeosafá em Acazias, e a precaução contra uma intrusão por parte do reino setentrional. Caso tal solicitação tenha sido feita depois do fracasso da frota, bem poderia ter sido uma insinuação, da parte de Acazias, de que faltava habilidade aos homens de Jeosafá, e de que eram os responsáveis pelo naufrágio dos navios, e daí a sugestão de os navios serem reparados e enviados de novo com marujos israelitas também a bordo. Neste caso, a recusa de Jeosafá pode ter sido em reconhecimento da manifesta desaprovação de Deus a tal projeto.

Um acidente em casa, em que o rei caiu por uma gelosia (talvez uma que cobrisse uma claraboia) do seu quarto de terraço, deixou-o acamado e gravemente enfermo. (2Rs 1:2) Como se o Deus verdadeiro não mais existisse, Acazias enviou mensageiros para inquirir ao deus filisteu Baal-Zebube (que significa "Dono das Moscas") sobre as suas perspectivas de recuperação. Interceptados pelo profeta Elias, os mensageiros retornaram e transmitiram a mensagem ao rei, de que seu leito de enfermo se tornaria seu leito de morte. Ao invés de humilhar-se, Acazias mandou uma força de 50 homens, chefiada por um capitão, para lhe trazer Elias. Tal força, e uma segunda, depois de darem a Elias a ordem do rei, de 'descer' do monte onde estava sentado, foram ambas destruídas por fogo. Uma terceira força, enviada pelo teimoso rei, só conseguiu escapar em virtude do respeitoso apelo de seu capitão, para que tanto a vida dele como a de seus homens fossem 'preciosas aos olhos de Elias'. Depois disso, Elias desceu e proferiu a mensagem de morte diante de Acazias. Este gradualmente morreu, e, não tendo filhos, foi sucedido pelo seu irmão Jeorão. — 2Rs 1:2-17.

2. Filho de Jeorão e de Atalia, alistado como rei de Judá por um ano (c. 906 AEC). Durante o reinado de seu pai, os filisteus e os árabes invadiram Judá e levaram cativos todos os filhos de Jeorão, exceto Jeoacaz (Acazias), o mais moço. (2Cr 21:16, 17; 22:1) Ele era um jovem de 22 anos quando ascendeu ao trono, e sua mãe dominadora, Atalia, filha de Acabe e de Jezabel, o influenciou para a iniquidade. (2Rs 8:25-27; 2Cr 22:2-4) Acompanhou o Rei Jeorão, de Israel (seu tio materno), numa luta contra a Síria, em Ramote-Gileade, que resultou em Jeorão ser ferido. Mais tarde, Acazias visitou o convalescente Jeorão em Jezreel. — 2Rs 8:28, 29; 9:15; 2Cr 22:5, 6.

Coordenando-se estes dois relatos (2Rs 9:21-28; 2Cr 22:7-9), evidentemente aconteceu o seguinte: Jeú, ao se aproximar de Jezreel, encontrou-se com Jeorão e Acazias. Jeú abateu Jeorão, mas Acazias fugiu. Nesta ocasião, Jeú não perseguiu Acazias, mas continuou até Jezreel, a fim de terminar ali a sua obra executora. No ínterim, o fugitivo Acazias tentou retornar a Jerusalém; no entanto, só conseguiu chegar a Samaria, onde tentou esconder-se. Os homens de Jeú, perseguindo Acazias, descobriram-no em Samaria e capturaram-no, e levaram-no até Jeú, que estava perto da cidade de Ibleão, não muito longe de Jezreel. Quando Jeú viu Acazias, ordenou que seus homens o matassem em seu carro. Eles o golpearam e feriram quando subia para Gur, perto de Ibleão; mas permitiu-se que Acazias escapasse, e ele fugiu para Megido, onde morreu devido a seus ferimentos. Foi então levado para Jerusalém e ali sepultado. Os relatos de sua morte não são contraditórios, mas complementares.

Segundo Crônicas 22:7 indica que a morte de Acazias ocorreu "da parte de Deus", e, assim, Jeú atuou como executor da parte de Deus ao matar esse homem que tinha companheirismo com a condenada casa de Acabe. Acazias é também mencionado como "Azarias", em 2 Crônicas 22:6 (embora, aqui, 15 manuscritos hebraicos rezem "Acazias"), e como "Jeoacaz", em 2 Crônicas 21:17; 25:23 (um caso de transposição do nome divino para servir de prefixo, ao invés de sufixo).

ACBOR [Gerbo; Roedor Saltador].

1. Pai de Baal-Hanã, o qual é alistado como sétimo rei de Edom. — Gên 36:38, 39; 1Cr 1:49.

2. Filho de Micaías, e oficial de confiança da corte do Rei Josias. (2Rs 22:12) Ele é chamado de "Abdom, filho de Micá", em 2 Crônicas 34:20. Ao saber da ira acesa de Jeová expressa no antigo livro da Lei, recém-descoberto, Josias enviou Acbor como um de uma comissão de cinco à profetisa Hulda para saber o que se devia fazer. (2Rs 22:8-14) Acbor era pai de Elnatã, príncipe da corte do Rei Jeoiaquim, e bem provavelmente bisavô do Rei Joaquim. — Je 26:22; 36:12; 2Rs 24:8.

ACÉLDAMA [Campo de Sangue]. Nome aplicado pelos judeus ao terreno comprado com "o salário da injustiça" pago a Judas Iscariotes por ter traído Cristo Jesus. (At 1:18, 19) Tem sido identificado com o Haqq ed-Dumm (que significa "Preço de Sangue") do lado S do vale de Hinom, no "Morro de Mau Conselho", que é um terreno plano a pouca distância ladeira acima. Neste lugar encontram-se ruínas dum ossuário. Um pouco ao SE está o Minzar Haqal Dema' (Mosteiro de Acéldama), erigido por cima dos restos de cavernas sepulcrais.

A declaração em Atos 1:18, de que Judas "comprou um campo", indica que ele proveu os meios para a compra do campo, ou era o motivo para isso. O registro em Mateus 27:3-10 mostra que os sacerdotes usaram as 30 moedas de prata (se foram siclos, US$ 66), lançadas por Judas no templo, para a compra propriamente dita, e que este "Campo de Sangue" havia sido antes um campo de oleiro, e foi obtido pelos sacerdotes "para enterrar os estranhos". (Veja CAMPO DO OLEIRO.) O lugar sugerido tem sido usado como cemitério desde os primeiros séculos.

Por que atribui Mateus a profecia de Zacarias 11:12, 13, a Jeremias?

O cumprimento da profecia registrada por Mateus baseia-se no "que fora falado por intermédio de Jeremias, o profeta". Ocasionalmente, Jeremias era alistado como o primeiro dos "Profetas Posteriores", e esta seção de profecias, portanto, não só incluía os escritos de Jeremias, mas também os de Zacarias. (Veja Lu 24:44.) A citação feita por Mateus parece ser tirada principalmente de Zacarias 11:12, 13, mas parafraseada por Mateus e aplicada às circunstân-cias que a cumpriam, o que se deu sob inspiração pelo espírito de Deus. O terreno, como campo de oleiro, teria sido considerado esgotado e de pouco valor, valendo apenas o preço dum escravo.

ACIDENTE, ACASO. Ocorrências imprevistas, resultantes de desconhecimento, descuido ou eventos inevitáveis, e que causam perdas ou danos, costumam ser chamados de acidentes. A palavra hebraica 'a·sóhn evidentemente tem o sentido literal de "uma cura", e é usada como eufemismo de "acidente fatal". (Veja Gên 42:4 n.) A palavra hebraica miq·réh, que deriva duma raiz que significa "ir ao encontro; sobrevir" (Gên 44:29; De 25:18), não é somente traduzida "acidente", mas também "evento consequente" (Ec 2:14, 15; 3:19) e "acaso". — Ru 2:3; 1Sa 6:9.

Jacó temia que pudesse sobrevir um acidente fatal ao seu amado filho Benjamim, se lhe permitisse acompanhar seus irmãos ao Egito. (Gên 42:4, 38) Os filisteus devolveram a Arca de Jeová para testar se a praga das hemorroidas que sofriam realmente procedia de Jeová ou era apenas "um acaso". (1Sa 6:9) Salomão reconhecia que todos podem tornar-se vítimas dum imprevisto. — Ec 9:11.

A Lei mosaica fazia uma distinção entre um acidente fatal e um que não era fatal. (Êx 21:22-25) Distinguia também o homicídio intencional do desintencional. Para o assassinato deliberado exigia-se a pena capital; para os culpados de homicídio acidental estabeleceram-se cidades de refúgio. (Núm 35:11-25, 31; veja CIDADES DE REFÚGIO.) A lei aplicava-se tanto ao israelita nativo como ao residente forasteiro, e proveram-se instruções para os sacrifícios necessários para expiar pecados acidentais ou desintencionais. — Le 4:1-35; 5:14-19; Núm 15:22-29.

ACMONI [possivelmente: Sábio].

1. Antepassado de Zabdiel e do filho dele, Jasobeão. Jasobeão foi o cabeça dos três mais poderosos homens de Davi e é chamado de "filho dum acmonita". (1Cr 11:11; 27:2) "Acmonita" é grafado "taquemonita" em 2 Samuel 23:8. Se 1 Crônicas 12:6 se referir ao mesmo Jasobeão, então os acmonitas eram descendentes do levita Corá. — Veja JOSEBE-BASSEBETE.

2. Pai ou antepassado de Jeiel. Jeiel estava com os filhos do Rei Davi, presumivelmente como instrutor particular. (1Cr 27:32) Possivelmente o mesmo que o N.º 1 acima.

ACMONITA. Veja ACMONI N.º 1.

ACO. Cidade portuária também conhecida por Acre, Akko e Ptolemaida. Situada no ponto setentrional da aberta Baía de Aco (ou Baía de Haifa [Mifraz Hefa]) que tem forma de meia-lua. Esta baía é formada pelo cabo do monte Carmelo que se projeta dentro do mar Mediterrâneo por uns 13 km ao S.

Aco* (mais tarde conhecida como Ptolemaida)*. O apóstolo Paulo fez escala nesta cidade portuária na sua viagem final a Jerusalém.

No período dos juízes, a cidade cananeia se situava numa elevação identificada com o Tell el-Fukhkhar (Tel ʽAkko), a cerca de 1 km da baía e a 1,8 km a L da atual muralha da Cidade Antiga. No período persa, a partir do sexto século AEC, a cidade se estendeu para o oeste, incluindo a península que constitui a extremidade N da Baía de Haifa. O porto da cidade encontrava-se ali a partir do período persa. Já no tempo da Era Cristã, a área de Aco passara a incluir a pensínsula e se encontra incluída na área da moderna ʽAkko.

Situada a cerca de 39 km ao S de Tiro, Aco era o porto marítimo mais importante da costa palestina, escassa de portos, até que Herodes, o Grande, construiu molhes desde a praia, para produzir um porto artificial em Cesareia. Aco era inferior aos portos fenícios ao N, e provia pouco abrigo contra os ventos procedentes do mar. No entanto, estava estrategicamente situada perto do acesso à rica planície de Jezreel (Esdrelom), e diversas rotas comerciais ligavam este porto com a Galileia, o vale do Jordão, e outros pontos ao leste. Madeira, artefatos e cereais eram exportados através de Aco.

Aco pertencia à divisão territorial designada a Aser na Terra da Promessa, mas Aser deixou de expulsar os cananeus que então viviam ali. (Jz 1:31, 32) Mencionada apenas uma vez nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a cidade é com mais frequência citada em registros não bíblicos. Seu nome ocorre várias vezes nas Tabuinhas de Amarna. Outros registros mostram que foi subjugada pelos reis assírios Senaqueribe e Assurbanipal. A cidade é mencionada nos Apócrifos como centro de oposição durante a regência dos macabeus. (1 Macabeus 5:15, 22, 55; 12:45-48; 13:12) Seu nome já fora então mudado para Ptolemaida, nome originado por Ptolomeu II Filadelfo, do Egito.

Sob o imperador Cláudio, a cidade de Ptolemaida (Aco) tornou-se uma colônia romana, e, nos tempos apostólicos, havia ali um grupo de cristãos. Quando Paulo voltou de sua terceira viagem missionária, ele aportou em Aco (então conhecida como Ptolemaida) e passou o dia visitando os irmãos ali, antes de viajar para Cesareia e Jerusalém. — At 21:7.

Atualmente, ʽAkko é eclipsada em importância pela moderna cidade de Haifa, situada bem do outro lado da baía.

ACOR [Banimento; Dificuldade]. Um vale ou baixada que fazia parte da fronteira NE do território tribal de Judá. (Jos 15:7) O nome do vale, significando "Banimento; Dificuldade", resultou de ser o lugar em que Acã e sua família foram apedrejados até morrerem. Acã, por roubar e ocultar certos despojos da captura de Jericó, trouxera o banimento à nação de Israel, inclusive a derrota no primeiro ataque contra Ai. — Jos 7:5-26.

Alguns identificam o vale de Acor com o uádi el Qilt, um vale de torrente parecido a uma ravina, que passa perto de Jericó. No entanto, a descrição de sua posição, segundo fornecida em Josué 15:7, parece situá-lo mais ao S, e a declaração em Isaías 65:10 indicaria uma área mais ampla, mais espaçosa. Em vista disto, é identificado tentativamente com el-Buqeiʽa (Biqʽat Hureqanya), baixo e árido planalto, ou bacia, que se estende do N ao S através do uádi Qumran (Nahal Qumeran), perto do canto NO do Mar Morto. A investigação arqueológica feita ali revelou locais de antigos povoados ou fortificações, bem como sistemas de represas.

Em Oseias 2:15, Jeová relembra a juventude de Israel no tempo do Êxodo, e, numa profecia de restauração do futuro cativeiro, promete que a "baixada de Acor", outrora local de banimento, tornar-se-á então "como entrada à esperança". E, embora a região seja um ermo, numa profecia similar de restauração, Deus prediz que a baixada de Acor se tornará "um lugar de repouso para o gado vacum". — Is 65:10.

ACRABIM [Escorpiões]. Um aclive ou encosta na fronteira SE de Judá, que constituía um termo divisório quando Canaã foi repartido a Israel. (Núm 34:4; Jz 1:36) Estava situada a uns 29 km ao SO da extremidade meridional do Mar Morto e perto do ermo de Zim. A região tem sido identificada com o atual Naqb es-Safa (Maʽale ʽAqrabbim), onde a estrada de Berseba ao Arabá desce abruptamente para o uádi Murra (Nahal Zin). O nome talvez derive da abundância de escorpiões nesta região desértica ou talvez do modo em que a estrada repetidamente curva para trás, igual à cauda dum escorpião. Era evidentemente uma rota antiga usada para descer a Edom e ao S para Acaba, no golfo de Acaba.

ACSA [Tornozeleira [Manilha]; Pulseira]. A filha do espia judeu Calebe, que ele ofereceu em casamento como prêmio para quem capturasse a fortaleza de Debir, no recém-adquirido território de Judá. Otniel, sobrinho de Calebe, que evidentemente se tornou o primeiro juiz depois de Josué (Jz 3:9, 10), capturou-a, e, como recompensa, casou-se com a sua prima Acsa. — Veja OTNIEL.

Quando Acsa partiu para o seu novo lar, ela solicitou ao pai e recebeu dele um adicional presente seleto, uma parte que continha Gulote Alta e Baixa. (Jos 15:15-19; Jz 1:12-15) Acsa talvez fosse a mãe de Hatate. — 1Cr 4:13.

ACSAFE [Lugar da Prática de Feitiçaria]. Cidade real de Canaã, cujo rei atendeu a chamada de Jabim, rei de Hazor, e juntou-se ao acampamento de reis junto às águas de Merom para lutar contra Israel. (Jos 11:1, 5) Ele foi morto na batalha que se seguiu. (Jos 12:7, 20) A cidade de Acsafe foi mais tarde incluída no território designado como herança à tribo de Aser. — Jos 19:25.

Alguns peritos propõem identificar Acsafe com Tell Kisan (Tel Kison), lugar a cerca de 10 km ao SE de Aco (Acre). Entretanto, outros estão a favor de Khirbet el-Harbaj (Tel Regev) a cerca de 11 km a SE de Haifa.

ACUBE [provavelmente: Agarrador do Calcanhar; Suplantador].

1. Pai duma família de netineus que retornaram de Babilônia junto com Zorobabel, em 537 AEC. — Esd 2:1, 2, 43, 45.

2. Porteiro levítico, pós-exílico, e chefe de família de porteiros. — 1Cr 9:17; Esd 2:42; Ne 7:45; 11:19; 12:25.

3. Um dos 13 levitas que "explicavam a lei ao povo", ajudando a Esdras. — Ne 8:7, 8.

4. Quarto filho mencionado dos sete de Elioenai entre os últimos descendentes de Davi alistados na genealogia das Escrituras Hebraicas. — 1Cr 3:24.

ACUSAÇÃO. Imputação duma transgressão. O acusado é chamado a prestar contas.

Uma palavra hebraica vertida por "acusação" (sitnáh) deriva da raiz verbal sa·tán, que significa "opor-se". (Esd 4:6; veja Za 3:1.) A palavra grega mais comum para "acusar" é ka·te·go·ré·o, que contém a ideia de 'falar contra' alguém, usualmente em sentido judicial ou jurídico. (Mr 3:2; Lu 6:7) Em Lucas 16:1, a palavra grega di·a·bál·lo, vertida 'acusar', também pode ser traduzida 'caluniar'. (Int) Relaciona-se com di·á·bo·los (caluniador), raiz da palavra "Diabo".

O termo grego traduzido 'acusar falsamente' em Lucas 3:14 (sy·ko·fan·té·o) é vertido 'extorquir por meio de acusação falsa' em Lucas 19:8. Significa literalmente "tomar por exibir figo". Dentre as diversas explicações sobre a origem desta palavra, uma é que, na antiga Atenas, era proibida a exportação de figos procedentes da província. Alguém que denunciasse outros, acusando-os de tentar exportar figos, era chamado de "exibidor de figo". O termo passou a designar um informante maldoso, alguém que acusa outros para obter lucro, um difamador, um chantagista.

Alguém talvez fosse chamado a prestar contas e fosse acusado duma transgressão, mas fosse inteiramente inocente, inculpe, vítima dum difamador. A lei hebraica, portanto, especificava a responsabilidade de cada um na nação, de levar os transgressores a uma prestação de contas, e ao mesmo tempo providenciava uma adequada proteção ao acusado. Alguns exemplos da Lei mosaica servirão para ilustrar esses princípios. Quando alguém tinha conhecimento dum crime, ele tinha de apresentar a acusação perante as devidas autoridades. (Le 5:1; 24:11-14) As autoridades, por sua vez, tinham de "investigar, e indagar cabalmente", a respeito das acusações, para determinar a sua validez, antes de aplicar uma punição. (De 13:12-14) O observador não devia ocultar a transgressão ou deixar de levantar uma acusação contra o culpado, mesmo que este fosse um parente achegado, tal como um irmão, um filho, uma filha ou o cônjuge. (De 13:6-8; 21:18-20; Za 13:3) Exigia-se o depoimento de duas ou três testemunhas, não meramente a palavra dum único acusador. — Núm 35:30; De 17:6; 19:15; Jo 8:17; He 10:28.

A Lei de Moisés concedia também ao acusado o direito de se confrontar com seu acusador perante um tribunal, a fim de que se determinasse plenamente a veracidade das acusações. (De 19:16-19; 25:1) Um exemplo clássico disso foi o caso das duas prostitutas que, com um bebê, compareceram perante o sábio Rei Salomão, a fim de que ele decidisse quem era a mãe do bebê. — 1Rs 3:16-27.

A lei romana também exigia que os acusadores comparecessem no tribunal. Assim, quando o cidadão romano, Paulo, estava em julgamento perante os governadores Félix e Festo, ordenou-se também o comparecimento dos seus acusadores. (At 22:30; 23:30, 35; 24:2, 8, 13, 19; 25:5, 11, 16, 18) O comparecimento de Paulo perante César, em Roma, porém, foi devido à sua própria apelação, a fim de ser absolvido, e não para acusar a sua própria nação. (At 28:19) Nem Paulo, nem mesmo Jesus, mas Moisés, por sua conduta e pelo que escreveu, acusou a nação judaica de transgressão. — Jo 5:45.

Três hebreus foram acusados de não adorarem a imagem de ouro, de Nabucodonosor, e foram lançados na fornalha. A acusação era verdadeira, embora se baseasse numa lei imprópria. Todavia, eram inocentes no que se referia a uma transgressão, e, ao apelarem para a Corte Suprema do Céu, foram por Jeová inocentados de qualquer culpa. (Da 3:8-25) De modo similar, Daniel foi liberto da morte, e os acusadores que fizeram a trama contra ele foram lançados aos leões. (Da 6:24) A palavra "acusaram", nestes dois relatos, traduz uma frase aramaica que literalmente significa "comeram os pedaços [de carne arrancados dos corpos]", e pode também ser vertida "caluniaram". (Da 3:8, n.; 6:24, n.) Os que se opuseram à reconstrução do templo em Jerusalém escreveram uma carta na qual acusaram os construtores de transgressão, e a obra foi embargada baseada na acusação falsa, embargo que mais tarde se mostrou ilegal. (Esd 4:6-6:12)

De maneira similar, os líderes religiosos procuravam meios para acusar Jesus de violador da lei. (Mt 12:10; Lu 6:7) Finalmente, conseguiram mandar prender o homem inocente, e no julgamento eles foram bem veementes na sua acusação falsa ao Justo, Jesus. (Mt 27:12; Mr 15:3; Lu 23:2, 10; Jo 18:29) Estes exemplos mostram quão errado é acusar falsamente a outros, especialmente quando os acusadores ocupam cargos de autoridade. — Lu 3:14; 19:8.

Na congregação cristã, os superintendentes e os servos ministeriais não só devem ser inocentes quanto a levantar falso testemunho contra outros, mas eles mesmos também precisam estar livres de acusação. (1Ti 3:10; Tit 1:6) Portanto, quando se levantam acusações contra um ancião, deve haver duas ou três testemunhas em confirmação delas. (Mt 18:16; 2Co 13:1; 1Ti 5:19) A congregação inteira tem de estar livre de acusação (1Co 1:8; Col 1:22), embora isto não signifique que membros dela estarão livres de acusações falsas, porque, deveras, o grande Adversário, Satanás, o Diabo, é "o acusador dos nossos irmãos, o qual os acusa dia e noite perante o nosso Deus!" — Re 12:10.

ACZIBE [Lugar Enganoso]. Nome de duas cidades.

1. Cidade na parte meridional da Terra da Promessa, no território de Judá. (Jos 15:44) Entende-se tratar-se de "Quezibe" (Gên 38:5, Al), lugar de nascimento de Selá, filho de Judá. Josué 15:33 mostra que estava situada na região colinosa da Sefelá, e ela é tentativamente identificada com Tell el-Beida (Horvat Lavnin), a 5 km ao OSO de Adulão. Laquis, Moresete-Gate e Maressa (mencionadas junto com Aczibe em Miq 1:13-15) encontram-se todas naquela região. Cozeba, em 1 Crônicas 4:22, em geral é considerada ser a própria Aczibe.

2. Cidade costeira, fenícia, no território da tribo de Aser. (Jos 19:29) Aser, porém, nunca conseguiu conquistá-la, nem a cidade mais importante de Aco (Acre) ao S, talvez por causa duma ação sustadora por parte da frota fenícia. (Jz 1:31, 32) Senaqueribe, da Assíria, tomou-a no tempo do Rei Ezequias e menciona-a nos seus anais sob o nome de Akzibi. Nos períodos grego e romano ela foi chamada de Ecdippa. Ela tem sido identificada com ez-Zib (Tel Akhziv), a uns 14 km ao N de Aco, na desembocadura do uádi Qarn (Nahal Keziv).

ADA [forma abreviada de Eleada ou Adaías].

1. A primeira das duas esposas simultâneas de Lameque. Ela era a mãe de Jabal e de Jubal, respectivamente fundadores dos criadores de gado nômades, e dos músicos. — Gên 4:19-23.

2. Filha cananeia de Elom, o hitita, e uma das esposas de Esaú. Como tal, ela era "fonte de amargura de espírito para Isaque e Rebeca". O nome de seu filho era Elifaz, pai de Amaleque. Talvez fosse a chamada Basemate em Gênesis 26:34. — Gên 26:35; 36:2, 4, 10, 12.

ADADA. Uma das cidades na parte meridional do território originalmente designado a Judá, perto da fronteira de Edom. (Jos 15:22) O Manuscrito Vaticano N.º 1209 da Septuaginta grega reza aqui A·rou·el. Nesta base, bem como em 1 Samuel 30:28, alguns peritos estão a favor de identificá-la com Aroer, em Judá. — Veja AROER N.º 3.

ADAÍAS [Jeová Enfeitou [o portador do nome]].

1. Descendente de Gersom, filho de Levi, e antepassado de Asafe. — 1Cr 6:39-43.

2. Benjaminita, filho de Simei. — 1Cr 8:1, 21.

3. Pai de Maaseias, que era um dos "chefes de cem" que ajudaram Jeoiada, o sacerdote, a derrubar o governo iníquo de Atalia e a colocar Jeoás no trono de Judá. — 2Cr 23:1.

4. Pai de Jedida, mãe do rei Josias. (2Rs 22:1) Era natural de Boscate, situada na Sefelá, no território de Judá. — Jos 15:21, 33, 39.

5. Filho de Joiaribe, da tribo de Judá. — Ne 11:4, 5.

6. Sacerdote que morava em Jerusalém depois do retorno do exílio babilônico, filho de Jeroão. — 1Cr 9:10-12; Ne 11:12.

7. Israelita, um dos descendentes de Bani que se divorciaram das suas esposas estrangeiras e despediram seus filhos, após o exílio babilônico. — Esd 10:29, 44.

8. Outro dos israelitas que despediram suas esposas estrangeiras e seus filhos, o chefe ancestral dele sendo Binui. — Esd 10:38, 39, 44.

ADALIA. Um dos dez filhos de Hamã. — Est 9:7-10; veja HAMÃ.

ADAMÁ [Solo]. Uma das cidades fortificadas no território designado à tribo de Naftali. Sua localização não é conhecida com precisão. — Jos 19:32, 36.

ADAMI-NEQUEBE [Solo de Penetração (Perfuração)]. Um lugar na parte meridional de Naftali. (Jos 19:33) Sua localização geralmente é identificada com Khirbet et-Tell (Tel Adami), acima e ao O de Khirbet ed-Damiyeh, cerca de 16 km a ENE de Nazaré e aproximadamente a meio caminho entre Tiberíades e o monte Tabor. Sua posição dominava um passo numa antiga rota de caravanas entre Gileade e a planície de Aco.

ADÃO [Homem Terreno; Humanidade; duma raiz que significa "vermelho"]. A palavra hebraica para esse nome próprio ocorre mais de 560 vezes nas Escrituras, na maioria dos casos como um ter-mo genérico aplicado a pessoas e à humanidade em geral, como "homem", "humanidade" ou "humano".

1. Deus disse: "Façamos o homem à nossa imagem." (Gên 1:26) Que declaração histórica! E que posição ímpar na história detém "Adão, filho de Deus" — a primeira criatura humana! (Lu 3:38) Adão foi a glória coroadora das obras criativas terrestres de Jeová, não só por causa de situar-se perto do fim das seis épocas criativas, porém, o que é mais importante, porque "à imagem de Deus [este] o criou". (Gên 1:27) É por isso que o homem perfeito, Adão, e sua degenerada descendência em grau muito menor, possuíam faculdades e habilidades mentais muito superiores a todas as outras criaturas terrestres.

Em que sentido foi Adão feito à semelhança de Deus?

Feito à semelhança de seu Grandioso Criador, Adão possuía os atributos divinos de amor, sabedoria, justiça e poder; por isso, tinha um senso moral que envolvia uma consciência, algo inteiramente novo na esfera da vida terrestre. À imagem de Deus, Adão deveria ser um administrador global e ter em sujeição as criaturas marinhas e terrestres, e as aves do ar.

Não era necessário que Adão fosse uma criatura espiritual, no todo ou em parte, para possuir qualidades semelhantes às de Deus. Jeová formou o homem das partículas de pó do solo, colocou nele a força de vida, de modo que ele se tornou uma alma vivente, e lhe deu a capacidade de refletir a imagem e a semelhança de seu Criador. "O primeiro homem é da terra e feito de pó." "O primeiro homem, Adão, tornou-se alma vivente." (Gên 2:7; 1Co 15:45, 47) Isso se deu no ano 4026 AEC. Foi provavelmente no outono setentrional do ano, pois os calendários mais antigos da humanidade começavam a contagem do tempo no outono setentrional, por volta de 1.º de outubro, ou na primeira lua nova do ano lunar civil. — Veja ANO.

O lar de Adão era um paraíso muito especial, verdadeiro jardim de delícias, chamado Éden (veja ÉDEN N.º 1), fornecendo-lhe todas as coisas físicas necessárias à vida, pois havia ali "toda árvore de aspecto desejável e boa para alimento", para seu sustento perpétuo. (Gên 2:9) Em toda a volta de Adão havia animais pacíficos, de toda espécie e tipo. Mas, Adão estava sozinho. Não havia nenhuma outra criatura "segundo a sua espécie" com a qual conversar. Jeová reconheceu que "não é bom que o homem continue só". Assim, por cirurgia divina, o primeiro e o único caso desse tipo, Jeová removeu uma costela de Adão e modelou-a numa correspondente feminina, para ser a esposa de Adão e a mãe de seus filhos. Tomado de júbilo diante de tão linda ajudadora e companheira constante, Adão irrompeu na primeira poesia registrada: "Esta, por fim, é osso dos meus ossos e carne da minha carne", e ela foi chamada mulher, "porque do homem foi esta tomada". Mais tarde, Adão chamou sua esposa de Eva. (Gên 2:18-23; 3:20) A veracidade deste relato é atestada por Jesus e pelos apóstolos. — Mt 19:4-6; Mr 10:6-9; Ef 5:31; 1Ti 2: 13.

Ademais, Jeová abençoou esses recém-casados com bastante trabalho prazeroso. (Veja Ec 3:13; 5:18.) Não foram amaldiçoados com ociosidade. Deveriam manter-se atarefados e ativos, cultivando e cuidando de seu lar ajardinado, e, ao se multiplicarem e encherem a terra com bilhões de sua espécie, deveriam expandir este Paraíso até os confins da terra. Este era um mandato divino. — Gên 1:28.

"Deus viu tudo o que tinha feito, e eis que era muito bom." (Gên 1:31) Deveras, desde o próprio início, Adão era perfeito em todos os sentidos. Era dotado da faculdade de falar e dum vocabulário altamente desenvolvido. Conseguiu dar nomes significativos às criaturas viventes em toda a sua volta. Era capaz de manter um diálogo com seu Deus e com sua esposa.

Por todos esses motivos, e muitos outros, Adão estava sob obrigação de amar, de adorar e de obedecer estritamente a seu Grandioso Criador. Mais do que isso, o Legislador Universal lhe delineou a simples lei da obediência e o informou cabalmente da penalidade justa e razoável da desobediência: "Quanto à árvore do conhecimento do que é bom e do que é mau, não deves comer dela, porque no dia em que dela comeres, positivamente morrerás." (Gên 2:16, 17; 3:2, 3) Apesar desta lei explícita, que impunha severa punição pela desobediência, ele deveras desobedeceu.

Resultados do Pecado. Eva foi completamente enganada por Satanás, o Diabo, mas "Adão não foi enganado", diz o apóstolo Paulo. (1Ti 2:14) Com pleno conhecimento, Adão voluntária e deliberadamente preferiu desobedecer, e então, como criminoso, tentou esconder-se. Quando submetido a julgamento, ao invés de mostrar pesar ou arrependimento, ou de pedir perdão, Adão tentou justificar-se e passar a responsabilidade para outros, até mesmo culpando a Jeová por seu próprio pecado propositado. "A mulher que me deste para estar comigo, ela me deu do fruto da árvore e por isso comi." (Gên 3:7-12) Assim, Adão foi expulso do Éden para uma terra não subjugada, que foi amaldiçoada para produzir espinhos e abrolhos, levando ali com suor a sua existência e colhendo os frutos amargos de seu pecado. Fora do jardim, aguardando a morte, Adão gerou filhos e filhas, só sendo preservados os nomes de três deles — Caim, Abel e Sete. A todos os seus filhos, Adão transmitiu o pecado e a morte hereditários, visto que ele próprio era pecaminoso. — Gên 3:23; 4:1, 2, 25.

Este foi o trágico início que Adão deu à raça humana. O Paraíso, a felicidade e a vida eterna foram perdidos, e, em seu lugar, o pecado, o sofrimento e a morte foram adquiridos através da desobediência. "Por intermédio de um só homem entrou o pecado no mundo, e a morte por intermédio do pecado, e assim a morte se espalhou a todos os homens, porque todos tinham pecado." "A morte reinou desde Adão." (Ro 5:12, 14) Mas Jeová, em sua sabedoria e em seu amor, proveu um "segundo homem", "o último Adão", que é o Senhor Jesus Cristo. Por meio deste obediente "Filho de Deus" abriu-se o caminho pelo qual os descendentes do desobediente "primeiro homem, Adão", podem recuperar o Paraíso e a vida eterna, a igreja ou congregação de Cristo até mesmo obtendo a vida celeste. "Porque, assim como em Adão todos morrem, assim também em Cristo todos serão vivificados." — Jo 3:16, 18; Ro 6:23; 1Co 15:22, 45, 47.

Depois de o pecador Adão ter sido expulso do Éden, ele viveu para ver o assassinato de seu próprio filho, o banimento de seu filho assassino, os abusos do arranjo matrimonial e a profanação do sagrado nome de Jeová. Presenciou a construção duma cidade, o desenvolvimento de instrumentos musicais, e a forja de ferramentas de ferro e de cobre. Observou, e foi condenado, pelo exemplo de Enoque, "o sétimo homem na linhagem de Adão", alguém que "prosseguiu andando com o verdadeiro Deus". Até mesmo viveu para ver o pai de Noé, Lameque, da nona geração. Por fim, depois de 930 anos, a maioria dos quais passados no lento processo de morrer, Adão voltou ao solo do qual fora tirado, no ano 3096 AEC, assim como Jeová dissera. — Gên 4:8-26; 5:5-24; Ju 14; veja LAMEQUE N.º 2.

2. Cidade mencionada em Josué 3:16, como estando junto a Zaretã. É geralmente identificada com Tell ed-Damiyeh (Tel Damiya'), local na margem L do rio Jordão, cerca de 1 km ao S da confluência do Jordão com o vale da torrente do Jaboque; encontra-se a cerca de 28 km ao NNE de Jericó. O nome da cidade talvez derive da cor da argila aluvial, que é abundante nessa região. — 1Rs 7:46.

O registro bíblico indica que o represamento das águas do rio Jordão, no tempo da travessia dele por Israel, se deu em Adão. O vale do Jordão se estreita consideravelmente, a partir da localidade de Tell ed-Damiyeh (Tel Damiya') em direção ao norte, e a história registra que, no ano 1267, ocorreu uma obstrução do rio nesse mesmo ponto, devido à queda de elevado talude do outro lado do rio, impedindo o fluxo de água por cerca de 16 horas. Nos tempos modernos, tremores de terra no verão setentrional de 1927 de novo causaram deslizamentos de terra, que represaram o Jordão, de modo que o fluxo de água foi interrompido por 21½ horas. (The Foundations of Bible History: Joshua, Judges [As Bases da História Bíblica: Josué, Juízes], de J. Garstang, Londres, 1931, pp. 136, 137) Se este foi o meio que Deus achou apropriado empregar, então tal represamento do rio, nos dias de Josué, foi miraculosamente cronometrado, e realizado de modo a sincronizar-se com a travessia do Jordão no dia previamente anunciado por Jeová, por meio de Josué. — Jos 3:5-13.

ADAR, I. Nome pós-exílico do 12.º mês lunar judaico do calendário sagrado, porém o 6.º do calendário secular. (Est 3:7) Corresponde a parte de fevereiro e parte de março. É depois do mês de adar que o mês intercalar, chamado veadar, ou segundo adar, é adicionado em certos anos.

Durante esse mês, que ocorria no fim da estação de inverno e no início da primavera setentrional, as alfarrobeiras começavam a florescer em partes da Palestina, e, nas baixadas quentes, as laranjeiras e os limoeiros estavam prontos para a colheita.

Por um decreto real do Rei Assuero, da Pérsia, o 13.º dia de adar devia assinalar a destruição de todos os judeus nos distritos jurisdicionais do seu domínio, à instigação do seu primeiro-ministro, Hamã. Um novo decreto, emitido pela mediação da Rainha Ester, possibilitou aos judeus obter uma vitória sobre os seus pretensos assassinos, e, depois disso, Mordecai ordenou que se celebrassem os dias 14 e 15 de adar em comemoração da libertação deles. (Est 3:13; 8:11, 12; 9:1, 15, 20, 21, 27, 28) Esta festividade judaica é conhecida como Purim, nome derivado de "Pur, isto é, a Sorte". — Est 9:24-26; veja PURIM.

Adar foi também o mês em que o governador Zorobabel terminou a reconstrução do templo em Jerusalém. (Esd 6:15) Em outras partes da Bíblia é mencionado apenas como o "décimo segundo mês". — 2Rs 25:27; 1Cr 27:15; Je 52:31; Ez 32:1.

ADAR, II.

1. Filho de Bela, um benjaminita. — 1Cr 8:1, 3.

2. Cidade na fronteira meridional de Judá, situada perto de Cades-Barneia. (Jos 15:3) No relato de Josué, ela é alistada como situada entre Esrom e Carca, mas em Números 34:4 parece que o nome Esrom (significando "Pátio; Povoação") é combinado com Adar para formar Hazar-Adar, visto que os relatos são paralelos. O livro Biblical Archaeology (Arqueologia Bíblica, de G. E. Wright, 1962, p. 71) sugere como possível lugar ʽAin el-Qudeirat, onde um perene manancial rega um pequeno mas fértil vale.

Fica a cerca de 8 km ao NNO de ʽAin Qedeis, possível lugar de Cades-Barneia.

ADBEEL. Neto de Abraão, alistado como terceiro entre os 12 filhos de Ismael, sendo sua mãe egípcia. Ele era o maioral dum clã tribal que levava seu nome. — Gên 21:21; 25:13-16; 1Cr 1:29.

ADI. Filho de Cosã e pai de Melqui. Como descendente de Davi por meio de Natã, Adi era antepassado de Jesus. — Lu 3:28, 31.

ADIEL [Deus É Ornamento].

1. Pai de Asmavete, a quem o Rei Davi designou sobre a sua casa real de tesouros. — 1Cr 27:25, 31.

2. Um dos maiorais da tribo de Simeão, o qual, nos dias do Rei Ezequias, de Judá, no oitavo século AEC, participou em desapossar os camitas da região perto de Gedor. — 1Cr 4:36, 38-41.

3. Sacerdote arônico da casa paterna de Imer, cujo pai era Jazera. Seu filho, Maasai, serviu em Jerusalém após o exílio babilônico. — 1Cr 9:12.

ADIM [Dado ao Prazer]. Um dos chefes paternais de Israel, de cuja linhagem centenas de descendentes retornaram do exílio babilônico junto com Zorobabel. (Esd 2:15; Ne 7:20) Mais tarde, 51 outros da sua linhagem retornaram com Esdras em 468 AEC. (Esd 8:6) Um representante principesco da casa paterna de Adim estava entre os que atestaram o "arranjo fidedigno" elaborado nos dias de Neemias. — Ne 9:38; 10:1, 16.

ADINA [duma raiz que significa "luxuriar" [isto é, obter prazer]]. Filho de Siza, e oficial sobre outros 30 rubenitas no exército de Davi. — 1Cr 11:26, 42.

ADINO. Veja JOSEBE-BASSEBETE.

ADITAIM. Uma das cidades de Judá, situada na Sefelá, ou terra baixa. (Jos 15:33, 36) A localização exata é incerta.

ADIVINHAÇÃO. A adivinhação, em geral, abrange o inteiro escopo da obtenção de conhecimento secreto, em especial sobre eventos futuros, com a ajuda de poderes espíritas, ocultistas. (Veja ESPIRITISMO.) Para considerações de aspectos específicos da adivinhação veja ASTRÓLOGOS; CONJURADOR; MAGIA E FEITIÇARIA; PROGNOSTICADOR DE EVENTOS.

Os praticantes da adivinhação acreditam que deuses sobre-humanos revelam o futuro aos treinados para ler e interpretar certos sinais e presságios, os quais, dizem eles, são comunicados de diversas maneiras: Por fenômenos celestiais (a posição e o movimento de astros e planetas, eclipses, meteoros), por forças físicas terrestres (vento, tempestades, fogo), pelo comportamento de criaturas (uivo de cães, voo de aves, movimento de serpentes), pelos padrões de folhas de chá na chávena, pela configuração de óleo na superfície da água, pela direção tomada por flechas quando caem, pela aparência de órgãos de animais sacrificados (fígado, pulmão, entranhas), pelas linhas na palma da mão, pelo lançamento de sortes e pelos "espíritos" dos falecidos.

Certos campos da adivinhação receberam nomes específicos. Por exemplo, a auguração, popular entre os romanos, é um estudo de presságios, portentos ou fenômenos casuais; a quiromancia prediz o futuro pelas linhas na palma da mão; a hepatoscopia inspeciona o fígado; a aruspicação inspeciona as entranhas; a belomancia com flechas; a rabdomancia usa a varinha mágica; a oniromancia é a adivinhação pelos sonhos; a necromancia é uma suposta indagação feita aos mortos. A bola de cristal e a adivinhação oracular são mais outras formas.

Origem. O berço da adivinhação foi Babilônia, a terra dos caldeus, e dali estas práticas ocultistas se espalharam por toda a Terra, com a migração da humanidade. (Gên 11:8, 9) Da parte da biblioteca de Assurbanipal que foi desenterrada, diz-se que uma quarta parte contém tabuinhas de presságios que pretendiam interpretar todas as peculiaridades observadas nos céus e na Terra, bem como todas as ocorrências incidentais e acidentais da vida cotidiana. A decisão do Rei Nabucodonosor, de atacar Jerusalém, só foi tomada depois de se recorrer à adivinhação, a respeito da qual está escrito: "Sacudiu as flechas. Indagou por meio dos terafins; examinou o fígado. Na sua direita mostrou-se haver a adivinhação referente à Jerusalém." — Ez 21:21, 22.

Examinar o fígado em busca de presságios se baseava na crença de que toda a vitalidade, emoção e afeição se centralizavam neste órgão. Um sexto do sangue do homem está no fígado. As variações de seus lóbulos, canais, apêndices, veias, saliências e marcas eram interpretadas como sinais ou presságios dos deuses. (Veja ASTRÓLOGOS.) Foi encontrada uma grande quantidade de modelos de fígados em argila, o mais antigo sendo de Babilônia, contendo presságios e textos em escrita cuneiforme, usados pelos adivinhos. (FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 324) Os antigos sacerdotes assírios eram chamados baru, que significa "inspetor" ou "aquele que vê", devido ao destaque que a inspeção do fígado desempenhava na sua religião, voltada para a adivinhação.

Condenada pela Bíblia. Todas as várias formas de adivinhação, independente do nome pelo qual sejam conhecidas, contrastam-se nitidamente com a Bíblia Sagrada e representam um desafio direto a ela. Jeová, mediante Moisés, avisou rigorosa e repetidamente a Israel para que não adotasse tais práticas de adivinhação de outras nações, dizendo: "Não se deve achar em ti alguém que faça seu filho ou sua filha passar pelo fogo, alguém que empregue adivinhação, algum praticante de magia ou quem procure presságios, ou um feiticeiro, ou alguém que prenda outros com encantamento, ou alguém que vá consultar um médium espírita, ou um prognosticador profissional de eventos, ou alguém que consulte os mortos. Pois, todo aquele que faz tais coisas é algo detestável para Jeová, e é por causa destas coisas detestáveis que Jeová, teu Deus, as expulsa de diante de ti." (De 18:9-12; Le 19:26, 31) Mesmo que seus sinais e portentos proféticos se cumprissem, os praticantes da adivinhação não ficavam isentos da condenação. (De 13:1-5; Je 23:32; Za 10:2) A extrema hostilidade da Bíblia para com os adivinhos é demonstrada em seu decreto de que todos eles deveriam ser mortos, sem falta. — Êx 22:18; Le 20:27.

Mas, apesar destes repetidos mandamentos, os apóstatas não faziam caso de Jeová — não só pessoas comuns, como a mulher de En-Dor, mas também poderosos reis, tais como Saul e Manassés, e a Rainha Jezabel. (1Sa 28:7, 8; 2Rs 9:22; 21:1-6; 2Cr 33:1-6) Embora o bom Rei Josias acabasse com os praticantes da adivinhação nos seus dias, isso não bastou para salvar Judá de ser destruído, assim como seu reino-irmão Israel havia sido. (2Rs 17:12-18; 23:24-27) No entanto, Jeová, na sua benevolência, primeiro mandou seus profetas avisá-los a respeito das suas práticas repugnantes, do mesmo modo como seus profetas avisaram a mãe de toda adivinhação, Babilônia. — Is 3:1-3; 8:19, 20; 44:24, 25; 47:9-15; Je 14:14; 27:9; 29:8; Ez 13:6-9, 23; Miq 3:6-12; Za 10:2.

A adivinhação prevalecia também nos dias dos apóstolos de Jesus. Na ilha de Chipre, um feiticeiro de nome Barjesus foi atacado de cegueira por sua interferência na pregação do apóstolo Paulo; e na Macedônia, Paulo expulsou um demônio de adivinhação duma moça que incomodava, para a grande consternação dos amos dela, que haviam lucrado muito com o poder ocultista dela, de fazer predições. (At 13:6-11; 16:16-19) Entretanto, outros, tais como Simão de Samaria, renunciaram voluntariamente à sua prática de artes mágicas, e em Éfeso havia tantos que queimaram seus livros de adivinhação, que o valor destes ascendeu a 50.000 moedas de prata (no caso de denários, US$ 37.200). — At 8:9-13; 19:19.

O desejo natural do homem, de conhecer o futuro, é satisfeito quando ele adora seu Grandioso Criador e o serve, porque Deus, por meio de seu canal de comunicação, revela amorosamente, com antecedência, o que é bom para o homem saber. (Am 3:7) No entanto, quando os homens se desviam de Jeová e se alienam do Único que conhece o fim desde o princípio, facilmente se tornam vítimas da influência demoníaca, espírita. Saul é notável exemplo de alguém que, no início, voltava-se para Jeová em busca de conhecimento dos eventos futuros, mas que, depois de ter sido cortado de todo o contato com Deus, devido à sua infidelidade, voltou-se para os demônios, como substitutos da orientação divina. — 1Sa 28:6, 7; 1Cr 10:13, 14.

Portanto, existe uma nítida diferença entre a verdade revelada de Deus e as informações obtidas pela adivinhação. Os que se voltam para esta frequentemente se tornam vítimas de violentas convulsões causadas por invisíveis forças demoníacas, às vezes atingindo um frenesi por meio de música estranha e certos tóxicos. Os verdadeiros servos de Jeová, quando movidos a falar por espírito santo, não sofrem tais distorções físicas ou mentais. (At 6:15; 2Pe 1:21) Os profetas de Deus, num senso de dever, falavam gratuitamente, sem pagamento; os adivinhos pagãos exerciam seu ofício visando um egoísta lucro pessoal.

Em parte alguma da Bíblia dá-se a qualquer forma de adivinhação uma conotação boa. Muitas vezes, no mesmo texto que condena as práticas espíritas da adivinhação, fala-se delas em conjunto com o adultério e a fornicação. (2Rs 9:22; Na 3:4; Mal 3:5; Gál 5:19, 20; Re 9:21; 21:8; 22:15) Aos olhos de Deus, a adivinhação é comparável ao pecado da rebelião. (1Sa 15:23) Portanto, é antibíblico falar da comunicação de Jeová com seus servos como manifestação de "boa" adivinhação.

Jeová frustra os adivinhos. O poder ilimitado de Jeová, comparado ao poder mui restrito demonstrado pelos adivinhos-mágicos, é dramatizado no caso de Moisés e Arão perante Faraó. Quando a vara de Arão tornou-se uma cobra, os mágicos egípcios aparentaram imitar tal feito. Mas, que revés estes sofreram quando a vara de Arão tragou as dos feiticeiros! Aparentemente, os sacerdotes egípcios transformaram água em sangue, e fizeram com que rãs surgissem no país. Mas, quando Jeová fez com que o pó se transformasse em borrachudos, os feiticeiros, com suas artes secretas, tiveram de admitir que isto fora feito pelo "dedo de Deus". — Êx 7:8-12, 19-22; 8:5-11, 16-19; 9:11.

O iníquo Hamã mandou que 'alguém [evidentemente um astrólogo] lançasse Pur, isto é, a Sorte, de dia em dia e de mês em mês', a fim de determinar a ocasião mais favorável para mandar exterminar o povo de Jeová. (Est 3:7-9) Sobre este texto, certo comentário diz: "Ao recorrer a este método de determinar o dia mais auspicioso para pôr em execução seu plano atroz, Hamã fez o que os reis e os nobres da Pérsia sempre fizeram, nunca se empenhando em algum empreendimento sem consul-tar os astrólogos e ficar satisfeitos quanto à hora de sorte." (Commentary on the Whole Bible [Comentário sobre Toda a Bíblia], de Jamieson, Fausset e Brown) Baseado em tal adivinhação, Hamã pôs imediatamente em execução seu plano iníquo. No entanto, o poder de Jeová, de livrar seu povo, foi novamente demonstrado, e Hamã, que confiava na adivinhação, foi enforcado no próprio madeiro que preparara para Mordecai. — Est 9:24, 25.

Outro exemplo do poder superior de Jeová sobre as forças ocultistas é o caso em que os moabitas vieram "com os honorários pela adivinhação nas suas mãos", a fim de contratar Balaão, o adivinho mesopotâmio, para amaldiçoar Israel. (Núm 22:7) Embora Balaão procurasse "encontrar quaisquer presságios de azar", Jeová fez com que proferisse apenas bênçãos. Em uma das suas declarações proverbiais, Balaão admitiu, sob a força impulsionadora de Jeová: "Contra Jacó não há feitiço de azar, nem adivinhação contra Israel." — Núm caps. 23, 24.

"Espírito de Píton." Em Filipos, na Macedônia, Paulo encontrou uma serva possessa por "um espírito, um demônio de adivinhação", literalmente, "um espírito de píton" (gr.: pneú·ma pý·tho·na; At 16:16). "Píton" era o nome duma serpente mítica, que guardava o templo e o oráculo de Delfos, na Grécia. A palavra pý·thon passou a referir-se a uma pessoa que pudesse predizer o futuro e também ao espírito que falava por intermédio dela. Embora essa palavra fosse mais tarde usada para denotar um ventríloquo, aqui em Atos ela é usada para descrever um demônio que habilitava uma moça a praticar a arte da predição.

ADLAI. Pai de Safate, que serviu como supervisor das manadas de Davi nas baixadas. — 1Cr 27:29.

ADMÁ [Solo]. Uma das cinco cidades na região da "Baixada de Sidim" habitada por cananeus. (Gên 10:19; 14:1-3) Esta baixada, ou vale, encontrava-se provavelmente perto da extremidade meridional do Mar Salgado.

Junto com as cidades vizinhas de Sodoma, Gomorra, Zeboim e Bela (Zoar), Admá e seu rei, Sinabe, sofreram uma derrota por ocasião da invasão de quatro reis orientais. (Gên 14:8-11) Deuteronômio 29:23 mostra que Admá, mais tarde, foi destruída junto com Sodoma, Gomorra e Zeboim, quando Jeová fez chover fogo e enxofre sobre a bacia inteira. (Gên 19:25) Em Oseias 11:8 ela é mencionada como exemplo de aviso, junto com Zeboim.

Muitos peritos acreditam que os lugares originais de Admá e das outras "cidades do Distrito" se encontrem agora submersos nas águas do Mar Salgado, embora outros recentemente tenham afirmado que as ruínas das cidades talvez possam ser identificadas com lugares ao longo de uádis ao L e ao SE do Mar Morto. — Gên 13:12.

ADMATA [do persa, significando "Inconquistado"]. Um dos sete príncipes do reino da Pérsia e da Média, que tinham acesso ao Rei Assuero. Estes príncipes concordaram no julgamento contra a Rainha Vasti, e parece que tal comissão de sete servia regularmente aos reis persas como conselheiros. — Est 1:14; Esd 7:14.

ADMINISTRAÇÃO. Um procedimento gerencial ou um arranjo de supervisão no desempenho duma responsabilidade ou para se atingir um objetivo.

A palavra hebraica traduzida por "administração" em 1 Crônicas 26:30 (pequd·dáh) deriva da raiz paqádh, que significa "visitar; voltar a atenção para". (Ru 1:6 n.) Também é vertida por 'cuidado; supervisão'. — 2Cr 24:11; Núm 3:32; compare isso com 2Rs 11:18 n.; veja SUPERINTENDENTE.

Desde o começo da história humana, Deus autorizou o homem perfeito a cuidar da Terra e a ter em sujeição as criaturas dela. (Gên 1:26-28) Após a rebelião do homem, especialmente a partir do Dilúvio, desenvolveu-se e tornou-se proeminente um sistema patriarcal de administração. Este administrava assuntos e propriedades familiares, e fazia vigorar normas de conduta.

O manejo dos assuntos nacionais de Israel por Moisés, segundo a vontade divina, durante a peregrinação de 40 anos no ermo, oferece um exemplo brilhante de administração, inclusive da delegação de autoridade a subordinados de confiança. (Êx 18:19-26) Dentro do sacerdócio, a responsabilidade primária pela administração recaía sobre o sumo sacerdote (Núm 3:5-10); entretanto, outros recebiam a incumbência da supervisão ou superintendência de certos departamentos de serviço. (Núm 3:25, 26, 30-32, 36, 37; 4:16) Após a entrada de Israel na Terra da Promessa, juízes agiam como administradores da nação, com apoio divino. — Jz 2:16, 18; Ru 1:1.

Com o estabelecimento do reino em Israel, desenvolveu-se um sistema mais completo de administração. Sob o Rei Davi, a estrutura administrativa era bastante detalhada, havendo oficiais diretamente subordinados ao rei e administradores divisionais servindo em todo o país. (1Cr 26:29-32; 27:1, 16-22, 25-34) Também o sacerdócio foi cabalmente organizado durante o reinado de Davi, com supervisores para a obra do tabernáculo, oficiais e juízes, porteiros, cantores e músicos, e o estabelecimento de 24 turmas sacerdotais para cuidar do serviço no tabernáculo. (1Cr 23:1-5; 24:1-19) A administração de Salomão foi ainda mais extensiva e fornece um exemplo notável de hábil administração na construção do templo. — 1Rs 4:1-7, 26, 27; 5:13-18.

Outras nações também desenvolveram complexos sistemas de administração, conforme indicado pelas categorias de oficiais reunidas pelo Rei Nabucodonosor por ocasião da inauguração da sua imagem de ouro. (Da 3:2, 3) O próprio Daniel foi 'feito governante' (do aramaico shelét) sobre o distrito jurisdicional de Babilônia, e sob ele conferiu-se a "administração" (aramaico: 'avi·dháh) civil a Sadraque, Mesaque e Abednego. — Da 2:48, 49.

Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs considera-se muitas vezes o uso correto da autoridade e responsabilidade delegadas aos incumbidos de supervisionar a aplicação e a execução da vontade expressa de Deus entre o povo dele; e faz-se isso por meio de referências à administração (mordomia) e à superintendência. (Lu 16:2-4; 1Co 9:17; Ef 3:2; Col 1:25; Tit 1:7) Embora se mostre que a responsabilidade perante Deus é de máxima importância (Sal 109:8; At 1:20), também se enfatizam os interesses daqueles que servem sob tal administração. —1Pe 4:10; veja MORDOMO.

O que é a "administração" que Deus pôs em operação desde 33 EC?

Deus, na sua benignidade imerecida, se propôs ter "uma administração [gr.: oi·ko·no·mi·an, literalmente: "administração doméstica"] no pleno limite dos tempos designados, a saber, ajuntar novamente todas as coisas no Cristo, as coisas nos céus e as coisas na terra". (Ef 1:10; veja Lu 12:42 n.) Esta "administração", ou gerência, que Deus tem posto em operação desde o dia de Pentecostes de 33 EC, tem por objetivo a unificação de todas as suas criaturas inteligentes. O primeiro estágio da "administração" de Deus é ajuntar novamente "as coisas nos céus", preparando a congregação dos herdeiros do Reino, que hão de viver nos céus sob Jesus Cristo como Cabeça espiritual. (Ro 8:16, 17; Ef 1:11; 1Pe 1:4) O segundo estágio desta "administração" é ajuntar novamente "as coisas na terra", preparando aqueles que hão de viver no Paraíso terrestre. — Jo 10:16; Re 7:9, 10; 21:3, 4.

ADNA [Prazer].

1. Israelita, descendente da casa paterna de Paate-Moabe, entre aqueles que concordaram despedir suas esposas não israelitas durante a purificação que ocorreu depois do conselho de Esdras, o sacerdote. — Esd 10:30, 44 [Adná].

2. Sacerdote pertencente à casa paterna de Harim, nos dias do sumo sacerdote Joiaquim e de Neemias, e de Esdras, o sacerdote. — Ne 12:12-15, 26.

ADNÁ [Prazer].

1. Valente oficial militar de Manassés, que desertou de Saul para o exército de Davi, em Ziclague. Ele lutou ao lado de Davi na perseguição à guerrilha de amalequitas, que devastou o acampamento de Davi em Ziclague, e ele veio a ser chefe no exército de Davi. — 1Cr 12:20, 21; 1Sa 30:1, 2, 17-19.

2. General judeu dos exércitos durante o reinado do Rei Jeosafá, que comandava 300.000 guerreiros poderosos, valentes, e que exercia controle sobre outras 480.000 tropas sob o comando dos generais Jeoanã e Amasia, todos os quais ministravam ao rei em Jerusalém. — 2Cr 17:13-16, 19.

ADOÇÃO. Tomar ou aceitar como filho ou filha alguém que não é tal por parentesco natural. A palavra grega traduzida por "adoção como filhos" (hui·o·the·sí·a) é um termo técnico, jurídico, que literalmente significa "colocação como filho". — Veja Ro 8:15 n.

Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a adoção não é considerada do ponto de vista dum procedimento jurídico, mas a ideia básica é apresentada em diversos casos. Parece que Abraão, antes do nascimento de Ismael e de Isaque, considerava seu escravo, Eliézer, pelo menos candidato a uma posição similar à de um filho adotivo, e como o provável herdeiro da casa de Abraão. (Gên 15:2-4) O costume de adotar escravos como filhos há muito tem sido uma prática comum no Oriente Médio, e estes, como tais, possuíam direitos de herança, embora não à frente dos filhos que descendiam naturalmente do pai.

Tanto Raquel como Leia consideravam os filhos nascidos de Jacó com suas servas como filhos delas mesmas, 'nascidos sobre os seus joelhos'. (Gên 30:3-8, 12, 13, 24) Tais filhos eram herdeiros junto com os nascidos das próprias esposas de Jacó. Eram filhos legítimos do pai, e, visto que as escravas eram propriedade das esposas, Raquel e Leia possuíam direitos de propriedade sobre tais filhos.

O menino Moisés foi mais tarde adotado pela filha de Faraó. (Êx 2:5-10) Visto que os homens e as mulheres gozavam de direitos iguais sob a lei egípcia, a filha de Faraó estava em condições de exercer o direito de adoção.

Parece que não se praticava amplamente a adoção dentro da nação de Israel. A lei do casamento levirato, sem dúvida, eliminou em grande parte o motivo básico para a adoção de filhos: a perpetuação do nome parental. — De 25:5, 6.

Significado Cristão. Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, a adoção é mencionada várias vezes pelo apóstolo Paulo com respeito à nova condição dos chamados e escolhidos por Deus. Tais pessoas, nascidas como descendentes do imperfeito Adão, estavam em escravidão ao pecado e não possuíam a inerente filiação de Deus. Através da compra por meio de Cristo Jesus, obtêm a adoção quais filhos e também se tornam herdeiros junto com Cristo, o Filho unigênito de Deus. (Gál 4:1-7; Ro 8:14-17) Não adquirem tal filiação de modo natural, mas pela escolha de Deus, e segundo a Sua vontade. (Ef 1:5) Ao passo que são reconhecidos como filhos de Deus desde o tempo em que Deus os gera por meio de Seu espírito (1Jo 3:1; Jo 1:12, 13), sua plena obtenção deste privilégio como filhos espirituais de Deus depende de sua fidelidade até o fim. (Ro 8:17; Re 21:7) Assim, Paulo fala deles como 'esperando seriamente a adoção como filhos, serem livrados de seus corpos por meio de resgate'. — Ro 8:23.

Tal estado adotivo traz benefícios de libertação dum 'espírito de escravidão, causando temor', substituindo-o pela confiança de filhos; de esperança duma herança celeste garantida pelo testemunho do espírito de Deus. Ao mesmo tempo, lembra-se a tais filhos espirituais, pela sua adoção, que tal posição se deve à benignidade imerecida e à escolha de Deus, em vez de a seu direito herdado. — Ro 8:15, 16; Gál 4:5-7.

Em Romanos 9:4, Paulo fala dos israelitas carnais como aqueles "a quem pertencem a adoção como filhos, e a glória, e os pactos, e a promulgação da Lei", e isto evidentemente se refere à posição ímpar concedida a Israel enquanto era o povo pactuado de Deus. Assim, Deus, vez por outra, mencionava Israel como "meu filho". (Êx 4:22, 23; De 14:1, 2; Is 43:6; Je 31:9; Os 1:10; 11:1; compare isso com Jo 8:41.) A filiação real, porém, aguardava a provisão de resgate feita mediante Cristo Jesus e dependia da aceitação desse arranjo divino e da fé nele. — Jo 1:12, 13; Gál 4:4, 5; 2Co 6:16-18.

ADOM. Aparentemente um lugar não identificado em Babilônia, do qual procederam alguns dos que retornaram a Jerusalém em 537 AEC, no fim da desolação de Judá por 70 anos, que não conseguiram confirmar sua genealogia à base dos registros públicos. Em consequência disso, ficaram desqualificados de servir no sacerdócio. Alguns peritos acham que Adom tenha sido uma pessoa que não conseguiu provar sua descendência. — Esd 2:59-62; Ne 7:61-64.

ADONIAS [Jeová É Senhor].

1. Quarto filho de Davi, nascido de Hagite, em Hébron. — 2Sa 3:4, 5.

Embora tivesse outra mãe, Adonias era muito similar a Absalão em ter "muito boa figura", bem como na sua ambição. (1Rs 1:5, 6; veja 2Sa 14:25; 15:1.) Ele passa a destacar-se no registro bíblico durante os últimos anos de Davi. Apesar da declaração de Jeová, de que o reinado seria de Salomão (1Cr 22:9, 10), Adonias começou a jactar-se de que seria o próximo rei de Israel. Visto que Amnom e Absalão, e provavelmente Quileabe, já estavam mortos, Adonias sem dúvida alicerçava suas pretensões ao trono com base em ser o filho mais velho. Como Absalão, fez ostentosa exibição de suas pretensões, e não foi corrigido por seu pai. Conseguiu um grupo de apoiadores por granjear o favor do chefe do exército, Joabe, e do cabeça do sacerdócio, Abiatar. (1Rs 1:5-8) Realizou então um banquete sacrificial perto de En-Rogel, a uma curta distância da cidade de Jerusalém, convidando a maioria da casa real, mas não a Salomão, nem a Natã, o profeta, nem a Benaia. Seu intuito óbvio era fazer-se declarar rei. — 1Rs 1:9, 10, 25.

Natã, o profeta, agiu prontamente para bloquear a trama de Adonias. Aconselhou a mãe de Salomão, Bate-Seba, a lembrar a Davi o seu juramento a favor do reinado de Salomão, e então surgiu depois dela nos aposentos do rei, para confirmar as palavras dela e alertar Davi quanto à gravidade da situação, e também, na realidade, para dar a entender que achava que Davi talvez estivesse agindo pelas costas de seus associados íntimos. (1Rs 1:11-27) Isto moveu o idoso rei à ação, e ele prontamente deu ordens para a imediata unção de Salomão como corregente e sucessor ao trono. Esta medida provocou alegre alvoroço entre o povo, que foi ouvido no banquete de Adonias. Logo um mensageiro, o filho do sacerdote Abiatar, chegou com as notícias inquietantes de Davi ter proclamado rei a Salomão. Os apoiadores de Adonias prontamente se dispersaram e ele fugiu para o pátio do tabernáculo, procurando refúgio. Salomão então lhe concedeu o perdão, condicionado a seu bom comportamento. — 1Rs 1:32-53.

No entanto, depois da morte de Davi, Adonias acercou-se de Bate-Seba e a induziu a agir como sua agente perante Salomão, para solicitar por esposa a Abisague, a jovem enfermeira e companheira de Davi. A declaração de Adonias, de que "o reinado ia tornar-se meu e que foi em mim que todo o Israel fixou a sua face para eu me tornar rei", indica que ele achava ter sido privado do seu direito, muito embora professasse reconhecer a mão de Deus neste assunto. (1Rs 2:13-21) Embora a sua solicitação talvez se baseasse inteiramente no desejo de obter alguma compensação pela perda do reino, sugeria fortemente que as chamas da ambição continuavam acesas em Adonias, visto que, segundo uma regra no antigo Oriente, as esposas e as concubinas dum rei só se tornariam as do seu sucessor legal. (Compare isso com 2Sa 3:7; 16:21.) Salomão encarou assim tal solicitação, feita mediante sua mãe, e ordenou a morte de Adonias, ordem que prontamente foi executada por Benaia. — 1Rs 2:22-25.

2. Levita enviado por Jeosafá para ensinar nas cidades de Judá. — 2Cr 17:7-9.

3. Um dos "cabeças do povo" cujo descendente, se não ele mesmo, se juntou a certos príncipes e levitas em atestar com selo o contrato de confissão feito pelos israelitas que haviam retornado, nos dias de Neemias e Esdras. (Ne 9:38; 10:1, 14, 16) Alguns sugerem ser ele o mesmo que o Adonicão de Esdras 2:13, cujos descendentes, ascendendo a 666, retornaram de Babilônia sob Zorobabel, em 537 AEC. Uma comparação dos nomes daqueles que, como representantes do povo, selaram a resolução em Neemias 10 com os alistados como cabeças dos exilados retornados em Esdras 2 parece apoiar isso.

ADONI-BEZEQUE [Senhor de Bezeque]. Poderoso governante que, antes do ataque israelita em Bezeque, havia humilhado 70 reis pagãos por amputar-lhes os polegares das mãos e os dedos grandes dos pés.

Uma prática similar foi em certa época adotada pelos antigos atenienses, que decretaram que os prisioneiros de guerra deviam perder os polegares das mãos. Depois, eles podiam remar, mas não eram aptos para manejar uma espada ou uma lança. Pouco depois da morte de Josué, as forças conjuntas de Judá e Simeão chocaram-se com 10.000 tropas dos cananeus e dos perizeus em Bezeque, pondo Adoni-Bezeque em fuga diante da derrota. Ao ser capturado, também se lhe amputaram os polegares e os dedos grandes dos pés, ocasião em que ele declarou: "Assim como eu fiz, assim me retribuiu Deus." Ele foi levado a Jerusalém, onde faleceu. — Jz 1:4-7.

ADONICÃO [(Meu) Senhor Se Ergueu [isto é, para ajudar]]. Fundador de uma das casas paternas de Israel. Mais de 600 membros desta família retornaram a Jerusalém com Zorobabel após o exílio em Babilônia. (Esd 2:13; Ne 7:18) Outros 63 membros desta casa paterna acompanharam Esdras a Jerusalém em 468 AEC. (Esd 8:13) Quando os representantes das casas paternas atestaram o "arranjo fidedigno", ou a resolução formulada nos dias de Neemias, parece que esta família foi alistada com o nome de Adonias. — Ne 9:38; 10:16.

ADONIRÃO [(Meu) Senhor É Alto (Exaltado)]. Um príncipe, hábil administrador, e filho de Abda. Adonirão serviu como superintendente dos recrutados para trabalho forçado durante os reinados de Davi, de Salomão e de Roboão, desempenhando um papel importante nos muitos projetos de construção de Salomão. Mais tarde, quando as dez tribos se revoltaram contra as ordens duras de Roboão em Siquém, em 997 AEC, o rei mandou este recrutador para impor ao povo trabalho forçado, mas "atiraram pedras nele, de modo que morreu". (2Cr 10:18) Ele é variadamente chamado de Adonirão (1Rs 4:6; 5:14), e de Adorão. — 2Sa 20:24; 1Rs 12:18; 2Cr 10:18.

ADONI-ZEDEQUE [(Meu) Senhor É Justiça]. Rei de Jerusalém na época da conquista israelita da Terra da Promessa. Adoni-Zedeque juntou-se com outros pequenos reinos ao O do Jordão num esforço consolidado de parar as forças conquistadoras de Josué. (Jos 9:1-3) Todavia, os habitantes heveus de Gibeão fizeram paz com Josué. Numa medida retaliadora, destinada a impedir outras deserções ao inimigo, Adoni-Zedeque uniu seu exército ao de outros quatro reis dos amorreus, e sitiou Gibeão, guerreando contra ela. O salvamento espetacular dos gibeonitas por Josué e a esmagadora derrota destas forças conjuntas fez com que os cinco reis fugissem para Maquedá, onde ficaram encurralados numa caverna. O próprio Josué abateu Adoni-Zedeque e os outros quatro reis perante as suas tropas, e pendurou-os em estacas. Os cadáveres deles foram por fim lançados na mesma caverna, a qual se tornou a sepultura deles. — Jos 10:1-27.

ADORAÇÃO. Prestação de honra ou homenagem reverente. A adoração verdadeira do Criador abrange todo aspecto da vida da pessoa. O apóstolo Paulo escreveu aos coríntios: "Quer comais, quer bebais, quer façais qualquer outra coisa, fazei todas as coisas para a glória de Deus." — 1Co 10:31.

Quando Jeová Deus criou Adão, não prescreveu nenhuma cerimônia específica ou um meio pelo qual o homem perfeito pudesse aproximar-se Dele em adoração. Todavia, Adão podia servir ou adorar seu Criador por fazer fielmente a vontade de seu Pai celeste. Mais tarde, para a nação de Israel, Jeová deveras delineou certo modo de aproximação em adoração, que incluía sacrifícios, um sacerdócio e um santuário material. (Veja APROXIMAÇÃO A DEUS.) Isto, contudo, era apenas "uma sombra das boas coisas vindouras, mas não a própria substância das coisas". (He 10:1) A ênfase primária sempre foi dada a se exercer fé — fazer a vontade de Jeová Deus — e não a cerimônias ou rituais. — Mt 7:21; Tg 2:17-26.

Conforme o profeta Miqueias o expressou: "Com que confrontarei a Jeová? Com que me encurvarei diante de Deus no alto? Confrontá-lo-ei com holocaustos, com bezerros de um ano de idade? Terá Jeová prazer em milhares de carneiros, com dezenas de milhares de torrentes de azeite? Darei o meu primogênito pela minha revolta, o fruto do meu ventre pelo pecado da minha alma? Ele te informou, ó homem terreno, sobre o que é bom. E o que é que Jeová pede de volta de ti senão que exerças a justiça, e ames a benignidade, e andes modestamente com o teu Deus?" — Miq 6:6-8; veja Sal 50:8-15, 23.

Termos Hebraicos e Gregos. A maioria das palavras hebraicas e gregas que podem denotar adoração também podem ser aplicadas a atos que não são de adoração. No entanto, o contexto determina de que modo devem ser entendidas as respectivas palavras.

Uma das palavras hebraicas que transmite a ideia de adoração ('a·vádh) significa basicamente "servir". (Gên. 14:4; 15:13; 29:15) Servir ou adorar a Jeová exige obediência a todas as suas ordens, fazer Sua vontade como alguém exclusivamente devotado a Ele. (Êx 19:5; De 30:15-20; Jos 24:14, 15) Por conseguinte, empenhar-se alguém em qualquer ritual ou ato de devoção para com quaisquer outros deuses significa abandonar a adoração verdadeira. — De 11:13-17; Jz 3:6, 7.

Outro termo hebraico que pode denotar adoração é hish·ta·hhawáh, que significa primariamente "curvar-se" (Gên 18:2) ou render homenagem. (Veja HOMENAGEM.) Ao passo que esse curvar-se às vezes podia simplesmente ser um ato de respeito ou de cortesia para com outra pessoa (Gên 19:1, 2; 33:1-6; 37:9, 10), podia ser também uma expressão de adoração, indicando a reverência e gratidão da pessoa a Deus e submissão à Sua vontade. Quando usada com referência ao Deus verdadeiro, ou a deidades falsas, a palavra hish·ta·hhawáh às vezes é associada com sacrifícios e oração. (Gên 22:5-7; 24:26, 27; Is 44:17) Isto indica que era comum curvar-se quando se orava ou se oferecia um sacrifício. — Veja ORAÇÃO.

A raiz hebraica sa·ghádh (Is 44:15, 17, 19; 46:6) significa basicamente "prostrar-se". A palavra aramaica equivalente usualmente é associada com adoração (Da 3:5-7, 10-15, 18, 28), mas é usada em Daniel 2:46 para referir-se ao Rei Nabucodonosor prestar homenagem a Daniel, prostrando-se diante do profeta.

O verbo grego la·treú·o (Lu 1:74; 2:37; 4:8; At 7:7) e o substantivo la·trei·a (Jo 16:2; Ro 9:4) transmitem a ideia de se prestar não meramente um serviço comum, ordinário, mas sim serviço sagrado.

A palavra grega pro·sky·né·o corresponde de perto ao termo hebraico hish·ta·hhawáh em expressar a ideia de homenagem, e, às vezes, de adoração. O termo pro·sky·né·o é usado em conexão com um escravo prestar homenagem a um rei (Mt 18:26), bem como com o ato que Satanás estipulou quando ofereceu a Jesus todos os reinos do mundo e a glória destes. (Mt 4:8, 9) Se Jesus rendesse homenagem ao Diabo, ele teria com isso indicado sua submissão a Satanás e se tornado o servo do Diabo. Mas Jesus recusou-se, dizendo: "Vai-te Satanás! Pois está escrito: 'É a Jeová, teu Deus, que tens de adorar [forma do gr. pro·sky·né·o, ou, no relato de Deuteronômio que Jesus citava, hebr. hish·ta·hhawáh], e é somente a ele que tens de prestar serviço sagrado [forma do gr. la·treú·o, ou do hebr. 'a·vádh].' " (Mt 4:10; De 5:9; 6:13) Similarmente, adorar, homenagear ou curvar-se à "fera" e à sua "imagem" é ligado a serviço, pois os adoradores são identificados como apoiadores da "fera" e de sua "imagem" por terem uma marca, quer na mão (com a qual a pessoa presta serviço) quer na testa (para que todos a vejam). Visto ser o Diabo quem dá autoridade à fera, adorar a fera significa, em realidade, adorar ou servir o Diabo. — Re 13:4, 15-17; 14:9-11.

Outras palavras gregas ligadas à adoração são derivadas de eu·se·bé·o, thre·skeú·o e sé·bo·mai. A palavra eu·se·bé·o significa "dar devoção piedosa a" ou "venerar, reverenciar". (Veja DEVOÇÃO PIEDOSA.) Em Atos 17:23, este termo é usado com referência à devoção piedosa ou veneração que os homens de Atenas davam a um "Deus Desconhecido". De thre·skeú·o vem o substantivo thre·skei·a, entendido como designando uma "forma de adoração", quer verdadeira quer falsa. (At 26:5; Col 2:18) A adoração verdadeira praticada pelos cristãos era assinalada pela genuína preocupação com os pobres e pela completa separação do mundo impiedoso. (Tg 1:26, 27) A palavra sé·bo·mai (Mt 15:9; Mr 7:7; At 18:7; 19:27) e o termo relacionado se·bá·zo·mai (Ro 1:25) significam "reverenciar; venerar; adorar". Objetos de adoração ou de devoção são designados pelo substantivo sé·ba·sma. (At 17:23; 2Te 2:4) Dois outros termos são desta mesma raiz verbal, juntando-se-lhe o prefixo The·ós, Deus. São the·o·se·bés, que significa "reverente a Deus" (Jo 9:31), e the·o·sé·bei·a, denotando "reverência a Deus". (1Ti 2:10) Estes dois termos correspondem um tanto à palavra alemã para "adoração pública", a saber, Gottesdienst (combinação de "Deus" e "serviço").

Adoração Que É Aceitável a Deus. Jeová Deus só aceita a adoração dos que se comportam em harmonia com Sua vontade. (Mt 15:9; Mr 7:7) A uma samaritana, Cristo Jesus disse: "Vem a hora em que nem neste monte [Gerizim], nem em Jerusalém, adorareis o Pai. Adorais o que não conheceis; nós adoramos o que conhecemos . . . Não obstante, vem a hora, e agora é, quando os verdadeiros adoradores adorarão o Pai com espírito e verdade, pois, deveras, o Pai está procurando a tais para o adorarem. Deus é Espírito, e os que o adoram têm de adorá-lo com espírito e verdade." — Jo 4:21-24.

As palavras de Jesus mostravam claramente que a adoração verdadeira não dependeria da presença nem do uso de coisas visíveis, ou de localidades geográficas. Ao invés de depender da visão ou do tato, o adorador verdadeiro exerce fé, e, sem considerar o local ou as coisas em sua volta, mantém uma atitude de adoração. Assim, ele adora, não com a ajuda de algo que possa ver ou tocar, mas com espírito. Visto que possui a verdade conforme revelada por Deus, sua adoração está de acordo com a verdade. Tendo-se familiarizado com Deus por meio da Bíblia e da evidência da operação do espírito de Deus em sua vida, aquele que adora com espírito e verdade definitivamente 'conhece o que adora'.

ADORAIM. Uma das cidades de Judá, reconstruída e fortificada pelo Rei Roboão no décimo século AEC. (2Cr 11:9) Ela é identificada com a moderna aldeia de Dura, situada numa colina a cerca de 8 km ao O de Hébron.

ADORÃO. Veja ADONIRÃO.

ADORNO. Aquilo que é usado para adornar, enfeitar, embelezar, aumentar o brilho e tornar a própria pessoa, ou aquilo que ela representa, agradável ou atraente. Pode ser usado com propósito bom ou enganoso. A palavra hebraica para "adorno" é hadha·ráh, evidentemente derivada da raiz ha·dhár, que significa "honra". (1Cr 16:29; La 5:12) Em 1 Pedro 3:3, "adorno" traduz a palavra grega kósmos, em outros lugares vertida por "mundo". O verbo relacionado ko·smé·o é traduzido por 'adornar'. — Tit 2:10.

As Escrituras não condenam o adorno físico, se usado apropriadamente, e recomendam altamente o adorno espiritual. O próprio Jeová é descrito como vestido de luz e cercado de beleza. (Sal 104:1, 2; Ez 1:1, 4-28; Re 4:2, 3) Ele tem ornamentado ricamente sua criação com cores, variedade e majestosa magnificência. — Lu 12:27, 28; Sal 139:14; 1Co 15:41.

Nos tempos bíblicos, o noivo e a noiva se adornavam para a festa de casamento. Em preparação, a noiva se enfeitava com a roupa mais fina e o melhor das coisas ornamentais que ela possuía, a fim de se apresentar perante o noivo. (Sal 45:13, 14; Is 61:10) Jeová fala a Jerusalém, descrevendo-a figuradamente como uma jovem a quem enfeitou com roupas e joias excelentes e caras, mas que usou infielmente sua beleza e seu adorno, como prostituta. (Ez 16:10-19) Oseias, profeta de Jeová, condenou Israel por se adornar com a finalidade errada de atrair amantes apaixonados e de praticar a adoração falsa. (Os 2:13) Por meio de seus profetas, Jeová predisse uma restauração de Israel, quando sairia do cativeiro babilônico e se adornaria novamente para expressar sua alegria e exultação. — Is 52:1; Je 31:4.

O templo em Jerusalém e os prédios governamentais de Salomão eram lindamente adornados, para o deleite da rainha de Sabá. (1Rs, caps. 6, 7, 10) O templo reconstruído por Herodes era um edifício magnífico, adornado de pedras excelentes e de coisas dedicadas. Jesus, porém, mostrou que tais adornos materiais não teriam nenhum valor quando o julgamento de Deus viesse sobre Jerusalém, devido à infidelidade dela. — Lu 21:5, 6.

Os Provérbios mostram que, se grande número de pessoas escolhem viver sob o governo dum rei e se deleitam com este governo, isso é certa medida do êxito do rei. É um adorno para ele, recomendando-o e aumentando seu brilho como regente. (Pr 14:28) Jeová é tal governante por meio de seu Reino Messiânico. — Sal 22:27-31; Fil 2:10, 11.

Conselhos Cristãos sobre Adorno Pessoal. Jesus e seus apóstolos deram conselhos constantes quanto a não se confiar nas coisas físicas, nem fazer falsa ostentação de si por meio de adornos materiais. O apóstolo Paulo disse que as mulheres cristãs deveriam 'adornar-se em vestido bem arrumado, com modéstia e bom juízo, não com estilos de trançados dos cabelos, e com ouro, ou pérolas, ou vestimenta muito cara'. (1Ti 2:9) Durante os dias dos apóstolos era costume entre as mulheres daquele mundo de cultura grega adotar penteados elaborados e outros adornos. Quão apropriado, portanto, é o conselho de Pedro às mulheres da congregação cristã, de não darem ênfase ao 'trançado externo dos cabelos e ao uso de ornamentos de ouro ou ao trajar de roupa exterior', mas de fazer que seu adorno seja, como era o das mulheres fiéis da antiguidade, "a pessoa secreta do coração, na vestimenta incorruptível dum espírito quieto e brando"! — 1Pe 3:3-5.

O apóstolo Paulo indica que o cristão pode, pelas obras excelentes da incorruptibilidade de seu ensino, da seriedade, da linguagem saudável e da conduta correta em todo o seu modo de vida, adornar os ensinos de Deus, tornando-os atraentes a outros. (Tit 2:10) Deste modo espiritual, a congregação cristã, a noiva de Cristo, surge por fim em toda a sua beleza diante do seu marido, Jesus Cristo. Ela é similarmente descrita em Revelação 21:2 como estando "preparada como noiva adornada para seu marido". Sua beleza espiritual está em contraste direto com o adorno de Babilônia, a Grande, mencionada como adornada de coisas materiais, o salário de suas prostituições. — Re 18:16; veja COSMÉTICOS; ENFEITES (ORNAMENTOS); JOIAS E PEDRAS PRECIOSAS; VESTIMENTA.

ADRAMELEQUE.

1. Filho do Rei Senaqueribe, da Assíria. Adrameleque e seu irmão Sarezer mataram seu pai enquanto ele se curvava na casa de seu deus Nisroque, em Nínive. Eles fugiram então para a terra de Ararate, aparentemente o lugar da antiga Armênia, na região montanhosa ao O do que agora é conhecido como o mar Cáspio. (2Rs 19:35-37; Is 37:36-38) Uma inscrição de Esar-Hadom, outro filho de Senaqueribe, conta que, como sucessor de seu pai, combateu e derrotou os exércitos dos assassinos de seu pai em Hanigalbat, naquela região.

2. Um deus adorado pelos sefarvitas, um dos povos subjugados que o rei da Assíria trouxe ao território de Samaria, depois de levar os israelitas do reino de dez tribos ao exílio. Era a Adrameleque e a Anameleque que os sefarvitas sacrificavam seus filhos no fogo. — 2Rs 17:22-24, 31, 33.

ADRAMÍTIO. Cidade portuária do mar Egeu, situada na Mísia, no canto NO da Ásia Menor, ao N de Pérgamo. Na Turquia moderna, a cidade interiorana de Edremit (ao L do porto) preserva o nome primitivo.

Adramítio era parte da província da Ásia sob a regência romana, e, evidentemente, por certo tempo, foi um centro comercial marítimo de certa importância, visto que se situava junto à estrada romana que passava por Pérgamo e Éfeso ao S, e Assos, Trôade e o Helesponto ao O e ao N. É provável que Paulo tenha passado por Adramítio em sua terceira viagem missionária. A única referência bíblica direta ao lugar, porém, acha-se em Atos 27:2. Em Cesareia, Paulo, como prisioneiro sob a guarda do oficial romano Júlio, embarcou num navio de Adramítio, que navegava para pontos ao longo do litoral da Ásia Menor. O grupo de Paulo deixou o navio em Mirra, na Lícia, passando para um barco de cereais de Alexandria, que navegava para a Itália. — At 27:3-6.

ÁDRIA. Em Atos 27:27, faz-se referência ao "mar de Ádria", em que Paulo passou quatorze dias turbulentos antes de sofrer naufrágio perto da ilha de Malta. Estrabão diz que este nome deriva da cidade de Átria, situada na foz do rio Pó, no que é agora conhecido como o golfo de Veneza. (Geography [Geografia], 5, I, 8) A atual cidade italiana de Ádria situa-se um tanto afastada da costa. Parece que o nome Ádria veio a aplicar-se às águas nessa vizinhança, e foi progressivamente estendido para incluir todo o atual mar Adriático, o mar Jônico e aquelas águas do Mediterrâneo ao L da Sicília (e Malta) e ao O de Creta. De modo que o nome abrangia algumas águas que atualmente são consideradas como fora do mar Adriático; mas, nos dias de Paulo, a ilha de Malta poderia ser corretamente mencionada como cercada pelo "mar de Ádria".

ADRIEL. Filho de Barzilai, da cidade de Abel-Meolá.

Adriel recebeu por esposa a filha mais velha de Saul, Merabe, embora anteriormente ela tivesse sido prometida a Davi. (1Sa 18:17-19) Todos os cinco filhos de Adriel foram mais tarde entregues para serem executados, a fim de ajudar a expiar a tentativa de Saul de aniquilar os gibeonitas. (2Sa 21:8, 9) Neste relato se fala de Mical, em vez de Merabe, como mãe dos cinco filhos de Adriel. Visto que Mical morreu sem ter filhos (2Sa 6:23) e em parte alguma é mencionada como tendo sido esposa de Adriel, alguns tradutores encaram o aparecimento do nome de Mical como erro de escriba. Quase todos os manuscritos hebraicos, porém, usam o nome de Mical, e a explicação tradicional é que Merabe, irmã mais velha de Mical, faleceu cedo, depois de ter dado cinco filhos a Adriel, e que Mical depois se encarregou de criar os cinco meninos da sua irmã, o que resultou em esses serem mencionados como filhos dela. A tradução de Isaac Leeser (em inglês) reza em 2 Samuel 21:8: "E os cinco filhos de Mical, a filha de Saul, os quais ela criou para Adriel."

ADULÃO. Cidade de Judá, na fértil terra baixa ou Sefelá, a cerca de meio caminho entre Belém e Laquis. (Jos 15:35) É identificada com Tel esh-Sheikh Madhkur (Horvat ʽAdullam), a cerca de 26 km a OSO de Jerusalém. O nome original parece estar preservado no nome das ruínas próximas de ʽId el-Ma (Miyeh). O lugar de Adulão domina o uádi es-Sur e o acesso desta parte da Sefelá ao interior de Judá, tornando-a assim uma localidade estratégica. É primariamente conhecida por causa da "caverna de Adulão", para onde Davi fugiu de diante do Rei Saul. Há numerosas cavernas de rocha calcária nesta área. — 2Sa 23:13.

Adulão era, evidentemente, uma cidade antiga. Sua primeira menção bíblica é em conexão com Hira, "o adulamita", que se tornou companheiro de Judá antes da transferência da família de Jacó para o Egito. (Gên 38:1, 2, 12, 20) No tempo da invasão feita por Josué, cerca de três séculos depois, Adulão era um dos 31 pequenos reinos que foram derrotados por ele. (Jos 11:1-15; 12:15) Adulão foi depois concedida a Judá, junto com outras cidades da Sefelá. — Jos 15:33-35.

Davi, qual fugitivo do Rei Saul, escapou do rei filisteu, Aquis, de Gate, e subiu para uma caverna em Adulão, onde com o tempo cerca de 400 homens se juntaram a ele. (1Sa 22:1-5) A área, a cerca de 19 km ao OSO de Belém, talvez fosse conhecida a Davi já desde seus dias de pastor. Sua relativa inacessibilidade parece tê-la recomendado como a fortaleza de Davi. Em épocas posteriores, durante seu reinado, Davi a usou como centro de operações nas guerras contra os filisteus. Foi deste ponto que os três guerreiros fizeram sua incursão até Belém para obter a água da cisterna, que Davi posteriormente recusou beber, como representando o sangue deles, posto em risco para obtê-la. — 1Cr 11:15-19; 12:16; 2Sa 5:17, 18.

Adulão era uma duma cadeia de quinze cidades-fortalezas reforçadas por Roboão, de Judá. (2Cr 11:5-12) Esta cadeia, que visava fornecer proteção ao O e ao S, foi tomada pelas tropas de Senaqueribe, durante o governo de Ezequias (732 AEC). (2Rs 18:13) Adulão é mencionada nos dias de Neemias como estando entre as cidades recolonizadas pelos judeus repatriados, que voltaram do exílio babilônico. — Ne 11:30.

ADULTÉRIO. Conforme o uso da palavra na Bíblia, geralmente o adultério refere-se a relações sexuais voluntárias de uma pessoa casada com alguém do sexo oposto que não é seu cônjuge, ou, durante o tempo em que a Lei mosaica vigorava, tais relações sexuais de qualquer homem com uma mulher casada ou noiva. A raiz hebraica que significa "cometer adultério" é na·'áf, ao passo que seu equivalente grego é moi·kheú·o. — Ez 16:32, n.; Mt 5:32, n.

Certas sociedades primitivas permitem relações sexuais livres dentro da mesma tribo, mas a promiscuidade fora dos vínculos tribais é considerada adultério. Sobre a história do adultério, Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary of Folklore, Mythology and Legend (Dicionário Padrão de Folclore, Mitologia e Lendas, de Funk e Wagnalls, 1949, Vol. 1, p. 15) diz: "Ele ocorre em todas as partes do mundo, e embora seja considerado repreensível por muitas culturas, tem usufruído considerável popularidade em todas as culturas e em todas as épocas." Monumentos atestam a sua prevalência no antigo Egito; a esposa de Potifar, que propôs a José ter relações sexuais com ela, era tal egípcia. (Gên 39:7, 10) Tanto historicamente como no presente, em geral, o adultério é proibido, mas raras vezes se impõem penalidades.

A lei de Jeová separava Israel e elevava a condição moral do casamento e da vida marital a um nível muito mais elevado do que o das nações circunvizinhas. O sétimo mandamento do Decálogo declarava em linguagem direta, inequívoca: "Não deves cometer adultério." (Êx 20:14; De 5:18; Lu 18:20) A invasão adúltera do domínio de outro homem era proibida, assim como eram outras formas de má conduta sexual. — Veja FORNICAÇÃO; PROSTITUTA.

Sob a lei de Moisés, a penalidade para o adultério era severa — a morte de ambas as partes culpadas: "Caso um homem seja encontrado deitado com uma mulher que tenha dono, então ambos têm de morrer juntos." Isto se aplicava até mesmo à mulher prometida em casamento, considerando-se que ela cometera adultério se tivesse tido relações sexuais com um homem que não era aquele de quem era devidamente noiva. (De 22:22-24) Se se suspeitasse adultério da parte da esposa, ela tinha de ser julgada. — Núm 5:11-31; veja COXA.

Os cristãos, embora não sob a Lei mosaica, também precisam refrear-se do adultério. "Pois o código da lei: 'Não deves cometer adultério', . . . está englobado nesta palavra, a saber: 'Tens de amar o teu próximo como a ti mesmo.'" Não pode haver nenhuma hipocrisia neste assunto. (Ro 13:9; 2:22) Ao ensinar princípios bíblicos, Jesus elevou ainda mais o padrão moral para os cristãos. Ele ampliou a questão do adultério, dizendo que este não se limitava ao contato sexual de um homem com uma mulher que não fosse seu cônjuge: "Todo aquele que persiste em olhar para uma mulher, a ponto de ter paixão por ela, já cometeu no coração adultério com ela." Tais homens acham-se entre aqueles que "têm olhos cheios de adultério". — Mt 5:27, 28; 2Pe 2:14.

Jesus salientou também que, se quer o marido quer a esposa obtivessem divórcio, a não ser por motivo de fornicação (gr.: por·nei·a), o novo casamento de qualquer um deles constituiria adultério. Mesmo o solteiro que tomasse por esposa tal mulher divorciada seria culpado de adultério. — Mt 5:32; 19:9; Mr 10:11, 12; Lu 16:18; Ro 7:2, 3.

Adulterar é "realmente pecar contra Deus". (Gên 39:9) Jeová julgará os culpados de adultério, e ninguém que persistir em tal proceder 'herdará o reino de Deus'. (Mal 3:5; 1Co 6:9, 10; He 13:4) Quão verdadeiro é o provérbio: "Quem comete adultério com uma mulher é falto de coração; quem faz isso, arruína a sua própria alma." — Pr 6:32-35.

Como poderia alguém tornar-se culpado de adultério espiritual?

Em sentido espiritual, o adultério denota infidelidade a Jeová por parte dos que estão ligados a ele por meio dum pacto. Por conseguinte, o Israel natural, que estava no pacto da Lei, era culpado de adultério espiritual, devido às práticas religiosas falsas, algumas das quais incluíam ritos de adoração do sexo e a desconsideração do sétimo mandamento. (Je 3:8, 9; 5:7, 8; 9:2; 13:27; 23:10; Os 7:4) Por razões similares, Jesus denunciou como adúltera a geração dos judeus de seus dias. (Mt 12:39; Mr 8:38) Semelhantemente hoje, se os cristãos que se dedicaram a Jeová e que estão no novo pacto se maculam com o atual sistema de coisas, eles cometem adultério espiritual. — Tg 4:4.

ADUMIM [duma raiz que significa "vermelho"; possivelmente: Rochas Vermelhas]. A subida de Adumim é um passo íngreme a cerca de 12 km ENE de Jerusalém, e a meio caminho entre as cidades de Jericó e de Jerusalém. Ascende do baixo vale do Jordão para a região montanhosa de Judá. Desde os tempos antigos e até o presente, a estrada entre as duas cidades atravessa este passo. É mencionada no registro bíblico, porém, apenas como demarcação de fronteira entre os territórios de Judá e de Benjamim. — Jos 15:7; 18:17.

Em árabe, o passo é chamado de Talʽat ed-Damm (significando "Subida de Sangue"), e em hebraico Maʽale Adummim (significando "Subida de Adumim"). Embora alguns escritores antigos tenham atribuído a origem do nome ao derramamento de sangue por ladrões e salteadores de estrada, a explicação mais provável é a cor avermelhada do solo, devido a trechos expostos de terra ocra. O caminho sempre foi perigoso, por causa do isolamento da região e da prevalência de roubo, e desde tempos primitivos mantinha-se ali um forte para proteger os viajantes. Por causa disso, sugeriu-se este lugar como o cenário do ataque ao viajante 'que descia para Jericó', mencionado na ilustração de Jesus a respeito do prestimoso samaritano. — Lu 10:30-37.

O "vale da torrente" mencionado em Josué 15:7, em relação com o qual a subida de Adumim estava ao S, evidentemente é o uádi el Qilt, que corre mais ou menos paralelo à estrada e passa logo ao S de Jericó em caminho para o rio Jordão.

ADVERSÁRIO. Um inimigo que contende com alguém ou resiste a ele; antagonista ou opositor. A palavra hebraica para "adversário" (tsar) deriva duma raiz que significa "hostilizar; mostrar hostilidade a". (Núm 25:18; Sal 129:1) A palavra grega an·tí·di·kos refere-se primariamente a um "adversário em juízo", num processo judicial (Lu 12:58; 18:3), mas pode referir-se a outros que são adversários, ou inimigos, como em 1 Pedro 5:8.

O Adversário mais iníquo, Satanás, o Diabo, induziu homens e anjos (veja DEMÔNIO) a participar na sua oposição a Deus e ao homem. Satanás mostrou sua oposição primeiro no jardim do Éden, onde ele, por meio de uma ação cruel e sorrateira, levou Eva e depois Adão a adotar um proceder de rebelião, que trouxe o pecado e a morte a toda a humanidade. Nas cortes do céu, Satanás demonstrou seu antagonismo, acusando Jeová de subornar Jó para ser-lhe leal, acusação que se tornou uma questão de importância universal. — Jó 1:6-11; 2:1-5; veja SATANÁS.

Adoradores de Jeová, em todas as eras, suportaram uma oposição similar da parte do Adversário por meio dos agentes dele. Por exemplo, quando o restante do povo de Deus retornou de Babilônia, havia alguns que tentaram impedir a reconstrução do templo e da muralha da cidade. (Esd 4:1; Ne 4:11) O rancoroso Hamã, tendo o espírito do Diabo, mostrou ser adversário iníquo dos judeus, nos dias da Rainha Ester. (Est 7:6) Os cristãos precisam hoje estar atentos, vigilantes e em guarda, e têm de travar uma luta árdua pela fé, contra as maquinações do Adversário. (Ef 6:11, 12; Ju 3) Pedro aconselha: "Mantende os vossos sentidos, sede vigilantes. Vosso adversário, o Diabo, anda em volta como leão que ruge, procurando a quem devorar. Mas, tomai vossa posição contra ele, sólidos na fé." (1Pe 5:8, 9) Por fim, o poder de Jeová triunfará sobre todos os opositores. — Je 30:16; Miq 5:9.

Sempre que os do povo de Deus foram infiéis, ele permitiu que seus adversários os saqueassem e derrotassem. (Sal 89:42; La 1:5, 7, 10, 17; 2:17; 4:12) Os inimigos, porém, tiravam conclusões errôneas destas vitórias, atribuindo o mérito a si mesmos e louvando seus deuses, ou achando que não teriam de prestar contas pelo modo em que trataram o povo de Jeová. (De 32:27; Je 50:7) Por isso, Jeová viu-se obrigado a humilhar estes adversários orgulhosos e jactanciosos (Is 1:24; 26:11; 59:18; Na 1:2); e ele fez isso por causa do seu santo nome. — Is 64:2; Ez 36:21-24.

AER [Outro]. Descendente de Benjamim (1Cr 7:12), provavelmente o mesmo que Airão (Núm 26:38) ou Aará (1Cr 8:1), nomes dos quais Aer poderia ser uma forma abreviada.

AFECA [Leito de Rio]. Cidade na região montanhosa de Judá meridional, mencionada como estando na vizinhança de Hébron. (Jos 15:48, 53, 54) Alguns peritos propõem identificá-la com Khirbet el-Hadab, a cerca de 6 km ao SO de Hébron. Há perto dali duas fontes de água, e encontraram-se neste lugar restos arqueológicos do período israelita.

AFEIÇÃO. Forte apego caloroso, pessoal, tal como o existente entre amigos genuínos.

A palavra hebraica hha·sháq, traduzida por 'ter afeição' em Deuteronômio 7:7, tem o significado básico de 'afeiçoar-se a'. (Gên 34:8) O verbo grego fi·lé·o é traduzido por 'ter afeição', 'gostar', 'estar afeiçoado a' e "beijar". (Mt 10:37; 23:6; Jo 12:25; Mr 14:44) 'Ter afeição' expressa um vínculo muito íntimo, da espécie que existe entre pais e filhos em famílias achegadas. Jesus sentia tal profunda afeição pelo seu amigo Lázaro, de modo que 'se entregou ao choro' em conexão com o falecimento de Lázaro. (Jo 11:35, 36) A mesma expressão é usada para mostrar o apego forte, caloroso e pessoal que Jeová tem ao seu Filho e aos seguidores de seu Filho, bem como o sentimento caloroso dos discípulos pelo Filho de Deus. — Jo 5:20; 16:27; veja 1Co 16:22.

Deve-se notar que há uma diferença entre os verbos gregos fi·lé·o e a·ga·pá·o, embora muitos tradutores não diferenciem estas palavras. (Veja AMOR.) A respeito da diferença entre estas palavras, F. Zorell (Lexicon Graecum Novi Testamenti, Paris, 1961, col. 1402) diz: "[A·ga·pá·o] significa a espécie de amor a alguém ou a alguma coisa suscitado livremente e de nossa iniciativa por causa de motivos claramente percebidos; [fi·lé·o] difere disso no sentido de indicar uma espécie terna e afetiva de amor, tal como surge espontaneamente na nossa alma para com parentes ou amigos, e para com as coisas que consideramos deleitosas."

O uso destes dois verbos, em João 21, é digno de nota. Jesus perguntou a Pedro duas vezes se o amava, usando o verbo a·ga·pá·o. Ambas as vezes Pedro afirmou fervorosamente que tinha afeição por Jesus, usando a palavra mais íntima fi·lé·o. (Jo 21:15, 16) Por fim, Jesus perguntou: "Tens afeição por mim?" E Pedro novamente assegurou que sim. (Jo 21:17) Pedro afirmou assim seu apego caloroso e pessoal a Jesus.

Amor fraternal (gr.: fi·la·del·fí·a, literalmente: "afeição a um irmão") deve existir entre todos os membros da congregação cristã. (Ro 12:10; He 13:1; veja também 1Pe 3:8.) De modo que as relações existentes na congregação devem ser tão íntimas, fortes e calorosas como numa família natural. Embora os membros da congregação já mostrem ter amor fraternal, são exortados a fazer isso em medida mais plena. — 1Te 4:9, 10.

A palavra grega fi·ló·stor·gos, significando "ter terna afeição", é usada com respeito a alguém que é achegado a outro com cordial intimidade. Uma das raízes deste termo composto, stér·go, é frequentemente usada para denotar afeição natural, como entre os membros duma família. O apóstolo Paulo incentivou os cristãos a cultivar esta qualidade. (Ro 12:10) Paulo indicou também que os últimos dias ficariam caracterizados por pessoas "sem afeição natural" (gr.: á·stor·goi), e que tais pessoas merecem a morte. — 2Ti 3:3; Ro 1:31, 32.

O substantivo grego fi·lí·a (amizade) é encontrado apenas uma vez nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, no lugar em que Tiago adverte que "a amizade com o mundo é inimizade com Deus . . . Portanto, todo aquele que quiser ser amigo [gr.: fí·los] do mundo constitui-se inimigo de Deus". — Tg 4:4.

Gosto pelo Dinheiro. Alguém pode desenvolver amor ao dinheiro (gr.: fi·lar·gy·rí·a, literalmente: "gosto pela prata") e causar-se muito dano. (1Ti 6:10, Int) No primeiro século EC, os fariseus eram amantes do dinheiro, e esta seria uma característica das pessoas nos últimos dias. (Lu 16:14; 2Ti 3:2) Em contraste, a maneira cristã de vida deve estar "livre do amor ao dinheiro" (gr.: a·fi·lár·gy·ros, literalmente, "não ter gosto pela prata"). (He 13:5) Para conseguir o cargo de superintendente na congregação cristã, uma das qualificações a serem satisfeitas é a de 'não ser amante do dinheiro'. — 1Ti 3:3.

Ternas Afeições (Ternas Compaixões). Fortes emoções frequentemente afetam o organismo. Por isso, a palavra grega para intestinos (splág·khna) muitas vezes é usada para denotar "ternas afeições" ou "ternas compaixões". — Veja 2Co 6:12; 7:15; Fil 2:1; Col 3:12; Flm 7, 12, 20; 1Jo 3:17; veja PENA, TER.

AFEQUE [Leito de Rio].

1. Cidade evidentemente ao N de Sídon, mencionada a Josué por Jeová como estando entre os lugares ainda a serem conquistados. (Jos 13:4) Atualmente é identificada com Afaka (a moderna Afqa), a cerca de 39 km ao ENE de Beirute. Encontra-se junto à nascente de Nahr Ibrahim, antigamente conhecido como rio Adônis, que flui até Biblos, na costa do Mediterrâneo.

2. Cidade dentro do território de Aser, mas de que a tribo não conseguiu tomar posse. (Jos 19:24, 30) Ela é chamada Afique, em Juízes 1:31. Tem sido identificada com Tell Kurdaneh (Tel Afeq), a cerca de 8 km ao SSE de Aco.

3. Cidade que, à base das cidades mencionadas junto com ela, evidentemente se encontrava na planície de Sarom. Seu rei estava entre os mortos por Josué. (Jos 12:18) Séculos mais tarde, mas antes do reinado de Saul, os filisteus acamparam-se ali antes da sua vitória sobre Israel, acampado junto à vizinha Ebenezer. (1Sa 4:1) Acha-se que sua localização está em Ras el-ʽAin (Tel Afeq; diferente da N.º 2 acima) junto à nascente do rio Iarcom. Afeque é mencionada em textos egípcios e assírios. Acredita-se que a cidade de Antipátride, mencionada em Atos 23:31, foi construída no lugar da antiga Afeque. Josefo menciona "uma torre chamada Afecu" em conexão com Antipátride. (The Jewish War [A Guerra Judaica], II, 513 [xix, 1]) Silo, de onde os israelitas trouxeram a Arca do Pacto, encontra-se a cerca de 35 km ao L.

4. Cidade que evidentemente estava situada na planície de Jezreel, entre as cidades de Suném e Jezreel. Na batalha entre os filisteus e os israelitas, que resultou na morte do Rei Saul, a posição original dos filisteus era Suném, ao passo que os israelitas tomaram posição no monte Gilboa. (1Sa 28:4) O relato indica depois que os filisteus avançaram para Afeque, ao passo que os israelitas desceram até a fonte em Jezreel. Em Afeque, os senhores do eixo dos filisteus então passaram em revista as suas forças em formação, e descobriram que Davi e os homens dele acompanhavam Aquis na retaguarda. Mandou-se que as forças de Davi partissem na manhã seguinte, e depois os filisteus avançaram para o campo de batalha em Jezreel. (1Sa 29:1-11) Dali eles rechaçaram os israelitas derrotados para o monte Gilboa, onde se completou a matança, e Saul e seus três filhos morreram. — 1Sa 31:1-8.

Alguns peritos sugerem que os eventos que levaram a esta batalha não se encontram escritos em ordem cronológica, e, por isso, eles identificam esta Afeque com aquela na planície de Sarom. (Veja AFEQUE N.º 3.) Yohanan Aharoni favorece este conceito, declarando: "A narrativa desta guerra foi de certo modo truncada pela inserção da história sobre Davi. Mas ainda se pode seguir suas linhas gerais. Os governantes filisteus reuniram suas forças em Afeque, nas nascentes do Iarcom (1 Sam. 29:1) em preparação para a marcha contra Jezreel (v. 11). As tropas de Saul 'estavam acampadas junto à fonte que há em Jezreel' (v. 1); na véspera da batalha, puseram-se em formação no monte Gilboa. Os filisteus acamparam-se defronte deles em Sunném (1 Sam. 28:4). O conflito terminou com a vitória dos filisteus, ao passo que Saul e seus três filhos caíram durante a retirada em Gilboa." — The Land of the Bible (A Terra da Bíblia), traduzido ao inglês e editado por A. Rainey, 1979, pp. 290, 291.

5. Cidade mencionada em 1 Reis 20:26 como lugar da derrota do sírio Ben-Hadade II. Os sírios em retirada recuaram até esta cidade, mas a muralha dela desabou sobre 27.000 deles. (1Rs 20:29, 30) Parece também ser o lugar profeticamente indicado ao Rei Jeoás, pelo moribundo profeta Eliseu, como ponto em que os sírios sofreriam futuras derrotas às mãos dos israelitas. (2Rs 13:17-19, 25) Alguns peritos situariam a Afeque mencionada nestes textos a cerca de 5 km ao L do mar da Galileia, onde se encontra a moderna aldeia de Afiq ou Fiq. Todavia, neste local não se encontraram nenhuns restos mais antigos do que o quarto século AEC. No entanto, na vizinha ʽEn Gev, às margens do mar da Galileia, descobriram-se os restos duma grande cidade fortificada, do décimo ao oitavo século AEC.

AFIA. Benjamita e um dos antepassados do Rei Saul. — 1Sa 9:1, 2.

ÁFIA. Mulher cristã mencionada junto com Filêmon e Arquipo, na carta de Paulo dirigida a estes três e à congregação na casa de Filêmon. (Flm 2) É possível que ela fosse a esposa de Filêmon.

AFIQUE. Veja AFEQUE N.º 2.

AFRA [provavelmente: Pó]. Um lugar mencionado por Miqueias (1:10), aparentemente na Sefelá ou nas planícies da Filístia, de acordo com as outras cidades mencionadas no contexto. Miqueias evidentemente usou um jogo de palavras ao dizer: "Revolve-te no próprio pó [hebr.: ʽa·fár] na casa de Afra [hebr.: ʽAf·ráh]."

ÁGABO. Profeta cristão que, junto com outros profetas, desceu de Jerusalém até Antioquia, da Síria, durante o ano da permanência de Paulo ali.

Ágabo predisse, mediante o espírito, "que uma grande fome estava para vir sobre toda a terra habitada". (At 11:27, 28) Conforme declara o relato, esta profecia cumpriu-se no reinado do Imperador Cláudio (41-54 EC). O historiador judeu, Josefo, menciona esta "grande fome". — Jewish Antiquities (Antiguidades Judaicas), XX, 51 (ii, 5); XX, 101 (v, 2).

Perto do fim da última viagem missionária de Paulo (por volta de 56 EC), Ágabo encontrou-se com ele em Cesareia, e ilustrou uma profecia sobre a futura prisão de Paulo em Jerusalém por amarrar suas próprias mãos e seus próprios pés com o cinto de Paulo. — At 21:8-11.

AGAGITA [De (Pertencente a) Agague]. Um termo aplicado a Hamã e ao pai dele, Hamedata, em Ester 3:1, 10; 8:3, 5; 9:24. Pelo visto, designava-os como descendentes de Agague, e, portanto, de ascendência amalequita. Os judeus entendem tradicionalmente assim esta expressão e assumem que Agague seja o monarca mencionado em 1 Samuel 15:8-33. Josefo refere-se a Hamã como "de ascendência amalequita". (Jewish Antiquities (Antiguidades Judaicas), XI, 209 [vi, 5]) Mordecai era descendente de Quis, da tribo de Benjamim, tornando assim a ele e a Hamã, em certo sentido, inimigos tradicionais. — Est 2:5.

AGAGUE. Nome ou título aplicado a mais de um rei dos amalequitas.

1. Balaão, na sua terceira pronunciação profética, predisse que um rei de Israel se tornaria "mais elevado do que Agague, e seu reino ficará erguido". (Núm 24:7) Estas palavras foram proferidas por volta de 1473 AEC, e não se faz mais nenhuma referência a Agague até o reinado do Rei Saul (1117-1078 AEC). Por causa disso, alguns peritos sugerem que "Agague" era um título usado pelos reis dos amalequitas, similar ao título Faraó usado pelos reis do Egito. Também, pode ser simplesmente o caso de um uso repetido dum nome pessoal. De qualquer modo, a maneira em que Balaão se referiu a Agague indica que o reino dele, naquela época, era poderoso. — Núm 24:20; veja AMALEQUE, AMALEQUITAS.

2. O rei de Amaleque que foi derrotado pelo Rei Saul, em cumprimento do decreto de Jeová. (Êx 17:14; De 25:17-19; 1Sa 15:1-7) Entretanto, Saul deixou de executar Agague e permitiu que o povo retivesse parte do despojo, e isto resultou na pronunciação de Samuel a respeito da rejeição, por Deus, de Saul como rei. (1Sa 15:8-29) Agague foi então executado por Samuel, o qual lhe disse: "Assim como a tua espada privou as mulheres de filhos, assim a tua mãe será extremamente privada de filhos entre as mulheres." — 1Sa 15:32, 33; veja Jz 1:5-7.

ÁGAPES (FESTAS DE AMOR). A Bíblia não descreve estes ágapes (festas de amor), nem indica com que frequência eram realizados. (Ju 12) Não foram ordenados pelo Senhor Jesus Cristo, nem por seus apóstolos, e é evidente que não devem ser considerados obrigatórios, nem permanentes. Alguns dizem que eram ocasiões em que os cristãos materialmente prósperos realizavam banquetes aos quais convidavam seus concrentes pobres. Os órfãos, as viúvas, os ricos e os menos afortunados compartilhavam juntos uma mesa abundante num espírito de fraternidade.

Tertuliano, escritor do segundo e do terceiro século, fornece uma descrição dos ágapes, narrando que os participantes, antes de se reclinarem para comer, faziam uma oração a Deus. Comiam e bebiam com moderação, apenas o bastante para satisfazer a fome e a sede, lembrando-se de que, mesmo durante a noite, tinham de adorar a Deus. Sua conversa era a daqueles que sabiam que o Senhor estava escutando. Cada um entoava um cântico, e a festa se encerrava com oração. — Apology (Apologia), XXXIX, 16-18.

Que tais festas eram originalmente realizadas com boas intenções é indicado pela palavra usada para descrevê-las — a·gá·pe. A·gá·pe é a palavra grega usada para a forma mais elevada de amor, o amor baseado em princípios. É a espécie de amor que a Bíblia diz que "Deus é". (1Jo 4:8) É alistado como um dos frutos do espírito, em Gálatas 5:22, e é descrito extensivamente em 1 Coríntios 13:4-7.

Não Era a Refeição Noturna do Senhor. Não parece haver nenhuma base para se relacionar esses ágapes com a Refeição Noturna do Senhor (a Comemoração), como alguns têm feito, dizendo que os ágapes ocorriam quer antes quer depois da observância da Comemoração. A Refeição Noturna do Senhor é o aniversário celebrado todo ano no mesmo dia, o 14.º dia do mês lunar de nisã, ao passo que os ágapes parecem ter ocorrido com frequência, e não necessariamente segundo um programa regular. Depois de condenar os abusos que surgiram em conexão com levarem seu jantar ao lugar onde se celebraria a Refeição Noturna do Senhor, Paulo escreveu: "Não é que certamente tendes casas para comer e beber? . . . Se alguém tiver fome, coma em casa." (1Co 11:22, 34) Tratava-se duma noite a ser observada com seriedade e meditação sobre o seu significado, não uma ocasião para se comer e beber no local de reunião.

Nem eram estes ágapes a mesma coisa que "tomar refeições" ("partir o pão", Al) mencionado em Atos 2:42, 46; 20:7. O pão, naqueles tempos, costumava ser feito em forma de panquecas finas. O pão não levedado era também quebradiço. O pão não era cortado, mas partido, o que deu origem à frase "partir o pão", muitas vezes com referência a se participar duma refeição comum. — At 2:46, Al, compare isso com a NM.

Empregado Erroneamente por Alguns. Como refeição literal, os ágapes se tornaram sujeitos a diversos abusos por parte dos que não tinham o correto conceito espiritual. Visto que não foram ordenados pelo Senhor Jesus Cristo, nem por seus apóstolos, mas eram apenas um costume, foram mais tarde descontinuados. As palavras de Judas indicam que alguns se associavam nestas ocasiões com má motivação: "Estes são os rochedos ocultos sob a água, nos vossos ágapes, banqueteando-se convosco, pastores que se apascentam a si mesmos sem temor." (Ju 12) Pedro indica a infiltração de malfeitores e dos que ensinavam doutrinas falsas entre os verdadeiros cristãos, dizendo: "Acham um prazer viver em luxo durante o dia. São manchas e máculas, entregando-se com deleite irrestrito aos seus ensinos enganosos, enquanto se banqueteiam convosco." (2Pe 2:13) Ao passo que os cristãos até o tempo atual continuam a usufruir um agradável companheirismo e a ajudar-se mutuamente em sentido material, no que for ao seu alcance, não existe base para se reviver os ágapes como costume da congregação cristã. — Tg 1:27; 2:15.

AGAR. Serva egípcia de Sara; mais tarde, concubina de Abraão e mãe de Ismael. Quando estava no Egito, devido a uma fome na terra de Canaã, Abraão (Abrão) veio a ter servos e servas, e pode ser que Agar se tenha tornado serva de Sara nessa época. — Gên 12:10, 16.

Visto que Sara (Sarai) continuava estéril, ela solicitou a Abraão que tivesse relações sexuais com Agar, entregando-a a Abraão como esposa. Mas, ao ficar grávida, Agar começou a desprezar sua senhora a tal ponto, que Sara se queixou com seu marido. "Portanto, Abrão disse a Sarai: 'Eis que a tua serva está à tua disposição. Faze com ela o que parece bem aos teus olhos.' Sarai começou então a humilhá-la, de modo que fugiu dela." (Gên 16:1-6) Na fonte a caminho de Sur, o anjo de Jeová encontrou Agar e a instruiu que voltasse para sua senhora e se humilhasse sob a mão dela. Ademais, foi-lhe dito que Jeová multiplicaria grandemente a descendência dela e que o filho que lhe nasceria devia ser chamado Ismael. Abraão tinha 86 anos quando Ismael nasceu. — Gên 16:7-16.

Anos depois, quando Abraão preparou "um grande banquete no dia em que Isaque foi desmamado" à idade de cerca de 5 anos, Sara notou que Ismael, filho de Agar, então com cerca de 19 anos, 'caçoava'. Não se tratava duma inocente brincadeira infantil. Conforme o próximo versículo dá a entender, pode ter envolvido escarnecer ele de Isaque quanto ao seu direito de herdeiro. Ismael manifestava com isso logo cedo as características antagônicas que o anjo de Jeová predissera que ele mostraria. (Gên 16:12) Pelo que parece, temendo pelo futuro de seu filho, Isaque, Sara solicitou a Abraão que expulsasse Agar e o filho desta. Isto desagradou a Abraão, mas, orientado por Jeová, agiu conforme a solicitação de sua esposa. Logo cedo na manhã seguinte, ele despachou Agar com o filho dela, dando-lhe pão e um odre com água. — Gên 21:8-14.

Agar vagueou pelo deserto de Berseba. "Por fim se acabou a água . . . e ela lançou o menino debaixo de um dos arbustos." Não é anacronismo mencionar Ismael como "menino", pois a palavra hebraica yé·ledh, aqui traduzida "menino", também significa "jovem", e é assim traduzida em Gênesis 4:23. Quanto a ser ele lançado sob um dos arbustos, embora se predissesse que ele seria uma "zebra de homem", Ismael talvez não fosse muito robusto quando adolescente. (Gên 16:12) Por isso, talvez fosse o primeiro a fraquejar, precisando do apoio de sua mãe. Isto não seria inconcebível, pois as mulheres, naqueles dias, especialmente as escravas, estavam acostumadas a carregar pesados fardos na vida cotidiana. Parece que, com o tempo, Agar também fraquejou, obrigando-a a deixar de apoiá-lo e colocando-o, talvez de modo um tanto abrupto, sob o arbusto protetor mais próximo. A própria Agar se sentou, "à distância de cerca de um tiro de flecha" (uma expressão hebraica comum que indicava a distância usual em que os arqueiros colocavam seus alvos) de seu filho. — Gên 21:14-16.

O anjo de Deus clamou então para Agar, dizendo-lhe que não tivesse medo, e que Ismael viria a constituir uma grande nação. Ademais, Deus abriu-lhe os olhos para que ela visse um poço de água, no qual encheu o odre e deu de beber a seu filho. "Deus continuou a estar com o rapaz", e, com o tempo, ele se tornou arqueiro e "passou a morar no ermo de Parã". Agar providenciou para ele uma esposa da terra do Egito. — Gên 21:17-21.

De acordo com o apóstolo Paulo, Agar figurava num drama simbólico em que representava a nação do Israel carnal, ligada a Jeová pelo pacto da Lei, inaugurado no monte Sinai, pacto este que deu à luz "filhos para a escravidão". Por causa da condição pecaminosa do povo, esta nação não pôde cumprir com os termos desse pacto. Sob este, os israelitas não se tornaram um povo livre, mas foram condenados quais pecadores dignos de morte; portanto, eram escravos. (Jo 8:34; Ro 8:1-3) A Jerusalém dos dias de Paulo correspondia a Agar, pois a capital, Jerusalém, representando a organização do Israel natural, encontrava-se em escravidão, junto com seus filhos. No entanto, os cristãos gerados pelo espírito são filhos da "Jerusalém de cima", a mulher simbólica de Deus. Esta Jerusalém, igual a Sara, a mulher livre, jamais esteve em escravidão. Mas, assim como Isaque foi perseguido por Ismael, assim também os filhos da "Jerusalém de cima", que foram libertos pelo Filho, foram perseguidos às mãos dos filhos da Jerusalém escravizada. No entanto, Agar e o filho dela foram expulsos, representando a rejeição do Israel natural, como nação, por parte de Jeová. — Gál 4:21-31; veja também Jo 8:31-40.

AGARENO [possivelmente: De (Pertencente a) Agar]. Aparentemente, era um povo pastoril que residia em tendas ao L de Gileade. Nos dias do Rei Saul, os israelitas que moravam ao L do Jordão derrotaram os agarenos, tomando 100.000 cativos, bem como milhares de camelos, jumentos e ovelhas. (1Cr 5:10, 18-22) O salmista alistou os agarenos entre outros inimigos de Israel, tais como os edomitas, os moabitas, os amonitas e os amalequitas. (Sal 83:2-7) Entretanto, durante o governo de Davi, Jaziz, o agareno, estava encarregado dos rebanhos reais. — 1Cr 27:31.

Muitos peritos acreditam que os agarenos são provavelmente os mesmos que os A·grai·oi mencionados pelos antigos geógrafos Estrabão, Ptolomeu e Plínio. Não se pode determinar com certeza se eram descendentes de Agar.

ÁGATA. Pedra preciosa, ornamental, que é uma forma de calcedônia, uma variedade do quartzo colorido.

A maioria das ágatas se forma como nódulos em depósitos estratificados de sílica, encontrados em certas cavidades rochosas. As camadas de ágata variam da transparente até a opaca, e assumem muitos matizes de cores, devido à presença de partículas microscópicas dos sais de ferro. As cores aparecem em combinações do amarelo, castanho, cinza, azul ou preto, e estas podem estar atraentemente distribuídas em padrões de listras, faixas ou misturas turvas. A ágata é ligeiramente mais dura do que o aço, e pode ser polida até apresentar alto brilho.

A ágata usada pelos israelitas no ermo talvez tenha sido trazida do Egito. Segundo Plínio, o Velho, ágatas vermelhas com veios brancos eram encontradas na vizinhança de Tebas. Tal ágata vermelha talvez fosse a variedade montada no "peitoral do julgamento" do sumo sacerdote, para representar uma das 12 tribos de Israel. A pedra central da terceira fileira do peitoral de Arão era uma ágata (hebr.: shevóh, uma espécie de pedra preciosa). — Êx 28:2, 15, 19 (n.), 21; 39:12.

AGÉ. Hararita, pai de Samá, que era um dos poderosos de Davi. — 2Sa 23:8, 11.

AGEU [[Nascido Numa] Festividade]. Profeta hebreu, que estava em Judá e Jerusalém durante a governança de Zorobabel, no reino do rei persa Dario Histaspes. — Ag 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20; Esd 5:1, 2.

A tradição judaica sustenta que Ageu era membro da Grande Sinagoga. À base de Ageu 2:10-19, sugeriu-se que ele talvez tenha sido sacerdote. Seu nome aparece junto com o do profeta Zacarias nos cabeçalhos do Salmo 111 (112) na Vulgata latina, dos Salmos 125 e 126 na Pesito siríaca; do 145 na Septuaginta grega, na Pesito e na Vulgata; e 146, 147 e 148 na Septuaginta e na Pesito. É provável que Ageu tenha nascido em Babilônia e que se tenha juntado a Zorobabel e ao restante judaico no retorno destes a Jerusalém, em 537 AEC. Mas pouco se sabe realmente sobre Ageu, pois as Escrituras não revelam a ascendência, a tribo, e assim por diante, do profeta.

Ageu tornou-se o primeiro profeta pós-exílico, e a ele se juntou Zacarias cerca de dois meses depois. (Ag 1:1; Za 1:1) A interrupção da construção do templo havia sido precipitada pela oposição inimiga, mas se estendeu por alguns anos por causa da apatia dos judeus e do seu empenho egoísta por interesses pessoais. Ageu avivou o zelo dos exilados judeus repatriados para que reiniciassem a construção do templo. (Esd 3:10-13; 4:1-24; Ag 1:4) Quatro mensagens dadas por Deus, proferidas por Ageu durante um período de cerca de quatro meses, no segundo ano de Dario Histaspes (520 AEC), e registradas pelo profeta no livro bíblico de Ageu, foram especialmente eficazes em inicialmente mover os judeus a reiniciar a obra de construção do templo. (Ag 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20; veja AGEU, LIVRO DE.) Ageu e Zacarias continuaram a instar com eles para que executassem tal obra até o templo ser concluído no sexto ano de Dario, em 515 AEC. — Esd 5:1, 2; 6:14, 15.

AGEU, LIVRO DE. Livro inspirado das Escrituras Hebraicas, alistado entre os chamados profetas menores. Consiste em quatro mensagens de Jeová para os judeus que retornaram do exílio babilônico, instando com eles a concluir a reconstrução do templo em Jerusalém. Sendo também profético, o livro predisse coisas tais como o enchimento da casa de Jeová de glória e a derrubada de reinos humanos. — Ag 2:6, 7, 21, 22.

Escritor e Canonicidade. O escritor foi Ageu, o profeta, que pessoalmente transmitiu cada mensagem encontrada no livro. (Ag 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20; veja AGEU.) Ao passo que a maioria dos catálogos antigos das Escrituras não alistam nominalmente o livro de Ageu, este é evidentemente incluído em suas referências aos 'doze Profetas Menores', o número 12 ficando assim completo. Os judeus jamais

DESTAQUES DE AGEU

Quatro mensagens destinadas a motivar os judeus a prosseguir com a reconstrução do templo de Jeová.

Escrito em Jerusalém 17 anos depois do retorno dos judeus do exílio, quando ainda não se completara a construção do templo.

Mensagem aos que moram em casas apaineladas, ao passo que a casa de Jeová jaz em ruínas. (1:1-15)

Àqueles que acham que não é o tempo para se reconstruir o templo, Jeová torna claro que o abandono desta obra resultou na retirada da sua bênção, de modo que as colheitas são escassas e os trabalhadores contratados recebem salário inadequado.

Zorobabel, Josué e os demais do povo reagem favoravelmente; promete-se-lhes que Jeová estará com eles na reconstrução do templo; começa a obra do templo.

Proclamação de que Jeová encherá a sua casa de glória. (2:1-9)

Aos olhos dos idosos que haviam visto a glória do templo de Salomão, o novo edifício parece como nada.

Jeová exorta Zorobabel, Josué e os demais do povo a serem fortes, a não estar desanimados, a continuar com a obra, assegurando-lhes que a glória do reconstruído templo ultrapassará à do anterior.

Mostra-se às pessoas que o abandono da reconstrução do templo tornou tanto a elas como todo o seu trabalho impuros perante Deus. (2:10-19)

Sacerdotes respondem a perguntas, indicando que a santidade não pode ser transferida, mas que a impureza pode.

Jeová incentiva as pessoas por informá-las de que, a partir do dia de se lançar o alicerce do templo Jeová concederá sua bênção, não havendo mais colheitas escassas.

Mensagem a Zorobabel sobre Jeová fazer tremer os céus e a terra. (2:20-23)

Quando Jeová fizer tremer os céus e a terra, até mesmo derrubando o trono de reinos, os inimigos voltarão suas espadas uns contra os outros; assim, nenhum poder conseguirá impedir a reconstrução do templo.

Jeová tornará Zorobabel igual ao seu próprio anel de chancela, garantindo assim que a posição dele será segura, não importa o que possa acontecer.

questionaram o direito deste livro a um lugar entre as Escrituras Hebraicas, e a canonicidade do livro é definitivamente estabelecida pela citação de Ageu 2:6, que aparece em Hebreus 12:26. — Veja Ag 2:21.

Estilo. A linguagem é simples e o seu significado é tornado plenamente claro. Suscitam-se às vezes perguntas que dão o que pensar. (Ag 1:4, 9; 2:3, 12, 13, 19) O livro de Ageu contém forte repreensão, encorajamento, e profecias que inspiram esperança. O nome divino, Jeová, aparece 35 vezes nos seus 38 versículos, e mostra-se claramente que as mensagens procediam de Deus, servindo Ageu como Seu mensageiro comissionado. — 1:13.

Data e Circunstâncias. As quatro mensagens registradas por Ageu foram proferidas em Jerusalém dentro dum período de cerca de quatro meses, no segundo ano do rei persa Dario Histaspes (520 AEC), o livro, pelo que parece, sendo terminado em 520 AEC. (Ag 1:1; 2:1, 10, 20) Zacarias profetizava com o mesmo propósito durante a atividade profética de Ageu. — Esd 5:1, 2; 6:14.

Mensagens de Benefício Duradouro. Entre outras coisas, o livro de Ageu suscita fé em Jeová, essencial aos servos de Deus. Mostra que Deus está com o seu povo (Ag 1:13; 2:4, 5) e também insta com eles a colocarem em primeiro lugar na vida os interesses Dele. (Ag 1:2-8; Mt 6:33) O livro torna claro que uma adoração meramente formal não agrada a Jeová (Ag 2:10-17; veja Is 29:13, 14; Mt 15:7-9), mas que as ações fiéis que se harmonizam com a vontade divina são as que resultam em bênção. (Ag 2:18, 19; veja Pr 10:22.) O escritor do livro bíblico de Hebreus aplica Ageu 2:6 como tendo um cumprimento maior em conexão com o Reino de Deus nas mãos de Jesus Cristo. — He 12:26-29.

AGRICULTURA. Lavoura; cultivo do solo e produção de safras; envolve também a criação de animais domésticos. A agricultura teve seu início no Éden, visto que Adão, depois de ser criado por Deus, foi colocado no jardim "para que o cultivasse e tomasse conta dele". (Gên 2:5, 15) Entretanto, devido à infidelidade do primeiro casal humano, não ocorreu uma ampliação do Paraíso edênico; ao contrário, o solo passou a estar sob a maldição de Deus. Exigia suor e labuta ganhar do solo o sustento. — Gên 3:17-19.

O primeiro filho de Adão e Eva, Caim, tornou-se "lavrador do solo"; Abel, pastor de ovelhas. (Gên 4:2-4) Após o Dilúvio, "Noé principiou como lavrador" e plantou um vinhedo. (Gên 9:20) Num período posterior, Abraão, Isaque e Jacó levavam essencialmente uma vida nômade e pastoril com seus rebanhos, um tanto parecido ao Jabal antediluviano (Gên 4:20), embora no caso de Isaque e de Jacó haja também evidência de lavoura, mencionando-se especificamente o trigo. — Gên 26:12; 27:37; 30:14; 37:7.

Agricultura Israelita. Escavações feitas por arqueólogos mostram que a região da Palestina foi um dos primeiros centros de agricultura. A Terra da Promessa tinha um solo muito fértil. Nos dias de Ló, o distrito do Jordão era "semelhante ao jardim de Jeová, semelhante à terra do Egito, até Zoar". (Gên 13:10) Antes do Êxodo, a nação de Israel ficara bem familiarizada com a agricultura lá no Egito, onde se cultivavam trigo, linho, cevada, pepino, melancia, alho-porro, cebola, alho e outros produtos. (Êx 9:25, 26, 31, 32; Núm 11:5; De 11:10) Daí, durante 40 anos, a nação levou uma vida nômade no ermo, embora estivesse relativamente livre da associação corrompedora de povos pagãos.

Quando entrou na Terra da Promessa, a nação passou a levar uma vida de cultivo de produtos agrícolas e de criação de animais. Havia uma decisiva vantagem em possuírem uma terra já em cultivo. A grande maioria dos hebreus familiarizados com a agricultura no Egito já havia perecido no ermo, e, portanto, havia poucos, se é que havia, lavradores qualificados e competentes, disponíveis para começar a lavoura numa terra que lhes era nova e estranha. (Núm 14:22-30; He 3:16, 17) Portanto, foi de grande vantagem para eles herdarem então 'casas cheias de todas as coisas boas, cisternas escavadas, vinhedos e olivais já plantados e produtivos'. — De 6:10, 11; 8:6-9.

Depois da divisão da terra em territórios tribais, distribuíram-se os lotes de terra, evidentemente pelo uso de uma corda de medir. (Sal 78:55; Ez 40:3; Am 7:17; Miq 2:4, 5) Uma vez determinados, tais limites deviam ser honrados e respeitados. — De 19:14; 27:17; Pr 22:28; Os 5:10; compare isso com Jó 24:2.

A agricultura ocupava um lugar importante na legislação dada a Israel. A terra pertencia a Jeová, de modo que não se devia abusar dela. (Le 25:23) A terra não podia ser vendida em perpetuidade, e com exceção das propriedades dentro de cidades muradas, a terra vendida por motivo de infortúnios e de reveses econômicos devia ser devolvida ao dono original no ano do jubileu. (Le 25:10, 23-31) Exigia-se um descanso sabático cada sétimo ano, durante o qual a terra ficava de pousio e tinha sua fertilidade restaurada, realizando assim o que hoje se faz com a alternação de culturas. (Êx 23:10, 11; Le 25:3-7) Este requisito talvez parecesse perigoso e por certo era uma prova da fé da nação na promessa de Deus, de prover uma abundância suficiente para sustentá-la até a safra do ano seguinte. Ao mesmo tempo, incentivava a prudência e a previdência. O ano do Jubileu (todo 50.° ano) também era um ano de descanso para a terra. — Le 25:11, 12.

As três festividades anuais que se ordenou que Israel celebrasse estavam cronometradas para coincidir com as estações de lavoura: a Festividade dos Pães Não Fermentados, na época da colheita da cevada; Pentecostes, na época da colheita do trigo; e a Festividade das Barracas, na época do término das safras do ano que findava. (Êx 23:14-16) Para os israelitas, as estações e as colheitas eram fatores de datas e indicadores de época, e costumavam ser usadas mais como tais do que os nomes dos meses calendares. Essa vida agrícola protegia também os israelitas em sentido espiritual, visto que os tornava em grande parte independentes dos outros povos quanto às suas necessidades, e mantinha reduzido ao mínimo a necessidade de terem um intercâmbio comercial com as nações circunvizinhas.

Embora devesse ser uma terra 'que manava leite e mel' para eles sob a bênção de Deus, havia, não obstante, problemas agrícolas a resolver. Dependente da obediência deles, não haveria necessidade de irrigação em grande escala. (De 8:7; 11:9-17) A estação chuvosa começava com as chuvas temporãs por volta de meados de outubro e continuava até o tempo das chuvas serôdias, que terminavam por volta de meados de abril. (De 11:14) Seguiam-se então cinco meses em geral sem chuvas, sendo o calor e a seca aliviados por abundante orvalho que caía à noite e que refrescava o solo e as plantas. — Gên 27:28; De 33:28; veja ORVALHO.

Para a conservação do solo em encostas, evidentemente se usavam terraços com muros de pedra para contê-los e para impedir que o vital solo arável fosse levado pela chuva. Escavações arqueológicas mostram até 60 ou mais de tais terraços um acima do outro em algumas colinas. Para assegurar a segurança das safras, construíam-se nos vinhedos e nos campos barracas ou ranchos, ou mesmo torres permanentes, para que se pudesse postar ali uma sentinela para vigiar a área circundante. — Is 1:8; 5:2; Mt 21:33.

Especialmente o Rei Uzias é mencionado como "amante da agricultura [literalmente: do solo]". — 2Cr 26:10.

Embora a subsequente desobediência resultasse na retirada da bênção de Deus e trouxesse em consequência desastres agrícolas por safras fracassadas, secas, pragas de gafanhotos, bolor e outros problemas, e embora a destruição de grande parte das florestas e o abandono da manutenção dos sistemas de terraços durante um período de muitos séculos resultassem em vastas quantidades de solo arável serem levadas embora pelas chuvas, em grande parte da Palestina, o solo remanescente em geral continua a ser de muita fertilidade até o tempo presente. — Veja COLHEITA; DEBULHA; SEMEADOR, SEMEAR; e similares assuntos relacionados, sob seus respectivos tópicos.

AGRIPA. Veja HERODES N.º 3 e 4.

ÁGUA. O líquido que é o principal constituinte de toda matéria viva. Jeová é a Fonte deste líquido (Re 14:7) tão essencial à vida do homem, dos animais e da vegetação sobre a terra. (Êx 17:2, 3; Jó 8:11; 14:7-9; Sal 105:29; Is 1:30) Ele a provê e pode controlá-la. (Êx 14:21-29; Jó 5:10; 26:8; 28:25; 37:10; Sal 107:35) Deus fornecia água aos israelitas, até milagrosamente quando necessário (Êx 17:1-7; Ne 9:15, 20; Sal 78:16, 20; Is 35:6, 7; 43:20; 48:21); deu-lhes uma terra que tinha abundância de água (De 8:7); e prometeu abençoar sua reserva de água enquanto obedecessem a ele (Êx 23:25).

Uma colina com terraços, comuns na agricultura israelita.

Jeová era responsável pela rega original do solo, mediante uma neblina que subia da terra, e estabeleceu as leis que governam a evaporação da água e sua precipitação como chuva. (Gên 2:5, 6; Jó 36:27; Am 5:8; veja BRUMA, NEBLINA, NÉVOA; CHUVA; NUVEM.) No segundo dia criativo, Deus produziu uma expansão, por fazer com que certa quantidade de água permanecesse na Terra, enquanto elevava grande quantidade dela bem acima do globo; as águas acima da expansão sem dúvida supriram a água pela qual os iníquos foram mais tarde destruídos no Dilúvio dos dias de Noé. — Gên 1:6-8; 7:11, 17-24; Is 54:9.

A Lei dada no monte Sinai proibia fazer imagens de coisas "nas águas abaixo da terra", evidentemente referindo-se às criaturas aquáticas nas águas da Terra, as quais estão abaixo do nível da terra seca. Estas incluiriam rios, lagos, mares e águas subterrâneas. — Êx 20:4; De 4:15-18; 5:8.

Usos Ilustrativos e Figurados. Há numerosas referências ilustrativas e figuradas a água nas Escrituras. As pessoas, em especial as massas inquietas, alienadas de Deus, são simbolizadas por águas. Babilônia, a Grande, em seu domínio por toda a Terra, é mencionada como estando sentada "sobre muitas águas". A visão de João sobre a grande meretriz explica que tais águas "significam povos, e multidões, e nações, e línguas". — Re 17:1, 15; compare isso com Is 57:20.

Devido ao poder da água como agente destruidor (provocando afogamentos, enxurradas ou efeitos similares), ela é frequentemente empregada como símbolo de alguma força destrutiva. (Sal 69:1, 2, 14, 15; 144:7, 8) É usada como símbolo de força militar em Jeremias 47:2.

A água era usada no tabernáculo tanto para a limpeza física como em sentido simbólico. Na investidura no sacerdócio, os sacerdotes eram lavados com água, e, simbolicamente, espargia-se "água purificadora de pecado" sobre os levitas. (Êx 29:4; Núm 8:6, 7) Os sacerdotes lavavam-se antes de ministrar no santuário de Jeová e antes de se chegar ao altar da oferta queimada. (Êx 40:30-32) Usava-se a água para lavar sacrifícios (Le 1:9) e em purificações cerimoniais. (Le 14:5-9, 50-52; 15:4-27; 17:15; Núm 19:1-22; veja LIMPO, LIMPEZA.) A "água santa" usada em casos de ciúme, quando a esposa era suspeita de adultério, evidentemente era água pura, fresca, na qual se punha pó procedente do tabernáculo antes de ela bebê-la. — Núm 5:17-24.

Água vitalizadora. Jeová é a 'fonte de água viva'. Apenas dele e mediante seu Filho, Jesus Cristo, o Agente Principal da vida, podem os homens obter vida eterna. (Je 2:13; Jo 17:1, 3) Jesus disse a uma mulher samaritana, junto a uma fonte perto de Sicar, que a água que ele daria tornar-se-ia em seu recebedor "uma fonte de água que borbulha para dar vida eterna". — Jo 4:7-15.

O apóstolo João registra sua visão de "um novo céu e uma nova terra" em que viu um "rio de água da vida" fluir do trono de Deus. De cada lado deste rio havia árvores que produziam fruto, as folhas das árvores sendo usadas para curar as nações. (Re 21:1; 22:1, 2) Depois de se completar este aspecto da visão, Jesus falou a João sobre o objetivo de ele enviar seu anjo com tal visão. Daí, João ouviu a proclamação: "E o espírito e a noiva estão dizendo: 'Vem!' E quem ouve diga: 'Vem!' E quem tem sede venha; quem quiser, tome de graça a água da vida." Evidentemente, este convite seria feito pelos servos de Deus para que os sedentos começassem a beber as provisões de Deus para a obtenção da vida eterna mediante o Cordeiro de Deus. (Jo 1:29) Poderiam tomar o que se acha agora disponível dessa água da vida. O convite deve ser feito a todos os que possam ser alcançados, não com intuito de lucro comercial, por vender a água, mas grátis, para todos que a desejarem. — Re 22:17.

Antes da morte e da ressurreição de Jesus, ele falou a respeito de seus seguidores que receberiam espírito santo, a partir de Pentecostes de 33 EC, afirmando que de seu mais íntimo "manarão correntes de água viva". (Jo 7:37-39) O registro das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs fornece evidência abundante de que, impelidos pela força ativadora do espírito de Deus, os apóstolos e os discípulos realizaram maravilhas em levar as águas vitalizadoras a outras pessoas, começando em Jerusalém e expandindo-se por todo o mundo então conhecido.

Nutrir a palavra plantada. Usando uma figura de linguagem diferente ao escrever à congregação em Corinto, o apóstolo Paulo comparou a obra do ministro cristão à dum lavrador, que primeiro planta a semente, rega-a e cultiva-a, e depois espera que Deus faça a planta atingir a madureza. Paulo levara as boas novas do Reino aos coríntios, plantando a semente no "campo" coríntio. Apolo veio depois, e por seu ensino adicional nutriu e cultivou a semente plantada, mas Deus, pelo seu espírito, causou o crescimento dela. Paulo usou esta ilustração para salientar o fato de que nenhum humano individual é em si mesmo importante, mas todos são ministros, cooperando como colaboradores de Deus. Aquele que é importante é Deus, e ele abençoa tal trabalho altruísta e unificado. — 1Co 3:5-9.

A palavra da verdade de Deus. A palavra da verdade de Deus é comparada à água que purifica. A congregação cristã é limpa à vista de Deus, como uma noiva casta para Cristo, o qual a purificou "com o banho de água por meio da palavra". (Ef 5:25-27) Em um uso similar, Paulo fala a seus concristãos, que têm a esperança de ser subsacerdotes de Cristo nos céus. Referindo-se ao tabernáculo, em que se exigia que os sacerdotes se lavassem com água antes de entrar no santuário, para ali servir, ele diz: "Visto que temos um grande sacerdote [Jesus Cristo] sobre a casa de Deus, aproximemo-nos com corações sinceros na plena certeza da fé, tendo . . . os nossos corpos banhados com água limpa." (He 10:21, 22) Esta limpeza envolve não só o conhecimento da palavra de Deus, mas também a aplicação deste na sua vida diária.

A água do batismo. Jesus explicou a Nicodemos: "A menos que alguém nasça de água e espírito, não pode entrar no reino de Deus." (Jo 3:5) Jesus, pelo que parece, falava da água do batismo, quando a pessoa se arrepende de seus pecados e se desvia de seu anterior proceder na vida, apresentando-se a Deus para o batismo no nome de Jesus Cristo. — Veja Ef 4:4, 5, que fala de "um só batismo".

O apóstolo João escreveu mais tarde: "É este quem veio por meio de água e sangue, Jesus Cristo . . . Porque são três os que dão testemunho: o espírito, e a água, e o sangue, e os três estão de acordo." (1Jo 5:5-8) Quando Jesus entrou "no mundo", isto é, quando começou sua atuação ministerial e sacrificial como o Messias de Deus, ele se dirigiu a João, o Batizador, para ser imerso em água (não em arrependimento de pecados, mas em apresentação de si mesmo a Deus, para cumprir a vontade de Deus para ele). (He 10:5-7) Depois disto, desceu sobre ele o espírito de Deus, em testemunho de que ele era Filho de Deus e o Messias. (Lu 3:21, 22) É a água do seu batismo que está em harmonia com o sangue do seu sacrifício, e com o espírito de Deus, em atestar unanimemente esta grande verdade messiânica.

Outros usos figurativos. Davi disse com respeito aos iníquos: "Que se dissolvam como em águas que seguem seu caminho." (Sal 58:7) Davi talvez tivesse presente os vales de torrente, comuns na Palestina, muitos dos quais ficam cheios duma torrente avolumante, ameaçadora, durante uma súbita tromba-d'água. Mas a água escorre rápido e desaparece, deixando seco o vale.

Quando os israelitas atacaram a cidade de Ai, eles enviaram uma pequena força, que foi derrotada. Isto teve um efeito desmoralizador sobre os israelitas, porque o relato diz que o coração do povo de Israel "começou a derreter-se e ficou como água", querendo dizer que eles sentiam ter incorrido de alguma forma no desagrado de Jeová e não dispunham da sua ajuda. Josué ficou muito transtornado, evidentemente porque Israel, o exército de Jeová, havia fugido com medo diante dos seus inimigos, lançando assim vitupério sobre o nome de Jeová. — Jos 7:5-9.

ÁGUAS, PORTÃO DAS. Veja PORTÃO, PORTA.

ÁGUIA [hebr.: né·sher; aramaico: neshár; gr.: a·e·tós]. Grande ave de rapina. Alguns acreditam que o nome hebraico derive de uma raiz que significa "despedaçar ou lacerar". Outros o consideram onomatopeico (isto é, um nome cujo próprio som sugere a que se refere) e creem que né·sher representa um "som de arremetida", ou "lampejo", portanto, uma ave que mergulha à cata de sua presa, arremessando-se para baixo com um som de arremetida e como um lampejo através do ar. Em qualquer caso, o termo hebraico descreve bem a águia, cujo mergulho relâmpago de grandes alturas provoca um som plangente, à medida que o ar passa por suas estendidas rêmiges (as penas mais externas das asas). Sendo ave de rapina e bebedora de sangue (Jó 39:27, 30), a águia foi incluída entre as aves alistadas como "impuras" pela Lei mosaica. — Le 11:13; De 14:12.

Variedades Palestinas. Dentre as águias que hoje são encontradas em Israel acham-se a águia-imperial (Aquila heliaca), a águia-real ou águia-dourada (Aquila chrysaëtos) e a águia-cobreira (Circaëtus gallicus). A águia-real, também conhecida como águia-dourada porque possui um brilho dourado na cabeça e nuca, é uma impressionante ave castanho-escura que tem cerca de 1 m de comprimento, com uma envergadura de cerca de 2 m. As águias possuem, caracteristicamente, a cabeça um tanto ampla, com uma saliência sobre os olhos; um bico curto, forte e adunco; pernas vigorosas; e garras afiadas e fortes.

'Carregados sobre asas de águias' — que base há para tal linguagem figurada?

A região do Sinai é chamada de "território das águias", em que tais aves ascendem e planam com suas asas fortes e amplas. Assim, os israelitas libertos, reunidos junto ao monte Sinai, podiam bem avaliar quão apropriado era o quadro pictórico transmitido pelas palavras de Deus, de que Ele os conduzira para fora do Egito "sobre asas de águias". (Êx 19:4; compare isso com Re 12:14.) Cerca de 40 anos depois, Moisés podia comparar o modo em que Jeová guiou Israel através do deserto ao modo da águia que "remexe seu ninho, paira sobre os seus filhotes, estende as suas asas, toma-os, carrega-os nas suas plumas". (De 32:9-12) Quando chega o tempo para as aguiazinhas começarem a voar, papai ou mamãe-águia remexe neles, agitando e batendo as suas próprias asas para transmitir a ideia a seus filhotes, e então os empurra ou atrai para fora do ninho, para experimentarem suas asas.

Embora alguns tenham duvidado de que a águia alguma vez realmente carregue seu filhote nas costas, Sir W. B. Thomas relata a respeito de um guia na Escócia, que testemunhou, quanto à águia-real, ou águia-dourada, que "as aves genitoras, depois de incitar, e, às vezes, de empurrar o filhote para o ar, colocam-se, numa arremetida, embaixo dele, e repousam o filhote, por um momento, em suas asas e costas". (The Yeoman's England [A Inglaterra do Pequeno Fazendeiro], Londres, 1934, p. 135) Um observador nos Estados Unidos é citado no Bulletin do Instituto Smithsoniano (1937, N.º 167, p. 302) como dizendo: "A mãe partia do ninho nos penhascos, e, manejando com aspereza o filhote, deixava-o cair, diria eu, cerca de noventa pés [27 m]; então, ela arremetia por baixo dele, com asas estendidas, e ele pousava nas costas dela. Ela subia para o alto da cordilheira com ele e repetia esse processo. . . . Meu pai e eu ficamos observando isso, fascinados, por mais de uma hora." G. R. Driver, comentando tais declarações, afirma: "A figura [em Deuteronômio 32:11] não é, então, mero voo da imaginação, mas se baseia em fatos reais." — Palestine Exploration Quarterly (Revista Trimestral sobre Exploração da Palestina), Londres, 1958 pp. 56, 57.

Ninho Elevado e Acuidade Visual. Os hábitos de nidificação da águia são sublinhados nas perguntas que Deus fez a Jó, em Jó 39:27-30. O ninho pode situar-se numa árvore alta, ou numa saliência dum penhasco ou despenhadeiro rochoso. Com o passar dos anos, o ninho pode aumentar para ter até 2 m de altura, sendo que o ninho de algumas águias chega a pesar uma tonelada! A aparente segurança e inacessibilidade do ninho da águia também foram usadas figuradamente pelos profetas nas suas mensagens contra o elevado reino de Edom, nas montanhas escarpadas da região do Arabá. — Je 49:16; Ob 3, 4.

A acuidade visual da águia, mencionada em Jó 39:29, é confirmada por Rutherford Platt no seu livro The River of Life (O Rio da Vida, 1956, pp. 215, 216), que também mostra a forma incomum em que foi projetado o olho da águia, atestando a sabedoria do Criador. O livro diz:

"Encontramos os olhos campeões entre todo o reino animal . . . [nos] olhos da águia, do abutre e do gavião. São tão aguçados que podem olhar para baixo, da altura de uns mil pés [300 m] no ar, e avistar um coelho ou um galo silvestre meio escondido no capim.

"A vista aguçada do olho caçador é causada pelo reflexo do objeto que cai sobre um denso grupo de células pontudas, e em forma de cone. Este pequeníssimo ponto na parte de trás do globo ocular absorve os raios de luz do objeto através de milhares de pontos, dum modo especial que concentra na mente uma imagem nítida. Para quase todos os caçadores, tais como o cangambá, o puma e nós mesmos, um único ponto de cones é suficiente; olhamos diretamente para a frente e aproximamo-nos frontalmente do objeto que contemplamos. Mas isso não se dá com a águia, nem com o gavião, os quais, fitando o coelho no meio do capim com os seus aguçados cones focalizadores, pode então aproximar-se mediante uma longa descida oblíqua. Isto faz com que a imagem do objeto atravesse a parte de trás do globo ocular numa trajetória curva. Tal trajetória é traçada com precisão para o olho da águia, de modo que, ao invés de um grupo de cones, a ave ao mergulhar tem uma trajetória curva de cones. Ao passo que a águia mergulha velozmente, o coelho no capim é assim mantido em constante foco." — Veja Je 49:22.

Habilidades de Voo. A rapidez da águia é destacada em muitos textos. (2Sa 1:23; Je 4:13; La 4:19; Hab 1:8) Há relatos de águias que ultrapassaram a velocidade de 130 km por hora. Salomão avisou que a riqueza 'faz para si asas' como as da águia que sobe para o céu (Pr 23:4, 5), ao passo que Jó lamentava a rapidez da passagem da vida, comparando-a com a velocidade duma águia em busca de presa. (Jó 9:25, 26) Todavia, aqueles que confiam em Jeová adquirem poder para ir avante, como se subissem com as asas aparentemente incansáveis da águia em seu voo ascendente. — Is 40:31.

Os cientistas modernos ficam admirados com "o caminho da águia nos céus", como ficou o escritor de Provérbios 30:19. Clarence D. Cone Jr. relata a maneira em que a observação do majestoso voo ascendente, e quase sem esforço, das águias, dos gaviões e dos abutres "tem ajudado a abrir o caminho para a descoberta dum mecanismo fundamental da meteorologia". Ele mostra o modo em que tais grandes aves utilizam plenamente a energia dinâmica das grandes "bolhas" de ar aquecido que flutuam do solo para o alto, devido ao calor do sol, bem como o modo em que as pontas "fendidas" das asas da águia são de tal modo projetadas aerodinamicamente, que eliminam a resistência do ar na asa. — Scientific American, abril de 1962, pp. 131, 138.

Uso Figurado. Esta poderosa ave de rapina era um símbolo frequentemente usado pelos profetas, a fim de representar as forças bélicas das nações inimigas em seus ataques súbitos, e não raro, inesperados. (De 28:49-51; Je 48:40; 49:22; Os 8:1) Os governantes babilônicos e egípcios foram caracterizados como águias. (Ez 17:3, 7) É notável que a figura da águia era usada regularmente em cetros, insígnias e estelas reais de muitas nações antigas, inclusive a Assíria, a Pérsia e Roma, assim como tem sido usada nos tempos modernos pela Alemanha, pelos Estados Unidos e por outras.

Alguns têm questionado o uso da palavra "águias" em Mateus 24:28 e Lucas 17:37, sustentando que os textos têm de referir-se antes a abutres, ajuntados em torno dum cadáver. No entanto, embora a águia não seja primariamente necrófaga, como o abutre, às vezes ela se alimenta de tais cadáveres. (Palestine Exploration Quarterly, 1955, p. 9) Assim também a águia, embora seja usualmente uma caçadora solitária, diferente do gregário abutre, sabe-se que ocasionalmente caça em pares, e o livro The Animal Kingdom (O Reino Animal, Vol. II, p. 965) relata um caso em que "diversas delas lançaram um ataque em massa contra uma antilocapra". (Editado por F. Drimmer, 1954.) A acima mencionada profecia de Jesus foi proferida em conexão com a sua prometida "presença". Portanto, não se aplicaria apenas à desolação da nação judaica, em 70 EC, pelos exércitos romanos, que tinham estandartes adornados com figuras de águias.

Águias são usadas em Revelação (Apocalipse) para representar criaturas que servem o trono de Deus e anunciam mensagens de julgamento da parte de Deus aos que estão na terra, sem dúvida, para indicar rapidez e acuidade visual. — Re 4:7; 8:13; veja Ez 1:10; 10:14.

Outro texto que muitos peritos consideram como aplicando-se ao abutre, em vez de à águia, é Miqueias 1:16, que fala de Israel figuradamente 'alargar sua calvície como a da águia'. A cabeça da águia é bem provida de penas; mesmo a águia-calva, da América do Norte, só é chamada de "calva" porque as penas brancas da sua cabeça lhe dão a aparência de calvície, vista à distância. O grifo ou abutre-fouveiro (Gyps fulvus), que ainda pode ser visto em Israel, possui apenas uma penugem branca, macia, na cabeça, e seu pescoço só tem penas esparsas. Caso o texto se aplique a ele, isto indicaria que a palavra hebraica né·sher possui uma aplicação mais ampla do que apenas à águia. Pode-se notar que o grifo ou abutre-fouveiro, embora não seja classificado pelos ornitólogos como da mesma "espécie" ou "gênero" da águia, é contado como da mesma "família" (Acipitrídeos). Alguns, contudo, creem que Miqueias 1:16 se refere à muda de penas que a águia sofre, embora se diga que este é um processo bem gradual e um tanto inconspícuo. Este processo de muda, trazendo certa redução da atividade e força, e sendo seguido por uma renovação da vida normal, talvez seja o que o salmista tinha presente ao dizer que a juventude da pessoa 'se renova como a duma águia'. (Sal 103:5) Outros veem nisto uma referência à vida relativamente longa da águia, sabendo-se de algumas que atingiram os 80 anos.

O nome Áquila (At 18:2) é a palavra latina para águia.

ÁGUIA-PESQUEIRA. Veja BRITA-OSSOS.

AGUILHADA. Implemento agrícola que consiste em uma vara de aproximadamente 2,5 m de comprimento, usada mormente para tanger e guiar touros e bois quando se ara. Uma ponta da vara possui um ferrão metálico pontiagudo para aguilhoar o animal, e ampla lâmina semelhante a uma talhadeira, afixada na outra ponta, é usada para retirar lama e barro da relha do arado ou para remover dela raízes e espinhos.

Uma "aguilhada de gado" foi usada por Sangar para matar 600 filisteus. (Jz 3:31) A palavra hebraica aqui vertida por "aguilhada" (mal·mádh) deriva da raiz la·mádh (aprender; ensinar).

O registro bíblico menciona que, quando os filisteus exerciam o domínio sobre os israelitas, durante o reinado de Saul, não se permitia que os israelitas tivessem ferreiros, e eles se viam assim obrigados a descer aos filisteus para mandar afiar seus implementos agrícolas, e para prender suas aguilhadas (aparentemente os ferrões metálicos). — 1Sa 13:19-21.

A aguilhada é comparada às palavras do sábio, palavras que movem o ouvinte a progredir em harmonia com a sabedoria ouvida. (Ec 12:11) A expressão figurada "dar pontapés contra as aguilhadas" deriva da ação de um touro teimoso que resiste às picadas da aguilhada por dar coices contra ela, resultando em dano para si mesmo. A expressão, portanto, indica resistência ou rebelião contra a autoridade legítima ou contra uma situação que não pode ser alterada, apenas para o prejuízo da própria pessoa. Era exatamente isso o que Saulo fazia antes de se tornar cristão, ao lutar contra os seguidores de Jesus Cristo, que tinham o apoio de Jeová Deus. — At 26:14; compare isso com At 5:38, 39.

AGULHA. Instrumento fino, com uma ponta aguda numa extremidade e com um orifício, ou "fundo", na outra; ela é usada para costurar com linha (ou, às vezes, com tirinhas de couro) e para bordar. (Êx 28:6; 35:34, 35; Ec 3:7; Lu 5:36) Embora se descobrissem agulhas de osso e algumas de marfim em locais antigos, em geral se usavam agulhas de bronze. Eram muito similares às agulhas atuais. Na Palestina, encontraram-se agulhas de bronze que variam de tamanho, indo de aproximadamente 4 a 14 cm. Algumas agulhas de bronze, egípcias, tinham de 8 a 9 cm de comprimento.

AGULHA, ORIFÍCIO DA. Numa ilustração sobre entrar no Reino, Jesus Cristo disse: "É mais fácil um camelo passar pelo orifício duma agulha, do que um rico entrar no reino de Deus." (Mt 19:24; Mr 10:25) Alguns têm sustentado que o orifício (ou fundo) da agulha era um pequeno portão pelo qual um camelo, uma vez aliviado da sua carga, podia passar com alguma dificuldade. No entanto, a palavra grega para "agulha" encontrada em Mateus 19:24 e Marcos 10:25 (rha·fis), deriva dum verbo que significa "costurar". Também a palavra grega, que aparece no trecho paralelo de Lucas 18:25 (be·ló·ne), é usada para referir-se a uma agulha cirúrgica literal. A respeito destes termos gregos, Vine's Expository Dictionary of Old and New Testament Words (Dicionário Expositivo de Palavras do Antigo e do Novo Testamento, de Vine), observa: "A ideia de aplicar 'o fundo duma agulha' a pequenos portões parece ser moderna; não há vestígio antigo dela. O objetivo do Senhor, nessa declaração, é expressar a impossibilidade humana, e não há necessidade de esforçar-se em amainar a dificuldade por presumir que a agulha signifique algo mais do que o instrumento comum." — 1981, Vol. 3, p. 106.

Como hipérbole, a ilustração salientava quão difícil seria para os ricos, não somente de começarem a servir a Deus, mas de realmente entrarem no Reino. — 1Ti 6:17-19; Lu 13:24.

AGUR. Filho de Jaque e escritor do 30.º capítulo do livro de Provérbios. (Pr 30:1) Não se declara nada mais que possibilite uma identificação adicional. É provável que ele vivesse durante o período que se estendia desde o reinado de Salomão (1037-998 AEC) até o reinado de Ezequias (745-717 AEC).

Alguns peritos rabínicos têm achado que o nome Agur é alegórico, aplicando-se a Salomão. Neste respeito, a nota de rodapé sobre Provérbios 30:1 na obra Soncino Books of the Bible (Livros da Bíblia, de Soncino) cita o Midraxe como dizendo: "Ele foi chamado de Agur porque assimilava (agar) conhecimento da Tora, e filho de Jaque, porque o vomitava (hikki), por desconsiderar o aviso contra multiplicar esposas." (Editada por A. Cohen, Londres, 1952) Mesmo entre os comentadores judeus, porém, tal conceito não era unânime, visto que muitos afirmavam que a mudança de estilo, linguagem e conteúdo indica um escritor diferente.

AI [Montão de Ruínas]. Em versões católicas chamada "Hai", tendo prefixado o artigo definido, assim como no hebraico. O nome ocorre também nas formas femininas de Aiate e Aija. — Is 10:28; Ne 11:31.

1. Cidade real dos cananeus, a segunda cidade tomada durante a invasão israelita. Ai situava-se "perto de Bete-Áven, ao oriente de Betel", tendo um vale ao N. (Jos 7:2; 8:11, 12) Pelo visto, Micmás encontrava-se ao S. — Is 10:28.

Pouco depois de chegar a Canaã, Abraão armara sua tenda "com Betel ao oeste e Ai ao leste". Ali construiu um altar e revisitou o lugar depois da sua peregrinação no Egito. — Gên 12:8; 13:3.

Em 1473 AEC, depois da vitória sobre Jericó, Ai foi atacada por uma pequena força de cerca de 3.000 soldados israelitas, visto que os espias disseram sobre os habitantes de Ai: "São poucos." (Jos 7:2, 3) Entretanto, devido ao pecado de Acã, Israel sofreu uma derrota. (Jos 7:4-15) Depois de este assunto ser corrigido, Josué utilizou um estratagema contra Ai, armando uma emboscada por trás da cidade, de seu lado O. A força principal foi disposta diante da cidade, ao N, onde havia um vale ou baixada desértica, e, dali, Josué preparou um ataque frontal contra Ai. Tendo atraído o rei de Ai e um grupo de homens para fora de Ai, a força de Josué fingiu recuar, até que os perseguidores estavam longe da sua fortaleza. Daí, fez-se o sinal para os da emboscada entrarem em ação, e a cidade foi capturada e incendiada. (Jos 8:1-27) O rei de Ai foi executado, e a cidade foi reduzida a "um monte de ruínas [hebr., tel] que dura indefinidamente, como desolação até o dia de hoje". — Jos 8:28.

Por volta do tempo de Isaías, no oitavo século AEC, a cidade, ou talvez um lugar adjacente, era habitada, e profetizou-se que ela seria a primeira a ser tomada pelo rei da Assíria em sua marcha contra Jerusalém. (Is 10:28) Após o exílio babilônico, benjamitas de Ai voltaram com a caravana de Zorobabel. — Esd 2:28; Ne 7:32; 11:31.

Ai tem sido geralmente identificada com o lugar Khirbet et-Tell (Horvat et-Tel), que preserva o significado do nome antigo (et-Tell significa "A Colina; O Montão de Ruínas"). Encontra-se a 2,3 km a ESE de Betel (a moderna Beitin). No entanto, escavações feitas nesse lugar em 1933-1935 e em 1964-1972 indicam que se tratava duma grande cidade, devastada por volta de 2000 AEC e depois desabitada até cerca de 1050 AEC (segundo os métodos arqueológicos de fixar datas). Por causa disso, os arqueólogos fizeram diversas tentativas de alterar o sentido das referências bíblicas a Ai. Entretanto, o arqueólogo J. Simons considera inaceitável a identificação com Khirbet et-Tell à base do tamanho da cidade (Jos 7:3), de não haver um amplo vale ao N de Khirbet et-Tell (Jos 8:11) e de outros motivos. (American Journal of Archaeology, julho-setembro de 1947, p. 311) Se a datação arqueológica for correta, então o lugar deve encontrar-se em outra parte. O nome em si não identificaria, necessariamente, esse lugar, visto que, como declara Sir Frederic Kenyon: "A transferência do nome de um sítio arruinado ou abandonado para outro próximo é fenômeno comum na Palestina." — The Bible and Archaeology (A Bíblia e a Arqueologia), 1940, p. 190.

2. Uma cidade mencionada junto com Hésbon, na profecia de Jeremias contra os amonitas. (Je 49:3) Seu lugar é desconhecido.

AÍ [duma raiz que significa "irmão"].

1. Filho de Abdiel, chefe de família da tribo de Gade. — 1Cr 5:15.

2. Um dos quatro filhos de Semer, maioral da tribo de Aser, da família de Berias. — 1Cr 7:30, 31, 34, 40.

AIÁ [Milhafre-preto].

1. Primeiro filho mencionado dos dois do xeque heveu Zibeão e tio de uma das esposas de Esaú, Oolibama. — Gên 36:2, 20, 24, 29; 1Cr 1:40.

2. Pai de Rispa, concubina de Saul. Seus dois netos resultantes desta união foram executados. — 2Sa 3:7; 21:8-11.

AIÃ [Irmãozinho]. Filho de Semida, da tribo de Manassés. — 1Cr 7:14, 19.

AIÃO. Filho de Sarar (Sacar), o hararita; um dos 30 poderosos de Davi, das forças militares. — 2Sa 23:33; 1Cr 11:35.

AÍAS. Veja AIJÁ.

AIATE. Veja AI N.º 1.

AICÃO [(Meu) Irmão se Levantou [isto é, para a batalha]]. Filho de Safã, secretário real durante o reinado de Josias. Aicão foi um dos cinco enviados por Josias à profetisa Hulda para indagar a respeito do que haviam lido no recém-descoberto livro da Lei. (2Rs 22:12-14; 2Cr 34:20-22) Mais tarde, ele protegeu a vida de Jeremias quando foi ameaçada. (Je 26:24) O filho de Aicão, Gedalias, foi governador de Judá após a destruição de Jerusalém em 607 AEC. — 2Rs 25:22; Je 40:5.

AIEZER [Meu Irmão É Ajudador].

1. Filho de Amisadai e maioral da tribo de Dã, escolhido um ano após o Êxodo. (Núm 1:1, 4, 12) Nesta qualidade, ele ajudou Moisés no recenseamento, comandava a retaguarda da divisão de três tribos quando em marcha, e apresentou a sua oferta no décimo dia da inauguração do altar no tabernáculo. — Núm 2:25; 7:66, 71; 10:25.

2. Filho de Semaá, o gibeatita, e cabeça dos poderosos benjamitas que vieram apoiar Davi em Ziclague. — 1Cr 12:1-3.

AIJA. Veja AI N.º 1.

AIJÁ [Jeová É (Meu) Irmão].

1. O quinto filho mencionado de Jerameel, da tribo de Judá. — 1Cr 2:25.

2. Chefe de família na tribo de Benjamim. (1Cr 8:6, 7) Alguns acham que seja o mesmo que o Aoá no versículo 4.

3. Filho de Aitube e bisneto de Eli. Ele serviu como sumo sacerdote em Silo quando Saul era rei. (1Sa 14:3, 18) Alguns sugerem que ele era irmão de Aimeleque, ou então, por se substituir "já" por "meleque", ele era Aimeleque. — 1Sa 22:9.

4. Um dos poderosos no exército de Davi, um pelonita. — 1Cr 11:36.

5. Um levita designado a cuidar dos tesouros da casa de Jeová no reinado de Davi. — 1Cr 26:20.

6. Filho de Sisa. Ele e seu irmão Eliorefe eram secretários principescos de Salomão. — 1Rs 4:2, 3.

7. Profeta de Jeová, que morava em Silo e que predisse como o reino de Salomão seria dividido. Rasgando em 12 partes um manto novo, Aijá deu 10 pedaços a Jeroboão, prometendo que, se Jeroboão se mostrasse fiel, Jeová lhe edificaria "uma casa duradoura". (1Rs 11:29-39; 12:15; 2Cr 10:15) Depois de anos de governo iníquo, Jeroboão enviou sua esposa para indagar de Aijá quanto ao bem-estar de seu filho doente. O profeta, já então idoso e cego, predisse que o menino logo morreria e que Jeová faria "uma varredura atrás da casa de Jeroboão, assim como se varre o esterco". (1Rs 14:2-18; 15:29) A "profecia de Aijá", um dos registros escritos que incluíam os assuntos de Salomão, sobreviveu até o tempo em que Esdras compilou Crônicas. — 2Cr 9:29.

8. Pai de Baasa, que conspirou contra Nadabe e se fez rei de Israel; da tribo de Issacar. — 1Rs 15:27, 33; 2Rs 9:9.

9. Um dos 44 cabeças do povo, cujo descendente, se não ele mesmo, participou na selagem do "arranjo fidedigno" de Neemias, de andar nas leis de Jeová. — Ne 10:26; 9:38.

AIJALOM [Lugar da Corça; Lugar do Veado].

1. Cidade da Sefelá, ou terra baixa, colinosa, da Palestina, situada num morro na extremidade S da bela baixada, ou vale, de Aijalom. O povoado neste lugar é agora chamado Yalo, e situa-se logo ao N da estrada que vai de Jerusalém a Tel Aviv-Yafo, a cerca de 21 km ao ONO de Jerusalém.

O vale de Aijalom é o mais setentrional de diversos vales que cortam as colinas da Sefelá, e era um importante passo que levava das planícies costeiras à região montanhosa central. Josué estava, evidentemente, perto desta planície quando requereu que o sol e a lua permanecessem 'imóveis' sobre Gibeão e a "baixada de Aijalom", ao completar sua batalha vitoriosa contra os cinco reis amorreus que tinham travado guerra contra Gibeão. (Jos 10:12-14) Depois da conquista de Canaã por Josué, Aijalom foi designada para a tribo de Dã. (Jos 19:40-42) Mais tarde foi designada para os filhos de Coate, como cidade levita. — Jos 21:24.

Os danitas no começo não conseguiram expulsar de Aijalom os amorreus, mas parece que Efraim, do N, veio ajudá-los e então "a mão da casa de José ficou tão pesada que [os amorreus] foram obrigados a trabalho forçado". (Jz 1:34, 35) Este talvez seja o motivo de 1 Crônicas 6:69 alistar Aijalom como pertencente a Efraim e como dada por eles aos coatitas. (Veja, porém, o caso correspondente de GATE-RIMOM N.º 1.) Mais tarde, talvez depois da divisão do reino, ela é mencionada como a cidade de certos benjamitas de destaque. — 1Cr 8:13.

Baixada de Aijalom. Quando lutou contra os amorreus, Josué requereu que a lua ficasse imóvel "sobre a baixada de Aijalom".

Em Aijalom, Saul obteve a sua primeira vitória sobre os filisteus, quando Israel continuou "a golpear os filisteus [em fuga] desde Micmás até Aijalom". (1Sa 14:31) Muitos anos depois, quando o reino já havia sido dividido após a morte do Rei Salomão (c. 998 AEC), seu filho e sucessor, Roboão, fortificou Aijalom e tornou-a um de seus baluartes contra o N e o O. (2Cr 11:5-12) Quase dois séculos e meio mais tarde, Aijalom foi perdida para os filisteus, durante o reinado do infiel Rei Acaz (761-746 AEC). — 2Cr 28:18.

Aijalom é mencionada em uma das tabuinhas de Amarna como Aialuna.

2. Lugar no território de Zebulão, onde foi enterrado o juiz Elom, daquela tribo. (Jz 12:12) Sua localização é incerta.

AILUDE. Pai de Jeosafá, cronista real de Davi. (2Sa 8:16; 1Cr 18:15) Era provavelmente o pai de Baana, um dos prepostos que proviam alimentos, sob Salomão. — 1Rs 4:7, 12.

AIM [Fonte; Manancial]. A palavra significa literalmente "olho", mas é usada por analogia para indicar um manancial, ou fonte natural, distinto dum poço ou tanque feito pelo homem, fonte de água posterior que é expressa pelos termos hebraicos be'ér e bohr. (Gên 49:22; De 8:7; veja CISTERNA; POÇO.) Frequentemente é escrita "En-" quando usada em palavras compostas, tais como En-Rimom, En-Gedi, En-Ganim.

1. Lugar mencionado por Jeová quando especificou o termo L de Israel para Moisés. (Núm 34:11) A "Ribla" mencionada neste texto como situada "ao leste de Aim" evidentemente não se refere à Ribla na terra de Hamate, consideravelmente ao N de Damasco, visto que Aim é mencionada em relação com o mar de Quinerete (Galileia). Estava situada ao N daquele mar, mas não se conhece sua localização exata.

2. Uma das cidades mais meridionais originalmente designada à tribo de Judá (Jos 15:32), sendo depois designada à tribo de Simeão, quando o quinhão de Simeão foi separado do território excessivamente grande de Judá. (Jos 19:1, 7, 9; 1Cr 4:24, 32) Aim encontrava-se perto da cidade de Rimom, e parece que, depois de ser repovoada após o exílio em Babilônia, os nomes dos dois lugares foram conjugados em um só: En-Rimom. (Ne 11:29) Como tal, a cidade costuma ser identificada com Khirbet Umm er-Ramamin (Horvat Remalya), situada a uns 15 km ao N de Berseba. — Veja RIMOM N.º 2.

3. Em Josué 21:16, Aim é alistada como uma das cidades dadas aos levitas. Uma comparação deste texto com Josué 15:42; 19:7 e 1 Crônicas 6:59 indica que a cidade aqui mencionada é em outra parte chamada Asã. — Veja Asã.

AIMÃ.

1. Irmão de Sesai e de Talmai. É provável que se deva entender Aimã, Sesai e Talmai como representando três famílias de anaquins que residiam em Hébron quando os israelitas espiaram Canaã em 1512 AEC. (Núm 13:22, 28, 33) Muitos anos depois, esses anaquins foram desapossados por Calebe e pelos judeus conquistadores. — Jos 14:10-15; 15:13, 14; Jz 1:10.

2. Um levita e um dos porteiros de confiança de Jerusalém, após o retorno do exílio babilônico. — 1Cr 9:17, 18.

AIMAÁS.

1. Pai de Ainoã, esposa de Saul. — 1Sa 14:50.

2. Filho do sacerdote Zadoque e pai de Azarias. (1Cr 6:8, 9, 53) Quando Absalão se rebelou contra o seu pai Davi e usurpou o trono, o jovem Aimaás desempenhou um papel vital em comunicar informações a Davi. Em certa ocasião, quando estava prestes a ser capturado, ele e seu companheiro se esconderam num poço, cuja abertura foi camuflada com grãos por uma mulher. (2Sa 15:27, 36; 17:17-21) Quando Absalão foi morto, um corredor cusita foi escolhido para levar a notícia a Davi. Aimaás continuou a insistir em que também se lhe permitisse correr. Concedida a permissão, ele ultrapassou o primeiro corredor, e, quando se aproximou da cidade, foi reconhecido pelo seu modo de correr. "Este é um homem bom e deve vir com boas novas", exclamou Davi. Assim veio a ser; Aimaás relatou as boas novas e deixou as más para o segundo correio transmitir. (2Sa 18:19-32) Não há certeza se Aimaás foi alguma vez sumo sacerdote. Alguns sugerem que ele talvez tenha morrido antes de seu pai, permitindo assim que Azarias, filho de Aimaás, sucedesse a Zadoque. — 1Rs 4:2; 1Cr 6:8-10.

3. Marido de Basemate, filha de Salomão, e um dos 12 prepostos, designado para em um mês do ano prover alimento para a casa do rei, proveniente do território de Naftali. (1Rs 4:7, 15) Alguns sugerem que ele é o mesmo que o N.º 2.

AIMELEQUE.

1. Filho de Aitube e bisneto de Eli; sumo sacerdote do tabernáculo localizado em Nobe. Por ter dado ajuda a Davi, sem saber que este era fugitivo de Saul, Aimeleque (junto com mais 84 sacerdotes de Jeová, bem como os homens, as mulheres e as crianças de Nobe) foram massacrados pelo edomita Doegue. Abiatar foi o único filho de Aimeleque a escapar. (1Sa caps. 21, 22) Davi, mais tarde compondo o Salmo 52, relatou o ato abominável de Doegue. (Sal 52:cab) Também Jesus lembrou a experiência de Davi com Aimeleque. — Mt 12:3, 4; Mr 2:25, 26; Lu 6:3, 4; veja Aijá N.º 3.

2. Filho de Abiatar e neto do Aimeleque que foi morto por Doegue. — 1Cr 18:16; 24:3, 6, 31.

3. Um hitita que foi convidado, mas que não acompanhou Davi quando este penetrou à noite no acampamento de Saul. — 1Sa 26:6, 7.

AIMOTE [possivelmente: Irmão da Morte]. Filho levita de Elcana, da família de Coate. — 1Cr 6:25.

AINADABE [Irmão Está Disposto (Nobre; Generoso)]. Um dos doze prepostos responsáveis por prover alimento para a casa real de Salomão, à base dum rodízio mensal. (1Rs 4:7, 14) Sediado em Maanaim, seu território designado situava-se em Gileade meridional.

AINE [ע] (ʽá·yin). A 16.ª letra do alfabeto hebraico. A vogal grega ó·mi·kron ("o") deriva de ʽá·yin; todavia, a letra hebraica não é vogal, mas consoante. Representa um peculiar som gutural pronunciado no fundo da garganta e não tem equivalente em português. É transliterado como ʽ. Aparece como letra inicial em cada um dos versículos do Salmo 119:121-128, no texto hebraico.

AINOÃ [Irmão É Agradabilidade].

1. Esposa do Rei Saul, filha de Aimaás, e aparentemente mãe de Jonatã. — 1Sa 14:49, 50.

2. A esposa jezreelita de Davi. (1Sa 25:43; 2Sa 2:2) Ela acompanhou Davi ao seu exílio na Filístia, foi capturada por incursores amalequitas em Ziclague, e foi resgatada ilesa. (1Sa 27:3; 30:5, 18) Mais tarde, em Hébron, ela se tornou mãe do primogênito de Davi, Amnom. — 2Sa 3:2; 1Cr 3:1.

AIO(A). Veja Ama.

AIÔ [forma abreviada de Aijá; ou, possivelmente, Irmãozinho].

1. Parece ter sido filho de Berias e neto de Elpaal, da tribo de Benjamim. — 1Cr 8:12-16.

2. Benjamita, filho de Jeiel por Maacá, esposa deste. — 1Cr 8:29, 31; 9:35-37.

3. Filho de Abinadabe, de Quiriate-Jearim. A Arca do Pacto estava sendo transportada numa carroça nova para Jerusalém; Aiô andava na frente, quando seu irmão Uzá foi golpeado por tocar na Arca. — 2Sa 6:3, 4; 1Cr 13:7-10.

AIRA [possivelmente: Meu Irmão É Companheiro (Amigo)]. Filho de Enã, e o maioral da tribo de Naftali durante a peregrinação no ermo. Após os outros maiorais, fez a sua própria contribuição na inauguração do altar. — Núm 1:15; 2:29; 7:1-3, 78; 10:27.

AIRAMITAS [De (Pertencente a) Airão]. Família que descendia de Airão, filho de Benjamim. — Núm 26:38.

AIRÃO [Meu Irmão É Elevado (Enaltecido)]. Filho de Benjamim e fundador duma família. (Núm 26:38) Pelo visto é o mesmo que o Eí em Gênesis 46:21 e o Aará em 1 Crônicas 8:1.

AISAAR [Irmão da Alvorada]. Último filho mencionado de Bilã e descendente de Benjamim. — 1Cr 7:6, 10, 11.

AISAMAQUE [Meu Irmão Apoiou]. Pai danita de Ooliabe, que foi o artesão perito associado com Bezalel na construção do tabernáculo. — Êx 31:2-6; 35:34; 38:23.

AISAR. Príncipe encarregado da família palaciana de Salomão. — 1Rs 4:2, 6.

AITOFEL. Um natural de Gilo, nas colinas de Judá (2Sa 15:12), pai de um dos poderosos de Davi, chamado Elião, e possivelmente avô de Bate-Seba. (2Sa 11:3; 23:34) Como conselheiro pessoal de Davi, o conselho sagaz de Aitofel era avaliado como se fosse a palavra direta de Jeová. (2Sa 16:23) Mais tarde, este companheiro, antes íntimo, tornou-se perfidamente traidor e juntou-se a Absalão, filho de Davi, num golpe contra o rei. Como um dos cabeças da rebelião, aconselhou Absalão a violar as concubinas de Davi, e pediu permissão para organizar um exército de 12.000 homens e imediatamente ir caçar e matar Davi, enquanto este estava numa condição desorganizada e debilitada. (2Sa 15:31; 16:15, 21; 17:1-4) Quando Jeová frustrou esta trama audaciosa, e se seguiu o conselho de Husai, Aitofel evidentemente deu-se conta de que a revolta de Absalão iria fracassar. (2Sa 15:32-34; 17:5-14) Ele cometeu suicídio e foi sepultado junto aos seus antepassados. (2Sa 17:23) À parte de tempos de guerra, este é o único caso de suicídio mencionado nas Escrituras Hebraicas. O ato traiçoeiro dele, pelo que parece, é relembrado no Salmo 55:12-14.

AITUBE [Meu Irmão É Bondade].

1. Descendente de Itamar, filho de Arão; filho de Fineias e neto do sumo sacerdote Eli. (1Sa 14:3; 1Cr 24:3) Após a morte do seu pai e do seu avô no mesmo dia, Aitube possivelmente oficiava como sumo sacerdote. (1Sa 4:17, 18) O filho dele, o sumo sacerdote Aimeleque, foi morto às ordens de Saul. — 1Sa 22:9-20.

2. Filho de Amarias, descendente de Eleazar, filho de Arão. (1Cr 6:3-8) Não há nenhum indício de que ele atuasse como sumo sacerdote; este cargo encontrava-se na época na linhagem de Itamar. O filho de Aitube, Zadoque, serviu como sacerdote secundário, não como sumo sacerdote, durante o reinado de Davi, e depois foi designado para substituir Abiatar como sumo sacerdote, durante o reinado de Salomão. — 2Sa 8:17; 1Cr 18:16; 1Rs 1:8; 2:27.

3. Outro sacerdote descendente de Aitube N.º 2. As listas genealógicas são interrompidas para chamá-lo de "líder da casa do verdadeiro Deus". (1Cr 9:11; Ne 11:11) O nome de seu pai também era Amarias, e à base de 1 Crônicas 9:11 e Neemias 11:11 parece que seu filho era Meraiote, e que seu neto era Zadoque. — 1Cr 6:11, 12; Esd 7:2.

AIUDE. Apesar de diferenças existentes na grafia e na pontuação vocálica no hebraico, os nomes das duas pessoas diferentes abaixo mencionadas são grafadas de modo igual em português.

1. ['Ahhi·húdh, possivelmente: "Irmão É Dignidade"]. Filho de Selomi; como maioral da tribo de Aser, ele foi escolhido para ajudar na repartição da Terra da Promessa entre o povo. — Núm 34:18, 27, 29.

2. ['Ahhi·hhúdh]. Irmão de Uza, da tribo de Benjamim. — 1Cr 8:7.

AJUDANTE DE ORDENS. A palavra hebraica sha·lísh (terceiro homem, referindo-se ao terceiro guerreiro num carro de guerra), tem sido traduzida em diversas versões da Bíblia como "capitão", "guerreiro", "comandante", "oficial", "escudeiro", "ajudante", "ajudante de ordens".

Algumas inscrições em monumentos, que ilustram os carros de guerra "hititas" e assírios, mostram três homens: um é o condutor; outro é o combatente com espada, lança ou arco; e o terceiro, o escudeiro. Embora os monumentos egípcios usualmente não apresentem carros ocupados por três homens, o termo é usado em Êxodo 14:7 com respeito aos condutores de carros de Faraó. O terceiro guerreiro do carro, usualmente aquele que carregava o escudo, era um comandante auxiliar no carro de guerra, um ajudante de ordens. A palavra portuguesa "ajudante" literalmente significa "pessoa que ajuda; ajudador, acólito".

Três homens num carro de guerra assírio.

Depois de mencionar que nenhum dos filhos de Israel foi constituído escravo por Salomão, 1 Reis 9:22 declara: "Pois eram os guerreiros, e seus servos, e seus príncipes, e seus ajudantes de ordens, e os chefes dos seus condutores de carros e dos seus cavaleiros." Comentando este texto, C. F. Keil declara que o termo sha·li·shím (plural), usado nesta passagem, pode ser entendido como "ajudantes de ordens reais". — Commentary on the Old Testament (Comentário sobre o Velho Testamento), 1973, Vol. III, 1 Reis, p. 146.

Nos dias do Rei Jeorão, de Israel, os sírios sitiaram Samaria, o que com o tempo causou condições de fome na cidade. Quando Eliseu profetizou que haveria alimentos em abundância, o ajudante de ordens especial de Jeorão escarneceu da profecia. Conforme Eliseu predisse, o ajudante de ordens viu o cumprimento da profecia, mas não chegou a comer nada do alimento, sendo pisoteado até morrer, no portão. — 2Rs 7:2, 16-20.

Às ordens de Jeú, seus batedores e seus ajudantes de ordens, provavelmente incluindo Bidcar, golpearam os adoradores de Baal. (2Rs 9:25; 10:25) Peca, outro ajudante de ordens mencionado nas Escrituras, assassinou Pecaías, o rei de Israel, e sucedeu-lhe no trono. — 2Rs 15:25; veja Ez 23:15 n.

ALABASTRO. Nome de frasquinhos semelhantes a vasos, para perfume, originalmente feitos duma pedra encontrada perto de Alabastron, no Egito. A pedra em si, uma forma de carbonato de cálcio, também veio a ser conhecida pelo mesmo nome. Davi coletou "pedras de alabastro [hebr.: shá·yish], em grande quantidade", para a construção do templo de Jeová em Jerusalém. — 1Cr 29:2.

Este alabastro antigo ou "oriental" não deve ser confundido com um alabastro moderno, que é um sulfato de cálcio hidratado, facilmente arranhado. O alabastro original é usualmente branco, e, devido a ser uma formação de estalagmite, às vezes possui veios de várias cores. Aproxima-se da dureza do mármore, mas não pode receber tão alto grau de polimento. O alabastro maciço era perfurado ou ocado com uma broca, para conter até uma libra romana (330 g) de líquido. (Jo 12:3) O frasco de alabastro (gr.: a·lá·ba·stron) era usualmente modelado com um gargalo estreito que podia ser vedado eficazmente para impedir que a valiosa fragrância evaporasse.

Quando se usavam materiais menos caros, tais como o gipso, para fazer tais frascos, estes também eram chamados de alabastros, simplesmente por causa do uso que se fazia deles. No entanto, frascos feitos de genuíno alabastro eram usados para os unguentos e perfumes mais caros, como aqueles com os quais Jesus foi ungido em duas ocasiões — uma vez na casa dum fariseu, na Galileia (Lu 7:37), e outra vez na casa de Simão, o leproso, em Betânia. — Mt 26:6, 7; Mr 14:3.

ALABE. Esta cidade cananeia encontrava-se no território de Aser. (Jz 1:31) A tribo, porém, deixou de expulsar os cananeus, os quais, subsequentemente, continuaram a morar na cidade. Sua localização atualmente é incerta.

ALAI.

1. Provavelmente filha de Sesã, da tribo de Judá, dada em casamento a Jara, servo egípcio de seu pai, a quem deu à luz Atai. Entretanto, Alai, se na realidade tiver sido filho de Sesã, talvez tenha morrido cedo. — 1Cr 2:31, 34, 35.

2. Pai de Zabade, que era um dos poderosos no exército de Davi. — 1Cr 11:41.

ALAMELEQUE [Árvore Maciça do Rei]. Cidade no território aquinhoado à tribo de Aser (Jos 19:26), ao N do vale da torrente do Quisom. O lugar exato é desconhecido, mas encontrava-se provavelmente na parte S da planície de Aco, talvez no uádi el-Melek (Nahal Zippori), que desemboca no Quisom.

ALAMOTE [Donzelas; Moças]. Evidentemente um termo referente à execução de música. Refere-se provavelmente às vozes de soprano de moças ou ao falsete de meninos. Em 1 Crônicas 15:20, descreve-se instrumentos de cordas como "afinados segundo Alamote", termo que é transliterado. Entretanto, no cabeçalho do Salmo 46, 'ala·móhth é traduzido por "Donzelas".

Em 1 Crônicas 15:21, no versículo que segue a citação acima, outra expressão musical é transliterada, a saber, shemi·níth, referindo-se a "harpas afinadas segundo Seminite". Nos cabeçalhos dos Salmos 6 e 12, esta palavra é traduzida por "oitava inferior". Embora os dois termos, Alamote e Seminite, não necessariamente sejam opostos em sentido, alguns peritos acham que se contrastam entre si. O conteúdo dos respectivos salmos também parece indicar isso: Ambos os salmos (6 e 12), que contêm shemi·níth nos seus cabeçalhos, são um tanto plangentes, portanto, viriam acompanhados por uma escala mais sombria, mais baixa; ao passo que o Salmo 46, que contém 'ala·móhth no seu cabeçalho, é alegre e razoavelmente teria acompanhamento ou seria cantado numa escala mais elevada. — Veja HARPA; MÚSICA.

ALAÚDE. A palavra hebraica sha·lísh parece relacionar-se a uma raiz que significa "três". (Veja Êx 14:7 n.) Por isso, a forma plural sha·li·shím, em 1 Samuel 18:6, foi traduzida de forma diversa como "instrumentos de três cordas" (Ro), "triângulos" (PIB), e, conforme preferido por alguns modernos léxicos, "alaúdes" (NM). O contexto deste versículo sugere um instrumento musical comparativamente leve, pois era tocado pelas mulheres israelitas enquanto cantavam e dançavam, na celebração das vitórias do Rei Saul e de Davi. — 1Sa 18:6, 7.

ÁLCALI. Veja LAVADEIRO.

ALCAPARRA, FRUTO DA [hebr.: 'avi·yoh·náh]. O fruto da alcaparreira. Algumas traduções de Eclesiastes 12:5 vertem o termo hebraico 'avi·yoh·náh como "desejo", de modo que esse trecho passa a rezar: "falhar o desejo", ou "perecer o apetite". (Al; IBB) No entanto, muitos tradutores modernos (CBC; MC; NM; PIB; So; NC [em espanhol]) consideram que o escritor de Eclesiastes, que neste capítulo descreve a condição do homem na sua velhice, usou uma metáfora, como se dá em toda a descrição, e que 'avi·yoh·náh se refere à alcaparra (como estimulando o desejo ou o apetite). Este último conceito encontra respaldo nas traduções da Septuaginta grega, na Vulgata latina, na Pesito siríaca e em traduções árabes.

A alcaparreira (Capparis spinosa) pode atingir uma altura de 1 m, mas usualmente espalha-se pelo solo como uma vinha. Abunda em Israel, frequentemente crescendo em fendas nas rochas, ou espalhando-se por muros ou ruínas, bem semelhante à hera. Os ramos espinhosos apresentam folhas ovais de um verde intenso. A planta floresce em maio, com grandes flores brancas que têm filamentos purpurinos estendendo-se do seu centro. — FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 543.

Os frutos da planta não são tão usados quanto os pequeninos botões novos. Estes são conservados em vinagre e comidos como tira-gosto para estimular o apetite, qualidade pela qual são conhecidos desde os tempos antigos. Assim, o escritor de Eclesiastes parece estar afirmando que, quando diminui o sentido do paladar dum homem idoso, e seu apetite se reduz, nem mesmo o estímulo da alcaparra consegue despertar seu apetite.

ALCATRÃO. Veja BETUME.

ALDEIA. Veja ALDEIAS DEPENDENTES; CIDADE.

ALDEIAS DEPENDENTES. Aldeias ou pequenas cidades na vizinhança de uma vila ou cidade maior. A capital, ou cidade principal dum distrito, era a metrópole, ou cidade "mãe", como em 1 Crônicas 18:1: "Gate e suas aldeias dependentes" (literalmente: "Gate e suas filhas"). Tiro é chamada de "filha" de Sídon, cidade evidentemente mais antiga do que Tiro, que parece ter sido originalmente uma colônia de Sídon. (Is 23:8, 12; Gên 10:19; Jos 11:8) As cidades menores de Judá dependiam de Jerusalém. (Sal 48:11; 97:8; La 3:51) Outras cidades "mães", que possuíam aldeias dependentes, eram Samaria e Sodoma (Ez 16:53), Rabá de Amom (Je 49:3), Quenate (Núm 32:42), Ecrom (Jos 15:45), Asdode e Gaza (Jos 15:47), Bete-Seã, Ibleão, Dor, En-Dor, Taanaque e Megido. — Jos 17:11.

As aldeias "filhas" se originavam da cidade "mãe", ou eram política, econômica e às vezes religiosamente dependentes dela. Em alguns casos, as aldeias dependentes não tinham muros ou eram menos fortificadas, e, em época de sítio, os habitantes procuravam a segurança na cidade "mãe". — Je 4:5; 8:14.

A antiga cidade de Jerusalém, como "mãe" das aldeias dependentes de Judá, é usada simbolicamente para representar a "Jerusalém celestial", o Reino messiânico de Jeová por meio de Jesus Cristo, no qual os que buscam a justiça encontrarão refúgio no "dia de Jeová contra todas as nações". — He 12:22, 28; Ob 15, 17; Sal 48:11-13; Jl 2:32.

Babilônia, a Grande, é representada em Revelação, capítulo 17, como uma prostituta e como uma cidade, possuindo filhas. Estas são organizações que surgiram da organização-mãe. Sendo dependentes dela, sofrerão a destruição junto com ela. — Veja CIDADE.

ÁLEFE [א] ('á·lef). A primeira letra do alfabeto hebraico. O nome dado a esta letra é o mesmo que a palavra hebraica para "boi; vaca". — Veja Sal 8:7; De 7:13.

No hebraico, 'á·lef não é vogal, mas consoante, e não tem equivalente exato em português. Na escrita é transliterada por um apóstrofe ('). Sua pronúncia em hebraico é o mais brando dos sons guturais (isto é, sons produzidos na garganta), e é similar ao leve som gutural do "h" mudo no começo da palavra inglesa "hour".

No hebraico, os primeiros oito versículos do Salmo 119 começam com 'á·lef.

ALEGRIA. A emoção suscitada pela aquisição ou pela expectativa do que é bom; estado de felicidade; exultação. As palavras hebraicas e gregas usadas na Bíblia para alegria, exultação, regozijo e alegrar-se expressam várias nuanças de significado, diferentes estágios ou graus de alegria. Os respectivos verbos expressam o sentimento íntimo e a manifestação externa de alegria, e diversamente significam "alegrar-se; exultar; gritar de júbilo; pular de alegria".

Jeová Deus e Jesus Cristo. Jeová é chamado o "Deus feliz". (1Ti 1:11) Ele cria e trabalha com alegria para si mesmo e para suas criaturas. O que Ele realiza o torna alegre. (Sal 104:31) Deseja que suas criaturas igualmente gozem as obras dele, e usufruam seu próprio trabalho. (Ec 5:19) Visto que ele é a Fonte de todas as coisas boas (Tg 1:17), todas as criaturas inteligentes, tanto a humanidade como os anjos, podem derivar seu principal prazer de virem a conhecê-lo. (Je 9:23, 24) O Rei Davi disse: "Seja prazenteira a minha reflexão sobre ele. Eu, da minha parte, me alegrarei em Jeová." (Sal 104:34) Ele cantou também: "O justo se alegrará em Jeová e deveras se refugiará nele; e jactar-se-ão todos os retos no coração." (Sal 64:10) O apóstolo Paulo instou com os cristãos para se alegrarem todo o tempo no conhecimento que tinham de Jeová e dos Seus tratos com eles, escrevendo-lhes: "Alegrai-vos sempre no Senhor ["Jeová", em diversas versões]. Mais uma vez direi: Alegrai-vos!" — Fil 4:4.

Jesus Cristo, que era o íntimo de Jeová, é quem melhor o conhece (Mt 11:27) e pode explicá-lo a seus seguidores. (Jo 1:18) Jesus, portanto é alegre, sendo chamado "o feliz e único Potentado". (1Ti 6:14, 15) Por amor a seu Pai, está ansioso de sempre fazer as coisas que agradam a Ele. (Jo 8:29) Portanto, quando se lhe apresentou a tarefa de vir à Terra, de sofrer e de morrer, a fim de limpar o nome de Jeová de toda acusação falsa, "pela alegria que se lhe apresentou, ele aturou uma estaca de tortura, desprezando a vergonha". (He 12:2) Ele também sentia grande amor pela humanidade e alegrava-se nela. As Escrituras, personificando-o na sua existência pré-humana como sabedoria, representam-no como dizendo: "Então vim a estar ao . . . lado [de Jeová] como mestre de obras, e vim a ser aquele de quem ele gostava especialmente de dia a dia, regozijando-me perante ele todo o tempo, regozijando-me com o solo produtivo da sua terra, e as coisas de que eu gostava estavam com os filhos dos homens." — Pr 8:30, 31.

Jesus desejava que seus seguidores tivessem a mesma alegria, dizendo-lhes: "Estas coisas eu vos falei para que a minha alegria esteja em vós e a vossa alegria se torne plena." Os anjos se alegraram com a criação da Terra. (Jo 15:11; 17:13; Jó 38:4-7) Eles veem também o proceder do povo de Deus, alegrando-se no proceder fiel deste e especialmente exultando quando alguém se desvia dos seus modos pecaminosos para a adoração pura e o serviço de Deus. — Lu 15:7, 10.

O que alegra a Deus. O coração de Jeová pode ser alegrado por seus servos devido à fidelidade e à lealdade deles a Ele. Satanás, o Diabo, desafia constantemente a legitimidade da soberania de Deus, e a integridade de todos os que servem a Deus. (Jó 1:9-11; 2:4, 5; Re 12:10) A eles se aplicam as palavras: "Sê sábio, filho meu, e alegra meu coração, para que eu possa replicar àquele que me escarnece." (Pr 27:11) O povo de Jeová, na Terra, pode fazer com que Deus se regozije por manter fidelidade e lealdade a Ele. — Is 65:19; Sof 3:17.

Um Fruto do Espírito. Visto que Jeová é a Fonte da alegria e deseja que seu povo se sinta alegre, a alegria é um fruto do seu espírito santo. A alegria é mencionada logo depois do amor, na lista em Gálatas 5:22, 23. O apóstolo escreveu aos cristãos em Tessalônica: "Vós vos tornastes imitadores nossos e do Senhor, visto que aceitastes a palavra sob muita tribulação, com alegria de espírito santo." (1Te 1:6) Concordemente, Paulo aconselhou os cristãos em Roma no sentido de que o Reino de Deus "significa justiça, e paz, e alegria com espírito santo". — Ro 14:17.

A verdadeira alegria é uma qualidade do coração, e pode influir no corpo inteiro para o bem. "O coração alegre tem bom efeito sobre o semblante", e "o coração alegre faz bem como o que cura [ou, "faz bem ao corpo"]", diz o sábio escritor de Provérbios. — Pr 15:13; 17:22 n.

Alegria no Serviço de Deus. O que Jeová pede de seus servos não é pesado. (1Jo 5:3) Ele deseja que tenham prazer em Seu serviço. Israel, seu povo, devia usufruir as festividades periódicas que providenciou para eles, e devia regozijar-se com outros aspectos da sua vida e da sua adoração de Deus. (Le 23:40; De 12:7, 12, 18) Eles deviam falar sobre Deus com alegria. (Sal 20:5; 51:14; 59:16) Se não serviam a Deus com alegria de coração, havia algo de errado com o seu coração e o seu apreço pela benevolência e pela bondade Dele. Assim, ele os avisou do que aconteceria se se tornassem desobedientes e não tivessem alegria em servi-lo: "Todas estas invocações do mal virão certamente sobre ti . . . porque não escutaste a voz de Jeová, teu Deus, guardando os seus mandamentos e os seus estatutos . . . E têm de permanecer sobre ti e sobre a tua descendência . . . devido ao fato de que não serviste a Jeová, teu Deus, com alegria e contentamento do coração pela abundância de tudo." — De 28:45-47.

O cristão, igualmente, deve sentir prazer em seu serviço a Deus. De outra forma, algo está faltando quanto ao seu apreço de coração. (Sal 100:2) "O regozijo de Jeová é o vosso baluarte", disse um dos servos fiéis de Deus. (Ne 8:10) As boas novas que o cristão proclama foram anunciadas pelo anjo de Deus como "boas novas duma grande alegria que todo o povo terá". (Lu 2:10) O nome de Jeová sobre Suas testemunhas, e a verdade encontrada na Bíblia, já por si sós devem ser uma alegria para elas. O profeta Jeremias disse: "Tua palavra torna-se para mim a exultação e a alegria do meu coração; pois o teu nome foi invocado sobre mim, ó Jeová, Deus dos exércitos." — Je 15:16.

Ademais, as decisões judiciais justas e retas de Jeová, postas em vigor na congregação cristã e na vida dos cristãos, são motivo de alegria, em especial num tempo em que o mundo deita por terra a justiça e a retidão. (Sal 48:11) Daí, também, a maravilhosa esperança à frente por certo dá uma forte base para alegria. ("Alegrai-vos na esperança"; Ro 12:12; Pr 10:28.) A salvação deles constitui uma base para alegria. (Sal 13:5) Adicionalmente, há a alegria que o servo de Deus deriva daqueles a quem ele ajuda a obter conhecimento de Jeová e a servi-lo. (Fil 4:1; 1Te 2:19) Reunir-se com os do povo de Deus e trabalhar junto com eles é uma das maiores alegrias. — Sal 106:4, 5; 122:1.

Perseguição é motivo de alegria. Para o cristão que guarda seu coração, até mesmo a perseguição, embora em si não seja agradável, deve ser considerada com alegria, pois suportá-la com integridade é uma vitória. Deus ajudará o fiel. (Col 1:11) Adicionalmente, é prova de que a pessoa é aprovada por Deus. Jesus disse que, quando o vitupério e a perseguição sobrevierem ao cristão, ele deve 'pular de alegria'. — Mt 5:11, 12; Tg 1:2-4; 1Pe 4:13, 14.

Outras Alegrias Providas por Deus. Jeová tem provido muitas outras coisas que a humanidade pode usufruir dia a dia. Algumas destas são: o casamento (De 24:5; Pr 5:18); ser pai ou mãe dum filho justo e sábio (Pr 23:24, 25); o alimento (Ec 10:19; At 14:17); o vinho (Sal 104:14, 15; Ec 10:19), e as numerosas coisas de Sua criação (Tg 1:17; 1Ti 6:17).

Alegrias Falsas ou Passageiras. Jesus menciona alguns que ouviriam a verdade e a receberiam com alegria, mas sem entenderem o real sentido dela. Tais não cultivam a palavra implantada em seu coração, e, como consequência, logo perdem a alegria por tropeçarem quando surge tribulação ou perseguição por causa da palavra. (Mt 13:20, 21) A alegria baseada no materialismo é uma alegria falsa, errada e de curta duração. Também, alguém que se regozija com a calamidade de outrem, mesmo de alguém que o odeie, tem de prestar contas a Jeová pelo seu pecado. (Jó 31:25-30; Pr 17:5; 24:17, 18) Um rapaz será tolo de pensar que o usufruto da vida requer entregar-se à satisfação dos "desejos pertinentes à mocidade". (2Ti 2:22; Ec 11:9, 10) Similarmente, o amor à hilaridade porá a pessoa em má situação. (Pr 21:17; Ec 7:4) Até mesmo o cristão que exulta em comparar-se com outros está errado. Antes, deve provar quais são suas próprias obras e ter causa de exultação apenas em si mesmo. — Gál 6:4.

Alegria Eterna. Jeová prometeu restaurar seu povo Israel depois do cativeiro deste em Babilônia. Deveras os trouxe de volta a Jerusalém, em 537 AEC, e eles se regozijaram grandemente quando se lançou o alicerce do templo. (Is 35:10; 51:11; 65:17-19; Esd 3:10-13) Mas a profecia de Isaías (65:17) tem um cumprimento maior no estabelecimento de "um novo céu e uma nova terra", arranjo em que toda a humanidade terá alegria para sempre, sob a "Nova Jerusalém". — Re 21:1-3.

Sob as atuais condições, a iniquidade, a doença e a morte impedem que sintamos alegria plena e irreprimível. Mas, em harmonia com a regra bíblica: "O rei sábio dispersa os iníquos", Jesus Cristo, qual Rei, porá fim a todos os inimigos de Deus e da justiça. (Pr 20:26; 1Co 15:25, 26) Assim se removerão todos os obstáculos à plena alegria, pois até mesmo "não haverá mais morte, nem haverá mais pranto, nem clamor, nem dor". (Re 21:4) O pesar com relação aos mortos terá desaparecido para sempre, sendo removido pela ressurreição dos mortos. Este conhecimento, até mesmo hoje em dia, conforta os cristãos que, por causa disso, não ficam "pesarosos como os demais que não têm esperança". — 1Te 4:13, 14; Jo 5:28, 29.

ALELUIA. Transliteração da expressão hebraica ha·lelu-Yáh, que aparece pela primeira vez no Salmo 104:35. Na Tradução do Novo Mundo é quase sempre traduzida "louvai a Jah". A expressão ocorre 24 vezes nas Escrituras Hebraicas, e, com exceção do Salmo 135:3 ("louvai a Jah", NM), introduz e/ou conclui os Salmos em que se encontra. (Veja Sal 112:1; 115:18; 146:1, 10; 147:1, 20; 148:1, 14; 149:1, 9; 150:1, 6.) Esta expressão aparece junto com "amém" no fim do Livro Quatro dos Salmos (Sal 106:48), e uma forma grega dela aparece quatro vezes em Revelação 19:1-6, onde se faz referência à alegria sentida por causa da destruição de Babilônia, a Grande, e à ligada ao início do governo de Jeová qual Rei. — Veja JAH.

ALEMETE.

1. Alistado como último de nove filhos de Bequer, nascidos no Egito algum tempo depois de 1728 AEC. — 1Cr 7:8; Gên 46:21, 26.

2. Filho de Jeoada (ou Jará) e descendente direto do Rei Saul. Seus dois irmãos eram Asmavete e Zinri. — 1Cr 8:36; 9:42.

3. Uma cidade de Benjamim. — Veja ALMOM.

ALEXANDRE [Defensor do Homem].

1. Alexandre, o Grande (ou: Magno), filho de Filipe II, da Macedônia, e da esposa deste, Olímpia, nasceu em Pela, em 356 AEC. Embora na Bíblia não seja mencionado por nome, seu domínio na quinta potência mundial foi predito dois séculos antes de ele nascer. — Da 8:5-7, 20, 21.

Quando tinha 20 e poucos anos, dois anos depois de ascender ao trono, após o assassinato de seu pai, Alexandre empreendeu conquistar o mundo. (Da 8:5) Este arrojado jovem estrategista militar dispôs o seu comparativamente pequeno exército numa formação de falange em filas cerradas e ordem profunda, uma tática introduzida pelo seu pai e que Alexandre desenvolveu a um alto grau de eficiência.

Em vez de perseguir os persas em fuga, após duas vitórias decisivas na Ásia Menor (a primeira junto ao rio Granico; a segunda na planície de Isso, onde um grande exército persa, calculado em meio milhão de homens, sofreu uma derrota total), Alexandre voltou sua atenção para a cidade-ilha de Tiro. Séculos antes, predissera-se que as muralhas, as torres, as casas e o próprio pó de Tiro seriam lançados no mar. (Ez 26:4, 12) Portanto, é bastante significativo que Alexandre usou os escombros da cidade continental, destruída por Nabucodonosor anos antes, e construiu com eles um aterro de uns 800 m até a cidade-ilha. Os ataques da sua marinha e dos engenhos de guerra destruíram aquela orgulhosa senhora do mar em julho de 332 AEC.

Jerusalém, por outro lado, abriu seus portões em rendição, e, segundo Josefo (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], XI, 337 [viii, 5]), mostrou-se a Alexandre o livro da profecia de Daniel, presumivelmente o capítulo 8 , onde diz que um poderoso rei grego subjugaria e conquistaria o Império Persa. Assim, Alexandre poupou Jerusalém e avançou em direção ao S, para o Egito, onde foi saudado como libertador. Ali fundou a cidade de Alexandria, sede de erudição, onde se produziu a Septuaginta grega. Olhando para o leste, Alexandre voltou do Egito através da Palestina, e com 47.000 homens venceu um exército persa enorme e reorganizado perto de Gaugamela. Em rápida sucessão, Dario III foi assassinado por anteriores amigos, Babilônia rendeu-se, e Alexandre avançou para tomar Susa e Persépolis. Dali ele continuou com a sua campanha avançando para a Índia, antes de olhar novamente para o oeste.

Eventos Depois da Conquista. Alexandre tinha grandes planos para a reconstrução de Babilônia e em torná-la sua capital, mas estes nunca foram realizados. Conforme Daniel havia predito, ele foi abatido e quebrado na morte "assim que se tornou forte", no auge do seu poder. (Da 8:8) A ambição de Alexandre de reconstruir Babilônia não se materializou porque ele, em 323 AEC, aos 32 anos, no primor da vida, morreu repentinamente, provavelmente de malária, complicada por seu modo desenfreado de vida. Ele foi embalsamado e por fim enterrado em Alexandria, no Egito.

Durante a sua curta carreira, Alexandre casou-se com Roxana, filha do conquistado rei bactriano, e também com Estatira, filha do rei persa Dario III. Com Roxana ele teve um filho chamado Alexandre (Allou). E com uma certa Barsine teve um filho ilegítimo chamado Héracles (Hércules). Entretanto, a profecia de Daniel predissera que "não para a sua posteridade" é que ficaria o seu império; de modo que toda a família de Alexandre e seus herdeiros

ALEXANDRE, O GRANDE, E A PROFECIA BÍBLICA

Profecia	Cumprimento
"Um bode dos caprídeos . . . passou a golpear o carneiro e a quebrar-lhe os dois chifres." "O carneiro que viste, tendo dois chifres, representa os reis da Média e da Pérsia. E o bode peludo representa o rei da Grécia." (Da 8:5, 7, 20, 21)	Depois de derrotar as forças medo-persas duas vezes na Ásia Menor, o exército de Alexandre avançou primeiro para o S e depois para o L, conquistando completamente o Império Medo-Persa.
"E o teu pó [Tiro] colocarão no próprio meio da água." (Ez 26:4, 12)	Em 332 AEC, Alexandre usou os escombros da cidade continental de Tiro para construir um aterro até a cidade-ilha, a qual ele destruiu.
"Assim que se tornou forte, foi quebrado o grande chifre." (Da 8:8)	Em 323 AEC, à idade de 32 anos, ele adoeceu e morreu.
"[Babilônia,] te tornarás em baldios desolados por tempo indefinido." (Je 51:26)	Assim falharam seus grandiosos planos de reconstruir Babilônia para ser sua capital, e o lugar dela tornou-se por fim um baldio desolado.
"Seu reino será destroçado e repartido . . . mas não para a sua posteridade." (Da 11:4)	Os herdeiros de Alexandre foram assassinados, e seu reino desfez-se.
"Foi quebrado o grande chifre, e passaram a subir . . . quatro em seu lugar." (Da 8:8, 22)	Por volta de 301 AEC, quatro dos generais de Alexandre haviam tomado partes separadas do anterior império.

Medalha com o que se afirma ser a efígie de Alexandre, o Grande.

foram eliminados antes de se passarem muitos anos. (Da 11:3, 4) Além disso, estava escrito: "E que este foi quebrado, de modo que por fim se ergueram quatro em seu lugar, haverá quatro reinos que se erguerão de sua nação, mas não com o seu poder." (Da 8:22) Portanto, não foi mera coincidência histórica que o império foi dividido entre quatro dos generais de Alexandre: Seleuco Nicátor, que tomou a Mesopotâmia e a Síria; Cassandro, a Macedônia e a Grécia; Ptolomeu Lago, o Egito e a Palestina; e Lisímaco, a Trácia e a Ásia Menor.

A conquista de Alexandre deixou sua maior marca na história por difundir a língua e a cultura grega em toda a parte. O grego comum (coiné) tornou-se a língua internacional, de modo que a última parte da Bíblia foi escrita em coiné, em vez de em hebraico.

2. Filho de Simão de Cirene e irmão de Rufo. Seu pai foi obrigado a carregar a estaca de tortura de Jesus. — Mr 15:21; Lu 23:26.

3. Parente do Sumo Sacerdote Anás, presente ao julgamento de Pedro e João. — At 4:6.

4. Um judeu em Éfeso, presente quando os prateiros incitaram um distúrbio contra Paulo. Quando Alexandre tentou falar-lhes, a turba amotinada o fez calar aos gritos. — At 19:33, 34.

5. Um homem que, junto com Himeneu, 'sofreu naufrágio no que se referia à sua fé', e que foi desassociado por causa da sua blasfêmia. (1Ti 1:19, 20) Possivelmente é o mesmo que o N.º 6 abaixo.

6. O latoeiro sobre quem Timóteo foi avisado, porque causara "muitos danos" a Paulo. — 2Ti 4:14, 15.

ALEXANDRIA. Principal cidade e famosa metrópole do Egito durante o tempo de Jesus e de seus apóstolos. A moderna Alexandria (chamada em árabe Al-Iskandariyah) ergue-se no lugar antigo e é um porto marítimo, mas existem poucos vestígios da antiga cidade.

A cidade derivou seu nome de Alexandre, o Grande (Magno), que a fundou em 332 ou 331 AEC. Com o tempo, ela se tornou a principal cidade do Egito, e, sob os Ptolomeus, os reis helenísticos do Egito, Alexandria tornou-se a capital do Egito. Permaneceu tal quando Roma assumiu o controle em 30 AEC, e serviu de centro administrativo do Egito durante as épocas romana e bizantina, até a conquista árabe, no sétimo século EC.

Os judeus há muito constituíam considerável parte da população de Alexandria, a qual, no seu auge, chegou a ter talvez 500.000 habitantes. Muitos dos judeus descendiam dos refugiados que fugiram para o Egito após a queda de Jerusalém, em 607 AEC. Na época de Tibério, dizia-se que constituíam cerca de um terço da população total da cidade. Tendo o seu próprio setor ou bairro na parte NE da cidade, permitia-se que os judeus vivessem segundo suas próprias leis e tivessem seu próprio governador.

Foi ali, em Alexandria, que se fez a primeira tradução das Escrituras Hebraicas, a Septuaginta (ou Versão dos Setenta) grega. Ela foi produzida por judeus alexandrinos, evidentemente a partir do reinado de Ptolomeu (II) Filadelfo (285-246 AEC).

Na Bíblia se faz apenas breve referência a Alexandria. Entre os que discutiam com Estêvão, antes de seu julgamento, havia "alexandrinos", ou judeus de Alexandria. Alexandria era a cidade natal do eloquente Apolo. E dois dos navios em que Paulo navegou como prisioneiro para Roma procediam de Alexandria, sem dúvida grandes graneleiros da vasta frota alexandrina que cruzavam o mar Mediterrâneo até Putéoli, na Itália, embora às vezes velejando ao longo do litoral para portos da Ásia Menor. — At 6:9; 18:24; 27:6; 28:11.

ALFA E ÔMEGA. Estes são os nomes da primeira e da última letra do alfabeto grego, e são usados três vezes como título no livro de Revelação (Apocalipse). A ocorrência adicional desta frase na Versão Trinitariana, em Revelação 1:11, contudo, não tem o apoio de alguns dos mais antigos manuscritos gregos, inclusive o Alexandrino, o Sinaítico e o Códice Ephraemi rescriptus. Por conseguinte, é omitido em muitas traduções modernas.

Ao passo que muitos comentaristas aplicam este título tanto a Deus como a Cristo, um exame mais cuidadoso de seu uso restringe a sua aplicação a Jeová Deus. O primeiro versículo de Revelação mostra que a revelação foi dada originalmente por Deus, e mediante Jesus Cristo, portanto, quem fala (mediante um representante angélico) às vezes é o próprio Deus e outras vezes é Cristo Jesus. (Re 22:8) Assim, Revelação 1:8 (ALA) diz: "Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega, diz o Senhor Deus ["Jeová Deus", NM], aquele que é, que era e que há de vir, o Todo-Poderoso." Embora o versículo anterior fale de Cristo Jesus, é claro que, no versículo 8, a aplicação do título é ao Deus "Todo-Poderoso". Neste particular Barnes' Notes on the New Testament (Notas sobre o Novo Testamento, de Barnes; 1974) observa: "Não se pode ter certeza absoluta de que o escritor queria referir-se aqui especificamente ao Senhor Jesus . . . Não existe nenhuma real incongruência em se supor, também, que o escritor aqui queria referir-se a Deus como tal."

O título ocorre de novo em Revelação 21:6, e o versículo seguinte identifica o orador por dizer: "Todo aquele que vencer herdará estas coisas, e eu serei o seu Deus e ele será o meu filho." Visto que Jesus se referiu aos que serão seus co-herdeiros do Reino como "irmãos", e não como "filhos", quem fala tem de ser o Pai celestial de Jesus, Jeová Deus. — Mt 25:40; compare isso com He 2:10-12.

A última ocorrência do título se dá em Revelação 22:13, que declara: "Eu sou o Alfa e o Ômega, o primeiro e o último, o princípio e o fim." É evidente que várias pessoas são representadas como falando neste capítulo de Revelação; os versículos 8 e 9 mostram que o anjo falou a João, o versículo 16 se aplica obviamente a Jesus, a primeira parte do versículo 17 é creditada ao "espírito e a noiva", e quem fala na última parte do versículo 20 é manifestamente o próprio João. "O Alfa e o Ômega" dos versículos 12-15, por conseguinte, pode ser apropriadamente identificado como a mesma pessoa que porta o título nas outras duas ocorrências: Jeová Deus. A expressão: "Eis que venho depressa", no versículo 12, não exige que os versículos acima mencionados se apliquem a Jesus, uma vez que Deus também fala de si próprio como "vindo" para executar o julgamento. (Veja Is 26:21.) Malaquias 3:1-6 fala de uma vinda conjunta para o julgamento, por parte de Jeová e de seu "mensageiro do pacto".

O título "o Alfa e o Ômega" transmite a mesma ideia que "o primeiro e o último", e "o princípio e o fim", quando estes termos são usados com referência a Jeová. Antes dele não havia nenhum Deus Todo-Poderoso, e não haverá nenhum depois dele. Ele levará a término, com êxito, a questão da Divindade, sendo vindicado para sempre como o único e exclusivo Deus Todo-Poderoso. — Veja Is 44:6.

ALFARROBA [gr.: ke·rá·ti·on]. Na ilustração do filho pródigo, Jesus descreve o jovem faminto como desejoso de comer as alfarrobas que eram dadas aos porcos. (Lu 15:16) Tais alfarrobas crescem na alfarrobeira (Ceratonia siliqua), uma atraente árvore sempre-verde que cresce em toda a Palestina, bem como no resto da área do Mediterrâneo. A árvore atinge uma altura de até 9 m, tendo pequenas folhas reluzentes, semelhantes às do freixo. Os frutos ou vagens possuem brilhante casca coriácea de cor purpurino-castanha, e, em harmonia com o seu nome em grego (ke·rá·ti·on: "pequeno chifre"), têm a forma curva dum chifre. Medem de 15 a 25 cm de comprimento, e cerca de 2,5 cm de largura. Dentro deles há várias sementes parecidas à ervilha, separadas umas das outras por uma polpa comestível, doce e pegajosa. As alfarrobas são amplamente usadas até o dia de hoje como alimento para cavalos, gado e porcos. Utiliza-se o enxerto das árvores para produzir uma qualidade de alfarrobas que também as pessoas comem.

ALFEU.

1. Pai do apóstolo Mateus Levi, o cobrador de impostos. — Mt 9:9; Mr 2:14.

2. Pai de Tiago, o Menor, o 9.º dos 12 apóstolos alistados. (Mt 10:3; Mr 3:18; Lu 6:15; At 1:13) Muitos peritos são apoiados pela tradição na crença geral de que Alfeu era o mesmo que Clopas (Jo 19:25), o que o tornaria também marido da "outra Maria". (Mt 27:56; 28:1; Mr 15:40; 16:1; Lu 24:10) Essa diferença se explicaria por uma variação na pronúncia do radical, ou então por a pessoa ter tido dois nomes, algo comum naqueles dias.

ALFORJE. Uma sacola, costumeiramente feita de couro, levada aos ombros por viajantes, pastores, lavradores e outros. Era usado para colocar ali-mentos, roupas e outras provisões, mas não era a mesma coisa que o bolso do cinto, menor, usado para guardar moedas de ouro, de prata e de cobre. (Mt 10:9; Mr 6:8) A "sacola de pastor" de Davi era, sem dúvida, tal alforje. (1Sa 17:40) Jesus Cristo, ao enviar primeiro os 12 apóstolos e depois os 70 discípulos para pregarem em Israel, disse-lhes que não levassem alforjes. (Mt 10:5, 9, 10; Lu 9:3; 10:1, 4) Jeová cuidaria das necessidades deles pelas mãos de coisraelitas, entre os quais a hospitalidade era costumeira. Pouco antes da sua morte, Jesus indicou que as circunstâncias iriam mudar em resultado da oposição oficial, de modo que disse aos seus discípulos que levassem tanto bolsas como alforjes. Não obstante, deviam buscar primeiro o Reino de Deus, em vez de estar ansiosos das necessidades materiais; dariam assim evidência de que dependiam de Jeová Deus para cuidar deles no ministério. — Lu 22:35, 36; Mt 6:25-34.

ALGEMAS. Veja CADEIAS (LAÇO, VÍNCULO).

ALGODÃO. Fibra branca de semente, produzida por certas plantas e usada para fabricar tecidos. A palavra hebraica kar·pás, que pode referir-se tanto a algodão fino como a linho fino, é similar à palavra sânscrita karpasa e à grega kár·pa·sos. Muitas traduções modernas são a favor de traduzi-la por "algodão" em Ester 1:6. Este é mencionado ali como estando entre os tecidos usados para a decoração do pátio do palácio durante o banquete de sete dias do Rei Assuero em Susã. O cultivo do algodão na Pérsia e na Índia remonta a tempos bem antigos. Ao passo que o linho parece ter sido usado mais amplamente no Egito e na Palestina, existe também evidência do uso de algodão ali desde o primeiro milênio AEC.

Pensa-se que o algodoeiro do relato bíblico tenha sido do tipo classificado como Gossypium herbaceum. Este arbusto cresce até cerca de 1,5 m de altura, dá flores amarelas e às vezes rosadas, e, depois de secarem as flores, produz capulhos ou cápsulas de algodão. Quando maduros, os capulhos se rompem, deixando surgir o algodão fofo. Depois de colhido o algodão, tem de se arrancar ou cardar as sementes por passar o algodão por uma descaroçadora. As fibras do algodão estão assim prontas para o processamento final e a tecelagem. Alguns peritos sugerem que os "tecidos brancos" dos tecelões do Egito, mencionados em Isaías 19:9, provavelmente eram de algodão. — Veja PANO.

ALGUM [hebr.: 'al·gum·mím (2Cr 2:8; 9:10, 11); 'al·mug·gím (1Rs 10:11, 12)]. Árvore incluída por Salomão na sua solicitação a Hirão, de Tiro, de lhe prover madeira para a construção do templo, e da qual se fizeram escadarias e escoras, bem como harpas e outros instrumentos de cordas.

A árvore chamada algum, deste relato, não pode ser identificada com certeza. Sugere-se tradicionalmente que se trata do sândalo-vermelho (Pterocarpus santalinus) agora encontrado na Índia e em Sri Lanka, embora alguns favoreçam o sândalo-branco (Santalum album), talvez por causa da declaração de Josefo de que é esbranquiçado. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], VIII, 177 [vii, 1]) O sândalo-vermelho atinge a altura de uns 7,5 a 9 m e tem madeira dura, de fino grão e cor castanho-avermelhada, que aceita um alto grau de polimento. Sugere-se que é própria para instrumentos musicais do tipo mencionado no relato bíblico. A madeira é fragrante e é muito resistente a insetos.

O sândalo-vermelho não cresce atualmente no Líbano. Entretanto, o registro não define se as árvores de "algum" eram nativas do Líbano ou não. De qualquer modo, Hirão, mais tarde, achou por bem trazê-las de Ofir, e mesmo assim, a madeira talvez fosse importada até em Ofir, visto que este estava em condições de atuar como centro mercantil de contatos com a Índia, o Egito e outros lugares na África. (1Rs 10:11, 22) A raridade e a preciosidade da madeira entregue por Hirão são indicadas pela declaração de que "madeira de algum semelhante a esta nunca mais entrou nem se viu até o dia de hoje". — 1Rs 10:12.

ALHO [hebr.: shu·mím (plural)]. Planta bulbosa perene (Allium sativum), cujo bulbo de forte cheiro e de gosto pungente se compõe de até vinte pequenos gomos ou dentes. A haste floral do alho, que apresenta diminutos bulbilhos e flores estéreis, pode às vezes atingir uma altura de 30 cm ou mais.

Há indícios de que o alho era cultivado de forma extensiva no antigo Egito. No ermo, a multidão mista e os israelitas almejaram o alho que costumavam comer ali. (Núm 11:4, 5) O historiador grego Heródoto (Livro II, p. 172, CXXV, Vol. XXIII, Clássicos Jackson), fala de uma inscrição que alistava o alho como um dos alimentos providos aos trabalhadores em certa pirâmide. O alho ainda é usado amplamente pelos habitantes das regiões mediterrâneas. Na Míxena (Nedarim 3:10), os judeus chamavam a si mesmos de comedores de alho. O alho tem sido usado medicinalmente como estimulante digestivo, como antibiótico e como antiespasmódico.

ALHO-PORÓ. Veja ALHO-PORRO.

ALHO-PORRO [hebr.: hha·tsír]. Um dos itens de alimentação almejado pela multidão mista e pelos israelitas enquanto estavam no ermo. (Núm 11:4, 5) A palavra hebraica hha·tsír, traduzida por "alhos-porros" neste texto, possivelmente deriva da mesma raiz que a palavra hebraica idêntica traduzida "erva verde". (Is 40:7, 8) Este item de alimentação é alistado junto com a cebola e o alho comum, alimentos vegetais específicos muito semelhantes ao alho-porro, indicando que se tem presente determinada hortaliça, ao invés de relva em geral. Também, desde tempos antigos, o alho-porro tem usufruído de grande popularidade no Egito, e ainda costuma ser consumido ali, bem como na Palestina.

O alho-porro (Allium porrum) é bem parecido à cebola, mas se distingue desta por seu sabor mais suave, sua delgada forma cilíndrica, e suas folhas suculentas e semelhantes às das gramíneas, tendo cerca de 2,5 cm de largura. A haste floral, terminando numa grande umbela compacta de flores, pode atingir uma altura de cerca de 60 cm. Os bulbos e as folhas desta planta bienal são cozidos como hortaliça e usados como tempero; são também comidos crus.

ALIANÇA. Uma união de diferentes partes, famílias, pessoas ou estados, quer por casamento, por acordo mútuo, quer por acordo legal. Uma aliança usualmente subentende um benefício mútuo resultante ou uma busca conjunta de um objetivo desejado. A palavra hebraica hha·vár significa literalmente "estar unido", mas é usada figuradamente para significar 'estar aliado; fazer sociedade'. (Êx 28:7; Sal 94:20; 2Cr 20:35) A palavra relacionada, hha·vér, denota um aliado ou associado. — Jz 20:11; Sal 119:63.

Abraão fez cedo uma aliança com Manre, Escol e Aner, dos amorreus. Não se declara a natureza da confederação, mas eles se juntaram a Abraão em sua marcha para livrar seu sobrinho Ló de reis invasores. (Gên 14:13-24) Abraão morava então como estrangeiro numa terra controlada por diminutos reinos, e, neste caso, alguma declaração formal, em forma dum pacto, talvez fosse exigida dele como pré-requisito para que residisse pacificamente entre eles. No entanto, Abraão evitava comprometer-se desnecessariamente com tais governantes políticos, como se manifesta na sua declaração ao rei de Sodoma, em Gênesis 14:21-24. Mais tarde, em Gerar, o rei filisteu, Abimeleque, relembrou a Abraão a sua condição de forasteiro, e que residia na terra da Filístia por consentimento de Abimeleque, e solicitou-lhe que prestasse um juramento que garantisse sua conduta fiel. Abraão aquiesceu, e, mais tarde, depois de uma disputa por direitos à água, fez um pacto com Abimeleque. — Gên 20:1, 15; 21:22-34.

O filho de Abraão, Isaque, também veio a morar em Gerar, embora Abimeleque lhe pedisse posteriormente que se mudasse daquela vizinhança imediata e ele anuísse de bom grado. Ocorreram novamente disputas quanto aos direitos à água, mas, depois disso, Abimeleque e seus principais associados se dirigiram a Isaque, solicitando um juramento de obrigação e um pacto, sem dúvida como renovação do feito com Abraão. Ambas as partes fizeram declarações juramentadas que garantiam a conduta pacífica recíproca. (Gên 26:16, 19-22, 26-31; compare isso com Gên 31:48-53.) O apóstolo Paulo declara que estes primitivos patriarcas declaravam publicamente que eram estranhos e residentes temporários no país, morando em tendas, e que esperavam uma cidade com verdadeiros alicerces, cujo construtor e fazedor é Deus. — He 11:8-10, 13-16.

Uma situação diferente prevalecia após a entrada da nação de Israel em Canaã, a Terra da Promessa. O Soberano Deus concedera a Israel o pleno direito àquela terra, em cumprimento de sua promessa aos antepassados deles. Portanto, não entravam nela como residentes forasteiros, e Jeová proibiu que fizessem alianças com as nações pagãs do país. (Êx 23:31-33; 34:11-16) Deviam ficar sujeitos apenas às leis e aos estatutos de Deus, não aos das nações que se destinavam a ser expulsas. (Le 18:3, 4; 20:22-24) Foram especialmente avisados de não formarem alianças matrimoniais com tais nações. Essas alianças os envolveriam intimamente, não só com esposas pagãs, mas também com parentes pagãos, e com as práticas e os costumes da religião falsa deles, e isto resultaria em apostasia e em laço. — De 7:2-4; Êx 34:16; Jos 23:12, 13.

Alianças Matrimoniais. A palavra hebraica hha·thán, significando "formar uma aliança matrimonial", é aparentada com hho·thén (sogro), hha·thán (noivo; genro), hho·thé·neth (sogra) e hhathun·náh (casamento). — 1Sa 18:22; Êx 3:1; 4:25; Gên 19:14; De 27:23; Cân 3:11.

Abraão insistiu que a esposa de Isaque não fosse tomada dentre as cananeias. (Gên 24:3, 4) Isaque deu instruções similares a Jacó. (Gên 28:1) Na ocasião em que Siquém, o heveu, violentou Diná, Hamor, pai de Siquém, instou com a família de Jacó que formasse alianças matrimoniais com aquela tribo. Embora os filhos de Jacó não cumprissem sua aparente aceitação disso, realmente tomaram cativos as mulheres e os filhos dos heveus, depois de vingarem a honra de Diná. (Gên 34:1-11, 29) Judá casou-se mais tarde com uma cananeia (Gên 38:2), e a esposa de José era egípcia. (Gên 41:50) Moisés casou-se com Zípora, uma midianita, evidentemente chamada "cusita" em Números 12:1. (Êx 2:16, 21) Tais casamentos, porém, foram contraídos antes de ser dada a Lei, e, por isso, não podiam ser considerados uma violação de seus requisitos.

Na batalha contra Midiã, os israelitas só preservaram as virgens entre as mulheres e as meninas. (Núm 31:3, 18, 35) A Lei permitia que se tomasse uma esposa dentre tais cativas de guerra destituídas de pais. (De 21:10-14) Na própria Terra da Promessa era amiúde ignorado o aviso de Deus a respeito das alianças matrimoniais com os pagãos, com resultantes problemas e apostasia. — Jz 3:5, 6.

Às vezes as alianças matrimoniais eram feitas com vistas a certos fins, como no caso em que o Rei Saul convidou Davi a formar uma aliança matrimonial com ele por tomar por esposa a Mical, filha dele. (1Sa 18:21-27) Uma das seis esposas que mais tarde deram filhos a Davi em Hébron era a filha do rei de Gesur (2Sa 3:3), e alguns consideram isto como uma aliança matrimonial feita por Davi que visava enfraquecer a posição do rival, Is-Bosete, visto que Gesur era um pequeno reino situado do outro lado da capital de Is-Bosete, Maanaim. No início de seu reinado, o Rei Salomão formou uma aliança matrimonial com Faraó, tomando a filha dele como esposa. (1Rs 3:1; 9:16) Este casamento, junto com outros com mulheres moabitas, amonitas, edomitas, sidônias e hititas, por fim fizeram com que Salomão sucumbisse à crassa idolatria. (1Rs 11:1-6) A aliança matrimonial do Rei Acabe com o rei de Sídon, casando-se com a filha deste, Jezabel, trouxe resultados desastrosos similares para o reino setentrional de Israel. (1Rs 16:31-33) Depois disso, o Rei Jeosafá formou uma insensata aliança matrimonial com a idólatra casa de Acabe, com duradouras consequências más para o reino de Judá. — 2Cr 18:1; 21:4-6; 22:2-4.

Depois do exílio, Esdras ficou chocado de constatar que até mesmo os sacerdotes e os levitas tinham feito alianças matrimoniais com os cananeus e outros, situação que foi prontamente corrigida. (Esd 9:1-3, 12-14; 10:1-5, 10-14, 44) Todavia, no tempo de Neemias, Tobias, o amonita, novamente utilizou alianças matrimoniais para estabelecer fortes relações com a família sacerdotal em Jerusalém e promover uma forte facção de aliados entre os nobres de Judá, a ponto que, em desafio à Lei (De 23:3), o sacerdote Eliasibe fez para este amonita um refeitório no pátio do templo. Neemias, contudo, lançou fora, com indignação, toda a mobília de Tobias. — Ne 6:18; 13:4-9, 25-27; veja CASAMENTO.

Pactos. Fizeram-se outras alianças, além das matrimoniais, e estas em geral tinham a forma dum pacto. O pacto feito com os gibeonitas, naturalmente, foi feito por Israel devido a um logro. (Jos 9:3-15) Todavia, uma vez feito, o pacto foi dali em diante respeitado, a ponto de Israel estar disposto a lutar para proteger os gibeonitas. (Jos 9:19-21; 10:6, 7) Uma aliança pessoal, por meio dum pacto, existia entre Jonatã e Davi (1Sa 18:3; 20:11-17), relação que Saul condenou como conspiração. (1Sa 22:8) O Rei Hirão, de Tiro, mostrou amizade para com Davi quando este sucedeu como rei a Saul, e Hirão tornou-se "um que amava a Davi". (2Sa 5:11; 1Rs 5:1) As relações amigáveis continuaram, e, quando Salomão ascendeu ao trono, fez-se com o Rei Hirão um contrato, que requeria o fornecimento de grande parte dos materiais necessários para a construção do templo. (1Rs 5:2-18) Sob este contrato, permitiu-se que milhares de trabalhadores israelitas entrassem no Líbano e nas suas florestas. Hirão até mesmo se dirigiu a Salomão como "meu irmão". (1Rs 9:13) Tiro forneceu os marujos para a frota de navios de Salomão, que operava com base em Eziom-Géber. (1Rs 9:26, 27) Quando o reino de Tiro mais tarde se voltou contra Israel e entregou os exilados israelitas a Edom, foi acusado de ter violado o "pacto de irmãos". — Am 1:9.

Alianças Imprudentes com Outras Nações. Embora os profetas de Deus dessem fortes avisos contra a formação de alianças com outras nações, em tempos de perigo, ou sob a pressão da ambição, os reis de Judá e de Israel com frequência desconsideravam tais avisos. (Is 30:2-7; Je 2:16-19, 36, 37; Os 5:13; 8:8-10; 12:1) Os resultados finais nunca eram bons, conforme mostram os seguintes exemplos.

O Rei Asa, de Judá, usou os tesouros reais para comprar o Rei Ben-Hadade I, da Síria, fazendo-o romper um pacto com o Rei Baasa, de Israel. (1Rs 15:18-20) Como resultado deste 'estribar-se na Síria', ao invés de em Jeová, o profeta Hanani censurou Asa com as seguintes palavras: "Agiste nesciamente no que toca a isto, pois doravante haverá guerras contra ti." (2Cr 16:7-9) O Rei Acabe, de Israel, mais tarde fez um pacto com o derrotado Ben-Hadade II e recebeu uma condenação similar da parte dum profeta de Deus. (1Rs 20:34, 42) Jeosafá aliou-se com Acabe num ataque malsucedido contra a Síria, e, posteriormente, o profeta Jeú lhe indagou: "É ao iníquo que se deve dar ajuda e é aos que odeiam a Jeová que deves amar? E por isso há indignação contra ti da parte da pessoa de Jeová." (2Cr 18:2, 3; 19:2) Mais tarde, Jeosafá entrou numa associação comercial de construção de navios com o iníquo Rei Acazias, de Israel, mas a condenação profética se cumpriu quando os navios sofreram naufrágio. (2Cr 20:35-37) Obedecendo ao conselho divino, Amazias, de Judá, decidiu sabiamente não usar tropas mercenárias de Israel, embora isso significasse a perda de 100 talentos de prata (US$ 660.600) que lhes foram pagos como gratificação. — 2Cr 25:6-10.

No oitavo século AEC, à medida que a Assíria começou a ascender qual potência mundial dominante, sua sombra ameaçadora impeliu os reinos menores a muitas alianças e conluios. (Veja Is 8:9-13.) O acúmulo de novas armas de guerra entre as nações também causou crescente temor. (Veja 2Cr 26:14, 15.)

Menaém, de Israel, subornou o atacante Pul (Tiglate-Pileser III), da Assíria. (2Rs 15:17-20) Rezim, da Síria, e Peca, de Israel, formaram uma aliança conspiradora contra Acaz, de Judá, o qual, por sua vez, usou os tesouros reais bem como os do templo para comprar a proteção do assírio Tiglate-Pileser III, resultando na queda da Damasco síria. (2Rs 16:5-9; 2Cr 28:16) Oseias, de Israel, fez uma aliança conspiratória com o Rei Sô, do Egito, na esperança falsa de se livrar do jugo assírio, imposto por Salmaneser V, com a consequente queda de Israel em 740 AEC. (2Rs 17:3-6) Contudo, o fiel Ezequias, de Judá, embora acusado falsamente de confiar no Egito, estribava-se só em Jeová, e foi salvo do ataque do assírio Senaqueribe. — 2Rs 18:19-22, 32-35; 19:14-19, 28, 32-36; compare isso com Is 31:1-3.

Em seus derradeiros anos, o reino de Judá flutuava entre o Egito e Babilônia, 'prostituindo-se' com ambos os poderes. (Ez 16:26-29; 23:14) Veio a ficar sob o domínio do Egito no reinado de Jeoiaquim (2Rs 23:34), mas logo ficou sujeito a Babilônia. (2Rs 24:1, 7, 12-17) O último rei, Zedequias, fez uma tentativa fútil de livrar Judá de Babilônia por meio duma aliança vã com o Egito. O resultado foi a destruição de Jerusalém. (2Rs 24:20; Ez 17:1-15) Eles deixaram de acatar o conselho inspirado de Isaías: "Por retornardes e descansardes, sereis salvos. Vossa potência se mostrará em simplesmente ficardes sossegados e confiantes." — Is 30:15-17.

Durante o período macabeu foram feitos muitos tratados e alianças com os sírios e os romanos, por vantagens políticas, mas disso não resultou a libertação da servidão para Israel. Num período posterior, especialmente os religiosos saduceus se destacavam em favorecer a colaboração política como meio de alcançar por fim a independência nacional. Nem eles nem os fariseus aceitaram a mensagem do Reino proclamada por Cristo Jesus, mas aliaram-se a Roma, declarando: "Não temos rei senão César." (Jo 19:12-15) Sua aliança político-religiosa com Roma, contudo, terminou na desastrosa destruição de Jerusalém em 70 EC. — Lu 19:41-44; 21:20-24.

Alianças políticas e religiosas são indicadas nos simbolismos de Revelação 17:1, 2, 10-18; 18:3. (Compare isso com Tg 4:1-4.) Assim, em todo o registro bíblico, sublinha-se o princípio declarado por Paulo: "Não vos ponhais em jugo desigual com incrédulos. Pois, que associação tem a justiça com o que é contra a lei? Ou que parceria tem a luz com a escuridão? . . . Saí do meio deles e separai-vos." — 2Co 6:14-17.

ALICERCE. A base ou infraestrutura sobre a qual se constrói um prédio, e que serve para distribuir o peso da superestrutura de modo igual pelo terreno. Visto que a resistência e a durabilidade dum prédio dependem mormente da resistência de seu alicerce, é preciso exercer muito cuidado ao se lançar o alicerce. Bons alicerces eram vitais na Palestina para suportarem, não só pesadas chuvas, ventos e enchentes, mas também terremotos, visto que esta região se encontra numa zona sísmica. Diversos termos hebraicos traduzidos por "alicerce" derivam do radical ya·sádh, que significa "fundar; lançar o alicerce; fixar solidamente". (Is 23:13; 51:13; Sal 24:2) O termo grego é the·mé·li·os, usado em sentido literal em Atos 16:26.

Jeová, o Magistral Construtor, ao responder a Jó, de dentro do vendaval, comparou a Terra literal a uma construção. (Jó 38:4-7) Embora a Terra esteja suspensa sobre o nada, ela possui, por assim dizer, alicerces duráveis que não serão abalados, pois as leis imutáveis que governam o Universo a sustentam firmemente em seu lugar, e o propósito de Deus para com a Terra permanece imutável. (Jó 26:7; 38:33; Sal 104:5; Mal 3:6) Por outro lado, a injustiça e a desobediência à lei de Deus, com efeito, derrubam os alicerces que dão estabilidade ao solo, fazendo com que vacilem os alicerces da terra figurativa (o povo e seus sistemas estabelecidos). — Sal 82; 11:3; Pr 29:4.

O lançamento do alicerce da Terra não deve ser confundido com "a fundação [gr.: ka·ta·bo·lés] do mundo". As palavras de Jesus, em Lucas 11:48-51, evidenciam que Abel viveu por ocasião da fundação do mundo, a qual se refere à humanidade. Os alicerces do planeta Terra haviam sido lançados muito antes disso. — Veja ABEL N.º 1; MUNDO.

O lançamento dum alicerce aparentemente era ocasião de alegria. Quando se 'fundou a terra', os anjos bradaram em aplauso. Houve também grande regozijo por ocasião do lançamento do alicerce do templo de Zorobabel, embora aqueles que tinham visto a glória do templo anterior se entregassem ao choro. — Jó 38:4, 6, 7; Esd 3:10-13.

Assim como Salomão usara grandes e custosas pedras lavradas para o alicerce do templo, assim também um alicerce que é precioso para Deus é lançado para a "casa espiritual" na qual seguidores ungidos de Jesus são "pedras viventes". O próprio Jesus é a pedra angular de alicerce; sobre o alicerce dos apóstolos e profetas cristãos são edificados os demais santos como "lugar para Deus habitar por espírito". Todas as "pedras" que constituem esta casa espiritual são escolhidas por Jeová. — 1Pe 2:4-6; Ef 2:19-22; veja PEDRA ANGULAR.

De forma muitíssimo apropriada, as 12 pedras simbólicas de alicerce da Nova Jerusalém, que levam os nomes dos 12 apóstolos do Cordeiro, são pedras preciosas. (Re 21:14, 19, 20) A Nova Jerusalém, descrita em Revelação, compõe-se de 144.000, que estão prometidos em casamento ao noivo. A "Jerusalém celestial", mencionada em Hebreus 12:22, compõe-se de 144.001, este "um" sendo o Rei noivo. Trata-se da cidade com verdadeiros alicerces, aguardada por Abraão. (He 11:10) Assim, os livros bíblicos de Hebreus e de Revelação mostram a íntima identidade existente entre a "Jerusalém celestial" e a Nova Jerusalém.

Jesus, o qual na sua existência pré-humana tinha trabalhado junto de seu Pai como Mestre de Obras ao serem lançados os alicerces da Terra, avaliava plenamente a importância de um alicerce sólido, conforme se vê na sua ilustração a respeito do homem discreto, que cavou bem fundo e lançou o alicerce da sua casa sobre uma rocha, ao passo que o tolo edificou sua casa sobre a areia e sofreu grande perda. (Pr 8:29, 30; Mt 7:24-27; Lu 6:47-49) Semelhantemente, ao comparar a tarefa de formar cristãos com uma obra de construção, Paulo sublinhou a importância de se edificar com materiais incombustíveis sobre Jesus Cristo como o alicerce, para não se sofrer perda. — 1Co 3:10-15.

Paulo comparou também certos ensinos bíblicos primários a um alicerce, e ele incentivou os hebreus a não ficarem parados depois de terem aprendido a doutrina primária a respeito do Cristo, mas a avançarem à madureza. — He 6:1, 2; veja CASA; TERRA.

ALIMENTO. Os termos hebraicos e gregos traduzidos "alimento" têm diversos sentidos literais, tais como "comida", "nutrição", "pão" e "carne".

Depois de criar Adão e Eva, Deus disse: "Eis que vos tenho dado toda a vegetação que dá semente, que há na superfície de toda a terra, e toda árvore em que há fruto de árvore que dá semente. Sirvavos de alimento." Ele declarou adicionalmente que dera a toda a criação animal "toda a vegetação verde por alimento". Disse também a Adão: "De toda árvore do jardim podes comer à vontade", acrescentando uma proibição com respeito a uma árvore, a árvore do conhecimento do que é bom e do que é mau. — Gên 1:29, 30; 2:16, 17.

Desde aquele tempo até o Dilúvio, a Bíblia não fornece nenhuma indicação no sentido de que o homem incluiu a carne de animais na sua alimentação. É verdade, fez-se uma distinção entre animais limpos e os não limpos, mas isto evidentemente era com respeito a animais usados para fins sacrificiais. — Gên 7:2.

Quando se ordenou a Noé que levasse animais para dentro da arca, Jeová disse-lhe: "Quanto a ti, toma para ti toda sorte de alimento que se come; e tens de ajuntá-lo a ti e terá de servir de alimento para ti e para eles", o que novamente parece referir-se a alimento do reino vegetal para os humanos e para os animais levados para dentro da arca. (Gên 6:21) Após o Dilúvio, Jeová permitiu ao homem incluir carne na sua alimentação, dizendo: "Todo animal movente que está vivo pode servir-vos de alimento. Como no caso da vegetação verde, deveras vos dou tudo. Somente a carne com a sua alma — seu sangue — não deveis comer." — Gên 9:3, 4.

Cereais. Os cereais constituíam o alimento básico das pessoas nas terras bíblicas, conforme evidencia o fato de que tanto a expressão hebraica como a grega para "comer uma refeição" significa literalmente "comer pão". (Gên 43:31, 32) A cevada e o trigo eram os cereais principais; outros cereais mencionados são o painço e a espelta, uma espécie de trigo. (Jz 7:13; Is 28:25; Ez 4:9; Jo 6:9, 13) Além de se usar a farinha comum para fazer pão, ela era usada para fazer uma espécie de mingau. Os grãos frequentemente eram comidos torrados, quer por se segurar um maço de espigas por cima dum fogo, quer por serem tostados numa panela. (Ru 2:14; 2Sa 17:28) Fazia-se o pão usualmente com farinha grossa, integral. Todavia, no caso de alguns dos pães e dos bolos usava-se uma farinha mais fina. (Gên 18:6; Êx 29:2) Um método de assar pão era estender a massa sobre pedras quentes ou sobre uma superfície plana de rochas na qual se fizera antes um fogo. Frequentemente usava-se fermento ou levedo, ao passo que alguns pães eram assados não fermentados. (Le 7:13; 1Rs 19:6) Também se usavam fornos, nos quais se achatava a massa numa pedra no interior do forno. Às vezes se preparavam bolos numa panela, numa assadeira ou numa frigideira funda. A gordura usada era óleo, provavelmente azeite de oliva. — Le 2:4, 5, 7; 1Cr 9:31; veja COZER (ASSAR), PADEIRO.

Hortaliças. Feijões e lentilhas constavam da alimentação, sendo preparados como cozido, tal como o cozido de lentilhas que Jacó preparou e pelo qual Esaú vendeu a sua primogenitura. (Gên 25:34) Às vezes acrescentavam-se carne ou azeite ao cozido. Produzia-se farinha à base de favas ou ela podia ser uma mistura à base de cereais, favas e lentilhas. (Ez 4:9) Pepino duma variedade mais saborosa do que a variedade ocidental constituía um alimento refrescante. Quando a água era escassa ou ruim, ele podia ser consumido para substituir a água. O pepino era consumido cru, com ou sem sal, e às vezes era recheado ou cozido. Os israelitas tinham saudade do pepino, da melancia, do alho-porro, da cebola e do alho que haviam comido no Egito. (Núm 11:4, 5) Estes alimentos também eram produzidos na Palestina.

Jó menciona a "alteia", cuja seiva ele descreve como insípida. (Jó 6:6) Ele fala também daqueles que estão em situação carente como comendo erva salgada e a raiz das giestas-das-vassouras. — Jó 30:4.

A Míxena (Pesahim 2:6) menciona a escarola e a chicória como ervas amargas usadas na Páscoa. — Êx 12:8.

Frutos e Nozes. A azeitona era um alimento de destaque na Palestina. A oliveira pode levar dez anos ou mais para começar a produzir boas safras, mas a sua grande longevidade a torna muito frutífera. Os frutos da oliveira talvez fossem consumidos assim como hoje, depois de curtidos em salmoura. As azeitonas fornecem também azeite para preparar pratos tais como cozidos e bolos azeitados. A Bíblia menciona "pratos bem azeitados". — Is 25:6.

O figo era outro item importante na alimentação. (De 8:8) Assim que se viam figos temporãos numa figueira, eles frequentemente eram logo consumidos. (Is 28:4) Figos serôdios eram secados ao sol e prensados em formas, produzindo-se tortas de figos. (1Sa 25:18; 1Cr 12:40) Usadas como cataplasma, estas tinham propriedades curativas. (Is 38:21) Além da figueira comum, uma árvore conhecida como sicômoro (sicômoro-figueira) também produzia figos comestíveis. (1Cr 27:28; Am 7:14) Outros frutos eram a tâmara, a romã e a maçã. — Cân 5:11; Jl 1:12; Ag 2:19; veja MAÇÃ.

Dentre as nozes consumidas na Palestina, a Bíblia menciona amêndoas e nozes de pistácia. — Gên 43:11; Je 1:11.

A uva é um dos mais abundantes alimentos na Palestina. Quando os israelitas espiaram a terra de Canaã, trouxeram consigo um grande cacho de uvas, carregado numa barra entre dois homens. (Núm 13:23) As uvas eram consumidas no seu estado natural, e também como passas (Núm 6:3) e prensadas em tortas. (1Sa 25:18; 1Cr 12:40) Assim como hoje, sem dúvida, as folhas tenras eram consumidas como verdura de folha; as folhas mais velhas serviam de alimento para ovelhas e cabritos.

As vagens da alfarrobeira costumavam ser dadas aos animais, embora talvez fossem usadas para o consumo humano em tempos de necessidade. O faminto filho pródigo da ilustração de Jesus expressou o desejo de comê-las. — Lu 15:16; veja ALFARROBA.

Especiarias e Mel. Especiarias muito usadas para temperar alimentos eram a hortelã, o endro, o cominho, a arruda e folhas de mostarda. (Mt 23:23; 13:31; Lu 11:42) O sal era o tempero principal, tendo também propriedades preservativas. De modo que "um pacto de sal" era um pacto seguro, que não devia ser rompido. (Núm 18:19; 2Cr 13:5) Adicionalmente, a Míxena (Shabbat 6:5) menciona a pimenta. A alcaparra era usada como aperitivo. — Ec 12:5.

O mel era considerado alimento excelente, que clareava os olhos com energia. (1Sa 14:27-29; Sal 19:10; Pr 16:24) O maná tinha gosto de bolachas de mel. (Êx 16:31) João, o Batizador, comia mel junto com gafanhotos. — Mt 3:4.

Carne Como Alimento. Deus disse a Noé, depois do Dilúvio, que, junto com a vegetação, ele podia usar como alimento todo animal movente que estava vivo. (Gên 9:3, 4) Mas, sob a Lei, os israelitas ficaram restritos a comer aqueles que eram definidos como animais limpos. Estes se encontram alistados em Levítico, capítulo 11, e Deuteronômio, capítulo 14. O povo comum não costumava comer muita carne. Mas, ocasionalmente, abatia-se um cabrito ou um cordeiro para servir de sacrifício de participação em comum ou em homenagem a um hóspede. (Le 3:6, 7, 12; 2Sa 12:4; Lu 15:29, 30) Entre os mais abastados, abatiam-se reses. (Gên 18:7; Pr 15:17; Lu 15:23) Comiam-se alguns dos animais de caça, tais como o veado, a gazela, o corço, o cabrito montês, o antílope, o touro selvagem e a camurça, e a carne era assada ou cozida. (Gên 25:28; De 12:15; 14:4, 5) Comer sangue era estritamente proibido, assim como consumir a gordura. — Le 7:25-27.

Aves também eram consumidas. Proveram-se milagrosamente aos israelitas codornizes no ermo. (Núm 11:31-33) Pombos, rolas, perdizes e pardais estavam entre os alimentos limpos. (1Sa 26:20; Mt 10:29) Em adição a isso, consumiam-se também ovos. — Is 10:14; Lu 11:11, 12.

Entre os insetos comestíveis estava o gafanhoto, o qual, junto com mel, constituía o alimento de João, o Batizador. (Mt 3:4) Hoje em dia, alguns árabes comem gafanhotos. Um das formas favoritas de prepará-los é remover a cabeça, as pernas e as asas, depois cobri-los de farinha grossa e fritar no azeite e na manteiga.

Peixes podiam ser obtidos do Mediterrâneo e também do mar da Galileia. Diversos dos apóstolos de Jesus Cristo eram pescadores, e Jesus, pelo menos em uma ocasião, depois da sua ressurreição, preparou alguns peixes sobre brasas para os seus discípulos. (Jo 21:9) Os peixes também eram secados, constituindo um alimento conveniente para viajantes. Os peixes dos dois milagres de Jesus, para alimentar multidões, provavelmente eram peixes secos. (Mt 15:34; Mr 6:38) Um dos portões de Jerusalém chamava-se Portão do Peixe, provavelmente indicando que havia junto a ele ou perto dele um mercado de peixe. (Ne 3:3) Nos dias de Neemias, os tírios comercializavam peixes em Jerusalém. — Ne 13:16.

Laticínios e Bebidas. Importantes como alimentos também eram o leite e seus derivados, usando-se leite de vaca, de cabra ou de ovelha. (1Sa 17:18) O leite costumava ser guardado em odres. (Jz 4:19) Azedava rapidamente. A palavra hebraica hhem·'áh, traduzida "manteiga", também pode significar "leite coalhado". O queijo também era um alimento bem conhecido. De fato, o vale do Tiropeom (dos Queijeiros) estendia-se pelo lado O da primitiva cidade de Jerusalém. — Jz 5:25; 2Sa 17:29; Jó 10:10; veja QUEIJO.

A produção de vinho era um dos principais usos das uvas. O vinho às vezes era aromatizado e também misturado. (Pr 9:2, 5; Cân 8:2; Is 5:22) A vindima era feita no outono. Num clima quente, o sumo não ficaria por muito tempo livre da fermentação. Entre a vindima e o tempo da Páscoa passavam-se vários meses. Na Páscoa, tornou-se costume os grupos familiares beberem diversos copos de vinho, o qual, neste tempo, já estaria fermentado. Portanto, ao celebrar a Páscoa de 33 EC, Jesus bebeu verdadeiro vinho tinto, oferecendo parte dele aos seus discípulos, ao introduzir a Refeição Noturna do Senhor. (Mr 14:23-25) Também, o vinho que Jesus produziu numa festa de casamento era fermentado. (Jo 2:9, 10) Usava-se o vinho também para fins medicinais. (1Ti 5:23) Vinagre de vinho, puro ou misturado com temperos ou suco de frutas, também era usado. (Núm 6:3; Ru 2:14) Outra bebida era cerveja de trigo, e produzia-se uma bebida refrescante com suco de romã. — Cân 8:2; Is 1:22; Os 4:18.

Maná. O maná foi o alimento básico dos israelitas no ermo. É descrito em Números 11:7, 8, como semelhante à semente de coentro, com a aparência de bdélio. Era moído em moinhos manuais ou pilado num gral, e era cozido ou transformado em bolos do sabor dum bolo doce azeitado. É chamado "o próprio pão dos possantes". — Sal 78:24, 25; veja MANÁ.

Refeição Tomada em Conjunto. Nos tempos bíblicos, tomar uma refeição em conjunto indicava um vínculo de companheirismo. (Gên 31:54; 2Sa 9:7, 10, 11, 13; veja REFEIÇÃO.) Negar-se a comer com alguém era indicação de ira ou de outro sentimento ou atitude de contrariedade. (1Sa 20:34; At 11:2, 3; Gál 2:11, 12) O alimento muitas vezes era usado como presente, para granjear ou assegurar a boa vontade de outrem, visto que a aceitação dum presente era considerada como obrigando o recebedor a observar relações pacíficas. — Gên 33:8-16; 1Sa 9:6-8; 25:18, 19; 1Rs 14:1-3.

Ponto de Vista Cristão. Os cristãos não estão sob as restrições da Lei quanto a alimentos puros e impuros. Requer-se deles abster-se do sangue e de coisas estranguladas, quer dizer, de coisas que não foram devidamente sangradas. (At 15:19, 20, 28, 29) Mas, fora desta injunção bíblica, não devem criar caso quanto a comer ou a abster-se de comer certos tipos de alimentos, nem tentar reger a consciência de outrem segundo a sua própria consciência no que se refere a consumir alimentos. No entanto, são advertidos contra o consumo de alimentos como oferenda a ídolos e contra fazer outros tropeçar por insistirem em exercer sua liberdade cristã quanto ao consumo de alimentos. (1Co 8; 10:23-33) Os cristãos não devem colocar a questão do alimento ou do seu manejo à frente do Reino e dos interesses espirituais deste. — Ro 14:17; He 13:9.

Alimento Espiritual. Jesus deleitava-se em fazer a vontade de seu Pai e dizia que isto era alimento para ele. (Jo 4:32, 34) Predisse que designaria "o escravo fiel e discreto" para dar aos seus discípulos alimento (espiritual) no tempo apropriado. (Mt 24:44-47; veja ESCRAVO FIEL E DISCRETO.) Assim como Moisés dissera aos israelitas: "O homem não vive somente de pão, mas . . . o homem vive de toda expressão da boca de Jeová" (De 8:3), Jesus incentivou seus seguidores a buscarem, não o alimento material, mas o alimento que permanece para a vida eterna. (Jo 6:26, 27; veja Hab 3:17, 18.) Ele disse que não deviam estar ansiosos quanto ao alimento e à bebida, porque "a alma vale mais do que o alimento". — Mt 6:25; Lu 12:22, 23.

O apóstolo Paulo chamou as coisas elementares da doutrina cristã de "leite", e o conhecimento mais profundo de "alimento sólido". (He 5:12-14; 6:1, 2; 1Co 3:1-3) Também Pedro falou de se nutrir o crescimento espiritual com "o leite não adulterado pertencente à palavra". (1Pe 2:2) Jesus chamou a si mesmo de "o pão da vida", superior ao maná provido no ermo, e salientou que tinha um suprimento deste, que impediria que o comedor ficasse alguma vez com fome. (Jo 6:32-35) Ele chocou alguns dos seus seguidores, aos quais faltava mentalidade espiritual, quando comparou sua carne e seu sangue a alimento e bebida (dos quais poderiam 'alimentar-se' pela fé no sacrifício resgatador dele) para se ter vida eterna. — Jo 6:54-60.

Jeová promete um tempo em que ele proverá uma abundância tanto de alimento espiritual como de material para o seu povo fiel em toda a terra, sem este ser ameaçado pela fome. — Sal 72:16; 85:12; Is 25:6; veja COZINHAR, UTENSÍLIOS DE COZINHA; FOME; e os alimentos sob os seus respectivos verbetes.

ALJAVA. Veja ARMAS, ARMADURA.

ALMA. Os termos das línguas originais (hebr.: né·fesh [נֶפֶשׁ]; gr.: psy·khé [ψυχή]), segundo usados nas Escrituras, mostram que a "alma" é a pessoa, o animal ou a vida que a pessoa ou o animal usufrui.

As conotações que a palavra portuguesa "alma" geralmente transmite à mente da maioria das pessoas não estão de acordo com o significado das palavras hebraica e grega usadas pelos inspirados escritores bíblicos. Este fato tem obtido continuamente um reconhecimento mais amplo. Lá em 1897, no Journal of Biblical Literature (Revista de Literatura Bíblica; Vol. XVI, p. 30), o professor C. A. Briggs, em resultado de pormenorizada análise do uso de né·fesh, comentou: "Alma (soul), no seu uso em inglês, no tempo atual, transmite usualmente um significado muito diferente de נפש [né·fesh] em hebraico, e é fácil que o leitor incauto a interprete erroneamente."

Mais recentemente, quando a Sociedade Publicadora Judaica da América lançou uma nova tradução da Torá, ou dos primeiros cinco livros da Bíblia, o editor-chefe, H. M. Orlinsky, da Faculdade União Hebraica, declarou que a palavra "alma" tinha sido virtualmente eliminada desta tradução porque "a palavra hebraica em questão aqui é 'Nefesh'". Acrescentou: "Outros tradutores a têm interpretado como significando 'alma'; o que é inteiramente inexato. A Bíblia não diz que temos uma alma. 'Nefesh' é a própria pessoa, sua necessidade de alimento, o próprio sangue nas suas veias, seu ser." — The New York Times, 12 de outubro de 1962.

Qual é a origem do ensino de que a alma humana é invisível e imortal?

A dificuldade reside em que os significados popularmente atribuídos à palavra portuguesa "alma" provêm primariamente, não das Escrituras Hebraicas ou das Gregas Cristãs, mas da antiga filosofia grega, na realidade, do pensamento religioso pagão. Platão, o filósofo grego, por exemplo, cita Sócrates como dizendo: "A alma . . . se ela partir pura, não arrastando consigo nada do corpo, . . . parte para o que é como ela mesma, para o invisível, divino, imortal e sábio, e quando chega ali, ela é feliz, liberta do erro, e da tolice, e do medo . . . e de todos os outros males humanos, e . . . vive em verdade por todo o porvir com os deuses." — Phaedo (Fédon), 80, D, E; 81, A.

Em contraste direto com o ensino grego sobre a psy·khé (alma) como imaterial, intangível, invisível e imortal, as Escrituras mostram que tanto psy·khé como né·fesh, conforme usadas com referência a criaturas terrestres, referem-se àquilo que é material, tangível, visível e mortal.

A New Catholic Encyclopedia (Nova Enciclopédia Católica) diz: "Nepes [né·fesh] é um termo de muito maior extensão do que nossa 'alma', significando vida (Êx 21.23; Dt 19.21) e suas várias manifestações vitais: respiração (Gn 35.18; Jó 41.13[21]), sangue [Gn 9.4; Dt 12.23; Sl 140(141).8], desejo (2 Sm 3.21; Pr 23.2). A alma no A[ntigo] T[estamento] significa, não uma parte do homem, mas o homem inteiro — o homem como ser vivente. Similarmente, no N[ovo] T[estamento] significa vida humana: a vida duma entidade individual, consciente (Mt 2.20; 6.25; Lu 12.22-23; 14.26; Jo 10.11, 15, 17; 13.37)." — 1967, Vol. XIII, p. 467.

A tradução católica romana, The New American Bible (A Nova Bíblia Americana), em seu "Glossário de Termos de Teologia Bíblica" (pp. 27, 28), diz: "No Novo Testamento, 'salvar a alma' (Mr 8:35) não significa salvar alguma parte 'espiritual' do homem, em contraste com o seu 'corpo' (no sentido platônico), mas a inteira pessoa, com ênfase no fato de que a pessoa está viva, desejando, amando e querendo, etc., em adição a ser concreta e física." — Edição publicada por P. J. Kenedy & Sons, Nova York, 1970.

Né·fesh evidentemente provém duma raiz que significa "respirar", e, num sentido literal, né·fesh poderia ser traduzido como "alguém que respira". O Lexicon in Veteris Testamenti Libros (Léxico dos Livros do Velho Testamento; Leiden, 1958, p. 627), de Koehler e Baumgartner, a define como segue: "a substância respiradora, que torna o homem e o animal seres viventes Gn 1,20 , a alma (estritamente distinta da noção grega da alma), cuja sede é o sangue Gn 9, 4ss Lv 17,11 Dt 12, 23: (249 X) . . . alma = ser vivente, indivíduo, pessoa."

Quanto à palavra grega psy·khé, os léxicos grego-inglês fornecem definições tais como "vida" e "o eu consciente ou personalidade como centro de emoções, desejos e afeições", "um ser vivente", e mostram que até mesmo em obras gregas não bíblicas o termo era usado "para animais". Naturalmente, essas fontes, que lidam primariamente com os escritos gregos clássicos, incluem todos os significados que os filósofos gregos, pagãos, davam à palavra, inclusive o de "espírito que partiu", "a alma imaterial e imortal", "o espírito do universo" e "o princípio imaterial do movimento e da vida". Evidentemente, porque alguns dos filósofos pagãos ensinavam que a alma emergia do corpo na morte, o termo psy·khé também era aplicado à "borboleta ou mariposa", criaturas estas que passam por uma metamorfose, transformando-se de lagarta em criatura alada. — Greek-English Lexicon (Léxico Grego-Inglês) de Liddell e Scott, revisado por H. Jones, 1968, pp. 2026, 2027; New Greek and English Lexicon (Novo Léxico Grego e Inglês) de Donnegan, 1836, p. 1404.

Os antigos escritores gregos aplicavam psy·khé de vários modos, e não eram coerentes, suas filosofias pessoais e religiosas influenciando seu uso do termo. Sobre Platão, a cuja filosofia podem ser atribuídas as ideias comuns sobre a palavra portuguesa "alma" (como geralmente se reconhece), declara-se: "Ao passo que às vezes ele fala de uma das [supostas] três partes da alma, a 'inteligível', como necessariamente imortal, ao passo que as outras duas partes são mortais, ele também fala como se houvesse duas almas em um só corpo, uma imortal e divina, e a outra mortal." — The Evangelical Quarterly (Publicação Trimestral Evangélica), Londres, 1931, Vol. III, p. 121: "Ideias sobre a Teoria Tripartida da Natureza Humana", de A. McCaig.

Em vista de tal incoerência dos escritos não bíblicos, é essencial deixar que as Escrituras falem por si, mostrando o que os escritores inspirados queriam dizer ao usarem o termo psy·khé, bem como né·fesh. Né·fesh ocorre 754 vezes no texto massorético das Escrituras Hebraicas, ao passo que psy·khé aparece sozinha 102 vezes no texto de Westcott e Hort das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, perfazendo um total de 856 ocorrências. (Veja o apêndice na NM, p. 1513.) Esta frequência de ocorrências torna possível um conceito claro do sentido que tais termos transmitiam à mente dos inspirados escritores bíblicos e o sentido que seus escritos devem transmitir à nossa mente. Um exame mostra que, embora o sentido destes termos seja amplo, com diferentes matizes de significado, entre os escritores bíblicos não havia nenhuma incoerência, confusão ou desarmonia quanto à natureza do homem, tal como a existente entre os filósofos gregos do chamado Período Clássico.

Primeiras Almas da Terra. As ocorrências iniciais de né·fesh se encontram em Gênesis 1:20-23. No quinto "dia" criativo, Deus disse: " 'Produzam as águas um enxame de almas [né·fesh] viventes e voem criaturas voadoras sobre a terra . . .' E Deus passou a criar os grandes monstros marinhos e toda alma [né·fesh] vivente que se move, que as águas produziram em enxames segundo as suas espécies, e toda criatura voadora alada segundo a sua espécie." Similarmente, no sexto "dia" criativo, né·fesh é aplicado ao "animal doméstico, e animal movente, e animal selvático da terra" como "almas viventes". — Gên 1:24.

Depois da criação do homem, a instrução que Deus lhe deu usava de novo o termo né·fesh com respeito à criação animal, "tudo o que se move sobre a terra, em que há vida como alma [literalmente, em que há alma (né·fesh) vivente]". (Gên 1:30) Outros exemplos de animais serem chamados assim encontram-se em Gênesis 2:19; 9:10-16; Levítico 11:10, 46; 24:18; Números 31:28; Ezequiel 47:9. Notavelmente, as Escrituras Gregas Cristãs coincidem em aplicar a palavra grega psy·khé aos animais, como em Revelação 8:9; 16:3, onde é usada para com as criaturas marinhas.

Assim, as Escrituras mostram claramente que né·fesh e psy·khé são usados para denominar a criação animal inferior ao homem. Os mesmos termos aplicam-se ao homem.

A Alma Humana. Precisamente a mesma frase hebraica usada para a criação animal, a saber, né·fesh hhai·yáh (alma vivente), é aplicada a Adão, quando, depois de Deus ter formado o homem do pó do solo e soprado em suas narinas o fôlego da vida, "o homem veio a ser uma alma vivente". (Gên 2:7) O homem distinguia-se da criação animal, mas esta distinção não se devia a ser ele uma né·fesh (alma), e eles não. Antes, o registro mostra que era porque somente o homem foi criado "à imagem de Deus". (Gên 1:26, 27) Ele foi criado com qualidades morais semelhantes às de Deus, com poder e sabedoria muito superiores aos animais; por isso, ele podia ter em sujeição todas as formas inferiores de vida de criaturas. (Gên 1:26, 28) O organismo do homem era mais complexo, bem como mais versátil, do que o dos animais. (Veja 1Co 15:39.) Semelhantemente, Adão possuía, mas perdeu, a perspectiva de vida eterna; isto nunca foi expresso com relação às criaturas inferiores ao homem. — Gên 2:15-17; 3:22-24.

É verdade que o relato afirma que 'Deus passou a soprar nas narinas do homem o fôlego [uma forma de nesha·máh] de vida', ao passo que não se declara isso no relato sobre a criação animal. É claro, porém, que o relato da criação do homem é muito mais pormenorizado que o da criação dos animais. Ademais, Gênesis 7:21-23, ao descrever a destruição, causada pelo Dilúvio, de "toda a carne" fora da arca, alista as criaturas animais junto com a humanidade, e diz: "Morreu tudo em que o fôlego [uma forma de nesha·máh] da força da vida estava ativo nas suas narinas, a saber, todos os que estavam em solo seco." Obviamente, o fôlego de vida das criaturas animais também proveio originalmente do Criador, Jeová Deus.

Assim também o "espírito" (hebr.: rú·ahh; gr.: pneú·ma) ou força de vida do homem não é distinto da força de vida dos animais, conforme demonstrado por Eclesiastes 3:19-21, que declara que "todos eles têm apenas um só espírito [weru'ach]".

Alma — Uma Criatura Vivente. Conforme declarado, o homem "veio a ser uma alma vivente"; portanto, o homem era uma alma, ele não possuía uma alma como algo imaterial, invisível e intangível, que residia dentro dele. O apóstolo Paulo mostra que o ensino cristão não diferia do ensino hebraico anterior, pois cita Gênesis 2:7 ao dizer: "Até mesmo está escrito assim: 'O primeiro homem, Adão, tornou-se alma vivente [psy·khén zó·san].' . . . O primeiro homem é da terra e feito de pó." — 1Co 15:45-47.

O relato de Gênesis mostra que uma alma vivente resulta da combinação do corpo terrestre com o fôlego de vida. A expressão "fôlego da força da vida [literalmente, fôlego do espírito, ou força ativa (rú·ahh), de vida]" (Gên 7:22) indica que é por respirar ar (com seu oxigênio) que é sustentada a força de vida ou "espírito" em todas as criaturas, o homem e os animais. Esta força de vida se encontra em cada célula do corpo da criatura, conforme considerado sob ESPÍRITO; VIDA.

Visto que o termo né·fesh se refere à própria criatura, devíamos esperar que lhe fossem atribuídas as funções ou características físicas normais das criaturas carnais. E isto realmente acontece. Né·fesh (alma) é mencionada como comendo carne, gordura, sangue ou coisas materiais similares (Le 7:18, 20, 25, 27; 17:10, 12, 15; De 23:24), como tendo fome ou ansiando alimento e bebida (De 12:15, 20, 21; Sal 107:9; Pr 19:15; 27:7; Is 29:8; 32:6; Miq 7:1), engordando (Pr 11:25), jejuando (Sal 35:13), tocando em coisas impuras, tais como um cadáver (Le 5:2; 7:21; 17:15; 22:6; Núm 19:13), sendo 'tomada em penhor' ou sendo 'sequestrada' (De 24:6, 7), trabalhando (Le 23:30), revigorando-se com água fresca quando cansada (Pr 25:25), sendo comprada (Le 22:11; Ez 27:13) ou dada como oferta votiva (Le 27:2), sendo posta a ferros (Sal 105:18), ficando sem dormir (Sal 119:28) e lutando para respirar (Je 15:9).

Pode-se notar que, em muitos textos, faz-se referência à "minha alma", "sua alma", "tua alma", etc. Isto se dá porque né·fesh e psy·khé podem significar o próprio eu da pessoa como alma. O sentido do termo, portanto, pode ser amiúde expresso em português pelo uso de pronomes pessoais. Assim, o Lexicon in Veteris Testamenti Libros (p. 627) mostra que "minha né·fesh" significa "eu" (Gên 27:4, 25; Is 1:14); "tua né·fesh" significa "tu" (Gên 27:19, 31; Is 43:4; 51:23), "sua [dele, em hebr.] né·fesh" significa "ele, ele mesmo" (Núm 30:2; Is 53:10), "sua [dela, em hebr.] né·fesh" significa "ela, ela mesma" (Núm 30:5-12), etc.

O termo grego psy·khé é usado similarmente. O Vine's Expository Dictionary of Old and New Testament Words (Dicionário Expositivo de Palavras do Velho e do Novo Testamento, de Vine, 1981, Vol. 4, p. 54) diz que pode ser usado como "o equivalente do pronome pessoal, usado para ênfase e efeito: — 1.ª pessoa, João 10:24 ('nos'); Heb. 10:38; cp. [compare com] Gên. 12:13; Núm. 23:10; Juí. 16:30; Sal. 120:2 ('me'); 2.ª pessoa, 2 Cor. 12:15; Heb. 13:17", e assim por diante.

Representa vida como criatura. Tanto né·fesh como psy·khé são também usadas para significar vida — não meramente como força ou princípio abstratos — mas vida como criatura, humana ou animal.

Assim, quando Raquel dava à luz Benjamim, sua né·fesh ("alma" ou vida como criatura) saiu dela e ela morreu. (Gên 35:16-19) Ela cessou de ser criatura vivente. Similarmente, quando o profeta Elias realizou um milagre a respeito do filho morto da viúva de Sarefá, a né·fesh ("alma" ou vida como criatura) do filho retornou a ele e ele "reviveu", tornando-se de novo uma criatura viva. — 1Rs 17:17-23.

Por estar a vida duma criatura tão inseparavelmente ligada ao sangue e depender dele (o sangue derramado representando a vida da pessoa ou criatura [Gên 4:10; 2Rs 9:26; Sal 9:12; Is 26:21]), as Escrituras falam da né·fesh (alma) como estando "no sangue". (Gên 9:4; Le 17:11, 14; De 12:23) Obviamente, não se quer dizer isso de forma literal, visto que as Escrituras também falam do "sangue das vossas almas" (Gên 9:5; compare isso com Je 2:34) e as muitas referências já consideradas não poderiam ser razoavelmente aplicadas unicamente ao sangue ou às suas qualidades sustentadoras de vida.

Né·fesh (alma) não é usada com referência à criação da vida vegetal no terceiro "dia" criativo (Gên 1:11-13) ou depois disso, visto que a vegetação não tem sangue.

Exemplos do uso do grego psy·khé para significar "vida como criatura" podem ser encontrados em Mateus 6:25; 10:39; 16:25, 26; Lucas 12:20; João 10:11, 15; 13:37, 38; 15:13; Atos 20:10. Visto que os servos de Deus têm a esperança duma ressurreição no caso de morrerem, eles têm a esperança de viver novamente como "almas" ou criaturas viventes. Por este motivo, Jesus podia dizer que "todo aquele que perder a sua alma [sua vida como criatura] por causa de mim e das boas novas, salvá-la-á. Realmente, de que proveito é para um homem ganhar o mundo inteiro e pagar com a perda da sua alma? O que, realmente, daria o homem em troca de sua alma?" (Mr 8:35-37) Similarmente, ele declarou: "Quem estiver afeiçoado à sua alma, destruí-la-á, mas quem odiar a sua alma neste mundo, protegê-la-á para a vida eterna." (Jo 12:25) Estes textos, e outros semelhantes a eles, mostram o entendimento correto das palavras de Jesus em Mateus 10:28: "Não fiqueis temerosos dos que matam o corpo, mas não podem matar a alma; antes, temei aquele que pode destruir na Geena tanto a alma como o corpo." Embora os homens possam matar o corpo, não podem matar a pessoa para sempre, visto que ela vive no propósito de Deus (veja Lu 20:37, 38), e Deus pode restaurar e restaurará a vida de tal pessoa fiel como criatura, por meio duma ressurreição. Para os servos de Deus, a perda de sua "alma" ou vida como criatura é apenas temporária, não permanente. — Veja Re 12:11.

Mortal e destrutível. Por outro lado, Mateus 10:28 declara que Deus "pode destruir na Geena tanto a alma [psy·khén] como o corpo". Isto mostra que psy·khé não se refere a algo imortal ou indestrutível. De fato, não existe nem sequer um caso em todas as Escrituras, Hebraicas e Gregas, em que as palavras né·fesh ou psy·khé sejam modificadas por termos tais como imortal, indestrutível, imperecível, imorredouro ou algo parecido. (Veja IMORTALIDADE; INCORRUPÇÃO.) Por outro lado, há dezenas de textos, tanto nas Escrituras Hebraicas como nas Gregas, que falam de né·fesh ou de psy·khé (alma) como mortal e sujeita à morte (Gên 19:19, 20; Núm 23:10; Jos 2:13, 14; Jz 5:18; 16:16, 30; 1Rs 20:31, 32; Sal 22:29; Ez 18:4, 20; Mt 2:20; 26:38; Mr 3:4; He 10:39; Tg 5:20), como morrendo, sendo "decepada" ou destruída (Gên 17:14; Êx 12:15; Le 7:20; 23:29; Jos 10:28-39; Sal 78:50; Ez 13:19; 22:27; At 3:23; Re 8:9; 16:3), quer pela espada (Jos 10:37; Ez 33:6), quer por sufocamento (Jó 7:15), ou por correr o risco de morrer afogada (Jon 2:5), e também como descendo à cova ou ao Seol (Jó 33:22; Sal 89:48), ou sendo livrada dali (Sal 16:10; 30:3; 49:15; Pr 23:14).

Alma morta. A expressão 'alma falecida ou morta' também aparece várias vezes, significando simplesmente "uma pessoa morta". — Le 19:28; 21:1, 11; 22:4; Núm 5:2; 6:6; Ag 2:13; compare isso com Núm 19:11, 13.

Desejo. Às vezes, a palavra né·fesh é usada para expressar o desejo da pessoa, desejo este que toma conta dela e então a ocupa no empenho de atingir seu alvo. Provérbios 13:2, por exemplo, diz dos que agem traiçoeiramente que 'sua própria alma é violência', isto é, que eles estão 'inteiramente voltados' para a violência, com efeito, tornam-se a violência personificada. (Veja Gên 34:3, n; Sal 27:12; 35:25; 41:2.) Os falsos pastores de Israel são chamados de "cães fortes em desejo da alma", que não conhecem a saciedade. — Is 56:11, 12; compare isso com Pr 23:1-3; Hab 2:5.

Servir de Toda a Alma. A "alma" significa basicamente a pessoa inteira, como já foi demonstrado. Todavia, certos textos nos exortam a buscar, a amar e a servir a Deus com 'todo o nosso coração e com toda a nossa alma' (De 4:29; 11:13, 18), ao passo que Deuteronômio 6:5 diz: "Tens de amar a Jeová, teu Deus, de todo o teu coração, e de toda a tua alma, e de toda a tua força vital." Jesus disse que era mister servir com toda a alma e força da pessoa, e, adicionalmente, "de toda a tua mente". (Mr 12:30; Lu 10:27) Surge a pergunta quanto a por que estas outras coisas são mencionadas junto com a alma, visto que esta abrange todas elas. Para ilustrar o seu significado provável: Uma pessoa poderia vender a si mesma (sua alma) em escravidão a outrem, destarte tornando-se propriedade de seu dono e amo. Todavia, talvez não servisse de todo o coração a seu amo, com plena motivação e desejo de agradá-lo, e, assim, talvez não usasse sua plena força ou sua plena capacidade mental para promover os interesses de seu amo. (Veja Ef 6:5; Col 3:22.) Por isso, essas outras facetas são evidentemente mencionadas para focalizar a atenção sobre elas, de modo que não deixemos de nos lembrar delas e de considerá-las no nosso serviço a Deus, a quem pertencemos, e ao seu Filho, cuja vida foi o preço resgatador que nos comprou. Serviço "de toda a alma" a Deus envolve a pessoa inteira, não excluindo nenhuma parte, função ou capacidade física, ou desejo. — Veja Mt 5:28-30; Lu 21:34-36; Ef 6:6-9; Fil 3:19; Col 3:23, 24.

Alma e Espírito São Distintos. O "espírito" (hebr.: rú·ahh; gr.: pneú·ma) não deve ser confundido com a "alma" (hebr.: né·fesh; gr.: psy·khé), pois referem-se a coisas diferentes. Assim, Hebreus 4:12 fala da palavra de Deus como 'penetrando até a divisão da alma e do espírito, e das juntas e da sua medula'. (Veja também Fil 1:27; 1Te 5:23.) Como já se mostrou, a alma (né·fesh; psy·khé) é a própria criatura. O espírito (rú·ahh; pneú·ma) refere-se geralmente à força de vida da criatura ou alma vivente, embora os termos das línguas originais também possam ter outros significados.

Ilustrando ainda mais a distinção entre os termos gregos psy·khé e pneú·ma há a consideração feita pelo apóstolo Paulo, em sua primeira carta aos coríntios, da ressurreição dos cristãos para a vida espiritual. Aqui, ele contrasta "o que é físico [psy·khi·kón, literalmente, de alma]" com "aquilo que é espiritual [pneu·ma·ti·kón]". Assim, ele mostra que os cristãos, até a hora de sua morte, têm um corpo "de alma", assim como o primeiro homem, Adão; ao passo que, na sua ressurreição, esses cristãos ungidos recebem um corpo espiritual semelhante ao do glorificado Jesus Cristo. (1Co 15:42-49) Judas faz uma comparação um tanto similar, ao falar de "homens animalescos [psy·khi·koí, literalmente, (homens) de alma], sem espiritualidade [literalmente, não tendo espírito (pneú·ma)]". — Ju 19.

Deus Como Tendo Alma. Em vista do precedente, parece que os textos em que Deus fala de "minha alma" (Le 26:11, 30; Sal 24:4; Is 42:1) são ainda outro caso de uso antropomórfico, isto é, da atribuição de características físicas e humanas a Deus, para facilitar o entendimento, como quando se fala de Deus como tendo olhos, mãos, e assim por diante. Ao falar de 'minha né·fesh', Jeová quer dizer, claramente, "eu mesmo", ou "minha pessoa". "Deus é Espírito [Pneú·ma]." — Jo 4:24; veja JEOVÁ (Descrições da sua presença).

ALMODADE. Primeiro dos 13 filhos de Joctã; quinta geração depois de Sem; sobrinho de Pelegue, através de quem se traça a linhagem messiânica. Almodade foi progenitor de uma das 70 famílias pós-diluvianas, estabelecendo-se na Arábia.

(Gên 10:26, 32; 1Cr 1:20) A tradição árabe considera-o chefe da tribo Jurham e pai de uma das esposas de Ismael.

ALMOM. Uma cidade levita dentro do território de Benjamim; foi designada aos filhos de Arão, nos dias de Josué e de Eleazar, o sacerdote. (Jos 21:1, 18) Ela é chamada Alemete em 1 Crônicas 6:60. O lugar antigo encontra-se nas ruínas do vilarejo de Khirbet `Almit (Horvat `Almit), a uns 6 km ao NE de Jerusalém e a cerca de 2 km a ENE de Anatote, outra cidade levita.

ALMOM-DIBLATAIM. Um lugar entre Díbon-Gade e os montes de Abarim, onde os israelitas se acamparam no 40.º ano após a sua saída do Egito (1473 AEC). Era um dos últimos acampamentos durante as suas peregrinações. (Núm 33:46, 47) Não há certeza do lugar, mas alguns peritos o identificam com Khirbet Deleilat esh-Sherqiyeh, a cerca de 16 km NNE de Díbon (Dhiban). Possivelmente o mesmo que Bete-Diblataim. — Je 48:22.

ALMUGUE. Veja ALGUM.

ALOÉS, MADEIRA DE ALOÉS [hebr.: 'aha·lím (plural) e 'aha·lóhth (plural); gr.: a·ló·e]. Nome aplicado a uma variedade de árvore que contém uma substância fragrante, ou aromática, usada como perfume no período bíblico. (Sal 45:8; Pr 7:17; Cân 4:14) A maioria dos comentadores acha que a árvore aloés, da Bíblia, seja a Aquilaria agallocha, às vezes chamada de agáloco ou calambuco, e agora encontrada mormente na Índia e em regiões vizinhas. A árvore é grande e bem copada, às vezes atingindo uma altura de 30 m. O cerne do tronco e dos ramos está impregnado de resina e de óleo odorífero, dos quais provém o perfume muito apreciado. Visto que parece atingir seu estado mais aromático quando em decomposição, a madeira é às vezes enterrada para apressar sua decomposição. Reduzida a pó fino, é então comercializada como "aloés".

A comparação, feita pelo profeta Balaão, das tendas de Israel com "aloés plantados por Jeová, como cedros junto às águas", talvez se refira ao formato bem copado destas majestosas árvores, um grupo de árvores aloés assemelhando-se a um acampamento de tendas. (Núm 24:6) Este texto, porém, motivou certas discussões, visto que as árvores Aquilaria agallocha não são encontradas na Palestina. É claro que a sua ausência hoje não necessariamente prova que essas árvores não existiam naquela terra, há quase 3.500 anos. Por outro lado, a referência de Balaão a tais árvores não exigiria que elas crescessem bem ali na região onde ele falava. Se os "cedros" mencionados logo depois no texto eram cedros-do-líbano, então eram árvores que cresciam fora daquela região, e o mesmo poderia dar-se com os aloés. Os outros textos que mencionam aloés referem-se apenas às suas qualidades aromáticas, e isto permitiria a conclusão de serem importados do estrangeiro.

Depois da morte de Cristo Jesus, Nicodemos trouxe "um rolo de mirra e aloés", de cerca de 100 libras romanas (33 kg), para serem usados na preparação do corpo de Jesus para o sepultamento. (Jo 19:39) A contribuição de Nicodemos deve ter representado um considerável desembolso de dinheiro da sua parte, embora não se mencione a proporção da mirra menos cara incluída nos cerca de 33 kg. Ao passo que alguns aplicam o termo "aloés", neste texto, à planta da família das liliáceas que agora leva o nome botânico de Aloe vera, o produto desta planta (um sumo grosso das folhas) é empregado, não por seu aroma, mas como purgante e para outros fins medicinais. O aloés trazido por Nicodemos provavelmente era o mesmo produto de aloés mencionado nas Escrituras Hebraicas.

ALOM [Árvore Maciça]. Um simeonita, descendente de Semaías. — 1Cr 4:37.

ALOM-BACUTE [Árvore Maciça de Choro]. Uma árvore maciça abaixo de Betel, ao sopé do morro ocupado pela cidade, chamada assim porque sob ela Jacó enterrou "Débora, ama de Rebeca". — Gên 35:8; veja ÁRVORE GRANDE, ÁRVORE MACIÇA.

ALTAR. Basicamente, uma estrutura ou um lugar elevado em que se oferecem sacrifícios ou se queima incenso em adoração ao Deus verdadeiro ou a outra deidade. A palavra hebraica miz·bé·ahh (altar) deriva do verbo radical za·váhh (abater; sacrificar) e refere-se assim basicamente a um abatedouro ou a um lugar de sacrifícios. (Gên 8:20; De 12:21; 16:2) De modo similar, a palavra grega thy·si·a·sté·rion (altar) deriva do verbo radical thý·o, que também significa "abater; sacrificar". (Mt 22:4; Mr 14:12) A palavra grega bo·mós refere-se ao altar dum deus falso. — At 17:23.

A primeira menção de um altar ocorre após o Dilúvio, quando "Noé começou a construir um altar a Jeová" e fez nele ofertas queimadas. (Gên 8:20) As únicas ofertas mencionadas antes do Dilúvio foram as de Caim e de Abel, e embora seja provável que fizessem isso, não se diz se usaram altares, ou não. — Gên 4:3, 4.

Abraão construiu um altar em Siquém (Gên 12:7), num ponto entre Betel e Ai (Gên 12:8; 13:3), em Hébron (Gên 13:18) e evidentemente também no monte Moriá, onde ele sacrificou um carneiro que lhe foi dado por Deus em lugar de Isaque. (Gên 22:9-13) Somente neste último caso menciona-se especificamente a oferta dum sacrifício por Abraão nesses altares. Entretanto, o significado básico da palavra hebraica indica que é provável que se fizessem ofertas em cada caso. Isaque, mais tarde, construiu um altar em Berseba (Gên 26:23, 25), e Jacó construiu altares em Siquém e em Betel. (Gên 33:18, 20; 35:1, 3, 7) Estes altares, erguidos pelos patriarcas, sem dúvida eram do tipo mencionado mais tarde por Deus no pacto da Lei, quer montes de terra, quer plataformas de pedras naturais (não lavradas). — Êx 20:24, 25.

Moisés construiu um altar depois da vitória sobre Amaleque, chamando-o de Jeová-Nissi (Jeová É Meu Poste de Sinal). (Êx 17:15, 16) Ao se fazer o pacto da Lei com Israel, Moisés construiu um altar ao sopé do monte Sinai, e neste se ofereceram sacrifícios. Sangue dos sacrifícios foi aspergido sobre o altar, sobre o livro e sobre o povo, assim validando o pacto e pondo-o em vigor. — Êx 24:4-8; He 9:17-20.

Altares do Tabernáculo. Com a ereção do tabernáculo, construíram-se dois altares, segundo o modelo divino. O altar da oferta queimada (também chamado de "altar de cobre" [Êx 39:39]) foi feito de madeira de acácia, em forma duma caixa, pelo que parece sem tampa nem fundo. Media de 2,2 m de cada lado e tinha 1,3 m de altura, com "chifres" que se projetavam dos quatro cantos superiores. Todas as suas superfícies estavam recobertas de cobre. Uma grelha ou grade de cobre foi colocada abaixo da borda do altar, "por dentro", "pelo meio". Quatro argolas foram colocadas nas quatro extremidades, perto da grelha, e estas parecem ser as mesmas argolas pelas quais passavam os dois varais de acácia, recobertos de cobre, para o transporte do altar. Isto talvez significasse que se abrira uma fenda em dois lados do altar, permitindo que se inserisse nele uma grelha plana, estendendo-se as argolas de ambos os lados. Há considerável diferença de opinião entre os peritos sobre este assunto, e muitos consideram provável que dois conjuntos de argolas estivessem envolvidos, o segundo conjunto, para a inserção dos varais de transporte, estando preso diretamente ao exterior do altar. Equipamento de cobre foi feito em forma de recipientes e de pás, para as cinzas, tigelas para aparar o sangue dos animais, garfos para manusear a carne, e porta-lumes. — Êx 27:1-8; 38:1-7, 30; Núm 4:14.

Este altar de cobre, para as ofertas queimadas, foi colocado diante da entrada do tabernáculo. (Êx 40:6, 29) Embora fosse de altura relativamente baixa, assim não exigindo necessariamente uma via de acesso para facilitar o manejo dos sacrifícios colocados nele, o terreno talvez tenha sido erguido em seu redor, ou talvez houvesse uma rampa que conduzisse a ele. (Veja Le 9:22, que declara que Arão "desceu" depois de fazer ofertas.) Visto que o animal era sacrificado "ao lado setentrional do altar" (Le 1:11), o "lugar das cinzas gordurosas" removidas do altar estava ao L (Le 1:16), e a bacia de cobre, para lavagem, estava ao O (Êx 30:18), isto logicamente deixava o S como o lado livre em que tal via de acesso poderia estar situada.

Altar do incenso. O altar do incenso (também chamado de "altar de ouro" [Êx 39:38]) era igualmente feito de madeira de acácia, o topo e as laterais sendo revestidos de ouro. Uma bordadura de ouro orlava o topo. O altar media 44,5 cm de cada lado e tinha 89 cm de altura, e também possuía "chifres" que se projetavam de seus quatro cantos superiores. Duas argolas de ouro foram feitas para a inserção dos varais de acácia, para transporte, recobertos de ouro, e estas argolas foram colocadas por baixo da bordadura de ouro, em lados opostos do altar. (Êx 30:1-5; 37:25-28) Um incenso especial era queimado neste altar duas vezes por dia, de manhã e à noitinha. (Êx 30:7-9, 34-38) O uso de um incensário ou porta-lume é mencionado em outras partes para se queimar incenso, e, evidentemente, um assim também era usado em conexão com o altar de incenso. (Le 16:12, 13; He 9:4; Re 8:5; compare isso com 2Cr 26:16, 19.) A posição do altar do incenso era no interior do tabernáculo, logo antes da cortina do Santíssimo, de modo que é mencionado como estando "diante da arca do testemunho". — Êx 30:1, 6; 40:5, 26, 27.

Santificação e uso dos altares do tabernáculo. Por ocasião das cerimônias de investidura, ambos os altares foram ungidos e santificados. (Êx 40:9, 10) Nessa ocasião, bem como nos subsequentes sacrifícios de certas ofertas pelo pecado, punha-se sangue do animal sacrificado nos chifres do altar da oferta queimada, derramando-se o restante dele à base do altar. (Êx 29:12; Le 8:15; 9:8, 9) Parte do óleo de unção e do sangue sobre o altar foi espargido sobre Arão e seus filhos, e as vestes deles, a fim de santificá-los perto da conclusão da cerimônia da investidura. (Le 8:30) Ao todo, a santificação do altar da oferta queimada exigiu sete dias. (Êx 29:37) No caso de outras ofertas queimadas, sacrifícios de participação em comum e ofertas pela culpa, o sangue era aspergido sobre o altar, ao passo que o sangue de aves sacrificadas era espargido ou deixado escorrer ao lado do altar. (Le 1:5-17; 3:2-5; 5:7-9; 7:2) Faziam-se fumegar sobre o altar as ofertas de cereais como "cheiro repousante" para Jeová. (Le 2:2-12) As partes remanescentes da oferta de cereais eram consumidas pelo sumo sacerdote e pelos seus filhos ao lado do altar. (Le 10:12) Anualmente, no Dia da Expiação, o altar era limpo e santificado por o sumo sacerdote colocar parte do sangue dos animais sacrificiais sobre os chifres do altar e por espargi-lo sete vezes sobre o altar. — Le 16:18, 19.

Em todos os sacrifícios de animais apresentados, faziam-se fumegar sobre o altar partes do animal, e para este fim se mantinha um fogo aceso no altar, e nunca se permitia que se apagasse. (Le 6:9-13) Dali se obtinha o fogo para a queima de incenso. (Núm 16:46) Somente Arão e aqueles dos seus descendentes que estivessem livres de defeitos tinham permissão de servir no altar. (Le 21:21-23) Os outros levitas eram apenas ajudantes. O homem que não fosse da semente de Arão e que se chegasse ao altar devia ser morto. (Núm 16:40; 18:1-7) Corá e sua assembleia foram destruídos por deixarem de reconhecer esta designação divina, e os porta-lumes de cobre que haviam tomado foram transformados em finas placas de metal e o altar foi revestido com eles, em sinal de que ninguém que não fosse da descendência de Arão devia chegar-se a ele. — Núm 16:1-11, 16-18, 36-40.

Uma vez por ano, também se fazia expiação pelo altar do incenso, de ouro, por se pôr nos chifres dele sangue sacrificial. Outras ocasiões em que recebia tal tratamento eram quando se faziam ofertas pelo pecado a favor de membros do sacerdócio. — Êx 30:10; Le 4:7.

Quando eram transportados pelos filhos de Coate, tanto o altar do incenso como o altar das ofertas queimadas eram cobertos, o primeiro com pano azul e peles de focas, e o segundo com um pano de lã tingida de roxo e com peles de focas. — Núm 4:11-14; veja TABERNÁCULO.

Altares do Templo. Antes da dedicação do templo de Salomão, o altar de cobre feito no ermo servia para as ofertas sacrificiais de Israel no alto em Gibeão. (1Rs 3:4; 1Cr 16:39, 40; 21:29, 30; 2Cr 1:3-6) O altar de cobre feito depois para o templo abrangia uma área 16 vezes maior do que o feito para o tabernáculo, medindo cerca de 8,9 m de cada lado e tendo cerca de 4,5 m de altura. (2Cr 4:1) Em vista da sua altura, era essencial um meio de acesso. A lei de Deus proibia o uso de degraus até o altar, para impedir a exposição da nudez. (Êx 20:26) Alguns creem que os calções de linho usados por Arão e seus filhos serviam para neutralizar esta ordem, e, assim, tornavam permissíveis os degraus. (Êx 28:42, 43) No entanto, parece provável que se usasse uma rampa inclinada para se chegar ao alto do altar da oferta queimada. Josefo (The Jewish War [A Guerra Judaica], V, 225 [v, 6]) indica que tal acesso era usado para o altar do templo mais tarde construído por Herodes. Se a disposição do altar do templo seguia à do tabernáculo, a rampa ficava provavelmente do lado S do altar. O "mar de fundição", em que os sacerdotes se lavavam, seria assim de fácil acesso, visto que também ficava do lado S. (2Cr 4:2-5, 9, 10) Em outros aspectos, o altar construído para o templo, pelo que parece, foi modelado segundo o do tabernáculo, e não se fornece nenhuma descrição pormenorizada dele.

Estava situado onde Davi havia construído antes seu altar temporário, no monte Moriá. (2Sa 24:21, 25; 1Cr 21:26; 2Cr 8:12; 15:8) Considera-se também, por tradição, ter sido este o lugar onde Abraão tentara oferecer Isaque. (Gên 22:2) O sangue dos animais sacrificiais era derramado na base do altar, e é provável que existisse algum tipo de conduto para levar o sangue para longe da área do templo. Relata-se que o templo de Herodes possuía tal conduto ligado ao chifre SO do altar, e, na rocha da área do templo, encontrou-se uma abertura que leva a um canal subterrâneo que vai para o vale do Cédron.

O altar do incenso para o templo foi feito de cedro, mas esta parece ter sido a única diferença entre este e o do tabernáculo. Era igualmente recoberto de ouro. — 1Rs 6:20, 22; 7:48; 1Cr 28:18; 2Cr 4:19.

Na inauguração do templo, a oração de Salomão foi oferecida perante o altar da oferta queimada, e, ao terminar, desceu fogo dos céus e consumiu os sacrifícios no altar. (2Cr 6:12, 13; 7:1-3) Apesar de abranger uma área de mais de 79 m², este altar de cobre mostrou-se pequeno demais para a imensa quantidade de sacrifícios oferecidos então, de modo que se santificou uma parte do pátio para este fim. — 1Rs 8:62-64.

Na última parte do reinado de Salomão, e nos reinados de Roboão e de Abijão, o altar das ofertas queimadas passou a ser negligenciado, a ponto de o Rei Asa achar necessário renová-lo. (2Cr 15:8) O Rei Uzias foi atacado de lepra por tentar queimar incenso sobre o altar de incenso, de ouro. (2Cr 26:16-19) O Rei Acaz afastou para um lado o altar de cobre da oferta queimada e colocou no seu lugar um altar pagão. (2Rs 16:14) Seu filho Ezequias, porém, mandou que o altar de cobre e seus utensílios fossem limpos, santificados e restaurados ao serviço. — 2Cr 29:18-24, 27; veja TEMPLO.

Altares Pós-Exílicos. A primeira coisa construída em Jerusalém pelos exilados que voltaram, sob Zorobabel e o sumo sacerdote Jesua, foi o altar de ofertas queimadas. (Esd 3:2-6) No devido tempo, fez-se também um novo altar do incenso.

O rei sírio, Antíoco Epifânio, levou embora o altar do incenso, de ouro, e, dois anos mais tarde (168 AEC), construiu um altar sobre o grande altar de Jeová e ofereceu nele um sacrifício a Zeus. (1 Macabeus 1:20-64) Judas Macabeu, depois disso, construiu um novo altar de pedras não lavradas e também restaurou o altar do incenso. — 1 Macabeus 4:44-49.

O altar das ofertas queimadas do templo de Herodes era feito de pedras não lavradas, e, segundo Josefo (The Jewish War, V, 225 [v, 6]), tinha 50 côvados de cada lado e 15 côvados de altura, embora a Míxena judaica (Middot 3:1) forneça dimensões menores para ele. Foi a este altar, portanto, que Jesus se referia nos seus dias. (Mt 5:23, 24; 23:18-20) O altar do incenso daquele templo não é descrito, mas Lucas 1:11 mostra que um anjo estava de pé à direita dele quando apareceu ao pai de João, Zacarias.

O Altar do Templo de Ezequiel. No templo visionário visto por Ezequiel, o altar de ofertas queimadas estava similarmente colocado diante do templo (Ez 40:47), mas tinha estilo diferente dos altares anteriores. O altar consistia em várias seções sucessivamente reentrantes ou recuadas. Suas dimensões são fornecidas em côvado longo (51,8 cm). A base do altar tinha um côvado de grossura e possuía uma "borda" de um palmo (talvez 26 cm) como beirada ao redor do topo, assim formando uma espécie de calha ou canal, talvez para receber o sangue derramado. (Ez 43:13, 14) Apoiada na própria base, mas reentrante um côvado de sua orla externa, havia outra seção, que media dois côvados (c. 104 cm) de altura. Uma terceira seção tinha um recuo de um côvado e tinha quatro côvados (c. 207 cm) de altura. Tinha também uma beirada circundante de meio côvado (c. 26 cm), talvez formando um segundo canal ou saliência protetora. Por fim, a lareira do altar se estendia para cima ainda por outros quatro côvados e também estava recuada um côvado da seção precedente; dela estendiam-se quatro "chifres". Degraus no L proviam o acesso à lareira do altar. (Ez 43:14-17) Como se dera com o altar construído no ermo, devia-se observar um período de expiação e de inauguração de sete dias. (Ez 43:19-26) Devia-se fazer a expiação anual pelo altar, junto com o restante do santuário, no primeiro dia de nisã. (Ez 45:18, 19) O rio de águas curativas, visto por Ezequiel, fluía do templo para o leste, e passava ao S do altar. — Ez 47:1.

O altar do incenso não é mencionado nominalmente na visão. No entanto, a descrição do "altar de madeira", em Ezequiel 41:22, em especial a referência a ele como a "mesa que está diante de Jeová", indica que este correspondia ao altar do incenso, ao invés de à mesa dos pães da proposição. (Compare isso com Êx 30:6, 8; 40:5; Re 8:3.) Este altar tinha três côvados (c. 155 cm) de altura, e, evidentemente, dois côvados (c. 104 cm) de cada lado.

Outros Altares. Visto que a população pós-diluviana não continuou com Noé na adoração pura, segue-se que foram feitos muitos altares para a adoração falsa, e escavações feitas em Canaã, na Mesopotâmia e em outros lugares, indicam que eles já existiam desde os períodos mais primitivos. Balaão mandou erigir sucessivamente sete altares, em três lugares diferentes, em suas vãs tentativas de invocar uma maldição sobre Israel. — Núm 22:40, 41; 23:4, 14, 29, 30.

Mandou-se aos israelitas que derrubassem todos os altares pagãos, e que destruíssem as colunas e os postes sagrados costumeiramente erguidos junto destes. (Êx 34:13; De 7:5, 6; 12:1-3) Nunca deveriam imitar a estes, nem oferecer seus filhos pelo fogo, como faziam os cananeus. (De 12:30, 31; 16:21) Em vez de uma multiplicidade de altares, Israel deveria ter um só altar para a adoração do único Deus verdadeiro, e este estaria localizado no lugar que Jeová escolhesse. (De 12:2-6, 13, 14, 27; contraste isto com Babilônia, onde havia 180 altares apenas para a deusa Istar.) Foram, de início, instruídos a construir um altar de pedras não lavradas, depois de cruzarem o rio Jordão (De 27:4-8), e este foi construído por Josué no monte Ebal. (Jos 8:30-32) Depois da divisão da terra conquistada, as tribos de Rubem e de Gade, e a meia-tribo de Manassés, construíram um conspícuo altar junto ao Jordão, o que provocou uma crise temporária entre as demais tribos, até que se verificou que o altar não era sinal de apostasia, mas apenas um marco comemorativo de fidelidade a Jeová como o Deus verdadeiro. — Jos 22:10-34.

Construíram-se outros altares, mas parece que estes foram erguidos para ocasiões específicas, e não para uso contínuo, e usualmente foram construídos em conexão com aparições angélicas ou segundo instruções angélicas. O altar em Boquim, e os de Gideão e Manoá, eram assim. (Jz 2:1-5; 6:24-32; 13:15-23) O registro a respeito do altar erguido em Betel pelo povo, quando considerava como impedir o desaparecimento da tribo de Benjamim, não indica se teve a aprovação divina ou se era simplesmente um caso de 'fazerem o que era direito aos seus próprios olhos'. (Jz 21:4, 25) Samuel, como representante de Deus, ofereceu sacrifício em Mispá e também construiu um altar em Ramá. (1Sa 7:5, 9, 10, 17) Isto talvez fosse devido a que a presença de Jeová não mais se evidenciava no tabernáculo em Silo, após a remoção da Arca. — 1Sa 4:4, 11; 6:19-21; 7:1, 2; compare isso com Sal 78:59-64.

Utilização de altares temporários. Em várias ocasiões, foram construídos altares temporários. À guisa de exemplo, Saul ofereceu sacrifício em Gilgal e construiu um altar em Aijalom. (1Sa 13:7-12; 14:33-35) No primeiro caso, foi condenado por não esperar por Samuel, para que este oferecesse os sacrifícios, mas não se considerava se esses lugares eram ou não apropriados para se oferecerem sacrifícios.

Davi mandou que Jonatã explicasse sua ausência à mesa de Saul no dia da lua nova por dizer que Davi comparecia ao sacrifício familiar, anual, em Belém; no entanto, visto que isto era um subterfúgio, não se pode saber definitivamente se este foi realmente celebrado. (1Sa 20:6, 28, 29) Mais tarde, como rei, Davi construiu um altar na eira de Araúna (Ornã), e isto foi feito por ordem divina. (2Sa 24:18-25; 1Cr 21:18-26; 22:1) A declaração em 1 Reis 9:25, com respeito a Salomão 'oferecer sacrifícios sobre o altar', refere-se claramente a ele fazer com que isso se realizasse através do sacerdócio autorizado. — Veja 2Cr 8:12-15.

Com a ereção do templo em Jerusalém, parece que o altar estava então definitivamente no "lugar que Jeová, vosso Deus, escolher . . . e para lá vos chegareis". (De 12:5) Além do altar usado por Elias no monte Carmelo, na prova de fogo com os sacerdotes de Baal (1Rs 18:26-35), apenas a apostasia fazia então que se estabelecessem outros altares. O próprio Salomão foi o primeiro culpado de tal desvio, devido à influência de suas esposas estrangeiras. (1Rs 11:3-8) Jeroboão, do recém-formado reino setentrional, empenhou-se em desviar seus súditos de irem ao templo em Jerusalém, por estabelecer altares em Betel e em Dã. (1Rs 12:28-33) Um profeta predisse então que, no reino do Rei Josias, de Judá, os sacerdotes que oficiavam no altar em Betel seriam mortos, e os ossos de homens mortos seriam queimados sobre ele. O altar foi fendido como sinal disso, e a profecia foi mais tarde inteiramente cumprida. — 1Rs 13:1-5; 2Rs 23:15-20; compare isso com Am 3:14.

Durante o governo do Rei Acabe, em Israel, floresceram altares pagãos. (1Rs 16:31-33) No tempo do Rei Acaz, de Judá, havia altares "em cada esquina de Jerusalém", bem como muitos "altos". (2Cr 28:24, 25) Manassés chegou ao ponto de construir altares dentro da casa de Jeová, e altares para a adoração do "exército dos céus" no pátio do templo. — 2Rs 21:3-5.

Embora os reis fiéis destruíssem periodicamente estes altares idólatras (2Rs 11:18; 23:12, 20; 2Cr 14:3; 30:14; 31:1; 34:4-7), antes da queda de Jerusalém, Jeremias ainda podia dizer: "Teus deuses tornaram-se tantos quantas as tuas cidades, ó Judá; e colocastes tantos altares para a coisa vergonhosa quantas são as ruas de Jerusalém, altares para fazer fumaça sacrificial a Baal." — Je 11:13.

Durante o exílio e no período apostólico. Durante o período do exílio, os judeus que fugiram para Elefantina, no Alto Egito, estabeleceram um templo e um altar, segundo os Papiros Elefantinos; e, séculos mais tarde, os judeus perto de Leontópolis fizeram o mesmo. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], XIII, 62-68 [iii, 1]; The Jewish War, VII, 420-432 [x, 2, 3]) Este último templo e altar foram construídos pelo sacerdote Onias, na tentativa de cumprir Isaías 19:19, 20.

Na Era Comum, o apóstolo Paulo, ao falar aos atenienses, referiu-se ao altar onde estava inscrito "A um Deus Desconhecido". (At 17:23) Há amplas informações históricas disponíveis que corroboram isto. Relata-se que Apolônio de Tiana, que visitou Atenas algum tempo depois de Paulo, disse: "É muito maior prova de sabedoria e de sobriedade falar bem de todos os deuses, especialmente em Atenas, onde se erguem altares em honra até mesmo de deuses desconhecidos." (Filostrato, The Life of Apollonius of Tyana [A Vida de Apolônio de Tiana], VI, III) O geógrafo Pausânias, no segundo século EC, relatou que, na estrada que vai do porto da baía de Falero até a cidade de Atenas, observara "altares dos deuses chamados Desconhecidos, e de heróis". Também falou de "um altar de Deuses Desconhecidos" em Olímpia. (Description of Greece [Descrição da Grécia], Attica, I, 4; Elis I, XIV, 8) Um altar similar foi descoberto em 1909 em Pérgamo, no recinto do templo de Demétrio.

Significância dos Altares. Em Hebreus, capítulos 8 e 9, o apóstolo Paulo mostra claramente que todas as coisas relacionadas com o serviço no tabernáculo e no templo eram típicas. (He 8:5; 9:23) A significância dos dois altares se torna evidente através da informação contida nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. O altar das ofertas queimadas representava a "vontade" de Deus, quer dizer, sua disposição de aceitar o perfeito sacrifício humano do seu Filho unigênito. (He 10:5-10) Sua localização diante da entrada do santuário enfatiza o requisito da fé neste sacrifício resgatador como pré-requisito da aceitação por Deus. (Jo 3:16-18) A insistência num único altar de sacrifícios está em harmonia com a declaração de Cristo: "Eu sou o caminho, e a verdade, e a vida. Ninguém vem ao Pai senão por mim", e também com os muitos textos que declaram a unidade a ser manifestada na fé cristã. — Jo 14:6; Mt 7:13, 14; 1Co 1:10-13; Ef 4:3-6; note também a profecia de Isaías, em Is 56:7; 60:7, de que pessoas de todas as nações viriam ao altar de Deus.

É digno de nota que, embora alguns fugissem para o altar, agarrando-se aos chifres dele na esperança de obter proteção, a lei de Deus prescrevia que o assassino deliberado devia ser retirado "mesmo que esteja junto ao meu altar, para que morra". (Êx 21:14; compare isso com 1Rs 1:50-53; 2:28-34.) O salmista cantou: "Lavarei as mãos na própria inocência e vou marchar ao redor do teu altar, ó Jeová." — Sal 26:6.

Embora Hebreus 13:10 tenha sido usado como base para a ereção de altares literais por professos cristãos, o contexto mostra que o "altar" mencionado por Paulo não é literal, mas sim simbólico. (He 13:10-16) A Cyclopædia de M'Clintock e Strong (1882, Vol. I, p. 183) diz a respeito dos primitivos cristãos: "Quando os antigos apologistas eram criticados por não terem templos, nem altares, nem santuários, eles simplesmente respondiam: 'Sacrários e altares é que não temos.'" Comentando Hebreus 13:10, a obra Word Studies in the New Testament (Estudos de Palavras do Novo Testamento, 1957, Vol. IV, p. 567), de M. R. Vincent, diz: "É um erro tentar encontrar na economia cristã algum objeto específico que corresponda ao altar — quer a cruz, quer a mesa eucarística, ou o próprio Cristo. Antes, as ideias de acesso a Deus — sacrifício, expiação, perdão e aceitação, salvação — são reunidas e geralmente representadas na figura do altar, assim como o altar judaico era o ponto para o qual todas essas ideias convergiam." A multiplicação de altares foi fortemente condenada pelos profetas hebreus. (Is 17:7, 8) Oseias disse que Efraim havia "multiplicado os altares a fim de pecar" (Os 8:11; 10:1, 2, 8; 12:11); Jeremias declarou que o pecado de Judá estava "gravado nos chifres dos seus altares" (Je 17:1, 2); e Ezequiel predisse a matança dos falsos adoradores "ao redor dos seus altares" (Ez 6:4-6, 13).

Expressões de julgamentos divinos também estão profeticamente associadas com o verdadeiro altar. (Is 6:5-12; Ez 9:2; Am 9:1) É desde "por baixo do altar" que as almas dos que foram mortos por darem testemunho de Deus clamam simbolicamente: "Até quando, Soberano Senhor, santo e verdadeiro, abster-te-ás de julgar e vingar o nosso sangue dos que moram na terra?" — Re 6:9, 10; compare isso com 8:5; 11:1; 16:7.

Em Revelação 8:3, 4, o altar de incenso, de ouro, é expressamente relacionado com as orações dos justos. Era costumeiro entre os judeus orar "na hora de se oferecer incenso". (Lu 1:9, 10; compare isso com Sal 141:2.) O único altar para a oferta de incenso também corresponde à única via de acesso, delineada nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. — Jo 10:9; 14:6; 16:23; Ef 2:18-22; veja OFERTAS.

ALTEIA [hebr.: hhal·la·múth]. Trata-se de uma planta perene, intimamente aparentada à malva-rosa. Os caules lenhosos da alteia (Althaea officinalis) têm até 1,8 m de altura. As folhas grandes e largas da planta são crenadas e terminam numa ponta aguda. Tanto os caules como as folhas são recobertos de macia penugem. As flores, de cinco pétalas, de cor rosa-pálida, têm cerca de 5 cm de lado a lado. Em épocas de fome, a raiz branca da alteia, semelhante à cenoura, tem sido usada como alimento. A única referência bíblica à alteia faz alusão à sua insipidez. — Jó 6:6.

O termo hebraico hhal·la·múth, encontrado apenas em Jó 6:6, tem sido diversamente traduzido por "clara do ovo" (Al, ALA, BJ), "beldroega-pequena" (AT), "malva" (PIB), e, conforme definido num léxico hebraico e aramaico, de L. Koehler e W. Baumgartner, "alteia" (Lexicon in Veteris Testamenti Libros, Leiden, 1958, p. 304).

ALTERCAÇÃO. Uma disputa (De 17:8), controvérsia (Je 25:31) ou um pleito judicial (Je 11:20).

As Escrituras aconselham-nos a não ficarmos envolvidos em altercações ou disputas sem motivo. (Pr 3:30) Diz o provérbio: "Como alguém que agarra as orelhas de um cão é aquele que, estando de passagem, fica furioso com uma altercação que não é dele." (Pr 26:17) A conversa dos estúpidos os leva prontamente a altercações, e os tolos não usam do necessário controle para evitar altercar. (Pr 18:6; 20:3) Visto que "premer a ira" resulta em altercação (Pr 30:33), a vagarosidade em irar-se produz o efeito oposto. — Pr 15:18.

A altercação destrói uma atmosfera pacífica (Pr 17:1) e pode fazer com que até mesmo a pessoa mais mansa perca o autodomínio. À guisa de exemplo: A altercação de Israel, por não haver água em Cades, moveu Moisés e Arão a agir precipitadamente, destarte perdendo o privilégio de entrar na Terra da Promessa. A altercação injustificada de Israel com representantes de Jeová constituiu realmente uma altercação com Jeová. (Núm 20:2, 3, 10-13; 27:14; Sal 106:32) Aqueles que ficam similarmente envolvidos em altercações ou em controvérsias violentas com os servos de Deus colocam-se numa situação muito séria, uma situação que pode levá-los à morte. — Veja Is 41:8, 11, 12; 54:17.

Devido ao efeito prejudicial da altercação, o provérbio aconselha: "Retira-te antes de estourar a altercação." (Pr 17:14) Abrão (Abraão) deu um bom exemplo neste sentido. Preocupado com que não houvesse disputas entre seus pastores de gado e os de seu sobrinho, Ló, Abrão sugeriu que se separassem. Altruistamente, concedeu a Ló a oportunidade de escolher a área em que deixaria seus animais pastar. (Gên 13:7-11) Por outro lado, os israelitas infiéis no tempo de Isaías não agiram como seu antepassado Abraão. A respeito deles, diz-se: "Jejuáveis para altercação e para rixa." Altercavam até mesmo durante o jejum. — Is 58:4.

A Lei mosaica abrangia casos de altercação que resultassem em danos físicos. Prescrevia uma compensação à parte lesada pelo tempo de trabalho perdido. — Êx 21:18, 19.

Resmungos. Resmungar desanima e arrasa. Os israelitas, pouco depois de terem saído do Egito, resmungavam contra Jeová, criticando a liderança que ele provera por meio de seus servos Moisés e Arão. (Êx 16:2, 7) Mais tarde, os resmungos deles desanimaram tanto a Moisés, que ele pediu a morte. (Núm 11:13-15) Resmungar pode constituir um perigo mortal para o resmungador. Jeová considerou as coisas ditas pelos resmungadores a respeito de Moisés como realmente sendo uma queixa rebelde contra a Sua própria liderança divina. (Núm 14:26-30) Muitos perderam a vida em resultado das suas críticas.

Concordemente, as Escrituras Gregas Cristãs recorrem a exemplos antigos para avisar da destrutividade dos resmungos ou das queixas. (1Co 10:10, 11) Judas fala sobre aqueles que "desconsideram o senhorio, e falam de modo ultrajante dos gloriosos", descrevendo tais como "resmungadores, queixosos de sua sorte na vida, procedendo segundo os seus próprios desejos, e as suas bocas falam coisas bombásticas, ao passo que admiram personalidades para o seu próprio proveito". — Ju 8, 16.

Jesus condenou a atitude crítica quando disse: "Parai de julgar, para que não sejais julgados. Então, por que olhas para o argueiro no olho do teu irmão, mas não tomas em consideração a trave no teu próprio olho? . . . Hipócrita! Tira primeiro a trave do teu próprio olho, e depois verás claramente como tirar o argueiro do olho do teu irmão." — Mt 7:1, 3-5; compare isso com Ro 2:1.

ALTÍSSIMO. Superlativo quanto ao lugar ou à posição. A palavra hebraica 'el·yóhn, usada com referência a Jeová como o "Altíssimo", também é aplicada a outras pessoas ou coisas: ao Rei messiânico, o Davi Maior, como estando acima dos reis terrestres (Sal 89:20, 27), ao lugar acima das nações, prometido a Israel (De 26:18, 19), ao cesto de cima (Gên 40:17), ao portão superior (2Rs 15:35), ao reservatório de água superior (2Rs 18:17), ao pátio superior (Je 36:10), ao andar superior (Ez 41:7), aos refeitórios de cima (Ez 42:5), a Bete-Horom Alta (Jos 16:5), e à nascente superior das águas de Giom (2Cr 32:30). Tais usos ilustram que 'el·yóhn denota posição ao invés de poder.

Quando aplicado a Jeová, o termo "Altíssimo" destaca sua posição suprema, acima de todos os demais. (Sal 83:18) Esse título aparece pela primeira vez em Gênesis 14:18-20, junto com 'El (Deus), onde Melquisedeque é chamado de "sacerdote do Deus Altíssimo", e, nessa qualidade, abençoa Abraão, bem como ao Deus Altíssimo. "Altíssimo" é usado em combinação com o nome divino, Jeová (Gên 14:22; Sal 7:17), e com o plural de excelência 'Elo·hím (Deus) (Sal 78:56), e também aparece isoladamente. — De 32:8; Sal 9:2; Is 14:14.

A forma plural aramaica 'el·yoh·nín ocorre em Daniel 7:18, 22, 25, 27, onde pode ser traduzida "Supremo" (NM), o plural sendo o plural de excelência, majestade. A forma aramaica no singular, 'il·lai (Altíssimo), é usada em Daniel 7:25.

A palavra grega hý·psi·stos (Altíssimo), conforme se aplica a Jeová, é empregada mormente por Lucas em seu Evangelho (duas vezes no anúncio feito por Gabriel a Maria sobre o nascimento de Jesus) e nos Atos. (Lu 1:32, 35, 76; 6:35; 8:28; At 7:48; 16:17) As outras ocorrências acham-se em Marcos 5:7 e Hebreus 7:1.

ALTIVEZ. Veja SOBERBA.

ALTOS. A palavra hebraica geralmente traduzida por "altos" (ba·móhth) costuma ser associada com adoração, mas pode também referir-se simplesmente a elevações, colinas e montanhas (2Sa 1:19, 25 [veja 1Sa 31:8]; Am 4:13; Miq 1:3), às "ondas altas do mar" (literalmente, "altos do mar") (Jó 9:8), e a alturas ou "altos das nuvens" (Is 14:14).

Evidentemente, as expressões "cavalgar sobre os altos da terra" e 'pisar sobre os altos' devem ser entendidas como significando a subjugação vitoriosa duma terra, pois quem controla todos os altos, isto é, as colinas e as montanhas dum país, é efetivamente o senhor dessa terra. — De 32:13; 33:29.

Centros da Adoração Falsa. Os altos, ou os locais ou santuários em que se perpetrava a idolatria, podiam ser encontrados não só nas colinas e nas montanhas, mas também nos vales, nos leitos de rios, nas cidades e sob as árvores. (De 12:2; 1Rs 14:23; 2Rs 17:29; Ez 6:3) Eram aparelhados com altares para sacrifício, pedestais-incensários, postes sagrados, colunas sagradas e imagens entalhadas. (Le 26:30; Núm 33:52; De 12:2, 3; Ez 6:6) Em muitos altos, havia homens e mulheres cuja função era a prostituição. (1Rs 14:23, 24; Os 4:13, 14) Com frequência, os altos eram cenários de ritos licenciosos, inclusive de prostituição cerimonial e de sacrifícios de crianças. — Is 57:5; Je 7:31; 19:5.

Havia também casas ou santuários dos altos, em que oficiavam sacerdotes, e em que se guardavam as imagens das deidades. (1Rs 12:31; 13:32; 2Rs 17:29, 32; 23:19, 20; Is 16:12) Assim, o designativo "alto" pode, às vezes, referir-se a um santuário assim, ao invés de a um local elevado para adoração. Isto é sugerido pela referência de Ezequiel a altos de várias cores. (Ez 16:16) É possível que esses altos fossem santuários em forma de tendas.

Os israelitas, antes de entrarem na Terra da Promessa, receberam ordens de destruir os altos sagrados dos cananeus e todos os acessórios da adoração falsa ligados a eles. (Núm 33:51, 52) Mas os israelitas deixaram de fazer isso, e, após a morte de Josué e da geração mais antiga, começou uma ampla apostasia. — Jz 2:2, 8-13; Sal 78:58.

Nem Todos os Altos Eram Condenados. De acordo com a lei de Jeová, só se deviam oferecer sacrifícios no local por ele designado. Nos dias de Josué, os israelitas reconheciam que a edificação não autorizada de um altar para ofertas queimadas era, na realidade, uma rebelião contra Jeová. (De 12:1-14; Jos 22:29) Entretanto, há indícios de que, depois de a Arca sagrada ter sido removida do tabernáculo (1Sa 4:10, 11; 6:1, 10-14; 7:1, 2), ofereciam-se com aprovação sacrifícios em outros locais diferentes da tenda de reunião, não apenas sob circunstâncias especiais, mas, em alguns casos, também numa base um tanto regular. (1Sa 7:7-9; 10:8; 11:14, 15; 16:4, 5; 1Rs 3:3; 1Cr 21:26-30) No alto duma cidade cujo nome não é mencionado, na terra de Zufe, fora erguida certa estrutura em que, pelo que parece, podiam ser comidos os sacrifícios de comunhão. O refeitório ali comportava cerca de 30 homens, se não mais. Até mesmo as moças da cidade estavam familiarizadas com a maneira de se oferecerem sacrifícios ali. (1Sa 9:5, 11-13, 22-25) Pode também ter sido costumeiro que as famílias oferecessem um sacrifício anual, não no tabernáculo, mas nas suas próprias cidades. — 1Sa 20:6, 29.

Oferecer sacrifícios nos altos era justificado à base de que não se havia construído nenhuma casa ao nome de Jeová. Por isso, Salomão teve de oferecer sacrifícios no grande alto de Gibeão, onde naquele tempo se encontrava o tabernáculo. — 1Rs 3:2-4; 1Cr 16:37-40, 43; 21:29; 2Cr 1:3, 13; veja ALTAR; OFERTAS.

O Reinado de Salomão e o Reino das Dez Tribos. Perto do fim do seu reinado, o Rei Salomão construiu altos em honra aos deuses falsos adorados por suas esposas estrangeiras. Isto contribuiu para que os israelitas abandonassem a verdadeira adoração de Jeová e servissem a falsos deuses. Por conseguinte, Jeová, por meio do seu profeta Aijá, indicou que dez tribos seriam arrancadas do filho de Salomão, e que Jeroboão regeria sobre elas. — 1Rs 11:7, 8, 30-35.

Embora Jeroboão tivesse a garantia de Jeová, de que seu reinado estaria seguro se ele continuasse a servir a Deus em fidelidade, assim que se tornou rei, ele temeu que os israelitas se revoltassem, se continuassem a subir a Jerusalém para a adoração. Por este motivo, instituiu a adoração de bezerros, em Dã e em Betel, e construiu ali altos. (1Rs 11:38; 12:26-33) Em toda a existência do reino das dez tribos, continuou a adoração idólatra nos altos. "Os filhos de Israel passaram a perscrutar as coisas que não eram direitas para com Jeová, seu Deus, e foram construir para si altos em todas as suas cidades, desde a torre dos vigias até a cidade fortificada." — 2Rs 17:9.

Sob inspiração, o profeta Amós predisse que os "altos de Isaque" ficariam desolados. Os "altos de Isaque" referiam-se, evidentemente, aos altos sagrados onde os israelitas do reino das dez tribos, descendentes de Isaque por meio de Jacó ou Israel, praticavam a adoração apóstata. Isto também é indicado pelo fato de que a expressão "altos de Isaque" é usada como paralelo de "santuários de Israel". — Am 7:9; veja também Os 10:2-10.

Depois que o rei da Assíria levou para o exílio o reino das dez tribos, os altos continuaram a existir por certo tempo, visto que os povos estrangeiros, que haviam sido transferidos para o território de Samaria pelo rei da Assíria, continuavam a utilizar os altos em sua adoração. (2Rs 17:24, 29-32) Cerca de 100 anos depois disso, o fiel Rei Josias, de Judá, derrubou o altar e o alto de Betel e dessagrou o altar por queimar nele ossos humanos. Também removeu todas as casas dos altos nas cidades de Samaria, sacrificou (matou) todos os sacerdotes dos altos e queimou ossos humanos sobre os altares. (2Rs 23:15-20) Isto cumpriu uma profecia proferida mais de 300 anos antes por um anônimo "homem de Deus". — 1Rs 13:1, 2.

Um alto em Gezer.
Erigiram-se ali colunas sagradas.

No Reino de Judá. O Rei Roboão seguiu o desvio de seu pai Salomão, e os súditos dele continuaram a construir altos e a praticar ritos licenciosos. (1Rs 14:21-24) O filho e sucessor de Roboão, Abijão, "prosseguiu andando em todos os pecados de seu pai". — 1Rs 15:1-3.

Asa, que sucedeu a Abijão no trono, serviu a Jeová em fidelidade e fez empenhos decisivos para eliminar do reino todos os acessórios da adoração falsa. (1Rs 15:11-13) "Removeu de todas as cidades de Judá os altos e os pedestais-incensários." (2Cr 14:2-5) Todavia, 1 Reis 15:14 e 2 Crônicas 15:17 aparentemente indicam que os altos não foram removidos. Pode ser que Asa, embora removesse os altos da adoração de falsos deuses, deixasse aqueles onde o povo adorava a Jeová. Ou, talvez surgissem novamente os altos perto do fim do seu reinado, existindo assim para seu sucessor Jeosafá destruí-los. No entanto, nem mesmo durante o reinado de Jeosafá os altos desapareceram completamente. (1Rs 22:42, 43; 2Cr 17:5, 6; 20:31-33) A adoração que Judá praticava nos altos estava tão arraigada, que as reformas tanto de Asa como de Jeosafá não conseguiram eliminar todos eles permanentemente.

O Rei Jeorão, dessemelhante de seu pai Jeosafá, fez altos nos montes de Judá. (2Cr 21:1, 11) A situação religiosa do reino permaneceu numa condição degradada durante todo o reinado de Acazias e o da usurpadora Atalia, filha de Acabe e de Jezabel. (2Rs 8:25-27; 2Cr 22:2-4, 10) Embora se empreendessem reformas específicas para restabelecer a adoração verdadeira no começo do reinado de Jeoás, a apostasia surgiu novamente depois da morte do sumo sacerdote Jeoiada, e os altos não desapareceram. (2Rs 12:2, 3; 2Cr 24:17, 18) Os altos continuaram a existir como centros da adoração ilícita nos reinados dos reis Amazias, Azarias (Uzias) e Jotão. (2Rs 14:1-4; 15:1-4, 32-35) O próximo rei de Judá, Acaz, não somente oferecia sacrifícios e fazia fumaça sacrificial nos altos, mas até mesmo fez seu próprio filho passar pelo fogo. (2Rs 16:2-4) Fez adicionais "altos para fazer fumaça sacrificial a outros deuses". — 2Cr 28:25.

Nos dias do Rei Ezequias, empreendeu-se outro extenso expurgo para remover os altos. (2Rs 18:1-4, 22; 2Cr 32:12) Depois da grande celebração da Páscoa realizada durante o seu reinado, os israelitas passaram pelas cidades de Judá e de Benjamim, e até mesmo em Efraim e Manassés, destroçando as colunas sagradas, derrubando os postes sagrados, e demolindo os altos e os altares. — 2Cr 30:21, 23; 31:1.

Este restabelecimento da verdadeira adoração teve curta duração. Manassés, filho de Ezequias, reconstruiu os mesmos altos que seu pai destruíra. (2Rs 21:1-3; 2Cr 33:1-3) Manassés fez o povo agir com iniquidade ainda maior do que a dos cananeus pagãos que Jeová aniquilara. Por isso, o Todo-Poderoso determinou trazer calamidade sobre Judá e Jerusalém. (2Rs 21:9-12) Depois de ser capturado pelo rei da Assíria e ser levado a Babilônia, Manassés arrependeu-se. Ao retornar a Jerusalém, tomou medidas para remover os acessórios da adoração falsa. Mas o povo continuou a oferecer sacrifícios nos altos não autorizados, não a deuses falsos, porém, mas a Jeová. (2Cr 33:10-17) O sucessor de Manassés, seu filho Amom, não continuou com as reformas iniciadas pelo seu pai, mas tornou maior a culpa. — 2Cr 33:21-24.

Josias, que sucedeu a Amom, distinguiu-se por fazer o que era direito aos olhos de Jeová e por aderir à lei de Moisés. Ele acabou com o serviço dos sacerdotes de deuses estrangeiros, que faziam fumaça sacrificial nos altos. Ele derrubou os altos, não só em toda a Judá, mas também nas cidades de Samaria. Os sítios usados para a adoração falsa foram dessagrados, a fim de que não pudessem ser usados para ofender a Jeová. — 2Rs 23:4-20; 2Cr 34:1-7.

O relato sobre Josias tornar os altos construídos por Salomão impróprios para a adoração tende a confirmar a conclusão de que, embora reis anteriores tivessem derrubado os altos, houve um ressurgimento destes. Parece ser apenas lógico que os fiéis reis Asa e Jeosafá tivessem derrubado esses altos da adoração falsa, que datavam do reinado de Salomão.

Embora não se faça mais menção de altos, nos relatos de Reis e de Crônicas, depois do expurgo cabal de todos os vestígios da adoração falsa feito por Josias, relata-se que os últimos quatro reis de Judá, a saber, Jeoacaz, Jeoiaquim, Joaquim e Zedequias, faziam o que era mau aos olhos de Jeová. (2Rs 23:31, 32, 36, 37; 24:8, 9, 18, 19) Os israelitas recomeçaram a adoração apóstata nos altos. Portanto, Jeová, por meio de seu profeta Ezequiel, advertiu a nação das graves consequências que lhes sobreviriam: "Estou trazendo sobre vós uma espada e hei de destruir os vossos altos. E os vossos altares terão de ser desolados e os vossos pedestais-incensários terão de ser destroçados, e vou fazer os vossos mortos cair diante dos vossos ídolos sórdidos." — Ez 6:3, 4.

É digno de nota que não há registro de se praticar adoração em altos após o retorno do exílio babilônico. Conforme se predissera, o fiel restante judeu tirara proveito da sua amarga experiência e passara a conhecer a Jeová. — Ez 6:9, 10.

ALUS. Um lugar na península de Sinai, entre Dofca e Refidim, onde os israelitas acamparam. O sítio não é conhecido. — Núm 33:13, 14.

ALVA. Xeque de Edom e descendente de Esaú.-(Gên 36:40, 43; 1Cr 1:51) É possível que um lugar e uma tribo também fossem chamados Alva. — Veja TIMNA N.º 3.

ALVÃ. Primeiro filho mencionado do Xeque Sobal, seirita. — Gên 36:20, 23, 29; 1Cr 1:40.

ʽAM HA·ʼÁ·RETS. Veja POVO DA TERRA.

AMA, AIO(A). Nos tempos antigos, havia pessoas empenhadas em dois tipos de funções assim. A "ama" de leite (hebr.: meh·né·qeth; Gên 24:59; 35:8; Êx 2:7; 2Rs 11:2; 2Cr 22:11; Is 49:23) servia como substituta da mãe para amamentar um bebê. Débora era tal ama para Rebeca, mas serviu mais tarde como criada e acompanhante dela, continuando como serva da família mesmo após a morte de sua senhora. (Gên 24:59, 67; 35:8) O outro tipo desta função podia ser de homem, "aio" (hebr.: ʼo·mén; Núm 11:12; Is 49:23 ['tutor']) ou de mulher, "aia" ou "enfermeira" (hebr.: ʼo·mé·neth; 2Sa 4:4). Pessoas de ambos os sexos podiam cuidar de crianças, de doentes ou de idosos. O papel de aia foi desempenhado pela idosa Noemi para com o seu neto Obede, e o de enfermeira pela linda virgem Abisague com respeito ao Rei Davi. — Ru 4:13, 16, 17; 1Rs 1:1-4.

Em 1 Tessalonicenses 2:7, Paulo assemelhou a si mesmo e seus companheiros a uma "mãe lactante" (gr.: tro·fós), enfatizando assim que eram brandos para com os crentes macedônios.

AMÁ [possivelmente: Côvado, Cúbito]. Um morro "defronte de Gia, no caminho para o ermo de Gibeão". Ali, Abner, ex-chefe do exército de Saul e então lutando a favor do filho e herdeiro de Saul, Is-Bosete, fez a sua última defesa contra as forças perseguidoras de Joabe e de Abisai, depois de estes terem derrotado Abner na batalha do reservatório de Gibeão. Neste morro, Abner persuadiu Joabe a deixar de persegui-lo, e a batalha terminou. (2Sa 2:12-32) Embora Amá provavelmente ficasse ao L de Gibeão, não se sabe com exatidão qual dos morros desta região levava este nome.

AMADE. Uma cidade da fértil planície costeira ao N da serra do Carmelo, designada à tribo de Aser. (Jos 19:26) Embora haja nesta área diversas ruínas chamadas ʽAmud, a exata localização desta cidade é desconhecida.

AMAL [Trabalho Árduo]. Último mencionado dos quatro filhos de Helém, alistados entre "os filhos de Aser, cabeças da casa dos seus antepassados, homens selecionados, poderosos, valentes, cabeças dos maiorais". — 1Cr 7:35, 40.

AMALEQUE, AMALEQUITAS. Filho do primogênito de Esaú, Elifaz, com sua concubina Timna. (Gên 36:12, 16) Amaleque, neto de Esaú, era um dos xeques de Edom. (Gên 36:15, 16) O nome de Amaleque também designava seus descendentes tribais. — De 25:17; Jz 7:12; 1Sa 15:2.

A crença de alguns de que os amalequitas tiveram origem muito anterior e não eram descendentes de Amaleque, neto de Esaú, não se alicerça em sólida base fatual. A noção de que os amalequitas antecederam a Amaleque baseia-se no dito proverbial de Balaão: "Amaleque foi a primeira das nações, mas o seu fim posterior será mesmo seu perecimento." (Núm 24:20) No entanto, Balaão não falava aqui da história em geral, nem da origem das nações, sete ou oito séculos antes. Falava da história apenas com relação aos israelitas, contratado como foi para amaldiçoá-los, quando estavam prestes a entrar na Terra da Promessa. Por isso, depois de alistar Moabe, Edom e Seir como oponentes de Israel, Balaão declara que os amalequitas foram realmente "a primeira das nações" a se levantar em oposição aos israelitas em sua marcha para fora do Egito, em direção à Palestina, e, por este motivo, o fim de Amaleque "será mesmo seu perecimento".

Moisés, por conseguinte, ao relatar os eventos dos dias de Abraão, antes de Amaleque nascer, falou de "todo o campo dos amalequitas", evidentemente descrevendo a região conforme entendida pelo povo do tempo de Moisés, ao invés de dar a entender que os amalequitas precederam a Amaleque. (Gên 14:7) O centro deste território amalequita achava-se ao N de Cades-Barneia, no deserto do Negebe, na parte meridional da Palestina, seus acampamentos auxiliares estendendo-se pela península do Sinai e pelo norte da Arábia. (1Sa 15:7) Houve época em que sua influência talvez se estendesse até as colinas de Efraim. — Jz 12:15.

Os amalequitas foram "a primeira das nações" a lançar um ataque não provocado contra os israelitas após o Êxodo, em Refidim, perto do monte Sinai. Como consequência, Jeová decretou que os amalequitas, por fim, seriam extinguidos. (Núm 24:20; Êx 17:8-16; De 25:17-19) Um ano depois, quando os israelitas tentaram entrar na Terra da Promessa, contrário à palavra de Jeová, foram repelidos pelos amalequitas. (Núm 14:41-45) Por duas vezes, nos dias dos juízes, estes adversários de Israel participaram em ataques contra Israel. Fizeram-no nos dias de Eglom, rei de Moabe. (Jz 3:12, 13) De novo, junto com os midianitas e os orientais, saquearam a terra de Israel por sete anos, antes de Gideão e seus 300 homens lhes imporem uma esmagadora derrota. — Jz 6:1-3, 33; 7:12; 10:12.

Por causa deste ódio persistente, Jeová, no período dos reis, 'ajustou contas' com os amalequitas, ordenando que o Rei Saul os abatesse, o que ele fez, "desde Havilá até Sur, que está defronte do Egito". No entanto, Saul, infringindo a ordem de Jeová, poupou Agague, rei deles. Mas de Deus não se zomba, pois "Samuel foi retalhar Agague perante Jeová em Gilgal". (1Sa 15:2-33) Algumas das incursões de Davi incluíam povoados amalequitas, e, quando estes, por sua vez, atacaram Ziclague e levaram as esposas e os bens de Davi, este e 400 homens foram no encalço deles, recuperando tudo o que fora roubado. (1Sa 27:8; 30:1-20) No reinado de Ezequias, alguns da tribo de Simeão aniquilaram o restante dos amalequitas. — 1Cr 4:42, 43.

Não se faz mais menção direta dos amalequitas na história bíblica ou secular. No entanto, "Hamã, filho de . . . agagita", provavelmente descendia deles, pois "Agague" era o título ou nome de certos reis amalequitas. (Est 3:1; Núm 24:7; 1Sa 15:8, 9) Assim, os amalequitas, junto com outros mencionados nominalmente, foram exterminados, a fim de que "as pessoas saibam que tu, cujo nome é Jeová, somente tu és o Altíssimo sobre toda a terra". — Sal 83:6-18.

AMANA [duma raiz que significa "fidedigno; fiel; duradouro"]. Este nome aparece em hebraico no Cântico de Salomão 4:8, em conexão com o Líbano e o monte Hermom. A maioria das traduções simplesmente translitera a palavra hebraica; entretanto, alguns peritos entendem que se refere à cordilheira do Antilíbano, ao passo que outros a aplicam àquela parte do Antilíbano na qual o Nahr Barada tem sua nascente. — Veja ANTILÍBANO.

AMÃO. Uma aldeia no Negebe, na parte meridional do território de Judá. — Jos 15:26.

AMARIAS [Jeová Disse].

1. Descendente sacerdotal de Eleazar, filho de Arão, por meio de Fineias; filho de Meraiote; pai de Aitube; avô de Zadoque, que serviu como sacerdote secundário durante o reinado de Davi e como sumo sacerdote durante o reinado de Salomão. (1Cr 6:7, 52) Não se pode declarar definitivamente que Amarias tenha oficiado como sumo sacerdote, visto que o cargo passou temporariamente para a casa de Eli, por volta daquele tempo.

2. Descendente levítico de Hébron, filho de Coate, alistado na reorganização do serviço no templo feita por Davi. — 1Cr 23:1, 12, 19; 24:23.

3. Sacerdote principal "para todo assunto de Jeová", especialmente causas jurídicas, durante o reinado de Jeosafá. — 2Cr 19:11.

4. Outro descendente de Eleazar, que viveu num tempo posterior ao do N.º 1 acima. Filho de Azarias e pai de outro Aitube. — 1Cr 6:11; Esd 7:3.

5. Um levita que ajudou na distribuição dos dízimos aos sacerdotes nas cidades deles durante o reinado de Ezequias. — 2Cr 31:14, 15.

6. Filho de Ezequias (provavelmente o rei de Judá) e bisavô do profeta Sofonias. — Sof 1:1.

7. Um dos principais sacerdotes que retornaram de Babilônia com Zorobabel, em 537 AEC. (Ne 12:1, 2, 7) Nos dias do governador Neemias, havia uma 'casa paterna' de sacerdotes que levava o nome dele. — Ne 12:12, 13, 26.

8. Descendente de Binui; foi um dos que despediram suas esposas pagãs e os filhos delas, nos dias de Esdras. — Esd 10:10-12, 38, 42, 44.

9. Sacerdote, ou antepassado de um, que atestou o "arranjo fidedigno" durante a governança de Neemias. (Ne 9:38; 10:1, 3) Ele teria mais de 112 anos se fosse o mesmo que o N.º 7 acima.

10. Antepassado de habitantes de Jerusalém no tempo de Neemias; da tribo de Judá. — Ne 11:4.

AMASA [forma abreviada de Amasia].

1. Filho de Abigail, irmã ou meia-irmã de Davi, e de Jeter (Itra), e primo de Absalão e de Joabe. (2Sa 17:25; 1Cr 2:16, 17) Jeter é chamado de israelita em Samuel, e de ismaelita em Crônicas, talvez por morar em território ismaelita. Alguns contendem que Amasa deve ser identificado com Amasai, um daqueles que se juntaram ao exército de Davi em Ziclague, mas tal identificação é incerta. — 1Cr 12:18.

Anos mais tarde, quando Amasa lançou sua sorte com a rebelião de Absalão contra Davi, foi colocado à testa do exército de Absalão, em lugar de Joabe. (2Sa 17:25) A rebelião foi sufocada, Absalão, filho de Davi, foi morto por Joabe, e ofereceu-se a Amasa o lugar de Joabe como chefe do exército de Davi, pois, como Davi disse, ele é "meu osso e minha carne". — 2Sa 18:9-15; 19:13.

De novo irrompeu uma rebelião, desta vez Seba não queria ter nenhum quinhão em Davi. (2Sa 20:1, 2) Concederam-se a Amasa três dias para juntar um exército. Quando não apareceu no tempo fixado, disse-se a Abisai que levasse os servos de Davi e perseguisse os rebeldes. Joabe, irmão de Abisai, e seus homens foram com eles no encalço de Seba. Por fim, quando o atrasado Amasa se encontrou com eles, Joabe, fingindo dar-lhe um afe-tuoso beijo, agarrou Amasa pela barba com uma das mãos, e usou a espada na outra mão para rasgar o abdome de Amasa. (2Sa 20:4-12) Esta talvez tenha sido uma retribuição merecida, por Amasa ter tomado o lado de Absalão, mas certamente não das mãos de quem ela proveio. Por conseguinte, Davi mandou que Salomão vingasse a Amasa por meio da morte de Joabe. — 1Rs 2:5, 32.

2. Filho de Hadlai. Depois da vitória sobre Judá, quando os guerreiros israelitas trouxeram consigo seus irmãos como servos, Amasa foi um dos quatro cabeças de Efraim que acataram o apelo do profeta Odede, de devolver os cativos. Ele também ajudou aos de Judá com os suprimentos e transportes necessários para a sua repatriação. — 2Cr 28:8-15.

AMASAI [forma abreviada de Amasia].

1. Levita da família de Coate; filho de Elcana e antepassado do profeta Samuel e do cantor do templo, Hemã, dos dias de Davi. — 1Cr 6:25, 33, 35.

2. Cabeça de 30 homens da tribo de Judá e de Benjamim, que se juntaram a Davi em Ziclague. Para tranquilizar Davi que temia uma traição, "o próprio espírito envolveu a Amasai" quando prometeu que dariam apoio de todo o coração, reconhecendo que Jeová era o ajudador de Davi. — 1Cr 12:16-18.

3. Um dos sete sacerdotes "tocando alto as trombetas diante da arca do verdadeiro Deus", quando Davi fez que fosse levada a Jerusalém. — 1Cr 15:24.

4. Levita da família de Coate, cujo filho Maate ajudou na limpeza e na santificação do templo, nos dias de Ezequias. — 2Cr 29:12-18.

AMASIA [Jah Levou a Carga]. Filho de Zicri. Durante o reinado de Jeosafá, ele chefiava uma das divisões do exército de Judá, de 200.000 homens. — 2Cr 17:16.

AMASIAS. Veja AMASIA.

AMASSADEIRA. Vasilha rasa, geralmente portátil, em forma de tigela. Era usualmente de madeira, mas, às vezes, era de barro ou de bronze. Nela se misturavam farinha e água, que eram transformadas em massa. Na preparação de pão levedado, a massa era usualmente fermentada por se misturar nela um pouco da massa lêveda, guardada da anterior cozedura. Deixava-se a massa crescer na amassadeira, antes de ser cozida, ou assada. (Gên 18:6; 1Sa 28:24) O método usual era trabalhar a massa com as mãos, embora os egípcios também usassem às vezes os pés, quando trabalhavam a massa numa grande amassadeira. — Os 7:4.

O tamanho da amassadeira variava muito. Todavia, um tipo dela, feito de barro, costumeiramente usado, era uma tigela de aproximadamente 25 cm de diâmetro e de uns 8 cm de fundo.

O pão era uma parte importante da alimentação hebreia e era cozido regularmente. Por isso, a amassadeira era um objeto essencial entre os israelitas e outros povos da antiguidade. As rãs que cobriam o Egito durante o segundo golpe aplicado nele por Jeová, nos dias de Moisés, entraram nos lares e foram encontradas até mesmo nas amassadeiras. (Êx 8:3) Os israelitas, que mais tarde saíram apressadamente do Egito, 'carregaram no seu ombro a sua massa antes de ela ter ficado levedada, com as suas amassadeiras embrulhadas nas suas capas'. (Êx 12:33, 34) Visto que a amassadeira era uma importante vasilha da casa, tendo que ver com a preparação do 'pão de cada dia', a bênção de Jeová sobre ela evidentemente significava uma garantida suficiência de alimento no lar, ao passo que Sua maldição sobre ela representava fome. — De 28:1, 2, 5, 15, 17.

AMASSAI. Filho de Azarel e um dos sacerdotes que moravam em Jerusalém no tempo de Neemias. — Ne 11:13.

AMAZIAS [Jeová É Forte].

1. Levita da família de Merari; filho de Hilquias, e pai de Hasabias. Um dos seus descendentes participava em reger o canto diante do tabernáculo, no tempo de Davi. — 1Cr 6:31, 32, 45.

2. Rei de Judá que em 858 AEC ascendeu ao trono com 25 anos e reinou por 29 anos, desde o assassínio de seu pai, Jeoás. Sua mãe era Jeoadim (Jeoadã), e sua esposa era Jecolia. (2Rs 14:1, 2; 15:2; 2Cr 25:1; 26:3) Tendo-se firmado no reino, executou aqueles que tinham assassinado seu pai, mas acatou a lei de Moisés de não punir os filhos deles. (2Rs 14:5, 6; De 24:16) Seu reinado foi assinalado por certo entusiasmo pela adoração verdadeira, mas não de "pleno coração", e não sem graves falhas, que trouxeram o desastre tanto para ele mesmo como para a nação de Judá. O registro de seu governo trata primariamente de duas campanhas militares. — 2Cr 25:2.

Amazias primeiramente teve êxito contra Edom, ou Seir, usando uma força de 300.000 homens de Judá e de Benjamim. Também contratou 100.000 mercenários de Israel, mas, ao receber o conselho dum homem de Deus, pagou-lhes e mandou-os embora. Jeová concedeu a Amazias uma esmagadora vitória no vale do Sal, permitindo que matasse 20.000 inimigos e capturasse Sela, que passou a chamar de Jocteel. No entanto, Amazias levou consigo os deuses de Seir e começou a adorá-los, fazendo com que se acendesse a ira de Jeová contra ele: "Por que buscaste os deuses do povo, que não livraram o seu próprio povo da tua mão?" Amazias somente agravou o mal por silenciar o profeta de Jeová. — 2Rs 14:7; 2Cr 25:5-16.

A segunda campanha de Amazias foi trágica, do começo ao fim. Os 100.000 homens de Israel que foram dispensados fizeram incursões contra os povoados de Judá, ao voltarem para o norte. Talvez tenha sido isto que provocou Amazias a desafiar tolamente a Jeoás, do forte reino setentrional, dizendo: "Vem deveras. Olhemo-nos um ao outro na face." A resposta de Jeoás foi: Quão tolo seria uma planta espinhosa confrontar um cedro maciço apenas para ser pisada por um animal selvático! Amazias recusou-se a ouvir; aparentemente ficara cheio de si por causa da sua recente vitória, e Jeová condenara Amazias à derrota, devido à sua idolatria. A batalha foi travada em Bete-Semes, Judá fugiu, Amazias foi capturado, uma brecha de uns 178 m foi aberta na muralha de Jerusalém e muitos tesouros do templo e muitos reféns foram levados junto na volta a Samaria. — 2Rs 14:8-14; 2Cr 25:13, 17-24.

Desde o tempo em que Amazias se desviou da adoração de Jeová, formou-se uma conspiração contra ele, que finalmente obrigou Amazias a fugir para Laquis. Ali os conspiradores o mataram. Amazias teve como sucessor o seu filho Azarias (Uzias), de 16 anos. — 2Rs 14:17-21; 2Cr 25:25-28.

3. Sacerdote da adoração do bezerro em Betel, que se queixou a Jeroboão II de que o profeta Amós era sedicioso. Ele mesmo tentou amedrontar Amós a voltar para Judá. O profeta, porém, manteve-se irredutível, dizendo a Amazias que a esposa dele se tornaria prostituta, que seus filhos cairiam à espada e que o próprio Amazias morreria em solo impuro. — Am 7:10-17.

4. Pai de Josa; da tribo de Simeão. Josa foi um dos maiorais contados entre os que eliminaram do vale perto de Gedor os meunins e os colonos camitas, nos dias de Ezequias. — 1Cr 4:24, 34, 38-41.

AMÉM. Esta palavra, tanto em português como em grego, é uma transliteração da hebraica 'a·mén. O significado é "assim seja", ou "certamente". A raiz hebraica da qual ela deriva ('a·mán) significa "ser fiel; ser fidedigno".

Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a palavra é usada como expressão solene para a pessoa obrigar-se legalmente a um juramento ou pacto e suas consequências (Núm 5:22; De 27:15-26; Ne 5:13), também como expressão solene de endosso de uma oração expressa (1Cr 16:36), de uma expressão de louvor (Ne 8:6) ou de um propósito expresso (1Rs 1:36; Je 11:5). Cada um dos primeiros quatro livros ou coleções dos Salmos conclui com esta expressão, talvez indicando ser costumeiro que a congregação de Israel participasse no fim do cântico ou salmo com um "amém". — Sal 41:13; 72:19; 89:52; 106:48.

A palavra hebraica 'a·mán é aplicada a Jeová como o "Deus fiel" (De 7:9; Is 49:7), e descreve os lembretes e as promessas dele como 'fidedignos' e 'fiéis'. (Sal 19:7; 89:28, 37) Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, o título "Amém" é aplicado a Cristo Jesus, como "a testemunha fiel e verdadeira". (Re 3:14) Jesus usou similarmente a expressão em sua pregação e em seu ensino, usando-a com bastante frequência para prefaciar uma declaração de fato ou uma promessa, ou uma profecia, deste modo enfatizando a absoluta veracidade e confiabilidade do que dizia. (Mt 5:18; 6:2, 5, 16; 24:34) Nestes casos, a palavra grega (a·mén) é traduzida como "deveras" (Al, "em verdade"), ou, quando duplicada, como se dá em todo o livro de João, "em toda a verdade". (Jo 1:51) O uso de "amém" desta forma por Jesus é, segundo se diz, ímpar na literatura sacra, e era coerente com sua autoridade divinamente concedida. — Mt 7:29.

No entanto, como Paulo mostra em 2 Coríntios 1:19, 20, o título "Amém" se aplica a Jesus não só no sentido de proferidor da verdade ou de verdadeiro profeta e porta-voz de Deus, mas também como aquele em quem todas as promessas de Deus têm cumprimento. Seu proceder de fidelidade e obediência, até mesmo ao ponto duma morte sacrificial, confirma e torna possível que atinjam a realidade todas as promessas e declarações do propósito de Deus. Ele era a Verdade viva dessas revelações do propósito de Deus, as coisas a respeito das quais Deus jurara. — Veja João 1:14, 17; 14:6; 18:37.

A expressão "amém" é usada muitas vezes nas cartas, em especial nas de Paulo, quando o escritor expressa alguma forma de louvor a Deus (Ro 1:25; 16:27; Ef 3:21; 1Pe 4:11), ou expressa o desejo de que o favor de Deus se manifeste de algum modo para com os destinatários da carta. (Ro 15:33; He 13:20, 21) Também é usada quando o escritor endossa fervorosamente aquilo que é expresso. — Re 1:7; 22:20.

A oração expressa em 1 Crônicas 16:36 e as contidas nos Salmos (41:13; 72:19; 89:52; 106:48), bem como as expressões contidas nas cartas canônicas, indicam todas que é correto usar "amém" no fim das orações. É verdade que nem todas as orações registradas mostram tal conclusão, tais como a oração final de Davi em favor de Salomão (1Cr 29:19), ou a oração de dedicação feita por Salomão, quando da inauguração do templo (1Rs 8:53-61), embora tal expressão talvez tenha sido feita. (Note 1Cr 29:20.) Similarmente, seu uso não é registrado nas orações de Jesus (Mt 26:39, 42; Jo 17:1-26), nem na oração dos discípulos em Atos 4:24-30. Entretanto, o peso da evidência anterior apresentada indica fortemente a correção do uso de "amém" como conclusão da oração, e a declaração de Paulo, em

Flores de amêndoa. A amendoeira está entre as primeiras árvores a florescer ao fim do inverno; por isso, seu nome hebraico significa "aquele que desperta".

1 Coríntios 14:16, em especial, mostra que era costumeiro os presentes na assembleia cristã também dizerem amém a uma oração. Em aditamento, os exemplos daqueles no céu, registrados em Revelação 5:13, 14; 7:10-12; e 19:1-4, apoiam todos seu uso em endossar orações ou declarações solenes, e, desta forma, pelo uso desta única palavra, expressar a confiança, a forte aprovação e a fervorosa esperança que existe em seu coração.

AMENDOEIRA [hebr.: luz (Gên 30:37); sha·qédh (Gên 43:11)]. A amendoeira (Amygdalus communis) é uma árvore nativa da Palestina, do Líbano e de algumas regiões da Mesopotâmia. Pertencendo à mesma família das roseiras, crescia não só como árvore silvestre, mas também como árvore frutífera cultivada.

O nome hebraico, sha·qédh, significa literalmente "aquele que desperta", e isto é bem apropriado, visto que a amendoeira é uma das primeiras árvores a florescer, depois do descanso hibernal setentrional, florescendo logo em fins de janeiro ou princípios de fevereiro. Note o jogo de palavras em Jeremias 1:11, 12, onde a palavra hebraica para "amendoeira" (sha·qédh) é seguida pela expressão "mantenho-me alerta" (sho·qédh). A árvore pode atingir até 5 m de altura, e, quando em flor, fica coberta de lindas flores rosas e às vezes brancas, dispostas em pares. Em Eclesiastes 12:5, a amendoeira florescente é usada para representar os cabelos brancos da velhice. As folhas têm formato oval e bordos serrilhados. O fruto da amendoeira tem forma oblonga, arredondada em uma ponta e pontuda na outra. Sempre foi considerado uma iguaria, sendo usado por Jacó como parte dum presente enviado ao Egito, por meio de seus filhos que retornavam. (Gên 43:11) O miolo é fonte de óleo desejável, 45 kg de frutos produzindo cerca de 20 kg de óleo.

Sem dúvida, por causa da sua beleza delicada, as flores de amendoeira eram usadas como modelo para os cálices nas hastes do candelabro do tabernáculo. (Êx 25:33, 34; 37:19, 20) O bastão de Arão também era um ramo de amendoeira e floresceu milagrosamente durante a noite, produzindo amêndoas maduras em prova da aprovação dele, por Deus, como sumo sacerdote ungido. — Núm 17:8.

AMETISTA. Variedade semipreciosa de quartzo cristalizado, de cor roxa ou violeta, e usada em joalheria. Ocorre em forma de cristais hexagonais, e sua coloração é atribuída a vestígios de manganês ou de ferro. Um tipo de ametista é a variedade de quartzo (ocidental), ao passo que a ametista preciosa (oriental) é uma variedade de coríndon ou safira. O nome "ametista" deriva da palavra grega a·mé·thy·stos (que significa "não intoxicar"), usada na Septuaginta grega para traduzir a palavra hebraica 'ahh·la·máh, em Êxodo 28:19 e 39:12.

O sumo sacerdote de Israel usava uma ametista na terceira posição da terceira fileira de pedras sobre seu bordado "peitoral do julgamento". (Êx 28:2, 15, 19, 21; 39:12) Na sua visão da "Nova Jerusalém", João observou que o 12.º alicerce da muralha da cidade santa era de ametista. — Re 21:2, 10, 19, 20.

AMI. Veja AMOM, II N.º 3.

AMIEL [Povo de Deus].

1. Filho de Gemali, da tribo de Dã. Um dos 12 enviados por Moisés para espiar a terra de Canaã. (Núm 13:12) Ele estava entre os dez espias que apresentaram um relato mau sobre a Terra da Promessa; ele morreu do flagelo da parte de Jeová. — Núm 14:36, 37.

2. Pai de Maquir, de Lo-Debar, ao L do Jordão. Era na casa de Maquir que Mefibosete, filho de Jonatã, estava hospedado quando Davi desejava estender-lhe benevolência. — 2Sa 9:4, 5, 7; 17:27.

3. Pai de Bate-Seba, esposa de Urias, tomada mais tarde por Davi. (1Cr 3:5) Em 2 Samuel 11:3, ele é chamado de Elião, nome que simplesmente é uma transposição dos componentes do nome Amiel e significa "Deus do Povo". Era possivelmente filho de Aitofel, o gilonita, conselheiro de Davi, mas que se tornou traidor. — 2Sa 23:34; 15:31.

4. Levita, o sexto filho de Obede-Edom. Ele era porteiro, que compartilhava da responsabilidade pelos armazéns da casa de Jeová durante o tempo de Davi. — 1Cr 26:4, 5, 12-15.

AMIGO. A Bíblia descreve o amigo verdadeiro como alguém que se apega mais do que um irmão, que é constante em sua lealdade e amabilidade, que socorre seu companheiro aflito e que o aconselha em fidelidade. (Pr 18:24; 17:17; 27:6, 9) Por outro lado, os ricos e os que dão presentes têm muitos amigos, os quais só se interessam nos benefícios egoístas derivados dessa amizade. (Pr 14:20; 19:4, 6, 7) De modo apropriado, Jesus Cristo nos aconselhou a não convidarmos para uma refeição noturna os amigos que nos possam retribuir, mas a convidar pessoas que não nos possam retribuir. (Lu 14:12-14) O próprio Jesus deu o exemplo neste sentido, por ajudar, em sentido espiritual, os que eram desprezados. Por causa disto, foi rotulado de "amigo de cobradores de impostos e de pecadores". (Mt 11:19) Mas Jesus indicou que apenas os que obedecessem a seus mandamentos eram seus reais amigos. Demonstrou seu amor por eles por dar sua alma a favor deles, e incentivou-os a se amarem uns aos outros da mesma forma. — Jo 15:12-14.

É interessante que os cristãos do primeiro século se referiam aos concrentes em geral como "amigos". (3Jo 14) Todavia, isto não impede que a pessoa, na congregação cristã, seja mais achegada a uns do que a outros, quer devido ao parentesco, à associação mais íntima por motivo de circunstâncias, à formação ou a interesses similares, à simples compatibilidade de personalidades, quer devido às excelentes qualidades cristãs que a pessoa tenha discernido por se associar com tais. Havia certas qualidades em Pedro, Tiago e João que moveram Jesus a associar tais discípulos a ele próprio em muitos privilégios, tais como o de torná-los testemunhas da cena da transfiguração. Nisso, é possível que Jesus estivesse visando o futuro no que se refere às coisas que tinha presente para esses três homens, coisas que ele sabia que os usaria para realizar no seu serviço. — Mr 9:1-10; 14:32, 33; Lu 8:51.

Ao passo que o cristão, semelhante a Jesus, manifesta amor para com a humanidade em geral, ele demonstra corretamente a espécie de amor que acompanha a amizade somente para com aqueles que são amigos de Deus. A pergunta proposta ao Rei Jeosafá enfatiza a correção disso: "É ao iníquo que se deve dar ajuda e é aos que odeiam a Jeová que deves amar?" (2Cr 19:2) Aqueles que desejam ser amigos do mundo tornam-se inimigos de Deus. — Tg 4:4.

A mais notável amizade humana registrada nas Escrituras Hebraicas foi a de Davi e Jonatã. Embora Jonatã fosse herdeiro natural do trono de Saul, seu pai, ele não odiava Davi, nem veio a encará-lo como rival, mas reconheceu que o favor de Jeová estava sobre Davi. Assim, "a própria alma de Jonatã se ligou à alma de Davi, e Jonatã começou a amá-lo como a sua própria alma". (1Sa 18:1) Depois da morte de Jonatã numa batalha, Davi lamentou grandemente a perda de seu amigo, dizendo: "Estou aflito por ti, meu irmão Jonatã, tu me eras muito agradável. Teu amor a mim era mais maravilhoso do que o amor das mulheres." (2Sa 1:26) Esta amizade tornou-se possível porque tanto Davi como Jonatã colocavam a lealdade a Jeová Deus acima de tudo.

Em nítido contraste, por causa da corrupção moral existente nos seus dias, o profeta Miqueias se viu obrigado a advertir: "Não tenhais confiança no amigo íntimo." (Miq 7:5) Jesus indicou também que mesmo antigos amigos de seus seguidores se voltariam contra eles e os entregariam para serem mortos. — Lu 21:16; veja AMOR.

Amigo de Deus. Entre as bênçãos divinas concedidas a Abraão achava-se o privilégio e a honra de ser chamado de "amigo [ou: amante] de Jeová". Isto se deu por motivo da fé notável de Abraão, que ele demonstrou no máximo grau possível ao se dispor a oferecer em sacrifício o seu filho Isaque. — Is 41:8, n.; 2Cr 20:7; Tg 2:21-23; veja DECLARAR JUSTO.

Pelo uso apropriado das "riquezas injustas", é possível tornar-se amigo de Jeová Deus e de seu Fi-lho, que podem receber a pessoa nas "moradias eternas", conforme indicado por Jesus Cristo em sua ilustração sobre o mordomo injusto. (Lu 16:1-13) Jesus, com efeito, chamou seus discípulos de amigos, e eles, portanto, eram amigos também de seu Pai. (Jo 15:13-15; 14:21) Os requisitos para se ser hóspede na tenda de Jeová, como um de seus amigos, são delineados no Salmo 15:1-5.

Em contraste, a amizade com o mundo constitui inimizade com Deus. (Tg 4:4; 1Jo 2:15-17) A humanidade, como um todo, acha-se alienada de Deus e tem inimizade com ele. No entanto, a reconciliação é possível, mas só mediante Jesus Cristo e o ministério de reconciliação que Deus confiou aos embaixadores de seu Filho. Por fim, a vida eterna será posse exclusiva dos amigos de Deus. — 2Co 5:18-20; Re 21:3, 4; Sal 37:29.

Amigo (Companheiro) do Rei. Ao usar esta expressão, a Bíblia não indica que essa possuísse mais do que a usual conotação de alguém amigável, ou de um companheiro. Tampouco descreve diretamente as funções específicas do amigo do rei como título oficial. Contudo, baseado nos costumes de outras terras, pode-se depreender que tal expressão designava um oficial da corte que era um confidente, um amigo pessoal e companheiro dum rei, que às vezes executava ordens confidenciais. — Gên 26:26.

Entre os dignitários da corte de Salomão, alistados em 1 Reis 4:1-6, há dois filhos de Natã. Um é mencionado como estando "sobre os prepostos", ao passo que o outro, Zabude, é chamado de "amigo do rei". No reino do Rei Davi, pai de Salomão, Husai, o arquita, é mencionado como tendo este relacionamento com o Rei Davi, sendo chamado "companheiro de Davi". A pedido de Davi, Husai voltou a Jerusalém, a fim de frustrar o conselho de Aitofel, quando Absalão conspirou para usurpar o trono. — 2Sa 15:32-37; 16:16-19.

Entre os antigos reis egípcios, havia diversas categorias de "amigos" do rei. O título não indicava algo exclusivo, mas era apenas uma designação honorífica dada a oficiais cujos deveres reais eram indicados por outros títulos. 'Amigos do rei' também eram frequentemente mencionados em conexão com o Império Grego. Ali, o rei consultava um grupo específico desses amigos antes de tomar decisões sobre assuntos importantes. Este cargo existia na Pérsia, na Arábia e na Etiópia.

Amigo do Noivo. Nos tempos antigos, um homem bem conhecido do noivo atuava como representante legal dele, e assumia a responsabilidade primária de fazer os arranjos para o casamento. Por vezes, ele fazia arranjos para os esponsais junto aos pais da noiva, entregando o preço da noiva ao pai dela, e presentes à noiva. Ele era considerado como ajuntando a noiva e o noivo. O cortejo nupcial chegava à casa do pai do noivo ou à casa do noivo, onde era celebrada a festa de casamento. Ali, o noivo e a noiva se juntavam. Na festa, ao ouvir o noivo falar com a noiva, o amigo do noivo ficava contente, sentindo que cumprira com êxito o seu dever. — Jo 3:29.

João, o Batizador, que preparou o caminho para o Messias, apresentou os primeiros membros da "noiva" a Jesus Cristo, com quem ela estava esposada. (2 Co 11:2; Ef 5:22-27; Re 21:2, 9) Portanto, João podia dizer: "Vós mesmos me dais testemunho de que eu disse: Eu não sou o Cristo, mas, fui enviado na frente deste. Quem tem a noiva é o noivo. No entanto, o amigo do noivo, estando em pé e ouvindo-o, tem muita alegria por causa da voz do noivo. Esta alegria minha, por isso, ficou completa." Assim como o amigo do noivo alcançara neste ponto seu objetivo e não era mais uma figura principal, assim João disse a respeito de si mesmo em relação com Jesus Cristo: "Este tem de estar aumentando, mas eu tenho de estar diminuindo." — Jo 3:27-30.

"Amigos do noivo" são mencionados em Mateus 9:15. Aqui se faz referência a outros amigos, que se juntavam ao cortejo nupcial e eram convidados à festa de casamento.

AMINADABE [Meu Povo Está Disposto (É Nobre; Generoso)].

1. Filho de Rão, da família de Esrom, da tribo de Judá. (1Cr 2:10) O filho dele, Nasom, era maioral dos filhos de Judá durante a jornada no ermo (Núm 1:7; 7:11, 12); sua filha, Eliseba, tornou-se esposa de Arão. (Êx 6:23) Aminadabe era antepassado do Rei Davi e de Cristo Jesus. — Ru 4:19-22; Mt 1:4-16; Lu 3:23-33.

2. Talvez um nome alternativo de Izar, filho de Coate e pai de Corá. (1Cr 6:22; compare isso com os vv. 2, 18, 37, 38; Êx 6:18; 21; Núm 3:19, 27.) Algumas cópias da Septuaginta grega apresentam "Izar" em vez de "Aminadabe" em 1 Crônicas 6:22 (6:7, LXX).

3. Levita, dos filhos de Uziel; chefe de família no tempo de Davi. Ele ajudou a levar a Arca do Pacto a Jerusalém. — 1Cr 15:10-12.

AMISADAI [Povo do Todo-Poderoso]. Pai de Aiezer, o qual, como maioral da tribo de Dã, estava com Moisés quando este contou a assembleia de Israel no segundo ano depois da saída do Egito (1512 AEC). — Núm 1:12; 2:25.

AMITAI. Pai do profeta Jonas, de Gate-Héfer, em Zebulão. — 2Rs 14:25; Jon 1:1.

AMIÚDE [Meu Povo É Dignidade].

1. Efraimita, pai de Elisama, que era maioral da tribo de Efraim no segundo ano depois da saída do

Egito (1512 AEC). (Núm 1:10; 2:18) Ele era antepassado de Josué (Jeosué). — 1Cr 7:26, 27.

2. Simeonita, pai de Semuel, que era o maioral da tribo de Simeão designado para participar na partilha de Canaã entre as tribos de Israel (c. 1467 AEC). — Núm 34:20.

3. Da tribo de Naftali, e pai de Pedael, que era o maioral designado pouco antes da morte de Moisés para participar na distribuição da terra de Canaã entre as tribos de Israel. — Núm 34:28.

4. Pai de Talmai, rei de Gesur, e avô de Maacá, mãe de Absalão, que era filho de Davi. Absalão fugiu para Gesur depois de matar seu meio-irmão Amnom. — 2Sa 3:3; 13:37.

5. Filho de Onri e descendente de Peres, filho de Judá. Ele era o pai de Utai, que está alistado entre os primeiros habitantes a morarem em Jerusalém depois do exílio em Babilônia. — 1Cr 9:2, 4.

AMIZABADE [Meu Povo Dotou]. Filho de Benaia, que era o poderoso do Rei Davi posto sobre os 30 lutadores notáveis. Amizabade agiu por seu pai, Benaia, na supervisão do terceiro grupo de serviço real, a atuar no terceiro mês do ano. — 1Cr 27:5, 6.

AMNOM [Fidedigno; Fiel; Duradouro].

1. O primogênito de Davi com Ainoã, a jezreelita, nascido em Hébron. — 2Sa 3:2; 1Cr 3:1.

Amnom nutriu uma paixão pela linda Tamar, irmã de Absalão, a ponto de ficar perdidamente apaixonado. Seguindo o conselho de seu primo, Jonadabe, Amnom fingiu-se doente e induziu o Rei Davi a enviar Tamar aos aposentos particulares de Amnom para preparar "o pão de consolo" em sua presença. Usou então essa oportunidade para violentar sua meia-irmã, apesar das súplicas dela e de ela raciocinar com ele. O caso dele ilustra quão extremamente egoísta pode ser o amor erótico, pois, tendo satisfeito seu desejo, Amnom então mandou Tamar ser posta na rua, como alguém que lhe era repugnante, alguém cuja mera presença sem dúvida o fazia sentir-se impuro. — 2Sa 13:1-19.

Absalão, irmão germano de Tamar, nutriu ódio contra Amnom por este seu ato, e, dois anos depois, numa festa de tosquia de ovelhas, Absalão mandou que seus servos assassinassem Amnom, quando este se estava "sentindo bem por causa do vinho". (2Sa 13:20-29) Visto que Amnom, como filho mais velho de Davi, era o herdeiro presuntivo do trono, a morte dele talvez também fosse vista como desejável por Absalão, como meio de melhorar suas próprias possibilidades de obter o reinado. Com este evento começou a ter cumprimento a profecia de Natã, depois da má conduta do próprio Davi com a esposa de Urias. — 2Sa 12:10; veja ABSALÃO.

2. O primeiro na lista de quatro filhos de Simão, da tribo de Judá. — 1Cr 4:1, 20.

AMO. Veja SENHOR.

AMOM, I [O Povo]. O filho de Ló com sua filha mais moça; o progenitor dos amonitas. (Gên 19:38) Como no caso da filha mais velha, assim também a filha mais jovem de Ló teve relações sexuais com seu pai enquanto habitavam numa caverna duma região montanhosa — depois de as filhas de Ló lhe terem dado muito vinho a beber. (Gên 19:30-36) O nome dado a Amom (Ám·mon) por sua mãe foi Ben-Ami, que significa "Filho do Meu Povo [isto é: parentes]" e não de estrangeiros, como os sodomitas. O nome, assim, estava evidentemente ligado à preocupação expressa pela filha mais velha, de que as duas filhas não encontrassem ninguém dentre seu próprio povo, ou sua linhagem familiar, para se casar, na terra em que habitavam.

"Amom" é também usado no Salmo 83:7 para se referir à nação de seus descendentes. A expressão "filhos de Amom" faria os israelitas lembrar-se do parentesco existente entre eles e os amonitas, parentesco este que até mesmo Jeová levava em conta, conforme evidenciado por Sua orientação aos israelitas para que não molestassem Amom, nem travassem luta com eles, visto que eram filhos de Ló, sobrinho de Abraão. — De 2:19; veja AMONITAS.

AMOM, II [1-3: Fidedigno; Fiel; Duradouro].

1. Chefe da cidade de Samaria quando Acabe, rei de Israel, governava (c. 940-920 AEC). O profeta Micaías foi entregue à sua custódia enquanto Acabe guerreava contra Ramote-Gileade. — 1Rs 22:10, 26; 2Cr 18:25.

2. Rei de Judá (661-660 AEC), e filho do iníquo Rei Manassés. Ele começou a governar à idade de 22 anos e seguiu o proceder idólatra dos primeiros anos do seu pai. As condições péssimas descritas em Sofonias 1:4; 3:2-4, sem dúvida se desenvolveram neste tempo. Depois de dois anos no trono, ele foi assassinado por seus próprios servos. "O povo da terra ['am ha·'á·rets]" matou os conspiradores, colocou seu filho, Josias, no trono, e enterrou Amom no "jardim de Uza". (2Rs 21:19-26; 2Cr 33:20-25) A genealogia de Jesus inclui o seu nome. — Mt 1:10.

3. Chefe de família de certos exilados que retornaram, incluídos entre "os filhos dos servos de Salomão". (Ne 7:57-59) Ele é chamado de "Ami" em Esdras 2:57.

4. Deus local de Tebas, ou Nô-Amom, que ascendeu à posição de "rei dos deuses" sob o nome de Amom-Rá, e cujo sumo sacerdote se tornou o chefe de todos os sacerdócios egípcios. Amom é geralmente representado como um homem usando uma coroa com duas compridas plumas paralelas, mas também como um homem com cabeça de carneiro ou como um carneiro. Como muitos deuses egípcios, é muitas vezes representado segurando a cruz ansada, o "signo da vida". Amom, sua esposa Mut, e Consu (seu filho adotivo) compunham a tríade tebana.

Uma grande parte dos despojos de guerra do Egito acabava no tesouro de Amom, cujo sacerdócio se tornou muito poderoso e rico. E. A. W. Budge, na sua obra A History of Egypt (Uma História do Egito, 1902, Vol. V, pp. 205-217), sugere que o sacerdócio talvez realmente incentivasse à guerra em seu próprio benefício. Com o tempo, os sumos sacerdotes de Amom, cujo cargo se tornara hereditário, exerciam até mesmo maior poder do que os faraós. Um deles, Herihor, sucedeu ao último dos Ramsés ao trono. Segundo a obra de J. H. Breasted, History of Egypt (História do Egito), sob Hrihor (Herihor), "fosse o que fosse que o Sumo Sacerdote desejasse efetuar legalmente, podia ser sancionado por oráculo especial do deus [Amom] a qualquer momento, e, por arranjo prévio, a imagem do culto, perante a qual o Sumo Sacerdote tornava conhecidos seus desejos, invariavelmente respondia de modo favorável . . . A prestidigitação sacerdotal, decidindo, se necessário, em completa desconsideração pela lei e pela justiça, habilitava assim o Sumo Sacerdote a encobrir com a sanção divina tudo o que ele desejava efetuar." — 1937, p. 523.

Diversas adversidades sobrevieram a Tebas e a seu deus, Amom. Duas delas são mencionadas nas Escrituras. No sétimo século AEC, os conquistadores assírios, sob o comando de Assurbanipal, arrasaram Tebas, despojando-a de toda a sua riqueza. O profeta Naum se refere a este evento, usando-o como ilustração da vindoura destruição de Nínive. (Na 3:8) Tebas recuperou-se até certo ponto do golpe infligido a ela pela Assíria, recuperando certa medida de prosperidade, mas mesmo esta duraria pouco. Jeremias indicou que o julgamento de Jeová era contra o Egito e seus deuses, inclusive Tebas e seu deus, Amom. O Egito seria entregue na mão de Nabucodonosor, trazendo vergonha a ele e a seus deuses, especialmente a Amom, de Nô (Tebas). — Je 46:25, 26; veja Nô, Nô-Amom.

AMONINS [Os Povos]. Em 2 Crônicas 20:1, o texto massorético menciona alguns dos "amonins [hebr.: ʽAm·moh·ním]" como juntando-se aos filhos de Moabe e de Amom na guerra contra Jeosafá, rei de Judá. A versão Almeida, revista e corrigida, insere a palavra "outros", para fazer o texto rezar "os filhos de Moabe, e os filhos de Amom, e com eles alguns outros dos amonitas"; ao passo que outras traduções vertem a frase em questão como rezando "alguns dos amonitas" (ALA, VB), embora isso pareça ilógico, visto que os amonitas já são mencionados no versículo. A Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia (n.) e a maioria das traduções modernas (IBB, BJ, BV) acham que este texto se refere aos meunins (ou meunitas) de 2 Crônicas 26:7. Este ponto de vista supõe que um erro de escriba resultou na transposição das primeiras duas consoantes (מע) do meʽu·ním hebraico, resultando assim em ʽam·moh·ním. Esta identificação com os meunins talvez encontre apoio no fato de que o restante do relato da luta contra Jeosafá menciona "os da região montanhosa de Seir" (em lugar de "os amonins") se juntando às forças amonita-moabitas. (2Cr 20:10, 22, 23) Os tradutores da Septuaginta usaram a mesma palavra grega (mi·nai·on) para traduzir o termo hebraico em 2 Crônicas 20:1, como nos textos que se referem aos meunins, mostrando que eles entendiam tratar-se dos mesmos. — Veja Meunins.

Visto que este assunto é incerto, porém, algumas traduções, tais como a de Isaac Leeser (em inglês) e a Tradução do Novo Mundo, preferem simplesmente transliterar o termo, retendo assim a versão encontrada no texto massorético.

AMONITAS [De (Pertencente a) Amom]. Descendentes de Amom (Ben-Ami), filho de Ló com a mais jovem das suas duas filhas. (Gên 19:36-38) Eles eram parentes próximos dos moabitas, que eram descendentes do outro filho de Ló, Moabe, e são regularmente mencionados na história bíblica e na secular antiga junto com os moabitas. Eram também parentes mais distantes dos israelitas, e este parentesco bíblico é apoiado pelo fato de que a língua amonita era um dialeto ou uma variante do hebraico. Com raras exceções, contudo, os amonitas demonstraram violenta inimizade para com a nação de Israel.

Território Ocupado. Evidentemente por consideração para com seu fiel antepassado, Ló, Jeová Deus habilitou os amonitas a tomarem posse do território previamente ocupado pelos refains, um povo de estatura alta, chamado de zanzumins pelos amonitas. (De 2:17-21) Esta terra se situava ao L do extremo sul do rio Jordão, e, em certa época, o território dos amonitas era adjacente ao dos moabitas, na região de planalto, na banda oriental do Mar Morto. Algum tempo antes da entrada de Israel em Canaã, contudo, os amorreus tinham desapossado os amonitas de parte de sua terra e os tinham impelido para o N e o L, destarte abrindo uma cunha entre eles e os moabitas (que também sofreram a perda de considerável território). (Núm 21:26; Jos 12:2; Jz 11:13, 22) Depois disso, a terra dos filhos de Amom geralmente se estendia da região superior do curvo vale da torrente do Jaboque, em direção leste, para o deserto (Núm 21:24; Jos 12:2), estando sua capital situada em Rabá (a moderna Amã), próxima às cabeceiras do Jaboque.

(De 3:11) Os arqueólogos descobriram antigos sítios e fortalezas fronteiriças amonitas nesta região.

Sob ordens divinas, os israelitas tiveram o cuidado de não invadir os limites de terras dos amonitas, ao conquistarem os vizinhos amorreus. (De 2:37; Jos 13:8-10) Assim, ao passo que Josué 13:25 declara que a tribo de Gade recebeu "metade da terra dos filhos de Amom", como parte de sua herança tribal, a referência, evidentemente, é àquela parte da terra anteriormente tomada dos amonitas pelos amorreus, território aparentemente situado entre o rio Jordão e o Jaboque superior.

Conflitos com Israel. Não foi senão no tempo do Rei Eglom, de Moabe, que os amonitas, junto com os amalequitas, juntaram-se aos moabitas em atacar Israel, movimentando-se para o oeste, em direção a Jericó, ao O do Jordão. (Jz 3:12-14) Depois que o juiz Eúde eliminou os efeitos deste ataque (Jz 3:26-30), os amonitas não constituíram mais uma grande ameaça para Israel até os dias de Jefté. Já então os israelitas haviam voltado a servir os deuses das nações e sobreviera um período de 18 anos de opressão, os amonitas pressionando Israel pelo L, enquanto os filisteus o ameaçavam do oeste. As forças amonitas não só aterrorizavam os israelitas que moravam em Gileade, mas até mesmo faziam surtidas ao O do Jordão para hostilizar as tribos de Benjamim, Judá e Efraim. (Jz 10:6-10) Finalmente purificados da adoração falsa, os israelitas se juntaram sob a liderança de Jefté, e, depois de Jefté ter refutado legalmente as acusações amonitas de usurpação de direitos de terra por parte de Israel, os amonitas foram duramente derrotados. — Jz 10:16-11:33; veja JEFTÉ.

Alguns peritos têm considerado a referência de Jefté a "Quemós, teu deus", como errônea, afirmando que Quemós era o deus nacional de Moabe, não de Amom. (Jz 11:24; Núm 21:29) Embora o deus dos amonitas seja diversamente chamado de Moloque, Milcom ou Malcão (1Rs 11:5, 7; Je 49:1, 3), estes termos (todos relacionados com a raiz "rei") são considerados por alguns peritos como títulos, em vez de como nomes próprios, e podem ter sido aplicados ao deus Quemós. De qualquer modo, os amonitas eram politeístas (Jz 10:6), e a adoração de Quemós pode ter tido quase tanto destaque entre eles como entre os seus parentes, os moabitas.

Segundo a Septuaginta grega, cerca de um mês depois de Saul ser designado rei de Israel, o Rei Naás, de Amom, sitiou a cidade de Jabes, em Gileade, exigindo a rendição da cidade, junto com a exigência cruel de que seus homens só teriam paz se cada um permitisse que seu olho direito fosse furado. (Veja NAÁS N.º 1.) Sabendo do sítio, Saul provou seu mérito qual rei, juntando as forças israelitas e desbaratando os amonitas. (1Sa 11:1-4, 11-15) A declaração posterior de Samuel revela que foi a crescente ameaça dos amonitas, sob Naás, que provocou por fim o pedido dos israelitas de terem um rei. — 1Sa 12:12.

Durante o governo de Davi. Os amonitas também sofreram derrotas às mãos de Davi, sendo deles tirados despojos ou tributos. (1Cr 18:11) O relato sobre isto, em 2 Samuel 8:11, 12, faz parte dum resumo das conquistas de Davi, e este resumo talvez não esteja necessariamente em completa ordem cronológica com relação aos relatos anteriores e subsequentes. Assim, 2 Samuel 10:1, 2, sugere uma relação comparativamente pacífica entre Amom e Israel durante o governo de Davi até o tempo da morte do Rei Naás. Hanum, filho e sucessor de Naás, porém, deixou Davi grandemente irado, ao humilhar os mensageiros que Davi lhe enviou como portadores de consolo. Cônscios da seriedade da afronta perpetrada, os amonitas procuraram obter forças mercenárias dentre os sírios e prepararam uma ofensiva contra Israel, mas foram vencidos pela estratégia do general israelita, Joabe, e seu irmão, Abisai, e derrotados. — 2Sa 10:1-14; 1Cr 19:6-15.

Na primavera seguinte, Rabá, capital de Amom, ficou sob cerco das forças de Davi. Durante uma surtida desesperada dos amonitas cercados, morreu Urias, o hitita. (2Sa 11:1, 17, 24, 26, 27; veja RABÁ N.º 1.) É difícil determinar a duração do cerco. O registro do nascimento do filho adulterino de Bate-Seba e o posterior nascimento de Salomão talvez se enquadrem cronologicamente no período do cerco ou talvez sejam simplesmente apresentados em forma completa para terminar o relato envolvendo Bate-Seba, embora um ou ambos os nascimentos possam ter ocorrido depois do cerco. Ao passo que o relato em 1 Crônicas 20:1, 2, não parece indicar um período prolongado, não seria estranho que o cerco durasse até o ano seguinte. A conquista total da capital amonita foi finalmente realizada por Davi. — 2Sa 12:26-29.

"A coroa de Malcão", mencionada na captura de Rabá, era evidentemente uma coroa colocada na cabeça do deus-ídolo amonita, em outra parte chamado Moloque ou Milcom. Embora a versão Almeida traduza aqui o termo hebraico Mal·kám por "seu rei", não parece lógico que isso se refira a um rei humano, visto que a coroa pesava "um talento de ouro" (c. 34 kg). Também parece provável que ser a coroa colocada na cabeça de Davi era apenas um ato momentâneo, talvez para demonstrar a vitória sobre este falso deus. — 2Sa 12:30.

Por causa de algumas versões de 2 Samuel 12:31 (Fi [2Rs 12:31], So, Tr), muitos entenderam que os amonitas derrotados foram cruelmente serrados, mortos a machadadas e queimados vivos por Davi.

Traduções posteriores (PIB, BJ, MC, IBB, NM), porém, evidentemente apresentam o sentido correto, mostrando que os amonitas foram postos a trabalhos forçados com serras e machados, e a fabricar tijolos. Isto é confirmado pelo fato de que se sabe agora que o termo hebraico vertido "fornos de tijolos", em algumas traduções, se refere antes a formas de madeira nas quais a argila era moldada em tijolos.

Que nem todos os amonitas eram implacáveis inimigos de Israel se evidencia na presença de Zeleque, o amonita, entre os poderosos de Davi. (2Sa 23:37) O Rei Salomão tinha mulheres amonitas, inclusive a mãe de Roboão, entre as suas esposas estrangeiras. (1Rs 11:1; 14:31) No entanto, isto contribuiu para o desvio de Salomão e para ele estabelecer "altos" para a adoração de Milcom e de outros deuses, lugares que por fim foram arruinados pelo fiel Rei Josias. — 1Rs 11:5; 2Rs 23:13.

Durante o reino dividido. Os amonitas recuperaram sua independência dos reis davídicos, e, durante o reinado de Jeosafá (936-c. 911 AEC) juntaram-se aos moabitas e aos habitantes da região montanhosa de Seir numa ofensiva conjunta contra Judá, mas tal aliança sofreu uma esmagadora derrota. (2Cr 20:1-4, 10-26) As inscrições do rei assírio Salmaneser III, que governou no tempo do Rei Jeú (c. 904-877 AEC) de Israel, afirmam que as forças de "Ba'sa, filho de Ruhubi, de Amom", faziam parte duma coligação de reis que se opuseram à Assíria na batalha de Carcar. (Ancient Near Eastern Texts [Textos Antigos do Oriente Próximo], editado por J. B. Pritchard, 1974, p. 279) Um dos conspiradores da morte do Rei Jeoás, de Judá (c. 859 AEC), era Zabade, filho da amonita Simeate. (2Cr 24:22, 26) O governo forte de Uzias (829-778 AEC) mais uma vez tornou os amonitas tributários de Judá (2Cr 26:8), e o filho de Uzias, Jotão, impôs de novo este domínio sobre Amom, exigindo deles 100 talentos de prata (US$ 660.600), 10.000 coros (2.200 kl) de trigo e 10.000 de cevada. (2Cr 27:5) A capacidade dos amonitas de pagar esta grande soma durante três anos sucessivos talvez se devesse à sua posição favorável junto a uma das principais rotas de comércio da Arábia até Damasco, e à fertilidade relativa da região do vale do Jaboque, o trigo e a cevada estando ainda entre os principais produtos dessa região.

Evidentemente, a crescente intervenção do poder assírio na Palestina durante o reinado de Acaz, sucessor de Jotão (761-746 AEC), permitiu que os amonitas se livrassem do domínio de Judá, mas apenas para trocá-lo pela opressão assíria, pois os registros de Tiglate-Pileser III alistam "Sanipu, de Bit-Amom [a casa de Amom]", como pagando tributo à Assíria, junto com Acaz, de Judá, e Salamanu, de Moabe. O Prisma de Senaqueribe, narrando a invasão de Judá no tempo de Ezequias, também mostra Amom levando dádivas ao invasor assírio, ao passo que o filho de Senaqueribe, Esar-Hadom, contemporâneo de Manassés, inclui "Puduil, rei de Bete-Amom", entre os que forneceram materiais para a construção da cidade de Nínive.

Parece provável que, depois da deportação do povo do reino setentrional de Israel, por parte de Tiglate-Pileser III e um dos seus sucessores (2Rs 15:29; 17:6), os amonitas começassem a ocupar o território da tribo de Gade, pelo qual tinham lutado sem êxito contra Jefté. (Compare isso com Sal 83:4-8.) Assim, na mensagem profética de Jeová, por meio de Jeremias, os amonitas foram censurados por se apoderarem da herança dos gaditas e foram avisados da vindoura desolação de Amom e de seu deus, Malcão (Milcom). (Je 49:1-5) Os amonitas foram ainda mais além, por enviarem bandos de guerrilhas para hostilizar Judá sob o Rei Jeoiaquim, nos anos finais do reino de Judá. — 2Rs 24:2, 3.

Invasão Babilônica. Com a derrubada de Judá (607 AEC) pelos babilônios, alguns judeus fugiram para Amom, Moabe e Edom, mas voltaram ao ouvir falar da nomeação de Gedalias sobre o país. (Je 40:11, 12) O Rei Baalis, de Amom, contudo, conspirou com o chefe do exército judaico, Ismael, no assassinato de Gedalias (2Rs 25:23; Je 40:14; 41:1-3) e Ismael posteriormente refugiou-se em Amom. — Je 41:10-15.

Embora Amom se regozijasse com a queda de Jerusalém, o dia do ajuste de contas de Jeová com os amonitas circuncisos finalmente veio sobre eles devido a seus corações incircuncisos. (Je 9:25, 26) Fiel às profecias proclamadas por Jeremias, Ezequiel e Amós, os amonitas começaram a beber o cálice da ira de Jeová, e provaram a espada, a fome, a peste e a desolação de sua terra. — Je 25:17, 21; 27:1-8; Ez 25:1-10; Am 1:13-15.

Que Amom não se submeteu voluntariamente ao jugo babilônico é indicado pela descrição de Ezequiel, de o rei de Babilônia (Nabucodonosor) ficar em pé na encruzilhada e usar a adivinhação para decidir se iria contra Rabá, de Amom, ou contra Judá. (Ez 21:19-23, 28-32) Embora o resultado indicasse atacar primeiro Jerusalém, o historiador judeu, Josefo, registra que, no quinto ano depois de desolar Jerusalém, Nabucodonosor voltou para guerrear contra a Coele-Síria, Amom e Moabe. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], X, 181 [ix, 7]) Conforme predito, Amom se tornaria "um lugar de repouso do rebanho" e Rabá "uma pastagem de camelos". (Ez 25:5) Os orientais que montavam camelos iriam possuir a terra e armar ali suas tendas. — Ez 25:4.

É provável que os exilados amonitas, junto com os de outras nações, obtivessem de Ciro, conquistador de Babilônia, a permissão de voltar à sua terra natal, em cumprimento de Jeremias 49:6.

Casamentos com Israelitas. Depois da volta dos judeus do exílio (537 AEC), um amonita chamado Tobias teve papel destacado no empenho de obstruir a reconstrução dos muros de Jerusalém. (Ne 4:3, 7, 8) No entanto, mais tarde, teve a audácia de utilizar um refeitório nas dependências do templo, até que Neemias, indignado, lançou fora a mobília dele. (Ne 13:4-8; veja TOBIAS N.º 2.) Muitos dos exilados judeus que retornaram também haviam tomado esposas dentre os amonitas e os de outras origens estrangeiras, e foram severamente censurados por isso, resultando numa despedida geral de tais esposas. — Esd 9:1, 2; 10:10-19, 44; Ne 13:23-27.

Depois de Tobias ser expulso da área do templo, a lei de Deus, em Deuteronômio 23:3-6, proibindo a entrada de amonitas e de moabitas na congregação de Israel, foi lida e aplicada. (Ne 13:1-3) Esta restrição, imposta cerca de 1.000 anos antes, devido à recusa dos amonitas e dos moabitas de socorrer os israelitas quando estes se acercavam da Terra da Promessa, é geralmente compreendida como significando que tais raças não podiam obter pleno direito legal como membros da nação de Israel, com todos os direitos e privilégios concomitantes que envolviam essa condição de membro. Não significava, necessariamente, que pessoas dentre os amonitas e dentre os moabitas não pudessem associar-se com os israelitas, ou morar entre eles, e, desta forma, beneficiar-se das bênçãos divinas sobre o povo de Deus, e isto é evidente da inclusão de Zeleque, já mencionado, entre os principais guerreiros de Davi, bem como do registro a respeito de Rute, a moabita. — Ru 1:4, 16-18.

Quanto a este último caso, o casamento de Rute com Boaz mostra que as mulheres dentre tais nações, ao se voltarem para a adoração do verdadeiro Deus, podiam ser aceitáveis para o casamento com varões judeus. Visto que os termos "amonita" e "moabita" no texto hebraico de Deuteronômio 23:3-6 se acham no gênero masculino, a Míxena judaica (Yevamot 8:3) argumenta que só os varões amonitas e moabitas foram excluídos de Israel. Todavia, a insistência de Esdras para que os homens judeus despedissem suas esposas estrangeiras, e a atitude similar de Neemias, já mencionada antes, indicam que a admissão de mulheres amonitas e moabitas na associação com Israel dependia de elas aceitarem a adoração verdadeira.

Embora a evidência histórica, inclusive o livro apócrifo de 1 Macabeus (5:6), mostre que Amom continuou a ser um território distinto até o segundo século AEC, já no primeiro século AEC a região parece ter-se tornado parte do reino nabateu, e, no terceiro século EC, os amonitas, como povo, desapareceram da história, sem dúvida sendo absorvidos pelas tribos árabes. Conforme Sofonias tinha profetizado, os filhos de Amom se tornaram "como Gomorra, . . . baldio desolado". — Sof 2:8-10.

Em vista do desaparecimento dos amonitas logo cedo na Era Comum, a menção de Amom por Daniel, na sua profecia sobre o "tempo do fim", deve aplicar-se em sentido figurado. Evidentemente, essa menção se refere a certas nações ou organizações que o "rei do norte" não consegue ter sob seu controle. — Da 11:40, 41.

AMOQUE [Profundo; Ininteligível]. Sacerdote principal que retornou com Zorobabel do exílio em Babilônia. (Ne 12:1, 7) A família dele era representada pelo seu filho Éber, no tempo de Joiaquim. — Ne 12:12, 20.

AMOR. Sentimento de caloroso apego pessoal ou de profunda afeição, como por um amigo, um genitor ou um filho, e assim por diante; caloroso afeto ou estima por outrem; também, a benévola afeição de Deus por suas criaturas, ou a reverente afeição que elas devem a Deus; também, a bondosa afeição corretamente expressa pelas criaturas de Deus umas para com as outras; aquela forte ou apaixonada afeição por uma pessoa do sexo oposto, que constitui o incentivo emocional para a união conjugal. Um dos sinônimos de amor é "devoção"

Além destes sentidos, as Escrituras falam também de amor guiado por princípios, como o amor à justiça, ou até mesmo o amor aos inimigos da pessoa, aos quais ela talvez não tenha afeição. Esta faceta ou expressão do amor é uma devoção altruísta à justiça e um sincero interesse no bem-estar duradouro de outros, junto com uma expressão ativa disso para o bem deles.

O verbo 'a·hév ou 'a·háv ("amar") e o substantivo 'a·haváh ("amor") são as palavras usadas primariamente, em hebraico, para indicar o amor nos sentidos precedentes, sendo o sentido e o grau intencionados determinados pelo contexto.

As Escrituras Gregas Cristãs empregam mormente formas das palavras a·gá·pe, fi·li·a e duas palavras derivadas de stor·gé (não sendo usada é·ros, o amor entre os sexos). A·gá·pe aparece com maior frequência que os outros termos.

Sobre o substantivo a·gá·pe e a forma verbal a·ga·pá·o, o Vine's Expository Dictionary of Old and New Testament Words (Dicionário Expositivo de Palavras do Velho e do Novo Testamento, de Vine), diz: "O amor só pode ser conhecido pelas ações que promove. Vê-se o amor de Deus na dádiva de Seu Filho, 1 João 4:9, 10. Mas, obviamente, este não é o amor da complacência, ou afeição, isto é, não foi motivado por qualquer excelência em seus objetos, Rom. 5:8. Tratava-se dum exercício da vontade Divina, em escolha deliberada, feita sem causa atribuível, exceto a que existe na natureza do Próprio Deus, cp. Deut. 7:7, 8." — 1981, Vol. 3, p. 21.

A respeito do verbo fi·lé·o, Vine comenta: "[Este] deve ser diferençado de agapao no sentido de que fileo representa mais de perto a terna afeição. . . . Novamente, amar (fileo) a vida, proveniente do desejo indevido de preservá-la, esquecendo-se o real objetivo de se viver, recebe a repreensão do Senhor, João 12:25. Inversamente, amar a vida (agapao), conforme usado em 1 Ped. 3:10, é levar em conta os verdadeiros interesses de se viver. Aqui, a palavra fileo seria muitíssimo inapropriada." — Vol. 3, pp. 21, 22.

A Exhaustive Concordance of the Bible (Concordância Exaustiva da Bíblia), de James Strong, no seu dicionário grego (1890, pp. 75, 76), observa sob fi·lé·o: "Ser amigo de (gostar de [uma pessoa ou de um objeto]), i.e., ter afeição por (denotando apego pessoal, como questão de sentimento ou de afeto; ao passo que [a·ga·pá·o] é mais amplo, abrangendo espec. o critério e a aquiescência deliberada da vontade como questão de princípios, de dever e de decoro . . .)." — Veja AFEIÇÃO.

A·gá·pe normalmente transmite a ideia de amor guiado ou governado por princípios. Geralmente, esse tipo de amor é acompanhado de afeição e afeto. Que a·gá·pe pode incluir afeição e carinho é evidente em muitas passagens. Em João 3:35, Jesus disse: "O Pai ama [a·ga·paí] o Filho." Em João 5:20, ele disse: "O Pai tem afeição pelo [fi·lei] Filho." Por certo, o amor de Deus por Jesus Cristo é acompanhado de grande afeição. Também Jesus explicou: "Quem me ama [a·ga·pón], será amado [a·ga·pe·thé·se·tai] por meu Pai, e eu o amarei [a·ga·pé·so]." (Jo 14:21) Este amor do Pai e do Filho é acompanhado de terna afeição por tais pessoas amorosas. Os adoradores de Jeová têm de amar a Ele e a seu Filho, bem como uns aos outros, do mesmo modo. — Jo 21:15-17.

Assim, embora o amor cristão se diferencie pelo respeito aos princípios, ele não é insensível; de outra forma não diferiria da justiça fria. Mas não é governado pela emoção ou pelo sentimento; jamais desconsidera princípios. Os cristãos mostram corretamente amor para com outros, aos quais eles não sentem afeição ou afeto especial, fazendo isso para o bem-estar deles. (Gál 6:10) Todavia, embora não sintam afeição especial, eles sentem compaixão e sincero interesse por tais concriaturas humanas, até os limites e da forma que os princípios justos permitam e orientem.

No entanto, ao passo que o a·gá·pe cristão se refere ao amor governado por princípios, existe um tipo errado de a·gá·pe, que é motivado por egoísmo. Por exemplo, Jesus disse: "Se amardes [a·ga·pá·te] aos que vos amam, de que mérito é isso para vós? Pois até mesmo os pecadores amam aos que os amam. E, se fizerdes o bem aos que vos fazem o bem, realmente, de que mérito é isso para vós? Até os pecadores fazem o mesmo. Também, se emprestardes sem juros àqueles de quem esperais receber, de que mérito é isso para vós? Até mesmo pecadores emprestam sem juros a pecadores, para receberem de volta o mesmo." (Lu 6:32-34) O princípio à base do qual tais pessoas agem é: 'Faça-me o bem e eu também lhe farei o bem.'

O apóstolo Paulo disse a respeito de alguém que trabalhara ao seu lado: "Demas me abandonou, porque amava [a·ga·pé·sas] o atual sistema de coisas." (2Ti 4:10) Pelo visto, Demas amava o mundo por motivos egoístas, talvez amando seus benefícios materiais. Jesus diz: "Os homens amaram [e·gá·pe·san] mais a escuridão do que a luz, porque as suas obras eram iníquas. Pois quem pratica coisas ruins odeia a luz e não se chega à luz, a fim de que as suas obras não sejam repreendidas." (Jo 3:19, 20) Eles a amam porque ela ajuda a encobrir os atos iníquos deles.

Jesus ordenou: 'Amai [a·ga·pá·te] os vossos inimigos.' (Mt 5:44) O próprio Deus estabeleceu esse princípio, como declara o apóstolo Paulo: "Deus recomenda a nós o seu próprio amor [a·gá·pen], por Cristo ter morrido por nós enquanto éramos ainda pecadores. . . . Pois se nós, quando éramos inimigos, ficamos reconciliados com Deus por intermédio da morte de seu Filho, muito mais agora, que temos ficado reconciliados, seremos salvos pela sua vida." (Ro 5:8-10) Um caso notável de tal amor é o modo de Deus lidar com Saulo de Tarso, que se tornou o apóstolo Paulo. (At 9:1-16; 1Ti 1:15) Por conseguinte, amar nossos inimigos deve ser governado pelo princípio estabelecido por Deus e deve ser exercido em obediência a seus mandamentos, quer tal amor seja, quer não, acompanhado de qualquer calor humano ou afeição.

Deus. O apóstolo João escreve: "Deus é amor." (1Jo 4:8) Ele é a própria personificação do amor, que é sua qualidade dominante. O inverso, contudo, não é verdadeiro, de que o 'amor (a qualidade abstrata) é Deus'. Ele se revela na Bíblia como uma Pessoa, e fala, em sentido figurado, de seus "olhos", de suas "mãos", de seu "coração", de sua "alma", e assim por diante. Possui também outros atributos, entre eles a justiça, o poder e a sabedoria. (De 32:4; Jó 36:22; Re 7:12) Ademais, Ele possui a capacidade de odiar, qualidade que é totalmente oposta ao amor. Seu amor à justiça exige que odeie a iniquidade. (De 12:31; Pr 6:16) O amor inclui ter sentimento e expressão de calorosa afeição pessoal, que só uma pessoa pode ter, ou que pode ser dirigida a uma pessoa. Por certo, o Filho de Deus, Jesus Cristo, não é uma qualidade abstrata; ele falou de estar junto de seu Pai, trabalhando com ele, agradando-o e ouvindo-o, bem como de anjos contemplarem a face de seu Pai, coisas impossíveis para uma mera qualidade abstrata. — Mt 10:32; 18:10; Jo 5:17; 6:46; 8:28, 29, 40; 17:5.

Evidência de seu amor. É abundante a evidência de que Jeová, o Criador e Deus do Universo, é amor. Pode-se ver isto na própria criação física. Com que notável cuidado ela foi feita para a saúde, o prazer e o bem-estar do homem! O homem foi feito, não só para existir, mas para ter prazer em comer, para deleitar-se em ver as cores e a beleza da criação, para deleitar-se com os animais e com a companhia de seus semelhantes, e para ter prazer em outros incontáveis deleites da vida. (Sal 139:14, 17, 18) Mas Jeová demonstrou seu amor ainda mais por fazer o homem à sua imagem e semelhança (Gên 1:26, 27), com a capacidade de amar e de ter espiritualidade, e por revelar-se ao homem por meio de Sua Palavra e de Seu espírito santo. — 1Co 2:12, 13.

O amor de Jeová para com a humanidade é o de um Pai para com seus filhos. (Mt 5:45) Ele não poupa nada que seja para o bem deles, não importa o que lhe custe; seu amor transcende a tudo o que possamos sentir ou expressar. (Ef 2:4-7; Is 55:8; Ro 11:33) Sua maior manifestação de amor, a coisa mais amorosa que um pai pode fazer, ele fez pela humanidade. Isso foi dar a vida de seu próprio fiel e unigênito Filho. (Jo 3:16) Conforme escreve o apóstolo João: "Quanto a nós, amamos porque ele nos amou primeiro." (1Jo 4:19) Ele é, concordemente, a Fonte do amor. Paulo, coapóstolo de João, escreve: "Pois, dificilmente morrerá alguém por um justo; deveras, por um homem bom, talvez, alguém ainda se atreva a morrer. Mas Deus recomenda a nós o seu próprio amor, por Cristo ter morrido por nós enquanto éramos ainda pecadores." — Ro 5:7, 8; 1Jo 4:10.

O amor eterno de Deus. O amor que Jeová tem aos seus servos fiéis é eterno; não falha nem diminui, não importa em que circunstâncias, enaltecidas ou humildes, seus servos possam encontrar-se, ou quais as coisas, grandes ou pequenas, que possam vir contra eles. O apóstolo Paulo exclamou: "Pois estou convencido de que nem a morte, nem a vida, nem anjos, nem governos, nem coisas presentes, nem coisas por vir, nem poderes, nem altura, nem profundidade, nem qualquer outra criação será capaz de nos separar do amor de Deus, que está em Cristo Jesus, nosso Senhor." — Ro 8:38, 39.

A soberania de Deus baseia-se no amor. Jeová gloria-se de que sua soberania e o apoio dela por parte de suas criaturas se baseiam primariamente no amor. Ele quer apenas aqueles que amam Sua soberania por causa das excelentes qualidades Dele e porque é justa, os que preferem Sua soberania a qualquer outra. (1Co 2:9) Estes preferem servir sob Sua soberania a tentarem ser independentes — isto se dá por causa do conhecimento que têm dele, de seu amor, de sua justiça e de sua sabedoria, os quais ultrapassam em muito os deles mesmos, conforme se dão conta. (Sal 84:10, 11) O Diabo fracassou neste respeito, procurando egotisticamente a independência para si mesmo, como o fizeram Adão e Eva. Com efeito, o Diabo questionou o modo de Deus governar, afirmando, na realidade, que era desamoroso, injusto (Gên 3:1-5), e que as criaturas de Deus não O serviam por amor, e sim por egoísmo. — Jó 1:8-12; 2:3-5.

Jeová Deus permitiu que o Diabo vivesse e pusesse seus servos à prova, até à morte, mesmo seu Filho unigênito. Deus predisse a fidelidade de Jesus Cristo. (Is 53) Como podia fazer isso, empenhando assim a sua palavra por seu Filho? Por causa do amor. Jeová conhecia seu Filho e conhecia o amor que seu Filho tinha a Ele e à justiça. (He 1:9) Conhecia bem íntima e cabalmente seu Filho. (Mt 11:27) Tinha plena confiança e fé na fidelidade do Filho. Além disso, o "amor . . . é o perfeito vínculo de união". (Col 3:14) É o vínculo mais poderoso no Universo, sendo que o amor perfeito une inquebrantavelmente o Filho e o Pai. Por motivos similares, Deus podia confiar na sua organização de servos, sabendo que o amor manteria a maioria deles imutavelmente ligada a ele, sob prova, e que sua organização de criaturas nunca se afastaria dele na totalidade. — Sal 110:3.

Jesus Cristo. Estando, durante indizíveis eras, associado mui estreitamente com seu Pai, a Fonte do amor, e conhecendo-o de forma bem íntima e cabal, Jesus podia dizer: "Quem me tem visto, tem visto também o Pai." (Jo 14:9; Mt 11:27) Por conseguinte, o amor de Jesus é completo, perfeito. (Ef 3:19) Disse ele a seus discípulos: "Ninguém tem maior amor do que este, que alguém entregue a sua alma a favor de seus amigos." (Jo 15:13) Ele lhes dissera: "Eu vos dou um novo mandamento, que vos ameis uns aos outros; assim como eu vos amei, que também vos ameis uns aos outros." (Jo 13:34) Este mandamento era novo no sentido de que a Lei, sob a qual Jesus e seus discípulos estavam naquele tempo, ordenava à pessoa: "Tens de amar o teu próximo [ou semelhante] como a ti mesmo." (Le 19:18; Mt 22:39) Isso exigia amar a outros como a si mesmo, mas não um amor abnegado, a ponto de a pessoa dar sua própria vida em favor de outro. A vida e a morte de Jesus exemplificaram o amor exigido por este novo mandamento. Além de fazer o bem quando surge a ocasião, o seguidor de Cristo deve tomar a iniciativa, sob a direção de Cristo, de ajudar outros espiritualmente e de outros modos. Deve trabalhar ativamente para o bem deles. Pregar e ensinar as boas novas a outros, alguns dos quais talvez sejam inimigos, é uma das maiores expressões de amor, pois pode resultar em vida eterna para eles. O cristão precisa 'conferir, não só as boas novas de Deus, mas também a sua própria alma' ao ajudar os que aceitam as boas novas e trabalhar com eles. (1Te 2:8) E deve estar pronto para entregar sua alma (ou vida) em favor deles. — 1Jo 3:16.

Como se Vem a Ter Amor. O primeiro homem e a primeira mulher, por meio do espírito santo, foram criados com certa medida deste atributo dominante de Deus, a saber, o amor, e com a capacidade de ampliar, aumentar e enriquecer este amor. O amor é um fruto do espírito de Deus. (Gál 5:22) O amor piedoso não é uma qualidade que a pessoa tem sem saber por que, como no caso de certas aptidões físicas ou mentais, tais como a beleza física, o talento musical e qualidades similares herdadas. O amor piedoso não pode existir na pessoa à parte do conhecimento a respeito de Deus e do serviço prestado a ele, ou à parte da meditação e do apreço. Somente por cultivar amor pode alguém tornar-se imitador de Deus, a Fonte do amor. (Sal 77:11; Ef 5:1, 2; Ro 12:2) Adão deixou de cultivar amor a Deus; não progrediu visando aperfeiçoar seu amor. Isto é indicado por ele não estar em união com Deus, vinculado a Deus por aquele perfeito vínculo de união. Não obstante, Adão, muito embora imperfeito e pecador, transmitiu à sua descendência, "à sua imagem", a habilidade e a capacidade de amar. (Gên 5:3) A humanidade em geral expressa amor, mas com frequência é um amor mal orientado, deteriorado e distorcido.

O amor pode ser mal orientado. Por estas razões, é evidente que o amor real, devidamente orientado, só resulta de se buscar e seguir o espírito de Deus e o conhecimento que provém de sua Palavra. À guisa de exemplo: um pai talvez sinta afeição por seu filho. Mas talvez permita que tal amor se deteriore ou seja mal orientado por causa de sentimentalismo, dando ao filho tudo e não lhe negando nada. Talvez não exerça sua autoridade parental em dar disciplina, e, às vezes, castigo real. (Pr 22:15) Tal suposto amor, na realidade, talvez seja orgulho da família, que é egoísmo. A Bíblia diz que tal pessoa não exerce amor, mas ódio, porque não segue o proceder que salvará a vida de seu filho. — Pr 13:24; 23:13, 14.

Este não é o amor que procede de Deus. O amor piedoso induz a pessoa a fazer o que é bom e benéfico para a outra pessoa. "O amor edifica." (1Co 8:1) O amor não é sentimentalismo. Ele é firme, forte, orientado pela sabedoria piedosa, aderindo em primeiro lugar àquilo que é casto, direito. (Tg 3:17) Deus demonstrou isso para com Israel, que ele puniu severamente pela desobediência, visando seu eterno bem-estar. (De 8:5; Pr 3:12; He 12:6) O apóstolo Paulo diz aos cristãos: "É para disciplina que estais perseverando. Deus vos trata como a filhos. Pois, que filho há a quem o pai não disciplina? . . . Outrossim, costumávamos ter pais, que eram da nossa carne, para nos disciplinar, e nós os respeitávamos. Não nos sujeitaremos muito mais ao Pai de nossa vida espiritual para vivermos? Pois eles costumavam disciplinar-nos por alguns dias, segundo o que lhes parecia bom, mas ele o faz para o nosso proveito, para participarmos de sua santidade. É verdade que nenhuma disciplina parece no momento ser motivo de alegria, mas sim de pesar; no entanto, depois dá fruto pacífico, a saber, a justiça, aos que têm sido treinados por ela." — He 12:7-11.

O conhecimento dá ao amor a orientação correta. O amor deve visar primeiro a Deus, acima de todos os outros. De outra forma, tornar-se-á mal orientado, e até mesmo levará à adoração duma criatura ou duma coisa. É essencial conhecer os propósitos de Deus, porque a pessoa saberá então o que é melhor para seu próprio bem-estar e o dos outros, e saberá como expressar amor no sentido correto. Nosso amor a Deus deve ser de 'todo coração, mente, alma e força'. (Mt 22:36-38; Mr 12:29, 30) Não deve ser apenas uma expressão externada, mas deve ser um amor que reflete o que a pessoa, como um todo, é no íntimo. O amor envolve as emoções. (1Pe 1:22) Mas, se a mente não estiver equipada com o conhecimento do que é o verdadeiro amor, e como ele age, o amor pode ser expresso na direção errada. (Je 10:23; 17:9; compare isso com Fil 1:9.) A mente tem de conhecer a Deus e suas qualidades, seus propósitos, e como Ele expressa amor. (1Jo 4:7) Em harmonia com isso, e visto que o amor é a qualidade mais importante, a dedicação a Deus é feita à pessoa do próprio Jeová (em quem o amor é a qualidade predominante), e não a uma obra ou causa. Daí, a alma, toda fibra do organismo da pessoa, tem de cumprir o amor; e toda a força da pessoa precisa ser aplicada nesse esforço.

O amor é expansivo. O verdadeiro amor, fruto do espírito de Deus, é expansivo. (2Co 6:11-13) Não é mesquinho, confinado ou circunscrito. Tem de ser partilhado para ser completo. A pessoa primeiro tem de amar a Deus (De 6:5), o Filho dele (Ef 6:24), e então a associação inteira de seus irmãos cristãos em todo o mundo (1Pe 2:17; 1Jo 2:10; 4:20, 21). O homem tem de amar a esposa, e ela ao marido. (Pr 5:18, 19; Ec 9:9; Ef 5:25, 28, 33) O amor deve ser estendido aos filhos. (Tit 2:4) Toda a humanidade, até mesmo os próprios inimigos da pessoa, devem ser amados, e devem-se praticar obras cristãs em favor deles. (Mt 5:44; Lu 6:32-36) A Bíblia, ao comentar os frutos do espírito, dos quais o amor é o primeiro, diz: "Contra tais coisas não há lei." (Gál 5:22, 23) Não há nenhuma lei que possa limitar tal amor. Ele pode ser praticado em qualquer tempo ou lugar, em qualquer medida, a favor daqueles a quem é devido. De fato, a única dívida que os cristãos deviam ter uns para com os outros é a do amor. (Ro 13:8) Este amor de uns para com os outros é um sinal identificador dos verdadeiros cristãos. — Jo 13:35.

Como o Amor Piedoso Age. O amor, tal como Deus é, é tão maravilhoso que é difícil de definir. É mais fácil dizer como ele age. Na explanação seguinte, desta excelente qualidade, considerar-se-á sua aplicação aos cristãos. O apóstolo Paulo, ao escrever sobre o assunto, destaca primeiro quão essencial ele é para o crente cristão, e então pormenoriza como ele age altruisticamente: "O amor é longânime e benigno. O amor não é ciumento, não se gaba, não se enfuna, não se comporta indecentemente, não procura os seus próprios interesses, não fica encolerizado. Não leva em conta o dano. Não se alegra com a injustiça, mas alegra-se com a verdade. Suporta todas as coisas, acredita todas as coisas, espera todas as coisas, persevera em todas as coisas." — 1Co 13:4-7.

"O amor é longânime e benigno." Suporta condições desfavoráveis e ações erradas de outros, fazendo isso com um objetivo, a saber, produzir a derradeira salvação daqueles que erram ou de outros envolvidos nas circunstâncias, bem como, no fim, defender a soberania de Jeová. (2Pe 3:15) O amor é benigno, não importa qual a provocação. Rudeza ou aspereza por parte dum cristão para com outros não resultaria em nenhum bem. Não obstante, o amor pode ser firme e agir em justiça a favor do que é direito. Aqueles que têm autoridade poderão disciplinar transgressores, mas, mesmo assim, deverão usar de benignidade. Não ser benigno não beneficiaria nem o conselheiro desamoroso, nem aquele que faz a injustiça, mas poderia afastar este ainda mais do arrependimento e das obras corretas. — Ro 2:4; Ef 4:32; Tit 3:4, 5.

"O amor não é ciumento." Não inveja as coisas boas que outros recebem. Alegra-se quando vê seu próximo receber um cargo de maior responsabilidade. Não se ressente nem mesmo quando inimigos da pessoa recebem coisas boas. É generoso. Deus faz chover sobre justos e injustos. (Mt 5:45) Os servos de Deus que têm amor estão contentes com o seu quinhão (1Ti 6:6-8) e a sua posição, não saindo do seu lugar, nem procurando egoistamente o cargo ocupado por outro. Satanás, o Diabo, por egoísmo e inveja, saiu do seu lugar, desejando até mesmo que Jesus Cristo o adorasse. — Lu 4:5-8.

O amor "não se gaba, não se enfuna". Não procura o aplauso e a admiração de criaturas. (Sal 75:4-7; Ju 16) Quem tem amor não rebaixará outro, a fim de fazer a si próprio parecer maior. Antes, enaltecerá a Deus, e encorajará e edificará sinceramente os outros. (Ro 1:8; Col 1:3-5; 1Te 1:2, 3) Sentir-se-á feliz de ver outro cristão progredir. E não se gabará do que pretende fazer. (Pr 27:1; Lu 12:19, 20; Tg 4:13-16) Dar-se-á conta de que tudo o que ele faz se deve à força provinda de Jeová. (Sal 34:2; 44:8) Jeová disse a Israel: "Quem se jacta, jacte-se da seguinte coisa: de ter perspicácia e de ter conhecimento de mim, que eu sou Jeová, Aquele que usa de benevolência, de juízo e de justiça na terra; porque é destas coisas que me agrado." — Je 9:24; 1Co 1:31.

O amor "não se comporta indecentemente". Não é mal-educado. Não se entrega a comportamento indecente, tais como abusos sexuais ou conduta chocante. Não é rude, vulgar, descortês, insolente, grosseiro ou desrespeitoso para com os outros. Quem tem amor evitará, na aparência ou nas ações, fazer algo que perturbe seus irmãos cristãos. Paulo instruiu a congregação em Corinto: "Que todas as coisas ocorram decentemente e por arranjo." (1Co 14:40) O amor também induzirá a pessoa a andar honrosamente à vista daqueles que não são crentes cristãos. — Ro 13:13; 1Te 4:12; 1Ti 3:7.

O amor "não procura os seus próprios interesses". Segue o princípio: "Que cada um persista em buscar, não a sua própria vantagem, mas a da outra pessoa." (1Co 10:24) É nisso que se revela a preocupação com o bem-estar eterno dos outros. Esta sincera preocupação pelos outros é uma das mais fortes forças motivadoras no amor, bem como uma das mais eficientes e benéficas nos seus resultados. Aquele que tem tal amor não exige que tudo seja feito do seu modo. Paulo disse: "Para os fracos tornei-me fraco, para ganhar os fracos. Tornei-me todas as coisas para pessoas de toda sorte, para de todos os modos salvar alguns. Mas, faço todas as coisas pela causa das boas novas, para tornar-me compartilhador delas com outros." (1Co 9:22, 23) O amor tampouco demanda os seus "direitos"; preocupa-se mais com o bem-estar espiritual da outra pessoa. — Ro 14:13, 15.

O amor "não fica encolerizado". Não procura um motivo ou um pretexto para ficar encolerizado. Não é dado a acessos de ira, os quais são obras da carne. (Gál 5:19, 20) Aquele que tem amor não se ofende facilmente com aquilo que outros dizem ou fazem. Não teme que a sua "dignidade" pessoal seja prejudicada.

O amor "não leva em conta o dano". (Literalmente, não "toma em conta a coisa má"; Int.) Não se considera prejudicado, lançando assim este prejuí-zo como que 'num livro de contabilidade', a ser ajustado ou pago no tempo devido, e não permitindo no ínterim nenhum relacionamento entre o prejudicador e o prejudicado. Este seria um espírito vingativo, condenado na Bíblia. (Le 19:18; Ro 12:19) O amor não atribuirá má motivação a outros, mas estará inclinado a fazer concessões e a não estar duvidando dos outros. — Ro 14:1, 5.

O amor "não se alegra com a injustiça, mas alegra-se com a verdade". O amor alegra-se com a verdade, mesmo que ela contrarie anteriores crenças ou declarações. Apega-se à Palavra da verdade de Deus. Sempre toma o lado do que é direito, não se deleitando com o erro, com mentiras ou com qualquer forma de injustiça, não importa quem seja a vítima, mesmo que seja um inimigo. Entretanto, quando algo é errado ou desencaminhador, o amor não teme expressar-se nos interesses da verdade e dos outros. (Gál 2:11-14) Também, prefere antes sofrer o mal do que cometer outro mal na tentativa de resolver uma questão. (Ro 12:17, 20) Mas, quando outro é devidamente corrigido por alguém de autoridade, a pessoa amorosa não tomará sentimentalmente partido com o censurado, criticando a correção ou a pessoa autorizada que a deu. Tal ação não seria uma expressão de amor à pessoa. Poderá granjear o favor do corrigido, mas o prejudicaria em vez de o ajudar.

O amor "suporta todas as coisas". Está disposto a perseverar, a sofrer pela causa da justiça. Uma tradução literal é "todas as coisas ele está cobrindo". (Int) Quem tem amor será vagaroso em expor a outros aquele que o prejudica. Se a ofensa não for muito séria, ele a desconsiderará. Senão, quando o proceder recomendado por Jesus em Mateus 18:15-17 for aplicável, ele o adotará. Em tais casos, se o outro pedir perdão, depois de se lhe expor em particular o erro, e se ele compensar o dano, aquele que tem amor mostrará que seu perdão é real, que este cobriu completamente a questão, assim como Deus fez. — Pr 10:12; 17:9; 1Pe 4:7, 8.

O amor "acredita todas as coisas". O amor tem fé nas coisas que Deus disse na sua Palavra de verdade, mesmo que as aparências externas sejam contrárias a elas e o mundo descrente zombe. Este amor, especialmente para com Deus, é um reconhecimento da veracidade Dele, baseado nos Seus antecedentes de fidelidade e confiabilidade, assim como conhecemos e amamos o verdadeiro amigo fiel e não duvidamos quando ele nos diz algo para o qual talvez não tenhamos prova. (Jos 23:14) O amor acredita tudo o que Deus diz, mesmo que talvez não seja capaz de compreendê-lo cabalmente, e está disposto a esperar com paciência até que o assunto seja explicado mais plenamente ou até que se obtenha um entendimento claro. (1Co 13:9-12; 1Pe 1:10-13) O amor confia também na orientação, por Deus, da congregação cristã e dos seus servos designados, e apoia as decisões deles baseadas na Palavra de Deus. (1Ti 5:17; He 13:17) No entanto, o amor não é crédulo, pois acata o conselho da Palavra de Deus, de 'provar as expressões inspiradas para ver se se originam de Deus', e testa tudo pela régua da Bíblia. (1Jo 4:1; At 17:11, 12) O amor faz com que se tenha confiança nos fiéis irmãos cristãos; o cristão não suspeita deles, nem descrê deles a menos que haja prova absoluta de que estão errados. — 2Co 2:3; Gál 5:10; Flm 21.

O amor "espera todas as coisas". Nutre esperança em todas as coisas que Jeová prometeu. (Ro 12:12; He 3:6) Continua a trabalhar, aguardando pacientemente que Jeová produza frutos, faça as coisas crescer. (1Co 3:7) Quem tem amor espera o melhor para os seus irmãos cristãos, não importa em que circunstâncias se encontrem, mesmo que alguns talvez sejam fracos na fé. Dá-se conta de que, se Jeová é paciente com tais fracos, ele certamente deve adotar a mesma atitude. (2Pe 3:15) E continua a auxiliar aqueles que ele ajuda a aprender a verdade, esperando e aguardando que sejam induzidos pelo espírito de Deus a servir a Ele.

O amor "persevera em todas as coisas". Requer amor para o cristão manter a sua integridade para com Jeová Deus. Apesar do que o Diabo possa fazer para testar a solidez da devoção e da fidelidade do cristão a Deus, o amor persevera dum modo que mantém o cristão fiel a Deus. — Ro 5:3-5; Mt 10:22.

"O amor nunca falha." Ele nunca acaba, nem deixa de existir. Conhecimento e entendimento novos talvez corrijam coisas que antes acreditávamos; as esperanças variam ao passo que as coisas esperadas se realizam e se esperam novas coisas, mas o amor sempre permanece na sua plenitude e continua a ser edificado cada vez mais forte. — 1Co 13:8-13.

"Tempo para Amar." O amor só é negado àqueles que Jeová mostra serem indignos dele, ou aos que empedernidamente seguem um proceder de maldade. O amor é estendido a todas as pessoas até que elas revelem que odeiam a Deus. Daí vem o tempo para que finde a expressão de amor para com elas. Tanto Jeová Deus como Jesus Cristo amam a justiça e odeiam o que é contra a lei. (Sal 45:7; He 1:9) Os que odeiam intensamente o Deus verdadeiro não são pessoas para com as quais se deva demonstrar amor. Deveras, não se faria nenhum bem em continuar a exercer amor para com tais, porque aqueles que odeiam a Deus não corresponderão ao amor de Deus. (Sal 139:21, 22; Is 26:10) Por conseguinte, Deus corretamente os odeia e tem um tempo para agir contra eles. — Sal 21:8, 9; Ec 3:1, 8.

Coisas Que não se Deve Amar. O apóstolo João escreve: "Não estejais amando nem o mundo, nem as coisas no mundo. Se alguém amar o mundo, o amor do Pai não está nele; porque tudo o que há no mundo — o desejo da carne, e o desejo dos olhos, e a ostentação dos meios de vida da pessoa — não se origina do Pai, mas origina-se do mundo." (1Jo 2:15, 16) Ele diz mais adiante: "O mundo inteiro jaz no poder do iníquo." (1Jo 5:19) Assim sendo, aqueles que amam a Deus odeiam todo proceder mau. — Sal 101:3; 119:104, 128; Pr 8:13; 13:5.

Ao passo que a Bíblia mostra que o marido e a esposa devem amar-se mutuamente, e que tal amor inclui a relação conjugal (Pr 5:18, 19; 1Co 7:3-5), ela indica o erro da prática carnal, mundana, do amor sexual para com alguém que não é seu cônjuge. (Pr 7:18, 19, 21-23) Outra coisa do mundo é o materialismo, o "amor ao dinheiro" (fi·lar·gy·ri·a, literalmente, "gosto pela prata"; Int), que é raiz de toda sorte de coisas prejudiciais. — 1Ti 6:10; He 13:5.

Jesus Cristo advertiu contra buscar receber glória de homens. Ele denunciou duramente os líderes religiosos hipócritas dos judeus, que gostavam de orar em pé nas sinagogas e nas esquinas das ruas largas, para ficarem visíveis aos homens e que amavam os lugares destacados nas refeições noturnas e os primeiros lugares nas sinagogas. Indicou que eles já tinham recebido plenamente sua recompensa, aquilo que amavam e desejavam, a saber, a honra e a glória da parte dos homens; portanto, nenhuma recompensa lhes era devida da parte de Deus. (Mt 6:5; 23:2, 5-7; Lu 11:43) O registro reza: "Muitos dos próprios governantes depositavam realmente fé [em Jesus], mas, por causa dos fariseus, não o confessavam, a fim de que não fossem expulsos da sinagoga; pois amavam mais a glória dos homens do que mesmo a glória de Deus." — Jo 12:42, 43; 5:44.

Jesus, ao falar a seus discípulos, disse: "Quem estiver afeiçoado [fi·lón] à sua alma, destruí-la-á, mas quem odiar a sua alma neste mundo, protegê-la-á para a vida eterna." (Jo 12:23-25) Quem preferir proteger sua vida agora, ao invés de se dispor a entregar sua vida como seguidor de Cristo, não ganhará a vida eterna, mas quem considerar a vida no mundo atual como secundária e amar a Jeová e a Cristo, bem como a justiça deles, acima de tudo o mais, obterá a vida eterna.

Deus odeia os mentirosos, pois eles não têm amor à verdade. Ele declarou ao apóstolo João em visão: "Lá fora [da cidade santa, a Nova Jerusalém] estão os cães e os que praticam o espiritismo, e os fornicadores, e os assassinos, e os idólatras, e todo aquele que gosta [fi·lón] da mentira e a pratica." — Re 22:15; 2Te 2:10-12.

O Amor da Pessoa Pode Esfriar. Jesus Cristo, ao falar aos seus discípulos a respeito das coisas à frente, indicou que o amor (a·gá·pe) de muitos dos que professassem crer em Deus se esfriaria. (Mt 24:3, 12) O apóstolo Paulo disse que, como um aspecto dos tempos críticos a virem, os homens se tornariam "amantes do dinheiro". (2Ti 3:1, 2) Portanto, é evidente que se pode perder de vista os princípios corretos e que o amor apropriado que se tinha pode desvanecer-se. Isto destaca a importância do constante exercício e desenvolvimento do amor por meio da meditação na Palavra de Deus e por a pessoa ajustar a sua vida aos princípios Dele. — Ef 4:15, 22-24.

AMOR LEAL. Veja BONDADE.

AMOREIRA-PRETA [gr.: sy·ká·mi·nos]. Também chamada árvore-sicamina, ou sicaminos, esta árvore só é mencionada uma vez, na declaração de Jesus aos apóstolos a respeito da fé deles. (Lu 17:5, 6 n.) A palavra grega usada era aplicada regularmente à amoreira, e a amoreira-preta (Morus nigra) é cultivada comumente em Israel. É uma árvore robusta, que atinge a altura de uns 6 m, possuindo grandes folhas cordiformes, e frutos de cor vermelho-escura ou negra, que se assemelham aos da amora-preta.

AMORREU. O "amorreu" aparece alistado entre os filhos de Canaã, mas, em outras partes, este termo, sempre no singular no texto hebraico, é usado coletivamente para a tribo cananeia que descendeu do amorreu original. Eram, portanto, uma raça camita. — Gên 10:6, 15, 16; 1Cr 1:13, 14.

No tempo de Abraão, o rei de Elão em coalizão com mais três reis atacou ao S de Canaã e derrotou alguns dos amorreus que moravam em Hazazom-Tamar, que se julga ter ficado ao SO do Mar Morto. Três amorreus que moravam em Hébron, ou nas cercanias, eram então "confederados de Abrão", e, como tais, ajudaram-no a perseguir e a derrotar os reis invasores, destarte resgatando o sobrinho dele, Ló. (Gên 14) Ainda assim, algum tempo depois disso, Deus avisou a Abraão que, quando o erro dos amorreus finalmente 'se completasse', os descendentes de Abraão voltariam para Canaã, vindo de uma terra estrangeira, e tomariam posse da terra dos amorreus. — Gên 15:13-21.

Pouco antes da morte de Jacó, no Egito, esse patriarca prometeu a José: "Deveras te dou uma lombada de terra mais do que a teus irmãos, tendo-a eu tomado da mão dos amorreus com a minha espada e com o meu arco." (Gên 48:22) Visto que a palavra traduzida "lombada" neste texto é shekhém em hebraico, alguns afirmam que Jacó se referia aqui ao terreno que comprara, perto de Siquém (hebr.: Shekhém). (Gên 33:18, 19) Todavia, esta compra foi uma transação pacífica, e não existe nenhum registro de qualquer batalha travada por Jacó em relação com esta terra. Ao passo que os filhos de Jacó, mais tarde, de fato lançaram um ataque selvagem contra o povo de Siquém, Jacó negou responsabilidade por tal ação naquela ocasião (Gên 34:30); e no seu leito de morte, amaldiçoou a ira de Simeão e de Levi, que tinha motivado tal ataque. (Gên 49:5-7) Assim, parece mais razoável compreender a promessa de Jacó como declaração profética, em que visualizou, pela fé, a conquista futura de Canaã como se já tivesse sido efetuada, Jacó 'tomando a terra dos amorreus' de forma indireta pela espada e pelo arco de seus descendentes.

Tribo Dominante em Canaã. Alguns comentadores acham que o termo "amorreus", conforme usado em Gênesis 15:16 e 48:22, representa os povos de Canaã como um todo. De fato, os amorreus parecem ter sido a tribo principal ou dominante em Canaã, na época do Êxodo israelita do Egito. (Veja De 1:6-8, 19-21, 27; Jos 24:15, 18; Jz 6:10.) Neste caso, seria compreensível que, às vezes, outras tribos subordinadas e aparentadas fossem mencionadas sob o nome da tribo dominante dos amorreus. Assim, em Números 14:44, 45, o relato declara que "amalequitas" e "cananeus" impuseram aos israelitas a sua primeira derrota militar, ao passo que a recapitulação dos eventos por Moisés, em Deuteronômio, capítulo 1, simplesmente diz que "os amorreus" impuseram esta derrota. (De 1:44) Do mesmo modo, diz-se que Jerusalém fora governada por um rei amorreu, em Josué 10:5 (compare isso com Ez 16:3, 45), mas em outra parte se mostra que fora habitada por jebuseus. (Jos 15:8, 63; Jz 1:21; compare isso também com o caso de Gibeão, em Jos 9:7 e 2Sa 21:2.) De maneira similar, o nome de uma só tribo da nação de Israel, Judá, veio a ser aplicado a todos os israelitas pelo apelativo de "judeus".

Todavia, os amorreus também são alistados separadamente entre as tribos cananeias independentes. (Êx 3:8; 23:23, 24; 34:11-15) Eles constituíam uma das "sete nações mais populosas e mais fortes" do que Israel, todas devotadas à destruição, com as quais Israel não devia fazer nenhum pacto, nem formar alianças matrimoniais, nem participar na adoração falsa. — De 7:1-4.

Os 12 espias que Moisés enviou a Canaã encontraram a região montanhosa ocupada por amorreus, hititas e jebuseus, ao passo que os amalequitas residiam no Negebe e os cananeus moravam junto ao mar e ao Jordão. (Núm 13:1, 2, 29) Como anteriormente, no tempo de Abraão, os amorreus ainda residiam em Hébron, bem como em outras cidades nas montanhas ao O do Jordão. (Jos 10:5) No entanto, na época do Êxodo de Israel, tinham invadido os territórios moabita e amonita ao L do Jordão, apossando-se da região desde o vale da torrente do Árnon ao S (daí em diante a fronteira de Moabe), até o vale da torrente do Jaboque ao N (a fronteira de Amom). (Núm 21:13, 24, 26; Jos 12:2; Jz 11:22) Este era o domínio do rei amorreu Síon, descrito por Josefo, o historiador judaico, como "uma região situada entre três rios [o Jordão, o Árnon e o Jaboque], que lhe dão a natureza duma ilha". (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], IV, 95 [v, 2]) Além disso, ao N do domínio de Síon havia outro reino amorreu, centralizado em Basã, sob o Rei Ogue. A fronteira meridional deste reino parece ter sido contígua aos territórios de Síon e dos amonitas, estendendo-se assim desde o Jaboque, ao S, até o monte Hermom, ao N. — De 3:1, 8.

Conquista por Israel. Aproximando-se da Terra da Promessa, e estando sob as ordens divinas de não invadir os territórios de Moabe e de Amom (De 2:9, 37), os israelitas solicitaram uma licença de livre trânsito ao Rei Síon, na sua capital, Hésbon, oferecendo estritas garantias: "Deixa-me passar pela tua terra. Não nos desviaremos nem para um campo, nem para um vinhedo. De nenhum poço beberemos água. Marcharemos pela estrada real até termos passado pelo teu território." Síon, ao invés, atacou Israel com suas forças conjuntas e foi sumariamente derrotado a pouca distância de Hésbon, em Jaaz, todo o seu território caindo na posse dos israelitas. (Núm 21:21-32; De 2:24-36; veja SÍON.) Invadindo o vizinho território do Rei Ogue, Israel também venceu esse governante amorreu, capturando 60 cidades fortificadas. (Núm 21:33-35; De 3:1-7; veja OGUE.) A queda desses poderosos reinos amorreus diante de Israel fez com que um pavor mórbido permeasse Moabe (Núm 22:2-4), e também o povo de Canaã, segundo revelado pelas palavras de Raabe aos espias israelitas. (De 2:24, 25; Jos 2:9-11) O território dos dois reis amorreus derrotados tornou-se então a herança das tribos de Rubem e de Gade, e da metade da tribo de Manassés. — Núm 32:31-33, 39; De 3:8-13.

Quanto aos amorreus ao O do Jordão, "começaram a derreter-se os seus corações" ao ouvirem falar da travessia milagrosa dos israelitas pelo Jordão. Este milagre, combinado com as esmagadoras vitórias que Israel já obtivera, talvez expliquem, em parte, por que os amorreus não fizeram nenhum ataque contra o acampamento israelita no período subsequente, em que os varões israelitas foram circuncidados, nem enquanto se celebrava a Páscoa. (Jos 5:1, 2, 8, 10) No entanto, depois da destruição de Jericó e de Ai, formou-se uma aliança maciça das tribos de Canaã, a fim de apresentar uma frente unida contra Israel. (Jos 9:1, 2) Quando os homens heveus de Gibeão preferiram procurar a paz com Israel, foram prontamente atacados por "cinco reis dos amorreus", e somente escaparam da destruição graças à marcha, por toda a noite, das forças de Josué, e à intervenção miraculosa de Jeová. — Jos 10:1-27; 11:19.

Após essa batalha, e depois da subsequente campanha de Josué em todo o país, o poder dos amorreus no S da Palestina ficou evidentemente quebrantado. Ainda assim, os amorreus nas regiões setentrionais juntaram-se a outras tribos numa aliança que travou combate com Israel junto às "águas de Merom". Desastrosamente sobrepujados, os amorreus nunca mais são mencionados como constituindo grande perigo para Israel. (Jos 11:1-9) Remanesceu um restante, mas o seu território ficara grandemente reduzido, e, no decorrer do tempo, foram submetidos a trabalhos forçados sob o domínio israelita. (Jos 13:4; Jz 1:34-36) As amorreias foram tomadas como esposas pelos israelitas, resultando em apostasia (Jz 3:5, 6), e os amorreus em geral parecem ter criado dificuldades por certo tempo, pois se menciona que, nos dias de Samuel, depois duma decisiva derrota dos filisteus, "veio a haver paz entre Israel e os amorreus". (1Sa 7:14) Os amorreus estavam novamente entre os que foram postos sob trabalhos forçados no reinado de Salomão. (1Rs 9:20, 21) Sua idolatria e iniquidade, evidentemente representativas das de todos os cananeus, eram proverbiais. (1Rs 21:26; 2Rs 21:11) Tomar esposas amorreias ainda constituía espinhoso problema entre os israelitas que voltaram após o exílio babilônico. (Esd 9:1, 2) Por fim, contudo, o povo amorreu, certa vez o mais destacado de todos os de Canaã, deixou de existir completamente, como uma árvore alta, maciça, que teve seus frutos removidos e suas raízes destruídas. — Am 2:9, 10.

Os "Amurru". Historiadores seculares regularmente associam os amorreus da Bíblia com o povo chamado amurru em antigos textos cuneiformes acadianos (assírio-babilônicos). Os amurru são representados como invadindo a Mesopotâmia no começo do segundo milênio AEC e como tendo tido um reino em Babilônia durante vários séculos. Hamurábi, famoso legislador daquele período, muitas vezes é mencionado como sendo de origem "amorreia".

A evidência a respeito dos amurru, porém, não parece justificar as fortes conclusões apresentadas quanto à sua identificação positiva com os amorreus da Bíblia. Amurru, nos antigos textos cuneiformes, basicamente significa "oeste", como referindo-se à região ao O da Mesopotâmia. A. H. Sayce, em The International Standard Bible Encyclopedia (Enciclopédia Bíblica Padrão Internacional), diz que o nome amurru é "uma indicação puramente geográfica de suas origens imediatas, da perspectiva da Mesopotâmia, e não transmite nenhuma informação sobre a sua composição étnica ou sobre o seu verdadeiro nome". (Editada por G. W. Bromiley, 1979, Vol. 1, p. 113) Ao passo que Mari, uma antiga cidade junto ao Eufrates, na Mesopotâmia setentrional, é mencionada por hodiernos historiadores seculares como centro da expansão dos amurru para a Mesopotâmia, os milhares de tabuinhas recuperadas ali estão quase todas na língua acadiana semítica (assírio-babilônica), com alguns nomes de origem semítica ocidental. Conforme observado, porém, os amorreus bíblicos eram camitas, não semitas, e embora não seja impossível que algum ramo deles tenha adotado a língua semítica, é igualmente possível que os primitivos amurru eram simplesmente "ocidentais" dentre os povos semíticos que moravam ao O de Babilônia. O Professor John Bright, em A History of Israel (Uma História de Israel, 1981, p. 49), diz: "Durante alguns séculos [de fins do terceiro milênio e começo do segundo milênio AEC], o povo do noroeste da Mesopotâmia e do norte da Síria tinha sido mencionado em textos cuneiformes como Amurru, i.e., 'Ocidentais'. Evidentemente, este se tornou o termo geral aplicado aos que falavam os diversos dialetos semíticos do noroeste, encontrados na região, incluindo, com toda a probabilidade, aquelas estirpes das quais mais tarde surgiram tanto os hebreus como os arameus."

AMÓS [Ser Uma Carga; Levar Uma Carga].

1. Profeta de Jeová e escritor do livro que leva seu nome, que viveu no nono século AEC. (Veja AMÓS, LIVRO DE.) Não nasceu, porém, como filho dum profeta, nem era um dos "filhos dos profetas". — 1Rs 20:35; 2Rs 2:3; 4:1; Am 7:14.

Ele era da cidade de Tecoa, a cerca de 16 km ao S de Jerusalém, numa elevação de cerca de 820 m. Ao L, descendo para o Mar Morto, que jazia cerca de 1.200 m abaixo, estava o desolado ermo de Judá, onde, no início da sua vida, o profeta achou emprego como humilde criador de ovelhas. (Am 1:1) A palavra hebraica no·qedhím, aqui traduzida "criadores de ovelhas", só ocorre em mais um lugar na Bíblia (2Rs 3:4), e está relacionada com naqqad, palavra árabe para uma raça especial de ovelhas, um tanto desgraciosa, mas de grande valor, por causa do seu velocino. Lá naquela região selvagem, Amós também se empenhava em trabalhos servis temporários como riscador de figos de sicômoros, uma variedade considerada alimento apenas para os pobres. O costume de riscar ou pungir os figos destinava-se a apressar seu amadurecimento, e aumentar o tamanho e a doçura dos frutos. — Amós 7:14; veja SICÔMORO.

Semelhante ao pastor Davi, que foi chamado ao serviço público por Deus, assim também "Jeová passou a tomar [Amós] de atrás do rebanho", e fez dele profeta. — Am 7:15.

Da solidão do ermo no sul, Amós foi enviado ao idólatra reino de dez tribos, no norte, com sua capital Samaria.

Amós começou sua carreira como profeta dois anos antes do grande terremoto que ocorreu no reinado de Uzias, rei de Judá. Ao mesmo tempo, Jeroboão II, filho de Joás, era rei de Israel. (Am 1:1) Por conseguinte, a profecia de Amós se situa em algum tempo do período de 26 anos, de 829 a cerca de 804 AEC, quando os reinados destes dois reis, de Judá e de Israel, coincidiram. O grande terremoto, que ocorreu dois anos depois de Amós ter sido comissionado como profeta, foi de tal magnitude que, quase 300 anos depois, Zacarias fez menção especial dele. — Za 14:5.

É incerto por quanto tempo Amós serviu qual profeta no reino setentrional. Amazias, o iníquo sacerdote adorador de bezerros, da religião estatal centralizada em Betel, tentou expulsá-lo do país, à base de que ele era uma ameaça para a segurança do estado. (Am 7:10-13) Não se revela se Amazias teve êxito nisso. De qualquer modo, ao se cumprir a missão profética de Amós junto a Israel, ele presumivelmente voltou ao seu território tribal nativo de Judá. Jerônimo e Eusébio relatam que o sepulcro do profeta, nos dias deles, estava localizado em Tecoa. Também parece que, depois de retornar a Judá, Amós assentou por escrito a profecia que de início fora proferida oralmente. Ele é com frequência chamado de um dos 12 profetas "menores" (seu livro sendo catalogado em 3.º lugar entre os 12), todavia, a mensagem que proferiu de modo algum é de pouca significância.

2. Um dos antepassados de Jesus, a oitava geração antes de Maria. — Lu 3:25.

AMÓS, LIVRO DE. A profecia deste livro hebraico da Bíblia foi dirigida primariamente ao reino setentrional de Israel. Pelo que parece, foi primeiro proferida oralmente, durante os reinados de Jeroboão II e de Uzias, respectivamente reis de Israel e Judá, cujos reinados coincidiram entre 829 e cerca de 804 AEC. (Am 1:1) Por volta de 804 AEC foi assentada por escrito, presumivelmente após o profeta voltar a Judá. Quanto a pormenores sobre o próprio profeta, veja AMÓS N.º 1.

A canonicidade deste livro, ou sua reivindicação de um legítimo lugar na Bíblia, jamais foi questionada. Desde os tempos primitivos, foi aceito pelos judeus, e aparece nos mais antigos catálogos cristãos. Justino, o Mártir, do segundo século EC, citou Amós em seu Dialogue With Trypho, a Jew (Diálogo com Trífon, um Judeu, cap. XXII). O próprio livro se acha em completo acordo com o restante da Bíblia, conforme indicado pelas muitas referências do escritor à história bíblica e às leis de Moisés. (Am 1:11; 2:8-10; 4:11; 5:22, 25; 8:5) Os cristãos do primeiro século aceitavam os escritos de Amós como Escritura inspirada. Por exemplo, o mártir Estêvão (At 7:42, 43; Am 5:25-27), e Tiago, meio-irmão de Jesus (At 15:13-19; Am 9:11, 12), mencionaram o cumprimento de algumas das profecias.

Outros eventos históricos atestam, de forma similar, a veracidade do profeta. É fato histórico que todas as nações condenadas por Amós foram, no devido tempo, devoradas pelo fogo da destruição. A própria grandemente fortificada cidade de Samaria foi sitiada e capturada em 740 AEC, e o exército assírio levou os habitantes "para o exílio além de Damasco", conforme predito por Amós. (Am 5:27; 2Rs 17:5, 6) Judá, ao sul, recebeu igualmente a devida punição quando foi destruída em 607 AEC.

(Am 2:5) E, fiel à palavra de Jeová mediante Amós, descendentes cativos tanto de Israel como de Judá voltaram em 537 AEC para reconstruir sua terra natal. — Am 9:14; Esd 3:1.

A arqueologia bíblica também confirma Amós como historiador fiel do seu tempo, quando, ao descrever o luxo ostentoso dos ricos, referiu-se a suas "casas de marfim" e a seus "leitos de marfim". (Am 3:15; 6:4) Comentando algumas destas descobertas, Jack Finegan declara: "É de grande interesse que se descobriram numerosos marfins na escavação de Samaria. Estes se acham, na maioria, em forma de placas ou pequenos painéis de relevo, e, presumivelmente, estavam certa vez presos à mobília e embutidos em painéis de parede." — Light From the Ancient Past (Luz do Passado Remoto), 1959, pp. 187, 188.

O espírito de Jeová moveu Amós a usar linguagem simples, direta e pitoresca de maneira dignificada, própria para um profeta de Deus. Palavras simples, palavras poderosas, palavras cheias de significado, foram escolhidas para que tanto os enaltecidos como os humildes pudessem entender e compreender o sentido do que ele disse. Ele usou uma variedade de ilustrações, algumas com sabor rural, para dar vitalidade e vigor à sua mensagem. (Am 2:13; 4:2; 9:9) Eventos históricos são lembrados com exatidão. (1:9, 11, 13; 4:11) Fazem-se alusões a práticas e costumes familiares do povo. (2:8; 6:4-6) O todo constitui uma composição bem ordenada, com forma e objetivo definidos.

Como um dos servos de Jeová, Amós magnificou a palavra e o nome, a justiça e a soberania do Todo-Poderoso. Ele descreve como "o Soberano Senhor, Jeová dos exércitos", é infinitamente grande, que nada está além do Seu alcance ou poder. (Am 9:2-5) Até mesmo o Sol, a Lua, as constelações e os elementos estão sujeitos às ordens de Jeová. (5:8; 8:9) Portanto, para Deus é uma questão pequena demonstrar sua supremacia sobre as nações. — 1:3-5; 2:1-3; 9:7.

Em harmonia com o significado de seu nome, Amós levou uma mensagem de peso, carregada de ais e de denúncias contra as nações pagãs, bem como contra Judá e Israel. Ele levou também uma consoladora mensagem de restauração, em que os fiéis a Jeová poderiam depositar sua esperança.

AMOZ [Forte]. Pai do profeta Isaías. — 2Rs 19:2; Is 1:1.

AMPLÍATO [do lat., significando "Ampliado"]. Amado irmão cristão da congregação em Roma, a quem o apóstolo Paulo mandou saudações. — Ro 16:8.

DESTAQUES DE AMÓS

Profecia dirigida especialmente a Israel, o reino setentrional de dez tribos, que tinha seus centros de adoração do bezerro em Dã e em Betel.

Escrito por volta de 804 AEC, enquanto Jeroboão II era rei em Israel.

A execução do julgamento de Jeová é certa, não só contra as nações circunvizinhas, mas especialmente contra Israel. (1:1–2:16)

- Síria, Filístia e Tiro, pelo tratamento cruel dado a Israel.
- Edom (aparentado por meio de Esaú) e Amom (aparentado por meio de Ló), por odiarem e maltratarem seus irmãos israelitas; Moabe, por queimar os ossos do rei de Edom para virarem cal.
- Judá, por rejeitar a lei de Jeová.
- Israel, por oprimir os pobres, por imoralidade, também por tratar com desrespeito os profetas e os nazireus suscitados por Deus; não há escapatória da punição divina.

A mensagem de julgamento de Jeová contra Israel. (3:1–6:14)

- Israel fora especialmente favorecido por Deus; isto resulta em responsabilidade especial.
- Quando Jeová revela seu propósito aos seus servos, estes profetizam; assim, Amós adverte que Jeová ajustará contas pelas práticas religiosas falsas em Betel e pelas defraudações feitas pelos amantes do luxo em Samaria.
- Israel não retornou a Jeová, apesar das punições já sofridas; agora advertido: "Apronta-te para te encontrares com o teu Deus."
- Mesmo ao advertir sobre ais vindouros, Jeová exorta: "Buscai-me e continuai vivendo", "odiai o que é mau e amai o que é bom".

Visões e profecias mostram que está próximo o fim de Israel. (7:1–8:14)

- Visão de desolação causada por gafanhotos; o profeta intercede.
- Visão de fogo destrutivo; Amós novamente intercede.
- Jeová testará Israel com um prumo; não há mais desculpa para Israel.
- Sacerdote de Betel manda Amós parar de profetizar ali; Amós profetiza calamidade para ele.
- Cesto de perecíveis frutas de verão, indicando que o fim de Israel está próximo.
- Fome de ouvir as palavras de Jeová.

Punição e restauração. (9:1-15)

- Não há lugar para onde escaparem; nada está fora do alcance do Soberano Senhor Jeová.
- A barraca (casa real) de Davi será reconstruída; cativos reajuntados usufruirão segurança duradoura.

ANA, I [Favor, Graciosidade]. Mãe do profeta Samuel. Ana vivia com Elcana, seu marido levita, juntamente com a outra esposa dele, Penina, em Ramataim-Zofim, na região montanhosa de Efraim. Apesar da longa esterilidade de Ana, em contraste com Penina, que teve vários filhos, Ana ainda era a esposa mais amada de Elcana. Penina zombava de Ana por causa da esterilidade dela, principalmente quando Elcana levava sua família para seu comparecimento anual no tabernáculo em Silo. — 1Sa 1:1-8.

Em certa visita a Silo, Ana fez um voto a Jeová de que, caso pudesse ter um filho, ela o daria a Jeová, para Seu serviço. Observando os lábios dela se moverem, enquanto ela orava inaudivelmente, Eli, o sumo sacerdote, de início suspeitou que ela tomara vinho demais e estava bêbeda. Mas ao saber do sóbrio fervor e da sinceridade dela, expressou o desejo de que Jeová Deus lhe concedesse o seu pedido. Deveras, pouco depois ela ficou grávida. Após dar à luz Samuel, ela só foi novamente a Silo depois de Samuel ser desmamado. Daí, ela o apresentou a Jeová, conforme prometera, levando uma oferta que consistia num touro de três anos, num efa de farinha e numa grande talha de vinho. (1Sa 1:9-28) Todo ano depois disso, quando ela ia a Silo, Ana levava uma nova túnica sem mangas para seu filho. Eli de novo a abençoou, e Jeová novamente lhe abriu a madre, de modo que, com o tempo, ela deu à luz três filhos e duas filhas. — 1Sa 2:18-21.

Observam-se em Ana várias qualidades desejáveis. Ela era dada a orações e era humilde, e desejava agradar seu marido. Todo ano, ela o acompanhava ao sacrifício no tabernáculo. Ela mesma fez um grande sacrifício, abrindo mão da companhia de seu filho, para cumprir sua palavra e mostrar apreço pela benignidade de Jeová. Continuava mostrando sua afeição materna, como indicado por fazer todo ano uma nova túnica para Samuel. As ideias expressas na sua oração de agradecimento, quando ela e Elcana apresentaram Samuel para o serviço do templo, são bem parecidas aos sentimentos expressos por Maria pouco depois de saber que viria a ser a mãe do Messias. — Lu 1:46-55.

ANA, II [do hebr., significando "Favor; Graciosidade"]. Profetisa, filha de Fanuel, da tribo de Aser. Seu nome é a forma grega de Hannah (Ana).

Ana se tornara viúva depois de apenas sete anos de vida conjugal, e, por ocasião da apresentação do menino Jesus ao templo, tinha 84 anos. Todavia, era constante em sua presença no templo, evidentemente desde o serviço matutino até o serviço vespertino, e, como resultado, teve o privilégio de ver o menino Jesus e dar testemunho a respeito dele. Seus "jejuns e súplicas" indicam uma atitude de pesar e de fervoroso anelo de sua parte. O período de sujeição judaica a outros, que já durava séculos, conjugado com as condições religiosas deteriorantes que atingiam até mesmo o templo e seu sacerdócio, bem podiam explicar isto. De qualquer modo, embora fosse provável que não esperasse estar viva quando o menino crescesse, ela então jubilosamente testemunhou a outros sobre a libertação a ser realizada mediante este vindouro Messias. — Lu 2:36-38.

ANÁ. Filho de Zibeão e pai de Oolibama, esposa de Esaú. (Gên 36:2, 14, 18, 20, 24, 25; 1Cr 1:34, 40, 41) Em Gênesis 36:2, o texto hebraico reza: "Oolibama, filha de Aná, filha de Zibeão." A Pesito siríaca, o Pentateuco samaritano e a Septuaginta grega todos rezam aqui "filho de Zibeão", em acordo com Gênesis 36:24, que mostra ser Aná filho de Zibeão. Algumas traduções modernas seguem esta versão e dizem "filho de Zibeão [Sebeon]" tanto no versículo 2 como no versículo 14. (BJ, MC, PIB) Entretanto, a palavra hebraica para "filha" permite aqui também o sentido mais amplo de neta, e assim pode aplicar-se antes a Oolibama do que a Aná. Por isso, a Tradução do Novo Mundo reza em Gênesis 36:2: "Oolibama, filha de Aná, neta de Zibeão, o heveu."

Alguns acham que o nome Aná aplica-se a duas pessoas, visto que no versículo 2 se fala de Aná como "heveu", ao passo que o Aná dos versículos 20 e 29 é chamado "horeu". Entretanto, se o termo "horeu" simplesmente significa "habitante de caverna", ele poderia ser usado para descrever os hábitos cavernícolas dos seiritas em vez de ser usado em sentido genealógico. A palavra "filhos", no versículo 20, parece assim ter o sentido mais generalizado de descendentes. Conforme declara a Cyclopædia de M'Clintock e Strong (1882, Vol. I, p. 212): "A intenção da genealogia claramente não é tanto a de dar a linhagem dos seiritas, como é enumerar aqueles descendentes que, por serem chefes de tribos, tiveram relações com os edomitas. Assim parece que Aná, de quem descendeu a esposa de Esaú, era chefe duma tribo independente de seu pai, e em pé de igualdade com aquela tribo."

ANÃ [possivelmente: Nuvem]. Um dos cabeças do povo de Israel, cujo representante, se não ele mesmo, junto com Neemias e outros, selaram a resolução nacional de servir fielmente a Jeová (455 AEC). — Ne 10:1, 26.

ANAARATE. Cidade da tribo de Issacar, evidentemente na parte oriental da planície de Jezreel. (Jos 19:18, 19) Sua exata localização é atualmente incerta.

ANABE [Uva]. Cidade na parte S da região colinosa de Judá da qual os gigantescos anaquins foram expulsos por Josué. (Jos 11:21; 15:48, 50) O lugar é identificado com Khirbet ʽAnab es-Saghireh, 1,5 km ao O de Edh Dhahiriya, aproximadamente a meio caminho entre Hébron e Berseba. O nome original da cidade talvez fosse Quiriate-Anabe, visto que textos egípcios aparentemente a mencionam como Qrtʽnb.

ANAÍAS [Jah Respondeu].

1. Um dos homens que estavam de pé à direita de Esdras quando ele leu a Lei para o povo, no primeiro dia do sétimo mês. Provavelmente era sacerdote ou príncipe. — Ne 8:2, 4.

2. Um dos cabeças do povo, cujo descendente, se não ele mesmo, atestaram o contrato de confissão, de Neemias. — Ne 10:1, 22.

ANAMELEQUE [possivelmente do babilônico, significando "Anu É Rei"]. Deidade dos sefarvitas, que se mostrou incapaz de livrá-los dos agressores assírios. (2Rs 18:34) A adoração de Anameleque incluía a revoltante prática de sacrificar crianças. — 2Rs 17:31.

ANAMIM. Descendentes camíticos de Mizraim. Visto que Mizraim tornou-se sinônimo de Egito, é provável que os anamins se estabelecessem ali ou naquela região. (Gên 10:13; 1Cr 1:11) Um texto cuneiforme do tempo de Sargão II, da Assíria (da segunda metade do oitavo século AEC), parece referir-se a eles sob o nome de "anami".

ANANI [possivelmente uma forma abreviada de Ananias]. Filho de Elioenai; descendente pós-exílico do Rei Davi. — 1Cr 3:24.

ANANIAS, I [Jah Me Respondeu].

1. Pai de Maaseias e avô de Azarias, que ajudou Neemias a reconstruir as muralhas de Jerusalém. — Ne 3:23.

2. Cidade habitada por membros da tribo de Benjamim após o retorno do exílio. (Ne 11:32) Acredita-se que seja a Betânia (el-ʽAzariyeh [El ʽEizariya]), 2,5 km a ESE do monte do templo em Jerusalém. — Veja BETÂNIA N.º 1.

ANANIAS, II [forma gr. do nome hebr. Hananiah (Hananias), significando "Jeová Tem Mostrado Favor; Jeová Tem Sido Clemente"].

1. Membro da primitiva congregação cristã de Jerusalém. Depois de Pentecostes de 33 EC, cuidou-se das necessidades físicas dos crentes que haviam ficado em Jerusalém por uma ajuda mútua entre os cristãos. Estabeleceu-se para este fim um fundo comum. Este foi sustentado por contribuições equivalentes ao preço de campos e de casas vendidos por membros da congregação e então voluntariamente doadas. (At 4:34-37) Ananias vendeu um campo, e, com o pleno conhecimento da sua esposa, apresentou uma parte do dinheiro obtido, mas aparentando entregar o pleno montante, sem dúvida para granjear certa medida de elogio e estima na congregação. No entanto, pelo dom especial de conhecimento, por meio do espírito, Pedro discerniu o fingimento dele, expondo-o como 'trapaceando o espírito santo e a Deus', e Ananias caiu e expirou. Quando os homens que o sepultaram voltaram depois de cerca de três horas, encontraram também a esposa dele, Safira, morta por tentar manter o mesmo fingimento. — At 5:1-10.

2. Discípulo cristão de Damasco. Depois da conversão de Saulo, Ananias recebeu uma visão na qual Jesus lhe deu o nome e o endereço de Saulo, com instruções de visitá-lo. Embora de começo hesitasse, por saber da ferrenha perseguição que Saulo movera aos cristãos, Ananias depois acatou isso e foi ver Saulo, fazendo com que este recuperasse a vista, informando-o sobre a comissão dele, de ser Testemunha de Deus, e providenciando o batismo dele. Saulo (Paulo), numa posterior defesa perante judeus opositores, referiu-se a Ananias como homem "reverente segundo a Lei, de boa reputação entre todos os judeus que moravam ali [em Damasco]". Visto que ele era cristão, tal elogio pelos judeus era deveras um testemunho notável quanto à conduta correta dele. — At 9:10-18; 22:12-16.

3. Sumo sacerdote judaico de aproximadamente 48 a 58 EC. Era filho de Nedebeus e foi designado para o cargo por Herodes, rei de Cálcis, irmão de Herodes Agripa I. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], de Josefo, XX, 103 [v, 2]) Foi mandado a Roma, em 52 EC, para ser julgado por causa de certas dificuldades surgidas entre os judeus e os samaritanos, mas foi absolvido por Cláudio I, o imperador.

Aproximadamente em 56 EC, quando presidia ao julgamento de Paulo perante o Sinédrio, Ananias ordenou que se batesse Paulo no rosto. Paulo reagiu a isto por predizer que Deus retribuiria tal ação errada, e referiu-se a Ananias como "parede caiada". Quando lhe chamaram a atenção por isso, Paulo desculpou-se como não estando cônscio de que a fonte da ordem de bater nele fosse o sumo sacerdote, e citou Êxodo 22:28, em reconhecimento de sua obrigação de mostrar o devido respeito. Alguns sugerem que a alegação de ignorância, por parte de Paulo, se devia a que a posição de Ananias como sumo sacerdote não estava legalmente confirmada, depois de sua volta de Roma, mas não há provas substanciais disso. Poderia simplesmente ser evidência adicional da visão deficiente de Paulo, como parece ser indicado em outros textos. A ordem de Ananias talvez fosse bastante breve e suficientemente carregada de emoção, de modo a tornar difícil que Paulo identificasse quem a dera. — At 23:2-5.

Depois do julgamento pelo Sinédrio, Ananias, acompanhado de certos anciãos e de um orador público, viajou para Cesareia, a fim de apresentar acusações contra Paulo perante o governador Félix. (At 24:1) Não se faz mais menção dele no registro bíblico. A história secular, porém, apresenta-o como uma pessoa orgulhosa e cruel, cuja conduta, tanto durante o período em que era sumo sacerdote, como nos anos que se seguiram à sua remoção, foi marcada pela ganância. Perto do início da revolta judaica de 66-70 EC, Ananias foi perseguido por elementos dentre a população judaica, por causa da sua colaboração com as autoridades romanas. Embora se ocultasse num aqueduto, foi descoberto e assassinado.

ANAQUE [provavelmente: Pescoço-comprido [quer dizer, de estatura alta]]. O nome era aplicado a uma tribo de homens extraordinariamente altos e talvez ao seu progenitor. Em Números 13:22 e 28, usa-se o artigo diante do nome em hebraico (ha·ʽAnáq). Se for o nome pessoal do filho de "Arba . . . o pai de Anaque" (Jos 15:13), o nome foi daí em diante também aplicado à progênie dele. (Compare Jos 15:14 com 14:15, onde Arba é chamado de "o grande homem entre os anaquins".) — Veja ANAQUINS.

ANAQUINS [Os de (Pertencentes a) Anaque]. Raça de pessoas de tamanho extraordinário que habitavam as regiões montanhosas de Canaã, bem como algumas áreas costeiras, especialmente no S delas. Em certo tempo, três homens destacados dos anaquins, Aimã, Sesai e Talmai, moravam em Hébron. (Núm 13:22) Foi aqui que os 12 espias hebreus viram pela primeira vez os anaquins, e 10 dos espias subsequentemente fizeram um relato atemorizante dessa experiência, alegando que tais homens eram descendentes dos nefilins antediluvianos, e que, em comparação com eles, os hebreus eram como "gafanhotos". (Núm 13:28-33; De 1:28) Sua elevada estatura resultou em serem usados como padrão de comparação ao se descrever até mesmo os homens gigantescos dentre os emins e os refains. Sua força, evidentemente, motivou o dito proverbial: "Quem se pode manter firme diante dos filhos de Anaque?" — De 2:10, 11, 20, 21; 9:1-3.

No avanço rápido de Josué através de Canaã, ele obteve vitórias sobre os anaquins nas regiões montanhosas, destruindo as cidades deles, mas outros continuaram nas cidades filisteias de Gaza, Asdode e Gate. O registro não declara se os anaquins eram aparentados com os filisteus, como alguns sugerem, ou apenas se associavam com eles. (Jos 11:21, 22) Mais tarde, Calebe solicitou a cidade de Hébron (ou Quiriate-Arba) e seu território, como Deus lhe prometera. (Jos 14:12-15; Núm 14:24) Parece que os anaquins se haviam restabelecido nessa região, talvez enquanto Josué e seu exército continuavam sua conquista nas partes setentrionais de Canaã, e, por isso, Calebe vira-se então obrigado a reconquistar esse território. — Jz 1:10, 20.

Textos de execração egípcios (em vasos de barro, em que os nomes dos inimigos do faraó eram inscritos e que eram então quebrados como maldição) talvez façam referência a uma tribo de Anaque, na Palestina, como Iy-ʽanaq.

ANÁS [do hebr., significa "Mostrando Favor; Benévolo (Gracioso)"].

Designado sumo sacerdote por volta de 6 ou 7 EC por Quirino, governador romano da Síria, serviu até cerca de 15 EC. (Lu 2:2) Anás era, por conseguinte, sumo sacerdote quando Jesus, aos 12 anos, deixou admirados os instrutores rabínicos no templo. (Lu 2:42-49) Anás foi removido do cargo de sumo sacerdote pelo procurador Valério Grato. Embora não mais dispusesse do título oficial, era bem evidente que continuava a exercer grande poder e influência como sumo sacerdote emérito e como voz predominante da hierarquia judaica. Cinco de seus filhos, bem como seu genro, Caifás, ocuparam, cada um por sua vez, o cargo de sumo sacerdote. Em vista da sua posição de destaque, Anás é corretamente classificado nas Escrituras como um dos principais sacerdotes. (Mt 26:3; Lu 3:2) Quando Jesus foi preso, ele foi primeiro levado a Anás, para interrogatório, e então enviado a Caifás, para julgamento. (Jo 18:13) O nome de Anás encabeça a lista dos principais oponentes dos apóstolos de Jesus Cristo. — At 4:6.

A rica e poderosa casa de Anás era da tribo de Levi, e a venda de sacrifícios no local do templo era uma de suas principais fontes de renda — razão bastante para que procurassem matar Jesus, que duas vezes purificou o templo, o qual eles tinham transformado num "covil de salteadores". (Jo 2:13-16; Mt 21:12, 13; Mr 11:15-17; Lu 19:45, 46) Um motivo adicional para o ódio que Anás tinha a Jesus e seus apóstolos era, provavelmente, o ensino de Jesus sobre a ressurreição, sendo prova viva dela a ressurreição de Lázaro, e a pregação e o ensino dessa mesma doutrina pelos apóstolos, porque, se Anás de fato era saduceu, ele não cria na ressurreição. — At 23:8; compare isso com 5:17.

ANATE.

1. Pai de Sangar, um dos juízes de Israel. — Jz 3:31; 5:6.

2. Uma das três principais deusas cananeias. Ela é apresentada tanto como irmã como qual esposa de Baal, e como símbolo de sexo lascivo e de guerra. Não há nenhuma evidência, porém, que mostre que o nome do pai de Sangar derivasse daquele da deusa Anate, embora as apostasias de Israel naquele período pudessem facultar isso. — Veja o caso de Gideão, em Jz 6:25-27.

ANATOTE.

1. Benjamita, filho de Bequer. — 1Cr 7:8.

2. Um dos cabeças do povo, cujo descendente, se não ele mesmo, atestou e selou um arranjo fidedigno nos dias de Neemias, de andar na vereda da verdadeira adoração de Jeová. — Ne 9:38; 10:1, 19.

3. Cidade levita no território de Benjamim. (Jos 21:17, 18; 1Cr 6:60) O nome subsiste no do pequeno povoado de ʽAnata, a menos de 5 km ao NNE de Jerusalém, ao passo que o lugar original tem sido identificado com Ras el-Kharrubeh, a cerca de 800 m a SO do povoado. De sua posição nas colinas, pode-se ter uma vista do vale do Jordão e da parte setentrional do Mar Salgado. Anatote era o domicílio de dois dos poderosos de Davi. (2Sa 23:27; 1Cr 12:3) Foi para Anatote que Salomão baniu Abiatar, assim pondo fim à linhagem de sumos sacerdotes da casa de Eli. (1Rs 2:26) Anatote era uma das cidades atingidas na linha de ataque dos exércitos assírios invasores. — Is 10:30.

Jeremias era de Anatote, mas tornou-se 'profeta sem honra' entre seu próprio povo, visto que ameaçaram sua vida por ele falar a mensagem da verdade de Jeová. (Je 1:1; 11:21-23; 29:27) Em resultado disso, Jeová predisse a calamidade para essa cidade, e ela sobreveio no tempo devido, quando Babilônia invadiu o país. (Je 11:21-23) Antes da queda de Jerusalém, Jeremias exerceu seus direitos legais de comprar o terreno de seu primo em Anatote, como sinal de que haveria uma restauração após o exílio. (Je 32:7-9) Entre o primeiro grupo de retornados do exílio, junto com Zorobabel, havia 128 homens de Anatote; e Anatote está incluída entre as cidades repovoadas, cumprindo assim a profecia de Jeremias. — Esd 2:23; Ne 7:27; 11:32.

ANATOTITA [De (Pertencente a) Anatote]. Habitante de Anatote, cidade sacerdotal no território de Benjamim. — 2Sa 23:27; 1Cr 11:28; 12:3; 27:12.

ANCIÃO. A palavra hebraica za·qén e a palavra grega pre·sbý·te·ros, que ambas significam "homem mais idoso (velho)" ou "ancião", não são usados apenas para se referir a pessoas de idade avançada (Gên 18:11; De 28:50; 1Sa 2:22; 1Ti 5:1, 2) ou à pessoa mais velha entre duas (Lu 15:25), mas também se aplicam, em sentido especial, aos que detêm uma posição de autoridade e responsabilidade numa comunidade ou nação. Este último sentido predomina tanto nas Escrituras Hebraicas como nas Gregas Cristãs.

O homem idoso era costumeiramente tido em alta estima, desde os tempos antigos, sendo respeitado por sua experiência e por seu conhecimento, e pela sabedoria e bom senso que tais podem proporcionar. Em muitas nações, as pessoas se sujeitavam à direção dos seus anciãos, quer aqueles que eram membros mais idosos da linhagem familiar, quer aqueles que se destacavam pelas suas qualidades de conhecimento e de sabedoria. Em resultado disso, a expressão "ancião" tinha um sentido duplo, aplicando-se quer em sentido físico, quer como designação duma posição ou dum cargo. As referências aos "anciãos ["dignitários", BJ] da terra do Egito" e aos "anciãos de Moabe e [aos] anciãos de Midiã" não abrangem todos os varões idosos daquelas nações, mas aplicam-se àqueles que serviam qual conselho para dirigir e orientar assuntos nacionais; eram os "príncipes [hebr.: sa·rím; "chefes", CBC]" daquelas nações. — Gên 50:7; Núm 22:4, 7, 8, 13-15; Sal 105:17, 21, 22.

Do mesmo modo, as expressões "os anciãos de Israel", "os anciãos da assembleia", os "anciãos do meu povo", "os anciãos do país", são usadas neste sentido oficial, não se aplicando a todo varão idoso da nação de Israel. (Núm 16:25; Le 4:15; 1Sa 15:30; 1Rs 20:7, 8) Nos relativamente poucos casos em que zeqe·ním (anciãos) aparece sem palavras qualificativas, tem de se depender do contexto para determinar se a aplicação é meramente a varões idosos ou aos em posição oficial como cabeças.

Anciãos de Israel. Já antes do Êxodo, os israelitas tinham seus "anciãos", que apresentavam os assuntos ao povo, agiam como seus porta-vozes e faziam decisões. Instruiu-se Moisés a apresentar sua comissão a estes anciãos ao voltar para o Egito, e estes, ou pelo menos os principais dentre eles, o acompanharam quando se dirigiu a Faraó. — Êx 3:16, 18.

Quando Moisés, como representante de Deus, apresentou o pacto da Lei à nação, foram os "anciãos" oficiais que representaram o povo ao entrarem nessa relação pactuada com Jeová. (Êx 19:3-8) Algum tempo depois, quando os israelitas se queixaram das condições no ermo, Moisés, achando que o fardo de administrar a nação era então grande demais para ele, confessou o problema a Jeová. Deus ordenou então a Moisés: "Ajunta-me setenta homens dos anciãos de Israel, dos quais deveras sabes que são anciãos do povo e oficiais deles, . . . e terei de tirar um pouco do espírito que há sobre ti e colocá-lo sobre eles, e terão de ajudar-te a levar a carga." (Núm 11:16, 17) Esses "anciãos" foram designados teocraticamente para tal serviço. (Núm 11:24, 25) Jeová usava-os então para compartilhar com Moisés a responsabilidade de liderança e administração.

Com o tempo, os israelitas nômades conquistaram a Terra da Promessa e voltaram a estabelecer moradia em aldeias e cidades, assim como haviam vivido no Egito. Os anciãos tornaram-se então responsáveis pelo povo em nível comunitário. Agiam como corpo de superintendentes para as suas respectivas comunidades, provendo juízes e oficiais para a administração da justiça e para a manutenção da paz, da boa ordem e da saúde espiritual. — De 16:18-20; 25:7-9; Jos 20:4; Ru 4:1-12.

As referências a "todo o Israel, seus anciãos e seus cabeças, e seus juízes, e seus oficiais" (Jos 23:2; 24:1), aos "anciãos de Israel e todos os cabeças das tribos, os maiorais das casas paternas" (2Cr 5:2), não significam que os "cabeças", "juízes", "oficiais" e "maiorais" fossem diferentes dos "anciãos", mas, antes, indicam que os assim denominados de modo específico detinham determinados cargos no corpo de anciãos. — Compare isso com 2Rs 19:2; Mr 15:1.

Os que serviam quais "anciãos" em nível nacional eram designados pelas expressões "anciãos de Israel" (1Sa 4:3; 8:4), "anciãos do país" (1Rs 20:7), "anciãos da assembleia" (Jz 21:16), ou, após a divisão do reino, "anciãos de Judá e de Jerusalém", para o reino meridional. — 2Rs 23:1.

Os "anciãos" como um todo, iguais a muitos dos reis e sacerdotes de Israel, mostraram-se infiéis na sua responsabilidade para com Deus e o povo. (1Rs 21:8-14; Ez 7:26; 14:1-3) Por terem perdido o apoio de Deus, 'rapazes tornavam-se seus príncipes' e 'o de pouca estima arremetia contra aquele que era para ser honrado'. (Is 3:1-5) Assim, as Escrituras Hebraicas enfatizam que a mera idade não basta, que "as cãs são uma coroa de beleza" apenas quando "se acham no caminho da justiça". (Pr 16:31) Não são "apenas os abundantes em dias que se mostram sábios, nem somente os idosos que entendem o juízo", mas sim aqueles que, junto com sua experiência, são guiados pelo espírito de Deus e que obtiveram entendimento da Palavra dele. — Jó 32:8, 9; Sal 119:100; Pr 3:5-7; Ec 4:13.

A direção por parte do corpo de "anciãos" continuou em toda a história daquela nação, mesmo durante o exílio babilônico e após a restauração em Judá. (Je 29:1; Esd 6:7; 10:7, 8, 14) Quando Jesus estava na Terra, "anciãos" (gr.: pre·sbý·te·roi) estavam ativos nos assuntos públicos, tanto no nível comunitário (Lu 7:3-5) como no nível nacional. "A assembleia dos anciãos" (gr.: pre·sby·té·ri·on) em Jerusalém constituiu uma das principais fontes de oposição a Jesus e seus discípulos. — Lu 22:66; At 22:5.

Anciãos na Congregação Cristã. Em vista deste fundo histórico, não é difícil de entender as referências a "anciãos" (pre·sbý·te·roi) da congregação cristã. Como se dava no Israel carnal, assim também, no Israel espiritual, os "anciãos" eram os responsáveis de dirigir a congregação.

No dia de Pentecostes, os apóstolos atuaram como um corpo, Pedro servindo de porta-voz, pela operação do espírito derramado de Deus. (At 2:14, 37-42) Eram claramente "anciãos" em sentido espiritual, em virtude da sua associação íntima, logo cedo, com Jesus, e como os comissionados por ele pessoalmente a ensinar. (Mt 28:18-20; Ef 4:11, 12; compare isso com At 2:42.) A atitude dos que se tornavam crentes indica que reconheciam os apóstolos como dispondo de autoridade governante na nova nação sob Cristo (At 2:42; 4:32-37; 5:1-11) e como tendo autoridade de fazer designações de serviço, quer diretamente como corpo, quer por meio de representantes, sendo o apóstolo Paulo um notável exemplo disso. (At 6:1-6; 14:19-23) Quando a questão da circuncisão veio a lume, "anciãos", junto com os apóstolos, reuniram-se em assembleia para considerar o assunto. Sua decisão foi transmitida às congregações em todos os lugares e foi aceita como tendo autoridade. (At 15:1-31; 16:1-5) Assim, da mesma forma como alguns "anciãos" serviram a Israel em base nacional, assim também é patente que tais "anciãos", junto com os apóstolos, formavam um corpo governante para a inteira congregação cristã, em todos os países. Numa data posterior, Paulo foi a Jerusalém e reuniu-se com Tiago e "todos os anciãos", relatando-lhes os resultados do seu trabalho e recebendo seus conselhos sobre certos assuntos. — At 21:15-26.

Em uns poucos casos, o termo "anciãos" é usado em contraste com homens mais jovens ou em paralelo com mulheres de mais idade, sem qualquer indicação de que envolvesse responsabilidades congregacionais. Em tais casos, o termo simplesmente se refere a homens de idade madura. (At 2:17, 18; 1Ti 5:1, 2) É também usado para se referir aos "antigos". (He 11:2) Todavia, na maioria dos casos, nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, os "anciãos" eram os responsáveis pela direção da congregação. Em uns poucos textos, os "anciãos" são chamados de "superintendentes" (gr.: e·pí·sko·poi; "bispos", Al). Paulo usou este termo ao se dirigir aos "anciãos" daquela única congregação de Éfeso, e ele o aplicou a tais na sua carta a Tito. (At 20:17, 28; Tit 1:5, 7) Portanto, ambos esses termos referem-se ao mesmo cargo, sendo que pre·sbý·te·ros indica as qualidades maduras do assim designado, e e·pí·sko·pos os deveres inerentes à designação.

A respeito da palavra grega pre·sbý·te·ros, Manuel Guerra y Gomez observou: "A tradução exata do termo [pre·sbý·te·ros] em quase a maioria dos textos helenísticos que sobreviveram até hoje é a de ancião, sinônimo de homem maduro. A madureza de julgamento e o critério orientador é seu tom distintivo. . . . Quer tenha quer não um sentido técnico, o termo [pre·sbý·te·ros], tanto no mundo helenístico como no israelita, designa, não o homem idoso, doentio, mas, antes, o homem maduro, habilitado por sua experiência e sua prudência para o governo da sua família ou do seu povo." — Episcopos y Presbyteros, Burgos, Espanha, 1962, pp. 117, 257.

É evidente que a idade, no sentido físico dos anos vividos, era um fator para habilitar alguém para servir como "ancião" no antigo Israel. (1Rs 12:6-13) Assim, também, os "anciãos" ou superintendentes na congregação cristã não eram simples rapazes, conforme evidenciado pela referência do apóstolo a terem esposa e filhos. (Tit 1:5, 6; 1Ti 3:2, 4, 5) Todavia, a idade física não era o fator único ou primário, conforme observado pelas demais habilitações delineadas (1Ti 3:2-7; Tit 1:6-9), nem se estipula qualquer nível específico de idade. Timóteo, que teve que ver com a designação de "anciãos", era, ele mesmo, obviamente, também reconhecido como um deles, embora fosse relativamente jovem. — 1Ti 4:12.

Os requisitos para o cargo de "ancião" na congregação cristã incluíam um elevado nível de conduta e de espiritualidade. A aptidão para ensinar, para exortar e para repreender desempenhavam um grande papel em alguém ser acreditado como "ancião". (1Ti 3:2; Tit 1:9) Paulo mandou solenemente Timóteo 'pregar a palavra, ocupar-se nisso urgentemente, em época favorável, em época dificultosa, repreender, advertir, exortar, com toda a longanimidade e arte de ensino'. (2Ti 4:2) Os "anciãos", como "pastores", são responsáveis pela alimentação espiritual do rebanho, bem como por cuidar dos espiritualmente doentes e por proteger o rebanho contra elementos lupinos. (At 20:28-35; Tg 5:14, 15; 1Pe 5:2-4) Além disso, Paulo, ele mesmo zeloso em ensinar "publicamente e de casa em casa", lembrou a Timóteo a responsabilidade de ele 'fazer a obra dum evangelizador, a efetuar plenamente o seu ministério'. — At 20:20; 2Ti 4:5.

Cada congregação cristã possuía seu corpo de "anciãos" ou "superintendentes", estes sendo regularmente mencionados no plural, como em Jerusalém (At 11:30; 15:4, 6; 21:18), em Éfeso (At 20:17, 28), e em Filipos (Fil 1:1). Menciona-se "o corpo de anciãos" (gr.: pre·sby·té·ri·on) com respeito à 'imposição de mãos' sobre Timóteo. (1Ti 4:14) Os "anciãos", como os superintendentes da congregação, 'presidiam' a seus irmãos. — Ro 12:8; 1Te 5:12-15; 1Ti 3:4, 5; 5:17.

Paulo e Pedro, como "anciãos" com autoridade apostólica, às vezes exerciam a supervisão sobre outros "anciãos" em certas congregações (veja 1Co 4:18-21; 5:1-5, 9-13; Fil 1:1; 2:12; 1Pe 1:1; 5:1-5), como o fizeram o apóstolo João, e os discípulos Tiago e Judas — todos escritores de cartas às congregações. Paulo designou Timóteo e Tito para representá-lo em certos lugares. (1Co 4:17; Fil 2:19, 20; 1Ti 1:3, 4; 5:1-21; Tit 1:5) Em muitos casos, estes homens lidavam com congregações recém-estabelecidas de crentes; a comissão de Tito era 'corrigir as coisas defeituosas [ou carentes, faltosas]' nas congregações em Creta.

Paulo, Barnabé, Tito e evidentemente Timóteo acham-se registrados como tomando parte na designação de pessoas como "anciãos" nas congregações. (At 14:21-23; 1Ti 5:22; Tit 1:5) Não existe nenhum registro de tais designações serem feitas pelas congregações, de forma independente. Relatando a revisita de Paulo e Barnabé a Listra, Icônio e Antioquia, Atos 14:23 declara que eles "designaram-lhes anciãos [gr.: khei·ro·to·né·san·tes] em cada congregação" ("em cada Igreja designaram anciãos", BJ; "em cada igreja eles designaram anciãos", TEB). A respeito do verbo grego khei·ro·to·né·o, a seguinte observação é encontrada em The Acts of the Apostles (Os Atos dos Apóstolos), de F. F. Bruce (1970, p. 286): "Embora o sentido etimológico de [khei·ro·to·né·o] seja 'eleger por levantar a mão', passou a ser usado no sentido de 'designar', 'nomear': cf. a mesma palavra com prefixo [pro, "antes"] em x. 41." O Greek-English Lexicon (Léxico Grego-Inglês), de Liddell e Scott, depois de primeiro dar definições comuns de khei·ro·to·né·o, diz: "mais tarde, em geral, designar, . . . nomear para um cargo na Igreja". (Revisado por H. Jones, Oxford, 1968, p. 1986) Do mesmo modo, o Greek and English Lexicon to the New Testament (Léxico Grego e Inglês do Novo Testamento, Londres, 1845, p. 673), de Parkhurst, diz: "Seguido de um acusativo, designar ou constituir para um cargo, embora sem sufrágios ou votos." O cargo para o qual esses homens cristãos eram designados era o de "anciãos", sem votos de apoio por outros estenderem a mão.

Quando escreveu a Timóteo, Paulo disse: "Os anciãos, que presidem de modo excelente, sejam contados dignos de dupla honra, especialmente os que trabalham arduamente no falar e no ensinar." (1Ti 5:17) Em vista do versículo seguinte (18) e também da consideração antecedente sobre honrar as viúvas de modo material (vv. 3-16), esta "dupla honra", evidentemente, incluía dar ajuda material.

Quem são os "vinte e quatro anciãos" sentados em tronos celestiais?

No livro de Revelação (Apocalipse), o termo presbý·te·roi ocorre 12 vezes e é aplicado a criaturas espirituais. O ambiente em que estão, sua vestimenta e suas ações dão um indício da sua identidade.

O apóstolo João teve uma visão do trono de Jeová no céu, cercado por 24 tronos inferiores, nos quais estavam sentados 24 anciãos, trajados de vestes exteriores brancas e tendo coroa de ouro na cabeça. (Re 4:1-4) À medida que a visão continuava, João viu os 24 anciãos não só repetidas vezes prostrando-se em adoração diante do trono de Jeová, mas também tomando parte nas diversas particularidades da visão, à medida que ela se desenrolava. (Re 4:9-11; 5:4-14; 7:9-17; 14:3; 19:4) Foram especialmente observados participando na proclamação do Reino, no sentido de que Jeová assumira seu grande poder e começara a reinar. — Re 11:15-18.

No antigo Israel, "anciãos de Israel" representavam a nação inteira e falavam por ela. (Êx 3:16; 19:7) Do mesmo modo, "anciãos" pode significar, ou representar, a inteira congregação do Israel espiritual. Portanto, os 24 anciãos sentados em tronos em volta de Deus podem muito bem representar o inteiro corpo de cristãos ungidos, os quais, mostrando-se fiéis até a morte, recebem a prometida recompensa duma ressurreição celestial e tronos perto daquele de Jeová. (Re 3:21) O número 24 também é significativo, porque este era o número de turmas em que o Rei Davi organizou os sacerdotes para servir no templo de Jerusalém. Os cristãos ungidos hão de ser um "sacerdócio real". — 1Pe 2:9; 1Cr 24:1-19; Lu 1:5-23, 57-66; Re 20:6; veja SUPERINTENDENTE.

ÂNCORA. Veja NAVIO (BARCO).

ANDORINHA [hebr. deróhr]. A palavra hebraica deróhr, na sua forma, é idêntica à palavra hebraica traduzida por "liberdade" (Le 25:10; Is 61:1), e alguns comentadores acham que o nome descreve a graciosa andorinha, de voo livre, com seus movimentos desinibidos.

As andorinhas frequentemente constroem seus ninhos em forma de copo (feitos com bolinhas de barro) em casas ou outras construções, muitas vezes sob os beirais do telhado. Elas antigamente nidificavam na estrutura do templo em Jerusalém, assim como fazem hoje em prédios similares em todo o Israel. Mais tarde, havia no alto do templo de Herodes espigões de ouro para impedir que pássaros nidificassem no prédio. — The Jewish War (A Guerra Judaica), de F. Josefo, V, 224 (v, 6).

O salmista, ao proclamar seu anelo pelos pátios da casa de Jeová, faz referência à andorinha achar um ninho para si, em que colocar seus filhotes — sim, bem ali no templo, evidentemente em alguma parte em volta do "grandioso altar" de Jeová. (Sal 84:1-3) O salmista, como levita não sacerdotal, servia no templo apenas uma semana cada seis meses, mas ele sabia que a andorinha tinha ali uma moradia mais permanente. Expressou assim seu anseio de estar nos pátios do tabernáculo de Jeová o máximo tempo possível.

A outra referência à andorinha ocorre em Provérbios 26:2, que declara que "assim como o pássaro tem razão para fugir e assim como a andorinha tem para voar, assim a invocação do mal não vem sem causa real". (NM) Algumas traduções vertem o hebraico, em vez disso, como "a maldição sem causa não encontra pouso" (IBB; veja também VB), e assim consideram esse texto como querendo dizer que uma maldição sem causa não se realiza ou "não encontra pouso", mas, antes, é como o incansável voo da andorinha, ao continuar voando quase que infatigavelmente em busca de sua presa, os insetos. Nos versículos circundantes, o escritor está considerando o tolo e seus modos de agir, de modo que, na tradução primeiramente citada (NM), o sentido, em vez disso, poderia ser o de que, assim como o voo das aves, quando fogem do perigo ou procuram alimento, tem uma causa real, assim também, se o proceder dum tolo traz maldição sobre ele próprio, não é sem uma causa real; seu proceder tolo é responsável. — Veja Pr 26:3; também 1:22-32.

A andorinha comum, de-pescoço-vermelho ou das-chaminés (Hirundo rustica), é abundante na Palestina. Uma variedade dela passa o ano ali, ao passo que outras chegam da África meridional em março e partem na aproximação do inverno. Muitas estão de passagem durante a migração na primavera e no outono (setentrionais). A andorinha, pequena, com asas longas e fortes, e cauda usualmente bifurcada, é um pássaro de voo extraordinariamente gracioso e veloz, sendo ele capaz de cobrir grandes distâncias na migração. A plumagem frequentemente tem uma rica tonalidade iridescente; seu canto é uma agradável combinação de suave trinado e gorjeio.

ANDORINHÃO [hebr.: sis]. Uma das mais velozes de todas as aves voadoras, que costuma atingir velocidades de mais de 100 km/h e é capaz de velozes arremetidas de provavelmente 200 km/h ou mais. Usa vigorosamente suas asas finas, longas e curvas, e aparentemente sem se cansar, ao mergulhar e arremeter contra sua presa, os insetos, que engole em voo. Das quatro variedades de andorinhões que podem ser vistas em Israel, o andorinhão-de-ventre-branco (Apus melba) é o maior e se caracteriza pelo seu ventre branco. É o primeiro dos andorinhões migratórios a aparecer na Palestina com a aproximação da primavera, seguido pouco depois por longas filas de andorinhões-pretos ou comuns (Apus apus). Constroem seus ninhos em lugares escuros, frequentemente sob beirais, e às vezes em árvores ocas ou em alcantis, e são feitos de palha e penas, coladas com a saliva glutinosa produzida pelas glândulas da ave. Os pés do andorinhão evidentemente não são estruturados de forma a lhe possibilitar andar ou empoleirar-se, de modo que a ave obtém todo o seu alimento e os materiais para o ninho em voo, e até mesmo bebe por voar deslizando sobre a superfície da água; repousa por agarrar-se a superfícies verticais. O grito do andorinhão é de um tom um tanto lamentoso, melancólico.

Que a palavra hebraica sis identifica o andorinhão é indicado por se chamar esta ave pelo mesmo nome em árabe. Alguns peritos sugerem que o nome indica um som sibilante; mas outros acham que o nome representa o grito estridente si-si-si do andorinhão.

Ezequias, ao se restabelecer duma doença, disse numa composição refletida que ele 'estava chilrando igual ao andorinhão', evidentemente de maneira melancólica, e o profeta Jeremias usou o andorinhão migratório como exemplo, quando repreendeu o povo de Judá por não discernir o tempo do julgamento por Deus. — Is 38:14; Je 8:7.

ANDRÉ [duma raiz gr. que significa "homem; varão"; provavelmente: Másculo]. Irmão de Simão Pedro e filho de Jonas (João). (Mt 4:18; 16:17) Embora a cidade natal de André fosse Betsaida, ele e Simão viviam juntos em Cafarnaum na ocasião em que Jesus os chamou para se tornarem "pescadores de homens". (Mr 1:16, 17, 21, 29; Jo 1:44) Ambas as cidades estavam na margem N do mar da Galileia, onde os dois irmãos se empenhavam na pescaria, em parceria com Tiago e João. — Mt 4:18; Mr 1:16; Lu 5:10.

André foi primeiro discípulo de João, o Batizador. (Jo 1:35, 40) No outono setentrional de 29 EC, ele estava em Betânia, do lado L do rio Jordão, e ouviu João, o Batizador, apresentar Jesus como "o Cordeiro de Deus". (Jo 1:29) Ele, junto com outro discípulo (provavelmente João), seguiu Jesus até a residência dele, e logo ficou convencido de que havia encontrado o Messias. Ele então achou e informou seu irmão, Simão, e levou-o a Jesus. (Jo 1:36-41) Os dois irmãos voltaram ao seu negócio de pesca, mas cerca de seis meses a um ano depois, após a prisão de João, o Batizador, eles, junto com Tiago e João, foram convidados por Jesus para se tornarem "pescadores de homens". Abandonaram imediatamente suas redes e começaram a acompanhar Jesus. (Mt 4:18-20; Mr 1:14, 16-20) Com o tempo, estes quatro tornaram-se apóstolos, e é notável que André seja sempre alistado entre os primeiros quatro em todas as listas dos apóstolos. — Mt 10:2; Mr 3:18; Lu 6:14.

Depois disso, André é mencionado apenas brevemente. Ele e Filipe consideravam com Jesus o problema de alimentar uma multidão de cerca de 5.000 homens, e André fez uma sugestão que ele mesmo achou de pouco valor prático a respeito do escasso alimento disponível. (Jo 6:8, 9) Por ocasião da última festividade da Páscoa que celebraram, Filipe dirigiu-se a André em busca de conselho sobre o pedido de alguns gregos para verem Jesus, e os dois se chegaram então a Jesus para falar sobre o assunto. (Jo 12:20-22) Ele estava entre os quatro, no monte das Oliveiras, que pediram a Jesus um sinal que marcaria a terminação do existente sistema de coisas. (Mr 13:3) A última menção de André por nome ocorre pouco depois da ascensão de Jesus. — At 1:13.

ANDRÔNICO [Conquistando Homens]. Fiel cristão judeu na congregação de Roma, a quem Paulo enviou cumprimentos. Paulo chamou Andrônico e Júnias de "meus parentes". Embora a palavra grega usada aqui (syg·ge·nés), no seu sentido mais amplo, possa significar "patrícios", o sentido primário é "parentes consanguíneos da mesma geração". O contexto indica que Andrônico provavelmente tinha tal parentesco com Paulo. Igual a Paulo, Andrônico sofrera encarceramento, era então 'homem notável' entre os apóstolos, e se tornara cristão antes de Paulo. — Ro 16:7.

ANEL. Pequena tira circular ou argola. Adornos anelados de vários tipos, usados tanto por homens como por mulheres, eram comuns entre os hebreus, egípcios, assírios, babilônios, gregos, romanos e outros povos da antiguidade. Argolas eram usadas no nariz e nas orelhas, e anéis nos dedos. (Veja ARGOLA PARA AS NARINAS; ARRECADA.) Os materiais usados incluíam ouro, prata, latão, bronze, vidro, ferro e marfim; alguns anéis eram cravejados de pedras. Especialmente os egípcios favoreciam anéis com a imagem do escaravelho, que para eles era símbolo de vida eterna. Entre as muitas joias recuperadas do túmulo do faraó egípcio Tutancâmen havia um anel de três tiras com três escaravelhos, um de vidro azul e dois de ouro. Alguns anéis dos romanos tinham entalhados neles desenhos mitológicos ou mesmo representações de seus antepassados ou amigos.

Na ilustração de Jesus sobre o filho pródigo, ele apresentou o pai perdoador como ordenando que se pusesse um anel na mão do filho pródigo que voltava. (Lu 15:22) Este ato demonstrava o favor e a afeição do pai, bem como a dignidade, a honra e a alta posição concedidas ao filho restaurado. Tiago, meio-irmão de Jesus, aconselhou os cristãos a não mostrar favoritismo aos vestidos de modo esplêndido e que usavam anéis de ouro nos dedos (indicando riqueza e posição social). (Tg 2:1-9) Em sentido similar, o apóstolo Pedro, embora não condenasse o uso de tais adornos, indicou que o adorno espiritual era muito mais importante. — 1Pe 3:1-5.

Anéis de Sinete. Palavras hebraicas usadas para designar um anel, ou um anel de sinete ou de chancela, derivam de raízes que significam "afundar" (Je 38:6) e 'selar'. (1Rs 21:8) Estes termos podem ser relacionados com o principal uso de alguns dos antigos anéis, a saber, fazer uma impressão em argila ou em cera, por serem 'afundados' ou premidos nelas. Os anéis deste tipo eram de ouro, prata ou bronze; alguns eram engastados com uma pedra gravada com o nome ou o símbolo do dono. Esses anéis tinham engaste fixo, ou então eram do tipo giratório ou cilíndrico. Alguns eram usados pendurados, provavelmente no pescoço, num cordão ornamental. — Gên 38:18, 25.

O anel de sinete dum governante ou dum alto oficial era símbolo de sua autoridade. (Gên 41:41, 42) Documentos oficiais, ou coisas nas quais não se devia mexer, nem fazer alterações, eram selados com eles, de modo similar a que se apõem selos ou assinaturas oficiais nos tempos modernos. — Est 3:10-13; 8:2, 8-12; Da 6:16, 17.

Uso Figurativo. Nos tempos antigos, o anel de sinete parece ter-se tornado símbolo proverbial dum objeto ou duma pessoa valiosos. A profecia de Jeremias indicava que o rei Conias (Joaquim), de Judá, não seria poupado à calamidade, mesmo que fosse um 'anel de chancela na mão direita de Jeová'. Joaquim foi destronado depois dum reinado muito breve. (Je 22:24; 2Rs 24:8-15) Também, Jeová disse com respeito ao fiel Zorobabel: "Tomar-te-ei . . . e hei de constituir-te em anel de chancela, porque és tu a quem escolhi." (Ag 2:23) Zorobabel, que servia a Jeová num cargo oficial em conexão com a reconstrução do templo em Jerusalém, era precioso para Jeová, igual a um anel de sinete na própria mão de Deus. Zorobabel obedecera destemidamente ao incentivo de Jeová dado por meio dos profetas Ageu e Zacarias, e empreendera a obra da construção do templo apesar da proscrição por um mal informado rei da Pérsia. (Esd 4:24–5:2) Jeová continuaria a usar Zorobabel para cumprir Seu propósito declarado, e nenhum governante humano seria capaz de removê-lo daquele serviço honroso.

ANEM. Cidade perto da fronteira S de Issacar, dada como cidade levita aos gersonitas. (1Cr 6:71, 73) Na lista correspondente, em Josué 21:29, Anem parece ser chamada En-Ganim, que é provavelmente o nome completo. — Veja EN-GANIM N.º 2.

ANER.

1. Cananeu. Ele e seus dois irmãos, Manre, o amorreu, e Escol, eram "confederados" ("aliados", ALA; MC) de Abraão. (Gên 14:13) A palavra "confederados" traduz aqui as hebraicas ba·ʽaléh verith, que literalmente significam "donos (amos) de um pacto"; mas "confederado" vem da palavra latina confoederatus, que significa "unido" ou "unido por um tratado", e assim traduz corretamente a ideia, sendo que a palavra foedus ocorre em Gênesis 14:13, na Vulgata latina. Quanto aos termos deste acordo entre esses três irmãos e Abraão, o registro pouco indica se esse era de defesa mútua contra seus vizinhos beligerantes, ou se era simplesmente de coexistência pacífica. Quando Ló, sobrinho de Abraão, foi capturado por uma coligação de reis, esta confederação entrou em ação, quando Aner e seus irmãos acompanharam Abraão, e seus 318 servos treinados, desde as árvores grandes de Manre (onde Abraão vivia em tendas) até Dã, uns 200 km ao NNE, e depois além de Damasco. Após a vitória, Abraão recusou qualquer parte do despojo, mas cuidou de que os três confederados recebessem uma parte por terem honrado esta "confederação". — Gên 14:24; veja ALIANÇA.

2. Cidade do território de Manassés, dada às famílias dos filhos de Coate. (1Cr 6:70; Jos 21:26) Alguns peritos creem que seja a mesma que Taanaque, em Josué 21:25. — Veja TAANAQUE.

ANFÍPOLIS [Ao Redor da Cidade]. Cidade da Macedônia, a cerca de 5 km do mar Egeu e do porto marítimo de Eion. Paulo passou por ali na sua segunda viagem missionária. (At 17:1) Foi construída sobre uma colina, cercada em três lados (N, O e S) pelo sinuoso rio Estrímon, situação que, sem dúvida, deu o nome à cidade. Anfípolis encontrava-se a cerca de 50 km a OSO de Filipos, e, devido à sua posição junto à famosa estrada romana Via Egnatia, e seu controle da ponte sobre o rio Estrímon, ela era de considerável importância em sentido estratégico e comercial. Fundada originalmente como colônia ateniense, no quinto século AEC, mais tarde ficou sob o controle dos macedônios. Depois disso, Roma assumiu o controle dela e a tornou cidade livre, e capital do primeiro distrito da Macedônia. O sítio arqueológico fica nos arredores do povoado moderno chamado Anfípolis (Amfipoli).

ANIÃO [Sou [do] Povo [quer dizer: parente]]. Filho de Semida, da tribo de Manassés. — 1Cr 7:14, 19.

ANIM. Cidade na região montanhosa do S de Judá, mencionada na distribuição da terra nos dias de Josué. (Jos 15:48, 50) Tem sido identificada com Khirbet Ghuwein et-Tahta (Horvat ʽAnim), uma ruína situada a cerca de 5 km ao S de Estemoa, e a cerca de 19 km ao SSO de Hébron.

ANIMAIS. Almas viventes que não são humanas. (Veja Núm 31:28.) A palavra hebraica behemáh refere-se a criaturas animais quadrúpedes, maiores, usualmente domésticas, mas ocasionalmente a animais selvagens. É traduzida por "animais domésticos", "animais", "gado" e "gado vacum". (Gên 1:26; 9:10; 34:23; Sal 107:38) A palavra hebraica ré·mes denota "animais moventes" ou "coisas rastejantes", e deriva da raiz ra·más, que significa "mover; rastejar". (Gên 6:20; Ez 8:10; Gên 1:28 n.) Também o termo hebraico hhaiyáh, significando literalmente "criatura vivente", é usado para se referir a "animais selváticos". (Gên 1:28; 3:14; Is 56:9) O termo grego paralelo é zoi·on (criatura vivente), também traduzido por 'animal'. — Re 4:7; 2Pe 2:12.

Jeová Deus formou todos os animais, cada espécie-família tendo seus próprios representantes originalmente criados, pois o registro nos assegura que Deus fez cada um deles "segundo a sua espécie". (Gên 1:25) Neste artigo, consideraremos, em especial, os animais terrestres.

Visto que Deus concedeu ao homem perfeito o domínio sobre as várias criaturas animais da terra, era muitíssimo apropriado que Adão tivesse o privilégio de dar nome a tais criaturas. (Gên 1:26; 2:19, 20) Ter o homem tais animais em sujeição dava-lhe uma incumbência que sempre o obrigaria a prestar contas a Deus. — Lu 12:48.

Os animais foram criados de modo a sentirem temor e pavor do homem como seu superior. (Gên 9:2, 3) Segundo os naturalistas, criaturas animais selvagens, tais como o leopardo e a cobra-real, normalmente preferem esquivar-se da presença do homem, embora ataquem mesmo quando provocadas, feridas, acuadas ou surpreendidas. Tem-se sugerido, por exemplo, que os tigres se tornam antropófagos por força das circunstâncias, tais como a velhice ou feridas, que limitariam grandemente a capacidade de o tigre procurar sua caça normal, ou quando há uma redução de animais que o tigre caça, por causa das caçadas humanas.

Já antes do Dilúvio, os animais eram mortos, a fim de prover roupa ao homem e para fins sacrificiais. (Gên 3:21; 4:4) No entanto, foi só depois do Dilúvio que Noé e sua família obtiveram permissão de Jeová para adicionar carne à sua alimentação, estipulando-se que essa tinha de ser sangrada. (Gên 9:3, 4) Ao passo que isto tornava correto que os homens matassem animais para obter o alimento necessário, o homem não foi com isso autorizado a entregar-se à matança desnecessária, pela simples emoção da caçada ou para exibir proeza pessoal, tal como fez, indubitavelmente, Ninrode, o rebelde contra Deus. — Gên 10:9.

Alguns têm argumentado que a presença de animais em ilhas isoladas, tais como a Austrália e a Nova Zelândia, é indício de que nem todos os animais terrestres fora da arca pereceram no Dilúvio. No entanto, as descobertas dos oceanógrafos indicam que antigamente dorsais terrestres ligavam o que agora são regiões terrestres isoladas. Por exemplo, estudos oceanográficos indicam que o Dorsal do Atlântico Central pode ter cruzado esse oceano acima da sua superfície. Possivelmente havia também outros dorsais, e os animais podiam ter migrado através delas, antes de tais dorsais afundarem abaixo da superfície do oceano. Outros estudos oceanográficos descobriram evidência de que, antigamente, existia um enorme continente no Pacífico Sul, que abrangia a Austrália e muitas das ilhas dos Mares do Sul. Se esse era o caso, então, os animais não tiveram, naturalmente, dificuldade alguma em emigrar para tais terras.

Animais Limpos e Impuros. Uma classificação dos animais pode ser observada nas instruções de Deus a Noé, para que levasse consigo, na arca, sete de cada animal limpo e dois de cada animal impuro. (Gên 7:2, 3, 8, 9) Visto não ter sido ainda autorizada o uso de carne na alimentação, esta diferença entre limpos e impuros foi, provavelmente, determinada à base do que era aceitável a Jeová como sacrifício. Por isso, ao sair da arca, Noé sabia que animais eram limpos e apropriados para serem oferecidos sobre o altar. (Gên 8:20) Nessa ocasião, não existia nenhuma restrição com respeito ao tipo de animal que Noé e sua família podiam comer, conforme indicado pelas palavras de Jeová: "Todo animal movente que está vivo pode servir-vos de alimento." — Gên 9:3.

Portanto, a lei de Deus, dada aos israelitas, introduziu uma nova distinção, ao classificar certos animais como limpos e apropriados como alimento, e outros como impuros e proibidos como alimento. O texto especifica: "Toda criatura de casco partido e de fenda nos cascos, e que rumina, dentre os animais, é a que podeis comer." (Le 11:3) E, novamente: "Não deves comer coisa alguma detestável. Esta é a sorte de animal que podeis comer: o touro, a ovelha e a cabra, o veado e a gazela, e o corço, e o cabrito montês, e o antílope, e a ovelha selvagem, e a camurça; e todo animal de casco partido e de casco fendido em dois, que rumina entre os animais." — De 14:3-6.

Os animais que não possuíssem uma ou ambas as características supracitadas não deviam ser comidos pelos que estavam sob os termos do pacto da Lei. Os animais proibidos incluíam o procávia, a lebre, o porco e o camelo. Também, as criaturas que 'andam nas suas patas' foram proibidas, isto, sem dúvida, abrangendo criaturas tais como o leão, o urso e o lobo. — Le 11:4-8, 26, 27; De 14:7, 8.

Estas limitações alimentares só se aplicavam aos que estavam sob a Lei mosaica, pois a declaração de Levítico 11:8 é: "São impuros para vós", isto é, para os israelitas. Com a ab-rogação da Lei, à base da morte sacrificial de Cristo Jesus, essas proibições foram canceladas, e, mais uma vez, todos os humanos poderiam considerar-se sob a mesma provisão ampla anunciada a Noé, depois do Dilúvio. — Col 2:13-17; Gên 9:3, 4.

Visto que a restrição quanto a alimentos impuros foi removida junto com o restante da Lei, talvez surja uma pergunta quanto à razão pela qual Pedro, cerca de três anos e meio depois, ainda não havia comido quaisquer animais "impuros". (At 10:10-15) Deve-se lembrar que o cancelamento da Lei resultou em grandes mudanças na vida dos seguidores de Cristo, e, portanto, é razoável que tenha levado algum tempo para que avaliassem tudo o que estava envolvido.

Uso Ilustrativo. As características destacadas dos animais são mencionadas e usadas pelos escritores bíblicos para simbolizar uma variedade de qualidades e poderes. Às vezes, as características animais podem representar qualidades excelentes, tanto divinas como humanas. (Ez 1:10, 11; Re 4:6, 7) Em outros casos, os animais podem ser empregados para representar poderes governantes selvagens, animalescos, que oprimem e esmagam o povo. — Da 7:2-7; 8:5-8, 20, 21; Re 13:1-17; veja ANIMAIS SIMBÓLICOS.

Uso e Conceito Corretos da Criação Animal. Em conexão com a adoração sob a Lei mosaica, o gado bovino, as ovelhas e os cabritos achavam-se entre as criaturas aceitáveis para sacrifício. Tais animais deviam ser sadios, e nenhum animal castrado era admissível. (Le 22:23-25) O uso de sangue animal como alimento, ou para qualquer outra finalidade a não ser para sacrifícios, era proibido. (Le 17:13, 14) A adoração de qualquer representação de um animal ou de outra coisa criada era estritamente proibida. — Êx 20:4, 5.

A Bíblia inculca que se dê tratamento justo e misericordioso às criaturas inferiores. Deveras, Jeová representa a si mesmo como o amoroso Provisor da vida e do bem-estar delas. (Pr 12:10; Sal 145:15, 16) A Lei mosaica impunha o cuidado correto dispensado aos animais domésticos. Quando animais domésticos perdidos eram encontrados, eles deviam ser devolvidos com segurança ao seu dono; quando uma carga os oprimia demais, deviam ser aliviados. (Êx 23:4, 5) Deviam ser postos a trabalhar com compaixão. (De 22:10; 25:4) Tanto eles como os humanos deviam beneficiar-se dos descansos sabáticos. (Êx 20:10; 23:12; De 5:14) Os animais perigosos deviam ser controlados ou destruídos. (Gên 9:5; Êx 21:28, 29) Era proibido o cruzamento de tipos diferentes. — Le 19:19.

Os homens tementes a Deus veem nos animais uma parte da generosa provisão de Deus para o bem-estar humano. Os animais têm servido ao homem como bestas de carga, como fonte de alimento e de roupa, como agentes sanitários, como auxiliares nas atividades vitais de arar e de colher. Sua variedade de formas e cores deleitam os olhos do homem; seus hábitos e instintos têm fornecido, e ainda fornecem, um amplo campo para pesquisa das maravilhas da obra criativa de Deus. Embora os animais morram, do mesmo modo que o homem, não compartilham a esperança humana dele duma ressurreição. — 2Pe 2:12; em adição, veja os animais, aves, insetos e répteis individuais por nome; também AVES; INSETOS; PEIXES.

ANIMAIS SIMBÓLICOS. Desde tempos imemoriais, a humanidade tem observado as características e os hábitos dos animais, e os tem aplicado em sentido figurativo ou simbólico a pessoas, povos, governos e organizações. A Bíblia faz bom uso deste eficaz meio de ilustração. Alguns exemplos em que as qualidades inerentes de certo animal, ou as sugeridas por suas características, são usadas de modo figurativo, acham-se alistados nas tabelas acompanhantes.

Animais Como Símbolos de Governos. Certas potências mundiais principais da história aparecem diretamente no registro bíblico, e todas elas, bem como outras nações, têm usado animais como símbolo de seu governo. No Egito, a serpente figurava de forma proeminente, o ouraios, a áspide sagrada, aparecendo na cobertura da cabeça dos Faraós. No entanto, o Egito também era representado pelo touro, assim como a Assíria. A Medo-Pérsia usava a águia (os escudos dos medos traziam a águia-real; os persas traziam uma águia fixada na ponta duma lança). Atenas era designada pela coruja; Roma, pela águia; a Grã-Bretanha, pelo leão; os Estados Unidos, pela águia. A China, desde os tempos mais remotos, tem sido simbolizada pelo dragão. Bem conhecida também é a alemã "águia de duas cabeças".

Os Animais Selvagens de Daniel e de Revelação. Que os animais descritos nestes livros representam reinos ou governos políticos que exercem domínio e autoridade, é declarado expressamente. (Da 7:6, 12, 23; 8:20-22; Re 16:10; 17:3, 9-12) Uma consideração das passagens bíblicas revela que, embora estes "animais" políticos variem em forma simbólica, todavia, todos têm certas características em comum. Todos são apresentados como opondo-se ao governo que Deus exerce por meio do reino messiânico sobre a humanidade. São também representados como se opondo aos “santos” de Deus, seu povo pactuado, primeiro a nação judaica, daí, a congregação cristã. Os governos mencionados especificamente (Medo-Pérsia e Grécia) eram importantes potências mundiais, e o grande tamanho atribuído aos demais, ou a descrição das ações deles, indicam que também não eram reinos menos importantes. (Deve-se notar que os reinos subordinados, em alguns casos, são simbolizados por chifres.) Todos os animais são representados como muito agressivos, buscando a posição de domínio sobre as nações ou povos sob o seu poder. — Veja Da 7:17, 18, 21; 8:9-11, 23, 24; Re 13:4-7, 15; 17:12-14.

Muitos comentaristas se empenham em limitar o cumprimento das visões dos animais no livro de Daniel para não se estender além da época em que Jesus Cristo esteve na terra, época em que o Império Romano era a potência dominante. As próprias profecias, porém, deixam claro que se estendem além daquela época. Mostram-se as formas finais dos animais como se estendendo até a ‘chegada do tempo específico de os santos de Deus tomarem posse do reino’, no “tempo designado do fim”. Daí, o Messias destrói tal oposição animalesca para todo o sempre. (Da 7:21-27; 8:19-25; compare isso também com Re 17:13, 14; 19:19, 20.) Pode-se notar que Cristo Jesus predisse expressamente que a oposição ao Reino messiânico continuaria ainda no tempo do fim, de modo que seus discípulos, que então estivessem pregando este reino, seriam “pessoas odiadas por todas as nações”. (Mt 24:3, 9-14) Isto, obviamente, não permite que nação alguma, especialmente as que

SIMBOLISMO DE COISAS DESEJÁVEIS

ANIMAL	CARACTERÍSTICA OU QUALIDADE	SIMBOLISMO
Águia	Vista aguda.	Sabedoria, atributo de “criatura vivente” perto do trono de Jeová. (Re 4:7) Discernimento, antevisão espiritual dos servos de Deus. (Mt 24:28; Lu 17:37)
Águia, asas de	Poder de voo.	Reanimador vigor, perseverança. (Sal 103:5; Is 40:31)
	Cuidado, proteção.	O cuidado de Jeová para com Israel (Êx 19:4) e para com a sua “mulher”. (Re 12:14)
Bode	Animal sacrificial.	Jesus Cristo como sacrifício. (He 9:11-14)
Cavalo (branco)	Montaria de guerra.	Guerra justa. (Re 19:11, 16)
Cobra-cornuda (serpente)	Periculosidade.	Tribo de Dã, competente retaguarda de Israel. (Gên 49:17)
Corça	Ligeireza.	Tribo de Naftali, ligeira em batalha. (Gên 49:21)
	Andar seguro.	Estabilidade e passos guiados por Jeová. (2Sa 22:34; Sal 18:33)
	Amabilidade.	A própria esposa. (Pr 5:19)
Galinha	Proteção dada aos pintinhos.	Terno cuidado de Jesus. (Mt 23:37; Lu 13:34)
Gazela (e animais similares)	Beleza, amabilidade. Velocidade.	Pastor amado da sulamita. (Cân 2:9) Velocidade dos guerreiros gaditas. (1Cr 12:8)
Jumento	Aptidão para trabalho árduo.	Tribo de Issacar ofereceu-se a trabalhar. (Gên 49:14, 15)
Leão	Majestade, coragem, destrutivo para os inimigos.	Justiça, atributo de “criatura vivente” perto do trono de Jeová. (Re 4:7) Jesus, como majestade régia, Rei, executor de justiça. (Gên 49:9; Re 5:5) Jeová. (Is 31:4; Os 11:10) O povo de Jeová. (Miq 5:8)
Lobo	Lutador.	Tribo de Benjamim, lutador contra inimigos de Deus. (Gên 49:27)
Novilho	Animal sacrificial.	Fruto dos lábios, sacrifícios de louvor. (Os 14:2; He 13:15) Jesus Cristo como sacrifício. (He 9:11-14)
Ovelha	Animal sacrificial; mansidão, docilidade, gregariedade.	Jesus Cristo, “o Cordeiro de Deus”. (Jo 1:29; Re 5:6; 14:1; 22:3) Rebanho de pessoas, de Jeová. (Sal 79:13; Jo 10:7; He 13:20) Aqueles que fazem o bem aos irmãos espirituais de Cristo, e que entram nas bênçãos do Reino. (Mt 25:32-34)
Peixe	Alguns peixes eram limpos segundo a Lei. (Le 11:9)	Pessoas excelentes, justas, aptas para o Reino. (Mt 13:47-50)
Pomba (rola)	Amabilidade, beleza, inocência.	Moça sulamita. (Cân 1:15; 5:2) Servos de Deus são inocentes, não violadores da lei. (Mt 10:16)
	Disposição de regressar	Povo de Jeová sendo ajuntado. (Is 60:8)
Serpente	Cautela. (Gên 3:1)	Servos de Deus são cautelosos. (Mt 10:16)
Touro	Força, poder. (Jó 39:9-11)	Poder, atributo de “criatura vivente” perto do trono de Jeová. (Re 4:7) são potências mundiais, sejam excluídas da possível identificação com as formas ou expressões finais dos simbólicos animais selvagens.

Visão de Daniel sobre os animais que saem do mar. Depois de o Egito e a Assíria terem concluído seus respectivos períodos de domínio, e perto do fim do Império Babilônico, Jeová Deus forneceu a Daniel uma visão de "quatro animais gigantescos" que saíam do vasto mar. (Da 7:1-3) Isaías 57:20 compara as pessoas alienadas de Deus ao mar, dizendo: "Mas os iníquos são como o mar revolto, quando não pode sossegar, cujas águas lançam de si algas e lama." — Veja também Re 17:15.

Os comentaristas bíblicos vinculam costumeiramente esta visão com a da estátua colossal do segundo capítulo de Daniel. Como demonstra a comparação dos capítulos 2 e 7 , há definidas similaridades. A estátua colossal possuía quatro partes ou seções principais, comparáveis aos quatro animais. Os metais da estátua começavam com o mais precioso, o ouro, tornando-se sucessivamente inferiores, ao passo que os animais começavam com o majestoso leão. Em ambas as visões, a quarta parte, ou "reino", obtém especial consideração, apresenta a maior complexidade de forma, introduz novos elementos e continua a existir até a época em que se executa o julgamento divino nela, por estar posta em oposição ao governo de Deus.

Em suma, os quatros animais eram: leão, primeiro tendo asas de águia, daí perdendo-as e assumindo qualidades humanas; um urso (criatura menos majestosa e mais pesada do que o leão), devorando muita carne; um leopardo com quatro asas (aumentando sua grande velocidade) e quatro cabeças; e um quarto animal selvagem, que não corresponde a nenhum animal real, extraordinariamente forte e com grandes dentes de ferro, dez chifres e outro chifre que se desenvolve com olhos, e uma "boca falando coisas grandiosas". Grande parte desse capítulo relaciona-se ao quarto animal e seu chifre incomum. Ao passo que cada animal era "diferente dos outros", isto se dava especialmente com o quarto. — Da 7:3-8, 11, 12, 15-26.

Na parte final do sétimo século AEC, a Babilônia tornou-se a potência dominante no Oriente Médio. O reino babilônico estendeu rapidamente seu domínio sobre a Síria e a Palestina, derrubando o reino de Judá, com sua linhagem de governantes davídicos que se sentavam no glorioso trono de Jeová, em Jerusalém. (1Cr 29:23) Pode- se observar que, quando o profeta Jeremias avisou Judá de sua impendente queda diante de Babilônia, ele assemelhou o futuro conquistador a 'um leão que sobe de uma moita'. (Je 4:5-7; compare isso com 50:17.) Depois da queda de Jerusalém, Jeremias disse que as forças babilônicas tinham sido "mais velozes do que as águias" em sua perseguição aos judeus. (La 4:19) A história mostra que a expansão de Babilônia, que em certa época chegara até ao Egito, logo parou, e, no último período do império, os governantes de Babilônia mostravam pouco da sua anterior agressividade.

Babilônia caiu diante do reino medo-persa, que tinha seu centro nas colinas ao leste das planícies da Mesopotâmia. O Império Medo-Persa era bem diferente do Império Babilônico semítico, sendo a primeira potência jafética (ou ariana) a obter a posição dominante no Oriente Médio. Os judeus, embora obtivessem permissão de retornar a Judá, continuaram como povo sujeito ao jugo medo-persa. (Ne 9:36, 37) Este império mostrava ter apetite territorial ainda maior do que o babilônico, estendendo seu domínio da "Índia até a Etiópia". — Est 1:1.

A conquista relâmpago das forças gregas, lideradas por Alexandre, o Grande, pôs fim ao domínio medo-persa. Em poucos anos, ele construiu um império que abrangia partes da Europa, da Ásia e da África. Esta era a primeira potência baseada na Europa a deter tal posição. Após a morte de Alexandre, seus generais pelejaram para obter o controle do império, quatro deles finalmente obtendo a regência de diferentes seções. A Palestina foi disputada pelos reinos selêucida e ptolemaico, que eram rivais.

O Império Grego foi finalmente tomado por completo por Roma. O Império Romano ultrapassou a todos os impérios precedentes, não só na extensão de seu domínio (abrangendo toda a região mediterrânea, e, com o tempo, atingindo as Ilhas Britânicas), mas também na eficiência de sua máquina militar e na firmeza da aplicação da lei romana às províncias de seu vasto império. Roma, naturalmente, foi o instrumento político usado para executar o Messias, Cristo Jesus, bem como para perseguir a primitiva congregação cristã. O império estendeu-se depois por quase mil anos, sob diferentes formas, mas, por fim, fragmentou-se em várias nações, a Grã-Bretanha obtendo finalmente a posição dominante.

O historiador H. G. Wells faz as seguintes observações interessantes sobre o caráter distinto do Império Romano: "Ora, esta nova potência romana, que surgiu para dominar o mundo ocidental no segundo e no primeiro séculos a.C., era em vários sentidos diferente de qualquer dos grandes impérios que até então haviam prevalecido no mundo civilizado. Não foi no princípio uma monarquia, e não foi a criação de um grande conquistador. . . . Foi o primeiro império republicano que escapou de ser extinto e que passou para novos desenvolvimentos. . . . Sua

SIMBOLISMO DO QUE É MAU E INDESEJÁVEL
ANIMAL	CARACTERÍSTICA OU QUALIDADE	SIMBOLISMO
Águia	Rapinante, predatória.	Reis de Babilônia e do Egito. (Ez 17:3, 7, 12, 15)
Animais em geral	Falta de raciocínio.	Homens iníquos. (2Pe 2:12; Ju 10)
Cabrito (bode)	Teimosia, disposição independente, tendência a marrar.	Os não amigáveis para com os irmãos espirituais de Cristo, "amaldiçoados", vão para a destruição. (Mt 25:32, 41, 46) Potência Mundial Grega. (Da 8:5, 21)
Camelo (fêmea)	Busca desnorteada da satisfação do desejo.	Israel infiel vai atrás de nações pagãs e seus deuses. (Je 2:23)
Cão	Selvageria, impureza, atuação em matilhas, insaciável desejo sexual.	Inimigos iníquos de Davi. (Sal 22:16; 59:6, 14) Pervertido sexual. (De 23:18; Fil 3:2; Re 22:15) Pessoa inútil. (2Sa 16:9) Pastores iníquos de Israel. (Is 56:10, 11) Antigo conceito judeu sobre gentios incircuncisos. (Mt 15:26, 27) Apóstatas. (2Pe 2:22)
Carneiro	Dá marradas.	Potência Mundial Medo-Persa. (Da 8:3, 4, 20)
Cavalo	Utilidade em batalha. (Jó 39:19-25) Forte desejo sexual.	Guerra, equipamento de guerra. (Sal 33:17; 147:10; Is 31:1; Je 4:13) Israelitas loucos pelo sexo nos dias de Jeremias. (Je 5:8)
Dragão	Devorador, esmagador, engolidor.	Satanás, o Diabo. (Re 12:9) Rei de Babilônia. (Je 51:34, n.)
Jumento	Forte desejo sexual.	Judá sem fé ao se voltar para a Assíria e o Egito. (Ez 23:20)
Leão	Feroz, rapinante, predatório.	Inimigos iníquos de Davi. (Sal 22:13) Potência Mundial Babilônica. (Da 7:4) Reis da Assíria e de Babilônia. (Je 50:17) O Diabo. (1Pe 5:8)
Leopardo	Velocidade.	Rapidez da conquista caldeia. (Hab 1:8) Potência Mundial Grega. (Da 7:6)
Lobo	Ferocidade, rapacidade, selvageria, astúcia.	Falsos profetas. (Mt 7:15) Cristãos iníquos, falsos; falsos instrutores. (At 20:29) Homens iníquos do mundo. (Mt 10:16)
Peixe	Alguns peixes eram impuros segundo a Lei. (Le 11:10-12)	Pessoas iníquas, impróprias para o Reino. (Mt 13:47-50)
Pomba	Facilmente distraída, instável, simplória.	Reino das dez tribos de Israel. (Os 7:11)
Porca	Impureza.	Apóstatas. (2Pe 2:22)
Raposa	Astúcia, dissimulação.	O traiçoeiro Rei Herodes Ântipas. (Lu 13:32)
Serpente	Ardilosa, enganosa. (2Co 11:3)	Satanás, o Diabo. (Re 12:9)
Touro	Ferocidade.	Inimigos iníquos de Davi. (Sal 22:12)
Urso	Ferocidade.	Governantes iníquos. (Pr 28:15) Potência Mundial Medo-Persa. (Da 7:5)

população era menos predominantemente camítica e semítica do que a de qualquer império precedente. . . . Tratava-se até então dum novo padrão na história, tratava-se duma república ariana em expansão. . . . Estava sempre em mudança. Nunca atingiu qualquer estabilidade. Em certo sentido, a experiência [administrativa] fracassou. Em certo sentido, a experiência continua inacabada, e a Europa e a América ainda hoje se empenham em solucionar os enigmas da estadística mundial que primeiro confrontaram o povo romano." — Pocket History of the World (História Mundial de Bolso), 1943, pp. 149-151.

O carneiro e o bode. Na visão que Daniel recebeu dois anos depois (Da 8:1), as potências representadas pelos dois animais simbólicos envolvidos acham-se claramente citadas por nome. O reino da Medo-Pérsia é aqui representado como um carneiro de dois chifres, o chifre maior surgindo depois. A história mostra que os medos inicialmente foram os mais fortes, e os persas, depois disso, obtiveram a ascendência, embora ambos os povos permanecessem unidos numa potência dupla. Um bode, avançando mui rápido através da terra, simbolizava a potência mundial da Grécia. (Da 8:3-8, 20, 21) A visão profética mostra que o "chifre grande" do bode, situado entre os olhos dele, representando o primeiro rei, foi quebrado "assim que se tornou forte", resultando em quatro reinos, embora de força inferior. (Da 8:5, 8, 21, 22) Já comentamos a conquista rápida do Império Medo-Persa por parte de Alexandre, bem como a divisão do seu reino entre quatro de seus generais.

ANIMAL	CARACTERÍSTICA OU QUALIDADE	SIMBOLISMO
Verme	Inferior, fraco, insignificante.	A nação de Deus, Israel (Jacó), fraca em si mesma, forte pelo poder de Jeová. (Is 41:13-15)
Zebra (fêmea)	Ânsia de satisfação sexual de qualquer fonte.	Israel infielmente ir atrás de nações pagãs e seus deuses. (Je 2:24)

É digno de menção, aqui, que a mesma nação ou seus governantes podem ser representados por diferentes animais simbólicos, em diferentes profecias. Assim, os reis da Assíria e da Babilônia são representados por leões em Jeremias 50:17, ao passo que, em Ezequiel 17:3-17, os governantes de Babilônia e do Egito são retratados por grandes águias. Ezequiel, em outra parte, assemelha o Faraó do Egito a um "grande monstro marinho" que jaz nos canais do Nilo. (Ez 29:3) Por isso, o fato de a Medo-Pérsia e a Grécia serem representadas por certos simbolismos no capítulo 8 de Daniel não elimina a possibilidade de serem representadas por outros simbolismos na visão anterior (Da 7), nem em profecias subsequentes.

A fera de sete cabeças que ascende do mar. Na visão recebida pelo apóstolo João e registrada em Revelação (Apocalipse) 13, uma fera de sete cabeças e dez chifres ascende do mar, sendo semelhante a um leopardo, todavia, com pés de urso e boca de leão. Trata-se, assim, duma forma composta de vários dos símbolos apresentados na visão de Daniel sobre os quatro animais. O dragão, identificado em Revelação 12:9 como Satanás, o Diabo, dá à fera sua autoridade e seu poder. (Re 13:1, 2) As sete cabeças (com dez chifres) desta fera a diferenciam dos animais de uma só cabeça da visão de Daniel. Sete (e dez) são números comumente reconhecidos como símbolos bíblicos de inteireza. (Veja NÚMERO, NUMERAL.) Isto é corroborado pela extensão do domínio desta fera, pois ela exerce autoridade, não sobre uma nação ou um grupo de nações, mas "sobre toda tribo, e povo, e língua, e nação". (Re 13:7, 8; compare isso com 16:13, 14.) Observando tais fatores, The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible (Dicionário Bíblico do Intérprete) comenta: "A primeira destas bestas [de Re 13] combina em si mesma as características conjuntas das quatro bestas da visão de Daniel . . . Assim sendo, esta primeira besta representa as forças combinadas de toda a regência política oposta a Deus no mundo." — Editado por G. Buttrick, 1962, Vol. 1, p. 369.

Fera de dois chifres. Daí, João viu ascender da terra uma fera de dois chifres como os de um carneiro inofensivo, mas que falava como dragão, exercendo a plena autoridade da primeira fera, que acabamos de descrever. Ela manda que se faça uma imagem da fera de sete cabeças, que rege mundialmente, obrigando todas as pessoas a aceitar sua "marca". — Re 13:11-17.

Pode-se recordar que o carneiro de dois chifres de Daniel, capítulo 8, representava uma potência dupla, a Medo-Pérsia. Naturalmente, nos dias do apóstolo João, essa potência há muito havia desaparecido, e a visão dele era de coisas ainda futuras. (Re 1:1) Desde os dias de João já existiram outras potências duplas, mas, dentre estas, a histórica associação existente entre a Grã-Bretanha e os Estados Unidos é especialmente notável e de longa duração.

A outra característica notável da fera de dois chifres, falar ela como um dragão, faz lembrar a "boca falando coisas grandiosas" do notável chifre do quarto animal de Daniel 7 (vv. 8, 20-26), ao passo que 'desencaminhar' ela os habitantes da terra é comparável ao engano praticado pelo 'rei feroz' descrito em Daniel 8:23-25. — Re 13:11, 14.

A fera cor de escarlate. Em Revelação 17, o apóstolo registra sua visão duma fera cor de escarlate, com sete cabeças e dez chifres, montada pela mulher simbólica, "Babilônia, a Grande". Esta fera se assemelha assim à primeira fera de Revelação 13, ou é a imagem dela, mas é diferente por causa da sua cor escarlate e por não se verem coroas nos seus dez chifres. Enquanto João contempla a fera, diz-se-lhe que cinco dos sete reis representados pelas sete cabeças já tinham caído, ao passo que um existia naquela época, e o sétimo ainda estava para chegar. A própria fera cor de escarlate é um oitavo rei, mas procede ou é produto dos sete anteriores. Os "dez reis" representados pelos dez chifres existem e exercem por pouco tempo autoridade em associação com a fera cor de escarlate. Guerreando contra o Cordeiro, Jesus Cristo, e os que estão com ele, eles sofrem derrota. — Re 17:3-5, 9-14.

Alguns peritos aplicariam esta visão à Roma pagã, e as sete cabeças a sete imperadores de Roma, seguidos por um oitavo imperador. Discordam, porém, quanto a que imperadores deveriam ser incluídos nisso. A própria Bíblia não menciona por nome mais de três imperadores romanos, mencionando-se um quarto (Nero) sob o título de "César". Outros peritos entendem que as "cabeças" ou os "reis" representam potências mundiais, como no livro de Daniel. É digno de nota que a Bíblia realmente menciona por nome cinco potências mundiais nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a saber, Egito, Assíria, Babilônia, Medo-Pérsia e Grécia, ao passo que as Escrituras Gregas mencionam uma sexta, Roma, dominando nos dias de João. Embora isso deixe o sétimo 'rei' sem nome, o fato de ainda não ter aparecido quando João registrou Revelação permite tal anonimato. O oitavo rei, a simbólica fera cor de escarlate, de algum modo se junta a essas sete cabeças, embora ao mesmo tempo proceda delas.

ANISTIA. Em Ester 2:18 relata-se que Assuero, o monarca persa, depois de fazer de Ester sua rainha, realizou um grande banquete em honra dela e concedeu uma "anistia aos distritos jurisdicionais" do seu domínio. A palavra hebraica hanahháh, aqui usada, ocorre somente uma vez nas Escrituras. É traduzida, de forma variada, como "alívio" (ALA, LXX), "uma anistia dos impostos" (PIB e um targum), "um dia de descanso" e "folga" (CBC, Vg); e os comentaristas sugerem que a remissão ou anistia poderia envolver a anistia fiscal, a eximição do serviço militar, a soltura de presos, ou uma combinação dessas coisas. Uma diferente palavra hebraica (shemit·táh) é usada em outras partes das Escrituras para descrever a remissão de dívidas ou a suspensão de trabalho. — De 15:1, 2, 9; 31:10; veja SABÁTICO, ANO.

Quanto à soltura de presos, pode-se notar que, durante o reinado de Xerxes I, que se crê seja o Assuero do livro de Ester, ocorreram várias revoltas. Uma inscrição de Persépolis, atribuída a Xerxes, declara: "Depois que me tornei rei, houve (alguns) dentre estes países . . . que se revoltaram, (mas) eu esmaguei (lit.: matei) tais países, . . . e os coloquei (novamente) em sua condição (política anterior)." (Ancient Near Eastern Texts, [Textos Antigos do Oriente Próximo], editado por J. B. Pritchard, 1974, p. 317) Tal supressão de insurreições sem dúvida resultou em presos políticos, e a ocasião festiva em que Ester foi feita rainha talvez tenha dado margem para Assuero cancelar as acusações contra tais e conceder-lhes anistia ou libertação. (Compare isso com Mt 27:15.) A natureza exata dessa anistia, porém, continua indeterminada.

ANIVERSÁRIO NATALÍCIO. O dia de aniversário do nascimento de alguém; em hebraico, yohm hul·lé·dheth (Gên 40:20) e em grego, ge·né·si·a (Mt 14:6; Mr 6:21).

Os hebreus guardavam um registro do ano do nascimento, como revelam os dados genealógicos e cronológicos da Bíblia. (Núm 1:2, 3; Jos 14:10; 2Cr 31:16, 17) As idades de levitas, sacerdotes e reis não ficaram por conta de conjecturas. (Núm 4:3; 8:23-25; 2Rs 11:21; 15:2; 18:2) Isto também se deu no caso de Jesus. — Lu 2:21, 22, 42; 3:23.

De acordo com as Escrituras, o dia em que o bebê nascia era usualmente um dia de regozijo e de ações de graças da parte dos pais, e isto de direito, pois "eis que os filhos são uma herança da parte de Jeová; o fruto do ventre é uma recompensa". (Sal 127:3; Je 20:15; Lu 1:57, 58) No entanto, não há indício nas Escrituras de que adoradores fiéis de Jeová se tenham alguma vez entregado à prática pagã de anualmente celebrar aniversários.

A Bíblia refere-se diretamente apenas a duas celebrações de aniversários natalícios, à do Faraó do Egito (século 18 AEC), e à de Herodes Ântipas (1.º século EC). Estes dois relatos são similares, no sentido de que ambas as ocasiões foram marcadas por grande festança e concessão de favores; ambas são lembradas por execuções, a decapitação do padeiro-mor de Faraó, no primeiro caso, e a decapitação de João, o Batizador, no último. — Gên 40:18-22; 41:13; Mt 14:6-11; Mr 6:21-28.

Embora a expressão "no dia de nosso rei", em Oseias 7:5, possa indicar uma festa de natalício para o rei apóstata de Israel, em que os príncipes "fizeram-se a si mesmos doentes . . . por causa do vinho", também pode ter sido o dia do aniversário da sua ascensão ao trono, quando se celebravam festividades similares.

Quando os filhos de Jó "realizaram um banquete na casa de cada um deles no seu próprio dia", não se deve supor que celebravam seu aniversário natalício. (Jó 1:4) "Dia", neste versículo, traduz a palavra hebraica yohm, e refere-se a um período de tempo desde o nascer até o pôr do sol. Por outro lado, "aniversário natalício" corresponde a duas palavras hebraicas, yohm (dia) e hul·lé·dheth. A diferença entre "dia" e o dia do natalício de uma pessoa poderá ser observada em Gênesis 40:20, onde aparecem ambas as expressões: "Ora, o terceiro dia [yohm] resultou ser aniversário natalício [literalmente, "o dia (yohm) do nascimento (hul·lé·dheth) de Faraó"]." De modo que é certo que Jó 1:4 não se refere a um aniversário natalício, como é inquestionavelmente o caso de Gênesis 40:20. Parece que os sete filhos de Jó realizavam uma reunião familiar (possivelmente uma festa da primavera ou da colheita), e, ao passo que as festividades prosseguiam em rodízio por uma semana, cada filho era anfitrião do banquete em sua própria casa "no seu próprio dia".

Com a introdução do cristianismo, o ponto de vista para com as celebrações natalícias não mudou. Jesus iniciou uma obrigatória Comemoração, não do seu nascimento, mas da sua morte, dizendo: "Persisti em fazer isso em memória de mim." (Lu 22:19) Se os cristãos primitivos não celebravam nem comemoravam o nascimento de seu Salvador, muito menos celebrariam seu próprio dia de nascimento. Escreve o historiador Augusto Neander: "A noção de uma festa de aniversário natalício era alheia às ideias dos cristãos deste período." (The History of the Christian Religion and Church, During the Three First Centuries [História da Religião e da Igreja Cristãs, nos Três Primeiros Séculos], traduzida para o inglês por H. J. Rose, 1848, p. 190) "Orígenes [escritor do terceiro século EC] . . . insiste em que 'dentre todas as pessoas santas nas Escrituras, não se registra nenhuma delas como tendo guardado uma festa ou realizado um grande banquete em seu aniversário natalício. São apenas os pecadores (como Faraó e Herodes) que fazem grandes festejos quanto ao dia em que nasceram neste mundo cá embaixo.'" — The Catholic Encyclopedia (Enciclopédia Católica), 1913, Vol. X, p. 709.

É claro, então, que a celebração festiva de aniversários natalícios não se origina nem das Escrituras Hebraicas nem das Gregas. Em adição, a Cyclopædia de M'Clintock e Strong (1882, Vol. I, p. 817) diz que os judeus "consideravam as celebrações de aniversários natalícios como parte da adoração idólatra . . ., e isto provavelmente por causa dos ritos idólatras com que eram celebrados em honra dos que eram considerados como deuses padroeiros do dia em que a pessoa nasceu".

ANJO. Tanto o hebraico mal·'ákh como o grego ág·ge·los significam literalmente "mensageiro". Desde o primeiro livro da Bíblia até o último, estas palavras ocorrem quase 400 vezes. Quando indicam mensageiros espirituais, as palavras são traduzidas "anjos", mas, se a referência é definitivamente a criaturas humanas, a tradução é "mensageiros". (Gên 16:7; 32:3; Tg 2:25; Re 22:8; veja MENSAGEIRO.) No entanto, no livro altamente simbólico de Revelação (Apocalipse), certas referências a 'anjos' podem aplicar-se a criaturas humanas. — Re 2:1, 8, 12, 18; 3:1, 7, 14.

Os anjos às vezes são chamados de espíritos; o que é espírito é invisível e poderoso. Assim, lemos: "Saiu um espírito e ficou de pé perante Jeová." "Não são todos eles espíritos para serviço público?" (1Rs 22:21; He 1:14) Tendo corpos espirituais invisíveis, têm sua morada "nos céus". (Mr 12:25; 1Co 15:44, 50) São também chamados de "filhos do verdadeiro Deus", "estrelas da manhã" e "santas miríades" (ou "santos"). — Jó 1:6; 2:1; 38:7; De 33:2.

Não sendo criaturas que se casam e reproduzem sua própria espécie, os anjos foram criados individualmente por Jeová, mediante seu Filho primogênito, "o princípio da criação de Deus". (Mt 22:30; Re 3:14) "Mediante ele [este Filho primogênito, a Palavra] foram criadas todas as outras coisas nos céus . . . as coisas invisíveis . . . Também, ele é antes de todas as outras coisas e todas as outras coisas vieram a existir por meio dele." (Col 1:15-17; Jo 1:1-3) Os anjos foram criados muito antes do aparecimento do homem, pois, na 'fundação da terra', "as estrelas da manhã juntas gritavam de júbilo e todos os filhos de Deus começaram a bradar em aplauso". — Jó 38:4-7.

Com respeito à quantidade das hostes angélicas do céu, Daniel disse que vira que "mil vezes mil . . . ministravam [a Deus] e dez mil vezes dez mil ficavam de pé logo diante dele". — Da 7:10; He 12:22; Ju 14.

Ordem e Categoria. Como se dá com a criação visível, assim também no domínio invisível existe ordem e categoria entre os anjos. O anjo mais destacado, tanto em poder como em autoridade, é Miguel, o arcanjo. (Da 10:13, 21; 12:1; Ju 9; Re 12:7; veja ARCANJO; MIGUEL.) Por causa da sua proeminência, e por ser chamado "o grande príncipe que está de pé a favor dos filhos [do] . . . povo [de Deus]", presume-se que seja o anjo que conduziu Israel através do ermo. (Êx 23:20-23) Os que têm elevadíssima categoria entre os anjos, quanto a privilégios e honra, são os serafins. (Is 6:2, 6; veja SERAFINS.) Com mais frequência (cerca de 90 vezes), as Escrituras mencionam os querubins, e, pela descrição de seus deveres e responsabilidades, torna-se evidente que eles também detêm uma posição especial entre os anjos. (Gên 3:24; Ez 10:1-22; veja QUERUBIM N.º 1.) Daí, há o grande corpo de mensageiros angélicos que servem qual meio de comunicação entre Deus e o homem. No entanto, fazem mais do que simplesmente transmitir mensagens. Como agentes e representantes do Deus Altíssimo, servem quais executores responsáveis do propósito divino, seja para proteger e livrar o povo de Deus, seja para destruir os iníquos. — Gên 19:1-26.

Personalidade. Alguns talvez neguem que os anjos individuais tenham uma personalidade distinta, afirmando que são forças impessoais de energia enviadas para realizar a vontade de Deus, mas a Bíblia ensina de outra forma. Nomes individuais subentendem individualidade. O fato de que se fornecem dois de seus nomes, Miguel e Gabriel, comprova suficientemente esse ponto. (Da 12:1; Lu 1:26) A falta de outros nomes era uma salvaguarda para que não se desse honra e adoração indevidas a tais criaturas. Anjos foram enviados por Deus como agentes para atuar em Seu nome, e não no próprio nome deles. Por isso, quando Jacó perguntou a um anjo o nome dele, este se recusou a dá-lo. (Gên 32:29) O anjo que se aproximou de Josué, quando este lhe pediu que se identificasse, respondeu apenas que era "príncipe do exército de Jeová". (Jos 5:14) Quando os pais de Sansão perguntaram a um anjo qual era seu nome, este se refreou de dá-lo, dizendo: "Por que é que me perguntarias assim pelo meu nome, quando ele é maravilhoso?" (Jz 13:17, 18) O apóstolo João tentou adorar anjos e foi duas vezes censurado: "Toma cuidado! Não faças isso! . . . Adora a Deus." — Re 19:10; 22:8, 9.

Como personalidades, os anjos têm o poder de comunicar-se uns com os outros (1Co 13:1), têm a habilidade de falar várias línguas dos homens (Núm 22:32-35; Da 4:23; At 10:3-7) e a faculdade de raciocínio, com a qual podem glorificar e louvar a Jeová (Sal 148:2; Lu 2:13). É verdade que os anjos não têm sexo, porque Jeová os fez assim, e não por serem forças impessoais. Os anjos são geralmente representados como varões, e, quando se materializaram, foi sempre em forma masculina, porque Deus e seu Filho são mencionados como varões. No entanto, quando certos anjos materializados entregaram-se ao prazer sexual nos dias de Noé, foram expulsos das cortes celestiais de Jeová. Esta foi uma demonstração da individualidade angélica, pois, semelhantes à humanidade, eles também têm livre-arbítrio, tendo a faculdade de fazer uma escolha pessoal entre o certo e o errado. (Gên 6:2, 4; 2Pe 2:4) Por escolha pessoal, hostes de anjos juntaram-se a Satanás na rebelião dele. — Re 12:7-9; Mt 25:41.

Poderes e Privilégios. Visto que Deus criou o homem "um pouco menor que os anjos" (He 2:7), segue-se que os anjos têm maior capacidade mental do que o homem. Também têm poder sobre-humano. "Bendizei a Jeová, vós anjos seus, poderosos em poder, cumprindo a sua palavra." O conhecimento e o poder angélicos foram demonstrados quando dois anjos causaram a destruição chamejante de Sodoma e Gomorra. Um único anjo matou 185.000 do exército assírio. — Sal 103:20; Gên 19:13, 24; 2Rs 19:35.

Os anjos também podem viajar a tremendas velocidades, ultrapassando em muito os limites do mundo físico. Assim, quando Daniel estava orando, Deus despachou um anjo para responder à oração dele; e o anjo chegou em questão de instantes, mesmo antes de terminar a oração. — Da 9:20-23.

Mas, apesar de todos os seus poderes mentais e espirituais superiores, os anjos têm suas limitações. Não sabiam o 'dia e a hora' em que este sistema de coisas será eliminado, disse Jesus. (Mt 24:36) Têm vívido interesse no desenrolar dos propósitos de Jeová, todavia, há algumas coisas que não entendem. (1Pe 1:12) Regozijam-se com o arrependimento de um pecador, e observam o "espetáculo teatral" provido pelos cristãos aqui no palco mundial das atividades públicas. Observam, também, o exemplo correto das mulheres cristãs que usam um sinal de autoridade na cabeça. — Lu 15:10; 1Co 4:9; 11:10; veja IMORTALIDADE (Concedida a Imortalidade aos Herdeiros do Reino).

Como ministros de Jeová, os anjos usufruíram muitos privilégios durante eões de tempo. Os anjos ministraram a favor de Abraão, de Jacó, de Moisés, de Josué, de Isaías, de Daniel, de Zacarias, de Pedro, de Paulo e de João, para se mencionarem apenas alguns. (Gên 22:11; 31:11; Jos 5:14, 15; Is 6:6, 7; Da 6:22; Za 1:9; At 5:19, 20; 7:35; 12:7, 8; 27:23, 24; Re 1:1) Suas mensagens contribuíram para a escrita da Bíblia. Em Revelação, os anjos são mencionados muito mais vezes do que em qualquer outro livro da Bíblia. Inumeráveis anjos foram vistos ao redor do grande trono de Jeová; sete tocaram as sete trombetas, ao passo que outros sete derramaram as sete tigelas da ira de Deus; um anjo que voava pelo meio do céu tinha "boas novas eternas"; outro, porém, proclamava: "Caiu Babilônia, a Grande." — Re 5:11; 7:11; 8:6; 14:6, 8; 16:1.

Apoio a Cristo e aos seguidores dele. Do início ao fim, os santos anjos de Deus acompanharam a peregrinação terrestre de Jesus com extremo interesse. Anunciaram sua concepção e seu nascimento, e ministraram-lhe após o jejum de 40 dias. Um anjo o fortaleceu quando ele orou em Getsêmani, na sua última noite como humano. Quando a turba veio prendê-lo, ele poderia ter convocado nada menos que doze legiões de anjos, caso resolvesse fazer isso. Anjos também anunciaram a ressurreição dele e estavam presentes à sua ascensão ao céu. — Mt 4:11; 26:53; 28:5-7; Lu 1:30, 31; 2:10, 11; 22:43; At 1:10, 11.

Depois disso, os mensageiros espirituais de Deus continuaram a ministrar a Seus servos na Terra, assim como Jesus prometera: "Não desprezeis a um destes pequenos; pois eu vos digo que os seus anjos no céu sempre observam o rosto de meu Pai." (Mt 18:10) "Não são todos eles espíritos para serviço público, enviados para ministrar aos que hão de herdar a salvação?" (He 1:14) Esses poderosos anjos não mais aparecem visivelmente a favor dos servos de Jeová na Terra, como na ocasião em que livraram os apóstolos da prisão; não obstante, assegura-se aos servos de Deus que os sempre presentes invisíveis exércitos protetores são tão reais como os que rodearam o profeta Eliseu e seu servo. "Dará aos seus próprios anjos uma ordem concernente a ti, para te guardar em todos os teus caminhos." Sim, "o anjo de Jeová acampa-se ao redor dos que o temem, e ele os socorre". — Sal 91:11; 34:7; At 5:19; 2Rs 6:15-17.

Mostra-se além disso que os anjos acompanham Jesus Cristo quando ele vem para julgamento, separando o "trigo" do "joio", e as "ovelhas" dos "cabritos". Anjos participaram com Miguel na sua guerra contra o dragão e os demônios, por ocasião do nascimento do Reino de Deus no céu. Apoiarão também o Rei dos reis em travar a guerra do grande dia de Deus, o Todo-Poderoso. — Mt 13:41; 25:31-33; Re 12:7-10; 19:14-16.

ANO. A principal palavra hebraica para "ano", sha·náh, deriva duma raiz que significa "repetir; fa-zer de novo", e, semelhante à sua correspondente grega, e·ni·au·tós, contém a ideia de um ciclo de tempo. Na Terra, é a recorrência das estações que assinala visivelmente o término dos períodos anuais; as estações, por sua vez, são governadas pela translação da Terra ao redor do Sol. O Criador, portanto, proveu os meios para se medir o tempo em termos de anos, por colocar a Terra em sua órbita designada, com seu eixo posicionado em ângulo inclinado em relação ao seu plano orbital ao redor do sol. Um meio conveniente de se subdividir o ano em períodos mais curtos também é fornecido pelas fases regulares da lua. Tais fatos são indicados bem cedo no registro bíblico. — Gên 1:14-16; 8:22.

Desde o começo, o homem utilizou estes indicadores de tempo, divinamente fornecidos, medindo o tempo em termos de anos, subdivididos em meses. (Gên 5:1-32) A maioria dos povos antigos usava um ano de 12 meses lunares. O ano lunar comum tem 354 dias, os meses tendo 29 ou 30 dias, dependendo do aparecimento de cada lua nova. Ele é, portanto, cerca de 11¼ dias mais curto do que o verdadeiro ano solar de 365¼ dias (365 dias, 5 horas, 48 minutos e 46 segundos).

No Tempo de Noé. No tempo de Noé, dispomos do primeiro registro da maneira antiga de se computar a duração do ano. Ele evidentemente dividia o ano em 12 meses de 30 dias cada um. Em Gênesis 7:11, 24, e 8:3-5, o "diário de bordo" que Noé mantinha mostra que 150 dias equivalem a cinco meses. Neste relato, o segundo, o sétimo e o décimo meses do ano do Dilúvio são especificamente mencionados. Daí, depois do décimo mês e seu primeiro dia, ocorre um período de 40 dias, bem como dois períodos de 7 dias cada um, ou um total de 54 dias. (Gên 8:5-12) Há também um tempo indeterminado entre o envio do corvo e o primeiro envio da pomba. (Gên 8:6-8) Semelhantemente, outro período indeterminado é indicado após o terceiro e último envio da pomba, em Gênesis 8:12. No versículo seguinte, encontramos mencionado o primeiro dia, do primeiro mês, do ano seguinte. (Gên 8:13) Não se revela que método Noé, ou os anteriores a ele, usavam para reconciliar o ano composto de meses de trinta dias com o ano solar.

Egito e Babilônia. No antigo Egito, o ano tinha 12 meses de 30 dias cada um, e mais cinco dias eram acrescentados anualmente para harmonizar este ano com o ano solar. Os babilônios, por outro lado, apegavam-se ao ano lunar, mas adicionavam um 13.º mês, chamado veadar, durante certos anos, a fim de manter as estações em harmonia com os meses a que normalmente correspondiam. Tal ano é chamado de lunissolar, e, obviamente, é às vezes mais curto, e às vezes mais longo do que o verdadeiro ano solar, dependendo de se o ano lunar tem 12 ou 13 meses.

O Ciclo Metônico. Em alguma época, desenvolveu-se o sistema de adicionar um mês intercalar, ou 13.º mês, sete vezes em cada 19 anos, dando quase que exatamente o mesmo resultado que 19 anos solares verdadeiros. Este ciclo veio a ser chamado de ciclo metônico (ou metoniano), em homenagem ao matemático grego Méton, do quinto século AEC.

Os Hebreus. A Bíblia não diz se este era o sistema originalmente empregado pelos hebreus para reconciliar seu ano lunar com o ano solar. O fato de que os nomes registrados de seus meses lunares são nomes das estações mostra que faziam certa adequação. Duas vezes a cada ano, o centro do sol cruza o equador, e nessas ocasiões o dia e a noite têm igual duração (aproximadamente 12 horas de luz do dia e 12 horas de escuridão) em toda parte. Essas duas épocas são chamadas de equinócio da primavera (ou ponto vernal) e equinócio do outono (ou ponto da Libra). Ocorrem por volta de 21 de março e de 23 de setembro de cada um dos nossos atuais anos calendares. Estes equinócios poderiam logicamente fornecer os meios para se notar quando os meses lunares estavam muito adiantados das estações correspondentes, e, assim, servir como guia para os ajustes necessários, pela adição de um mês intercalar.

Os anos eram antigamente calculados como indo de outono a outono (hemisfério norte), o primeiro mês começando em meados de nosso presente mês de setembro. Isto coincide com a tradição judaica de que a criação do homem ocorreu no outono (setentrional). Visto que a Bíblia fornece um registro da idade de Adão em termos de anos (Gên 5:3-5), é razoável que a contagem começasse a partir da sua criação, e, se esta deveras ocorreu no outono (setentrional), isso explicaria, até certo ponto, a prática antiga de se iniciar o ano novo nessa época. Adicionalmente, contudo, tal ano seria especialmente apropriado para a vida agrícola das pessoas, mormente naquela parte da Terra em que ambos os povos, pré-diluvianos e primitivos pós-diluvianos, se concentravam. O ano findava com o último período de colheita e começava com a aração e a semeadura perto da primeira parte de nosso mês de outubro.

Um ano sagrado e um secular. Deus mudou o início do ano para a nação de Israel por ocasião do êxodo dela do Egito, decretando que deveria começar com o mês de abibe, ou nisã, na primavera (setentrional). (Êx 12:1-14; 23:15) O outono do ano, porém, continuou a marcar o início de seu ano secular ou agrícola. Assim, em Êxodo 23:16, a Festividade do Recolhimento, que acontecia no outono, no mês de etanim, o sétimo mês do calendário sagrado, é mencionada como ocorrendo "à saída do ano", e, em Êxodo 34:22, como "na volta do ano". Semelhantemente, os regulamentos a respeito dos anos de jubileu mostram que começavam no mês outonal de etanim. — Le 25:8-18.

O historiador judeu Josefo (do primeiro século EC) diz que o ano sagrado (que começava na primavera) era usado com relação às observâncias religiosas, mas que o ano secular original (que começava no outono) continuava a ser usado com relação às vendas e às compras, e a outros assuntos comuns. (Jewish Antiquities [Antiguidades Judaicas], I, 81 [iii, 3]) Este sistema duplo de um ano sagrado e um ano secular é especialmente destacado no período pós-exílico, depois da libertação dos judeus de Babilônia. O primeiro dia de nisã, ou abibe, assinalava o começo do ano sagrado, e o primeiro dia de tisri, ou etanim, assinalava o início do ano secular. Em cada caso, o que era o primeiro mês de um calendário tornava-se o sétimo mês do outro. — Veja CALENDÁRIO.

Calendário correlato com festividades. Os pontos principais de cada ano eram as três grandes épocas de festividade decretadas por Jeová Deus: A Páscoa (seguida pela Festividade dos Pães Não Fermentados) em 14 de nisã; a Festividade das Semanas, ou Pentecostes, em 6 de sivã, e a Festividade do Recolhimento (precedida pelo Dia da Expiação), de 15 a 21 de etanim. A Festividade dos Pães Não Fermentados coincidia com a colheita da cevada, Pentecostes, com a colheita de trigo, e a Festividade do Recolhimento, com a colheita geral, no fim do ano agrícola.

Os anos sabáticos e de jubileu. Sob o pacto da Lei, todo sétimo ano era um ano de completo repouso para a terra, um ano sabático. O período ou semana de sete anos era chamado de um 'sábado de anos'. (Le 25:2-8) Todo 50.º ano era um ano de jubileu, de repouso, em que todos os escravos hebreus eram libertados e todas as propriedades hereditárias eram restituídas aos seus donos originais. — Le 25:10-41; veja SABÁTICO, ANO.

Método de calcular o tempo de governo dos reis. Nos registros históricos era costume, em Babilônia, calcular os anos de governo ou reinado dum rei como anos completos, a partir de 1.º de nisã. Os meses durante os quais o rei talvez tivesse realmente começado a governar antes de 1.º de nisã eram considerados como constituindo seu ano de ascensão, mas eram historicamente creditados ou contados como anos completos de governo do rei que o precedera. Se este sistema, conforme indica a tradição judaica, era seguido em Judá, então, quando a Bíblia fala de tanto o Rei Davi como o Rei Salomão reinarem "quarenta anos" cada um, os reinados abrangem plenos períodos de 40 anos. — 1Rs 1:39; 2:1, 10, 11; 11:42.

Nas Profecias. Nas profecias, a palavra "ano" é com frequência usada num sentido especial como equivalendo a 360 dias (12 meses de 30 dias cada um). (Re 11:2, 3) Também é chamado de um "tempo" e, ocasionalmente, é representado simbolicamente por um "dia". — Re 12:6, 14; Ez 4:5, 6.

ANO SABÁTICO. Veja SABÁTICO, ANO.

ANOQUE [Um Treinado; Inaugurado [isto é, dedicado, iniciado]].

1. Filho de Midiã, quarto filho mencionado de Abraão por Quetura. — Gên 25:1, 2, 4; 1Cr 1:33.

2. Filho de Rubem, primogênito de Jacó, e antepassado dos anoquitas. — Gên 46:8, 9; Êx 6:14; Núm 26:4, 5; 1Cr 5:3.

ANOQUITAS [De (Pertencente a) Anoque]. Uma família descendente de Anoque, filho de Rubem. — Núm 26:4, 5; Gên 46:9.

ANRAFEL. Rei de Sinear, na parte meridional da Mesopotâmia, e aliado e apoiador do Rei Quedorlaomer, de Elão, na invasão da Baixada de Sidim e na vitória sobre cinco reis ali. Anrafel e seus aliados foram mais tarde alcançados por Abrão, quando foi resgatar Ló, e foram completamente desbaratados. (Gên 14:1-16) Tem havido tentativas de identificar Anrafel com Hamurábi, mas não há certeza desta identificação.

ANRAMITAS [De (Pertencente a) Anrão]. Descendentes de Anrão, neto de Levi por meio de Coate. Eles constituíam uma subdivisão da família dos coatitas. Durante a peregrinação através do ermo, eles acampavam ao S do tabernáculo, junto com todas as famílias dos filhos de Coate. A designação de serviço dos coatitas era a Arca, a mesa, o candelabro, os altares e os utensílios, bem como o reposteiro entre o Santo e o Santíssimo. — Núm 3:27-31; 1Cr 26:23.

ANRÃO [Povo Elevado (Exaltado)].

1. Neto de Levi por meio de Coate. (Êx 6:16, 18, 20; Núm 3:19; 26:58; 1Cr 6:18) Declara-se que casou com a "irmã de seu pai", Joquebede, um proceder então permissível, mas posteriormente proibido na Lei mosaica. (Le 18:12) Algumas traduções, porém, procuram mostrá-la como prima dele. (Veja JOQUEBEDE.) Seus filhos foram Arão, Miriã e Moisés. — Êx 6:20; Núm 26:59; 1Cr 6:2, 3; 23:12, 13.

2. Um "dos filhos de Bani", o qual, junto com outros exilados retornados, acatou a convocação de despedir as esposas estrangeiras em 468 AEC. — Esd 10:34, 44.

3. Nome dado a um seirita, filho de Disom, grafado "Hanrão", na tradução de João Ferreira de Almeida de 1 Crônicas 1:41. — Veja HENDÃ.

ANSIEDADE. Diversas palavras hebraicas transmitem a ideia de ansiedade ou preocupação. Uma delas (tsa·rár) significa ser confinado num sentido físico e assim é vertida 'embrulhar', 'meter em' e 'ser apertado'. (Êx 12:34; Pr 26:8; Is 49:19) Em sentido figurativo significa 'estar aflito; estar em sério aperto'. (Gên 32:7; 1Sa 28:15) Outra é da·'ágh, vertida 'inquietar-se; ficar receoso', é aparentada com de'a·gháh, que significa "ansiedade". (1Sa 9:5; Is 57:11; Pr 12:25) O substantivo grego mé·ri·mna é vertido 'ansiedade', ao passo que o verbo aparentado, me·ri·mná·o, significa 'estar ansioso'. — Mt 13:22; Lu 12:22.

A ansiedade pode ser prejudicial para o bem-estar da pessoa. Pode levar à depressão, privando a pessoa de força e da iniciativa de agir. Diz o inspirado provérbio: "A ansiedade no coração do homem é o que o fará curvar-se." (Pr 12:25) A preocupação pode provocar graves manifestações físicas. O livro How to Master Your Nerves (Como Dominar Seus Nervos) observa: "Os médicos sabem como a ansiedade pode afetar as funções do organismo. Pode elevar (ou baixar) a pressão arterial; pode elevar a contagem dos glóbulos brancos no sangue; pode repentinamente afetar o açúcar no sangue pela ação da adrenalina sobre o fígado. Pode até mesmo alterar seu eletrocardiograma. O Dr. Charles Mayo disse: 'A preocupação afeta a circulação, o coração, as glândulas, todo o sistema nervoso.'" — Dos Drs. P. Steincrohn e D. La-Fia, 1970, p. 14.

Muito mais sério é o dano espiritual a que a indevida ansiedade pode levar. Jesus Cristo indicou que o apreço pela "palavra de Deus" pode ser completamente sufocado pela preocupação com os problemas que muitas vezes acompanham a vida no atual sistema de coisas. Assim como espinhos podem impedir que as plantinhas atinjam a madureza e produzam fruto, assim essa ansiedade pode impedir o desenvolvimento espiritual e a produção de frutos para o louvor de Deus. (Mt 13:22; Mr 4:18, 19; Lu 8:7, 11, 14) Muitos descobrirão que, por terem permitido que estas preocupações dominassem sua vida, para a exclusão de interesses espirituais, eles se encontrarão num estado desaprovado perante o Filho de Deus na volta dele em glória, para a sua eterna perda. — Lu 21:34-36.

Ansiedades ou Preocupações Corretas. É correto estar ansioso quanto a fazer aquilo que agrada a Jeová Deus, a fim de não perder as bênçãos usufruídas pelos servos devotados dele. Quem for culpado de grave transgressão deveria sentir-se assim como o salmista: "Comecei a inquietar-me do meu pecado." (Sal 38:18) A correta preocupação por causa dum pecado conduz à confissão, ao arrependimento e a se desviar do proceder errado, restabelecendo assim uma boa relação com o Altíssimo.

Todos os cristãos deviam estar ansiosos pelo bem-estar espiritual, físico e material de concrentes, ou realmente importar-se com ele. (1Co 12:25-27) Este tipo de preocupação é refletido na carta do apóstolo João a Gaio: "Amado, oro para que em todas as coisas estejas prosperando e tenhas boa saúde, assim como a tua alma está prosperando." (3Jo 2) O apóstolo Paulo falou da "ansiedade por todas as congregações". (2Co 11:28) Ele se preocupava profundamente de que todos permanecessem discípulos fiéis do Filho de Deus, até o fim.

As Escrituras mencionam estar "ansioso das coisas do Senhor", quer dizer, preocupado com tudo o que promova os interesses do Filho de Deus. Os cristãos solteiros, livres das responsabilidades e dos cuidados com um cônjuge e filhos, estão em melhor situação do que os casados para minimizar a preocupação com as "coisas do mundo", e assim podem dar maior atenção às "coisas do Senhor". — 1Co 7:32-35.

O apóstolo Paulo escreveu que os maridos e as esposas cristãos estariam 'ansiosos das coisas do mundo', sujeitos a distrações que os cristãos solteiros não têm. No caso de alguém não casado, aquilo que pode ser suficiente para os cuidados pessoais e do lar, e para as necessidades da vida — alimento, roupa e abrigo — pode ser bem insuficiente quanto ao que uma família necessita. Por causa da relação íntima entre marido e esposa, ambos estão corretamente ansiosos ou preocupados de agradar ao outro em prover o que contribui para o bem-estar físico, mental, emocional e espiritual da família inteira. Mesmo sem ter de contender com doenças, emergências, limitações ou impedimentos, os casais com filhos precisam devotar muito mais tempo às "coisas do mundo", isto é, às atividades não espirituais, relacionadas com a vida humana, do que usualmente se daria com cristãos solteiros.

Ainda assim, não se deve permitir que interesses mundanos assumam demasiada importância. Jesus Cristo tornou isto claro à irmã de Lázaro, Marta. Ansiosa de tratar bem seu convidado, ela não podia entender como era possível tomar tempo para escutar Jesus. Maria, por outro lado, conseguiu escolher "a boa porção", o recebimento de nutrição espiritual do Filho de Deus. — Lu 10:38-42.

Evitar a Indevida Ansiedade. A confiança implícita no interesse amoroso de Jeová no bem-estar de seus servos pode ajudar a evitar que se sucumba a preocupações desnecessárias. (Je 17:7, 8) Jesus Cristo fez a mesma observação no seu Sermão do Monte. Ele concluiu o seu conselho a respeito da ansiedade com as seguintes palavras:

"Nunca estejais ansiosos quanto ao dia seguinte, pois o dia seguinte terá as suas próprias ansiedades. Basta a cada dia o seu próprio mal." (Mt 6:25-34) O cristão já tem bastantes problemas todo dia sem aumentá-los por estar ansioso quanto ao que poderia acontecer no dia seguinte, e que, de fato, talvez nunca aconteça.

Mesmo quando um cristão é levado perante autoridades para interrogatório em épocas de perseguição, sua confiança na ajuda de Deus pode livrá-lo da ansiedade. Jeová, por meio do Seu espírito, pode sustentar o cristão nesta situação provadora e tornar possível que ele dê testemunho de modo excelente. — Mt 10:18-20; Lu 12:11, 12.

Sempre que sobrevém ao cristão algo que possa torná-lo ansioso, enchendo-o de desassossego e apreensão, ele deve recorrer em oração ao seu Pai celestial. Assim pode 'lançar sua ansiedade sobre Jeová', confiante em que será ouvido por Aquele que tem cuidado dele. (1Pe 5:7) Isto resultará numa calma íntima, na paz de Deus, que guardará o coração e as faculdades mentais. Bem no íntimo, no coração, o cristão se sentirá livre do desassossego, do mau pressentimento e do alarmismo, e sua mente não será perturbada por distrações e perplexidades resultantes da ansiedade. — Fil 4:6, 7.

ANTICRISTO. Esta palavra significa "contra (ou em lugar de) Cristo". Ela ocorre ao todo cinco vezes, tanto no singular como no plural, todas elas em duas das epístolas de João.

O assunto não era novo entre os cristãos quando João escreveu suas cartas (c. 98 EC). A Primeira de João 2:18 declara: "Criancinhas, é a última hora, e, assim como ouvistes que vem o anticristo [gr.: an·tí·khri·stos], já está havendo agora muitos anticristos; sendo que deste fato obtemos o conhecimento de que é a última hora." A declaração de João mostra que há muitos anticristos individuais, embora todos juntos talvez formem uma pessoa composta denominada "o anticristo". (2Jo 7) O uso da expressão "hora", como se referindo a um período de tempo, quer relativamente breve, quer de duração indeterminada, é exemplificado em outros escritos de João. (Veja Jo 2:4; 4:21-23; 5:25, 28; 7:30; 8:20; 12:23, 27.) Ele não restringiu assim o aparecimento, a existência e a atividade de tal anticristo apenas a algum tempo futuro, mas mostrou que o anticristo estava então presente e continuaria. — 1Jo 4:3.

Identificação. Embora no passado tenha havido muitos esforços de identificar "o anticristo" com uma pessoa, tal como Pompeu, Nero ou Maomé (esta última pessoa sendo sugerida pelo Papa Inocêncio III, em 1213 EC), ou com uma organização específica, tal como no conceito protestante do "anticristo", segundo o qual este se aplicaria ao papado, as declarações inspiradas de João mostram que o termo é amplo na sua aplicação, abrangendo todos aqueles que negam que "Jesus é o Cristo", e que negam que Jesus é o Filho de Deus que veio "na carne". — 1Jo 2:22; 4:2, 3; 2Jo 7, Al, ALA, TEB; compare isso com Jo 8:42, 48, 49; 9:22.

A negação de Jesus como o Cristo e como o Filho de Deus necessariamente abrange a negação de quaisquer ou de todos os ensinos bíblicos a respeito dele: sua origem, seu lugar no arranjo de Deus, seu cumprimento das profecias das Escrituras Hebraicas como o prometido Messias, seu ministério, seus ensinos e suas profecias, bem como qualquer oposição a ele ou esforços de substituí-lo em sua posição qual Sumo Sacerdote e Rei designado por Deus. Isto se evidencia em outros textos que, embora não usem o termo "anticristo", expressam essencialmente a mesma ideia. Assim, Jesus declarou: "Quem não está do meu lado é contra mim, e quem comigo não ajunta, espalha." (Lu 11:23) A Segunda de João 7 mostra que tais talvez agissem como enganadores, e, por isso, o "anticristo" incluiria aqueles que são "falsos cristos" e "falsos profetas", bem como aqueles que realizam obras poderosas em nome de Jesus, e, no entanto, são classificados por ele como "obreiros do que é contra a lei". — Mt 24:24; 7:15, 22, 23.

Em vista da regra de Jesus, de que aquilo que se faz aos seus verdadeiros seguidores é feito a ele (Mt 25:40, 45; At 9:5), o termo tem de incluir aqueles que perseguem a tais, o que significa que incluiria a simbólica "Babilônia, a Grande". — Lu 21:12; Re 17:5, 6.

João menciona especificamente os apóstatas como estando entre os que são do anticristo, por referir-se aos que "saíram do nosso meio", abandonando a congregação cristã. (1Jo 2:18, 19) Por conseguinte, inclui o "homem que é contra a lei", ou "filho da destruição", descrito por Paulo, bem como os "falsos instrutores" que Pedro denuncia por formarem seitas destrutivas e que 'repudiam até mesmo o dono que os comprou'. — 2Te 2:3-5; 2Pe 2:1; veja HOMEM QUE É CONTRA A LEI.

Mostra-se que reinos, nações e organizações similarmente fazem parte do anticristo da descrição simbólica em Revelação (Apocalipse) 17:8-15; 19:19-21. — Veja Sal 2:1, 2.

Em todos os casos acima mencionados mostra-se que os que compõem o anticristo estão destinados por fim à destruição em retribuição de seu proceder opositor.

ANTIGO DE DIAS. Tradução da expressão aramaica 'at·tíq yoh·mín, que indica "alguém avançado (ou idoso) em dias". Este título de Jeová só aparece em Daniel 7:9, 13 e 22, e se alterna com o título de "Supremo". (Da 7:18, 22, 25, 27) O cenário é um tribunal em que o Antigo de Dias está sentado para julgar as potências mundiais, descritas sob o simbolismo de enormes animais. A licença delas para governar a Terra lhes é tirada e o "domínio, e dignidade, e um reino" são dados a alguém "semelhante a um filho de homem", ordenando-se que todos os povos lhe rendam obediência. — Da 7:10-14.

O título "Antigo de Dias" contrasta apropriadamente o Deus eterno com as sucessivas potências mundiais, que ascendem e caem, e representa Jeová em seu papel de majestoso e venerável Juiz de todos. — Sal 90:2; 75:7.

ANTILÍBANO. A mais oriental das duas cadeias de montanhas que formam o sistema montanhoso do Líbano. A cadeia de montanhas do Antilíbano é paralela à cadeia do Líbano por cerca de 100 km, estendendo-se do planalto de Basã, ao L de Dã, até a grande planície de Emesa, não muito longe do lugar de Ribla. Entre as duas cadeias de montanhas existe um longo vale formado pelos rios Orontes e Litani, e chamado de Coele-Síria ("Síria Oca") ou Beqa'. — Jos 11:17.

No N, a cadeia se estreita e é interrompida por uma série de picos destacados. A massa central é mais larga, mais elevada e mais acidentada, ao passo que a zona meridional é cortada por longos vales de torrente que se dirigem para o L e para o S. Ao L da cadeia principal há uma série de planaltos descendentes que gradualmente baixam para o nível das planícies de Damasco. A zona meridional inclui o monte Hermom, que atinge 2.814 m. A geologia destas montanhas é similar à da cadeia de montanhas do Líbano, e estas são na maior parte de pedra calcária, com penhascos cinzentos e picos redondos, cinzentos.

A cadeia de montanhas do Antilíbano é evidentemente indicada no hebraico pelo nome "Amana" em O Cântico de Salomão 4:8, onde é mencionada em conexão com o monte Hermom. Ao passo que alguns consideram o Amana como determinado pico montanhoso, parece referir-se mais quer à inteira cadeia do Antilíbano, quer a alguma parte dela. As cadeias de montanhas de "Libana" e "Ammanana" são mencionadas juntas nas inscrições dos monarcas assírios Tiglate-Pileser III e Senaqueribe. O rio Abana (moderno Barada) é também chamado "Amana" em 2 Reis 5:12 na Pesito siríaca e nos Targuns aramaicos, e este rio, o principal de Damasco, tem sua nascente na parte meridional das montanhas do Antilíbano. Por isso, o nome pode referir-se quer àquela parte da cadeia, quer à inteira cadeia de montanhas.

Visto que a maior parte da cadeia de montanhas do Antilíbano não é coberta de neve, possui poucos rios ou riachos. Nela cresce pouca vegetação, mas bosques esparsos do carvalho-anão e de juníperos são vistos em várias partes das encostas. Restam atualmente poucos cedros. As encostas mais baixas ainda sustentam vinhedos, olivais e pomares, como nos tempos bíblicos.

ANTÍLOPE [hebr.: di·shón]. Um animal ruminante de casco partido, ocorrendo a única menção dele em Deuteronômio 14:5, onde está incluído na lista dos animais permitidos como alimento para os israelitas. Não há certeza quanto a que animal se refere a palavra hebraica di·shón.

O antílope ádax (Addax nasomaculatus), que ainda sobrevive nas regiões desérticas da África do Norte, com frequência é sugerido como correspondendo ao di·shón das Escrituras Hebraicas. Este antílope mede cerca de 1 m de altura na espádua. Seus cascos fendidos, que se abrem em leque, o equipam admiravelmente para percorrer as areias soltas do deserto, onde consegue sobreviver sem água por períodos extremamente longos. Os chifres amplamente espalhados deste animal são contorcidos como parafuso, dando de uma e meia a quase três voltas, e medem cerca de 1 m ao longo da curvatura. Excetuando-se o abdome, a cauda, as ancas e as marcas faciais, que sempre permanecem brancos, a cor do antílope ádax se torna mais escura no inverno, passando da cor de areia para castanho. Outra possibilidade é o órix da Arábia (Oryx leucoryx), também um antílope do deserto.

ANTIOQUIA.

1. A cidade de Antioquia, na Síria, foi fundada por Seleuco I (Nicátor) pouco depois que ele e os generais Cassandro e Lisímaco ganharam a batalha decisiva de Ipsos, na Frígia, Ásia Menor, em 301 AEC. Ele escolheu esse lugar devido às suas vantagens militares e chamou-o pelo nome de seu pai, Antíoco. No lugar do que hoje é chamado de Antáquia, na Turquia, Antioquia foi fundada do lado S do navegável rio Orontes, numa curva a cerca de 32 km do mar Mediterrâneo. Estava geograficamente situada de tal modo, que podia com facilidade dominar o comércio de todo o NO da Síria, que percorria as rotas entre o rio Eufrates e o mar Mediterrâneo. Logo se tornou um centro comercial, e suas manufaturas de itens luxuosos trouxeram prosperidade e riqueza à cidade cosmopolita. Para servir de porto marítimo de Antioquia, Seleuco também fundou a cidade costeira de Selêucia, chamada segundo o seu próprio nome. Antes de ser assassinado, em 281 AEC, transferiu a sede de seu governo de Babilônia para sua nova capital síria, Antioquia, onde a dinastia selêucida de reis continuou no poder até 64 AEC, quando o general romano Pompeu fez da Síria uma província romana. Antioquia não só se tornou a capital da província romana da Síria, mas também se tornou a terceira maior cidade do império, depois de Roma e Alexandria.

A estrutura física da cidade fora disposta segundo o projeto de Alexandria, com grandes ruas, ladeadas de colunas, que se cruzavam, dando uma impressionante beleza ao esplendor dos prédios circundantes. Era chamada "A Rainha do Oriente", "Antioquia, a Bela", "A Terceira Metrópole do Império Romano", e era ímpar por possuir um sistema regular de iluminação das ruas. Apesar desta exibição exterior de beleza e laboriosidade, granjeou a reputação de ser moralmente corrupta graças à prática aviltante de ritos orgíacos em nome da religião. Juvenal disse que 'o rio Orontes tinha desaguado no rio Tibre, inundando Roma com a superstição e a imoralidade do Oriente'. — Juvenal and Persius (Juvenal e Pérsio), Sátira III, 62-65.

Conexões Bíblicas e História Posterior. Josefo registra que os selêucidas incentivaram os judeus a se estabelecer em Antioquia e lhes deram plenos direitos de cidadania, assim estabelecendo uma numerosa população judaica. A primeira menção de Antioquia na Bíblia é em conexão com Nicolau de Antioquia, que se tornou cristão depois de se ter tornado prosélito da religião judaica. (At 6:5) A atividade cristã direta começou ali quando alguns dos discípulos foram espalhados até Antioquia, devido à tribulação surgida após a morte de Estêvão. (At 11:19, 20) Quando a congregação em Jerusalém ouviu falar que muitas pessoas de língua grega se tornavam crentes, enviaram Barnabé até Antioquia e, quando este observou o interesse florescente ali, trouxe Paulo, lá de Tarso, para ajudá-lo. (At 11:21-26) Ambos moraram ali por um ano, ensinando as pessoas, e Paulo depois disso usou Antioquia como base para suas viagens missionárias. Foi em Antioquia que, por providência divina, os discípulos foram pela primeira vez chamados "cristãos". (At 11:26) A generosidade da congregação foi expressa quando ela enviou uma subministração de socorros (At 11:29) pelas mãos de Paulo e Barnabé ao corpo governante em Jerusalém, por volta de 46 EC. Isto coincidiu com uma grande fome que ocorreu no tempo de Cláudio, conforme profetizada por Ágabo. (At 11:27, 28) Depois que retornaram a Antioquia, o espírito santo orientou que Paulo e Barnabé fossem separados para um trabalho especial, de modo que foram enviados na primeira viagem missionária de Paulo, por volta de 47-48 EC. Antes de ele iniciar sua segunda viagem missionária, e enquanto estava em Antioquia, surgiu a questão da circuncisão para os gentios, por volta de 49 EC, e o decreto do corpo governante em Jerusalém foi entregue por Paulo e Barnabé à congregação em Antioquia. (At 15:13-35) A segunda viagem missionária de Paulo, por volta de 49-52 EC, também começou e terminou em Antioquia, e foi também aqui que Paulo corrigiu a ação transigente de Pedro, de fazer discriminação entre judeus e gentios. — Gál 2:11, 12.

2. Antioquia, na Pisídia, também foi fundada por Seleuco I (Nicátor), e chamada em honra ao pai dele, Antíoco. As ruínas da cidade se encontram perto de Ialvaque, na Turquia moderna. (FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 748) Encontrava-se na fronteira da Frígia e da Pisídia, e assim poderia ser considerada parte de uma ou de outra destas províncias em épocas diferentes. Assim, o geógrafo grego, Estrabão, refere-se a ela como uma cidade da Frígia, voltada para a Pisídia (Geography [Geografia], 12, VIII, 13, 14), mas, como observa o Funk and Wagnalls New Standard Bible Dictionary (Novo Dicionário Bíblico Padrão de Funk e Wagnalls, 1936, p. 51), "a maioria dos escritores falam dela como sendo da Pisídia", assim como fez Lucas. Esta identificação servia para distingui-la da Antioquia da Síria. (Veja PISÍDIA.) Devido à sua localização, Antioquia, na Pisídia, tornou-se parte da rota comercial entre a Cilícia e Éfeso, e continha uma população mista, incluindo muitos judeus, que estabeleceram ali uma sinagoga. Era uma cidade de língua grega, totalmente helenizada. Paulo a visitou duas vezes junto com Barnabé, em sua primeira viagem evangelizadora, por volta de 47-48 EC, e pregou na sinagoga, encontrando muito interesse. (At 13:14; 14:19-23) No entanto, ciumentos das multidões que ali compareciam, certos judeus atiçaram alguns dos principais homens e mulheres da cidade, e lançaram fora dela a Paulo e Barnabé. — At 13:45, 50; 2Ti 3:11.

ÂNTIPAS [forma abreviada de Antípater, significando "Em Lugar de [Seu] Pai"].

1. Mártir da primitiva congregação cristã em Pérgamo, no primeiro século EC. — Re 2:12, 13; veja PÉRGAMO.

2. Herodes Ântipas, filho de Herodes, o Grande. — Veja HERODES N.º 2.

ANTIPÁTRIDE [De (Pertencente a) Antípater]. Uma cidade reconstruída por Herodes, o Grande, em 9 AEC, e chamada em homenagem a seu pai, Antípater (II). É identificada como Ras el-'Ain (Tel Afeq), numa parte bem regada e fértil da planície de Sarom. Crê-se que Antipátride tenha sido o lugar da anterior cidade de Afeque, mencionada em 1 Samuel 4:1. Escavações realizadas ali em 1946, 1961 e 1974 parecem confirmar isso. — Veja AFEQUE N.º 3.

Foi para cá que o corpo principal da escolta do exército romano conduziu Paulo, viajando de Jerusalém cerca de 50 km montanhas abaixo, à noite. (At 23:31) Esta localidade situava-se num entroncamento das estradas militares romanas que partiam respectivamente de Jerusalém e de Lida para a capital romana de Cesareia. De Antipátride, os 70 cavalarianos levaram Paulo no percurso restante de cerca de 40 km através da planície até Cesareia.

ANTÔNIA, TORRE DE. Estrutura fortificada em Jerusalém, que servia de alojamento de soldados. De acordo com Josefo, tinha apartamentos, banhos, quartéis e pátios. — ILUSTRAÇÃO, Vol. 2, p. 535.

A Torre de Antônia encontrava-se no canto NO do pátio do templo, e, evidentemente, ocupava o local em que Neemias anteriormente tinha construído o Castelo (ou a fortaleza) mencionado em Neemias 2:8. Herodes, o Grande, executou nele extensos e dispendiosos consertos, e aumentou suas fortificações. Anteriormente conhecido como Baris, Herodes a chamou de Antônia, em honra a Marco Antônio. Assim como o sumo sacerdote e governante judeu João Hircano tinha feito antes dele, Herodes mandava guardar ali as vestes sacerdotais, aparentemente como meio de manter certa fiscalização ou controle sobre o sumo sacerdote.

Segundo Josefo, a fortaleza foi construída numa elevação rochosa de 50 côvados (c. 22 m) de altura. Acima da rocha, tinha muralhas de pedra de 40 côvados (c. 18 m) de altura, e quatro torres nos cantos, três delas com 50 côvados (c. 22 m) de altura, e a outra, no canto sudeste, com vista sobre toda área do templo, com 70 côvados (c. 31 m) de altura. (The Jewish War [A Guerra Judaica] V, 238-247 [v, 8]) Antes da época de Herodes, a fortaleza servia primariamente contra as incursões vindas do N, mas, depois disso, servia mormente como ponto de controle sobre os judeus e um meio de policiar as atividades na área do templo, à qual se tinha acesso direto da fortaleza.

A disposição quadrada da fortaleza indicaria que ela possuía um pátio central. Alguns creem que foi em tal pátio central dentro desta torre que Jesus compareceu perante Pilatos para ser julgado. (Jo 19:13) Sugere-se que um pavimento de pedra, encontrado nesta área, seja o mencionado como "Gabatá". Outros, porém, acham que o julgamento de Jesus por Pilatos ocorreu diante do palácio de Herodes. — Veja PAVIMENTO DE PEDRA.

Uma referência mais certa à Torre de Antônia é a registrada no relato de Atos 21:30-40, e 22:24. Paulo parece ter proferido sua defesa e seu testemunho diante duma turba religiosa desde os degraus da fortaleza, e, depois disso, foi levado para ser examinado nos alojamentos dos soldados. Provavelmente, Paulo foi levado de volta a este lugar depois da sessão tumultuada com o Sinédrio, e estava ali quando seu sobrinho veio avisá-lo da conspiração tramada contra a vida dele. — At 23:10, 16.

A Torre de Antônia sofreu sua ruína final quando foi destruída junto com o templo e a cidade pelo general romano Tito, em 70 EC.

ANTOTIAS. Filho de Sasaque, da tribo de Benjamim. — 1Cr 8:24, 25.

ANUBE. Descendente de Judá e filho de Coz. — 1Cr 4:1, 8.

ANULAR, BOLO DE FORMA. Veja BOLO.

ANZI [forma abreviada de Amazias, significando "Jeová É Forte"].

1. Levita da família de Merari, e antepassado de Etã, que era um dos cantores na casa de Jeová, designado por Davi. — 1Cr 6:31, 44-47.

2. Sacerdote, filho de Zacarias, e antepassado de Adaías, alistado como residindo em Jerusalém e fazendo serviços no templo, no tempo de Neemias. — Ne 11:12.

AOÁ, AOÍ, AOÍTA. Descendente de Benjamim através de Bela. (1Cr 8:1-4) Talvez o mesmo que o Aijá em 1 Crônicas 8:7. Alguns dos seus descendentes, os aoítas, eram lutadores de destaque no exército de Davi. — 2Sa 23:9, 28; 1Cr 11:12, 29; 27:4.

APAGADORES. A palavra hebraica, mezam·mé·reth, traduzida de forma variada como "espevitadeiras" (PIB, ALA), "facas" (CBC) e "apagadores" (NM), deriva duma raiz (za·már) que significa "aparar; podar". Por isso, alguns creem que se refira a utensílios parecidos a tesouras, destinados a aparar as mechas de lamparinas. No entanto, tudo o que se sabe de definitivo sobre tais utensílios é que eram feitos de ouro ou de cobre, e eram usados em conexão com os serviços no templo. — 1Rs 7:50; 2Rs 12:13; 25:14; 2Cr 4:22; Je 52:18. Veja também ESPEVITADEIRAS.

APAIM [duma raiz que significa "nariz; narinas"]. Filho de Nadabe e descendente de Jerameel, da tribo de Judá. — 1Cr 2:25, 30, 31.

APARIÇÃO. A palavra grega fán·ta·sma ocorre somente nos dois relatos a respeito de Jesus andar sobre as águas do mar da Galileia até seus discípulos, que estavam num barco. (Mt 14:26; Mr 6:49) Cita-se os discípulos atemorizados como dizendo: "É uma aparição!" A palavra fán·ta·sma é traduzida de forma variada por "espírito" (KJ), "fantasma" (ALA, Al, PIB, BLH), "falsa visão" (La) e "aparição" (Da, ED, Dy, Kx, MR, NM).

Uma aparição é uma ilusão; algo que realmente não está presente, mas em que se crê temporariamente devido à imaginação excitada, ou outra causa. Garantindo aos discípulos que este não era o caso, e que ele era real, Jesus disse: "Sou eu; não temais." — Mt 14:27; Mr 6:50.

Tratava-se, portanto, de uma situação diferente da ocasião em que o ressuscitado Jesus surgiu subitamente no meio de seus discípulos, fazendo com que imaginassem que contemplavam "um espírito [gr.: pneú·ma]". (Lu 24:36, 37) As palavras de Jesus, nesta situação, evidentemente não visavam convencê-los simplesmente de sua realidade, mas assegurar-lhes que estava aparecendo diante deles em forma humana carnal e não em forma de espírito; por isso, ele lhes disse: "Apalpai-me e vede, porque um espírito não tem carne e ossos assim como observais que eu tenho." (Lu 24:38-43; compare isso com Gên 18:1-8; 19:1-3.) Não havia, portanto, nenhuma necessidade de eles temerem, conforme aconteceu com Daniel diante da assombrosa aparição angélica, de natureza completamente diferente. (Veja Da 10:4-9.) A situação também era igualmente bem diferente daquela de Saulo de Tarso, que mais tarde foi cegado pelo aparecimento de Jesus a ele, na estrada de Damasco. — At 9:1-9; 26:12-14; veja TRANSFIGURAÇÃO; VISÃO.

APEDREJAMENTO. Sob a Lei, o transgressor que merecia a pena capital usualmente era apedrejado até morrer. (Le 20:2) Isto visava 'eliminar o mal do meio deles'. Todo Israel ouviria falar dessa punição, e incutia-se assim no seu coração o temor de cometer tal transgressão. (De 13:5, 10, 11; 22:22-24) Ao apedrejar o malfeitor, eles se mostravam zelosos pela adoração verdadeira, ansiosos de certificar-se de que nenhum vitupério sobreviesse ao nome de Deus, e desejosos de manter a congregação limpa.

Antes de se poder apedrejar o transgressor, pelo menos duas testemunhas tinham de dar um testemunho harmonioso contra ele, e, depois disso, elas atiravam as primeiras pedras. (Le 24:14; De 17:6, 7) A perspectiva de se tornar o executor fazia com que a pessoa refletisse seriamente ao apresentar evidência, e, sem dúvida, agia como elemento dissuasivo contra o falso testemunho, o qual, se comprovado, custaria a vida da própria testemunha mentirosa. — De 19:18-20.

O apedrejamento, sem dúvida, geralmente se dava fora da cidade. (Núm 15:35, 36; 1Rs 21:13; contraste isso com De 22:21.) Depois disso, como aviso, o cadáver talvez fosse pendurado numa estaca, mas sem passar do pôr do sol. Era enterrado no mesmo dia. — De 21:21-23.

Jesus se referiu a Jerusalém como "matadora de profetas e apedrejadora dos que lhe são enviados". (Mt 23:37; compare isso com He 11:37.) O próprio Cristo foi ameaçado de apedrejamento. (Jo 8:59; 10:31-39; 11:8) Estêvão foi morto desse modo. (At 7:58-60) Em Listra, judeus fanáticos "apedrejaram Paulo e o arrastaram para fora da cidade, julgando-o morto". — At 14:19; compare isso com 2Co 11:25.

Para saber das ofensas passíveis da penalidade do apedrejamento, veja CRIME E PUNIÇÃO.

APELES. Cristão da congregação de Roma, a quem Paulo enviou cumprimentos como "o aprovado em Cristo". — Ro 16:10; compare isso com 2Co 10:18; 2Ti 2:15.

APERTO DE MÃO. Veja ATITUDES E GESTOS.

ÁPIO, FEIRA DE. Uma feira ou mercado a 64 km a SE de Roma. Era uma bem conhecida parada na famosa estrada romana, a Via Ápia, que ia de Roma até Brundisium (agora chamada Brindisi) via Cápua. Tanto a estrada como a feira obtiveram seu nome do fundador, Ápio Cláudio Ceco, do quarto século AEC.

Como o ponto usual em que os viajantes paravam, no fim do primeiro dia de viagem desde Roma, este ponto de parada se tornou um movimentado centro comercial. O que aumentava a sua importância era sua localização no terminal norte dum canal que corria paralelo à estrada, cruzando os pântanos pontinos. Os viajantes, segundo relatado, cruzavam este canal à noite, em barcaças puxadas por mulas. O poeta romano Horácio descreve os desconfortos da jornada, queixando-se das rãs e dos mosquitos, e retratando a feira de Ápio como apinhada de "barqueiros e taverneiros sovinas". — Satires (Sátiras), I, V, 1-6.

Foi nesta encruzilhada movimentada que o apóstolo Paulo, viajando de Putéoli para Roma como prisioneiro, encontrou-se primeiro com a delegação de irmãos cristãos que, ao ouvirem as notícias da sua chegada, viajaram de Roma para encontrar-se com ele. Parte da delegação esperou nas Três Tavernas (15 km mais perto de Roma) ao passo que os demais foram até a Feira de Ápio. — At 28:15.

Ainda existe hoje um lugar conhecido como o Foro Appio, ou Foro de Ápio, na Via Ápia. Um poste indicador mostra a área onde havia antigamente a Feira de Ápio. Do outro lado da Via Ápia há uma pequena povoação rural chamada Faiti.

APOCALIPSE. Veja REVELAÇÃO.

APÓCRIFOS. A palavra grega a·pó·kry·fos é usada no seu sentido original em três textos bíblicos como se referindo a coisas 'cuidadosamente ocultas'. (Mr 4:22; Lu 8:17; Col 2:3) Conforme aplicada a escritos, referia-se originalmente àqueles que não eram lidos em público, portanto, 'ocultos' de outros. Mais tarde, contudo, a palavra assumiu o sentido de espúrio ou não canônico, e atualmente é usada mais comumente para referir-se aos escritos adicionais declarados pela Igreja Católica Romana, no Concílio de Trento (1546), como fazendo parte do cânon da Bíblia. Os escritores católicos se referem a tais livros como deuterocanônicos, que significa "do segundo (ou posterior) cânon", para diferenciá-los dos protocanônicos.

Esses escritos adicionais são Tobias, Judite, Sabedoria (de Salomão), Eclesiástico (não Eclesiastes), Baruc, 1 e 2 Macabeus, suplementos de Ester, e três adições a Daniel, com nomes diversos, tais como: Cântico dos Três Jovens, Susana e os Anciãos, e A Destruição de Bel e do Dragão. O tempo exato de sua escrita é incerto, mas a evidência indica uma época não anterior ao segundo ou terceiro séculos AEC.

Evidência Contra a Canonicidade. Embora, em alguns casos, apresentem certo valor histórico, qualquer afirmação de canonicidade por parte destes escritos não dispõe de nenhuma base sólida. A evidência aponta para o término do cânon hebraico depois da escrita dos livros de Esdras, Neemias e Malaquias, no quinto século AEC. Os escritos apócrifos jamais foram incluídos no cânon judaico das Escrituras inspiradas, e não fazem parte dele atualmente.

Josefo, historiador judeu do primeiro século, mostra o reconhecimento dado apenas a esses poucos livros (do cânon hebraico) considerados sagrados, dizendo: "Não possuímos miríades de livros incoerentes, que discordam entre si. Nossos livros, os devidamente acreditados, são apenas vinte e dois [equivalentes aos 39 livros das Escrituras Hebraicas segundo a divisão moderna], e contêm o registro de todos os tempos." Daí, ele mostra de forma clara ter consciência da existência de livros apócrifos e de sua exclusão do cânon hebraico, por acrescentar: "Desde o tempo de Artaxerxes até o nosso próprio tempo, a história completa foi escrita, mas não foi considerada digna de crédito igual aos registros anteriores, porque cessou a sucessão exata dos profetas." — Against Apion (Contra Apião), I, 38, 41 (8).

Inclusão na "Septuaginta". Os argumentos a favor da canonicidade dos escritos geralmente giram em torno do fato de que estes escritos apócrifos podem ser encontrados em muitas cópias primitivas da tradução Septuaginta grega das Escrituras Hebraicas, tradução iniciada no Egito por volta de 280 AEC. No entanto, visto que não existem cópias originais da Septuaginta, não se pode afirmar categoricamente que os livros apócrifos foram originalmente incluídos nesta obra. Muitos, talvez a maioria, dos escritos apócrifos foram admitidamente escritos depois do início do trabalho de tradução da Septuaginta, e assim, obviamente, não constavam da original lista de livros escolhidos para a tradução por parte do grupo de tradutores. No máximo, então, só poderiam ser reputados como acréscimos a tal obra.

Adicionalmente, embora os judeus de língua grega de Alexandria com o tempo inserissem tais escritos apócrifos na Septuaginta grega, e, pelo que parece, os considerassem como parte dum cânon ampliado de escritos sagrados, a declaração de Josefo, já citada, mostra que jamais foram incluídos no cânon de Jerusalém, ou Palestino, e, no máximo, eram considerados como apenas escritos secundários, e não de origem divina. Assim, o judaico Concílio de Jâmnia (por volta de 90 EC) excluiu especificamente do cânon hebraico todos esses escritos.

A necessidade de se dar a devida consideração à posição judaica sobre esse assunto é claramente especificada pelo apóstolo Paulo em Romanos 3:1, 2.

Testemunho antigo adicional. Uma das principais evidências externas contra a canonicidade dos Apócrifos é que nenhum dos escritores bíblicos cristãos citou tais livros. Embora isso, por si só, não seja conclusivo, visto que em seus escritos também faltam citações de alguns livros reconhecidos como canônicos, tais como Ester, Eclesiastes e O Cântico de Salomão, todavia, o fato de que nenhum dos escritos dos Apócrifos é citado sequer uma só vez é certamente significativo.

Não deixa de ter seu peso, também, o fato de que os principais peritos bíblicos e "pais da igreja" dos primeiros séculos da Era Comum, no todo, deram aos Apócrifos uma posição inferior. Orígenes, do início do terceiro século EC, em resultado de cuidadosa investigação, fez tal diferenciação entre esses escritos e os do cânon verdadeiro. Atanásio, Cirilo de Jerusalém, Gregório Nazianzeno e Anfíloco, todos do quarto século EC, prepararam catálogos que alistavam os escritos sagrados de acordo com o cânon hebraico, e, ou desconsideraram esses escritos adicionais ou os colocaram numa classe secundária.

Jerônimo, descrito como "o melhor perito hebraico" da igreja primitiva, e que terminou a tradução da Vulgata latina em 405 EC, adotou uma posição definida contra tais livros apócrifos, e foi na realidade o primeiro a usar a palavra "apócrifos" explicitamente no sentido de não canônicos, como se aplicando a tais escritos. Assim, no seu prólogo aos livros de Samuel e de Reis, Jerônimo alista os livros inspirados das Escrituras Hebraicas em harmonia com o cânon hebraico (em que os 39 livros estão agrupados como 22) e então diz: "De modo que há vinte e dois livros . . . Este prólogo das Escrituras pode servir como enfoque fortificado para todos os livros que traduzimos do hebraico para o latim; de modo que saibamos que tudo o que for além destes precisa ser colocado entre os apócrifos." Ao escrever a uma senhora chamada Laeta, sobre a educação da filha dela, Jerônimo aconselhou-a: "Todos os livros apócrifos devem ser evitados; mas, se ela quiser alguma vez lê-los, não para determinar a verdade das suas doutrinas, mas por respeito pelos seus maravilhosos contos, deve dar-se conta de que não foram realmente escritos por aqueles a quem são atribuídos, que eles contêm muitos elementos falhos, e que requer grande perícia para achar ouro na lama." — Select Letters (Cartas Seletas), CVII.

Conceitos católicos divergentes. A tendência para incluir estes escritos adicionais como canônicos foi primariamente iniciada por Agostinho (354-430 EC), embora até mesmo ele, em obras posteriores, reconhecesse que havia uma distinção definida entre os livros do cânon hebraico e tais "livros alheios". No entanto, a Igreja Católica, seguindo o exemplo de Agostinho, incluiu esses escritos adicionais no cânon dos livros sagrados determinado pelo Concílio de Cartago em 397 EC. Todavia, não foi senão muito mais tarde, em 1546 EC, no Concílio de Trento, que a Igreja Católica Romana confirmou definitivamente sua aceitação dessas adições no seu catálogo dos livros da Bíblia, e esta ação foi julgada necessária porque, mesmo dentro da igreja, a opinião ainda estava dividida quanto a tais escritos. João Wycliffe, o sacerdote e perito católico romano que, com a subsequente ajuda de Nicolas de Hereford, no século 14, fez a primeira tradução da Bíblia para o inglês, incluiu os Apócrifos em sua obra, mas no prefácio desta tradução declarava que tais escritos "não têm a autoridade de crença". O cardeal dominicano Cajetan, o mais destacado teólogo católico do seu tempo (1469-1534 EC) e chamado por Clemente VII de "lâmpada da Igreja", também discriminou os livros do verdadeiro cânon hebraico das obras apócrifas, apelando para os escritos de Jerônimo como autoridade.

Deve-se observar também que o Concílio de Trento não aceitou todos os escritos anteriormente aprovados pelo precedente Concílio de Cartago, mas deixou de lado três deles: a Oração de Manassés, e 1 e 2 Esdras [não os livros de 1 e 2 Esdras que, em algumas versões católicas, correspondem a Esdras e Neemias]. Assim, estes três escritos, que haviam aparecido por mais de 1.100 anos na aprovada Vulgata latina, foram então excluídos.

Evidência interna. A evidência interna destes escritos apócrifos tem ainda maior peso contra a sua canonicidade do que a externa. Falta-lhes completamente o elemento profético. Seu conteúdo e seus ensinos às vezes contradizem os dos livros canônicos e também são contraditórios entre si. Estão repletos de inexatidões históricas e geográficas, e de anacronismos. Os escritores, em alguns casos, são culpados de desonestidade, ao representarem falsamente suas obras como sendo de anteriores escritores inspirados. Mostram-se sob influência grega pagã, por vezes até recorrendo a uma linguagem extravagante e a um estilo literário inteiramente estranho às Escrituras inspiradas. Dois dos escritores dão a entender que não foram inspirados. (Veja o Prólogo de Eclesiástico, CBC; 2 Macabeus 2:24-32; 15:38-40, So.) Assim, pode-se dizer que a melhor evidência contra a canonicidade dos Apócrifos são os próprios Apócrifos. Segue aqui uma consideração dos livros individuais:

Tobias (Tobit). O relato de um judeu pio da tribo de Naftali, que é deportado para Nínive e que fica cego por lhe ter caído esterco de pássaro em ambos os olhos. Ele manda seu filho, Tobias, à Média para cobrar uma dívida, e Tobias é guiado por um anjo, que se faz passar por homem, a Ecbátana (Ragés, segundo algumas versões). Em caminho, ele obtém o coração, o fígado e o fel dum peixe. Encontra-se com uma viúva, a qual, embora casada sete vezes, continua virgem, visto que cada marido foi morto na noite das núpcias por Asmodeu, o mau espírito. Incentivado pelo anjo, Tobias casa-se com a virgem enviuvada, e por queimar o coração e o fígado do peixe, expulsa o demônio. Retornando para casa, restabelece a visão do pai por usar o fel do peixe.

É provável que a história tenha sido originalmente escrita em aramaico, e calcula-se que ela seja aproximadamente do terceiro século AEC. Obviamente, ela não é inspirada por Deus, por causa da superstição e do erro encontrados na narrativa. Entre as inexatidões encontradas nela está a seguinte: O relato diz que Tobias, na sua juventude, viu a revolta das tribos setentrionais, que ocorreu em 997 AEC, após a morte de Salomão (Tobias 1:4, 5, BJ), também, que ele foi posteriormente deportado para Nínive, junto com a tribo de Naftali, em 740 AEC. (Tobias 1:11-13, CBC, So) Isto significaria que ele viveu por mais de 257 anos. No entanto, Tobias 14:1-3 (CBC) diz que ele tinha 102 anos de idade quando morreu.

Judite. Este é o relato sobre uma bela viúva judia da cidade de "Betúlia". Nabucodonosor envia seu oficial Holofernes numa campanha para o O, para destruir toda a adoração, exceto a do próprio Nabucodonosor. Os judeus em Betúlia são sitiados, mas Judite finge ser traidora da causa judaica e é admitida ao acampamento de Holofernes, onde ela lhe dá um relatório falso sobre as condições da cidade. Num banquete, no qual Holofernes fica embriagado, ela consegue decapitá-lo com a própria espada dele e então retornar a Betúlia com a cabeça dele. Na manhã seguinte, o acampamento inimigo é lançado em confusão, e os judeus ganham uma vitória completa.

Conforme comenta a tradução católica de A Bíblia de Jerusalém na sua Introdução aos livros de Tobias, Judite e Ester: "O livro de Judite, sobretudo, manifesta uma soberba indiferença pela história e pela geografia." Entre as incoerências indicadas nesta introdução encontra-se esta: Declara-se que os eventos ocorreram durante o reinado de Nabucodonosor, que é chamado de rei "que reinou sobre os assírios em Nínive, a grande cidade". (Judite 1:1, 7 [1:5, 10, CBC, So]) A introdução e as notas desta tradução indicam que Nabucodonosor era rei de Babilônia e nunca reinou em Nínive, visto que Nínive havia sido destruída anteriormente pelo pai de Nabucodonosor, Nabopolassar.

Acerca do itinerário do exército de Holofernes, esta Introdução declara que é "um desafio à geografia". O Novo Dicionário da Bíblia (Vol. 1, p. 92) comenta: "A história não passa de franca ficção — doutro modo suas inexatidões seriam incríveis." — Editor organizador J. D. Douglas, 1966, Edições Vida Nova, São Paulo.

Pensa-se que o livro fora escrito na Palestina durante o período grego, perto do fim do segundo século ou do começo do primeiro século AEC. Crê-se que fora originalmente escrito em hebraico.

Adições ao Livro de Ester. Estas constituem seis passagens adicionais. A primeira parte, de 17 versículos, em alguns antigos textos gregos e latinos (mas Est 11:2–12:6 na So) precede ao primeiro capítulo, apresentando um sonho de Mordecai (Mardoqueu) e a sua exposição duma conspiração contra o rei. Depois de 3:13 (mas 13:1-7 na So), a segunda adição apresenta o texto do edito do rei contra os judeus. No fim do capítulo 4 (mas 13:8–14:19 na So) relatam-se orações de Mordecai e de Ester como terceira adição. A quarta ocorre depois de 5:2 (mas 15:1-19 na So) e conta a audiência de Ester com o rei. A quinta ocorre depois de 8:12 (mas 16:1-24 na So) e consiste no edito do rei que permitiu aos judeus defender-se. No fim do livro (mas 10:4–11:1 na So), interpreta-se o sonho apresentado na introdução apócrifa.

A colocação destas adições varia em diversas traduções, algumas colocando todas no fim do livro (como Jerônimo fez na sua tradução) e outras intercalando-as no texto canônico.

Na primeira destas seções apócrifas, Mordecai é apresentado como tendo estado entre os cativos tomados por Nabucodonosor, em 617 AEC, e como homem importante na corte do rei, no segundo ano de Assuero (o gr. diz Artaxerxes) mais de um século depois. Esta declaração, que Mordecai ocupou tal cargo importante tão cedo no reinado do rei contradiz a parte canônica de Ester. Crê-se que as adições apócrifas sejam a obra dum judeu egípcio e que tenham sido escritas durante o segundo século AEC.

Sabedoria (de Salomão). Este é um tratado que exalta os benefícios para os que procuram a sabedoria divina. A sabedoria é personificada como mulher celestial, e a oração de Salomão, pedindo sabedoria, está incluída no texto. A última parte recapitula a história desde Adão até a conquista de Canaã, citando dela exemplos de bênçãos pela sabedoria e de calamidades pela falta dela. Considera-se a tolice da adoração de imagens.

Embora Salomão não seja mencionado especificamente por nome, em certos textos, o livro o apresenta como seu autor. (Sabedoria 9:7, 8, 12) Mas o livro cita passagens de livros bíblicos escritos séculos depois da morte de Salomão (c. 998 AEC) e faz isso da Septuaginta grega, que começou a ser traduzida por volta de 280 AEC. Crê-se que o escritor tenha sido um judeu de Alexandria, no Egito, que escreveu por volta de meados do primeiro século AEC.

O escritor manifesta estribar-se fortemente na filosofia grega. Ele usa terminologia platônica na promoção da doutrina da imortalidade da alma humana. (Sabedoria 2:23; 3:2, 4) Outros conceitos pagãos apresentados são a pré-existência das almas humanas e o conceito de que o corpo é um impedimento ou estorvo para a alma. (8:19, 20; 9:15) A apresentação dos eventos históricos desde Adão até Moisés é floreada com muitos pormenores fantasiosos, frequentemente em contradição com o registro canônico.

Embora algumas obras de referências se esforcem a mostrar certa correspondência entre passagens desse escrito apócrifo e as posteriores obras das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, a similaridade frequentemente é pouca, e, mesmo onde é um pouco maior, não indicaria que os escritores cristãos recorreram a esta obra apócrifa, mas, antes, que recorreram às Escrituras Hebraicas canônicas, que o escritor apócrifo também usou.

Eclesiástico. Este livro, também chamado Sabedoria de Jesus, Filho de Sirac, tem a distinção de ser o mais longo dos livros apócrifos e o único cujo autor é conhecido, Jesus ben-Sirac de Jerusalém. O escritor explica a natureza da sabedoria e sua aplicação para uma vida bem-sucedida. A observância da Lei é fortemente enfatizada. Dá-se conselho sobre muitos campos de conduta social e da vida diária, inclusive comentários sobre modos à mesa, sonhos e viagens. A parte concludente contém um retrospecto sobre importantes personagens de Israel, terminando com o sumo sacerdote Simão II.

Contradizendo a declaração de Paulo em Romanos 5:12-19, que lança a responsabilidade pelo pecado sobre Adão, Eclesiástico diz: "Foi pela mulher que começou o pecado, e é por causa dela que todos morremos." (25:33, CBC) O escritor prefere também "toda malícia, não, porém, a malícia da mulher". — 25:19, CBC.

O livro foi originalmente escrito em hebraico, no começo do segundo século AEC. Citações dele são encontrados no Talmude judaico.

Baruc (Incluindo a Epístola de Jeremias). Faz-se parecer como se os primeiros cinco capítulos tivessem sido escritos pelo amigo e escriba de Jeremias, Baruque (Baruc); o sexto capítulo é apresentado como carta escrita pelo próprio Jeremias. O livro relata as expressões de arrependimento e as orações por alívio por parte dos judeus exilados em Babilônia, exortações para seguir a sabedoria, incentivo para esperar na promessa de libertação e a denúncia da idolatria babilônica.

Baruque é apresentado como estando em Babilônia (Baruc 1:1, 2), ao passo que o registro bíblico mostra que ele foi para o Egito, assim como Jeremias, e não há nenhuma evidência de que Baruque estivesse alguma vez em Babilônia. (Je 43:5-7) Contrário à profecia de Jeremias, de que a desolação de Judá durante o exílio babilônico duraria 70 anos (Je 25:11, 12; 29:10), Baruc 6:2 diz aos judeus que ficariam em Babilônia por sete gerações e então seriam libertos.

Jerônimo, no seu prefácio ao livro de Jeremias, declara: "Não achei valer a pena traduzir o livro de Baruque." A introdução ao livro em The Jerusalem Bible (A Bíblia de Jerusalém; ed. 1966, p. 1128), sugere que partes da composição talvez tenham sido escritas só no segundo ou no primeiro século AEC; portanto, por outro autor (ou autores), e não Baruque. A língua original provavelmente foi a hebraica.

Cântico dos Três Jovens. Esta adição a Daniel segue a Daniel 3:23. Consiste em 67 versículos que apresentam uma oração supostamente proferida por Azarias dentro da fornalha ardente, seguida por um relato sobre um anjo que apagou as chamas, e finalmente um cântico entoado pelos três hebreus dentro da fornalha. O cântico é bastante similar ao Salmo 148. Suas referências ao templo, a sacerdotes e querubins, porém, não se enquadram no tempo a que se alega que se aplica. Talvez tenha sido originalmente escrito em hebraico, e é considerado como do primeiro século AEC.

Susana e os Anciãos. Este conto relata um incidente na vida da bela esposa de Joaquim, um judeu rico em Babilônia. Enquanto Susana se banhava, chegaram-se a ela dois anciãos judeus, que instaram com ela que cometesse adultério com eles, e, quando ela recusou, forjaram uma falsa acusação contra ela. No julgamento, ela foi condenada à morte, mas o jovem Daniel habilmente expôs os dois anciãos, e Susana foi exonerada da acusação. Não há certeza sobre a língua original. Pensa-se que tenha sido escrito durante o primeiro século AEC. Na Septuaginta grega o trecho foi colocado antes do livro canônico de Daniel, e na Vulgata latina foi colocado depois dele. Algumas versões o incluem como capítulo 13 de Daniel.

A Destruição de Bel e do Dragão. Esta é uma terceira adição a Daniel, sendo que algumas versões a colocam como capítulo 14. No relato, o Rei Ciro exige que Daniel adore um ídolo do deus Bel. Por aspergir cinzas no pavimento do templo e assim descobrir pegadas, Daniel prova que o alimento supostamente consumido pelo ídolo na realidade é consumido pelos sacerdotes pagãos e suas famílias. Os sacerdotes são mortos e Daniel destroça o ídolo. O rei requer de Daniel adorar um dragão vivo. Daniel destrói o dragão, mas é lançado na cova dos leões pela população enfurecida. Durante os sete dias do seu confinamento, um anjo pega Habacuque (Habacuc) pelos cabelos e leva tanto a ele como uma tigela de caldo da Judeia a Babilônia, a fim de prover Daniel de alimento. Habacuque é então devolvido à Judeia, Daniel é solto da cova, e seus oponentes são lançados nela e devorados. Considera-se ser esta adição também do primeiro século AEC. Estas adições a Daniel são chamadas em O Novo Dicionário da Bíblia (1966, Vol. 1, p. 93) de "pio exagero lendário".

Primeiro Macabeus. Um relato histórico da luta de independência dos judeus durante o segundo século AEC, desde o começo do reinado de Antíoco Epifânio (175 AEC) até a morte de Simão Macabeu (c. 134 AEC). Trata especialmente das fa-çanhas do sacerdote Matatias e de seus filhos, Judas, Jônatas e Simão, nas suas lutas com os sírios.

Esta é a mais valiosa das obras apócrifas, por causa das informações históricas que fornece sobre este período. Entretanto, conforme comenta The Jewish Encyclopedia (A Enciclopédia Judaica, 1976, Vol. VIII, p. 243), nela "a história é escrita do ponto de vista humano". Igual às outras obras apócrifas, não faz parte do inspirado cânon hebraico. Foi evidentemente escrita em hebraico por volta da última parte do segundo século AEC.

Segundo Macabeus. Embora colocado após Primeiro Macabeus, este relato refere-se a parte do mesmo período (de c. 180 AEC a 160 AEC), mas não foi escrito pelo autor de Primeiro Macabeus. O escritor apresenta o livro como resumo das obras anteriores de certo Jasão de Cirene. Descreve as perseguições sofridas pelos judeus sob Antíoco Epifânio, o saque do templo e sua subsequente rededicação deste.

O relato apresenta Jeremias, por ocasião da destruição de Jerusalém, como levando o tabernáculo e a Arca do Pacto a uma caverna no monte do qual Moisés viu a terra de Canaã. (2 Macabeus 2:1-16) Naturalmente, o tabernáculo havia sido substituído pelo templo uns 420 anos antes.

No dogma católico usam-se diversos textos em apoio de doutrinas tais como a punição após a morte (2 Macabeus 6:26), a intercessão de santos (15:12-16), e ser próprio orar pelos mortos (12:41-46, So).

A Bíblia de Jerusalém, na sua Introdução aos livros de Macabeus, diz a respeito de Segundo Macabeus: "O estilo, que é o dos escritores helenísticos, mas não dos melhores, é às vezes empolado." O escritor de Segundo Macabeus não tem pretensões de escrever sob inspiração divina e devota parte do segundo capítulo para justificar sua escolha do método específico usado em tratar a matéria. (2 Macabeus 2:24-32, BJ) Ele conclui sua obra por dizer: "Porei aqui fim à minha narração. Se está bem e como convém à história, isso é o que eu desejo; mas se, pelo contrário, é vulgar e medíocre, não pude fazer melhor." — 2 Macabeus 15:38, 39, So.

O livro foi evidentemente escrito em grego, no período entre 134 AEC e a queda de Jerusalém em 70 EC.

Obras Apócrifas Posteriores. Especialmente a partir do segundo século EC, desenvolveu-se um imenso conjunto de escritos que afirmam ter inspiração divina e canonicidade, e que pretendem estar relacionados com a fé cristã. Frequentemente chamados de "Apócrifos do Novo Testamento", esses escritos representam esforços de imitar os Evangelhos, Atos, cartas, e as revelações contidas nos livros canônicos das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. Um grande número deles são conhecidos apenas através de fragmentos existentes ou por citações deles ou alusões a eles por outros escritores.

Esses escritos manifestam uma tentativa de prover informações que os escritos inspirados deliberadamente omitem, tais como as atividades e os eventos relacionados com a vida de Jesus, desde a sua infância até o tempo do seu batismo, ou um esforço de fabricar apoio para doutrinas ou tradições que não encontram base na Bíblia ou que estão em contradição a ela. Assim, o chamado Evangelho da Infância de Tomé e o Protoevangelho de Tiago estão cheios de relatos fantasiosos de milagres supostamente realizados por Jesus na sua infância. Mas o efeito global do retrato que apresentam dele é fazer Jesus parecer uma criança caprichosa e petulante, dotada de poderes impressionantes. (Compare isso com o relato genuíno em Lu 2:51, 52.) Os "Atos" apócrifos, tais como os "Atos de Paulo" e os "Atos de Pedro", dão muita ênfase à completa abstinência de relações sexuais, e até mesmo apresentam os apóstolos como instando com as mulheres a se separarem do marido, contradizendo assim o conselho autêntico de Paulo em 1 Coríntios 7.

Comentando esses escritos apócrifos pós-apostólicos, The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible (Dicionário Bíblico do Intérprete, Vol. 1, p. 166) declara: "Muitos deles são triviais, alguns são altamente teatrais, alguns são desagradáveis, até mesmo repulsivos." (Editado por G. A. Buttrick, 1962) Funk and Wagnalls New Standard Bible Dictionary (Novo Dicionário Bíblico Padrão de Funk e Wagnalls, 1936, p. 56) comenta: "Eles têm sido a fonte frutífera de lendas sagradas e de tradições eclesiásticas. É para esses livros que temos de nos voltar para obter a origem de alguns dos dogmas da Igreja Católica Romana."

Assim como os anteriores escritos apócrifos foram excluídos das Escrituras Hebraicas pré-cristãs aceitas, assim também esses posteriores escritos apócrifos não foram aceitos como inspirados, nem foram incluídos como canônicos nas primeiras coleções ou catálogos das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. — Veja CÂNON.

APOLION [Destruidor]. Nome grego usado pelo apóstolo João para traduzir o hebraico "Abadon", em Revelação (Apocalipse) 9:11. Apolion significa "Destruidor", e é apresentado como o nome do "anjo do abismo". Embora a maioria das obras de referência aplique este nome a um personagem mau ou a uma força má, todo o cenário da visão apocalíptica indica o contrário, visto que coerentemente retrata anjos sendo usados por Deus para lançar calamidades sobre os Seus inimigos.

O uso do verbo relacionado, a·pól·ly·mi, ilustra isso, como em Tiago 4:12, que diz a respeito de Deus: "Há um que é legislador e juiz, aquele que é capaz de salvar e de destruir." (Veja Mt 10:28.) O espírito impuro que Jesus expulsou dum homem numa sinagoga em Cafarnaum reconheceu Jesus como agente de Deus e disse: "Que temos nós contigo, Jesus, nazareno? Vieste destruir-nos?" (Mr 1:24; Lu 4:34) Jesus advertiu os opositores impenitentes entre os seus ouvintes do perigo que corriam de ser destruídos. (Lu 13:3-5; 20:16) Estes e outros textos apontam para o glorificado Cristo Jesus como o chamado por este título. — Compare isso com Re 19:11-16; Lu 8:31; veja ABADON.

APOLO [Destruidor; abreviação de Apolônio]. Um judeu de Alexandria, no Egito, dotado de notável eloquência e de um sólido conhecimento das Escrituras Hebraicas. Ele parece ter recebido testemunho dos discípulos de João, o Batizador, ou então de testemunhas cristãs antes de Pentecostes, visto que "estava familiarizado apenas com o batismo de João". (At 18:24, 25) Todavia, ardia de convicção, e ao chegar a Éfeso, por volta de 52 EC, começou a dar testemunho na sinagoga local. Isto o pôs em contato com Áquila e Priscila, que preencheram algumas lacunas no entendimento que tinha do ensino cristão. De Éfeso, dirigiu-se à Acaia, portando uma carta de apresentação, e ali parece ter centralizado suas atividades em Corinto, onde Paulo o havia antecedido. Seu fervor e suas poderosas refutações bíblicas dos argumentos dos judeus descrentes mostraram ser de grande ajuda para os irmãos ali. Ele assim 'regou o que Paulo havia plantado'. — At 18:26-28; 19:1; 1Co 3:6.

Infelizmente, por volta do tempo em que Paulo escreveu sua primeira carta aos coríntios (c. 55 EC), haviam surgido facções na congregação de Corinto, alguns considerando o eloquente Apolo como seu líder, ao passo que outros favoreciam Paulo ou Pedro, ou se apegavam somente a Cristo. (1Co 1:10-12) A carta de Paulo corrigiu seu modo errado de pensar, mostrando a necessidade vital de união e a relativa insignificância dos indivíduos, como apenas ministros que serviam sob Deus e Cristo. (1Co 3:4-9, 21-23; 4:6, 7) Parece que Apolo deve ter estado então em Éfeso ou perto dali, onde Paulo evidentemente escreveu a Primeira aos Coríntios, pois Paulo fala de instar com Apolo a que visitasse a congregação coríntia. (1Co 16:12) A relutância de Apolo em ir até lá pode ter sido causada pelas atitudes incorretas que existiam em Corinto, ou simplesmente devido a ter um campo de atividades que ele achava exigir sua contínua atenção ainda por algum tempo. De qualquer modo, a breve declaração de Paulo mostra que estes dois missionários ativos não haviam permitido que esses assuntos produzissem uma brecha na sua própria união. A menção final de Apolo ocorre em Tito 3:13, onde Paulo pede a Tito, então em Creta, que suprisse as necessidades de Apolo para certa viagem.

APOLÔNIA [De (Pertencente a) Apolo; Lugar de Apolo]. Uma cidade da Macedônia, chamada pelo nome de Apolo, deus-sol grego, da mesma forma como o foram várias outras cidades da região do Mediterrâneo. Estava situada no distrito de Migdônia, a cerca de 35 km de Anfípolis, e 45 km de Tessalônica, ou a cerca de um dia de viagem de cada uma. Encontrava-se junto à grande estrada romana, a Via Egnácia, ao S do lago Bolbe, mas não goza de proeminência histórica. Paulo e Silas passaram por ela na segunda viagem missionária de Paulo, mais provavelmente na primavera ou no início do verão setentrional do ano 50 EC. — At 17:1.

APOSENTADORIA. Afastar-se a pessoa do serviço ou de certos aspectos dele.

Ao designar os levitas (que não eram da família sacerdotal de Arão) para servir na tenda de reunião sob a direção dos sacerdotes, Jeová fez amorosas provisões para o bem-estar deles. Ordenou a Moisés: "Isto é o que se aplica aos levitas: Da idade de vinte e cinco anos para cima ele ingressará na companhia do serviço da tenda de reunião. Mas, depois da idade de cinquenta anos retirar-se-á da companhia de serviço e não fará mais nenhum serviço. E ele terá de ministrar aos seus irmãos na tenda de reunião, cuidando da obrigação, mas não deve fazer nenhum serviço." — Núm 8:23-26; 1Cr 23:3.

Em Números, capítulo 4, descreve-se a organização de serviço, dos levitas. Ali se declara que deviam ser registrados dos 30 aos 50 anos de idade.

Era um trabalho braçal pesado montar, desmontar e transportar a tenda de reunião. Os 96 pedestais de encaixe, de prata, para as armações de painel pesavam um talento (c. 34 kg) cada um; havia também quatro pedestais para as colunas entre os compartimentos do Santo e do Santíssimo, provavelmente do mesmo peso, e cinco pedestais de cobre para as colunas da entrada do tabernáculo. (Êx 26:19, 21, 25, 32, 37; 38:27) As 48 armações de painel (4,5 m de comprimento; 67 cm de largura) eram de acácia, madeira pesada, de fino grão, recobertas de ouro. (Êx 26:15-25, 29) Havia trancas recobertas de ouro passadas ao longo de cada lado e dos fundos do tabernáculo. (Êx 26:26-29) Todos esses objetos eram pesados. Além disso, havia o peso considerável das coberturas de peles de focas, de peles de carneiros, pelos de cabra, e linho, bem como os cortinados de linho em volta do pátio, com seus pilares, seus pedestais de encaixe, estacas de tenda, e assim por diante. De modo que o manejo do tabernáculo envolvia verdadeiro trabalho muscular. (Êx 26:1-14; 27:9-19) Proveram-se seis carroças para o transporte desses objetos. A Arca do Pacto coberta, a mesa dos pães da proposição, o candelabro de ouro e o altar de sacrifício recoberto de cobre eram carregados nos ombros pelos coatitas à medida que caminhavam. — Núm 7:7-9; Êx 25:10-40; 27:1-8; Núm 4:9, 10.

Outra finalidade do arranjo de aposentadoria evidentemente era dar a todos os levitas a oportunidade de terem designações de serviço no santuário, porque apenas um número limitado era necessário, especialmente durante o tempo em que a tenda de reunião ou tabernáculo estava em uso. Não havia provisão de aposentadoria para os sacerdotes, os levitas da família de Arão.

Evidentemente, havia um período de cinco anos, dos 25 aos 30 anos de idade, em que o levita servia no que poderia ser chamado de "treinamento". Pode ser que estes mais jovens não fossem usados para tarefas pesadas, que eram reservadas para os de 30 ou mais anos de idade — homens plenamente adultos. (Veja IDADE.) Mais tarde, depois de a Arca ter sido permanentemente estabelecida no monte Sião (e especialmente na iminência da construção do templo), não existia mais o trabalho pesado do transporte do santuário. Portanto, Davi providenciou que os levitas começassem a servir com a idade de 20 anos. Sem dúvida, isso se fez porque no templo havia necessidade de mais pessoas cuidarem do grandemente aumentado serviço ali. — 1Cr 23:24-27.

Os levitas que se aposentavam à idade de 50 anos não se retiravam de todo o serviço. Eles ainda podiam servir voluntariamente e "ministrar aos seus irmãos na tenda de reunião, cuidando da obrigação". (Núm 8:26) Eles provavelmente serviam de conselheiros e ajudavam em cuidar de parte do trabalho mais leve incluído na obrigação dos levitas, mas eram poupados ao trabalho mais pesado. E ainda eram instrutores da Lei para o povo. (De 33:8-10; 2Cr 35:3) Os dentre eles que moravam em cidades de refúgio eram de ajuda para os que se refugiavam ali.

O Ministério Cristão. Os que se tornam "irmãos" espirituais de Jesus Cristo e seguidores das pisadas dele são chamados de "sacerdócio real". (He 2:10-12; 1Pe 2:9) Para estes não há nenhuma provisão de aposentadoria. O apóstolo Paulo estava ativo em seu ministério enquanto na prisão, e continuou em constante atividade ministerial até ser morto. (At 28:30, 31; 2Ti 4:6, 7) Pedro continuou ativo até o fim de sua vida. (2Pe 1:13-15) João escreveu seu Evangelho e três cartas canônicas já em idade extremamente avançada, por volta de 98 EC.

Diz-se que a "grande multidão", vista por João depois da visão dos 144.000 "selados", "prestam [a Deus] serviço sagrado, dia e noite", ou continuamente. Por conseguinte, não existe aposentadoria do serviço de Deus para nenhum cristão. — Re 7:4, 9, 15.

APOSTASIA. Este termo em grego (a·po·sta·sí·a) deriva do verbo a·fí·ste·mi, que significa literalmente "apartar-se de". O substantivo tem o sentido de "deserção, abandono ou rebeldia". (At 21:21 n.) No grego clássico, o substantivo era usado para referir-se à defecção política, e o verbo é evidentemente empregado neste sentido em Atos 5:37 a respeito de Judas, o galileu, que "arrastou" (a·pé·ste·se, forma de a·fí·ste·mi) seguidores. A Septuaginta grega usa o termo em Gênesis 14:4, com referência a uma rebelião assim. No entanto, nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, é usado primariamente com respeito à defecção religiosa; um afastamento ou abandono da verdadeira causa, adoração e serviço de Deus, e, portanto, o abandono daquilo que a pessoa antes professava e uma deserção total de princípios ou da fé. Os líderes religiosos de Jerusalém acusaram Paulo de tal apostasia contra a Lei mosaica.

Pode-se dizer, apropriadamente, que o Adversário de Deus foi o primeiro apóstata, conforme indicado pelo nome Satanás. Ele induziu o primeiro casal humano a apostatar. (Gên 3:1-15; Jo 8:44) Após o Dilúvio, houve uma rebelião contra as palavras do Deus de Noé. (Gên 11:1-9) Jó, mais tarde, achou necessário defender-se da acusação de apostasia feita pelos seus três supostos confortadores. (Jó 8:13; 15:34; 20:5) Em sua defesa, Jó mostrou que Deus não concede audiência ao apóstata (Jó 13:16), e mostrou também o estado de desesperança daquele que é cortado em apostasia. (Jó 27:8; veja também a declaração de Eliú em 34:30; 36:13.) Nestes casos, a palavra hebraica hha·néf é usada, significando "[alguém] alienado de Deus", isto é, um apóstata. O verbo aparentado, hha·néf, significa "estar inclinado para longe da relação correta com Deus", ou, "poluir, levar à apostasia". — Lexicon in Veteris Testamenti Libros (Léxico dos Livros do Velho Testamento), de L. Koehler e W. Baumgartner, Leiden, 1958, p. 317.

Apostasia em Israel. Os primeiros dois mandamentos da Lei condenavam toda apostasia. (Êx 20:3-6) E, antes de os israelitas entrarem na Terra da Promessa, eles foram avisados do grave perigo da apostasia resultante de casamentos com pessoas daquele país. (De 7:3, 4) Mesmo que alguém que incitasse outros à apostasia fosse parente próximo ou o cônjuge, ele devia ser morto por ter 'falado em revolta contra Jeová, vosso Deus'. (De 13:1-15) As tribos de Rubem, Gade e Manassés agiram rapidamente para exonerar-se duma acusação de apostasia, que surgiu devido a terem construído um altar. — Jos 22:21-29.

Muitos dos reis de Israel e de Judá seguiram um proceder apóstata — por exemplo, Saul (1Sa 15:11; 28:6, 7), Jeroboão (1Rs 12:28-32), Acabe (1Rs 16:30-33), Acazias (1Rs 22:51-53), Jeorão (2Cr 21:6-15), Acaz (2Cr 28:1-4) e Amom (2Cr 33:22, 23). Com o tempo, desenvolveu-se uma nação de apóstatas, uma vez que as pessoas escutavam os sacerdotes e profetas apóstatas (Je 23:11, 15) e outros homens desprovidos de princípios, os quais, por meio de palavras suaves e falsos proferimentos, levavam-nas à conduta desenfreada, à imoralidade e a desertarem de Jeová, 'a fonte de água viva'. (Is 10:6; 32:6, 7; Je 3:1; 17:13) Segundo Isaías 24:5, a própria terra se tornou "poluída [hhanefáh] sob os seus habitantes, pois deixaram de lado as leis, mudaram o regulamento, violaram o pacto de duração indefinida". Não se lhes concederia misericórdia na destruição predita. — Is 9:17; 33:11-14; Sof 1:4-6.

Que características distinguem os apóstatas dos verdadeiros cristãos?

Uma apostasia entre os professos cristãos foi predita pelo apóstolo Paulo em 2 Tessalonicenses 2:3. Ele mencionou especificamente certos apóstatas, tais como Himeneu, Alexandre e Fileto. (1Ti 1:19, 20; 2Ti 2:16-19) Entre as diversas causas da apostasia apresentadas nos avisos apostólicos achavam-se: falta de fé (He 3:12), falta de perseverança em face de perseguição (He 10:32-39), abandono dos padrões morais corretos (2Pe 2:15-22), acatar "palavras simuladas" de falsos instrutores e "desencaminhantes pronunciações inspiradas" (2Pe 2:1-3; 1Ti 4:1-3; 2Ti 2:16-19; compare isso com Pr 11:9) e tentar "ser declarados justos por meio de lei". (Gál 5:2-4) Os apóstatas, embora ainda professem ter fé na Palavra de Deus, talvez abandonem o serviço dele por tratar com descaso a obra de pregação e de ensino que ele designou aos seguidores de Jesus Cristo. (Lu 6:46; Mt 24:14; 28:19, 20) Talvez afirmem também servir a Deus, mas rejeitam os representantes dele, a parte visível da Sua organização. (Ju 8, 11; Núm 16:19-21; Mt 24:45-51) Os apóstatas frequentemente procuram fazer de outros seus seguidores. (At 20:30; 2Pe 2:1, 3) Os que assim deliberadamente abandonam a congregação cristã tornam-se deste modo parte do "anticristo". (1Jo 2:18, 19) Assim como se deu com os israelitas apóstatas, também se predisse a destruição dos que apostatam da congregação cristã. — 2Pe 2:1; He 6:4-8; veja ASSOCIAÇÃO.

Durante o período de perseguição, que a primitiva congregação cristã sofreu às mãos do Império Romano, os cristãos professos foram às vezes induzidos a negar ser discípulos cristãos, e exigiu-se dos que fizeram isso indicar sua apostasia por meio duma oferta de incenso perante algum deus pagão ou a blasfemarem abertamente do nome de Cristo.

É evidente que há uma distinção entre uma 'queda' devido a uma fraqueza e o 'desvio' que constitui apostasia. Esse último subentende um afastamento definitivo e deliberado da vereda da justiça. (1Jo 3:4-8; 5:16, 17) Seja qual for a base aparente, quer intelectual, quer moral, quer espiritual, constitui uma rebelião contra Deus e uma rejeição de sua Palavra da verdade. — 2Te 2:3, 4; veja HOMEM QUE É CONTRA A LEI.

APÓSTOLO. A palavra grega a·pó·sto·los deriva do verbo comum, a·po·stél·lo, que significa simplesmente "enviar (ou despachar)". (Mt 10:5; Mr 11:3) Seu sentido básico é claramente ilustrado na declaração de Jesus: "O escravo não é maior do que o seu amo, nem é o enviado [a·pó·sto·los] maior do que aquele que o enviou." (Jo 13:16) Neste sentido, a palavra também se aplica a Cristo Jesus como o "apóstolo e sumo sacerdote que confessamos". (He 3:1; compare isso com Mt 10:40; 15:24; Lu 4:18, 43; 9:48; 10:16; Jo 3:17; 5:36, 38; 6:29, 57; 7:29; 8:42; 10:36; 11:42; 17:3, 8, 18, 21-25; 20:21.) Jesus foi enviado por Deus como seu representante designado e comissionado.

O termo é mormente aplicado, porém, aos discípulos a quem Jesus pessoalmente escolheu como corpo de 12 representantes designados. Os nomes dos doze originalmente escolhidos são fornecidos em Mateus 10:2-4; Marcos 3:16-19 e Lucas 6:13-16. Um dos 12 originais, Judas Iscariotes, mostrou-se traidor, destarte cumprindo profecias anteriores. (Sal 41:9; 109:8) Os restantes 11 apóstolos fiéis são de novo alistados em Atos 1:13.

Alguns dos apóstolos tinham sido discípulos de João, o Batizador, antes de se tornarem discípulos de Jesus. (Jo 1:35-42) Onze deles eram evidentemente galileus (At 2:7), sendo Judas Iscariotes considerado o único da Judeia. Pertenciam à classe operária; quatro eram definitivamente pescadores de profissão; um deles tinha sido cobrador de impostos. (Mt 4:18-21; 9:9-13) Pelo menos dois deles parecem ter sido primos de Jesus (Tiago e João, filhos de Zebedeu). Eram homens tidos pelos líderes religiosos como "indoutos e comuns", indicando que sua instrução era elementar e não provinha de escolas de ensino superior. Vários deles, inclusive Pedro (Cefas), eram casados. — At 4:13; 1Co 9:5.

Dentre os 12, Pedro, Tiago e João parecem ter usufruído a associação mais íntima com Jesus. Apenas eles testemunharam a ressurreição da filha de Jairo (Mr 5:35-43) e a transfiguração de Jesus (Mt 17:1, 2), e o acompanharam mais para dentro do jardim de Getsêmani do que os outros apóstolos, na noite da prisão dele. (Mr 14:32, 33) Parece ter existido uma afinidade especial entre Jesus e João, e aceita-se que João é o mencionado como "o discípulo a quem Jesus havia amado". — Jo 21:20-24; 13:23.

Escolha e Ministério Inicial. Os 12 foram escolhidos dentre um grupo maior de discípulos, e foram denominados "apóstolos" por Jesus, "para que continuassem com ele e para que pudesse enviá-los [a·po·stél·lei] a pregar e a ter autoridade para expulsar os demônios". (Mr 3:13-15) Depois disso, eles deveras 'continuaram com ele' em associação mui íntima durante o restante de seu ministério terrestre, recebendo extensiva instrução pessoal e treinamento ministerial. (Mt 10:1-42; Lu 8:1) Visto que continuaram a ser alunos de Jesus, ainda eram chamados "discípulos", especialmente em relatos de eventos antes de Pentecostes. (Mt 11:1; 14:26; 20:17; Jo 20:2) Depois disso, são uniformemente chamados "apóstolos". Por ocasião de sua designação, Jesus lhes concedeu poderes miraculosos de curar, bem como de expulsar demônios, e eles usaram tais poderes até certo ponto durante o ministério de Jesus. (Mr 3:14, 15; 6:13; Mt 10:1-8; Lu 9:6; compare isso com Mt 17:16.) Esta atividade, contudo, segundo se mostra, estava sempre subordinada à sua obra principal de pregação. Embora formassem um círculo íntimo de seguidores, sua instrução e seu treinamento não incluíram quaisquer ritos ou cerimônias misteriosos.

Fraquezas Humanas. Embora grandemente favorecidos como apóstolos do Filho de Deus, eles manifestavam falhas e fraquezas humanas normais. Pedro tinha a inclinação de ser precipitado e impetuoso (Mt 16:22, 23; Jo 21:7, 8); Tomé era lento em se deixar convencer (Jo 20:24, 25); Tiago e João manifestavam impaciência juvenil (Lu 9:49, 54). Eles altercavam quanto à questão de sua futura grandeza no reino terrestre que esperavam que Jesus estabelecesse. (Mt 20:20-28; Mr 10:35-45; compare isso com At 1:6; Lu 24:21.) Reconheceram sua necessidade de mais fé. (Lu 17:5; compare isso com Mt 17:20.) Apesar dos anos de íntima associação com Jesus, e embora soubessem que ele era o Messias, todos o abandonaram na ocasião em que ele foi preso (Mt 26:56); os assuntos referentes ao enterro dele foram cuidados por outros. Os apóstolos no começo eram lentos em aceitar o testemunho das mulheres que primeiro viram a Jesus depois da ressurreição dele. (Lu 24:10, 11) Por medo, reuniram-se atrás de portas trancadas. (Jo 20:19, 26) O ressuscitado Jesus lhes deu maior esclarecimento, e, após a sua ascensão ao céu, no quadragésimo dia desde sua ressurreição, eles manifestaram grande alegria e "estavam continuamente no templo, bendizendo a Deus". — Lu 24:44-53.

Atividade na Congregação Cristã. O derramamento do espírito de Deus sobre eles, em Pentecostes, fortaleceu grandemente os apóstolos. Os primeiros cinco capítulos de Atos dos Apóstolos testificam o grande destemor dos apóstolos e seu denodo em declarar as boas novas e a ressurreição de Jesus, apesar de encarceramento, espancamentos e ameaças de morte por parte dos seus governantes. Naqueles primeiros dias depois de Pentecostes, a liderança dinâmica dos apóstolos, sob o poder do espírito santo, resultou numa espantosa expansão da congregação cristã. (At 2:41; 4:4) Seu ministério, de início, concentrou-se em Jerusalém, daí expandiu-se para Samaria, e, com o tempo, por todo o mundo então conhecido. — At 5:42; 6:7; 8:5-17, 25; 1:8.

Sua função primária como apóstolos era a de ser testemunhas de que Jesus cumpriu os propósitos e as profecias de Jeová Deus, em especial de sua ressurreição e exaltação, e de realizar uma obra de fazer discípulos entre todas as nações; e esta comissão lhes foi enfatizada por Jesus pouco antes da ascensão dele ao céu. (Mt 28:19, 20; At 1:8, 22; 2:32-36; 3:15-26) O testemunho deles a respeito da ressurreição era o de testemunhas oculares. — At 13:30-34.

Poderes miraculosos. Adicionalmente, para aumentar a força de seu testemunho, os apóstolos continuaram a exercer os poderes miraculosos que Jesus lhes concedera previamente, e também outros dons do espírito recebidos a partir de Pentecostes. (At 5:12; 9:36-40; veja DONS DADOS POR DEUS [Dons do Espírito].) Embora outros também recebessem tais dons milagrosos do espírito, o relato mostra que isso só se dava quando um ou mais apóstolos estavam presentes, ou pela imposição das mãos dos apóstolos. Paulo, embora não fosse um dos 12, também serviu nesta qualidade, como apóstolo pessoalmente designado por Jesus Cristo. (At 2:1, 4, 14; 8:14-18; 10:44; 19:6) Assim, o poder de transmitir tais dons era exclusivo desses apóstolos. Tais dons miraculosos, por conseguinte, terminariam com a morte dos apóstolos e daqueles que receberam esses dons por meio dos apóstolos (1Co 13:2, 8-11), e, assim, lemos que tais poderes estavam "ausentes na Igreja do segundo século, pois os escritores daqueles dias falam desses dons como coisa do passado — na era apostólica, de fato". — O Novo Dicionário da Bíblia, editado por J. D. Douglas, 1966, Vol. 1, p. 97.

Posição administrativa. Na formação, organização e subsequente direção da congregação cristã, os apóstolos ocupavam uma posição primária. (1Co 12:28; Ef 4:11) Embora se juntassem a eles outros dos "anciãos" em tal supervisão, eles constituíam a parte principal do corpo governante da congregação cristã em expansão, e este corpo era reconhecido pelos primitivos cristãos em toda a parte como o canal de comunicação usado por Deus para fazer decisões e dirigir os assuntos da congregação em toda a Terra. (At 2:42; 8:14-17; 11:22; 15:1, 2, 6-31; 16:4, 5) Isto só foi possível a esses homens por causa do cumprimento das promessas a respeito da orientação pelo espírito santo de Deus. (Jo 15:26, 27) Esta ajuda habilitou-os a se lembrarem das instruções e dos ensinos de Jesus, para esclarecer pontos de doutrina e ser progressivamente guiados "a toda a verdade" que lhes foi revelada naquele período apostólico. (Jo 14:26; 16:13-15; compare isso com Jo 2:22; 12:16.) Fizeram designações para cargos de serviço na congregação e designaram também regiões em que certos se empenhariam em atividade missionária. — At 6:2, 3; Gál 2:8, 9.

Os apóstolos, portanto, serviram de alicerce, apoiados no próprio Cristo Jesus como pedra angular de alicerce, para a edificação do "templo santo para Jeová". (Ef 2:20-22; 1Pe 2:4-6) Não há evidência de primazia de qualquer um dos apóstolos na estabelecida congregação cristã. (Veja PEDRO.) Pedro e João parecem ter sido especialmente proeminentes em Pentecostes e logo depois, atuando Pedro como principal porta-voz. (At 2:14, 37, 38; 3:1, 4, 11; 4:1, 13, 19; 5:3, 8, 15, 29) Todavia, nas decisões tomadas naquele tempo, nenhum destes parece ter tido alguma superioridade sobre os outros do corpo governante, e quando chegou a notícia de batismos ocorrendo em Samaria, os apóstolos em Jerusalém "mandaram-lhes [a·pé·stei·lan] Pedro e João", de modo que estes dois, na realidade, serviram de apóstolos dos apóstolos. (At 6:2-6; 8:14, 15) Após a morte do apóstolo Tiago, o discípulo do mesmo nome, Tiago, meio-irmão de Jesus, parece ter presidido ao corpo governante. Paulo fala deste Tiago, e também de Pedro (Cefas) e de João como os "que pareciam ser colunas". (At 12:1, 2, 16, 17; Gál 1:18, 19; 2:9, 11-14) Foi Tiago quem anunciou a decisão final na importante questão da circuncisão no que se referia a crentes gentios, reunião em que tanto Pedro como Paulo apresentaram testemunho. — At 15:1, 2, 6-21.

Quem substituiu a Judas Iscariotes como décimo segundo apóstolo?

Devido à defecção de Judas Iscariotes, que morreu infiel, restaram somente 11 apóstolos, e, durante os 40 dias que se passaram desde a ressurreição de Jesus até a sua ascensão ao céu, ele não fez nenhuma designação dum substituto. Em certo momento durante os dez dias entre a ascensão de Jesus e o dia de Pentecostes julgou-se necessário que outro fosse escolhido para preencher a vaga deixada por Judas, não simplesmente à base de sua morte, mas, antes, à base de sua iníqua defecção, conforme indicam as Escrituras citadas por Pedro. (At 1:15-22; Sal 69:25; 109:8; compare isso com Re 3:11.) Assim, por contraste, quando o fiel apóstolo Tiago foi morto, não existe nenhum registro de qualquer preocupação de designar alguém para sucedê-lo na posição de apóstolo. — At 12:2.

É evidente, das declarações de Pedro, que se considerava então que, para alguém preencher a posição dum apóstolo de Jesus Cristo, ele tinha de possuir as qualificações de tê-lo conhecido pessoalmente, tendo sido testemunha ocular de suas obras, de seus milagres, e, especialmente, de sua ressurreição. Em vista disso, pode-se depreender que qualquer sucessão apostólica, no decorrer do tempo, seria impossível, a menos que houvesse alguma ação divina para suprir tais exigências em cada caso individual. Naquela época específica, antes de Pentecostes, porém, havia homens que satisfaziam tais requisitos, e dois foram apresentados como adequados para substituir o infiel Judas. Sem dúvida tendo presente Provérbios 16:33, lançaram-se sortes, e Matias foi escolhido, e, depois disso, "foi contado com os onze apóstolos". (At 1:23-26) Ele acha-se assim incluído entre "os doze" que resolveram o problema a respeito dos discípulos de língua grega (At 6:1, 2), e, evidentemente, Paulo o inclui ao referir-se "aos doze", ao falar das aparições pós-ressurreição de Jesus, em 1 Coríntios 15:4-8. Assim, quando chegou Pentecostes, havia 12 alicerces apostólicos em que se podia apoiar o Israel espiritual então formado.

Apostolados Congregacionais. Matias não era simples apóstolo da congregação de Jerusalém, assim como não eram os outros 11 apóstolos. Há uma diferença entre o seu caso e o do levita José Barnabé, que se tornou apóstolo da congregação de Antioquia, na Síria. (At 13:1-4; 14:4, 14; 1Co 9:4-6) Outros homens também são mencionados como "apóstolos de congregações", no sentido de que foram enviados por tais congregações para representá-las. (2Co 8:23) E, ao escrever aos filipenses, Paulo fala de Epafrodito como "vosso enviado [a·pó·sto·lon] e servidor particular para as minhas necessidades". (Fil 2:25) O apostolado destes homens claramente não provinha de qualquer sucessão apostólica, nem constituíam eles parte dos "doze", como Matias.

O entendimento correto da aplicação mais ampla do termo "apóstolo" pode ajudar a eliminar qualquer aparente discrepância entre Atos 9:26, 27 e Gálatas 1:17-19, quando aplicados à mesma ocasião. O primeiro relato declara que Paulo, ao chegar a Jerusalém, foi conduzido "aos apóstolos" por Barnabé. No relato de Gálatas, porém, Paulo declara que visitou Pedro, e acrescenta: "Mas, não vi nenhum outro dos apóstolos, a não ser Tiago, o irmão do Senhor." Tiago (não o apóstolo Tiago original, filho de Zebedeu, nem Tiago, filho de Alfeu, mas o meio-irmão de Jesus) era evidentemente tido como "apóstolo" no sentido mais amplo, a saber, como "enviado" da congregação de Jerusalém. Isto permitiria que o relato de Atos usasse o título no plural ao dizer que Paulo foi conduzido "aos apóstolos" (i.e., Pedro e Tiago). — Compare isso com 1Co 15:5-7; Gál 2:9.

A Escolha de Paulo. Provavelmente por volta do ano 34 EC, Saulo de Tarso foi convertido, e ele é mais tarde chamado de Paulo. Ele deveras tornou-se um verdadeiro apóstolo de Jesus Cristo e foi a escolha direta do Jesus Cristo ressuscitado e que ascendera ao céu. (At 9:1-22; 22:6-21; 26:12-23; 13:9) Ele argumentou em favor de seu apostolado e apresentou como sua habilitação o fato de ter visto o ressuscitado Senhor Jesus Cristo, de ter feito milagres e de ele também ter servido como canal para a transmissão do espírito santo aos crentes batizados. (1Co 9:1, 2; 15:9, 10; 2Co 12:12; 2Ti 1:1, 11; Ro 1:1; 11:13; At 19:5, 6) Visto que o apóstolo Tiago (o irmão de João) não foi morto senão por volta do ano 44 EC, "os doze" ainda estavam vivos na ocasião em que Paulo se tornou apóstolo. Ele, em parte alguma, inclui-se entre esses "doze", embora, ao mesmo tempo, admita não ser o seu apostolado inferior em comparação ao deles. — Gál 2:6-9.

Os apostolados de Matias e de Paulo eram ambos válidos para a finalidade com que estes homens foram 'enviados', no entanto, quando o apóstolo João teve a visão da Nova Jerusalém celestial, na Revelação (dada por volta de 96 EC), ele viu apenas 12 pedras de alicerce e inscritos nelas "os doze nomes dos doze apóstolos do Cordeiro". (Re 21:14) O testemunho das Escrituras Sagradas é claro no sentido de que o apóstolo Paulo nunca foi mencionado como sendo um dos "doze". Portanto, segue-se logicamente que um dos "doze nomes dos doze apóstolos do Cordeiro" inscritos nas pedras de alicerce da Nova Jerusalém era o de Matias, e não o de Paulo. Isto significa que a visão do apóstolo João reflete a situação que existia no começo da congregação cristã, no dia de Pentecostes no ano 33 EC. — Veja PAULO.

Fim do Período Apostólico. Embora a Bíblia não relate a morte dos 12 apóstolos, exceto a de Tiago, a evidência disponível indica que mantiveram a fidelidade até a morte, e, por conseguinte, não precisaram de substitutos. A respeito da história nos séculos seguintes, faz-se a observação de que "sempre que este [o termo "apóstolo"] é aplicado a pessoas na literatura cristã posterior, o uso do termo é metafórico. A igreja nunca mais teve apóstolos no sentido do N[ovo] T[estamento] desde o primeiro século". — The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible (Dicionário Bíblico do Intérprete), editado por G. A. Buttrick, 1962, Vol. 1, p. 172.

Durante seu período de vida, a presença dos apóstolos serviu como restrição à influência da apostasia, refreando as forças da adoração falsa dentro da congregação cristã. É evidentemente a esta "restrição" que o apóstolo Paulo se referiu em 2 Tessalonicenses 2:7: "Verdadeiramente, o mistério daquilo que é contra a lei já está operando; mas apenas até que aquele que agora mesmo age como restrição esteja fora do caminho." (Compare isso com Mt 13:24, 25; At 20:29, 30.) Esta influência apostólica, inclusive a autoridade e os poderes exclusivos deles, continuaram até a morte de João, por volta de 100 EC. (1Jo 2:26; 3Jo 9, 10) O rápido influxo de apostasia e de doutrinas e práticas falsas depois da morte dos apóstolos mostra que quaisquer pretensos sucessores apostólicos não dispunham de nenhuma dessa influência restritiva dos apóstolos.

A referência a Andrônico e Júnias, em Romanos 16:7, como "homens notáveis entre os apóstolos", indica, não que eles eram apóstolos, mas, antes, que eram tidos em alta estima pelos apóstolos. Que alguns fingiam ser "apóstolos de Cristo" é demonstrado em 2 Coríntios 11:5, 13; 12:11, 12; Revelação 2:2.

APROXIMAÇÃO A DEUS. Num antigo tribunal oriental, qualquer aproximação de alguém à presença do monarca só podia ser feita de acordo com determinadas regras e com a permissão do monarca. Na maioria dos casos havia um intermediário agindo a favor dos peticionários que desejavam ter uma audiência com o governante, apresentando-os e abonando a genuinidade das suas credenciais. Entrar no pátio interno do rei persa Assuero sem ser chamado significava a morte; mas a Rainha Ester, ao arriscar a sua vida para obter acesso à presença do rei, foi favorecida com a aprovação. (Est 4:11, 16; 5:1-3) As ações e as palavras dos irmãos de José ilustram o cuidado usado para evitar ofender o rei, pois Judá disse a José: "Contigo é o mesmo que com Faraó." (Gên 42:6; 43:15-26; 44:14, 18) De modo que, obter acesso à presença dum governante terrestre, embora fosse apenas homem imperfeito, muitas vezes era bem difícil e um raro privilégio.

A Santidade da Presença de Deus. Embora Paulo declare em Atenas que Deus 'não está longe de cada um de nós' (At 17:27), e sua acessibilidade seja apresentada em toda a sua Palavra, a Bíblia, quem se aproxima Dele também tem de satisfazer requisitos específicos e ter a Sua permissão ou aprovação divina. A visão de Daniel a respeito da majestosa corte celestial do "Antigo de Dias", a quem o "filho de homem . . . obteve acesso", 'fazendo-o chegar perto perante Este', ilustra a dignidade, o respeito e a ordem associados com a presença do Governante Soberano do Universo. (Da 7:9, 10, 13, 14; compare isso com Je 30:21.) O registro em Jó 1:6 e 2:1 indica que os filhos angélicos de Deus também são convidados à Sua presença imediata em ocasiões designadas, e a presença de Satanás entre eles razoavelmente deve ter sido somente pela permissão do Soberano.

O homem, feito à imagem e semelhança do seu Criador por ser dotado de certa medida dos atributos divinos e receber a responsabilidade de cuidar do planeta Terra, e da criação animal sobre ele, teria de ter comunicação com o seu Deus e Pai. (Gên 1:26, 27) Esta comunicação é descrita em Gênesis 1:28-30; 2:16, 17.

Adão e Eva, como criaturas perfeitas, e, portanto, sem complexo de culpa ou consciência de pecado, podiam originalmente chegar-se a Deus em conversação sem sentir a necessidade de um intercessor entre eles e seu Criador, fazendo isso assim como filhos se chegariam ao seu pai. (Gên 1:31; 2:25) O pecado e a rebelião deles fê-los perder esta relação, trazendo consigo a condenação à morte. (Gên 3:16-24) Não se declara se eles fizeram depois tentativas de se aproximar de Deus.

Mediante Fé, Obras Corretas e Sacrifícios. O relato sobre a aproximação de Caim e de Abel a Deus à base de oferendas mostra que os pré-requisitos para se chegar a Deus eram a fé e obras corretas. Por isso, Caim estava excluído da aceitação divina até 'se voltar para fazer o bem'. (Gên 4:5-9; 1Jo 3:12; He 11:4) Posteriormente, no tempo de Enos, quando se começou a "invocar o nome de Jeová", isto não parece ter sido algo sincero (Gên 4:26), visto que o próximo homem de fé mencionado depois de Abel não é Enos, mas Enoque, porque 'andar ele com Deus' mostra que sua aproximação foi aceita. (Gên 5:24; He 11:5) A profecia de Enoque, registrada em Judas 14, 15, porém, indica que nos seus dias existia um desenfreado desrespeito a Deus. — Veja ENOQUE, ENOS.

O proceder justo e inculpe de Noé entre os seus contemporâneos facultou-lhe o acesso a Deus e a preservação. (Gên 6:9-19) Depois do Dilúvio, ele se aproximou de Deus à base dum sacrifício, assim como fizera Abel; foi abençoado e avisado a respeito de requisitos adicionais para ter a aprovação divina, bem como sobre o pacto de Deus com toda a carne, garantindo que não haveria um futuro dilúvio global. (Gên 8:20, 21; 9:1-11) A expressão, "Jeová, Deus de Sem", evidentemente indica que este filho havia obtido uma posição de maior favor perante Deus do que seus dois irmãos. — Gên 9:26, 27.

O sacerdócio de Melquisedeque. Embora Noé oficiasse no altar a favor da sua família, não há menção específica dum "sacerdote" como atuando a favor dos homens na aproximação deles a Deus, até o tempo de Melquisedeque. O sacerdócio de Melquisedeque foi reconhecido por Abraão, o qual "deu-lhe um décimo de tudo". (Gên 14:18-20) Melquisedeque é apresentado como tipo profético de Cristo Jesus, em Hebreus 7:1-3, 15-17, 25.

A aproximação de outros patriarcas. A relação de Abraão com Deus habilitou-o para ser chamado de 'amigo de Deus' (Is 41:8; 2Cr 20:7; Tg 2:23), e sua fé e obediência, conjugadas com a sua respeitosa aproximação por meio de altares e ofertas, são destacadas como base disso. (Gên 18:18, 19; 26:3-6; He 11:8-10, 17-19) Ele foi aceito numa relação pactuada com Deus. (Gên 12:1-3, 7; 15:1, 5-21; 17:1-8) A circuncisão foi-lhe dada como sinal disso, tornando-se ela por algum tempo um requisito para se ter a aceitação divina. (Gên 17:9-14; Ro 4:11) A posição de Abraão qualificou-o para fazer súplicas, mesmo a favor de outros (Gên 20:7), todavia, seu profundo respeito sempre se manifestava na presença de Jeová ou do representante dele. (Gên 17:3; 18:23-33) Jó, parente distante de Abraão, atuava como sacerdote para a sua família, oferecendo a favor dela sacrifícios queimados (Jó 1:5), e fez súplicas a favor dos seus três "companheiros", e "Jeová aceitou a face de Jó". — Jó 42:7-9.

Isaque e Jacó, herdeiros da promessa feita a Abraão, aproximavam-se de Deus por invocar "o nome de Jeová" com fé, e por construir altares e apresentar ofertas. — He 11:9, 20, 21; Gên 26:25; 31:54; 33:20.

Moisés foi instruído pelo anjo de Deus a não se aproximar do arbusto ardente e foi mandado tirar as sandálias por estar parado em "solo sagrado". (Êx 3:5) Moisés, como representante designado de Deus na nação de Israel, teve acesso ímpar à presença de Jeová durante a sua vida, visto que Jeová falava "boca a boca" com ele. (Núm 12:6-13; Êx 24:1, 2, 12-18; 34:30-35) Moisés, igual a Melquisedeque, serviu de tipo profético de Cristo Jesus. — De 18:15; At 3:20-23.

Destacada a importância da aproximação aprovada. Antes de dar o pacto da Lei, Jeová mandou que toda a nação de Israel se santificasse por três dias, lavando suas vestimentas. Fixaram-se limites para a aproximação, e ninguém, nem homem nem animal, devia tocar no monte Sinai, sob pena de morte. (Êx 19:10-15) Moisés "levou então o povo para fora do acampamento ao encontro do verdadeiro Deus", postando-o ao sopé do monte, e ele subiu ao monte para receber os termos do pacto no meio de trovões e relâmpagos, fumaça e fogo, e sons de buzina. (Êx 19:16-20) Ordenou-se a Moisés não deixar "os sacerdotes e o povo abrir caminho para subirem até Jeová, para que ele não irrompa sobre eles". (Êx 19:21-25) "Os sacerdotes" mencionados aqui talvez fossem os varões principais de cada família de Israel, e, como tais, 'regularmente se aproximavam de Jeová', igual a Jó, a favor da família.

Sob o Pacto da Lei. Por meio do pacto da Lei estabeleceu-se um arranjo que provia a aproximação individual e nacional a Deus por meio dum sacerdócio designado, e com sacrifícios prescritos por lei, em conexão com o tabernáculo sagrado e mais tarde com o templo. Os filhos de Arão, o levita, atuavam como sacerdotes a favor do povo. Se outros, até mesmo levitas que não eram da linhagem de Arão, se atrevessem a chegar ao altar ou aos utensílios sagrados para fazer tal serviço, isso resultaria em morte. (Le 2:8; Núm 3:10; 16:40; 17:12, 13; 18:2-4, 7) Os sacerdotes tinham de satisfazer requisitos estritos quanto à limpeza tanto física como cerimonial, e tinham de usar vestimenta aprovada ao se chegarem ao altar ou ao "lugar santo". (Êx 28:40-43; 30:18-21; 40:32; Le 22:2, 3) Qualquer desrespeito ou violação das instruções divinas na aproximação ao Deus Soberano resultava na pena de morte, como no caso de dois dos filhos do próprio Arão. (Le 10:1-3, 8-11; 16:1) Dentre toda a nação, apenas Arão, e os que lhe sucederam como sumos sacerdotes, podiam entrar no Santíssimo para chegar perante a Arca do Pacto, que estava associada com a presença de Jeová; no entanto, mesmo ele só tinha permissão de entrar ali num único dia do ano, o Dia da Expiação. (Le 16:2, 17) Nesta posição privilegiada, Arão prefigurava Cristo Jesus como Sumo Sacerdote de Deus. — He 8:1-6; 9:6, 7, 24.

Por ocasião da dedicação do templo em Jerusalém, o Rei Salomão se dirigiu a Jeová em favor da nação. Orou para que os olhos de Jeová se mostrassem abertos dia e noite para com aquela casa, na qual Ele havia posto Seu nome, e que Ele ouvisse os rogos do rei, da nação e também dos estrangeiros que se juntassem a Israel, quem quer que 'orasse em direção a esta casa'. Deste modo, Jeová era acessível a todos, desde o rei até o mínimo da nação. — 2Cr 6:19-42.

Em Israel, a aproximação a Deus com questões que afetavam a nação inteira era feita por um rei, por um sacerdote ou por um profeta. O Urim e Tumim do sumo sacerdote eram usados em certas ocasiões para determinar a orientação de Deus. (1Sa 8:21, 22; 14:36-41; 1Rs 18:36-45; Je 42:1-3) A violação da lei de Jeová quanto à aproximação correta trazia punição, como no caso de Uzias (2Cr 26:16-20), e podia resultar em se cortar completamente a comunicação com Deus, como no caso de Saul. (1Sa 28:6; 1Cr 10:13) Que Jeová não permitiria nenhuma frivolidade com respeito à sua Presença Soberana e os objetos associados com ela é ilustrado no caso de Uzá, filho de Abinadabe, que segurou a Arca do Pacto para firmá-la, com o resultado de que "se acendeu a ira de Jeová contra Uzá, e o verdadeiro Deus o golpeou ali pelo ato irreverente". — 2Sa 6:3-7.

Meros ritos e sacrifícios são insuficientes. Embora se tenha argumentado que a adoração de Jeová passou de uma de ritos e sacrifícios para uma de requisitos morais, toda a evidência indica o contrário. Meros ritos e sacrifícios, por si sós, nunca eram suficientes, mas constituíam apenas uma simbólica base jurídica para a aproximação a Deus. (He 9:9, 10) Afinal, era o próprio Jeová quem decidia a quem receber; neste respeito, o Salmo 65:4 declara: "Feliz é aquele a quem tu escolhes e fazes chegar perto para que resida nos teus pátios." Fé, justiça, equidade, isenção de culpa de sangue, veracidade e obediência à vontade expressa de Deus foram continuamente enfatizados como as credenciais exigidas para se ter aproximação a Deus, de modo que não era simplesmente alguém que trazia dádivas ao Soberano Universal, mas aquele que era "de mãos inocentes e de coração limpo" que podia subir ao monte de Jeová. (Sal 15:1-4; 24:3-6; 50:7-23; 119:169-171; Pr 3:32; 21:3; Os 6:6; Miq 6:6-8) Quando essas qualidades estavam ausentes, os sacrifícios, o jejum e até as orações tornavam-se detestáveis e inúteis aos olhos de Deus. (Is 1:11-17; 58:1-9; 29:13; Pr 15:8) Quando se havia cometido transgressão, tinha de se manifestar primeiro um espírito quebrantado e um coração esmagado antes de se aprovar a aproximação. (Sal 51:16, 17) O cargo sacerdotal não podia ter aceitação favorável por Deus se tais sacerdotes desprezavam o Seu nome e ofereciam sacrifícios inaceitáveis. — Mal 1:6-9.

A aproximação a Deus é também descrita como alguém apresentar-se num tribunal e comparecer perante o juiz para julgamento. (Êx 22:8; Núm 5:16; Jó 31:35-37; Is 50:8) Em Isaías 41:1, 21, 22, Jeová exorta os grupos nacionais a que se aproximem com seu litígio e seus argumentos, para serem julgados por ele.

Base para a Aproximação sob o Novo Pacto. O arranjo do pacto da Lei, com os seus sacrifícios de animais, como base jurídica pictórica, indicava uma base superior para a aproximação a Deus. (He 9:8-10; 10:1) Esta se estabeleceu por meio do novo pacto, mediante o qual todos haviam de 'conhecer a Jeová, desde o menor até o maior'. (Je 31:31-34; He 7:19; 8:10-13) Cristo Jesus, como mediador exclusivo daquele novo pacto, tornou-se "o caminho". Ele disse: "Ninguém vem ao Pai senão por mim." (Jo 14:6, 13, 14) A barreira que separava os judeus das nações gentias incircuncisas, não incluídas no pacto nacional de Deus com Israel, foi removida por meio da morte de Cristo, de modo que, "por intermédio dele, nós, ambos os povos, temos a aproximação ao Pai, por um só espírito". (Ef 2:11-19; At 10:35) A fé em Deus como "o recompensador dos que seriamente o buscam", e no resgate, é o pré-requisito para uma aproximação pacífica e uma benevolente recepção por Deus mediante Jesus Cristo. (He 11:6; 1Pe 3:18) Aqueles que se aproximam por meio de Cristo Jesus como seu Sumo Sacerdote e Intercessor sabem que ele "está sempre vivo para interceder por eles" (He 7:25), e podem confiantemente 'aproximar-se com franqueza no falar do trono de benignidade imerecida'. (He 4:14-16; Ef 3:12) Não se aproximam temendo uma condenação. (Ro 8:33, 34) Todavia, retêm o temor piedoso e o espanto reverente merecido por tal aproximação a Deus, "o Juiz de todos". — He 12:18-24, 28, 29.

A aproximação do cristão a Deus envolve sacrifícios e ofertas da espécie espiritual. (1Pe 2:4, 5; He 13:15; Ro 12:1) Mostra-se que templos materiais e imagens de ouro, de prata e de pedra não são de proveito algum na aproximação ao verdadeiro Deus. (At 7:47-50; 17:24-29; compare isso com Ef 2:20-22.) Os amigos do mundo são inimigos de Deus; ele se opõe aos soberbos, mas os humildes de 'mãos limpas' e de 'coração puro' podem 'chegar-se a Deus, e ele se chegará a tais'. — Tg 4:4-8.

Os cristãos ungidos, chamados para uma esperança celestial, têm um "caminho de entrada no lugar santo, pelo sangue de Jesus", e, conhecendo bem o "grande sacerdote sobre a casa de Deus", podem 'aproximar-se com corações sinceros na plena certeza da fé'. — He 10:19-22.

Com respeito à importância de se aproximar confiantemente a Deus, o salmista resume aptamente o assunto por dizer: "Pois, eis que perecerão os mesmos que se mantêm longe de ti. Certamente silenciarás a todo aquele que te abandona imoralmente. Quanto a mim, porém, chegar-me a Deus é bom para mim. Pus o meu refúgio no Soberano Senhor Jeová, para declarar todas as tuas obras." — Sal 73:27, 28; veja ORAÇÃO.

ÁQUILA [do lat., significando "Águia"]. Judeu natural, nascido em Ponto, na parte setentrional da Ásia Menor. Priscila, sua esposa e leal companheira, é sempre mencionada em associação com ele. Banidos de Roma pelo decreto do Imperador Cláudio contra os judeus, no ano 49 ou no começo do ano 50 EC, passaram a residir em Corinto. (At 18:1, 2) Quando Paulo chegou ali, no outono setentrional de 50 EC, Áquila e Priscila o acolheram bondosamente na sua casa. Desenvolveu-se uma amizade muito íntima entre eles, ao trabalharem juntos na sua profissão comum de fabricar tendas, e à medida que Áquila e Priscila, sem dúvida, ajudaram Paulo a edificar a nova congregação ali. — At 18:3.

Quando Paulo velejou para a Síria, no fim de sua segunda viagem missionária, na primavera de aproximadamente 52 EC, Áquila e Priscila foram com ele até Éfeso. (At 18:18, 19) Permaneceram ali pelo menos até que Paulo escreveu dali aos coríntios, por volta de 55 EC. Seu lar era usado como lugar de reuniões locais para a congregação, e ali tiveram o privilégio de ajudar o eloquente Apolo a obter entendimento mais exato do caminho de Deus. (1Co 16:19; At 18:26) Na época em que Paulo escreveu aos romanos, por volta de 56 EC, o governo de Cláudio já tinha terminado, e Áquila e Priscila já haviam retornado a Roma, pois Paulo transmitiu-lhes suas saudações, como seus "colaboradores". (Ro 16:3) Aqui, também, a congregação se reunia na casa deles. (Ro 16:5) Em certa ocasião, durante seu relacionamento com Paulo, Áquila e Priscila "arriscaram os seus próprios pescoços" a favor de Paulo, assim merecendo os agradecimentos de todas as congregações. (Ro 16:4) Mais tarde, mudaram-se de novo para Éfeso, pois Paulo, enquanto estava em Roma, pouco antes de sofrer martírio (c. 65 EC), pediu a Timóteo que transmitisse seus cumprimentos a eles ali. — 1Ti 1:3; 2Ti 4:19.

AQUIM [possivelmente do hebr., significando "Que [Jeová] Firmemente Estabeleça"]. Descendente real de Davi através de Salomão, e antepassado de José, pai adotivo de Jesus. — Mt 1:14.

AQUIS. Rei filisteu de Gate, que reinou durante o tempo de Davi e de Salomão. Era filho de Maoque ou Maacá, e no cabeçalho do Salmo 34 é chamado Abimeleque, talvez um título similar a Faraó ou Czar. — 1Sa 27:2; 1Rs 2:39.

Por duas vezes, Davi, quando estava fugindo de Saul, encontrou refúgio nos domínios do Rei Aquis. Na primeira ocasião, quando se suspeitou de que era inimigo, Davi fingiu insanidade mental, e Aquis permitiu que ele fosse embora, como um doido inofensivo. (1Sa 21:10-15; Sal 34:cab.; 56:cab.) Na segunda visita, Davi estava acompanhado de 600 guerreiros e de suas famílias, e, assim, Aquis os designou a morar em Ziclague. Durante o ano e quatro meses em que estiveram ali, Aquis acreditava que o grupo de Davi estava fazendo incursões contra as cidades da Judéia, ao passo que Davi, na realidade, estava saqueando os gesuritas, os girzitas e os amalequitas. (1Sa 27:1-12) Tão bem sucedida foi esta burla, que Aquis realmente fez de Davi seu guarda-costas pessoal quando os filisteus estavam organizando um ataque contra o Rei Saul, e somente no último momento, por insistência dos outros "senhores do eixo" dos filisteus, é que Davi e seus homens foram mandados de volta a Ziclague. (1Sa 28:2; 29:1-11) Quando Davi se tornou rei e guerreou contra Gate, pelo que parece, Aquis não foi morto.

Ele viveu até o reinado de Salomão. — 1Rs 2:39-41; veja GATE.

AR [provavelmente: Cidade]. Uma cidade de Moabe, possivelmente a capital. Encontrava-se ao lado S do vale do Árnon, mas a sua localização exata é incerta. (Núm 21:15) Ocasionalmente, Ar é usada como sinônimo de Moabe. (De 2:9, 18, 29) Em certa época, os limites de Moabe estendiam-se ao N do Árnon, mas esta região foi tirada deles pelo Rei Síon dos amorreus. (Núm 21:26-28) Os israelitas não atacaram Moabe, visto que Jeová lhes proibira isso, tendo dado o 'território de Moabe, isto é, Ar', aos filhos de Ló como "posse". (De 2:9, 18, 29) Isaías, na sua pronúncia de desolações contra Moabe, predisse que Ar seria "silenciada", junto com as outras cidades principais de Moabe. — Is 15:1.

Visto que o nome Ar provavelmente significa "Cidade", alguns sugerem que a "cidade de Moabe" (hebr.: 'ir Moh·'áv), mencionada em Números 22:36, e também a "cidade" de Deuteronômio 2:36, referem-se ambas a Ar.

ARA. Filho de Jeter, da tribo de Aser. — 1Cr 7:30, 38.

ARÁ.

1. Filho de Ula, da tribo de Aser. — 1Cr 7:30, 39.

2. Chefe duma família, cujos membros retornaram a Jerusalém, de Babilônia, junto com Zorobabel. (Esd 2:1, 2, 5; Ne 7:6, 7, 10) Pai, ou antepassado, de Secanias, sogro de Tobias, o amonita. — Ne 6:18.

ARÃ.

1. Último filho alistado dos cinco de Sem. Arã e seus quatro filhos, Uz, Hul, Géter e Más, constituíram 5 das 70 famílias pós-diluvianas, e seus descendentes eram os arameus e os sírios. — Gên 10:22, 23; 1Cr 1:17.

2. Filho de Quemuel e neto de Naor, sendo este último irmão de Abraão. Arã, portanto, era sobrinho-neto de Abraão e primo em segundo grau de Isaque. Rebeca, filha do tio de Arã, Betuel, era prima de Arã. A família de Naor não deixou a Mesopotâmia junto com Abraão, mas, anos depois, "Abraão recebeu a notícia" sobre a progênie de Naor, inclusive notícias sobre Arã. — Gên 22:20-23; 11:27, 31; 24:4, 10.

3. Um dos quatro "filhos de Semer" (Somer), da tribo de Aser, e alistado entre os "cabeças da casa dos seus antepassados, homens selecionados, poderosos, valentes, cabeças dos maiorais". (1Cr 7:31, 32, 34, 40) Tanto Arã como seu pai nasceram no Egito, visto que seu avô e seu bisavô foram contados entre a descendência de Jacó "que vieram ao Egito". — Gên 46:8, 17.

4. Na Versão Rei Jaime (em inglês) ocorre Arã (Aram; na Al: Arão) em Mateus 1:3, 4, e em Lucas 3:33. — Veja ARNI; RÃO N.º 1.

5. O nome Arã é usado em sentido geográfico, sozinho e em conjunto com outros termos, para referir-se às regiões em que se concentravam os descendentes de Arã (N.º 1).

Arã, usado sozinho, aplica-se basicamente à Síria, e, em geral, é traduzido assim. (Jz 10:6; 2Sa 8:6, 12; 15:8; Os 12:12) Incluía a região que ia desde as montanhas do Líbano até a Mesopotâmia, e dos montes Tauro, ao N, descendo até Damasco, e mais além no S. — Veja SÍRIA.

Arã-Naaraim (Sal 60:cab.) em geral é traduzido pela palavra grega "Mesopotamia" (Mesopotâmia), que se entende referir-se a uma "terra entre rios". Os dois rios eram o Eufrates e o Tigre. Estêvão fala de Abraão viver na Mesopotâmia, enquanto ainda estava em Ur dos Caldeus (At 7:2), e, quando enviou seu servo para procurar uma esposa para Isaque, muitos anos depois, Abraão lhe disse que fosse à cidade de Naor, na (Alta) Mesopotâmia (Arã-Naaraim). (Gên 24:2-4, 10) Balaão, de Petor, também era duma região montanhosa da parte setentrional da Mesopotâmia. — De 23:4; compare isso com Núm 23:7; veja MESOPOTÂMIA.

Padã-Arã é usado especialmente com referência à região ao redor da cidade de Harã, na Alta Mesopotâmia. — Gên 25:20; 28:2-7, 10; veja PADÃ.

Os arameus, descendentes semíticos de Arã, podiam ser encontrados em todas essas áreas. Adicionalmente, o nome de Uz, um dos quatro filhos de Arã, é aplicado à área do deserto da Arábia, ao L da Terra Prometida, chegando aos limites de Edom. (Jó 1:1; La 4:21) O aramaico, a língua dos arameus, era intimamente relacionado com o hebraico e, com o tempo, tornou-se língua internacional, tanto comercial como diplomática, em todas as regiões do Crescente Fértil. — 2Rs 18:26; veja ARAMAICO.

Foi, sem dúvida, graças a Jacó morar por 20 anos em Arã, junto com Labão, seu sogro arameu, que Deuteronômio 26:5 fala dele como "sírio" (literalmente, "arameu"). Adicionalmente, Rebeca, mãe de Jacó, era arameia, como também eram as esposas dele, Leia e Raquel. Os israelitas, portanto, eram realmente parentes próximos dos arameus.

Reinos Arameus. Os reinos arameus começam a ser mencionados no registro bíblico de forma contemporânea com o desenvolvimento da nação de Israel. Cusã-Risataim, rei de Arã-Naaraim (Mesopotâmia), subjugou Israel durante oito anos, até que o juiz Otniel a libertou. — Jz 3:8-10.

Arã-Zobá era um reino arameu mencionado como inimigo do governo de Saul (1117-1078 AEC). (1Sa 14:47) Parece ter estado situado ao N de Damasco e exercido domínio ao N até Hamate, e ao L até o Eufrates. Quando Davi combatia os inimigos de Israel, veio a entrar em conflito com Hadadezer, poderoso rei de Arã-Zobá, e o derrotou. (2Sa 8:3, 4; 1Cr 18:3; compare isso com Sal 60:cab.) Depois disso, o incursor arameu, Rezom, assumiu o poder em Damasco, e esta cidade logo se tornou a mais proeminente cidade arameia (1Rs 11:23-25) e "a cabeça da Síria". (Is 7:8) Como tal, manifestou hostilidade ativa contra Israel no decurso de toda a história do reino setentrional. — Veja DAMASCO.

Arã-Maacá é mencionado, junto com Zobá, Reobe e Istobe, como estando entre os reinos arameus dos quais os amonitas alugaram carros e cavaleiros para guerrear contra Davi. O rei de Arã-Maacá juntou-se a essas forças mercenárias que o exército de Davi logo conseguiu pôr em fuga. (1Cr 19:6-15; 2Sa 10:6-14) O reino de Maacá provavelmente se encontrava ao L do Jordão, com o monte Hermom ao seu lado N. — Jos 12:5; 13:11.

Gesur era um pequeno reino arameu ao L do Jordão e evidentemente logo abaixo de Maacá, estendendo-se seus limites S para baixo até o lado E do mar da Galileia. Como Maacá, encontrava-se no território designado à tribo de Manassés. — De 3:14; Jos 13:11; veja GESUR N.º 1.

Através da conquista dos reinos arameus por parte de Davi, ele estendeu os limites do seu reino bem para o N, de modo que atingia o rio Eufrates, não muito longe de Harã, de Padã-Arã. Ele cumpriu assim a promessa de Jeová com respeito à extensão da herança de Israel na Terra da Promessa. — De 1:7; 11:24; Jos 1:4.

Para obter informações adicionais sobre as relações de Israel com Arã, queira ver SÍRIA. Veja também ÁRÃ.

ÁRÃ. Filho do xeque Disã; descendente de Seir, o horeu. — Gên 36:20, 28; 1Cr 1:42.

ARABÁ [Planície Desértica]. Aquela parte da extraordinária depressão ou fossa tectônica que se estende para o S, desde as encostas do monte Hermom, aninha o mar da Galileia e o rio Jordão, cai muito abaixo do nível do mar para formar a bacia do Mar Morto, e então continua em direção S até o golfo de Acaba, no Mar Vermelho. — De 3:17; Jos 3:16; 11:16; Je 52:7.

Este vale extenso, estreito, na direção N-S, frequentemente seco e com poucas cidades, é limitado em ambos os lados por uma longa fileira de montanhas. Varia em largura de menos de 1 km até 16 km, e tem 435 km de extensão, devendo a sua existência a uma falha ou longa fenda na crosta terrestre. O Jordão serpenteia pela parte setentrional deste vale reto, e seu fluxo contínuo rega uma faixa verde pelo centro do fundo do vale. Contudo, ao sul do Mar Morto, o Arabá só é alimentado por torrentes sazonais, que são insuficientes para dar vida ao solo seco.

Alguns comentadores limitam a palavra "Arabá" àquela parte deste grande vale de abatimento tectônico que se encontra ao S do Mar Morto, mas ela se refere também à região que se estende para o N pelo menos até o mar da Galileia, ou Quinerete. (Jos 12:3; 2Sa 2:29) A parte deste vale ao N do Mar Morto se chama agora Gor, significando "Depressão", ao passo que a palavra "Arabá" é aplicada mais especificamente à região muito mais seca ao S.

O Mar Morto é chamado de "mar do Arabá". (De 3:17; 4:49; 2Rs 14:25) Sem o artigo definido, a palavra ʽara·váh também é usada em sentido geral e poderá ser corretamente traduzida por "planície desértica". O plural (ʽara·vóhth) é aplicado com frequência às planícies desérticas de Jericó e de Moabe, aquela parte do vale do Jordão logo ao N do Mar Morto. — Núm 22:1; 26:3, 63; 31:12; Jos 4:13; 5:10; Je 39:5.

ARABÁ, VALE DA TORRENTE DO. Em Amós 6:14, o profeta adverte os reinos de Judá e de Israel que o país será oprimido por uma potência estrangeira, desde "Hamate até o vale da torrente do Arabá [Planície Desértica]". (Veja 2Rs 14:25.) Embora o termo "Arabá" seja aplicado à região inteira do vale de abatimento tectônico, desde o mar da Galileia para baixo até o Mar Vermelho, aqui tem aplicação específica à região desde o S do Mar Morto para baixo até o golfo de Acaba. De modo que, embora a expressão "vale da torrente do Arabá" possa ter referência a um uádi tal como o vale da torrente de Zerede, que desemboca na extremidade S do Mar Morto ("o mar do Arabá", De 3:17), é notável que a expressão usada por Amós é o equivalente exato do nome árabe aplicado à região que se estende desde a extremidade S do Mar Morto até o golfo de Acaba, a saber, "uádi el-ʽArabah". A profecia de Amós indicava a invasão total da terra inteira antes controlada por Judá e Israel, de N a S. Durante o século seguinte, esta profecia teve cumprimento nas invasões de reis assírios, inclusive Tiglate-Pileser III, Salmaneser V, Sargão II e Senaqueribe.

ARABE [Emboscada]. Uma cidade nos montes de Judá, mencionada junto com Hébron, Dumá e outras cidades. (Jos 15:48, 52, 54) Ela é identificada com Khirbet er-Raniyeh, situada entre Dumá e Carmelo, a uns 12 km ao SO de Hébron. Paarai, o arbita (2Sa 23:35), evidentemente era desta cidade.

ÁRABE. O nome árabe, nas Escrituras, é usado principalmente em sentido amplo como aplicando-se a um habitante da Arábia, aquela terra imensa ao L e S da Palestina. Ocasionalmente, o contexto e o uso dão a entender uma tribo ou um grupo étnico específicos. — 1Rs 10:15; 2Cr 9:14; 21:16.

Diversas tribos árabes eram semíticas, descendendo de Sem através de Joctã; outras eram camíticas, descendendo de Cus, filho de Cã. (Gên 10:6, 7, 26-30) Alguns dos descendentes de Abraão por Agar e Quetura também foram morar na Arábia, tais como os filhos de Ismael que "passaram a residir desde Havilá, perto de Sur, que está defronte do Egito, até a Assíria". (Gên 25:1-4, 12-18) A descendência de Esaú, morando na região montanhosa de Seir, também passou a ser incluída na classificação geral de árabe. — Gên 36:1-43.

Na maior parte, os árabes eram um povo nômade, que levava uma vida pastoril, morando em tendas. (Is 13:20; Je 3:2) Outros, porém, eram comerciantes, e alguns são mencionados como mercadores de Tiro. (Ez 27:21) Os servos de Deus tinham muito contato com eles. Os mercadores midianitas, em caminho para o Egito, a quem foi vendido José, eram árabes, assim como os sabeus do S da Arábia, que pilharam o gado vacum e as jumentas de Jó. (Gên 37:28; Jó 1:1, 15) Durante os 40 anos da sua peregrinação no ermo, os israelitas tiveram um calamitoso contato com os midianitas que adoravam Baal (Núm 25:6, 14-18), e durante o período dos juízes, bandos de árabes montados em camelos assaltavam regularmente Israel durante sete anos, até que o juiz Gideão lhes infligiu uma severa derrota. — Jz 6:1-6; 7:12-25.

Governantes de reinos árabes pagavam tributo ao Rei Salomão. (1Rs 10:15; 2Cr 9:14) Os árabes pagavam a Jeosafá um tributo de 7.700 carneiros e um número equivalente de cabritos, mas depois se aliaram aos filisteus contra o filho e sucessor de Jeosafá, Jeorão, sendo que seus incursores mataram muitos dos filhos dele. (2Cr 17:11; 21:16; 22:1) Uzias travou com sucesso uma guerra contra eles, durante o seu reinado. (2Cr 26:1, 7) Havia opositores árabes entre aqueles que causavam dificuldades a Neemias durante a restauração das muralhas de Jerusalém. — Ne 2:19; 4:7, 8; 6:1.

Embora nômades, geralmente independentes e muitas vezes bastante isolados da principal corrente de atividades daqueles tempos, os árabes receberam atenção profética e julgamento da parte de Deus. (Is 21:13; Je 25:17-24) Séculos mais tarde, alguns árabes possivelmente se encontravam entre aqueles que se tornaram membros da primitiva congregação cristã em Pentecostes. — At 2:11, 41; veja ARÁBIA.

ARÁBIA. A península da Arábia faz parte do continente asiático em seu canto extremo SO. Confina ao L com o golfo Pérsico e com o golfo de Omã, no S com o mar Arábico e o golfo de Áden, e ao O com o Mar Vermelho, ao passo que o Crescente Fértil da Mesopotâmia, Síria e Israel se curva ao longo da sua extremidade setentrional. Cercada assim de água em três lados, assemelha-se, em parte, a uma ilha enorme, e é comumente chamada por seu povo de "Ilha dos Árabes" (Jazirat al-ʽarab).

Tendo uma área de uns 2.600.000 km², ou o equivalente de cerca de um terço da superfície terrestre dos Estados Unidos continentais, a Arábia é a maior península do mundo. A faixa costeira ocidental se estende por uns 2.900 km, e, no seu ponto mais largo, a península tem cerca de 1.900 km de largura.

A península consiste em um chapadão rochoso que se inclina para o oriente, em direção ao golfo Pérsico, a partir de seu espinhaço formado pela cadeia montanhosa que corre paralela à costa O. Um pico, no canto SO, atinge a altitude de mais de 3.600 m. Pelo interior da ponta meridional da península estende-se o grande deserto conhecido como Rub-al-Cáli, a faixa contínua mais vasta de região arenosa da terra, conhecida como a Região Vazia. Ao N do Nejd, ou planalto central, encontra-se a região desértica menor de An Nafud, que culmina no Deserto da Síria.

As pequenas correntes encontradas ao longo das extremidades da península e no elevado planalto central (ou Nejd) não são numerosas, e seu fluxo só se dá durante certas estações. Jó, que evidentemente morava no que hoje é a região do Deserto da Síria, descreve a secura de tais “torrentes hibernais”. — Jó 6:15-20.

Embora a maior parte deste vasto chapadão seja árida, ainda assim recebe suficiente chuva ao longo da cadeia ocidental de montanhas, no planalto central e no S, para sustentar considerável população. Ali, e ao redor dos maiores oásis, os felás, ou camponeses, podem produzir safras de milho-miúdo, trigo, cevada e milho, e aqui crescem tamareiras (Êx 15:27) e figueiras. Acácias, que produzem a goma resinosa conhecida como goma arábica, e outras árvores e plantas aromáticas constituíam uma das partes principais da antiga economia da Arábia, como o fazem em grau menor nos tempos modernos, sendo eclipsadas atualmente pelo ouro negro do petróleo. — Gên 2:12.

Por causa da escassez geral da água, a vida animal e as aves forçosamente são reduzidas, todavia, vivem hoje ali ovelhas, cabras, camelos, jumentos selvagens, chacais, falcões e águias, assim como viviam nos tempos bíblicos. (Ez 27:21; 2Cr 17:11; Jz 6:5; Jó 39:5-8, 26, 27; Is 60:7; 34:13) Alguns animais selváticos, tais como o leão, o touro selvagem e a avestruz, tornaram-se agora extintos neste território. (Jó 38:39, 40; 39:9-18) Cavalos árabes até hoje são famosos por sua beleza e sua robustez. — Compare com Jó 39:19-25.

Tribos Árabes. A Arábia, com o tempo, tornou-se lar de muitas das famílias pós-diluvianas alistadas em Gênesis, capítulo 10. No ramo semítico, Joctã tornou-se pai dos cabeças de cerca de 13 diferentes tribos árabes; ao passo que três descendentes de Arã, Uz, Géter e Más, parecem ter-se fixado na área N da Arábia e no Deserto da Síria. (Gên 10:23, 26-29) Os ismaelitas que habitavam em tendas estendiam-se desde a península do Sinai, através do N da Arábia e até à Assíria. (Gên 25:13-18) Os midianitas estavam principalmente situados na parte NO da Arábia, logo ao L do golfo de Acaba. (Gên 25:4) Os descendentes de Esaú tinham por base a região montanhosa de Edom, ao SE do Mar Morto. (Gên 36:8, 9, 40-43) Do ramo camita, vários descendentes de Cus, inclusive Havilá, Sabtá, Raamá, e seus filhos Sabá e Dedã, e Sabteca, parecem ter ocupado mormente a parte meridional da península arábica. — Gên 10:7.

Antigas inscrições assírias e babilônicas mencionam diversas tribos da Arábia. Salmaneser III alista “Gindibu’, da Arábia”. Zabibe e Samsi são mencionadas como rainhas árabes nas inscrições de Tiglate-Pileser III. Sargão II menciona “Samsi, rainha da Arábia (e) It’amar, o sabeu”. Outras inscrições cuneiformes mencionam os sabais, os nabais, os quidris e os idabailis, os massais e os temais. — Veja Gên 25:3, 13-15.

Referências Bíblicas. Hadramaute, um dos quatro antigos reinos da Arábia meridional, é usualmente identificado com Hazarmavete, de Gênesis 10:26. O uádi Hadramaute, um extenso vale paralelo à costa S da Arábia, era o centro do reino que tinha por capital Shabwa. Outros nomes bíblicos que aparecem como lugares da Arábia são Dedã, Tema, Dumá e Buz. — Is 21:11-14; Je 25:23, 24.

Abraão contornou a Arábia ao emigrar de Ur dos Caldeus para a terra de Canaã. Mais tarde, quando se viu obrigado a descer ao Egito, talvez tenha passado por parte da Arábia por atravessar a parte setentrional da península do Sinai (ao invés de seguir a rota ao longo da costa do Mediterrâneo), como também em sua viagem de volta. (Gên 12:10; 13:1) O drama do livro de Jó tem por cenário a terra de Uz, na Arábia setentrional (Jó 1:1), e os incursores sabeus que atacaram a propriedade deste “maior de todos os orientais” eram duma tribo árabe que talvez descendesse de Joctã. (Jó 1:3, 15; Gên 10:26-28) Os três “consoladores” de Jó e Eliú também parecem ter vindo de setores árabes. (Jó 2:11; 32:2) Moisés passou 40 anos na Arábia, quando peregrinava junto com o midianita Jetro. (Êx 2:15-3:1; At 7:29, 30) O próximo evento de grande importância que ocorreu na Arábia foi a realização do pacto da Lei no monte Sinai, na parte meridional da península do Sinai, onde a nação liberta de Israel se havia congregado. (Êx 19:1, 2) De modo que o apóstolo Paulo, uns 15 séculos mais tarde, referiu-se a esse evento como tendo ocorrido no “Sinai, um monte na Arábia”. — Gál 4:25.

Em vista da atual condição da Arábia em geral, o quadro de talvez uns três milhões de israelitas viverem durante 40 anos no ermo pode parecer quase que uma impossibilidade. (Êx 12:37, 38) O fator principal, naturalmente, era a provisão miraculosa de alimento e água, que Jeová lhes garantia. (De 8:2-4; Núm 20:7, 8) Embora as condições fossem patentemente difíceis, e a escassez de água seja obviamente indicada pelo relato bíblico (Núm 20:4, 5), há razão, contudo, de se crer que naquela época, cerca de 3.500 anos atrás, as reservas de água na Arábia fossem, até certo ponto, superiores às do tempo atual. A existência de muitos profundos uádis ou vales secos, que outrora eram leitos de rios, fornece evidência de que, em algum tempo no passado, havia suficiente chuva para produzir correntes de água que fluíssem através deles. O desaparecimento de certas formas de vida animal talvez se deva em parte à diminuição do suprimento de água. Todavia, basicamente, a Arábia era então exatamente o que é agora: uma terra árida, ou estepe.

Da Arábia, no período dos juízes, vieram bandos de midianitas, amalequitas e "orientais", montados em camelos, para saquear a terra de Israel. (Jz 6:1-6) Tais incursões predatórias ou invasões repentinas sempre foram o principal método de guerra na Arábia. (2Cr 22:1) O camelo, cuja domesticação se crê ter sido conseguida na Arábia, era usado como meio de transporte, pelo menos já desde o tempo de Abraão. (Gên 24:1-4, 10, 61, 64) Por causa da grande superioridade do camelo sobre o jumento nas longas viagens pelo deserto, considera-se que sua domesticação tenha resultado em algo parecido a uma revolução econômica para a Arábia, contribuindo para o desenvolvimento dos chamados "Reinos das Especiarias" da Arábia do Sul.

Caravanas de camelos, procedentes do S mais fértil, serpenteavam pelas rotas desérticas que corriam paralelas ao Mar Vermelho, avançando de um oásis para outro, e de um poço para outro, até que alcançavam a península do Sinai, ponto do qual podiam desviar-se em direção ao Egito ou continuar a subir até a Palestina ou Damasco. Além de suas altamente prezadas especiarias e resinas aromáticas, tais como o olíbano e a mirra (Is 60:6), talvez transportassem ouro e madeira de algum de Ofir (1Rs 9:28; 10:11), e pedras preciosas, como fez a rainha de Sabá em sua visita ao Rei Salomão. (1Rs 10:1-10, 15; 2Cr 9:1-9, 14) As águas do golfo Pérsico abundam em ostras perlíferas. Visto que o canto SO da Arábia está separado da África por um estreito de apenas uns 32 km de largura, os produtos da Etiópia (2Cr 21:16), tais como o marfim e o ébano, também podiam ter estado incluídos nas mercadorias desses comerciantes viajantes. — Ez 27:15.

Nabonido, rei babilônio, cujo filho Belsazar governava em Babilônia por ocasião da queda dela (539 AEC), passou dez anos na cidade-oásis de Taima (Tema), na parte setentrional do planalto central da Arábia. — Veja TEMA N.º 2.

Durante o quinto século AEC, a Palestina estava sujeita a uma considerável influência da Arábia, conforme se vê nas referências a "Gesém, o árabe", em Neemias 2:19 e 6:1-7.

O reino himiarita, que obteve controle sobre a Arábia do Sul por volta de 115 AEC, tinha por capital Zafar (que alguns sugerem ter sido a Sefar de Gênesis 10:30). Ao N, os nabateus (possivelmente descendentes do Nebaiote de Gênesis 25:13), com sua capital Petra, nas gargantas rochosas de Edom, tornaram-se poderosos, do quarto século AEC em diante. Com o tempo, estenderam seu controle sobre a parte S do Negebe, e para cima, por Moabe e pela região ao L do Jordão. Por alguns anos do primeiro século AEC, e, de novo, no primeiro século EC, governaram Damasco. Seu rei, Aretas IV (c. 9 AEC–40 EC) é mencionado em 2 Coríntios 11:32 com relação à fuga de Paulo de Damasco, descrita em Atos 9:23-25. Herodes Ântipas casou-se com a filha de Aretas IV, mas divorciou-se dela, a fim de se casar com Herodias. — Mr 6:17; veja ARETAS.

Paulo afirma que, depois de sua conversão, 'partiu para a Arábia e voltou novamente a Damasco'. (Gál 1:17) Esta viagem talvez fosse feita à região vizinha do deserto da Síria, embora o termo também permitisse que fosse em qualquer parte da península arábica.

No primeiro século AEC, Palmira, ao NE de Damasco, começou a desenvolver-se como centro árabe, e, com o tempo, ultrapassou Petra como estado comercial. Em 270 EC, sob a Rainha Zenóbia, o exército palmireno ocupou o Egito e se tornou sério rival de Roma, até ser derrotado em 272 EC.

Língua. A língua dos povos da Arábia faz parte do grupo semítico do sul e tem permanecido mais estável do que as outras línguas semíticas. Portanto, tem-se mostrado útil em aprimorar o entendimento de muitas expressões e palavras do hebraico antigo da Bíblia.

ARADE.

1. Um dos cabeças da tribo de Benjamim, que em certa época morava em Jerusalém. — 1Cr 8:15, 28.

2. Cidade na fronteira S de Canaã, cujo rei atacou Israel quando este se aproximou de Canaã. Os israelitas devotaram esse distrito à destruição e chamaram-no de "Hormá", que significa "Devotamento à Destruição". (Núm 21:1-3; 33:40) Todavia, não se estabeleceram então ali, e, evidentemente, alguns dos habitantes escaparam à destruição. Por isso, o rei de Arade está incluído na lista dos 31 reis mais tarde derrotados na campanha-relâmpago de Josué. (Jos 12:14) Os queneus estabeleceram-se mais tarde na região erma ao S de Arade. — Jz 1:16.

A Arade israelita é geralmente identificada com Tel ʽArad, uma das mais imponentes elevações na região do Negebe. Encontra-se numa planície levemente ondulada a uns 28 km ao L de Berseba. Escavações feitas em Tel ʽArad descobriram uns 200 óstracos, cerca da metade dos quais em hebraico e os demais em aramaico. Um destes fragmentos de cerâmica em hebraico, considerado ser da segunda metade do sétimo século AEC, reza: "Ao meu senhor Eliasibe: Que Jeová peça a tua paz . . . Ele mora na casa de Jeová." — FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 325.

Ruínas duma fortaleza em Tel ʽArad. Entre os óstracos hebraicos encontrados ali está um que menciona a “casa de Jeová”.

Em vista da ausência de posteriores restos cananeus em Tel ʽArad, Y. Aharoni sugere que a Arade cananeia se encontrava em Tell el-Milh (Tel Malhata), a 12 km ao SO de Tel ʽArad.

ARADO. Veja IMPLEMENTOS AGRÍCOLAS.

ARÃ-MAACÁ. Veja ARÃ N.º 5.

ARAMAICO. Antiga língua semítica, aparentada de perto ao hebraico e originalmente falada pelos arameus. (Veja ARÃ N.º 5.) Com o passar do tempo, porém, veio a abranger diversos dialetos (alguns deles tidos como línguas distintas) e gozou de amplo uso, em especial no SO da Ásia. Usava-se o aramaico especialmente desde o segundo milênio AEC até por volta de 500 EC. É uma das três línguas em que a Bíblia foi originalmente escrita. A palavra hebraica ʼAra·mith ocorre cinco vezes e é traduzida por “em sírio”, “na língua aramaica” ou “ao idioma aramaico”. — 2Rs 18:26; Is 36:11; Da 2:4; Esd 4:7 (duas vezes).

O aramaico bíblico, anteriormente chamado caldaico ou caldeu, é encontrado em Esdras 4:8 a 6:18, e 7:12-26; Jeremias 10:11; e Daniel 2:4b a 7:28. Expressões aramaicas aparecem também em outras partes da Bíblia, mas, muitas das tentativas de peritos de identificar fontes aramaicas para palavras hebraicas são simplesmente conjecturais.

O uso de algumas expressões aramaicas não surpreende, pois os hebreus tinham por muito tempo um contato íntimo com os arameus e com a língua aramaica. Entre as mais primitivas versões das Escrituras Hebraicas em outras línguas acham-se os Targuns aramaicos. Fragmentos de antigos Targuns de alguns livros têm sido achados entre os Rolos do Mar Morto.

A Língua. O aramaico e o hebraico são ambos classificados como pertencentes à família de línguas semíticas do noroeste. Embora o aramaico difira consideravelmente do hebraico, é uma língua cognata, que possui as mesmas letras em seu alfabeto, com os mesmos nomes que no hebraico. Assim como o hebraico, é escrito da direita para a esquerda, e, originalmente, a escrita aramaica era consonantal. No entanto, o aramaico empregado na Bíblia recebeu mais tarde pontos vocálicos por parte dos massoretas, assim como eles colocaram pontos vocálicos no hebraico. O aramaico foi influenciado por seu contato com outras línguas. O aramaico bíblico, além de conter vários nomes próprios hebraicos, acadianos e persas de localidades e de pessoas, demonstra influência hebraica nos termos religiosos, influência acadiana especialmente em termos políticos e financeiros, e influência persa em termos tais como os relacionados com assuntos políticos e jurídicos.

O aramaico, além de ter a mesma forma de escrita que o hebraico, possui similaridade com ele em suas flexões verbais, nominais e pronominais. Os verbos possuem dois estados, o imperfeito (indicando ação incompleta) e o perfeito (significando ação completada). O aramaico emprega substantivos no singular, no dual e no plural, e possui dois gêneros, o masculino e o feminino. Difere das outras línguas semíticas por demonstrar preferência pelo som vocálico a, e, de outros modos, inclusive certas preferências consonantais, tais como d para z, e t para sh.

Divisões básicas. O aramaico se divide geralmente em grupos ocidentais e orientais. No entanto, do ponto de vista histórico, tem-se reconhecido os seguintes quatro grupos: aramaico antigo, aramaico oficial, aramaico levantino e aramaico oriental. Tem-se sugerido que, provavelmente, falavam-se vários dialetos aramaicos na região do Crescente Fértil e da Mesopotâmia, e em torno dela, durante o segundo milênio AEC. Uma diferença entre as formas primitivas do aramaico e do hebraico pode ser observada em Gênesis 31:47. Depois de Jacó e Labão se terem reconciliado, ergueu-se um montão de pedras como testemunha entre eles. Labão o chamou de "Jegar-Saaduta" em aramaico (sírio), ao passo que Jacó o chamou de "Galeede", em hebraico, ambas as expressões significando "Montão de Testemunho".

Aramaico antigo é o nome aplicado a certas inscrições descobertas no norte da Síria, e que se diz datarem do décimo ao oitavo séculos AEC. Gradualmente, porém, um novo dialeto aramaico tornou-se a língua franca ou língua internacional auxiliar durante o tempo do Império Assírio, suplantando o acadiano como língua usada na correspondência governamental oficial com as regiões distantes do império. Em vista de seu uso, esta forma padrão de aramaico é chamada de aramaico oficial. Continuou a ser empregada no tempo em que Babilônia era a potência mundial (625-539 AEC), e depois disso, durante o tempo do Império Persa (538-331 AEC). Especialmente então, gozou de amplo uso, sendo a língua oficial do governo e do comércio numa ampla região, conforme atestam as descobertas arqueológicas. Aparece em registros feitos em tabuinhas cuneiformes; em óstracos, papiros, selos, moedas; em inscrições em pedra, e assim por diante. Esses artefatos têm sido encontrados em terras tais como a Mesopotâmia, a Pérsia, o Egito, a Anatólia, o norte da Arábia; em regiões tão ao N como os montes Urais; e ao L, em lugares tão distantes como o Afeganistão e o Curdistão. O uso do aramaico oficial continuou durante o período helenístico (323-30 AEC).

Parece que é este aramaico oficial que é encontrado nos escritos de Esdras, de Jeremias e de Daniel. As Escrituras também fornecem evidência de que o aramaico era uma língua franca daqueles tempos antigos. Assim, no oitavo século AEC, porta-vozes designados pelo Rei Ezequias, de Judá, apelaram para Rabsaqué, representante do rei assírio Senaqueribe, dizendo: "Por favor, fala aos teus servos em sírio [arameu, portanto, em aramaico], pois estamos escutando; e não nos fales no idioma judaico, aos ouvidos do povo que está sobre a muralha." (Is 36:11; 2Rs 18:26) Os oficiais de Judá entendiam aramaico, ou sírio, mas, evidentemente, naquele tempo, este não era entendido pelo povo comum entre os hebreus em Jerusalém.

Alguns anos depois de os judeus terem voltado do exílio babilônico, Esdras, o sacerdote, leu o livro da Lei para os judeus reunidos em Jerusalém, e diversos levitas o explicaram ao povo, Neemias 8:8 declarando: "Continuaram a ler alto no livro, na lei do verdadeiro Deus, fornecendo-se esclarecimento e dando-se o sentido dela; e continuaram a tornar a leitura compreensível." Esta exposição ou interpretação talvez envolvesse a paráfrase do texto hebraico em aramaico, os hebreus tendo possivelmente adotado o aramaico enquanto em Babilônia. Sem dúvida, a exposição envolveu também um esclarecimento, para que os judeus, mesmo que compreendessem o hebraico, discernissem o profundo significado do que era lido.

Que Língua Falava Jesus? Nesta questão há uma considerável diferença de opinião entre os peritos. Entretanto, quanto às línguas usadas na Palestina na época em que Jesus Cristo estava na terra, o Professor G. Ernest Wright declara: "Podiam-se ouvir, indubitavelmente, várias línguas nas ruas das grandes cidades. O grego e o aramaico eram, evidentemente, as línguas comuns, e a maioria das populações urbanas podia provavelmente entender a ambas, mesmo em cidades 'modernas', ou 'ocidentais', tais como Cesareia e Samaria, onde o grego era mais comum. Podiam-se ouvir soldados e oficiais romanos conversarem em latim, ao passo que judeus ortodoxos bem que podiam falar uma variedade posterior de hebraico, uns com os outros, língua que conhecemos não ser nem o hebraico clássico, nem o aramaico, apesar de suas similaridades com ambos." Comentando ainda mais a língua falada por Jesus Cristo, o Professor Wright diz: "Tem-se debatido muito qual era a língua falada por Jesus. Não dispomos de meio seguro de saber se ele sabia falar grego ou latim, mas, em seu ministério de ensino, ele usava regularmente quer o aramaico, quer o hebraico popular, altamente aramaizado. Quando Paulo falou a uma turba no Templo, diz-se que ele falou hebraico (Atos 21:40). Os peritos, em geral, consideram isto como significando o aramaico, mas, é bem possível que um hebraico popular fosse então a língua comum entre os judeus." — Biblical Archaeology (Arqueologia Bíblica), 1962, p. 243.

É possível que Jesus e seus primeiros discípulos, tais como o apóstolo Pedro, pelo menos às vezes falassem o aramaico galileu, dizendo-se a Pedro, na noite em que Cristo foi preso: "Tu certamente és também um deles, pois, de fato, o teu dialeto te trai." (Mt 26:73) Talvez se dissesse isto porque o apóstolo usava na ocasião o aramaico galileu, embora não haja certeza disso, ou talvez falasse em hebraico galileu, num dialeto diferente do usado em Jerusalém ou em outras partes da Judeia. Anteriormente, quando Jesus veio a Nazaré, na Galileia, e entrou na sinagoga ali, ele leu da profecia de Isaías, evidentemente conforme escrita em hebraico, e então disse: "Hoje se cumpriu esta escritura que acabais de ouvir." Não se diz nada sobre Jesus traduzir este trecho para o aramaico. De modo que é provável que, nesta ocasião, os presentes podiam prontamente entender o hebraico bíblico. (Lu 4:16-21) Pode-se também notar que Atos 6:1, referindo-se a uma ocasião pouco depois de Pentecostes de 33 EC, menciona judeus de língua grega e judeus de língua hebraica em Jerusalém.

O Professor Harris Birkeland (The Language of Jesus [A Língua de Jesus], Oslo, 1954, pp. 10, 11) salienta que ser o aramaico a língua escrita da Palestina quando Jesus estava na terra não significa, necessariamente, que fosse falado pelas massas. Também, o fato de os Papiros Elefantinos pertencentes a uma colônia judaica no Egito terem sido escritos em aramaico tampouco prova que esta era a língua principal ou comum na sua pátria, porque o aramaico era então uma língua literária internacional. Naturalmente, as Escrituras Gregas Cristãs contêm vários aramaísmos; por exemplo, Jesus usou algumas palavras aramaicas. Todavia, conforme Birkeland argumenta, talvez comumente Jesus falasse o hebraico popular, ocasionalmente usando expressões aramaicas.

Embora talvez não seja possível provar, conforme Birkeland contende, que o povo comum era iletrado no que se referia ao aramaico, deveras parece que, quando Lucas, médico instruído, registra que Paulo falou aos judeus 'em hebraico', e que, quando o apóstolo disse que a voz do céu falou-lhe 'em hebraico', realmente se referisse a uma forma do hebraico (embora talvez não ao hebraico antigo) e não ao aramaico. — At 22:2; 26:14.

Dando apoio adicional a que se usava uma forma do hebraico na Palestina quando Jesus Cristo estava na terra, há antigos indícios de que o apóstolo Mateus escreveu seu relato evangélico primeiro em hebraico. Por exemplo, Eusébio (do terceiro e quarto séculos EC) disse que "o evangelista Mateus transmitiu seu Evangelho na língua hebraica". (Patrologia Graeca [Patrologia Grega], Vol. XXII, col. 941) E Jerônimo (do quarto e quinto séculos EC) declara na sua obra De viris inlustribus (A Respeito de Homens Ilustres), capítulo III: "Mateus, também chamado Levi, e que de publicano se tornou apóstolo, primeiro de tudo produziu um Evangelho de Cristo na Judeia, na língua e nos caracteres hebraicos, para o benefício dos da circuncisão que haviam crido. . . . Ademais, o próprio em hebraico está preservado até hoje na biblioteca de Cesareia, que o mártir Pânfilo ajuntou tão diligentemente." (Tradução do texto latino editado por E. C. Richardson e publicado na série "Texte und Untersuchungen zur Geschichte der altchristlichen Literatur", Leipzig, 1896, Vol. 14, pp. 8, 9.) Portanto, Jesus Cristo, como homem na terra, podia muito bem ter usado uma forma de hebraico e um dialeto de aramaico. — Veja HEBRAICO.

ARAMEU. Veja ARÃ N.º 1 e 5.

ARÃ-NAARAIM. Veja ARÃ N.º 5.

ARANHA [hebr.: 'ak·ka·vísh]. Pequeno animal de oito patas, sem asas, que, segundo uma estrita definição biológica, não é inseto, mas aracnídeo.

A maioria das aranhas tece teias para capturar sua presa. As aranhas, em geral, têm três pares de fiandeiras, ou órgãos de fiar, situadas na parte traseira, inferior, do abdome. Estas estão ligadas às glândulas de seda dentro do corpo da aranha por meio de muitos pequeníssimos tubos. Ao ser expelida pelas fiandeiras, a seda líquida endurece e vira um fio delicado de seda. Juntando as suas fiandeiras, a aranha pode produzir um fio grosso. Produz uma fita de fios finos quando os órgãos de fiar são mantidos separados.

A teia, diferindo segundo a variedade de aranha que a produz, é bela em simetria e complexa em desenho. Em intervalos equidistantes nos fios de seda há gotas pegajosas, também produzidas pela aranha. Depois de ter esticado um fio entre dois pontos e o ter recoberto de seda viscosa, a aranha puxa o fio para baixo e o solta como um elástico. Isto resulta num espacejamento equidistante de gotículas pegajosas. O fio pegajoso serve para capturar a presa da aranha.

Nas suas duas ocorrências nas Escrituras, a aranha figura num cenário ilustrativo. Bildade, ao falar a Jó, referiu-se a um apóstata como alguém que confia ou se estriba numa "casa [ou teia] de aranha", algo frágil demais para mantê-lo de pé. (Jó 8:14, 15) As obras prejudiciais e violentas dos israelitas infiéis são assemelhadas ao tecer teia de aranha. No entanto, tais infiéis nunca poderiam cobrir-se com as suas obras, assim como uma teia de aranha seria inadequada para uma vestimenta. — Is 59:5, 6.

ARÃO. Filho de Anrão e Joquebede, da tribo de Levi, nasceu no Egito em 1597 AEC. Levi era bisavô de Arão. (Êx 6:13, 16-20) Miriã era sua irmã mais velha e Moisés era seu irmão três anos mais moço. (Êx 2:1-4; 7:7) Arão casou-se com Eliseba, filha de Aminadabe, e teve quatro filhos, Nadabe, Abiú, Eleazar e Itamar. (Êx 6:23) Morreu em 1474 AEC, aos 123 anos. — Núm 33:39.

Devido à relutância de Moisés, por achar difícil falar com fluência, Jeová designou Arão para atuar como porta-voz de Moisés perante Faraó, dizendo a respeito de Arão: "Sei deveras que ele pode realmente falar." Arão foi encontrar-se com Moisés junto ao monte Sinai e foi informado das propor-ções de longo alcance do programa de ação, divinamente delineado, que envolvia Israel e o Egito, e os irmãos viajaram então juntos de volta ao Egito. — Êx 4:14-16, 27-30.

Arão começou então a servir de "boca" para Moisés, falando por ele aos anciãos de Israel e realizando sinais milagrosos como prova da origem divina das mensagens deles. Quando chegou o tempo de se apresentarem na corte de Faraó, Arão, com 83 anos, como porta-voz de Moisés, teve de enfrentar aquele governante arrogante. Conforme Jeová disse posteriormente a Moisés: "Vê, eu te fiz Deus para Faraó, e Arão, teu próprio irmão, se tornará teu profeta." (Êx 7:1, 7) Foi Arão quem realizou o primeiro sinal milagroso perante Faraó e seus sacerdotes-magos; e, mais tarde, às ordens de Moisés, foi Arão quem estendeu o bastão de Moisés e assinalou o início das Dez Pragas. (Êx 7:9-12, 19, 20) Ele continuou a trabalhar em coordenação unida com Moisés e em obediência a Deus durante as pragas sucessivas, até que finalmente veio a libertação. Nisto era um bom exemplo para os cristãos que servem como "embaixadores, substituindo a Cristo, como se Deus instasse por nosso intermédio". — Êx 7:6; 2Co 5:20.

A atividade de Arão como porta-voz de Moisés evidentemente diminuiu nos 40 anos de peregrinação pelo ermo, visto que o próprio Moisés parece ter falado mais. (Êx 32:26-30; 34:31-34; 35:1, 4) O bastão também retornou às mãos de Moisés depois da terceira praga. E, na batalha de Amaleque, Arão, junto com Hur, meramente sustentaram os braços de Moisés. (Êx 9:23; 17:9, 12) No entanto, Jeová geralmente continuou a associar Arão com Moisés ao dar instruções, e eles são mencionados como agindo e falando juntos, até a morte de Arão. — Núm 20:6-12.

Arão, em sua posição subordinada, não acompanhou Moisés ao cume do monte Sinai para receber o pacto da Lei, mas, permitiu-se-lhe, junto com dois de seus filhos e 70 dos anciãos da nação, subir ao monte e contemplar uma visão magnificente da glória de Deus. (Êx 24:9-15) No pacto da Lei, Arão e sua casa receberam menção honrosa, e Deus designou Arão para a posição de sumo sacerdote. — Êx 28:1-3.

Sumo Sacerdote. Por meio duma cerimônia de investidura de sete dias, Arão foi investido em seus sagrados deveres por Moisés, como agente de Deus, e seus quatro filhos também foram empossados como subsacerdotes. Moisés vestiu Arão de belas vestes de materiais de ouro, azuis, púrpuras e escarlates, inclusive ombreiras e um peitoral adornado com pedras preciosas de diversas cores. Sobre a cabeça dele foi colocado um turbante de linho fino. Presa a este havia uma lâmina de ouro puro, estando gravadas nela as palavras: "A santidade pertence a Jeová." (Le 8:7-9; Êx 28) Arão foi então ungido da maneira descrita no Salmo 133:2, e depois disso podia ser chamado de ma·shí·ahh, ou messias (khri·stós, LXX), isto é, o "ungido". — Le 4:5, 16; 6:22.

Arão não só foi colocado como encarregado de todo o sacerdócio, mas também foi declarado divinamente como aquele de cuja linhagem ou casa deveriam provir todos os futuros sumos sacerdotes. Todavia, o próprio Arão não recebera o sacerdócio por herança, e, assim, o apóstolo Paulo podia dizer a respeito dele: "O homem não se arroga esta honra por si mesmo, mas apenas quando é chamado por Deus, assim como também Arão foi. Assim, também, o Cristo não se glorificou a si mesmo por se tornar sumo sacerdote, mas foi glorificado por aquele que falou com referência a ele: 'Tu és meu filho; hoje eu me tornei teu pai.'" (He 5:4, 5) Paulo, depois disso, demonstra o modo em que o cargo sacerdotal, primeiro ocupado por Arão, foi típico do ocupado por Cristo Jesus como sumo sacerdote superior e celestial. Em vista disso, as funções sacerdotais do alto cargo de Arão assumem um significado adicional para nós. — He 8:1-6; 9:6-14, 23-28.

Arão, como sumo sacerdote, era responsável por dirigir todos os aspectos da adoração no tabernáculo e por supervisionar a obra dos milhares de levitas empenhados neste serviço. (Núm 3:5-10) No anual Dia da Expiação, ele apresentava as ofertas pelo pecado a favor do sacerdócio e dos levitas, e a favor do povo de Israel, e só ele tinha permissão de entrar no Santíssimo do tabernáculo com o sangue sacrificial dos animais. (Le 16) As ofertas diárias de incenso, a apresentação das primícias da colheita de cereais, e muitos outros aspectos da adoração eram prerrogativas exclusivas de Arão e de seus filhos como sacerdotes. (Êx 30:7, 8; Lu 1:8-11; Le 23:4-11) Sua unção, porém, santificava-o para realizar não somente deveres sacrificiais em prol da nação, mas também outros deveres. Ele era responsável por ensinar à nação a Palavra de Deus. (Le 10:8-11; De 24:8; Mal 2:7) Ele, assim como seus sucessores, servia como principal encarregado sob Jeová, o Rei. Por ocasião de grandes eventos estatais, ele usava as vestes caras e a "lâmina lustrosa" de ouro no seu turbante de linho. Usava também o peitoral que continha o Urim e o Tumim, habilitando-o a receber o "Sim" ou o "Não" de Jeová a respeito de problemas nacionais; todavia, durante a vida e a mediação de Moisés, esta particularidade parece ter tido pouco uso. — Êx 28:4, 29, 30, 36; veja SUMO SACERDOTE.

A devoção de Arão à adoração pura foi cedo colocada à prova pela morte de seus filhos Nadabe e Abiú, que sofreram a destruição da parte de Deus por utilizarem de forma profana suas posições sacerdotais. O registro diz: "E Arão ficou quieto." Quando ele e seus dois filhos sobreviventes foram instruídos a não prantearem os transgressores mortos, 'fizeram segundo as palavras de Moisés'. — Le 10:1-11.

Durante quase 40 anos, Arão representou as 12 tribos perante Jeová na qualidade de sumo sacerdote. Enquanto no ermo, irrompeu uma séria rebelião contra a autoridade de Moisés e Arão. Foi liderada por um levita chamado Corá, junto com os rubenitas Datã, Abirão e Om, que se queixaram da liderança deles. Jeová fez com que a terra se abrisse sob as tendas de Corá, Datã e Abirão, tragando-os junto com as suas famílias, ao passo que o próprio Corá e 250 de seus coconspiradores foram destruídos por fogo. (Núm 16:1-35) Irrompeu então uma murmuração por parte da congregação contra Moisés e Arão; e, na praga divina que se seguiu, Arão mostrou grande fé e coragem ao sair obedientemente com seu porta-lume e fazer expiação pelo povo, enquanto "ficou de pé entre os mortos e os vivos", até que cessou o flagelo. — Núm 16:46-50.

Deus ordenou então que 12 bastões, cada um representando uma das 12 tribos, fossem colocados no tabernáculo, e o bastão para a tribo de Levi recebeu a inscrição do nome de Arão. (Núm 17:1-4) No dia seguinte, Moisés entrou na tenda do Testemunho e verificou que o bastão de Arão produzira botões, brotara flores e dera amêndoas maduras. (Núm 17:8) Isto estabeleceu, além de dúvida, a escolha dos filhos levitas de Arão, por parte de Jeová, para o serviço sacerdotal, e Sua autorização para Arão ser sumo sacerdote. Depois disso, o direito da casa de Arão ao sacerdócio jamais foi seriamente questionado. O bastão com botões, de Arão, foi colocado na Arca do Pacto, como "sinal para os filhos da rebeldia", embora pareça que, depois da morte destes rebeldes e da entrada da nação na Terra da Promessa, o bastão foi removido, tendo cumprido sua finalidade. — Núm 17:10; He 9:4; 2Cr 5:10; 1Rs 8:9.

Por que não foi Arão punido por fazer o bezerro de ouro?

Apesar de sua posição privilegiada, Arão tinha suas falhas. Durante a primeira permanência de Moisés no monte Sinai, por 40 dias, "o povo se congregou em volta de Arão e lhe disse: 'Levanta-te, faze para nós um deus que vá adiante de nós, pois quanto a este Moisés, o homem que nos fez subir da terra do Egito, certamente não sabemos o que lhe aconteceu' ". (Êx 32:1) Arão anuiu e cooperou com eles em fazer a estátua dum bezerro de ouro. (Êx 32:2-6) Mais tarde, quando confrontado por Moisés, deu uma desculpa fraca. (Êx 32:22-24) No entanto, Jeová não o apontou como o principal malfeitor, mas disse a Moisés: "Portanto, deixa-me agora, para que a minha ira se acenda contra eles e eu os extermine." (Êx 32:10) Moisés fez um apelo a Jeová a favor do povo e, especificamente, a favor de Arão. Daí, ele provocou uma manifestação sobre o assunto, por clamar: "Quem está do lado de Jeová? A mim!" (Êx 32:11, 26; De 9:20) Todos os filhos de Levi responderam positivamente, e isto sem dúvida incluiu Arão. Três mil idólatras, provavelmente os principais instigadores, foram mortos por eles. (Êx 32:28) Todavia, Moisés mais tarde lembrou aos remanescentes do povo que eles também tinham culpa. (Êx 32:30) Então Arão não foi o único a obter a misericórdia de Deus. Suas ações subsequentes indicam que ele não concordara de coração com o movimento idólatra, mas simplesmente cedera à pressão dos rebeldes. (Êx 32:35) Jeová mostrou que Arão tinha recebido Seu perdão por manter válida a designação de Arão como sumo sacerdote. — Êx 40:12, 13.

Depois de ter lealmente apoiado seu irmão mais moço em muitas experiências difíceis, e de ter sido recentemente empossado como sumo sacerdote por Moisés como representante de Deus, Arão juntou-se tolamente a sua irmã, Miriã, em criticar Moisés por seu casamento com uma cusita, e em desafiar a relação e a posição ímpares de Moisés com Jeová Deus, dizendo: "É somente por meio de Moisés que Jeová falou? Não falou também por meio de nós?" (Núm 12:1, 2) Jeová agiu prontamente, trouxe os três diante de si, em frente da tenda de reunião, e puniu severamente Arão e Miriã por desrespeitarem a designação de Deus. O fato de que apenas Miriã foi afligida de lepra pode apontá-la como instigadora dessa ação, e pode indicar que Arão de novo mostrara fraqueza por se deixar induzir a juntar-se a ela. Não obstante, se Arão tivesse sido similarmente afligido de lepra, isso teria invalidado sua designação como sumo sacerdote, segundo a lei de Deus. (Le 21:21-23) Sua correta atitude de coração se manifestou por sua imediata confissão e pedido de desculpas pela tolice de seu ato, e por sua súplica desesperada em prol da intercessão de Moisés em favor da leprosa Miriã. — Núm 12:10-13.

Arão de novo teve parte na responsabilidade pelo erro quando ele, junto com Moisés, deixou de santificar e honrar a Deus perante a congregação no incidente que envolvia prover água em Meribá, em Cades. Por tal ação, Deus decretou que nenhum dos dois teria o privilégio de levar a nação para a Terra da Promessa. — Núm 20:9-13.

No primeiro dia do mês de ab, no 40.º ano após o Êxodo, a nação de Israel estava acampada na fron-teira de Edom, diante do monte Hor. Em questão de meses atravessariam o Jordão; mas não Arão, de 123 anos. Segundo instruções de Jeová, com todo o acampamento observando, Arão, seu filho Eleazar e Moisés subiram ao cume do monte Hor. Ali Arão deixou que seu irmão removesse dele suas vestes sacerdotais e as colocasse no seu filho e sucessor como sumo sacerdote, Eleazar. Daí Arão morreu. Foi provavelmente sepultado ali por seu irmão e seu filho, e, por 30 dias, Israel pranteou a sua morte. — Núm 20:24-29.

É digno de nota que, em cada um dos seus três desvios, Arão não aparece como o principal iniciador da ação errada, mas, antes, parece ter permitido que a pressão das circunstâncias ou a influência de outros o desviasse dum proceder de retidão. Especialmente na sua primeira transgressão, poderia ter aplicado o princípio subentendido na ordem: "Não deves acompanhar a multidão para maus objetivos." (Êx 23:2) Sem embargo, seu nome é posteriormente usado nas Escrituras de modo honroso, e o Filho de Deus, durante sua vida terrestre, reconheceu a legitimidade do sacerdócio arônico. — Sal 115:10, 12; 118:3; 133:1, 2; 135:19; Mt 5:17-19; 8:4.

Descendentes Sacerdotais de Arão. A expressão "aronitas" aparece nas versões Rei Jaime e Moffat (em inglês) em 1 Crônicas 12:27; 27:17, e neste último texto também na versão Almeida atualizada. (O texto massorético, em hebraico, simplesmente usa o nome Arão. LXX [edição de Lagarde, em 1Cr 12:27] diz "dos filhos de Arão".) É evidente que a palavra "Arão" aqui é usada em sentido coletivo, parecido ao uso do nome Israel, e representa a casa de Arão ou seus descendentes masculinos, no tempo de Davi, que eram da tribo de Levi e serviam como sacerdotes. (1Cr 6:48-53) A Tradução do Novo Mundo reza: "E Jeoiada era o líder [dos filhos] de Arão, e com ele havia três mil e setecentos" (1Cr 12:27), colocando entre colchetes as palavras "dos filhos", para indicar que foram adicionadas. — Veja ARÃ N.º 4.

ARAR (LAVRAR). As conclusões sobre o tipo de arado usado pelos lavradores hebreus nos tempos bíblicos dependem de antigas ilustrações de arados usados em terras vizinhas e de arados usados em tempos recentes por alguns lavradores árabes. Alguns arados consistiam num simples pedaço pontudo de madeira, talvez com ponta de metal, preso a uma viga e puxado por um animal ou animais. Com o uso de tal tipo de arado, provavelmente apenas se cortava a superfície do solo sem revirá-lo. Naturalmente, a falta de evidência direta impede que se exclua a possibilidade de terem sido usados em Israel arados mais substanciais.

Com o solo endurecido pelo sol quente do verão, era costumeiro adiar a aração até que as chuvas do outono ou do inverno setentrionais amolecessem o solo. O solo era então arado e semeado. Os dias mais frios, ou épocas de tempo instável ou de nuvens ameaçadoras, não deteriam a pessoa varonil de seu trabalho na época de lavoura, mas o lavrador preguiçoso aproveitaria isso como desculpa para evitar o trabalho. Seus vizinhos não teriam motivos para condoer-se dele quando não colhia nada, devido à sua preguiça na época de arar. (Pr 20:4; Ec 11:4) Mesmo na época de lavoura, porém, os lavradores israelitas tinham de guardar o sábado. — Êx 34:21.

No mesmo arado não se devia jungir juntos um touro e um jumento, sem dúvida por causa da desigualdade de sua força e passo. (De 22:10) Frequentemente, uma junta de gado puxava o arado. (Lu 14:19; Jó 1:14) Vários homens, cada um com uma junta ou parelha de bovinos, talvez trabalhassem juntos, arando fileiras paralelas, um atrás do outro. No caso de Eliseu, conforme relatado em 1 Reis 19:19, ele era o 12.º e último, de modo que pôde parar sem perturbar outros que o seguissem. Ele deixou o campo e usou seus implementos de arar, de madeira, como lenha para oferecer os touros como sacrifício. (1Rs 19:21) Em The Land and the Book (A Terra e o Livro, revisado por J. Grande, 1910, p. 121), W. M. Thomson relata que um único homem podia facilmente semear a área lavrada por um grupo de homens.

Uso Ilustrativo. O trabalho familiar de arar foi frequentemente usado como base para ilustrações. Quando os filisteus convenceram a esposa de Sansão a conseguir dele a resposta para seu enigma, Sansão disse que eles haviam 'lavrado com sua novilha', isto é, tinham usado para lhes servir alguém que deveria estar servindo a ele. (Jz 14:15-18) Um rochedo não é lugar para se lavrar, e, como mostra Amós, era igualmente irracional que os líderes de Israel corrompessem a justiça e praticassem a injustiça, e ainda assim esperassem derivar benefícios de tal proceder. (Am 6:12, 13) Oseias 10:11 evidentemente utiliza o arar (um trabalho muito mais duro para uma novilha do que o trilhar) como representando o trabalho estrênuo ou de escravo, provavelmente imposto por opressores estrangeiros, que sobreviria ao Judá apóstata. O que Judá e Israel precisavam, segundo Jeremias 4:3, 4, e Oseias 10:12, 13, era mudar de modo de vida, preparando, abrandando e purificando seu coração (veja Lu 8:5-15), como que por arar e remover espinhos, de modo que, ao invés de desperdiçar seus esforços e seu trabalho em práticas erradas que só trazem uma colheita ruim, pudessem antes colher bênçãos divinas.

A descrição dos métodos ordeiros, objetivos e criteriosos de o lavrador arar, gradar, semear e trilhar é usada em Isaías 28:23-29 para ilustrar os modos de Jeová, que é "maravilhoso no conselho, que tem agido grandiosamente em trabalho eficiente". Assim como arar e gradar são trabalhos limitados, sendo simplesmente preparatórios para a semeadura, assim, também, Jeová não disciplina ou pune para sempre Seu povo, mas o disciplina primariamente para abrandá-lo e torná-lo dócil para receber Seu conselho e Sua orientação, que produzem bênçãos. (Veja He 12:4-11.) Assim como a dureza do solo governa a extensão ou a intensidade da lavra, assim também o tipo de grão determina a força e o peso dos instrumentos usados na debulha, para eliminar a palha, tudo isso ilustrando a sabedoria de Deus em purificar seu povo e em livrá-lo do que é indesejável, variando seu tratamento conforme as necessidades e as circunstâncias. — Veja Is 21:10; 1:25.

Uma cidade "lavrada como mero campo" significava uma cidade completamente derrotada e devastada. (Je 26:18; Miq 3:12) Falar Israel daqueles que haviam 'arado sobre as minhas próprias costas, prolongando os seus sulcos', evidentemente descreve os sofrimentos da nação sob seus muitos inimigos, os quais implacável e cruelmente a assolaram e maltrataram, à medida que Israel tornava suas costas "como a terra . . . para os que atravessavam". (Sal 129:1-3; Is 51:23; compare isso com Sal 66:12.) Na profecia de restauração, em Amós 9:13-15, mostra-se que a bênção de Jeová torna o solo tão produtivo, que a colheita ainda está em andamento quando chega a época de se arar para a próxima estação. — Veja Le 26:5.

Assim como Jesus dissera que seus discípulos deviam aceitar alimento, bebida e abrigo daqueles a quem serviam, visto que "o trabalhador é digno de seu salário", assim também o apóstolo Paulo sustentou o direito daqueles que trabalham no ministério cristão, de receberem apoio material de outros, assim como o homem que ara o faz na esperança legítima de ser partícipe da colheita para a qual o seu trabalho contribuiu. Todavia, Paulo, pessoal e voluntariamente, preferiu não se aproveitar de tal direito de abster-se do trabalho secular, a fim de prover "as boas novas sem custo" àqueles a quem ele ministrava. — Lu 10:7; 1Co 9:3-10, 15, 17, 18.

Jesus Cristo se referiu à obra de arar para destacar a importância do empenho no discipulado de todo o coração. Quando um homem expressou seu desejo de ser discípulo, mas estipulou a condição de lhe ser permitido primeiro despedir-se da família, Jesus replicou: "Ninguém que tiver posto a mão num arado e olhar para as coisas atrás é bem apto para o reino de Deus." (Lu 9:61, 62) Caso um lavrador se permitisse desviar sua atenção do trabalho à frente, ele faria sulcos tortos. Similarmente, a pessoa convidada para ser discípulo cristão, mas que se deixa desviar do cumprimento das responsabilidades acompanhantes, tornar-se-ia inapta para o Reino de Deus. Conforme o Filho de Deus exemplificou no seu próprio caso, até mesmo os mais íntimos vínculos familiares estão subordinados à fidelidade no cumprimento da vontade divina. — Mr 3:31-35; 10:29, 30.

ARARATE. Nome dado a uma região de fronteira entre a Turquia, o Irã e a Armênia. Esse nome também é atribuído a uma cadeia de montanhas localizada ali.

Após o Dilúvio, a arca de Noé pousou sobre os "montes de Ararate". (Gên 8:4) No reinado do Rei Ezequias, foi para a "terra de Ararate" que os filhos de Senaqueribe, Adrameleque e Sarezer, fugiram, depois de assassinarem seu pai. (2Rs 19:37; Is 37:38) Jeremias predisse que Ararate estaria entre os "reinos" que viriam contra Babilônia no tempo da destruição dela, no sexto século AEC. (Je 51:27) Estas últimas referências bíblicas indicam uma terra ao N da Assíria. Eusébio e Jerônimo, e a maioria dos outros primitivos escritores "cristãos", consideravam Ararate como equivalente da Armênia, e as traduções da Septuaginta grega de Isaías 37:38 e da Vulgata latina de 2 Reis 19:37 assim a representam. Numerosas inscrições assírias, dos reinados de Salmaneser I, Assurnasirpal II, Salmaneser III, Tiglate-Pileser III e Sargão II, no nono e oitavo séculos AEC, fazem referência a Ararate como "Urartu". Uma inscrição de Esar-Hadom, outro filho de Senaqueribe e sucessor no trono assírio, diz que derrotou os exércitos de seus irmãos parricidas em Hanigalbat, na região da Armênia. À base de tais inscrições, e da associação feita por Jeremias de Ararate com os reinos de Mini e Asquenaz, parece que a terra de Ararate se encontrava na região montanhosa do lago Van, na antiga Armênia, com as cabeceiras do rio Tigre ao S e os montes Cáucaso ao N.

O nome Ararate é especificamente aplicado ao monte culminante desta região, e é o lugar tradicional do pouso da arca de Noé. Há dois picos cônicos, distantes cerca de 11 km um do outro, e separados por uma profunda depressão. O mais alto destes picos ascende a uns 5.165 m acima do nível do mar e é coberto de neve perpétua nos últimos 900 m até o seu cume. O pico menor, ao SE, está a 3.914 m acima do nível do mar. O pico mais elevado é especialmente difícil de escalar, e foi primeiro escalado por Parrot, em 1829. Muitos nomes de lugares da região fazem lembrar o relato bíblico.

O próprio monte Ararate é chamado pelos turcos de Aghri Dagh (Monte da Arca), e pelos persas de Koh-i-nuh (Monte de Noé). — Veja ARCA N.º 1.

ARAÚNA. O proprietário jebuseu da eira comprada pelo Rei Davi para ali edificar um altar a Jeová. Esta medida veio a ser o meio divinamente indicado para terminar um flagelo provocado pela contagem do povo, feita por Davi. — 2Sa 24:16-25; 1Cr 21:15-28.

Araúna, pelo que parece, ofereceu esse lugar, junto com o gado e os implementos de madeira para o sacrifício, sem cobrar nada, mas Davi insistiu em pagar um preço. O registro em 2 Samuel 24:24 mostra que Davi comprou a eira e o gado por 50 siclos de prata (US$ 110). No entanto, o relato em 1 Crônicas 21:25 fala de Davi ter pago 600 siclos de ouro (c. US$ 77.000) pelo lugar. O escritor de Segundo Samuel trata apenas da compra, conforme ela se relaciona com a localização do altar e com os materiais para o sacrifício então feito, e, assim, parece que o preço de compra mencionado por ele se restringia a tais coisas. Por outro lado, o escritor de Primeiro Crônicas considera os assuntos segundo relacionados com o templo mais tarde construído neste lugar, e associa a compra com essa construção. (1Cr 22:1-6; 2Cr 3:1) Visto que a área toda do templo era muito ampla, parece que a soma de 600 siclos de ouro se aplica à compra desta grande área, em vez de à pequena parte necessária para o altar inicialmente construído por Davi.

Hoje ainda existe uma escarpa rochosa natural sob o Zimbório da Rocha, muçulmano, que ocupa parte do lugar do templo original, e esta pedra pode representar a primitiva eira de Araúna.

No registro de Crônicas, Araúna é chamado Ornã. — 1Cr 21:18-28; 2Cr 3:1.

ARAUTO. Um oficial da corte, usado para fazer proclamações públicas de ordens e decretos régios. A palavra ocorre em Daniel 3:4, onde se menciona que um arauto anunciou o decreto de Nabucodonosor para que o povo adorasse a imagem que ele fizera. (Veja n.) Quando Daniel estava para se tornar o terceiro governante no reino de Babilônia, segundo a ordem do Rei Belsazar, este fato foi ‘pregoado’. (Da 5:29 n.) Nos antigos jogos gregos, um arauto anunciava o nome e o país de cada competidor, e o nome, o país e o pai do vencedor.

O verbo grego traduzido “pregar” é ke·rýs·so. Este verbo grego, que ocorre muitas vezes nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, também pode ser vertido por “pregoar”. O uso desta palavra em Mateus 24:14 e em Marcos 13:10 indica que os proclamadores das boas novas do Reino de Deus agiriam como arautos. — Veja NM ns.; compare isso com Mr 1:45; Re 5:2.

Ke·rýs·so, em geral, significa “proclamar” (boas ou más novas), diferençando-se de eu·ag·ge·lí·zo·mai, “declarar boas novas”. Noé era pregador (ou arauto, ké·ryx) para o mundo antediluviano, avisando-o. (2Pe 2:5) Cristo pregou (como arauto) aos espíritos em prisão, mas não as boas novas. — 1Pe 3:18, 19.

ARÃ-ZOBÁ. Veja ARÃ N.º 5.

ARBA [Quatro]. Ele é chamado de “o pai” ou “o grande homem” dos anaquins e parece ter sido o fundador de Quiriate-Arba, mais tarde chamada Hébron. (Jos 14:15; 15:13; 21:11) Alguns acham que Anaque é um nome aplicado à raça de gigantes descendentes de Arba, em vez de ser o nome pessoal do filho de Arba, e assim consideram Arba como o próprio progenitor dos anaquins. — Veja ANAQUE; ANAQUINS.

ARBATITA [De (Pertencente a) Bete-Arabá]. Alguém pertencente à cidade de Bete-Arabá, no ermo (Jos 15:61), uma cidade situada perto de Jericó, no Distrito do vale do Jordão. (Jos 18:21, 22) Um dos homens poderosos de guerra de Davi, Abi-Albom, ou Abiel, era arbatita. — 2Sa 23:8, 31; 1Cr 11:10, 32.

ARBEL, CASA DE. A casa de Arbel (“Bete-Arbel”, Al, IBB; “Bet-Arbel”, BJ, MC) foi saqueada por Salmã numa época não especificada. (Os 10:14) Este lugar costuma ser relacionado com Irbid, situado a uns 29 km ao SE do mar da Galileia, portanto, em Gileade.

ARBITA. Nativo da cidade de Arabe, situada perto de Hébron, na região montanhosa de Judá. Paarai, um dos poderosos de Davi, era arbita. — 2Sa 23:8, 35.

ARBUSTO [hebr.: sí·ahh]. Árvore de pequeno porte, de densos galhos. A palavra hebraica sí·ahh ocorre apenas quatro vezes, em Gênesis 2:5; 21:15; Jó 30:4, 7. Algumas árvores na região da Palestina podem ser corretamente designadas de arbustos, inclusive o junípero-anão, o loto espinhoso, a giesta-das-vassouras, ao passo que outras frequente ou usualmente são parecidas a arbustos em tamanho e aparência, tais como as acácias, as murtas, os estoraques, as tamargueiras e os salgueiros.

No ermo de Berseba, a desesperada Agar lançou Ismael debaixo de um arbusto (Gên 21:15), ao passo que Jó descreve aqueles que vivem numa região sem água como ‘arrancando a erva salgada junto aos arbustos’ e bramando entre os arbustos. — Jó 30:4, 7.

O arbusto ardente com o qual o anjo de Jeová atraiu a atenção de Moisés e de onde falou com ele é entendido como sendo algum tipo de espinheiro (hebr.: senéh). (Êx 3:2-5; De 33:16) Referindo-se a este evento, os escritores cristãos das Escrituras Gregas usaram a palavra grega bá·tos, que se refere a uma silva ou a qualquer arbusto espinhoso. (Mr 12:26; Lu 20:37; At 7:30, 35) Em grego, a amora-preta é chamada de bá·ton (derivado de bá·tos), e por isso alguns lexicógrafos relacionam o arbusto espinhoso (senéh) com a amoreira-preta (Rubus sanctus), comum na Síria e em grande parte da Palestina. Nos tempos modernos, porém, não é encontrada em forma silvestre na península do Sinai. Por este motivo, outros preferem uma associação com algum tipo de acácia, visto que estas árvores espinhosas, frequentemente parecidas a arbustos, são muito comuns em toda a região do Sinai. Todavia, não se pode fazer uma identificação certa.

ARCA.

1. A arca de Noé foi a provisão pela qual os antepassados de toda a humanidade sobreviveram ao Dilúvio global de 2370-2369 AEC. (Veja DILÚVIO; NOÉ N.º 1.) Jeová deu a Noé instruções detalhadas sobre o tamanho, formato, feitio da iluminação e da ventilação, e sobre os materiais a usar na sua construção. — Gên 6:14-16.

Feitio e Tamanho. A arca (hebr.: te·váh; gr.: ki·bo·tós) era uma embarcação retangular em forma de caixa, presumivelmente com cantos retangulares e um fundo chato. Não precisava dum fundo arredondado ou uma proa afiada para cortar rapidamente a água; não precisava de leme; sua única função era ser à prova de água e flutuar. Uma embarcação de tal formato é bem estável, não capota facilmente e contém cerca de um terço a mais de espaço de armazenagem do que navios de feitio convencional. Proveu-se uma porta num lado da arca para carregar e descarregar a carga.

Quanto ao tamanho, a arca tinha 300 côvados de comprimento, 50 côvados de largura e 30 côvados de altura. Segundo cálculos conservadores do côvado como tendo 44,5 cm (alguns acham que o côvado antigo era mais aproximado de 56 ou 61 cm), a arca tinha 133,5 m por 22,30 m por 13,40 m, menos da metade do comprimento do transatlântico Queen Elizabeth 2. Esta relação entre o comprimento e a largura (6 para 1) é usada por modernos arquitetos navais. Isto dava à arca cerca de 40.000 m^3 de volume bruto. Nenhum cargueiro dos tempos antigos nem de perto se assemelhava à arca no seu tamanho colossal. Internamente reforçada pela adição de dois pavimentos, os três conveses assim providos forneciam uma área total de mais de 8.900 m^2 de espaço útil.

"Farás um tsó·har (teto; ou: janela) para a arca", ordenou-se a Noé. (Gên 6:16) Não está bem claro o que este era ou como foi construído. Alguns peritos pensam que tsó·har se relaciona com luz, e assim o traduzem por "janela" (Al, MC, So), "luz" (AS, JP), "claraboia" (BV). Outros, porém, associam o tsó·har com uma posterior raiz árabe que significa "costas (da mão)", "costas (dum animal)", "convés (dum navio)", isto é, a parte afastada do chão ou da água, e por isso o traduzem por "teto". (BJ, BMD) Este tsó·har, segundo se disse a Noé, devia ser acabado "até um côvado para cima". — Gên 6:16.

Portanto, este tsó·har pode ter provido iluminação e ventilação adequadas, não sendo apenas uma única "escotilha" de um côvado quadrado, mas uma abertura de um côvado de altura perto do teto, e que se estendia pelos quatro lados, para constituir uma abertura de quase 140 m^2. Por outro lado, embora ainda assim deixasse uma ampla abertura para ventilação sob o teto ou em outra parte, o teto pode ter tido águas levemente inclinadas. A respeito desta possibilidade escreveu James F. Armstrong, em Vetus Testamentum (Antigo Testamento, Leiden, 1960, p. 333): "'Até um côvado para cima a acabarás' é difícil de entender, quando sohar é traduzido quer por 'luz (= janela)', quer até por 'teto (plano)'. Entretanto, caso se admita um teto do tipo de duas águas, o 'um côvado para cima' pode referir-se à elevação da cumeeira do teto acima do alto das paredes. Em termos de arquitetura moderna, o 'um côvado' seria a altura das pendurais entre as quais se coloca o pau de cumeeira. . . . Segundo o argumento apresentado, o teto da arca de Noé foi concebido para ter um grau de inclinação de quatro por cento (1 côvado de elevação — 25 côvados da parede à cumeeira), bastante adequada para escoar a água da chuva."

Do que esta enorme arca devia ser construída foi esclarecido por Jeová: "Faze para ti uma arca da madeira duma árvore resinosa [literalmente: de árvores de gófer]." (Gên 6:14) Esta madeira resinosa aqui descrita, segundo alguns, é o cipreste ou uma árvore semelhante. Naquela parte do mundo, o que é atualmente chamado de cipreste era abundante; era especialmente preferido pelos fenícios e por Alexandre Magno para a construção de navios, assim como ainda é nos dias atuais; e é especialmente resistente à água e à decomposição. Relata-se que portas e postes feitos de cipreste duraram 1.100 anos. Além disso, disse-se a Noé que não devia simplesmente vedar as emendas, mas 'cobrir a arca com alcatrão por dentro e por fora'. — Veja BETUME.

Ampla Capacidade de Carga. A lista de passageiros da arca era bastante impressionante. Além de Noé, sua esposa, seus três filhos e as esposas destes, criaturas viventes "de toda sorte de carne, . . . duas de cada uma", deviam ser levadas a bordo. "Serão macho e fêmea. Das criaturas voadoras segundo as suas espécies e dos animais domésticos segundo as suas espécies, de todos os animais moventes do solo, segundo as suas espécies, dois de cada um virão a ti lá dentro para os preservares vivos." Dentre os animais e aves limpos, deviam-se levar sete de cada espécie. Alimentos em grande quantidade e variedade para todas essas criaturas, para durar mais de um ano, também tiveram de ser estocados. — Gên 6:18-21; 7:2, 3.

As "espécies" de animais selecionados se referiam às fronteiras ou aos limites inalteráveis e nítidos fixados pelo Criador, dentro dos quais as criaturas são capazes de se reproduzir "segundo as suas espécies". Alguns calcularam que as centenas de milhares de espécies de animais atuais poderiam ser reduzidas a comparativamente poucas "espécies" de famílias — a espécie equina e a espécie bovina, para se mencionar apenas duas. Os limites de reprodução segundo a "espécie", estabelecidos por Jeová, não foram e não podiam ser ultrapassados. Tendo isto presente, alguns pesquisadores têm dito que, se tivesse havido apenas 43 "espécies" de mamíferos, 74 "espécies" de aves e 10 "espécies" de répteis na arca, elas poderiam ter produzido a variedade de espécies conhecidas atualmente. Outros foram mais liberais em calcular que 72 "espécies" de quadrúpedes e menos de 200 "espécies" de aves eram tudo o que se requeria. Que a grande variedade de vida animal hoje conhecida poderia ter resultado de cruzamentos dentro de tão poucas "espécies" após o Dilúvio é provado pela infinita variedade da espécie humana — pessoas baixas, altas, gordas, magras, com incontáveis variações da cor dos cabelos, dos olhos e da pele — todas as quais surgiram da única família de Noé.

Esses cálculos talvez pareçam a alguns muito restritivos, especialmente visto que fontes tais como The Encyclopedia Americana (A Enciclopédia Americana) indicam que há mais de 1.300.000 espécies de animais. (1977, Vol. 1, pp. 859-873) Todavia, mais de 60 por cento delas são insetos. Reduzindo estes algarismos ainda mais, dos 24.000 anfíbios, répteis, aves e mamíferos, 10.000 são aves, 9.000 são répteis e anfíbios, muitos dos quais podem ter sobrevivido fora da arca, e apenas 5.000 são mamíferos, inclusive baleias e toninhas, que também teriam permanecido fora da arca. Outros pesquisadores calculam que há apenas cerca de 290 espécies de mamíferos terrestres maiores do que ovelhas e cerca de 1.360 menores do que ratos. (The Deluge Story in Stone [A História do Dilúvio Gravada em Pedra], de B. C. Nelson, 1949, p. 156; The Flood in the Light of the Bible, Geology, and Archaeology [O Dilúvio à Luz da Bíblia, da Geologia e da Arqueologia], de A. M. Rehwinkel, 1957, p. 69) Assim, mesmo se as estimativas se basearem nesses algarismos ampliados, ainda assim a arca poderia facilmente ter alojado um casal de todos esses animais.

Cinco meses após o Dilúvio começar, a "arca veio a pousar nos montes de Ararate", não sendo provável, contudo, que fosse no topo do mais alto pico (de quase 5.165 m), mas num terreno adequado, onde todos a bordo vivessem confortavelmente por mais alguns meses. Por fim, depois de um ano e dez dias desde o tempo em que começou o Dilúvio, a porta foi novamente aberta e todos a bordo desembarcaram. — Gên 7:11; 8:4, 14.

As afirmações de que se encontraram restos da arca ainda não foram confirmadas.

2. A pequena caixa em que Joquebede escondeu seu "bem-parecido" menino de três meses, mais tarde chamado Moisés, e que foi encontrada pela filha de Faraó no meio dos juncos junto à margem do Nilo. Esta arca ou caixa (hebr.: te·váh) fora feita de papiro e tornada à prova de água por um revestimento de betume e piche. — Êx 2:2-4, 10 n.; 6:20.

3. O recipiente feito de madeira de acácia em que se guardou temporariamente o segundo conjunto de tábuas de pedra da Lei, dada a Moisés no monte Sinai, até que se construiu a arca do testemunho alguns meses mais tarde. (De 10:1-5) A palavra hebraica 'aróhn, traduzida por "arca" em Deuteronômio 10:1-5, é em outros lugares traduzida por "ataúde" (Gên 50:26) e "cofre". — 2Rs 12:9, 10 n.; 2Cr 24:8, 10, 11.

4. Veja ARCA DO PACTO.

ARCA DO PACTO. A caixa sagrada que se encontrava no Santíssimo do tabernáculo, e, mais tarde, no templo construído por Salomão. A Arca fora feita às ordens de Jeová e segundo o seu projeto.

Escritores bíblicos chamaram a Arca do Pacto de mais de 20 maneiras diferentes. A mais comum dessas expressões, "a Arca do Pacto [hebr.: 'aróhn hab·beríth; gr.: ki·bo·tós tes di·a·thé·kes]" (Jos 3:6; He 9:4) e "a arca do testemunho" (Êx 25:22), não são privativas de determinado escritor, e são usadas intercambiavelmente.

Modelo e Feitio. A primeira coisa que Jeová deu a Moisés, quando o instruiu a construir o tabernáculo, foi o modelo e o feitio da Arca, pois ela era deveras o objeto central e principal do tabernáculo e do inteiro acampamento de Israel. A própria caixa media 2,5 côvados de comprimento, 1,5 côvado de largura e 1,5 côvado de altura (c. 111 x 67 x 67 cm). Era feita de madeira de acácia, recoberta por dentro e por fora de ouro puro. Uma artística "bordadura de ouro" servia de anel de arremate "em volta". A segunda seção da Arca, sua tampa, era feita de ouro maciço, não apenas de madeira recoberta de ouro, e abrangia todo o comprimento e toda a largura da arca. Montados sobre esta tampa havia dois querubins de ouro, de obra batida a martelo, um em cada ponta da tampa, virados um para o outro, com as cabeças inclinadas e as asas estendidas para o alto e por cima da Arca. (Êx 25:10, 11, 17-22; 37:6-9) Esta tampa também era conhecida como "trono de misericórdia" ou "tampa propiciatória". — Êx 25:17; He 9:5, n.; veja TAMPA PROPICIATÓRIA.

Longos varais foram providos para o transporte da Arca. Também eram feitos de madeira de acácia, recoberta de ouro, e eram inseridos em duas argolas de ouro em cada lado da caixa. Estes varais não deviam ser removidos de suas argolas; por isso, jamais havia necessidade de os carregadores da Arca tocarem nela. Havia quatro pés, "pés de andar, pés inclinados como que para andar", situados nos cantos, para suspender a Arca do chão, mas não se revela o quanto. (Commentary on the Old Testament [Comentário sobre o Velho Testamento], de C. F. Keil e F. Delitzsch, 1973, Vol. 1, O Segundo Livro de Moisés, p. 167) As argolas podem ter sido montadas logo acima dos pés, se não nos próprios pés. — Êx 25:12-16; Núm 4:5, 15; 1Rs 8:8; 1Cr 15:15.

Inauguração e Uso. Bezalel e os de coração sábio que o ajudaram seguiram os planos à risca, construindo a Arca com os materiais contribuídos pelo povo. (Êx 35:5, 7, 10, 12; 37:1-9) Quando o tabernáculo ficou pronto e foi erigido um ano após o Êxodo, Moisés tomou as duas tábuas de pedra, da Lei, e as colocou na Arca. (Deuteronômio 10:1-5 indica que uma arca temporária, de madeira de acácia, abrigou as tábuas apenas durante os poucos meses de intervalo, desde o tempo em que Moisés as recebeu no monte até serem transferidas para a Arca feita por Bezalel.) A seguir, Moisés inseriu os varais nas argolas da Arca, deitou a tampa sobre ela, introduziu-a na tenda e colocou o reposteiro que havia de separar o Santo do Santíssimo. Daí, como parte da cerimônia de inauguração, Moisés ungiu com óleo a Arca e todos os outros acessórios. Daí em diante, sempre que os sacerdotes desarmavam o tabernáculo para mudança de acampamento, usava-se o mesmo reposteiro divisor, junto com adicionais peles de focas e pano azul, para cobrir a Arca, a fim de impedir que o povo a visse 'nem pelo mínimo instante de tempo, para não morrer'. — Êx 40:3, 9, 20, 21; Núm 3:30, 31; 4:5, 6, 19, 20; 7:9; De 10:8; 31:9; veja TABERNÁCULO.

A Arca servia de arquivo sagrado para a segura conservação das sagradas advertências, ou testemunho, seu principal conteúdo sendo as duas tábuas do testemunho, ou os Dez Mandamentos. (Êx 25:16) Um "jarro de ouro com o maná e a vara de Arão, que brotara", foram adicionados à Arca, porém, foram mais tarde removidos, algum tempo antes da construção do templo de Salomão. (He 9:4; Êx 16:32-34; Núm 17:10; 1Rs 8:9; 2Cr 5:10) Pouco antes de Moisés morrer, ele forneceu um exemplar do "livro da lei" aos sacerdotes levitas, com instruções de que fosse conservado, não dentro, mas "ao lado da arca do pacto de Jeová, vosso Deus, . . . [como] testemunha contra ti [ali]". — De 31:24-26.

Associada com a presença de Deus. A Arca foi associada com a presença de Deus durante toda a sua história. Jeová prometera: "Ali me hei de apresentar a ti e falar contigo de cima da tampa, de entre os dois querubins que há sobre a arca do testemunho." "Aparecerei numa nuvem por cima da tampa." (Êx 25:22; Le 16:2) Samuel escreveu que Jeová "está sentado sobre os querubins" (1Sa 4:4); portanto, os querubins serviam de "representação do carro" de Jeová. (1Cr 28:18) Assim sendo, "sempre que Moisés entrava na tenda de reunião para falar com [Jeová], então ouvia a voz conversando com ele de cima da tampa que havia sobre a arca do testemunho, de entre os dois querubins; e falava com ele". (Núm 7:89) Mais tarde, Josué e o sumo sacerdote Fineias também indagaram de Jeová perante a Arca. (Jos 7:6-10; Jz 20:27, 28) No entanto, apenas o sumo sacerdote realmente entrava no Santíssimo e via a Arca, num único dia por ano, não para comunicar-se com Jeová, mas para cumprir a cerimônia do Dia da Expiação. — Le 16:2, 3, 13, 15, 17; He 9:7.

De outras maneiras, a presença de Jeová, conforme representada pela Arca, trazia bênçãos a Israel. Era costume, quando Israel mudava de acampamento, que a Arca com a nuvem por cima indicasse o caminho. (Núm 10:33, 34) Assim, por ocasião da travessia do Jordão, quando os sacerdotes que carregavam a Arca entraram nas águas do rio, Jeová interrompeu o fluxo dele, permitindo que eles passassem. (Jos 3:1-4:18) Na linha da marcha em torno de Jericó, as forças equipadas para a guerra eram seguidas por sete sacerdotes que tocavam buzinas, daí vinha a Arca, e, por último, a retaguarda. (Jos 6:3-13) Em contraste com a vitória em Jericó, houve a derrota sofrida quando certos rebeldes presunçosamente avançaram na tentativa de tomar a Terra da Promessa, contrário às instruções divinas, e quando "a arca do pacto de Jeová e Moisés não se afastaram do meio do acampamento". (Núm 14:44, 45) Até mesmo os inimigos filisteus reconheceram a presença de Jeová quando a Arca apareceu no campo de batalha. Gritaram de medo: "Deus chegou ao acampamento [de Israel]!" "Ai de nós, pois nunca antes aconteceu tal coisa! Ai de nós! Quem nos salvará da mão deste Deus majestoso? Este é o Deus que golpeou o Egito com toda sorte de matança no ermo." — 1Sa 4:6-8.

A presença de Jeová continuou a demonstrar-se quando os filisteus capturaram a Arca e a levaram a Asdode, para ficar ao lado da imagem de Dagom. Naquela noite, Dagom caiu com a face por terra; na noite seguinte, caiu de novo diante da arca de Jeová, e sua cabeça e as palmas de ambas as mãos dele foram decepadas. Durante os próximos sete meses, enquanto a Arca percorria as cidades filisteias, o povo foi afligido por hemorroidas, e a cidade de Ecrom foi lançada numa "confusão mortífera", até que a Arca finalmente foi devolvida a Israel com uma devida oferta. — 1Sa 5:1-6:12.

Ser a Arca associada com a presença de Jeová exigia que se concedesse o devido respeito e uma alta consideração à Arca. Portanto, quando a Arca partia e quando descansava, Moisés proclamava palavras de louvor a Jeová. (Núm 10:35, 36) O sumo sacerdote Eli ficou tão chocado quando soube que os filisteus haviam capturado a Arca, que ele perdeu o equilíbrio e caiu para trás, fraturando o pescoço; também sua nora, na agonia da morte, lamentou: "A glória exilou-se de Israel, porque foi capturada a arca do verdadeiro Deus." (1Sa 4:18-22) O Rei Salomão reconheceu que "os lugares aos quais chegou a arca de Jeová são algo sagrado". — 2Cr 8:11.

Não um talismã. Todavia, a Arca não era um talismã. Apenas a sua presença não garantia o êxito; as bênçãos de Jeová dependiam da condição espiritual e da obediência fiel dos que possuíam a Arca. Por isso, os israelitas, sob a liderança de Josué, sofreram derrota em Ai, devido à infidelidade, apesar da presença da Arca em seu acampamento. (Jos 7:1-6) Similarmente, confiar Israel na presença da Arca entre as próprias forças combatentes não impediu que os filisteus matassem 30.000 israelitas e capturassem a Arca. (1Sa 4:1-11) A devolução da Arca por parte dos filisteus foi ocasião de grande regozijo, de oferta de sacrifícios e de agradecimentos, todavia, Jeová 'golpeou o povo com uma grande matança'. Por quê? "Porque tinham olhado para a arca de Jeová", em violação de sua ordem. (1Sa 6:11-21; Núm 4:6, 20) Exatamente quantos morreram nessa ocasião não se sabe ao certo. O texto massorético reza: "Golpeou, pois, dentre o povo setenta homens — cinquenta mil homens." Esta construção ambígua talvez indique que "cinquenta mil homens" é uma interpolação. A Pesito siríaca e o árabe dizem que "cinco mil e setenta homens" foram golpeados. O Targum de Jonatã reza: "E ele golpeou setenta homens dentre os anciãos do povo, e cinquenta mil dentre a congregação." A Septuaginta grega diz que "setenta homens dentre eles, e cinquenta mil dos homens" foram golpeados. Josefo menciona apenas setenta homens como tendo sido mortos. — Jewish Antiquities (Antiguidades Judaicas), VI, 16 (i, 4).

Locais em Que a Arca Foi Guardada. A Arca não tinha um local permanente de repouso até a edificação do templo de Salomão. Concluída a principal conquista da terra (c. 1467 AEC), foi levada para Silo, onde aparentemente permaneceu (com exceção de uma época em que ficou em Betel), até ser capturada pelos filisteus. (Jos 18:1; Jz 20:26, 27; 1Sa 3:3; 6:1) Ao voltar para o território israelita, repousou sucessivamente em Bete-Semes e Quiriate-Jearim, ficando neste último lugar por cerca de 70 anos. — 1Sa 6:11-14; 7:1, 2; 1Cr 13:5, 6.

Segundo o texto massorético, 1 Samuel 14:18 indica que, durante um conflito com os filisteus, o Rei Saul fez com que Aijá, o sumo sacerdote, trouxesse a Arca ao acampamento. Todavia, a Septuaginta grega declara que Saul disse a Aijá: "'Traze para cá o éfode!' (Porque ele levava naquele dia o éfode perante Israel.)."

O desejo de Davi, de fazer com que a Arca fosse levada a Jerusalém, era bom, mas o método que primeiro usou resultou num desastre. Em vez de fazer com que fosse carregada pelos varais nos ombros dos levitas coatitas, segundo as instruções, Davi deixou que fosse colocada numa carroça. Os touros quase causaram um transtorno, e Uzá foi golpeado porque estendera a mão para segurar a Arca, contrário à lei de Deus. — 2Sa 6:2-11; 1Cr 13:1-11; 15:13; Núm 4:15.

A Arca foi finalmente levada a Jerusalém, devidamente carregada pelos levitas (1Cr 15:2, 15), e ali ela permaneceu numa tenda durante o restante do reinado de Davi. (2Sa 6:12-19; 11:11) Os sacerdotes tentaram levar consigo a Arca quando fugiram diante da rebelião de Absalão, mas Davi insistiu em que ela permanecesse em Jerusalém, confiando em que Jeová levaria todos a salvo de volta a ela. (2Sa 15:24, 25, 29; 1Rs 2:26) Davi desejou construir uma casa permanente para a Arca, mas Jeová adiou essa construção até o reinado de Salomão. (2Sa 7:2-13; 1Rs 8:20, 21; 1Cr 28:2, 6; 2Cr 1:4) Por ocasião da dedicação do templo, a Arca foi mudada da tenda em Sião para o Santíssimo do templo, no monte Moriá, onde foi colocada sob as asas protetoras de dois grandes querubins. Foi a única mobília do antigo tabernáculo que se tornou parte do templo de Salomão. — 1Rs 6:19; 8:1-11; 1Cr 22:19; 2Cr 5:2-10; 6:10, 11; veja TEMPLO (Templo de Salomão); QUERUBIM N.º 1.

A única referência histórica pós-salomônica à Arca do Pacto, quase 900 anos depois de esta ter sido feita, ocorre em 2 Crônicas 35:3, onde o Rei Josias, em 642 AEC, ordenou que fosse devolvida ao templo. Não se declara como ela fora removida. Josias ascendeu ao trono depois de alguns reis bem apóstatas, sendo que um deles colocara uma imagem na casa de Jeová, e é possível que um desses reis iníquos tivesse removido a Arca. (2Cr 33:1, 2, 7) Por outro lado, Josias patrocinou amplos consertos no templo, durante os quais a Arca talvez tivesse sido levada a outro lugar para a sua própria proteção contra danos. (2Cr 34:8-35:19) Não há menção de a Arca ter sido levada a Babilônia. A Arca não está alistada entre os objetos do templo levados embora. Igualmente, não há menção de ela ter sido devolvida e colocada no templo reconstruído de Zorobabel; nem foi ela substituída. Não se sabe quando e em que circunstâncias a Arca desapareceu. — 2Rs 25:13-17; 2Cr 36:18; Esd 1:7-11; 7:12-19.

Jeremias predisse um tempo em que a Arca do Pacto não mais existiria, mas que não se sentiria falta dela, e que os adoradores de Jeová não passariam por nenhuma dificuldade por não a possuírem. Antes, 'a própria Jerusalém seria chamada de trono de Jeová'. — Je 3:16, 17.

No livro simbólico de Revelação, João diz que "viu-se a arca do seu pacto no santuário do seu templo", no céu. Esta Arca do Pacto tem que ver com o novo pacto de Deus com os homens, e o aparecimento da Arca era uma indicação de que Jeová novamente governava por meio do seu Ungido. — Re 11:15, 19.

ARCANJO. O prefixo "arc", significando "principal" ou "mais importante", subentende que há apenas um arcanjo, o anjo principal; nas Escrituras, nunca se encontra "arcanjo" no plural. A Primeira aos Tessalonicenses 4:16, falando da proeminência do arcanjo e da autoridade do seu cargo, faz isso com referência ao ressuscitado Senhor Jesus Cristo: "O próprio Senhor descerá do céu com uma chamada dominante, com voz de arcanjo e com a trombeta de Deus, e os que estão mortos em união com Cristo se levantarão primeiro." Portanto, não é sem significância que o único nome diretamente associado com a palavra "arcanjo" seja o de Miguel. — Ju 9; veja MIGUEL N.º 1.

ARCO. Veja ARMAS, ARMADURA.

ARCO-ÍRIS. Um arco semicircular que exibe um espectro de cores; um sinal visível da promessa pactuada de Jeová, de que "não mais será toda a carne decepada pelas águas dum dilúvio e não mais virá a haver dilúvio para arruinar a terra". (Gên 9:11-16) Não há nenhuma palavra hebraica específica para arco-íris, de modo que se usa na Bíblia a palavra normal para "arco" (com que se atira flechas). — Ez 1:28.

Usam-se teorias e fórmulas complicadas para explicar a formação dum arco-íris. Basicamente, parece que, à medida que a luz branca penetra numa gotícula de chuva, ela é refratada e dispersada em diferentes cores, a gotícula atuando como um diminuto prisma. Cada cor bate na superfície interna da gotícula e é refletida num ângulo diferente e específico. Assim, o observador vê um arco com todas as sete cores do espectro (de dentro para fora do arco: violeta, anil, azul, verde, amarelo, alaranjado e vermelho), embora elas possam misturar-se, de modo que só quatro ou cinco cores fiquem claras. Por vezes, forma-se um arco "secundário", maior e menos distinto, com as cores invertidas. Os cientistas ainda estão estudando o arco-íris. Carl B. Boyer observa: "Dentro da gota de chuva, a interação da energia de luz com a matéria é tão íntima, que se é levado diretamente à mecânica quântica e à teoria da relatividade. . . . Embora se saiba muito sobre a produção do arco-íris, pouco se aprendeu sobre a sua percepção." — The Rainbow, From Myth to Mathematics (O Arco-íris, Do Mito à Matemática), 1959, pp. 320, 321.

A primeira referência bíblica a um arco-íris acha-se no relato sobre o pacto de Deus com Noé e sua descendência, depois que os sobreviventes do Dilúvio saíram da arca. (Gên 9:8-17; Is 54:9, 10) Esta esplêndida visão já por si mesma seria reconfortante e um indício de paz para Noé e sua família.

Ofereceram-se muitas opiniões sobre se esta foi a primeira vez que os humanos viram um arco-íris. Alguns comentadores afirmaram que arco-íris já haviam sido vistos antes, e que 'dar' Deus o arco-íris nesta ocasião foi realmente 'dar' um sentido ou significado especial a um fenômeno já existente. Muitos dos que têm tal conceito creem que o Dilúvio foi apenas local e não mudou substancialmente a atmosfera.

Não obstante, esta é a primeira menção dum arco-íris, e se um arco-íris já tivesse sido visto antes, não haveria nenhuma força real em Deus torná-lo um sinal destacado do seu pacto. Teria sido algo corriqueiro, e não um sinal significativo duma mudança, de algo novo.

A Bíblia não descreve o grau de claridade da atmosfera antes do Dilúvio. Mas, pelo que parece, as condições atmosféricas eram tais que, até ocorrer a mudança quando 'se abriram as comportas dos céus' (Gên 7:11), ninguém antes de Noé e sua família tinha visto um arco-íris. Mesmo hoje, as condições atmosféricas influem quanto a se poder ver ou não um arco-íris.

A glória, a beleza e a pacificidade dum arco-íris que surge depois duma tempestade são usadas nas descrições bíblicas sobre Deus e seu trono. Na visão que Ezequiel teve de Deus, o profeta viu "algo semelhante ao aspecto do arco que vem a haver numa massa de nuvens no dia duma chuvada". Isto destacava a "glória de Jeová". (Ez 1:28) Similarmente, João viu o trono de esplendor de Jeová, e 'ao redor dele havia um arco-íris, em aparência semelhante à esmeralda'. A repousante cor verde-esmeralda do arco-íris sugeriria, para João, tranquilidade e serenidade, e isto apropriadamente, visto que Jeová controla toda situação, um Governante glorioso. (Re 4:3) João também viu um anjo com "um arco-íris sobre a sua cabeça" (Re 10:1), o que pode sugerir que o anjo era um representante especial do "Deus de paz". — Fil 4:9.

ARDE. Uma dentre as 'setenta almas da casa de Jacó que vieram ao Egito'. (Gên 46:21, 27) No relato de Gênesis ele é chamado de filho de Benjamim, mas, em vista de Números 26:40, parece provável que o sentido aqui é "neto". Se este for o caso, então ele provavelmente é também o Adar de 1 Crônicas 8:3.

ARDITAS [De (Pertencente a) Arde]. Uma família benjamita descendente de Arde, filho de Bela. — Núm 26:40.

ARDOM. Um dos filhos de Calebe, filho de Esrom; da tribo de Judá. — 1Cr 2:18.

AREIA. Grânulos soltos que consistem em partículas menores do que o cascalho, mas maiores do que sedimentos finos. Jeová Deus, na sua grande sabedoria, pôs "a areia como termo do mar, para regulamento de duração indefinida, de modo que não pode passar além". (Je 5:22) Diferente da rocha maciça, a areia cede e assim absorve o impacto das ondas que rebentam contra ela. A força das ondas bravias se espalha e dissipa, de modo que o mar é mantido sob controle.

Placa grega, comemorando o discurso de Paulo no Areópago. (At 17:22-31)

Ao abençoar as tribos de Zebulão e de Issacar, Moisés disse que elas "sugarão a riqueza abundante dos mares e o pecúlio encoberto da areia". (De 33:18, 19) Isto pode significar que elas seriam abençoadas com as riquezas do mar e da terra.

Vez após vez, a "areia do mar" é usada na Bíblia para indicar inumerabilidade ou grande abundância. (Gên 22:17; 32:12; 41:49; Jos 11:4; Sal 78:27; 139:17, 18; Je 15:8; He 11:12) Mas o número em questão não é astronomicamente grande em cada caso. Para o contemplador, porém, o número de pessoas ou coisas envolvidas é tão grande que não pode ser determinado. Como exemplo, uma parte das forças filisteias que vieram contra Israel nos dias do Rei Saul é descrita como "povo em multidão como os grãos de areia que há à beira do mar". (1Sa 13:5) Disse-se que o número dos desencaminhados por Satanás, depois de este ser solto do abismo, conforme visto por João em visão, era "como a areia do mar", isto é, o número era bastante grande, a ponto de João não conseguir determinar quantos seriam. — Re 20:8.

Descrevendo a magnitude de seu vexame ou aflição, o fiel Jó declarou: "Ela é mais pesada do que mesmo as areias dos mares." (Jó 6:3) Em média, apenas 1 m^3 de areia molhada pesa 1.900 kg. Embora uma carga de areia seja pesada, o vexame dum tolo é ainda mais pesado para quem tem de suportá-lo. Provérbios 27:3 alude a isso: "O peso de uma pedra e uma carga de areia — mas o vexame por parte de um tolo é mais pesado do que ambos."

ARELI, ARELITAS. O sétimo filho mencionado de Gade, que era um daqueles que foram ao Egito com a família de Jacó, em 1728 AEC. Ele tornou-se o chefe de família dos arelitas, os quais foram incluídos no censo feito no ermo pouco antes da entrada na Terra da Promessa. — Gên 46:8, 16; Núm 26:17.

AREÓPAGO [Colina de Ares; Colina de Marte]. Uma colina a NO da elevada Acrópole ateniense, separada dela por um vale pouco profundo. Este outeiro um tanto estreito e árido, de pedra calcária, tem 113 m de altitude, e a Acrópole, a SE dele, eleva-se 43 m acima dele. O acesso à colina de Marte pelo N é suave; pelo S é íngreme. Essa colina era, antigamente, encimada por altares, santuários de templo e estátuas gregos, e pelo supremo tribunal do Areópago, ao ar livre. Hoje, tudo isso já desapareceu, e restam apenas alguns bancos escavados na rocha.

Numa das visitas do apóstolo Paulo a Atenas, certos atenienses o agarraram e levaram ao Areópago, dizendo: "Podemos saber qual é este novo ensino de que falas? Porque estás introduzindo algumas coisas que são estranhas aos nossos ouvidos." (At 17:19, 20) Em resposta, Paulo apresentou cuidadosamente uma sólida verdade após outra, desenvolvendo passo a passo um argumento lógico, persuasivo e convincente. Paulo não chegou a terminar seu discurso, porque, "quando ouviram falar duma ressurreição dos mortos", alguns zombadores começaram a mofar dele. Entretanto, até ocorrer esta interrupção, Paulo já havia conseguido dividir sua assistência em três maneiras de pensar. Ao passo que alguns zombavam, e outros diziam que o ouviriam ainda outra vez, mais outros "se tornaram crentes, entre os quais havia também Dionísio, juiz do tribunal do Areópago, e uma mulher de nome Dâmaris, e outros além deles". (At 17:22-34) Atualmente, uma placa de bronze na colina de Marte, comemorando este acontecimento, contém esse discurso do apóstolo Paulo. Não se pode dizer com certeza que Paulo tenha falado naquela ocasião perante o tribunal do Areópago, mas teve por ouvinte pelo menos um membro daquele renomado tribunal. — ILUSTRAÇÃO, Vol. 2, p. 746.

ARETAS [Virtuoso; Excelente]. O último dentre vários reis árabes com este nome controlava Damasco, quando seu governador se juntou a uma trama dos judeus para acabar com Paulo. O apóstolo Paulo escapou num cesto de vime, baixado duma janela no muro da cidade. — At 9:23-25; 2Co 11:32, 33.

Aretas dera sua filha em casamento a Herodes Ântipas (veja HERODES N.º 2), que se divorciou dela para se casar com Herodias — o caso adúltero que João, o Batizador, condenou. (Mt 14:3, 4) Irritado ainda mais por disputas fronteiriças, Aretas atacou e derrotou totalmente Ântipas. O imperador Tibério ordenou então que o governador da Síria, Vitélio, capturasse Aretas, vivo ou morto. Vitélio, que não era amigo de Ântipas, mobilizou suas forças, mas, em 37 EC, Tibério morreu e a campanha contra Aretas foi cancelada. O sucessor de Tibério, Calígula, inverteu esta política externa, empossou Herodes Agripa I no lugar de Ântipas, e permitiu que Aretas governasse Damasco. Uma moeda de Damasco, trazendo uma inscrição de Aretas, data desse período.

ARGAMASSA. Uma mistura aplicada entre tijolos e entre pedras para cimentá-los (como numa parede) ou usada como reboco de parede. (Le 14:42, 45; 1Cr 29:2; Is 54:11; Je 43:9) Uma mistura resistente às intempéries (apropriadamente chamada "argamassa") de cal, areia e água era usada na construção das casas melhores na antiga Palestina. Outro tipo de argamassa, usado como reboco, era preparado pela mistura de areia, cinzas e cal. Às vezes se adicionava algum óleo à mistura, ou a parede era revestida de óleo depois de rebocada, para se ter uma superfície quase que impermeável. No Egito (até mesmo nos tempos modernos), a argamassa usada como reboco de parede compõe-se de duas partes de argila, uma parte de cal, e uma parte de palha e de cinzas.

Em vez de usarem argamassa convencional, os construtores da Torre de Babel usaram betume, o qual "servia-lhes de argamassa". (Gên 11:3) Babilônios posteriores provavelmente obtinham seu betume para a argamassa de fontes subterrâneas perto da cidade de Hit, situada não muito longe de Babilônia, às margens do rio Eufrates. De acordo com Heródoto (I, 179), betume (asfalto) quente era usado como cimento ou argamassa na edificação dos taludes dos fossos de Babilônia e na construção da muralha da cidade.

Enquanto os israelitas eram escravos no Egito, os egípcios "amarguravam-lhes a vida com dura escravidão, em argamassa argilosa e em tijolos". (Êx 1:14) Misturava-se a argamassa até ter mais ou menos a consistência de melaço, usualmente por pisoteá-la. Juntava-se palha picada à argamassa, para aumentar a coesão da mistura. Mais tarde, na sua própria terra, argamassa argilosa e tijolos de barro serviam aos israelitas como materiais básicos de construção nas regiões onde havia poucas pedras de construção de boa qualidade.

Os tijolos de barro não resistiam por muito tempo à umidade. Por isso, a fim de proteger uma nova parede ou para salvar e reforçar uma parede danificada, aplicava-se às vezes uma camada de argamassa ou reboco. Entretanto, quando se pintava tal parede apenas com cal, ou com argamassa inferior com pouco ou nenhuma cal, não se podia esperar que suportasse fortes temporais. — Veja Ez 13:11-16.

ARGILA. Veja BARRO.

ARGOBE [Torrão de Terra].

1. Possivelmente um dos homens assassinados junto com o Rei Pecaías, de Israel, por volta de 778 AEC, por um usurpador chamado Peca, ajudado no crime por 50 gileaditas. — 2Rs 15:23-25.

2. Região de Basã conquistada enquanto Israel ainda se encontrava ao L do Jordão, e a qual se tornou parte do território da tribo de Manassés. Parece ter sido a sede do reino de Ogue e é descrita como tendo 60 cidades fortificadas, além de muitíssimas cidades rurais. (De 3:4, 5, 13, 14) Esta era a "terra dos refains", ou terra de gigantes.

Argobe encontrava-se ao L do mar da Galileia. Embora o lugar tradicional para Argobe seja Al-Ledja, uma área coberta de lava a uns 32 km ao S de Damasco, a descrição em Deuteronômio, duma região com cidades rurais, parece favorecer a planície fértil ao O de Al-Ledja, provavelmente centrada na região entre Nahr al-Ruqad, Nahr al-ʽAlan e Nahal Yarmuk. Neste amplo planalto, as cidades não tinham defesas naturais e teriam necessidade das 'muralhas altas' mencionadas nas Escrituras. Existem ruínas de tais cidades grandes em todo o território de Basã.

No tempo do Rei Salomão, Argobe fazia parte dum dos 12 distritos colocados sob prepostos responsáveis por prover alimentos à casa real. — 1Rs 4:7, 13.

ARGOLA PARA AS NARINAS. Uma argola ornamental usada no nariz. Era inserida, quer na narina esquerda, quer na direita, ou no septo nasal, e era especialmente usada pelas mulheres. (Gên 24:22, 30, 47; Is 3:21) De acordo com algumas traduções, porém, homens ismaelitas também usavam argolas para as narinas. — Jz 8:24-26.

A palavra hebraica para "argola para as narinas" (né·zem) também pode ser aplicada a uma arrecada, ou brinco, e, em alguns casos, talvez houvesse pouca diferença na forma de tais ornamentos. Às vezes, o contexto torna possível determinar se se refere a uma argola para as narinas ou a uma arrecada, ou brinco. — Compare Gên 24:47 com Gên 35:4; Ez 16:12; veja ANEL.

Embora as argolas para as narinas em geral fossem de ouro, também se usavam outros materiais, tais como a prata. As argolas para as narinas podiam estar ornamentadas com pingentes de contas, de pedacinhos de coral, ou de joias. O diâmetro dessas argolas para o nariz podia variar entre 2,5 a tantos quantos 7,5 cm. Visto que a argola para o nariz caía sobre a boca, ela tinha de ser movida quando se comia.

Em Provérbios 11:22, a mulher exteriormente linda, mas que rejeita a sensatez, é comparada a "uma argola de ouro, para as narinas, no focinho dum porco".

ARIDAI. Um dos dez filhos de Hamã. — Est 9:9, 10; veja HAMÃ.

ARIDATA. Um dos dez filhos de Hamã. — Est 9:8, 10; veja HAMÃ.

ARIÉ. Talvez um homem assassinado em Samaria por volta de 778 AEC, junto com o Rei Pecaías, de Israel, pelo usurpador Peca. — 2Rs 15:25.

ARIEL [Lareira do Altar de Deus; ou: Leão de Deus].

1. Moabita, cujos dois filhos foram mortos por Benaia. — 2Sa 23:20; 1Cr 11:22.

2. Um dos nove cabeças especialmente usados por Esdras para conseguir qualificados "ministros para a casa de nosso Deus". Isto ocorreu na primavera (setentrional) de 468 AEC, quando cerca de 1.500 homens israelitas, sob as ordens de Esdras, estavam para partir do rio Aava para ir a Jerusalém. — Esd 8:15-17, 31.

3. Nome secreto aplicado a Jerusalém em Isaías 29:1, 2, 7. Era em Jerusalém que se encontrava o templo de Deus, que tinha nos seus recintos o altar de sacrifícios. Por causa disso, a cidade, na realidade, era a lareira do altar de Deus. Devia ser também o centro da adoração pura de Jeová. Todavia, a mensagem em Isaías 29:1-4 é agourenta no seu conteúdo e prediz a destruição que sobreviria a Jerusalém às mãos dos babilônios em 607 AEC, quando ela se tornaria uma "lareira do altar" em sentido diferente: como cidade cheia do sangue derramado e consumida pelo fogo, e cheia dos cadáveres das vítimas da destruição ardente. As causas subjacentes desta calamidade são declaradas nos versículos 9 a 16. No entanto, Isaías 29:7, 8, mostra que as nações que causariam tal destruição de Jerusalém deixariam de alcançar seu derradeiro objetivo ou alvo.

ARÍETE. Instrumento de guerra usado por sitiadores para brechar ou derrubar os portões e as muralhas duma cidade ou fortaleza. Na sua forma mais simples, era uma pesada tora de madeira com ponta de ferro semelhante à cabeça dum carneiro. Talvez por causa disso, ou por causa da ação de marrar, quando em uso, é chamado pela mesma palavra hebraica (kar) que o carneiro. — Ez 4:1, 2; 21:22.

Os sitiadores construíam uma rampa, ou aterro de sítio, contra as muralhas da cidade, para servir de plano inclinado pelo qual se podiam levar aríetes e outros engenhos de guerra. Torres tão altas como as muralhas da cidade talvez fossem empurradas rampa acima, colocando assim os atacantes no mesmo nível que os defensores. Os soldados defensores esforçavam-se a pôr os aríetes fora de ação por lançar tições contra eles, ou por prendê-los com correntes ou arpéus.

ARIMATEIA [do hebr., significando "Altura"]. "Uma cidade dos da Judeia", no tempo de Jesus, e a cidade natal de José, o discípulo secreto que obteve o cadáver de Jesus para sepultá-lo. (Lu 23:50-53; Mt 27:57-60; Mr 15:43-46; Jo 19:38-42) A localização de Arimateia é geralmente considerada como sendo o lugar da moderna Rentis (Rantis), a cerca de 35 km ao NO de Jerusalém e a cerca de 26 km ao L de Jope (moderna Tel Aviv-Yafo).

Aríete e torre de ataque móvel assírios.

ARIOQUE.

1. O rei de Elasar que, coligado com Quedorlaomer e mais dois reis, participou em esmagar a rebelião de Sodoma, Gomorra e seus aliados, e em levar cativos Ló e os da sua casa. Abraão alcançou então os vencedores, derrotou Arioque e seus confederados, e resgatou Ló. (Gên 14:1-16; veja QUEDORLAOMER.) Não se sabe ao certo onde se encontrava Elasar. — Veja ELASAR.

2. Chefe da guarda pessoal de Nabucodonosor, que recebera ordens para matar todos os sábios de Babilônia, depois de terem fracassado em revelar e interpretar o sonho do rei. Ao saber que Daniel estava preparado para revelar o sonho e dar a interpretação, "Arioque levou Daniel depressa perante o rei". — Da 2:12-25.

ARISAI. Um dos dez filhos de Hamã. — Est 9:9, 10; veja HAMÃ.

ARISTARCO [Melhor (Mais Nobre) Governante]. Um dos íntimos associados de Paulo, companheiro de viagem e de prisão, macedônio de Tessalônica. (At 20:4; 27:2) Ele é apresentado no relato da terceira viagem missionária de Paulo; no auge do distúrbio efésio, Aristarco e Gaio foram arrastados à força ao teatro. (At 19:29) Talvez fosse "o irmão" que ajudou Paulo com as contribuições para os da Judeia, coletadas na Macedônia e na Grécia. — 2Co 8:18-20.

Aristarco acompanhou Paulo na viagem a Roma, mas não se tem certeza de como conseguiu passagem, talvez como escravo de Paulo. (At 27:2) Enquanto em Roma, ajudou e encorajou adicionalmente a Paulo, e por um tempo compartilhou com ele os laços da prisão. Cumprimentos de Aristarco são transmitidos nas cartas de Paulo aos colossenses (4:10) e a Filêmon (23, 24).

ARISTÓBULO [Melhor (Mais Nobre) Conselheiro]. Homem, a cuja família em Roma Paulo enviou saudações. — Ro 16:10.

ARMADILHA. Um meio ou instrumento de captura dum animal, tendo usualmente um laço ou mola que, ao disparar, agarra, prende ou mata o animal. Via de regra, é escondida, camuflada ou disfarçada de algum modo, de forma a enganar a vítima; não raro se usa uma isca. Há diversas palavras hebraicas traduzidas, de forma variada, como "armadilha", 'laço', e 'rede'. (Sal 141:9, 10) Embora a Bíblia não forneça descrições pormenorizadas dos tipos de armadilhas e laços para animais usados nos tempos antigos, passagens tais como Jó 18:8-10; Salmo 10:9; 140:5; e Jeremias 18:22, dão-nos uma ideia geral de como alguns deles eram utilizados. Para obter informações sobre sua construção e seu uso, veja CAÇA E PESCA; PASSARINHEIRO.

Uso Figurado ou Ilustrativo. Visto que resultam em cativeiro, dano ou morte para os animais apanhados neles, os laços e as armadilhas podem representar causas de perda de liberdade, ou de calamidade, ruína ou morte. Assim, depois de Moisés anunciar a vinda de grave praga de gafanhotos sobre o Egito, os servos de Faraó perguntaram: "Até quando se mostrará este homem um laço para nós?" (Êx 10:7) As pragas anteriores vieram todas conforme anunciadas por Moisés, e, portanto, ele se mostrara como que um laço, isto é, uma causa de calamidade ou de ruína para os egípcios. A fim de que os israelitas não caíssem na armadilha da idolatria, Jeová os avisou repetidas vezes que não permitissem que os cananeus permanecessem na Terra da Promessa. (Êx 23:32, 33; 34:12; De 7:16, 25; Jos 23:13) A idolatria era uma armadilha ou uma causa traiçoeira de calamidade para os israelitas, visto que resultava em perderem o favor e a proteção de Jeová, e resultava em opressão e em restrição às mãos de seus inimigos. Era também enganosa, e continha a isca da pretensão de trazer-lhes benefícios e prazeres. (Jz 2:2, 3, 11-16; 8:27) Semelhantemente, o Rei Saul utilizou sua filha Mical numa trama, dizendo: "Dá-la-ei a [Davi] para que lhe sirva de laço." (1Sa 18:21) Saul esperava secretamente que Davi perdesse a vida na façanha necessária para obter cem prepúcios dos filisteus, a fim de dá-los ao rei, em lugar do "dinheiro matrimonial". — 1Sa 18:25.

Outra característica das armadilhas a que se faz alusão em termos figurados é a velocidade com que podem funcionar, pegando a pessoa de surpresa. A queda de Babilônia diante dos medos e dos persas, por exemplo, ocorreu tão súbita e inesperadamente, que foi como se Jeová tivesse acionado uma armadilha ou um laço contra ela. — Je 50:24; compare isso com Lu 21:34, 35.

Precisa-se examinar com cuidado e ter muita cautela quanto ao que se vota ou garante fazer, de modo a não descobrir depois que se ficou enredado numa situação da qual talvez seja difícil ou virtualmente impossível escapar. (Pr 6:1-3; 20:25) A companhia de alguém dado a acessos de ira pode fazer com que a pessoa se torne igual a ele. Trata-se dum laço, pois leva a envolver-se em altercações, em complicações prejudiciais e em pecado. (Pr 22:24, 25; compare isso com 1Co 15:33.) Por outro lado, o temor de Deus e esforçar-se a seguir Seu modo de agir ajuda o sábio a evitar ser engodado para praticar uma transgressão (tal como envolver-se com prostitutas) que pode tornar-se uma armadilha que conduz à morte. — Pr 13:14; 14:27; compare isso com 5:3-8; 7:21-23.

No primeiro século EC, alguns cristãos, atraídos pelo engodo das riquezas, caíram num laço que lhes trouxe a ruína espiritual. (1Ti 6:9, 10) Diz-se que outros caíram no "laço do Diabo". Evidentemente, isto significa que foram desencaminhados e desviados da verdade, e, assim, tornaram-se vítimas do Adversário. Instou-se com Timóteo para que instruísse tais pessoas com brandura, para que caíssem em si e se arrependessem, livrando-se assim do laço do Diabo. — 2Ti 2:23-26; compare isso com 1Ti 1:3, 4; Tit 3:9.

Embora seja comum que maquinadores tentem enlaçar o inocente, Jeová pode inverter as coisas e 'fazer chover armadilhas, fogo e enxofre sobre os iníquos'. (Sal 11:6) Ele pode capturá-los, cortando-lhes todos os meios de escape, e então executar o julgamento neles. — Veja 1Te 5:1-3.

ARMADURA. Veja ARMAS, ARMADURA.

ARMAGEDOM. Veja HAR-MAGEDON.

ARMAS, ARMADURA. Armas e armadura são muitas vezes mencionadas na Bíblia, mas não se fornecem pormenores extensivos sobre a sua fabricação e a sua utilização.

Ao passo que as Escrituras Hebraicas, em especial, falam repetidas vezes do uso de espada, lança, escudo e de outras armas literais, também destacam, de forma coerente, a necessidade vital e a vantagem de se confiar em Jeová. (Gên 15:1; Sal 76:1-3; 115:9-11; 119:114; 144:2) A confiança Nele era evidente nas palavras de Davi a Golias: "Tu vens a mim com espada, e com lança, e com dardo, mas eu chego a ti com o nome de Jeová dos exércitos, o Deus das fileiras combatentes de Israel, de quem escarneceste. No dia de hoje Jeová te entregará na minha mão . . . E toda esta congregação saberá que não é nem com espada nem com lança que Jeová salva, porque a Jeová pertence a batalha." (1Sa 17:45-47) Depender do espírito de Jeová, e não de força militar, é indicado como essencial e eficaz. (Za 4:6) E, ao confirmar Seu amor por sua esposa figurativa, Sião, Jeová garantiu: "Nenhuma arma que se forjar contra ti será bem sucedida . . . Esta é a propriedade hereditária dos servos de Jeová." — Is 54:17.

A palavra hebraica kelí pode denotar uma 'arma', mas pode referir-se também a um "objeto", "vasilha", "instrumento", 'apetrecho' ou "vaso". (Jz 9:54; Le 13:49; Ez 4:9; Núm 35:16; Ec 9:18; Le 6:28) No plural, pode referir-se a "armadura", bem como a "bagagem", a "bens" e a "equipamento". (1Sa 31:9; 10:22; 17:22; Gên 31:37; 45:20) Outra palavra hebraica para “armamento” (né·sheq) deriva da raiz na·sháq, que significa “estar armado; estar equipado”. (1Rs 10:25; 1Cr 12:2; 2Cr 17:17, 18) A palavra grega hó·plon (arma) está relacionada com pa·no·plí·a, que significa ‘todo o armamento; armadura completa’. — Jo 18:3; Lu 11:22; Ef 6:11.

Armas (Ofensivas). Espada e punhal. A palavra hebraica hhé·rev costuma ser traduzida por “espada”, mas também pode ser vertida ‘punhal’, “talhadeira” e ‘faca’. (Gên 3:24; 1Rs 18:28; Êx 20:25; Jos 5:2) Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a espada é a arma ofensiva e defensiva mais frequentemente mencionada. Tinha um cabo e uma lâmina de metal, que podia ser de bronze, cobre, ferro ou aço. As espadas eram usadas para decepar ou cortar (1Sa 17:51; 1Rs 3:24, 25) e para traspassar. (1 Sa 31:4) Algumas espadas eram curtas, outras eram longas, de um só gume ou de gume duplo. Os arqueólogos distinguem o punhal da espada pelo comprimento, com o ponto de diferenciação por volta dos 40 cm.

A espada costumava ficar suspensa do cinto do lado esquerdo (1Sa 25:13) e ser levada numa bainha, que é um estojo ou uma cobertura de couro para a espada ou para o punhal. Segundo Samuel 20:8 permite a possibilidade de Joabe ter deliberadamente ajustado sua espada de modo que caísse da bainha, e então simplesmente a segurou na mão, em vez de embainhá-la de novo. O insuspeitoso Amasa talvez pensasse que ela caíra acidentalmente, e não se preocupou com isso. Isto se mostrou fatal.

Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, costuma-se usar a palavra grega má·khai·ra para espada (Mt 26:47), embora se use também rhom·faí·a, denotando uma “longa espada”. (Re 6:8) Haver duas espadas disponíveis entre os discípulos, na noite em que Jesus foi traído, não era algo incomum naqueles tempos (Lu 22:38), e há evidência de que especialmente para os galileus não era incomum carregarem armas. (Veja The Jewish War [A Guerra Judaica], de F. Josefo, III, 42 [iii, 2].) As palavras de Jesus, em Lucas 22:36: “Quem não tiver espada, venda a sua roupa exterior e compre uma”, não indicavam que seus discípulos estavam prestes a entrar numa vida perigosa. Antes, ele queria ter uma espada disponível entre os seus seguidores, naquela noite, para demonstrar de modo claro que, embora viessem a estar sob circunstâncias que facilmente poderiam provocar uma resistência armada, ele não pretendia recorrer à espada, mas se entregaria voluntariamente em harmonia com a vontade de Deus. Assim, quando Pedro realmente reagiu e tentou oferecer resistência armada, decepando a orelha de Malco, Jesus ordenou-lhe: “Devolve a espada ao seu lugar, pois todos os que tomarem a espada perecerão pela espada.” (Mt 26:52; Jo 18:10, 11) Por certo, a espada de Pedro e a outra disponível pouco teriam adiantado contra um grupo tão grande de homens armados, e, se tentassem usá-las, sem dúvida iriam ‘perecer pela espada’. (Mt 26:47) Mais importante ainda, tal tentativa de livrar Jesus teria fracassado, porque era totalmente contrária ao propósito de Jeová Deus. (Mt 26:53, 54) Assim, mais tarde naquele dia, Jesus pôde dizer claramente a Pilatos: “Se o meu reino fizesse parte deste mundo, meus assistentes teriam lutado para que eu não fosse entregue aos judeus. Mas, assim como é, o meu reino não é desta fonte.” — Jo 18:36.

Lança e dardo. Armas usadas para traspassar ou para arremessar, consistindo em uma haste de ponta ou extremidade afiada. (1Sa 18:11; Jz 5:8; Jos 8:18; Jó 41:26) Vários tipos delas eram usados por todas as nações da antiguidade. A exata distinção entre eles, conforme designados por diferentes palavras hebraicas, é um tanto incerta.

Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a lança (hebr.: hhanith) era aparentemente a mais comprida destas armas, tendo uma longa haste de madeira e em geral uma ponta afiada de pedra ou de metal. Em importância, ela vinha logo após a espada. O gigante Golias carregava uma lança com uma lâmina que pesava “seiscentos siclos de ferro” (6,8 kg), e com uma haste de madeira “como o cilindro dos tecelões”. (1Sa 17:7) Algumas lanças tinham uma ponta metálica no conto, com a qual podiam ser fincadas no chão. De modo que esta extremidade, e não apenas a ponta da lança, podia ser usada eficazmente pelo guerreiro. (2Sa 2:19-23) Uma lança fincada no solo podia indicar o paradeiro temporário dum rei. — 1Sa 26:7.

Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, a lança (gr.: lóg·khe) é mencionada em João 19:34, que diz que, depois de Jesus Cristo ter morrido, “um dos soldados furou-lhe o lado com uma lança”. Visto que era um soldado romano, provavelmente usou o pilo romano. Esta arma tinha cerca de 1,8 m de comprimento, com uma ponta de ferro farpada que se estendia até o meio da haste de madeira.

Certa lança (hebr.: ró·mahh), uma arma com uma haste longa e uma ponta afiada, era usada para traspassar. (Núm 25:7, 8) Era a arma padrão dos hebreus.

Outro tipo de lança (hebr.: ki·dhóhn) tinha uma ponta metálica afiada, e usualmente era atirada. Pelo visto, era menor e mais leve do que a lança convencional, o que permitia que fosse segurada com o braço estendido. (Jos 8:18-26) Esta lança não costumava ser carregada na mão, mas nas costas.

O dardo (hebr.: mas·sá‘) evidentemente era uma arma de arremesso curta, aguçada, similar à flecha. (Jó 41:26) Shé·lahh, a palavra hebraica para outra arma de arremesso, deriva da raiz verbal sha·láhh, que significa "soltar (lançando); estender; lançar de si". (2Cr 23:10; Gên 8:8, 9; Êx 9:15) A palavra hebraica ziq·qím denota "projéteis ardentes" e se relaciona com zi·qóhth, que significa "faíscas; flechas ardentes". — Pr 26:18; Is 50:11 n.

A palavra grega bé·los (projétil) deriva da raiz bál·lo, que significa "arremessar". O apóstolo Paulo usou esta palavra grega ao escrever a respeito de "projéteis ardentes" que podem ser apagados com o grande escudo da fé. (Ef 6:16) Entre os romanos, os dardos eram feitos de canas ocas, e na parte inferior, sob a ponta, havia um receptáculo de ferro que podia ser enchido de nafta ardente. O dardo era então atirado de um arco não muito retesado, visto que atirá-lo dum arco muito retesado apagaria o fogo. Tentar apagar tal projétil com água só aumentaria a chama, e a única maneira de extingui-lo era cobrir o projétil destrutivo com terra.

Legionário romano com escudo.

Arco e flecha. Desde tempos primitivos, o arco (hebr.: qé·sheth; gr.: tó·xon) era usado na caça e na guerra. (Gên 21:20; 27:3; 48:22; Re 6:2) Era uma arma-padrão dos israelitas (2Cr 26:14, 15), dos que lutavam a favor do Egito (Je 46:8, 9), dos assírios (Is 37:33) e dos medo-persas. — Je 50:14; 51:11; veja também ARQUEIRO.

A referência a "um arco de cobre" provavelmente deve ser entendida como significando um arco de madeira revestido de cobre. (2Sa 22:35) A expressão 'retesar ou entesar o arco' (literalmente: 'pisar o arco') refere-se a colocar a corda no arco. (Sal 7:12; 37:14; Je 50:14, 29) Isto podia ser feito por se colocar firmemente o pé sobre o meio do arco; ou uma extremidade do arco, com a corda já presa, podia ser segurada no chão com o pé, ao passo que a outra extremidade era arqueada para receber a ponta livre da corda.

As flechas (hebr.: hhits·tsím) eram feitas de caniço ou de madeira leve, usualmente com penas presas à base. A ponta das flechas, no princípio, era feita de pederneira ou de osso, e mais tarde de metal. Às vezes, as flechas tinham farpas, eram mergulhadas em veneno (Jó 6:4) ou eram revestidas de material combustível. (Sal 7:13) No caso duma flecha incendiária, colocava-se estopa embebida em óleo em buracos ao longo da beirada da ponta metálica, para ser acesa quando se usasse a flecha.

Era costume colocar trinta flechas num estojo de couro ou aljava. Relevos assírios mostram que as aljavas levadas em carros continham 50 flechas. — Veja Is 22:6.

Funda. Desde tempos antigos, a funda (hebr.: qé·la') tem sido a arma de pastores (1Sa 17:40) e de guerreiros. (2Cr 26:14) Era uma tira de couro ou uma faixa tecida de materiais tais como tendões de animais, juncos ou cabelos. 'A concavidade da funda', a parte central mais larga, recebia o projétil. (1Sa 25:29) Uma extremidade da funda talvez fosse presa à mão ou ao pulso, ao passo que a outra era segurada na mão, para ser solta ao girar a funda. A funda carregada era girada acima da cabeça, talvez diversas vezes, e então se soltava de repente uma ponta, arremessando o projétil com considerável força e velocidade. Pedras lisas e redondas eram especialmente desejadas para o uso da funda, embora outros projéteis também fossem usados. (1Sa 17:40) Fundibulários constituíam parte regular dos exércitos de Judá (2Cr 26:14) e de Israel. — 2Rs 3:25.

Clava de guerra, bordões e acha de armas. A "clava de guerra" evidentemente era um pesado cacetete, ou maça, às vezes tachonado de metal. (Pr 25:18) O 'bordão' era um bastão de madeira, talvez com ponta de metal, usado como arma. (Ez 39:9) A acha era uma arma que usualmente tinha um relativamente curto cabo de madeira ou de metal, e um cabeçote de pedra ou de metal com lâmina afiada. Há uma alusão à acha de armas em linguagem figurada no Salmo 35:3, onde Davi pede a Jeová que 'puxe da lança e da acha bipene para enfrentar os que o perseguem'.

Armadura. Com o fim de proteger o corpo contra as armas ofensivas do inimigo, o soldado usava diversos tipos de escudos e de armadura pessoal.

Escudo. Uma grande peça da armadura defensiva usada por todas as nações antigas. Era dotado de uma alça interna e carregado pelo guerreiro durante a batalha, usualmente sobre o braço esquerdo ou na mão esquerda, embora durante a marcha talvez fosse pendurado no ombro por uma tira. Isaías 22:6 indica que alguns talvez fossem providos duma cobertura que era retirada por ocasião do combate. Em tempos de paz, os escudos frequentemente eram colocados em arsenais. — Cân 4:4.

Os escudos usados nos tempos antigos muitas vezes eram feitos de madeira revestida de couro, e esses escudos podiam ser incendiados. (Ez 39:9) Ao passo que em geral se usavam escudos de madeira e couro, parece que os escudos de metal eram menos comuns, sendo usados especialmente por líderes, guardas reais ou possivelmente para fins cerimoniais. (2Sa 8:7; 1Rs 14:27, 28) Os escudos eram untados com óleo para torná-los maleáveis e resistentes à umidade, para impedir que o metal enferrujasse ou para torná-los lisos e escorregadios. (2Sa 1:21) O escudo de couro costumava ser adornado com um pesado umbigo central (uma protuberância arredondada, ou bossa) de metal, que aumentava a proteção. — Jó 15:26.

O "escudo grande" (hebr.: tsin·náh) era carregado pela infantaria fortemente armada (2Cr 14:8) e às vezes por um escudeiro. (1Sa 17:7, 41) Era oval, ou retangular como uma porta. Pelo que parece, um similar "grande escudo" é indicado em Efésios 6:16 pela palavra grega thy·re·ós (de thý·ra, que significa "porta"). O tsin·náh era bastante grande para cobrir o corpo inteiro. (Sal 5:12) Ocasionalmente era usado para estabelecer uma sólida frente de combate com lanças estendidas. O escudo grande é às vezes mencionado junto com a lança como forma de referência a armas em geral. — 1Cr 12:8, 34; 2Cr 11:12.

O "escudo" menor ou "broquel" (hebr.: ma·ghén) era costumeiramente usado por arqueiros e usualmente é associado com armas leves, tais como o arco. Por exemplo, era usado pelos arqueiros benjaminitas da força militar do Rei Asa, de Judá. (2Cr 14:8) O escudo menor costumava ser redondo e era mais comum do que o escudo grande, provavelmente sendo usado principalmente no combate de corpo a corpo. Que o tsin·náh e o ma·ghén hebraicos diferiam consideravelmente em tamanho parece ser indicado pelos escudos de ouro feitos por Salomão, sendo que o escudo grande era revestido com quatro vezes mais ouro do que o escudo menor, ou broquel. (1Rs 10:16, 17; 2Cr 9:15, 16) O ma·ghén, assim como o tsin·náh, parece ter constituído parte duma expressão geral para armas de guerra. — 2Cr 14:8; 17:17; 32:5.

A palavra hebraica shé·let, traduzida por 'escudo circular', ocorre sete vezes nas Escrituras Hebraicas e é evidentemente similar ao mais comum ma·ghén (escudo), visto que é usada em conjunto com ma·ghén em O Cântico de Salomão 4:4.

Capacete. Cobertura militar para a cabeça, destinada a proteger o combatente durante a batalha, e parte bem básica da armadura defensiva. A palavra hebraica para "capacete" é koh·vá' (alternadamente qoh·vá'), ao passo que o termo grego é pe·ri·ke·fa·laí·a, que significa literalmente "ao redor da cabeça". — 1Sa 17:5, 38; Ef 6:17.

Originalmente, os capacetes israelitas eram provavelmente feitos de couro. Mais tarde, eram recobertos de cobre ou de ferro, e usados sobre gorros de lã, de feltro ou de couro. Capacetes de cobre já eram usados em Israel nos dias do Rei Saul. (1Sa 17:38) Embora os capacetes, de início, talvez fossem reservados para reis e outros líderes, mais tarde eram de uso geral, sendo que Uzias equipou todo o exército com eles. — 2Cr 26:14.

Os filisteus possuíam capacetes de metal; Golias usava um de cobre. (1Sa 17:5) Ezequiel mencionou capacetes em conexão com persas, etíopes e outros. — Ez 27:10; 38:5.

Cota de malha. Uma capa usada como proteção na batalha. A cota de malha (hebr.: shir·yóhn ou shir·yán) consistia numa capa de pano ou de couro, em cuja superfície se prendiam centenas de pedacinhos escalonados de metal (parecidos às escamas de peixe). Frequentemente cobria o peito, as costas e os ombros, embora às vezes chegasse até os joelhos ou mesmo os tornozelos. — 1Sa 17:5.

Entre os hebreus, a cota de malha muitas vezes era feita de couro recoberto de escamas ou placas metálicas. O usuário gozava assim de considerável proteção, mas, não obstante, era vulnerável nos pontos de junção das escamas ou onde a cota de malha se ligava a outras partes da armadura. Assim, o Rei Acabe foi mortalmente ferido por um ar-queiro que “foi atingir o rei de Israel entre as peças acessórias e a cota de malha”. — 1Rs 22:34-37.

Cinto. O cinto militar dos tempos antigos era uma faixa de couro usada em volta da cintura ou dos quadris. Variava de largura entre 5 e 15 cm, e muitas vezes estava revestido de placas de ferro, prata ou ouro. A espada do guerreiro pendia dele, e às vezes o cinto era segurado por um suspensório. (1Sa 18:4; 2Sa 20:8) Ao passo que um cinto solto indicava descontração (1Rs 20:11), cingir os lombos ou os quadris indicava prontidão para a ação ou para a batalha. — Êx 12:11; 1Rs 18:46; 1Pe 1:13 n.

Grevas. Armadura que consistia em placas finas de metal, cobrindo a perna entre o tornozelo e o joelho. A única referência bíblica a elas está em 1 Samuel 17:6, onde se mostra que o gigante guerreiro filisteu Golias, de Gate, tinha “grevas [hebr.: mits·hháth] de cobre acima dos seus pés”. Os israelitas talvez também usassem grevas em certa medida.

Armamento Espiritual. Embora os verdadeiros cristãos não participem na guerra carnal, eles travam uma batalha e são comparados a soldados. (Fil 2:25; 2Ti 2:3; Flm 2) O cristão tem uma pugna “contra os governos [não constituídos de humanos de carne e sangue], contra as autoridades, contra os governantes mundiais desta escuridão, contra as forças espirituais iníquas nos lugares celestiais”. (Ef 6:12) Visto que armas e armadura físicas não seriam de valor algum numa batalha contra espíritos sobre-humanos, os cristãos têm de tomar “a armadura completa de Deus”. — Ef 6:13.

Paulo aconselha os cristãos a ter ‘os lombos cingidos com a verdade’. (Ef 6:14) Assim como um cinto pode dar apoio e proteção aos lombos, assim um apego inquebrantável à verdade divina pode fortalecer o cristão na sua determinação de permanecer firme, apesar de provações.

A seguir, o cristão tem de revestir-se da “couraça da justiça”. (Ef 6:14) Uma couraça literal servia para proteger órgãos vitais, especialmente o coração. A necessidade da justiça como couraça protetora para o coração figurativo é especialmente evidente em vista da inclinação pecaminosa do coração. — Gên 8:21; Je 17:9.

Parte da armadura espiritual é ter os pés “calçados do equipamento das boas novas de paz”. (Ef 6:15) A palavra grega he·toi·ma·sí·a, traduzida “equipamento”, tem o sentido básico de “prontidão”. (Veja CBC; NTI; TEB) Estar o cristão sempre equipado e pronto para divulgar as “boas novas” a outros, e fazer ele isso apesar de dificuldades, pode ajudá-lo a perseverar fielmente.

Uma parte destacada da armadura espiritual é “o grande escudo da fé”. Igual ao escudo grande que cobria a maior parte do corpo, a fé em Jeová Deus e na capacidade dele de cumprir suas promessas, habilitará o cristão a “apagar todos os projéteis ardentes do iníquo”. (Ef 6:16; compare isso com Sal 91:4.) A fé ajudará o cristão a suportar ataques de espíritos iníquos, a resistir a tentações de cometer imoralidade, a evitar desejos materialistas, e a não ceder ao medo, à dúvida ou ao pesar excessivo. — Gên 39:7-12; He 11:15; 13:6; Tg 1:6; 1Te 4:13.

Assim como o capacete protege a cabeça do soldado, assim “o capacete de salvação” resguarda as faculdades mentais do cristão contra influências ímpias. (Ef 6:17) Usar “por capacete a esperança da salvação” significa olhar “atentamente para o pagamento da recompensa”, assim como Moisés fez. — 1Te 5:8; He 11:26.

“A espada do espírito, isto é, a palavra de Deus”, é indispensável para o cristão rechaçar falsos ensinos e tradições de homens, ensinar a verdade e “demolir as coisas fortemente entrincheiradas”. — Ef 6:17; 2Co 10:4, 5.

ARMONI [Da Torre de Habitação; Nascido na Torre de Habitação]. Um dos dois filhos nascidos a Saul da sua concubina Rispa. A fim de expiar a culpa de sangue de Saul, sete de seus descendentes, inclusive Armoni, foram entregues aos gibeonitas, os quais os mataram e expuseram os cadáveres no monte. Rispa manteve vigília, não permitindo que aves ou animais os molestassem, até que Davi mandou que se enterrassem os ossos. — 2Sa 21:5-14.

ARNÃ. Nome que aparece numa lista de descendentes do Rei Davi. Arnã viveu depois do retorno do exílio babilônico. — 1Cr 3:1, 21.

ARNI. Uma pessoa mencionada na lista dos antecessores humanos de Jesus Cristo. É uma variante do equivalente grego do nome hebraico Rão; na Septuaginta grega, o nome hebraico Rão é vertido Arã. — Lu 3:33; 1Cr 2:10; veja RÃO N.º 1.

ARNOM, VALE DO. Veja ÁRNON, VALE DA TORRENTE DO.

ÁRNON, VALE DA TORRENTE DO. Aproximadamente no meio do lado oriental do Mar Morto, a profunda garganta do vale do Árnon corta a região do altiplano. Esta torrente, o uádi Mujib (Nahal Arnon), é alimentada por diversos tributários (Núm 21:14), e, depois do Jordão, é a única corrente importante que deságua no Mar Morto. Os penhascos alcantilados de arenito vermelho e amarelo descem abruptamente, ladeando o vale estreito com seu pequeno rio perene de águas límpidas, repletas de peixes. Nas margens crescem salgueiros, oleandros e outra vegetação em abundância. Onde o rio deixa as íngremes muralhas da garganta para penetrar nas margens planas do Mar Morto, ele varia em largura de 12 a 30 m, com uma profundidade de 30 cm a 1,20 m.

O enorme desfiladeiro que, no topo, tem uns 3 km de largura e quase 520 m de profundidade, era atravessado apenas por umas poucas passagens (Is 16:2), e, por isso, tornou-se um óbvio limite natural. No tempo da conquista israelita, separava os amorreus ao N dos moabitas ao S (Núm 21:13), mas a mensagem de Jefté aos amonitas mostra que o lado N já estivera sob o controle dos amonitas e tinha sido invadido pelos amorreus antes da chegada de Israel. (Jz 11:12-27) Israel, tendo contornado o território de Moabe, chegou ao Árnon, provavelmente em sua parte superior. Atacado por Síon, o rei amorreu, Israel obteve a vitória e tomou posse da terra, desde o Árnon até o Jaboque. (Núm 21:21-24; De 2:24-36; veja JABOQUE, VALE DA TORRENTE DO.) Esta primeira conquista tornou-se posteriormente o território das tribos de Rubem e Gade. — De 3:16; Jos 12:1, 2; 13:8, 9, 15-28.

Visto que Jeú deixou de andar estritamente segundo a lei de Jeová, esta região foi mais tarde tomada pelas forças invasoras de Hazael, da Síria. (2Rs 10:32, 33) O Árnon é mencionado na linha 26 da famosa Pedra Moabita, na qual o Rei Mesa, de Moabe, se gaba de ter construído uma estrada ao longo do vale. As descobertas arqueológicas oferecem evidência de vários fortes e pontes nesta região, atestando a importância estratégica do Árnon. Seu nome consta em profecias dirigidas contra Moabe. — Is 16:2; Je 48:20.

ARODE, ARODI, ARODITAS. Sexto filho mencionado de Gade e uma das almas que entraram no Egito junto com a família de Jacó, em 1728 AEC. Ele se tornou chefe de família dos aroditas incluídos no censo feito no ermo em 1473 AEC. — Gên 46:8, 16; Núm 26:17.

AROER [Junípero].

1. Cidade situada à beira N da profunda garganta que constitui o vale da torrente do Árnon. Por ocasião da conquista feita por Israel (c. 1474 AEC), Desfiladeiro do Árnon: em alguns lugares chega a quase 520 m de profundidade e uns 3 km de largura.

era a cidade mais sulina do reino amorreu. (De 2:36; 4:47, 48; Jos 12:2) Depois passou para a tribo de Rubem, embora se mencione que a tribo de Gade construiu (provavelmente reparou) a cidade. (Núm 32:33, 34; De 3:12; Jos 13:8, 9, 15, 16; 1Cr 5:8) Ela marcava a fronteira meridional de Israel ao L do Jordão, e assim correspondia a Berseba, principal cidade meridional ao O do Jordão.

Depois de uns 300 anos de ocupação israelita, os amonitas reivindicaram a região entre o Árnon e o Jaboque, mas o juiz Jefté refutou esta reivindicação por mostrar que Israel tomara a terra, inclusive Aroer, dos amorreus. — Jz 11:13, 22, 26.

Esta cidade de Aroer parece ter sido o ponto de partida do censo ordenado pelo Rei Davi, censo que depois passou para o N, a Dã-Jaã, e daí deu volta até Tiro e Sídon, e então foi para o S, a Berseba, no Negebe. (2Sa 24:4-8) A menção da "cidade que está no meio do vale da torrente" coincide com referências similares em Deuteronômio 2:36 e Josué 13:9, 16. Alguns acham que esta cidade sem nome mencionado corresponde a Khirbet el-Medeiyineh, a cerca de 11 km ao SE de Aroer.

Durante o reinado do Rei Jeú, de Israel (c. 904-877 AEC), o Rei Hazael, da Síria, tomou os territórios de Gade e de Rubem, indo ao S até Aroer, no Árnon. (2Rs 10:33) Talvez fosse neste tempo que o rei moabita Mesa fortificou a cidade e construiu a estrada junto ao Árnon, conforme relatado na linha 26 da Pedra Moabita. No tempo da profecia de Jeremias contra Moabe, a cidade achava-se sob controle moabita. — Je 48:19.

O lugar da cidade antiga é identificado com Khirbet ʽAraʽir, uns 23 km ao L do Mar Morto, e a uns 6 km ao SE de Díbon, e perto da Estrada Real, a principal rota N-S daquele lado do Jordão. As ruínas contêm evidências duma antiga fortaleza, a qual, do seu ponto de observação à borda da impressionante garganta, provavelmente podia controlar as passagens através do Árnon.

2. Cidade do território de Gade, descrita como "defronte de Rabá" (a moderna Amã), principal cidade dos amonitas. (Jos 13:24, 25) Possivelmente se trata da Aroer mencionada na descrição da vitória de Jefté sobre os amonitas, em Juízes 11:33. A localização do lugar é incerta, visto que a expressão "defronte de" não é especialmente restritiva, embora muitas vezes considerada como significando "ao leste de".

3. Cidade na parte meridional do território de Judá. Depois da vitória de Davi sobre os incursores amalequitas, ele distribuiu parte do despojo entre os anciãos da cidade. (1Sa 30:26, 28) É identificada com Khirbet ʽArʽarah (Horvat ʽAroʽer), a cerca de 17 km ao SE de Berseba, onde remanescem as ruínas dum forte. Alguns peritos acham que talvez seja o mesmo lugar que a "Adada" de Josué 15:22, sendo em ambos os casos a letra hebraica dálete (ד) substituída por rexe (ר).

A referência às "cidades de Aroer", em Isaías 17:2, pode aplicar-se a qualquer das primeiras duas cidades aqui consideradas. A profecia trata primariamente de Damasco, e visto que a conquista síria sobre Israel se estendia até Aroer, no Árnon, a expressão pode referir-se a este ponto mais sulino da extensão de seu poder ao L do Jordão. — 2Rs 10:33.

AROERITA [De (Pertencente a) Aroer]. Habitante de uma das cidades chamadas Aroer. Em 1 Crônicas 11:44, Hotão, pai de dois dos poderosos de Davi, chamados Sama e Jeiel, é chamado de aroerita. A associação dos seus filhos com Davi talvez indicasse que a cidade do pai deles se encontrava no território de Judá. — Veja AROER N.º 3.

ARPADE. Cidade real do N da Síria, sempre associada na Bíblia com a cidade de Hamate. Arpade tem sido identificada com Tell Erfad (Tell Rifʽat), a cerca de 30 km ao NNO de Alepo. Situada na estrada que leva ao S, a Hamate e a Damasco, sofreu frequentes ataques dos assírios e foi finalmente conquistada por Tiglate-Pileser III, e mais tarde por Sargão II. Neste respeito, o filho de Sargão, Senaqueribe, ao ameaçar Jerusalém em 732 AEC, mandou seu porta-voz Rabsaqué referir-se à sorte de Arpade, como evidência da incapacidade dos deuses das nações de resistir ao grande poderio da Assíria. (2Rs 18:34; 19:12, 13; Is 36:19; 37:12, 13) O profeta Isaías anteriormente predissera tal jactância. (Is 10:9) Mais tarde, Jeremias profetizou que Hamate e Arpade se envergonhariam e se desintegrariam diante duma "notícia má", evidentemente a respeito das conquistas do rei babilônio Nabucodonosor. — Je 49:23.

ARPÃO. Instrumento farpado, semelhante a uma lança, geralmente usado para arpoar grandes peixes. Somente em Jó 41:7 se faz referência ao arpão, trazendo à atenção a qualidade de couraça da pele do leviatã (o crocodilo), que resiste à penetração dum arpão comum.

ARPAXADE. Filho de Sem. Nasceu dois anos depois do Dilúvio, isto é, por volta de 2368 AEC, e morreu 438 anos depois. Era antepassado dos hebreus por meio de seu neto Éber. (Gên 10:22, 24; 11:10-13; 1Cr 1:17-27) Indica-se que ele é o pai de Selá, embora o relato de Lucas (3:35, 36), pela inclusão de Cainã, aparentemente faria dele o avô de Selá; mas, veja CAINÃ N.º 2. — Gên 10:24; 11:12; 1Cr 1:24.

ARQUEIRO. Alguém que usa arco e flecha. O uso de arco e flecha após o Dilúvio habilitou o homem a matar (para alimento, roupa e abrigo) os animais que eram rápidos e perigosos demais para serem apanhados de outro modo. Com a ascensão de Ninrode, é provável que arqueiros fossem recrutados para o seu serviço.

No século 20 AEC, Ismael, primogênito de Abraão, "tornou-se arqueiro", para sustentar-se no ermo. (Gên 21:20) Similarmente, Esaú, neto de Abraão, sabia manejar com perícia o arco. (Gên 27:3) Os monumentos testificam que, desde os tempos mais primitivos, os principais guerreiros ofensivos do Egito eram arqueiros, e há também esculturas babilônicas de arqueiros. Nos dias de Josué (Jos 24:12) e de Davi (1Cr 12:1, 2), e posteriormente, os arqueiros eram importante parte do exército de Israel. (2Cr 14:8; 26:14) Os arqueiros dos filisteus, sírios e egípcios feriram os reis Saul, Acabe e Josias, respectivamente. — 1Sa 31:1-3; 1Rs 22:34, 35; 2Cr 35:20, 23.

Arqueiro da guarda real persa.

Relevos de Nínive ilustram os arqueiros assírios em carros, portando dois arcos, um longo e outro curto. Quando atiravam uma flecha, tinham outras na mão, assim aumentando a rapidez com que atiravam. O plano de ataque assírio parece ter sido o de sobrepujar o inimigo sob um dilúvio de flechas, e então usar a espada e a lança para persegui-lo.

Os persas têm sido chamados de os arqueiros mais peritos do mundo. Relevos de Persépolis e de Susa mostram soldados medos e persas equipados com arcos e aljavas. Desde os 5 até os 20 anos, os rapazes persas aprendiam a arte de atirar com arco e a montar; seus cavalarianos eram peritos, até mesmo ao atirarem para trás. A mobilidade e a liberdade de movimento dos arqueiros constituíam o plano básico da estratégia persa ao investir contra o inimigo, sob uma chuva de flechas.

Os impérios ocidentais da Grécia e de Roma não tinham em tão alta conta o arco e a flecha como as nações orientais, embora, às vezes, os arqueiros desempenhassem um papel significativo em suas vitórias. Isto talvez se devesse ao método grego de retesar o arco junto ao corpo, estilo menos eficaz, ao invés de retesá-lo junto às bochechas ou aos olhos, como faziam os egípcios e os persas. Mercenários cretenses e asiáticos parecem ter sido os arqueiros peritos, ao passo que os gregos e os romanos confiavam na espada e na lança. — Veja ARMAS, ARMADURA.

Uso Figurativo. Evidentemente referindo-se ao tratamento injusto dado a José pelos seus irmãos, Jacó disse a respeito de seu filho José: "Os arqueiros [literalmente: donos de arcos] o hostilizavam e atiravam contra ele." (Gên 49:23) Jó disse a respeito da aparente animosidade de Deus para com ele: "Seus arqueiros me cercam." (Jó 16:13) A palavra hebraica rav, aqui traduzida por 'arqueiro', deriva de ra·váv, que significa "atirar". (Gên 49:23) A palavra hebraica rav ocorre também em Provérbios 26:10, que reza: "Como o arqueiro que traspassa tudo é aquele que contrata alguém estúpido ou aquele que contrata transeuntes." Este provérbio destaca o dano que se pode causar quando alguém em posição de responsabilidade emprega outro não qualificado para determinada tarefa.

ARQUELAU [Governante do Povo]. Filho de Herodes, o Grande, com sua quarta esposa, Maltace. Arquelau tornou-se rei na Judeia enquanto o menino Jesus estava no Egito com José e Maria. Em vez de enfrentarem o seu governo tirânico ao voltar, José estabeleceu a família fora da jurisdição de Arquelau, lá em Nazaré da Galileia. — Mt 2:22, 23.

Herodes, o Grande, pai de Arquelau, deixou-lhe em herança o governo da Judeia, de Samaria e da Idumeia, um quinhão do reino que era o dobro do legado a cada um dos seus dois outros filhos, e que incluía as importantes cidades de Jerusalém, Samaria, Jope e Cesareia. Após a morte de Herodes, Arquelau esforçou-se a tornar mais seguro o seu governo por comparecer perante Augusto, em Roma; apesar dos opositores às suas pretensões, inclusive seu irmão e uma delegação de judeus, Arquelau obteve permissão de reter seu poder, embora Augusto não o fizesse rei, mas etnarca, um príncipe tributário de categoria superior a um tetrarca. Mateus, porém, refere-se corretamente a ele como 'reinando', pois o exército local o havia previamente proclamado rei. — Jewish Antiquities (Antiguidades Judaicas), de F. Josefo, XVII, 194, 195 (viii, 2).

Arquelau era um governante cruel e muitíssimo impopular entre os judeus. Ao abafar um motim, ele certa vez mandou que 3.000 deles fossem im-placavelmente mortos na área do templo; por duas vezes depôs o sumo sacerdote; e, além disso, seu divórcio e seu novo casamento também eram contrários à lei judaica. Queixas dos judeus e dos samaritanos, feitas a Augusto, finalmente resultaram numa investigação e no banimento de Arquelau, no nono ou no décimo ano de seu reinado. A Judeia, depois disso, ficou sob governadores romanos. — Veja HERODES N.º 1 e 2.

ARQUEOLOGIA. A arqueologia bíblica é o estudo dos povos e dos eventos da Bíblia, feito por meio do intrigante registro soterrado. O arqueólogo escava e analisa rochas, muros e prédios em ruínas, cidades devastadas, bem como desenterra cerâmica, tabuinhas de argila, inscrições, túmulos e outros restos antigos, ou artefatos, dos quais colhe informações. Tais estudos não raro aprimoram a compreensão das circunstâncias em que a Bíblia foi escrita e sob as quais viveram os homens de fé da antiguidade, bem como as línguas que eles e os povos ao redor empregavam. Ampliaram nosso conhecimento de todas as regiões mencionadas na Bíblia: Palestina, Egito, Pérsia, Assíria, Babilônia, Ásia Menor, Grécia e Roma.

A arqueologia bíblica é uma ciência relativamente nova. Foi somente em 1822 que a decifração da Pedra de Roseta desvelou os hieróglifos egípcios. A escrita cuneiforme assíria foi decodificada mais de 20 anos depois. Escavações sistemáticas foram iniciadas na Assíria em 1843 e no Egito em 1850.

Alguns dos Principais Sítios e Achados. A arqueologia tem servido para confirmar muitas particularidades históricas dos relatos bíblicos referentes a estas terras e para confirmar pontos anteriormente postos em dúvida por críticos modernos. Demonstrou-se que o cepticismo com respeito à Torre de Babel, a negação da existência dum rei babilônio chamado Belsazar e dum rei assírio chamado Sargão (cujos nomes, até o século 19 EC, não eram encontrados em fontes fora do registro bíblico), e outras críticas adversas quanto aos dados bíblicos relacionados com essas terras não têm nenhuma base. Ao contrário, desenterrou-se uma abundância de evidência que se harmoniza plenamente com os relatos bíblicos.

Babilônia. Escavações feitas na antiga cidade de Babilônia e em torno dela revelaram os sítios de diversos zigurates, ou torres-templos piramidais, escalonados, inclusive o templo arruinado de Etemenanki, dentro dos muros de Babilônia. Registros e inscrições encontrados a respeito de tais templos frequentemente contêm as palavras: "Seu topo atingirá os céus", e o Rei Nabucodonosor é registrado como dizendo: "Ergui o topo da Torre escalonada em Etemenanki, de modo que seu topo se rivalizasse com os céus." Um fragmento de argila encontrado ao N do templo de Marduque, em Babilônia, pode relacionar a queda de uma dessas torres e a confusão das línguas, mesmo que esse fragmento não mencione especificamente um zigurate. (The Chaldean Account of Genesis, [O Relato Caldeu de Gênesis], de George Adam Smith, revisado e corrigido [com adições] por A. H. Sayce, 1880, p. 164) O zigurate situado em Uruk (a Ereque bíblica), segundo verificado, foi feito de argila, tijolos e asfalto. — Veja Gên 11:1-9.

Perto da Porta de Istar, em Babilônia, foram descobertas cerca de 300 tabuinhas cuneiformes relacionadas com o período do reinado do Rei Nabucodonosor. Entre listas do nome de trabalhadores e de cativos que então viviam em Babilônia, aos quais eram fornecidas provisões, aparece o de "Yaukin, rei da terra de Yahud", isto é, "Joaquim, o rei da terra de Judá", levado para Babilônia no tempo da conquista de Jerusalém por Nabucodonosor, em 617 AEC. Ele foi solto da casa de detenção por Avil-Marduque (Evil-Merodaque), sucessor de Nabucodonosor, e foi-lhe concedida uma porção diária de alimentos. (2Rs 25:27-30) Cinco dos filhos de Joaquim também são mencionados nestas tabuinhas. — 1Cr 3:17, 18.

Encontrou-se abundante evidência do panteão de deuses de Babilônia, inclusive do deus principal, Marduque, mais tarde comumente chamado de Bel, e do deus Nebo, ambos mencionados em Isaías 46:1, 2. Grande parte das informações nas inscrições do próprio Nabucodonosor tratam do seu vasto programa de construções, que tornou Babilônia uma cidade tão magnificente. (Veja Da 4:30.) O nome do seu sucessor, Avil-Marduque (chamado Evil-Merodaque em 2Rs 25:27), aparece num vaso descoberto em Susa (Elão).

Também em Babilônia, no sítio do templo de Marduque, encontrou-se um cilindro de argila relativo ao Rei Ciro, conquistador de Babilônia. Este cilindro conta a facilidade com que Ciro capturou a cidade e também delineia sua política, de fazer os povos cativos que moravam em Babilônia retornar à terra natal deles, harmonizando-se assim com o relato bíblico a respeito de Ciro, como o profetizado conquistador de Babilônia, e sobre o retorno dos judeus à Palestina, durante o reinado de Ciro. — Is 44:28; 45:1; 2Cr 36:23.

Perto da moderna Bagdá, as escavações na última metade do século 19 resultaram em serem achadas numerosas tabuinhas e cilindros de argila, inclusive a agora famosa Crônica de Nabonido. Todas as objeções ao registro do capítulo 5 de Daniel, quanto a Belsazar governar em Babilônia na ocasião da queda desta, foram rechaçadas por este documento, que provou que Belsazar, filho mais velho de Nabonido, era corregente com seu pai, e que, na parte final de seu reinado, Nabonido confiou o governo de Babilônia ao seu filho Belsazar.

Mostrou-se similarmente que Ur, a antiga cidade de Abraão (Gên 11:28-31), era uma destacada metrópole, com civilização altamente desenvolvida. Como cidade sumeriana, estava situada à margem do rio Eufrates, próxima do golfo Pérsico. Escavações feitas ali por Sir Leonard Woolley indicam que estava no ápice do seu poder e prestígio no tempo da partida de Abraão para Canaã (a. 1943 AEC). Seu templo-zigurate é o mais bem preservado de todos os já encontrados. Os túmulos reais de Ur forneceram abundantes objetos de ouro e joias de altíssimo calibre artístico, também instrumentos musicais, tais como a harpa. (Veja Gên 4:21.) Um pequeno machado de aço (e não simplesmente de ferro) também foi encontrado. (Veja Gên 4:22.) Aqui, também, milhares de tabuinhas de argila revelaram muitos pormenores sobre a vida quase quatro mil anos atrás. — Veja UR N.º 2.

Assíria. Perto de Corsabade, junto a um tributário setentrional do rio Tigre, descobriu-se, em 1843, o palácio do rei assírio Sargão II, numa plataforma abrangendo quase 10 hectares, e o subsequente trabalho arqueológico feito ali trouxe este rei, mencionado em Isaías 20:1, da obscuridade secular para uma posição de proeminência histórica. (FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 960) Em um de seus anais, ele afirma ter capturado Samaria (740 AEC). Registra também a captura de Asdode, mencionada em Isaías 20:1. Outrora considerado por muitos peritos de destaque como não tendo existido, Sargão II é agora um dos mais conhecidos reis da Assíria.

Nínive, capital da Assíria, foi o sítio de escavações onde desenterraram o imenso palácio de Senaqueribe, contendo cerca de 70 aposentos, com lajes esculpidas que revestiam 3.000 m das paredes. Uma delas retrata os prisioneiros judeus sendo levados ao cativeiro após a queda de Laquis, em 732 AEC. (2Rs 18:13-17; 2Cr 32:9; FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 952) De interesse ainda maior são os anais de Senaqueribe encontrados aqui em Nínive, registrados em prismas (cilindros de argila). Em certos prismas, Senaqueribe descreve a campanha assíria contra a Palestina no reinado de Ezequias (732 AEC), porém, notavelmente, o jactancioso monarca não faz nenhuma afirmação de ter tomado Jerusalém, confirmando assim o relato da Bíblia. (Veja SENAQUERIBE.) O relato do assassinato de Senaqueribe, às mãos de seus filhos, é também registrado numa inscrição de Esar-Hadom, sucessor de Senaqueribe, e o assassinato é mencionado numa inscrição do rei seguinte. (2Rs 19:37) Em adição à menção do Rei Ezequias, por Senaqueribe, os nomes dos reis Acaz e Manassés, de Judá, e os nomes dos reis Onri, Jeú, Jeoás, Menaém e Oseias, de Israel, e também de Hazael, de Damasco, aparecem em registros cuneiformes de diversos imperadores assírios.

Pérsia. Perto de Behistun, no Irã (antiga Pérsia), o Rei Dario I (521-486 AEC; Esd 6:1-15) mandou esculpir uma imensa inscrição, no alto dum penhasco de rocha calcária, descrevendo sua unificação do Império Persa e atribuindo seu êxito a seu deus, Auramazda. De valor primário é o fato de a inscrição ter sido registrada em três línguas, a babilônica (acadiana), a elamita e a antiga persa, servindo assim de chave para decifrar a escrita cuneiforme assírio-babilônica, até então não decifrada. Milhares de tabuinhas de argila e inscrições, na língua babilônica, podem agora ser lidas em resultado desse trabalho.

Susã, cenário dos eventos registrados no livro de Ester, foi escavada por arqueólogos franceses entre 1880 e 1890. (Est 1:2) O palácio real de Xerxes, abrangendo cerca de 1 ha, foi descoberto, revelando o esplendor e a magnificência dos reis persas. Os achados confirmaram a exatidão de pormenores registrados pelo escritor de Ester, conforme relacionados com a administração do reino persa e com a construção do palácio. O livro The Monuments and the Old Testament (Os Monumentos e o Velho Testamento), de I. M. Price (1946, p. 408), comenta: "Não existe nenhum evento descrito no Velho Testamento cujo ambiente estrutural possa ser tão vívida e exatamente restaurado por meio das próprias escavações como 'Susã, o Palácio'." — Veja SUSÃ.

Mari e Nuzi. A antiga cidade real de Mari (Tell Hariri) perto do rio Eufrates, a uns 11 km ao NNO de Abu Kemal, no SE da Síria, foi o sítio de escavações a partir de 1933. Descobriu-se um enorme palácio, abrangendo uns 6 ha e contendo 300 aposentos, e seus arquivos forneceram mais de 20.000 tabuinhas de argila. O conjunto palaciano incluía não somente os apartamentos reais, mas também escritórios administrativos e uma escola para escribas. Grandes pinturas murais ou afrescos decoravam muitas das paredes, os banheiros estavam equipados de banheiras, e encontraram-se na cozinha formas para bolos. A cidade parece ter sido uma das mais notáveis e brilhantes do período do começo do segundo milênio AEC. Os textos nas tabuinhas de argila incluíam decretos reais, editais, contas, e ordens para a construção de canais, comportas, diques e outros projetos de irrigação, bem como correspondência sobre importações, exportações e assuntos estrangeiros. Faziam-se frequentes recenseamentos, envolvendo tributação e alistamento militar. A religião tinha destaque, especialmente a adoração de Istar, a deusa da fertilidade, cujo templo também foi encontrado. Praticava-se a adivinhação assim como em Babilônia, pela observação de fígados, pela astronomia e por métodos si-milares. A cidade foi na maior parte destruída pelo rei babilônio Hamurábi. De interesse especial foi a ocorrência dos nomes Pelegue, Serugue, Naor, Tera e Harã, todos alistados como cidades da Mesopotâmia setentrional e refletindo os nomes dos parentes de Abraão. — Gên 11:17-32.

Nuzi, antiga cidade ao L do Tigre e ao SE de Nínive, escavada durante 1925-1931, forneceu um mapa inscrito de argila, o mais antigo já descoberto, bem como evidência de que já no século 15 AEC comprava-se e vendia-se ali a prestações. Desenterraram-se cerca de 20.000 tabuinhas de argila, consideradas como escritas por escribas hurritas na língua babilônica. Estas contêm uma abundância de pormenores a respeito da jurisprudência daquele tempo, envolvendo coisas tais como adoção, contratos matrimoniais, direitos de herança e testamentos. Certos aspectos mostram um paralelo relativamente similar aos costumes descritos no relato de Gênesis a respeito dos patriarcas. O costume de um casal sem filhos adotar um do sexo masculino, quer livre quer escravo, para cuidar deles, para sepultá-los e para ser seu herdeiro, mostra similaridade com a declaração de Abraão a respeito do seu escravo de confiança, Eliézer, em Gênesis 15:2. Descreve-se a venda do direito de primogenitura, relembrando o caso de Jacó e Esaú. (Gên 25:29-34) Os textos mostram também que a posse de deuses de família, muitas vezes pequenas estatuetas de argila, era encarada como equivalente a possuir uma escritura de propriedade, de modo que aquele que estivesse de posse dos deuses era considerado como tendo o direito de propriedade ou de herdá-la. Isto talvez explique a situação envolvendo Raquel tomar os terafins de seu pai, e a grande preocupação deste em recuperá-los. — Gên 31:14-16, 19, 25-35.

Egito. A visão mais de perto fornecida pela Bíblia sobre o Egito gira em torno da entrada de José ali, e da subsequente chegada e peregrinação da família inteira de Jacó naquele país. Os achados arqueológicos mostram que esse quadro é extremamente preciso, e não seria razoável que algum escritor que tivesse vivido muito mais tarde o apresentasse assim (como alguns críticos tentaram dizer que se deu com o escritor dessa parte do relato de Gênesis). Conforme declara o livro New Light on Hebrew Origins (Nova Luz sobre as Origens Hebraicas), de J. G. Duncan (1936, p. 174), a respeito do escritor do relato sobre José: "Ele utiliza o título correto em uso, e exatamente conforme era usado no período mencionado, e, quando não existe nenhum equivalente hebraico, simplesmente adota a palavra egípcia e a translitera para o hebraico." Os nomes egípcios, a posição de José como encarregado da casa de Potifar, as casas de prisão, os títulos de "o chefe dos copeiros" e "o chefe dos padeiros", a importância que os egípcios atribuíam aos sonhos, o costume de os padeiros egípcios carregarem cestos de pão na cabeça (Gên 40:1, 2, 16, 17), a posição de primeiro-ministro e administrador de alimentos, conferida por Faraó a José, o modo de empossá-lo no cargo, a aversão dos egípcios aos pastores de ovelhas, a forte influência dos magos na corte egípcia, a fixação dos israelitas peregrinantes na terra de Gósen, os costumes egípcios de sepultamento — todos estes, e muitos outros pontos descritos no registro bíblico, são claramente consubstanciados pela evidência arqueológica obtida no Egito. — Gên 39:1-47:27; 50:1-3.

Estela em que Mernepta, filho de Ramsés II, se gaba da conquista de Israel; a única menção conhecida de Israel em antigos textos egípcios.

Em Carnac (antiga Tebas), às margens do rio Nilo, um enorme templo egípcio contém uma inscrição em seu muro S, confirmando a campanha do rei egípcio, Sisaque (Xexonque I), na Palestina, descrita em 1 Reis 14:25, 26, e 2 Crônicas 12:1-9. O gigantesco relevo que representa suas vitórias mostra 156 prisioneiros palestinos manietados, cada um representando uma cidade ou aldeia, cujo nome é fornecido em hieróglifos. Entre os nomes identificáveis acham-se os de Rabite (Jos 19:20), Taanaque, Bete-Seã e Megido (onde foi escavada parte de uma estela, ou coluna inscrita, de Sisaque) (Jos 17:11), Suném (Jos 19:18), Reobe (Jos 19:28), Hafaraim (Jos 19:19), Gibeão (Jos 18:25), Bete-Horom (Jos 21:22), Aijalom (Jos 21:24), Socó (Jos 15:35) e Arade (Jos 12:14). Ele até mesmo alista o "Campo de Abrão" como uma de suas capturas, sendo esta a mais antiga referência a Abraão nos registros egípcios. Encontrou-se também nesta área um monumento de Mernepta, filho de Ramsés II, contendo um hino em que se pode encontrar a única referência ao nome Israel nos antigos textos egípcios.

Em Tell el-Amarna, a cerca de 270 km ao S de Cairo, uma camponesa descobriu acidentalmente tabuinhas de argila que levaram à descoberta de muitos documentos em acadiano, procedentes dos arquivos reais de Amenotep III, e de seu filho, Aquenatão. As 379 tabuinhas publicadas abrangem correspondência dirigida ao Faraó da parte de príncipes vassalos das numerosas cidades-reinos da Síria e da Palestina, inclusive alguma do governador de Urusalim (Jerusalém), e revelam um quadro de feudos guerreantes e intrigas, que concorda plenamente com a descrição bíblica daqueles tempos. Os "habirus", a respeito dos quais são feitas numerosas queixas nessas cartas, têm sido relacionados por alguns com os hebreus, mas a evidência indica que eles, ao invés disso, eram diversos povos nômades que ocupavam um nível social baixo na sociedade daquele período. — Veja HEBREU (Os "Habirus").

Elefantina, uma ilha do Nilo, com este nome grego, no extremo S do Egito (próxima a Assuã), era o lugar duma colônia judaica depois da queda de Jerusalém, em 607 AEC. Grande número de documentos escritos em aramaico, mormente em papiro, foram descobertos aqui em 1903, com datas a partir do quinto século AEC e do reinado do Império Medo-Persa. Os documentos mencionam Sambalá, governador de Samaria. — Ne 4:1.

Sem dúvida, os achados mais valiosos, feitos no Egito, têm sido os fragmentos e os trechos de livros bíblicos, em papiro, tanto das Escrituras Hebraicas como das Gregas, remontando ao segundo século AEC. O clima seco e o solo arenoso do Egito o tornaram depósito inigualável para a preservação de tais documentos em papiro. — Veja MANUSCRITOS DA BÍBLIA.

Palestina e Síria. Cerca de 600 sítios datáveis têm sido escavados nessas regiões. Muitas das informações obtidas são de natureza geral, apoiando o registro bíblico numa base ampla, ao invés de se relacionarem especificamente com certos pormenores ou eventos. Como exemplo, fizeram-se esforços, no passado, de desacreditar o relato da Bíblia sobre a desolação completa de Judá durante o exílio babilônico. As escavações, porém, consubstanciam coletivamente a Bíblia. Como declara W. F. Albright: "Não existe um único caso conhecido de uma cidade de Judá propriamente dita ter sido continuamente ocupada durante todo o período do exílio. Apenas para salientar o contraste, Betel, situada um pouco além das fronteiras setentrionais de Judá nos tempos pré-exílicos, não foi destruída naquele tempo, mas foi continuamente ocupada até a parte final do sexto século." — The Archaeology of Palestine (A Arqueologia da Palestina), 1971, p. 142.

Bete-Sã (Bete-Seã), antiga cidade-fortaleza que guardava a via de acesso ao vale de Jezreel do lado L, foi um sítio de extensas escavações que revelaram 18 níveis diferentes de ocupação, exigindo a escavação até a profundidade de mais de 21 m. (DIAGRAMA, Vol. 1, p. 959) O relato bíblico mostra que Bete-Sã não se achava entre as aldeias originalmente ocupadas pelos invasores israelitas, e que, no tempo de Saul, era ocupada pelos filisteus. (Jos 17:11; Jz 1:27; 1Sa 31:8-12) As escavações em geral apoiam este registro e indicam uma destruição de Bete-Sã algum tempo depois que os filisteus capturaram a Arca do Pacto. (1Sa 4:1-11) De interesse especial foi a descoberta de certos templos cananeus em Bete-Sã. Primeiro Samuel 31:10 declara que os filisteus colocaram a armadura do Rei Saul "na casa das imagens de Astorete e prenderam seu corpo morto à muralha de Bete-Sã", ao passo que 1 Crônicas 10:10 afirma que "puseram a armadura dele na casa do seu deus, e o crânio dele prenderam à casa de Dagom". Dois dos templos escavados eram do mesmo período e um deles fornece evidência de ser o templo de Astorete, ao passo que se acha que o outro seja o de Dagom, assim se harmonizando com os textos acima quanto à existência de dois templos em Bete-Sã.

Eziom-Géber era a cidade portuária de Salomão no golfo de Acaba. É possível que seja a atual Tell el-Kheleifeh, que foi escavada durante 1937-1940 e apresentou evidência de uma fundição de cobre, encontrando-se escória de cobre e pedaços de minério de cobre num aterro baixo nesta região. No entanto, as conclusões originais do arqueólogo Nelson Glueck, a respeito do sítio, foram radicalmente revistas por ele num artigo em The Biblical Archaeologist (O Arqueólogo Bíblico, 1965, p. 73). Sua opinião de que se empregara ali um sistema de alto-forno de fundição baseava-se na descoberta do que se imaginava serem "buracos de chaminé" no prédio principal escavado. Ele chegou agora à conclusão de que esses buracos nas paredes do prédio são o resultado da "decomposição e/ou da queima de vigas de madeira colocadas no sentido da largura das paredes, para fins de junção ou de escoramento". O prédio, que antes se pensava ser uma fundição, é, segundo se crê agora, um depósito de cereais. Ao passo que ainda se crê que realmente foram realizadas ali operações metalúrgicas, não se acha agora que tenham tido a envergadura anteriormente suposta. Isto salienta que o significado atribuído aos dados arqueológicos depende primariamente da interpretação individual do arqueólogo, interpretação esta que de forma alguma é infalível. A própria Bíblia não menciona nenhuma fundição de cobre em Eziom-Géber, descrevendo somente a fundição de itens de cobre num certo lugar no vale do Jordão. — 1Rs 7:45, 46.

Hazor, na Galileia, foi descrita como sendo "a cabeça de todos estes reinos", no tempo de Josué. (Jos 11:10) Escavações feitas ali mostraram que a cidade abrangia antigamente uns 60 ha, tendo uma grande população, o que a tornava uma das principais cidades daquela região. Salomão fortificou a cidade, e a evidência daquele período indica que talvez fosse uma cidade para carros. — 1Rs 9:15, 19.

Jericó foi submetida a escavações durante três expedições diferentes (1907-1909; 1930-1936; 1952-1958), e as sucessivas interpretações dos achados demonstram novamente que a arqueologia, igual a outros campos das ciências humanas, não é fonte de informações positivamente estáveis. Cada uma das três expedições produziu dados, mas cada uma chegou a conclusões diferentes sobre a história da cidade e especialmente sobre a data da sua queda diante dos conquistadores israelitas. De qualquer modo, pode-se dizer que os resultados conjuntos apresentam o quadro geral fornecido no livro Biblical Archaeology (Arqueologia Bíblica; 1962, p. 78), de G. E. Wright, que declara: "A cidade sofreu terrível destruição, ou uma série de destruições durante o segundo milênio a.C., e permaneceu virtualmente desocupada durante gerações." A destruição foi acompanhada por um intenso incêndio, conforme mostra a evidência escavada. — Veja Jos 6:20-26.

Em Jerusalém, em 1867, descobriu-se antigo túnel de água, que da fonte de Giom penetrava na colina por trás dela. (Veja GIOM N.º 2.) Isto talvez ilustre o relato da captura da cidade por Davi, em 2 Samuel 5:6-10. Em 1909-1911, o inteiro sistema de túneis ligados com a fonte de Giom foi desobstruído. Um túnel, conhecido como o Túnel de Siloé, tinha em média 1,80 m de altura e fora aberto na rocha numa distância de uns 533 m desde Giom até o reservatório de Siloé, no vale de Tiropeom (dentro da cidade). Parece assim ser o projeto do Rei Ezequias, descrito em 2 Reis 20:20, e 2 Crônicas 32:30. De grande interesse foi a antiga inscrição encontrada na parede do túnel, em antiga escrita hebraica monumental, descrevendo a escavação do túnel e sua extensão. Esta inscrição é usada para fins de comparação ao se datar outras inscrições hebraicas encontradas.

Laquis, a 44 km ao OSO de Jerusalém, era uma das principais fortalezas que protegiam a região colinosa da Judeia. Em Jeremias 34:7, o profeta fala das forças de Nabucodonosor lutando contra "Jerusalém e contra todas as cidades de Judá que sobravam, contra Laquis e contra Azeca; porque elas, as cidades fortificadas, eram as que restavam dentre as cidades de Judá". Escavações feitas em Laquis produziram evidência de destruição por fogo duas vezes num período de poucos anos, o que se acredita representar dois ataques dos babilônios (618-617 e 609-607 AEC), ficando ela depois desabitada por um longo período.

Nas cinzas do segundo incêndio encontraram-se 21 óstracos (pedaços de cerâmica com inscrições), que se acredita representarem correspondência pouco antes da destruição da cidade no ataque final de Nabucodonosor. Conhecidos como as Cartas de Laquis, estes escritos refletem um período de crise e de ansiedade, e parecem ter sido escritos em remanescentes postos avançados das tropas judaicas a Yaosh, comandante militar em Laquis. (FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 325) A carta número IV contém a declaração: "Que YHWH [isto é, Jeová] faça que meu senhor ouça hoje mesmo boas novas. . . . estamos vigiando os sinais de fogo de Laquis, segundo todos os sinais que meu senhor der, porque não vemos Azeca." Esta passagem expressa notavelmente a situação descrita em Jeremias 34:7, citada acima, e aparentemente indica que Azeca já havia caído ou pelo menos deixara de enviar sinais de fogo ou de fumaça conforme esperado.

A carta número III, escrita por "Osaías", inclui o seguinte: "Que YHWH [isto é, Jeová] faça que meu senhor ouça notícias de paz! . . . E foi relatado ao teu servo, dizendo: 'O comandante do exército, Conias, filho de Elnatã, desceu a fim de ir ao Egito e a Hodavias, filho de Aijá, e mandou seus homens obterem dele [suprimentos].'" Este trecho pode muito bem representar o fato de que Judá recorria ao Egito em busca de ajuda, o que fora condenado pelos profetas. (Je 46:25, 26; Ez 17:15, 16) Os nomes Elnatã e Osaías, que ocorrem no texto completo desta carta, também são encontrados em Jeremias 36:12 e Jeremias 42:1. Outros nomes que aparecem nas cartas também ocorrem no livro de Jeremias: Gemarias (36:10), Nerias (32:12) e Jaazanias (35:3). Não se pode asseverar que eles, em algum caso, representem as mesmas pessoas, mas a própria coincidência é notável, visto Jeremias ter sido contemporâneo daquele período.

De interesse especial é o frequente uso do tetragrama nestas cartas, mostrando assim que, naquele tempo, os judeus não tinham aversão ao uso do nome divino. Também é de interesse a impressão dum selo de argila encontrada, que se refere a "Gedalias, que está sobre a casa". Gedalias é o nome do governador nomeado sobre Judá por Nabucodonosor após a queda de Jerusalém, e muitos acham provável que esta impressão do selo se refira a ele. — 2Rs 25:22; compare isso com Is 22:15; 36:3.

Megido era uma cidade-fortaleza estratégica que dominava um importante passo para o vale de Jezreel. Foi reconstruída por Salomão e é mencionada junto com as cidades-armazéns e cidades para carros do seu reinado. (1Rs 9:15-19) Escavações feitas no sítio (Tell el-Mutesellim), uma colina artificial de 5,3 ha, descobriram o que alguns peritos (mas não todos) acham ter sido cavalariças capazes de acomodar cerca de 450 cavalos. De início, estas construções foram atribuídas ao tempo de Salomão, mas, peritos posteriores modificaram a data delas para um período posterior, talvez o tempo de Acabe.

A Pedra Moabita foi uma das mais antigas descobertas de importância na região ao L do Jordão. (FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 325) Foi encontrada em 1868 em Dhiban, ao N do vale do Árnon, e apresenta a versão do rei moabita Mesa da sua revolta contra Israel. (Veja 2Rs 1:1; 3:4, 5.) A inscrição diz em parte: "Eu (sou) Mesa, filho de Quemós-[. . .], rei de Moabe, o dibonita . . . Quanto a Onri, rei de Israel, ele humilhou Moabe por muitos anos (lit.: dias), porque Quemós [o deus de Moabe] estava irado com a sua terra. E seu filho o sucedeu, e ele também disse: 'Humilharei Moabe.' No meu tempo ele falou (assim), mas eu triunfei sobre ele e sobre a sua casa, sendo que Israel pereceu para sempre! . . . E Quemós disse-me: 'Vai, toma Nebo de Israel!' De modo que fui de noite e lutei contra ele desde a alvorada até o meio-dia, tomando-o e matando a todos . . . E tomei dali os [vasos] de Yahweh, arrastando-os perante Quemós." (Ancient Near Eastern Texts [Textos Antigos do Oriente Próximo], editado por J. B. Pritchard, 1974, p. 320) De modo que a pedra não somente menciona o nome do Rei Onri de Israel, mas também, na 18.ª linha, contém o nome de Deus na forma do tetragrama.

A Pedra Moabita menciona também muitos lugares referidos na Bíblia: Atarote e Nebo (Núm 32:34, 38); o Árnon, Aroer, Medeba e Díbon (Jos 13:9); Bamote-Baal, Bete-Baal-Meom, Jaaz e Quiriataim (Jos 13:17-19); Bezer (Jos 20:8); Horonaim (Is 15:5); Bete-Diblataim e Queriote. (Je 48:22, 24) Apoia assim a historicidade de todos estes lugares.

Ras Xamra (a antiga Ugarit), na costa N da Síria, defronte da ilha de Chipre, forneceu informações sobre uma adoração bastante similar à praticada em Canaã, inclusive seus deuses e deusas, templos, prostitutas "sagradas", ritos, sacrifícios e orações. Encontrou-se um recinto, entre um templo de Baal e outro templo devotado a Dagom, que continha uma biblioteca de centenas de textos religiosos, considerados como datando desde o século 15 até o começo do século 14 AEC. Os textos poéticos, mitológicos, revelam muito sobre as divindades cananeias El, Baal e Axerá, e a forma degradante de idolatria que acompanhava sua adoração. Merrill F. Unger, no seu livro Arqueologia do Velho Testamento (1985, p. 88, Imprensa Batista Regular), comenta: "A literatura épica de Ugarite ajudou a revelar a profundidade da depravação que caracterizava a religião cananeia. Sendo politeísmo de tipo extremamente degradante, a prática de culto cananeu era bárbara e inteiramente licenciosa." Encontraram-se também imagens de Baal e de outros deuses. (Veja DEUSES E DEUSAS [Deidades Cananeias].) Um anteriormente desconhecido tipo de escrita alfabética cuneiforme (diferente da escrita cuneiforme acadiana) distinguia estes textos. Ela segue a mesma ordem que o hebraico, mas acrescenta outras letras para perfazer o total de 30. Assim como em Ur, desenterrou-se também uma acha de armas de aço.

Samaria, a capital grandemente fortificada do reino setentrional de Israel, foi construída sobre uma colina que se elevava cerca de 90 m acima do nível do vale. A prova de sua força de resistir a longos sítios, tais como os descritos em 2 Reis 6:24-30, no caso da Síria, e em 2 Reis 17:5, no caso do poderoso exército assírio, é indicada pelos restos de sólidas muralhas duplas, em alguns pontos formando um baluarte de 10 m de largura. A alvenaria encontrada no sítio, reputada como remontando ao tempo dos reis Onri, Acabe e Jeú, representa excelente mão de obra. O que parece ser a plataforma do palácio mede cerca de 90 m por cerca de 180 m. Encontraram-se grandes quantidades de peças, placas e painéis de marfim na área do palácio, e estes talvez se relacionem com a casa de marfim de Acabe, mencionada em 1 Reis 22:39. (Veja Am 6:4.) No canto NO do cume encontrou-se um grande reservatório cimentado, medindo cerca de 10 m de comprimento e uns 5 m de largura. Poderia ser o "reservatório de Samaria" em que se lavou o carro de Acabe, removendo-se o seu sangue. — 1Rs 22:38.

Suscitaram interesse 63 cacos de cerâmica com inscrições a tinta (óstracos), considerados como datando do oitavo século AEC. Recibos de remessas de vinho e de óleo de outras cidades para Samaria mostram um sistema israelita de escrever números pelo uso de traços verticais, horizontais e inclinados. Um recibo típico reza como segue:

No décimo ano.

Para Gaddiyau [provavelmente o mordomo da tesouraria].

De Azah [talvez a aldeia ou distrito que remetia o vinho ou o óleo].

Abi-baʽal 2

Ahaz 2

Sheba 1

Meribaʽal 1

Tais recibos também revelam o uso frequente do nome Baal como componente de nomes, cerca de 7 nomes incluindo este nome para cada 11 que continham alguma forma do nome Jeová, provavelmente indicando a infiltração da adoração de Baal, conforme descrita no relato bíblico.

A destruição ardente de Sodoma e Gomorra, e a existência de poços de betume (asfalto) naquela região são descritas na Bíblia. (Gên 14:3, 10; 19:12-28) Muitos peritos acham que as águas do Mar Morto talvez se tenham elevado no passado e tenham estendido a extremidade meridional do mar numa considerável distância, cobrindo assim o que talvez tenha sido o lugar dessas duas cidades. Explorações feitas nesta região mostram ser ela uma área queimada, de óleo e asfalto. A respeito deste assunto diz o livro Light From the Ancient Past (Luz do Passado Remoto), de Jack Finegan (1959, p. 147): "Uma cuidadosa pesquisa da evidência literária, geológica e arqueológica aponta para a conclusão que as infames 'cidades da planície' (Gênesis 19:29) estavam na área que agora está submersa . . . e que sua ruína foi realizada por um grande terremoto, provavelmente acompanhado por explosões, relâmpagos, ignição de gás natural e conflagração geral." — Veja também SODOMA.

Relacionada com as Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. O uso, por parte de Jesus, de uma moeda de um denário portando a efígie de Tibério César (Mr 12:15-17) é confirmado pela descoberta de um denário de prata com a efígie de Tibério e que foi posto em circulação por volta do ano 15 EC. (FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 544) (Veja Lu 3:1, 2.) O fato de que Pôncio Pilatos era então o governador romano da Judeia foi também confirmado por uma laje de pedra encontrada em Cesareia, com os nomes latinos Pontius Pilatus e Tiberieum. — Veja PILATOS; FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 741.

O livro de Atos dos Apóstolos, que fornece clara evidência de ter sido escrito por Lucas, contém numerosas referências a cidades e suas províncias, e a autoridades de diferentes tipos e com diversos títulos, que detinham cargos em determinada época — uma apresentação repleta de possibilidades de erro por parte do escritor. (Observe também Lu 3:1, 2.) Todavia, a evidência arqueológica apresentada demonstra notável grau de exatidão por parte de Lucas. Assim, em Atos 14:1-6, Lucas coloca Listra e Derbe no território da Licaônia, mas dá a entender que Icônio se achava em outro território. Os escritores romanos, inclusive Cícero, referiram-se a Icônio como ficando na Licaônia. No entanto, certo monumento descoberto em 1910 mostra que Icônio era considerada como sendo deveras uma cidade da Frígia, ao invés de da Licaônia.

Similarmente, uma inscrição descoberta em Delfos confirma que Gálio era procônsul da Acaia, provavelmente em 51-52 EC. (At 18:12) Cerca de 19 inscrições, que datam do segundo século AEC até o terceiro século EC, confirmam a exatidão do uso, por parte de Lucas, do título governantes da cidade (singular, po·li·tár·khes) como se aplicando às autoridades de Tessalônica (At 17:6, 8), sendo que cinco destas inscrições se referem especificamente àquela cidade. (Veja GOVERNANTES DA CIDADE.) Semelhantemente, a referência a Públio como o "homem de destaque" (pró·tos) de Malta (At 28:7) emprega o título exato a ser usado, conforme indicado pela sua ocorrência em duas inscrições maltesas, uma em latim e a outra em grego. Textos mágicos, bem como o templo de Ártemis, foram encontrados em Éfeso (At 19:19, 27); escavações feitas ali também revelaram um teatro capaz de acomodar cerca de 25.000 pessoas, e inscrições que se referiam aos "promotores de festividades e jogos", semelhantes àqueles que intervieram em favor de Paulo, e também de um "escrivão", semelhante ao que acalmou a turba naquela ocasião. — At 19:29-31, 35, 41.

Algumas dessas descobertas induziram Charles Gore a escrever sobre a exatidão de Lucas, no A New Commentary on Holy Scripture (Novo Comentário sobre a Escritura Sagrada): "Deve-se, naturalmente, reconhecer que a arqueologia moderna quase que obrigou os críticos de São Lucas a lhe dar um veredicto de notável exatidão em todas as suas alusões a fatos e eventos seculares." — Editado por Gore, Goudge e Guillaume, 1929, p. 210.

Valor Comparativo da Arqueologia. A arqueologia tem apresentado informações proveitosas que ajudaram na identificação (não raro experimental) de lugares bíblicos, tem desenterrado documentos escritos que contribuíram para melhor entendimento das línguas originais em que as Escrituras foram escritas e tem lançado luz sobre as condições de vida e as atividades dos povos e dos governantes antigos mencionados na Bíblia. Todavia, no que tange à relação da arqueologia com a autenticidade e a confiabilidade da Bíblia, e com a fé nela, nos seus ensinos e nas suas revelações dos propósitos e das promessas de Deus, deve-se dizer que a arqueologia é um suplemento não essencial e uma confirmação não exigida da veracidade da Palavra de Deus. Conforme o expressou o apóstolo Paulo: "A fé é a expectativa certa de coisas esperadas, a demonstração evidente de realidades, embora não observadas. Pela fé percebemos que os sistemas de coisas foram postos em ordem pela palavra de Deus, de modo que aquilo que se observa veio a existir das coisas que não aparecem." (He 11:1, 3) "Estamos andando pela fé, não pela vista." — 2Co 5:7.

Isto não significa que a fé cristã não tenha qualquer base no que pode ser visto, ou que ela trate apenas de intangíveis. Mas é verdade que, em todo período e época, sempre houve ampla evidência contemporânea ao redor das pessoas, bem como nelas mesmas e em suas próprias experiências, que as podia convencer de que a Bíblia é a verdadeira fonte de revelação divina e que ela não contém nada que não se harmonize com fatos demonstráveis. (Ro 1:18-23) O conhecimento do passado à luz das descobertas arqueológicas é interessante e apreciado, mas não é vital. O conhecimento do passado à luz da Bíblia é, por si só, essencial e solidamente fidedigno. A Bíblia, com ou sem a arqueologia, dá verdadeiro significado ao presente e ilumina o futuro. (Sal 119:105; 2Pe 1:19-21) Na realidade, é fraca a fé que precisa depender de tijolos que se desintegram, de vasos quebrados e de muros desmoronantes, para sustentá-la e servir-lhe de muleta.

Incertezas subjacentes às conclusões. Embora as descobertas arqueológicas às vezes tenham fornecido uma resposta conveniente para refutar os que fizeram reparos aos relatos bíblicos ou que criticaram a historicidade de certos eventos, e embora tais achados tenham ajudado a desanuviar a mente de pessoas sinceras que ficaram impressionadas demais com os argumentos de tais críticos, ainda assim, a arqueologia não silenciou os críticos da Bíblia, nem é ela um alicerce realmente sólido para se basear a crença no registro da Bíblia. As conclusões tiradas da maioria das escavações feitas dependem, mormente, do raciocínio dedutivo e indutivo dos investigadores, os quais, um tanto parecidos a detetives, reúnem as provas do caso a favor do qual arguem. Até mesmo em tempos modernos, embora os detetives possam descobrir e reunir um impressionante conjunto de evidências circunstanciais e materiais, qualquer caso alicerçado puramente em tais evidências, se não dispuser do depoimento de testemunhas dignas de crédito, diretamente relacionadas com o assunto em pauta, será considerado fraquíssimo, se levado a um tribunal. Decisões baseadas unicamente em tal evidência têm resultado em crassos erros e injustiças. Isso se deve dar ainda mais quando há um intervalo de 2.000 ou 3.000 anos entre os investigadores e o tempo da ocorrência.

Um paralelo similar é feito pelo arqueólogo R. J. C. Atkinson, que diz: "Basta apenas pensar em quão difícil seria a tarefa dos futuros arqueólogos, se tivessem de reconstruir os rituais, os dogmas e a doutrina das Igrejas Cristãs a partir somente das ruínas de igrejas, sem a ajuda de qualquer registro escrito ou inscrição. Temos, assim, a situação paradoxal de que a arqueologia, o único método de investigação do passado do homem na ausência de registros escritos, torna-se cada vez menos eficaz como meio de inquirição quanto mais ela se aproxima daqueles aspectos da vida humana que são os mais especificamente humanos." — Stonehenge, Londres, 1956, p. 167.

Complicando ainda mais o assunto, há o fato de que, em adição à sua óbvia incapacidade de conseguir mais do que uma aproximação no que tange a colocar em foco o passado remoto, e apesar de seus esforços de manter um ponto de vista puramente objetivo ao considerar a evidência que escavam, os arqueólogos, como os demais cientistas, não obstante estão sujeitos a falhas humanas, e a inclinações e ambições pessoais, que podem estimular raciocínios falíveis. Indicando o problema, o professor W. F. Albright comenta: "Por outro lado, há perigo em se procurar novas descobertas e novos pontos de vista às custas de trabalho mais sólido, feito anteriormente. Isto se dá, em especial, em campos como a arqueologia e a geografia bíblicas, onde o domínio dos instrumentos e dos métodos de investigação é tão árduo, que existe sempre uma tentação de negligenciar o método sólido, substituindo o trabalho lento e mais sistemático por combinações espertas e palpites brilhantes." — The Westminster Historical Atlas to the Bible (Atlas Histórico da Bíblia, de Westminster), editado por G. E. Wright, 1956, p. 9.

Diferenças na datação. É importante compreender isto ao se considerar as datas propostas pelos arqueólogos com respeito às suas descobertas. Ilustrando isto, Merrill F. Unger diz: "Por exemplo, Garstang data a queda de Jericó em c. 1400 a.C. . . .; Albright apóia a data de c. 1290 a.C. . . .; Hugues Vincent, famoso arqueólogo palestino, sustenta a data de 1250 a.C. . . .; ao passo que H. H. Rowley considera Ramsés II como o Faraó da Opressão, e o Êxodo como tendo ocorrido sob seu sucessor, Marnipta [Mernepta] por volta de 1225 a.C." (Archaeology and the Old Testament, p. 164, n. 15) Ao passo que argumenta a favor da fidedignidade do processo e da análise arqueológicos modernos, o Professor Albright reconhece que "ainda é dificílimo para o não especialista achar seu caminho por entre as datas e as conclusões conflitantes dos arqueólogos". — The Archaeology of Palestine, p. 253.

É verdade que o relógio de radiocarbono tem sido empregado, junto com outros métodos modernos, para datar os artefatos encontrados. Sem embargo, que este método não é inteiramente exato é evidenciado pela seguinte declaração, feita por G. Ernest Wright, em The Biblical Archaeologist (1955, p. 46): "Pode-se notar que o novo método do Carbono 14, de datar restos antigos, não resultou ser tão isento de erros como se esperava. . . . Certas medições produziram resultados obviamente errados, provavelmente por vários motivos. No momento, só se pode confiar nos resultados, sem opor dúvida, depois de se terem feito várias medições que forneceram resultados virtualmente idênticos, e quando a data parece ser correta à base de outros métodos de computação [o grifo é nosso]." Mais recentemente, The New Encyclopædia Britannica (Macropædia [A Nova Enciclopedia Britânica], 1976, Vol. 5, p. 508) declarou: "Qualquer que seja a causa, . . . é evidente que falta às datas fornecidas pelo carbono 14 a exatidão que historiadores tradicionais gostariam de ter." — Veja CRONOLOGIA (Datação Arqueológica).

Valor relativo das inscrições. Descobriram-se e estão sendo interpretadas milhares e milhares de inscrições antigas. Albright declara: "Os documentos escritos constituem, sem comparação, o único mais importante conjunto de materiais descobertos pelos arqueólogos. Por isso, é extremamente importante obter uma ideia clara de seu caráter e de nossa capacidade de interpretá-los." (The Westminster Historical Atlas to the Bible, p. 11) Podem ter sido escritos em cacos de cerâmica, em tabuinhas de argila, em papiro ou podem ter sido esculpidos em granito. Seja qual for o material, as informações que transmitem ainda devem ser pesadas e testadas quanto à sua fidedignidade e seu valor. Erros ou patentes falsidades podem ser e foram, com frequência, assentados por escrito em pedra, bem como em papel. — Veja CRONOLOGIA (Cronologia Bíblica e História Secular); SARGÃO.

Como ilustração, o registro bíblico declara que o Rei Senaqueribe, da Assíria, foi morto por seus dois filhos, Adrameleque e Sarezer, e foi sucedido no trono por outro filho, Esar-Hadom. (2Rs 19:36, 37) Todavia, uma crônica babilônica declarava que, no 20.º dia de tebete, Senaqueribe foi morto por seu filho numa revolta. Tanto Beroso, sacerdote babilônio do terceiro século AEC, como Nabonido, rei babilônio do sexto século AEC, em seus escritos, forneceram o mesmo relato, no sentido de que Senaqueribe foi assassinado por apenas um de seus filhos. No entanto, num mais recentemente descoberto fragmento do Prisma de Esar-Hadom, o filho que sucedeu Senaqueribe, Esar-Hadom declara especificamente que seus irmãos (plural) se revoltaram e mataram seu pai, e então fugiram. Comentando isto, Philip Biberfeld, em Universal Jewish History (História Universal Judaica; 1948, Vol. I, p. 27), diz: "A Crônica Babilônica, Nabonido e Beroso estavam equivocados; apenas o relato da Bíblia mostrou ser correto. Foi confirmado em todos os mínimos pormenores pela inscrição de Esar-Hadom e mostrou ser mais exato no tocante a este evento da história assírio-babilônica do que as próprias fontes babilônicas. Trata-se dum fato de suma importância para a avaliação até mesmo de fontes contemporâneas que não concordam com a tradição bíblica."

Problemas de decifração e de tradução. Há também necessidade de devida cautela por parte do cristão quanto a aceitar, sem questionar, a interpretação dada a muitas inscrições encontradas em diversas línguas antigas. Em alguns casos, como o da Pedra de Roseta e da Inscrição de Behistun, propiciou-se aos decifradores de línguas considerável visão de uma língua antes desconhecida, através de apresentações paralelas desta língua junto com outra já conhecida. Todavia, não se deve esperar que tais ajudas solucionem todos os problemas ou permitam pleno entendimento da língua, com todos os matizes de significados e expressões idiomáticas. Até mesmo a compreensão das línguas bíblicas básicas, o hebraico, o aramaico e o grego, progrediu consideravelmente em tempos recentes, e essas línguas ainda se acham em estudo. Quanto à inspirada Palavra de Deus, podemos corretamente esperar que o Autor da Bíblia nos habilite a obter o entendimento certo de sua mensagem mediante as traduções disponíveis em línguas modernas. Isto não se dá, porém, com os escritos não inspirados de nações pagãs.

Ilustrando esta necessidade de cautela, e também manifestando de novo que um enfoque objetivo dos problemas existentes em decifrar inscrições antigas frequentemente não é tão destacado como se poderia pensar, o livro O Segredo dos Hititas, de C. W. Ceram, contém a seguinte informação a respeito de destacado assiriologista que trabalhou na decifração da língua "hitita" (1959, tradução de

M. Amado, pp. 106-112): "Sua obra é absolutamente fenomenal: uma brilhante miscelânea de equívocos extravagantes e notáveis percepções. . . . Alguns de seus erros eram sustentados por argumentos tão convincentes que décadas de estudos foram necessárias para suplantá-los. Seus engenhosos raciocínios baseavam-se em tal riqueza de erudição filológica que não se tornava coisa fácil separar o joio do trigo." O escritor descreve então a forte obstinação deste perito quanto a qualquer modificação de suas descobertas; após muitos anos, ele, por fim, concordou em fazer algumas alterações — apenas para mudar justamente as leituras que, mais tarde, mostraram ser as corretas! Ao relatar a disputa violenta, cheia de recriminações pessoais, que surgiu entre este perito e outro decifrador da escrita hieroglífica "hitita", o autor declara: "Contudo, o próprio fanatismo que produz tais disputas é uma necessária força motivadora para que os sábios façam descobertas." Por isso, embora o tempo e o estudo tenham eliminado muitos erros no entendimento das inscrições antigas, faremos bem em compreender que investigações posteriores provavelmente resultarão em correções adicionais.

A preeminência da Bíblia como a fonte de conhecimento fidedigno, de informações verídicas e de orientação segura, é destacada por esses fatos. Como conjunto de documentos escritos, a Bíblia fornece-nos o quadro mais claro do passado do homem, e chegou até nós, não por escavações, mas por ter sido preservada pelo seu Autor, Jeová Deus. É "viva e exerce poder" (He 4:12) e é a "palavra do Deus vivente e permanecente". "Toda a carne é como a erva, e toda a sua glória é como flor da erva; a erva se resseca e a flor cai, mas a declaração de Jeová permanece para sempre." — 1Pe 1:23-25.

ARQUEUS. Descendentes de Cã por meio de Canaã, e uma das 70 famílias pós-diluvianas. (Gên 10:17; 1Cr 1:15) Estabeleceram-se ao longo da costa mediterrânea ao O dos montes do Líbano.

ARQUIPO [Governante do Cavalo]. Paulo, na sua carta aos cristãos colossenses, exorta Arquipo à fidelidade no ministério, e na sua carta a Filêmon refere-se a ele afetuosamente como "soldado companheiro". (Col 4:17; Flm 2) Ambas as cartas, escritas perto do fim do primeiro encarceramento de Paulo em Roma (c. 60-61 EC), indicam que Arquipo morava então em Colossos, ou perto dali, na Ásia Menor.

ARQUITA. Embora o termo possa referir-se a um membro duma tribo cananeia não identificada, parece mais provável que se refira a uma bem conhecida família ou clã situado na região de Atarote, ao SO de Betel. (Jos 16:2) Alguns sugerem uma cidade chamada ʽEin ʽArik, ao O de Betel, como fonte ou evidência remanescente do nome. Husai, fiel conselheiro de Davi, era arquita. — 1Cr 27:33; veja HUSAI.

ARQUITETURA. A arte ou ciência da construção. A Bíblia mostra uma diversidade de moradias e de hábitos de vida logo cedo na história humana, nos 1.656 anos antes do Dilúvio dos dias de Noé. Caim, depois de assassinar Abel, é mencionado como 'indo morar' em certa região, e ali passando a "construir uma cidade". (Gên 4:16, 17) No entanto, um dos seus descendentes, Jabal, tornou-se "o fundador dos que moram em tendas e têm gado". Outro tornou-se "forjador de toda sorte de ferramenta de cobre e de ferro". (Gên 4:20, 22) Os descendentes de Caim pereceram pelo menos por ocasião do Dilúvio; todavia, a habilidade construtora e o uso de ferramentas não pereceu com eles.

A obra de construção mais notável daquele período antediluviano foi realizada por descendentes de Sete: a arca construída por Noé e seus filhos. Embora os planos e as dimensões básicos fossem providos por Deus, sem dúvida, alguma habilidade construtora deve ser atribuída a Noé, como mestre de obras humano. A arca tinha 300 côvados de comprimento, 50 côvados de largura e 30 côvados de altura (133,5 m × 22,3 m × 13,4 m). Pode ter tido uns 0,9 ha de espaço útil. Os três pavimentos, além do amplo vão do teto, provavelmente exigiam, em adição às divisões em "compartimentos", o uso de algumas colunas e vigas de madeira para sustentar o peso, bem como para dar à estrutura a necessária estabilidade. Embora a arca fosse calafetada com alcatrão, haveria também necessidade de encaixar com cuidado o madeiramento para garantir uma construção que fosse razoavelmente à prova de água. — Gên 6:13-16; veja ARCA N.º 1.

Primeiras Construções Pós-Diluvianas. Na era pós-diluviana, Ninrode é descrito como famoso construtor de diversas cidades. (Gên 10:8-12) Outro grande projeto de construção foi então proposto, a Torre de Babel, desaprovada por Deus. Neste respeito mencionam-se novos materiais de construção, tijolos cozidos, com betume servindo de argamassa. Pretendia-se que a torre fosse a estrutura mais alta daquele tempo. — Gên 11:3, 4.

Abraão, antepassado dos israelitas, sem dúvida via estilos bastante avançados de arquitetura em Ur dos Caldeus. (Gên 11:31) Escavações feitas ali revelaram evidência de ruas urbanas, casas de dois pavimentos, com escadas de tijolo, e conjuntos de templos e palácios, que se considera remontarem ao terceiro milênio AEC. Encontraram-se ali também algumas das mais antigas evidências do uso da abóbada sustentada por mísulas, ou do arco fal-so (formado pela aproximação, na construção, de duas paredes, até que o vão entre elas possa ser fechado com uma carreira de pedras ou tijolos), bem como o arco verdadeiro com fecho.

Mais tarde, durante a sua estada no Egito (Gên 12:10), Abraão pode ter observado algumas das maravilhas arquitetônicas daquele país. A Pirâmide dos Degraus do Rei Zoser, em Sacara, supostamente remonta ao terceiro milênio AEC e é um dos mais antigos exemplos remanescentes de grandes construções que usavam pedras talhadas. (FOTO, Vol. 1, p. 530) A Grande Pirâmide de Cufu (Quéops), construída um pouco mais tarde em Gizé (Giza), tem uma enorme base de 5,3 ha e foi construída com uns 2.300.000 blocos de pedra calcária, cada uma delas pesando em média 2,3 toneladas. Tinha originalmente 147 m de altura. Não somente o tamanho, mas também a precisão conseguida tornam-na um projeto espantoso mesmo para engenheiros de hoje. Alguns séculos mais tarde, em Karnak, Nilo acima, os egípcios fizeram o maior templo conhecido construído pelo homem. O teto do seu grande salão era sustentado por 134 enormes colunas, cada uma delas com cerca de 3 m de diâmetro, decoradas com relevos ricamente coloridos.

Arquitetura Israelita. Durante a opressão dos israelitas no Egito, eles fizeram muito trabalho de construção como escravos sob feitores egípcios. (Êx 1:11-14) Mais tarde, no ermo, Jeová deu-lhes instruções específicas para a construção do tabernáculo, com armações de painel, pedestais de encaixe, trancas e colunas, os quais também exigiam deles uma considerável habilidade arquitetônica. (Êx 25:9, 40; 26:15-37; He 8:5) Embora a maioria daqueles que faziam essa obra (e que haviam feito construções no Egito), sem dúvida, falecesse antes de chegar à Terra da Promessa, uma noção de métodos de construção e do uso de ferramentas foi conservada pelos sobreviventes. (Veja De 27:5.) A Lei mosaica estipulava pelo menos um requisito para construções. (De 22:8) Quando os israelitas conquistaram aquela terra, naturalmente, apoderaram-se de cidades e aldeias inteiras, com suas construções completadas, mas eles mesmos também construíram. (Núm 32:16; De 6:10, 11; 8:12) Por ocasião da sua entrada em Canaã (1473 AEC), esta era uma terra com numerosas cidades muradas e poderosas fortificações. — Núm 13:28.

Embora seja verdade que não restam hoje nenhumas construções notáveis para indicar originalidade ou engenhosidade israelitas no que se refere à arquitetura, não é lógico presumir que lhes faltava a habilidade para isso. Dessemelhantes das nações pagãs, eles não erigiam enormes monumentos em honra de governantes políticos ou heróis militares. O único templo construído encontrava-se em Jerusalém, embora a apostasia produzisse outros locais religiosos. Nada resta do templo original ou do seu sucessor. Entre as ruínas mais impressionantes descobertas encontram-se os portões idênticos de cidades, da antiga Megido, de Hazor e de Gezer, que se pensa terem sido construídos no tempo de Salomão. (1Rs 9:15) Em cada caso, os muros externos de 20 m de comprimento foram feitos de pedras cuidadosamente talhadas. Dentro da passagem do portão havia três sucessivos pares de umbrais ou pilastras salientes, formando assim seis câmaras reentrantes flanqueando a passagem, nas quais se podiam fazer transações ou das quais soldados podiam hostilizar quaisquer tropas que tentassem forçar a passagem através dos portões. (Veja PORTA, PORTÃO.) Em Megido e em Samaria encontraram-se exemplos de alvenaria perita, com pedras cuidadosamente lavradas, assentadas e juntadas com primorosa precisão, em alguns casos com tanta exatidão, que não se pode enfiar nem mesmo a lâmina fina duma faca no ponto de junção das pedras. Sem dúvida, a mão de obra no templo construído por Salomão era da mesma alta qualidade. — 1Rs 5:17; 6:7.

À base das investigações arqueológicas, parece que as casas israelitas, em geral, eram de construção bem modesta, sendo que alguns pesquisadores acham que eram bastante rudimentares. No entanto, as evidências em que tais opiniões se baseiam são muito escassas. Conforme comenta The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible (Dicionário Bíblico do Intérprete, Vol. 1, p. 209): "O conhecimento moderno do assunto é restrito, tanto pela desatenção dos escritores antigos para com assuntos de interesse arquitetônico como pela escassa sobrevivência dos próprios prédios, a maioria dos quais o tempo e gerações sucessivas de construtores destruíram por completo." (Editado por G. A. Buttrick, 1962) De modo que na Palestina é raro encontrar mais de uma ou duas fiadas de alvenaria acima do alicerce de qualquer prédio em ruínas. É também lógico que as casas melhores sofressem mais às mãos dos destruidores, e, subsequentemente, daqueles que procuravam materiais de construção.

Antigos Materiais e Métodos de Construção. Alicerces de pedra eram comuns, desde os tempos mais remotos. Embora talvez se empregassem pedras não lavradas, estas eram alinhadas e firmadas por meio de pedras angulares, as quais eram cuidadosamente alisadas e ajustadas. (Veja Sal 118:22; Is 28:16.) Argamassa de argila ou reboco no interior das casas de pedra dos israelitas é mencionado em Levítico 14:40-48. Se o restante da casa não fora completado com pedra, frequentemente usavam-se acima do alicerce tijolos secados ao sol ou cozidos em fornos. (Veja Is 9:10.) Às vezes também se intercalava madeira entre os tijolos. Os materiais usados dependiam principalmente da disponibilidade local. A falta de madeira e de pedra no sul da Mesopotâmia resultou em a maioria das construções terem sido feitas de tijolos de barro, ao passo que na Palestina geralmente eram abundantes as pedras calcárias ou outras. Um primitivo método de se edificar uma parede econômica era o de pau a pique. Fincavam-se paus no chão e entrecruzavam-se estes horizontalmente com ripas e varas flexíveis, para formar uma armação para um revestimento de barro. Depois de o barro ter ficado completamente seco e duro pelo sol, aplicava-se nele periodicamente um reboco, para preservar as paredes contra as intempéries. — Veja MUROS.

A cobertura dum prédio, em geral, era feita por se colocarem compridas lajes de pedra ou madeiras sobre as paredes sustentadoras. Talvez se incluíssem pilares ou colunas para ampliar o vão do teto, comumente chamados "pilar e dintel". Visto que a mísula e o arco curvo eram conhecidos desde a antiguidade, é provável que, em prédios grandes, fossem usados para sustentar eirados capazes de suportar um considerável peso. Nestes prédios maiores, costumava-se usar uma ou duas fileiras de colunas; as colunas de madeira ou de pedra eram fixadas num plinto ou base de pedra, e alguns sugerem que as colunas da casa de Dagom, à qual os filisteus levaram o cego Sansão, eram deste tipo. Além dos reunidos dentro do prédio, umas 3.000 pessoas estavam no eirado observando quando Sansão deslocou as duas colunas principais, causando o desmoronamento da casa. — Jz 16:25-30.

A cobertura de prédios menores ou casas de moradia frequentemente era de ramos ou juncos amarrados juntos e deitados transversalmente sobre vigas, e depois recobertos de barro ou argila, que então era alisado com rolos. A leve inclinação da cobertura da casa permitia o escoamento da chuva. Este tipo de cobertura ainda é encontrado hoje nas moradias no vale do Jordão.

O tipo básico de prédio na Palestina era de forma retangular; no caso duma moradia, costumava haver um arranjo não muito rígido de pequenos compartimentos retangulares, internos. O espaço limitado nas cidades, muitas vezes apinhadas de gente, determinava o tamanho e o feitio das construções. Quando o espaço o permitia, talvez houvesse um pátio interno, para o qual davam todos os cômodos, tendo uma única entrada da rua. O mesmo estilo retangular básico era usado não só para casas de moradia, mas também para a casa real (palácio), o depósito, a casa de reunião (sinagoga), a casa de Deus (templo) e a casa dos mortos (túmulo).

Obras dos Reis de Judá e de Israel. A única construção específica mencionada como feita durante o reinado do Rei Davi parece ter sido a "casa de cedros", construída com materiais e por trabalhadores fornecidos pelo rei fenício Hirão, de Tiro (1Cr 14:1; 17:1), embora se registre que Davi continuou a construir outras casas em Jerusalém. (1Cr 15:1) Davi fez também grandes preparativos para a construção do templo a ser realizada por seu filho Salomão, inclusive a lavra de pedras quadradas, a fabricação de pregos de ferro, e a preparação de cobre e de madeiras de cedro "em grande quantidade", bem como a reserva de suprimentos de ouro, prata, pedras preciosas, e de pedrinhas de mosaico. (1Cr 22:1-4; 29:1-5) Ele foi também usado para prover o divinamente inspirado "plano arquitetônico" para todo o arranjo e o equipamento do templo. (1Cr 28:11, 19) A palavra hebraica para "plano arquitetônico" (tav·nith) deriva da raiz banáh ("construir", 1Cr 22:11) e em outros lugares é traduzida por "modelo" e "representação". — Êx 25:9; 1Cr 28:18.

Sob Salomão, a arquitetura israelita atingiu seu apogeu. (2Cr 1:15; Ec 2:4-6) Embora se empregassem os trabalhadores fenícios do Rei Hirão para cortar madeiras no Líbano, para a construção do templo, o registro não apoia a ideia muitas vezes apresentada de que o templo em Jerusalém era primária e essencialmente obra de fenícios. Um fenício-israelita chamado Hirão é mencionado como participando diretamente na construção, mas era principalmente em obras decorativas e metálicas, feitas depois de o prédio ter sido construído segundo os planos providos pelo Rei Davi. (1Cr 28:19) O Rei Hirão, de Tiro, reconheceu que havia também "homens hábeis" entre os israelitas. (1Rs 7:13-40; 2Cr 2:3, 8-16; compare isso com 1Cr 28:20, 21.) O próprio Salomão dirigiu a obra da construção do templo. (1Rs 6:1-38; 2Cr 3:1-4:22) Além disso, ele construiu o pátio do templo, a Casa da Floresta do Líbano, notável pelas suas 45 colunas de cedro e aspectos especiais de iluminação, o Pórtico das Colunas, o Pórtico do Trono, bem como sua própria casa e a casa para a filha de Faraó, todos construídos com pedras caras, lavradas "segundo as medidas". — 1Rs 7:1-12.

Outros reis que se destacaram em construções foram Asa (1Rs 15:23), Baasa (1Rs 15:17), Onri (1Rs 16:23, 24), Acabe (1Rs 22:39), Jeosafá (2Cr 17:12), Uzias (2Cr 26:6-10, 15), Jotão (2Cr 27:3, 4) e Ezequias (2Rs 20:20). O túnel de Siloé (de 533 m de comprimento), atribuído a Ezequias, e os túneis encontrados em Laquis, Gibeão, Gezer e Megido foram notáveis realizações de engenharia.

Construções Pós-Exílicas na Palestina. O período pós-exílico parece ter presenciado apenas atividades construtoras modestas entre os judeus. Todavia, Herodes, o Grande (primeiro século AEC), e seus sucessores, empenharam-se em grandes projetos arquitetônicos, inclusive a reconstrução do templo em Jerusalém (Mr 13:1, 2; Lu 21:5), o porto de Cesareia, o grande viaduto sobre a parte central de Jerusalém, bem como edifícios públicos, teatros, hipódromos e banhos. A façanha mais notável de Herodes foi o projeto da fortaleza no monte de Massada, mais de 400 m acima do Mar Morto. Além das fortificações, Herodes construiu um elegante palácio suspenso de três pavimentos, com terraço e piscinas, bem como outro palácio com uma casa de banho romana, que tinha canos de aquecimento nas paredes e um lavatório de assento, com sistema de descarga de água. Ele equipou a enorme fortaleza rochosa com doze grandes cisternas, capazes de conter no total quase 40.000 kl de água. — FOTO, Vol. 2, p. 751.

Arquitetura Assíria, Babilônica e Persa. Em resultado da queda do reino setentrional de Israel (740 AEC) e da derrubada do reino meridional de Judá (607 AEC), o povo judaico chegou a conhecer o esplendor arquitetônico dos Impérios Assírio, Babilônico e Persa. O palácio de Sargão II, em Corsabade, notabilizou-se pela sua forma regular e pelo uso de simetria, bem como pelos seus esplêndidos relevos, tijolos esmaltados e azulejos pintados. O palácio de Senaqueribe em Nínive era uma estrutura imensa de cerca de 70 aposentos, com mais de 3.000 m de área mural revestida de lajes esculpidas. (2Rs 19:36; compare isso com Jon 3:2, 3.) Credita-se também a Senaqueribe a construção do aqueduto de 48 km de extensão que levava água do rio Gomel aos jardins de Nínive. Em Mari, às margens do Eufrates, na parte oriental da Síria, um enorme conjunto palacial de 300 aposentos cobria uma área de uns 6 ha. As ruínas da antiga Babilônia também indicam a anterior magnificência daquela cidade, com suas colossais muralhas, famosas ruas, e numerosos palácios e templos.

Os judeus em Susã, sob domínio persa, podem ter visto ali o esplendor do palácio de Dario I, com interiores embelezados por esplêndidos tijolos coloridos, esmaltados. (FOTOS, Vol. 2, p. 330) Em Persépolis, a grandiosidade talvez fosse ainda mais impressionante (FOTOS, Vol. 2, p. 329), desde o Portão de Xerxes, com seus colossais touros, até o palácio e as enormes salas de audiência de Dario e Xerxes, inclusive o salão de 100 colunas. As colunas persas eram mais graciosas e mais esbeltas do que as famosas colunas jônicas dos gregos. A proporção entre altura e diâmetro das colunas no Salão de Xerxes era de 12 para 1, em comparação com a proporção de no máximo 10 para 1 das colunas coríntias, e de apenas 6 para 1 das colunas egípcias. Igualmente, o vão entre as colunas nos prédios persas era até duas vezes maior do que nos prédios gregos, dando assim a impressão de mais espaço, do que em similares construções antigas.

Estilos e Métodos Gregos e Romanos. A arquitetura grega entrou no seu "período áureo" no sétimo século AEC. Este período durou até o quarto século AEC. Atenas tornou-se o lugar de majestosos templos e edifícios erigidos em honra a deuses e deusas gregos. Estes edifícios incluíam o Partenon, o Templo de Vitória Áptera e o Erecteion; ao passo que em Corinto se destacavam o Templo de Apolo e o vasto mercado ou feira (ou a·go·rá). O estilo de arquitetura geralmente é classificado segundo as três ordens principais desenvolvidas de belas colunas gregas: dórica, jônica e coríntia.

Os romanos deviam muito aos gregos no que se refere a estilos arquitetônicos. A arquitetura romana, em geral, era mais funcional do que a grega, ao passo que lhe faltava um pouco da sua beleza sutil. Os romanos também se beneficiaram dos etruscos, que eram famosos pelo arco verdadeiro formado por fechos de pedra em forma de cunha. No sexto século AEC, tais arcos eram usados de modo muito impressionante na construção dos grandes esgotos de Roma. Pode-se atribuir também aos arquitetos romanos o desenvolvimento do arco duplo e do domo, ambos usados na construção de enormes rotundas e salões espaçosos, livres de colunas. Os construtores gregos haviam edificado prédios majestosos sem o uso de argamassa ou cimento, em vista da sua extraordinária habilidade e precisão de encaixar e juntar os blocos de mármore usados. Os construtores romanos usavam uma mistura de terra vulcânica com cal, chamada pozolana, um cimento hidráulico de grande força adesiva. Usando a pozolana como argamassa, os romanos podiam dar maior extensão aos seus arcos, bem como construir edifícios de vários andares, inclusive o gigantesco Coliseu de quatro pavimentos, construído no primeiro século EC, com uma capacidade de acomodar, segundo cálculos diversos, entre 40.000 a 87.000 pessoas sentadas. Entre as construções romanas mais valiosas estavam as importantes estradas militares e os esplêndidos aquedutos construídos especialmente a partir do terceiro século AEC. O apóstolo Paulo fez bastante uso destas estradas romanas, e, sem dúvida, viu o aqueduto do Imperador Cláudio ao longo da Via Ápia, quando foi a Roma.

Construções Cristãs. Assim como a nação de Israel não era famosa pelo esplendor arquitetônico, ou pela pompa, assim também os primitivos cristãos do Israel espiritual construíam com modéstia. Unger's Bible Dictionary (Dicionário Bíblico de Unger, 1965, pp. 84, 85) comenta: "Já no 3.º século existiam prédios construídos por eles, mas não eram nem substanciais nem custosos." Foi só no tempo do Imperador Constantino, quando se deu incentivo àqueles que quisessem entrar numa relação com o estado político, que cristãos nominais começaram a produzir um estilo específico de arquitetura, por fim construindo alguns dos edifícios mais ornamentados e pomposos conhecidos.

Arquitetura nas Profecias e nas Ilustrações. Há numerosos usos de termos arquitetônicos nas profecias e nas ilustrações bíblicas. As profecias da restauração tratam em grande parte da edificação (ou reedificação) do povo de Deus e das suas cidades. (Is 58:12; 60:10; 61:4; Ez 28:26; 36:36) Predisse-se que Sião seria construída sobre pedras assentadas com argamassa dura, com alicerce de safira, ameias de rubis e portões de pedras fulgurosas. (Is 54:11, 12) A sabedoria é descrita como construindo a sua própria casa (Pr 9:1), e, junto com discernimento e conhecimento, como sendo os meios de edificar os da casa. (Pr 14:1; 24:3, 4) Jeoiaquim é condenado por construir seu palácio em injustiça, por deixar de pagar os trabalhadores, e os caldeus são condenados por construir uma cidade com o sangue e com a labuta de povos conquistados. (Je 22:13-15; Hab 2:12, 13) Imaginar erroneamente haver paz com Deus é comparado à construção duma parede de separação, rebocada, que Jeová assola com o vendaval e a saraiva do seu furor, derrubando-a e expondo os alicerces. (Ez 13:10-16) O salmista assegura que, a menos que Jeová construa a casa, os construtores trabalham em vão. (Sal 127:1) Antes do "grande dia de Jeová", aqueles que desconsideram a Ele construirão casas, mas não as ocuparão. (Sof 1:12-14; compare isso com Am 5:11.) Em contraste, os servos de Deus "hão de construir casas e as ocuparão" e "usufruirão plenamente" o trabalho das suas mãos. — Is 65:17-23; compare isso com Ec 3:3.

Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, a importância de se calcular o custo antes de se começar a construir foi mencionada por Jesus quando incentivou seus ouvintes a avaliar exatamente o que estava envolvido em tornar-se seguidor dele. (Lu 14:28-30) A necessidade dum alicerce sólido é usada em diversas ilustrações. (Mt 7:24-27; Lu 6:48, 49; 1Ti 6:17-19; 2Ti 2:19; He 11:10) Cristo Jesus fala sobre fundar a sua congregação sobre uma rocha (pé·tra) (Mt 16:18), e mostra-se que o próprio Jesus é o único alicerce, além do qual "nenhum homem pode lançar outro"; ainda assim, ele é "a pedra que foi rejeitada pelos construtores". (1Co 3:11; Mt 21:42; At 4:11; Sal 118:22) Por ele ser a principal pedra angular, todas as outras "pedras viventes" deste templo são edificadas sobre ele e alinhadas com ele, com o juízo servindo de "cordel de medir" e a justiça, de "nível". (Ef 2:20, 21; 1Pe 2:4-8; Is 28:16, 17) Jesus disse que o templo do seu corpo seria levantado "em três dias", embora o templo literal e os prédios anexos, na Jerusalém dos seus dias, tivessem levado 46 anos para serem construídos e ainda não estavam terminados. (Jo 2:18-22) Paulo, como "diretor sábio de obras", admoestou que se usassem materiais de alta qualidade, incombustíveis, na edificação sobre Cristo como alicerce. (1Co 3:10-17) O amor é descrito como elemento primário na edificação. (1Co 8:1; compare isso com Sal 89:2.) A visão de João a respeito da Nova Jerusalém apresenta-a como cidade radiante, feita de pedras preciosas, com muralhas apoiadas em pedras de alicerce inscritas com os nomes dos "doze apóstolos do Cordeiro". (Re 21:9-27) O próprio Deus é apresentado como o Grande Construtor de todas as coisas, destarte não morando em casas construídas por homens. — He 3:4; At 7:48-50; 17:24, 25; Is 66:1.

ARRECADA. Uma argola ou outro enfeite usado na orelha para fins de adorno. Parece que os hebreus não dispunham de uma palavra específica para "arrecada" (ou brinco), pois uma das palavras que aplicavam a este enfeite (né·zem) pode ser usada quer para uma argola para o nariz (ou narinas), quer para uma arrecada. (Pr 11:22; Êx 32:2) O contexto em que né·zem aparece nas Escrituras, às vezes, porém nem sempre, torna possível determinar se se trata duma arrecada ou duma argola para o nariz. Em muitos casos, provavelmente, as arrecadas e as argolas para o nariz variavam muito pouco no formato. A palavra hebraica ʽa·ghíl também é usada para designar uma arrecada e se relaciona a um enfeite circular. — Núm 31:50; Ez 16:12.

Em muitas nações da antiguidade, homens, mulheres e crianças usavam arrecadas. Que elas eram usadas por homens, em muitos países, é evidente de representações de estrangeiros em monumentos egípcios. No Egito, porém, parece não ter sido costumeiro os homens usarem arrecadas, e não há certeza sobre se os homens israelitas costumavam usá-las. Os midianitas usavam arrecadas, que os israelitas tomaram deles como parte dos despojos de guerra. (Núm 31:1, 2, 50) Quando Arão estava para fazer o bezerro de ouro, no ermo, ele ordenou aos israelitas: "Arrancai as arrecadas de ouro que há nas orelhas de vossas esposas, de vossos filhos e de vossas filhas, e trazei-mas." — Êx 32:1-4.

As mulheres egípcias costumavam usar arrecadas de grandes argolas de ouro, algumas tendo de 4 a 5 cm de diâmetro, embora houvesse outras ainda maiores e feitas de tantas quantas seis argolas soldadas juntas. Arrecadas de prata foram encontradas em Tebas, algumas delas sendo meros botões. Às vezes, as arrecadas egípcias, semelhantes às dos assírios, tinham um desenho bastante ela-borado; algumas delas eram em forma de cruz. Era costume prender a arrecada por introduzir a própria argola ou um gancho no furo feito no lóbulo da orelha.

No antigo Egito, pessoas de alto nível social às vezes usavam nas orelhas ornamentos de ouro em forma de áspide, cujo corpo se achava cravado de pedras preciosas. As arrecadas no Oriente Médio às vezes consistiam em argolas às quais se prendia algum tipo de joia como pendente. Algumas delas eram chamadas de "pingentes" (hebr.: neti·fóhth, derivado de na·táf [que significa "pingar" ou "gotejar"]). Este termo evidentemente se relaciona com um enfeite ou pendente em forma de gota. Os "pingentes" podem ter sido pérolas ou contas de prata ou de ouro, mas não são descritos na Bíblia. (Jz 8:26) Encontravam-se entre as coisas que Jeová disse que tiraria das soberbas "filhas de Sião". — Is 3:16, 19.

Fiéis hebreus e cristãos não usavam arrecadas como amuletos, embora outros dos tempos antigos o fizessem. Embora a Bíblia não especifique que "as arrecadas" dos da casa de Jacó fossem encaradas como amuletos, Jacó enterrou tanto "os deuses estrangeiros" como "as arrecadas" dos da sua casa sob a árvore grande perto de Siquém. (Gên 35:2-4) "As ornamentais conchas zunzunantes" das soberbas "filhas de Sião" eram algum tipo de talismã, que talvez fosse suspenso no colar ou usado nas orelhas. — Is 3:20.

Quando se concedeu a Israel o privilégio de fazer contribuições para o tabernáculo, os de coração disposto doaram objetos diversos, inclusive arrecadas. (Êx 35:20-22) Séculos mais tarde, Jeová disse a Jerusalém que, entre outras coisas, ele lhe mostrara seu amor por colocar-lhe arrecadas nas orelhas. (Ez 16:1, 2, 12) E Salomão usou de modo ilustrativo uma arrecada de ouro ao dizer: "Arrecada de ouro e ornamento de ouro especial é o sábio repreendedor sobre o ouvido atento." — Pr 25:1, 12.

ARREPENDIMENTO. O verbo "arrepender-se" significa "mudar de atitude com respeito a uma ação ou conduta passada (ou tencionada), por se sentir lástima ou dessatisfação", ou "sentir lástima, contrição, ou compunção, pelo que a pessoa fez ou deixou de fazer". Em muitos textos, esta é a ideia do hebraico na·hhám. Na·hhám pode significar "deplorar (sentir lástima), guardar um período de luto, arrepender-se" (Êx 13:17; Gên 38:12; Jó 42:6), bem como "consolar-se" (2Sa 13:39; Ez 5:13), "aliviar-se (como que dos inimigos)". (Is 1:24) Quer se sinta lástima quer consolo, pode-se depreender que está envolvida uma mudança de ideia ou de sentimento.

Em grego, usam-se dois verbos em conexão com o arrependimento: me·ta·no·é·o e me·ta·mé·lo·mai. O primeiro compõe-se de me·tá, significando "depois", e de no·é·o (relacionado com nous, a mente, a disposição mental, ou a consciência moral), significando "perceber, discernir, compreender, ou estar ciente". Por isso, me·ta·no·é·o significa literalmente conhecimento posterior (em contraste com previsão, ou conhecimento prévio), e significa uma mudança de ideia, de atitude ou de propósito da pessoa. Me·ta·mé·lo·mai, por outro lado, provém de mé·lo, que significa "importar-se com, ou interessar-se em". O prefixo me·tá (depois) dá ao verbo o sentido de 'deplorar' (Mt 21:29; 2Co 7:8), ou 'arrepender-se'.

Assim, me·ta·no·é·o destaca o ponto de vista ou a disposição mental mudada, a rejeição do proceder ou da ação passada ou tencionada como indesejável (Re 2:5; 3:3), ao passo que me·ta·mé·lo·mai dá ênfase ao sentimento de lástima por parte da pessoa. (Mt 21:29) Conforme comenta o Theological Dictionary of the New Testament (Dicionário Teológico do Novo Testamento, editado por G. Kittel, Vol. IV, p. 629): "Quando, portanto, o N[ovo] T[estamento] separa os significados [destes termos], revela clara consciência da substância imutável de ambos os conceitos. Em contraste, o uso helenístico frequentemente eliminava a distinção entre as duas palavras." — Traduzido para o inglês por G. Bromiley, 1969.

Naturalmente, um ponto de vista mudado muitas vezes é acompanhado por sentimentos mudados, ou o sentimento de lástima talvez o preceda e leve a uma definitiva mudança de ponto de vista ou de vontade. (1Sa 24:5-7) De modo que estes dois termos, embora tendo sentidos distintos, estão intimamente relacionados.

Arrependimento Humano de Pecados. O que torna necessário o arrependimento é o pecado, deixar de satisfazer os justos requisitos de Deus. (1Jo 5:17) Visto que todo o gênero humano foi vendido ao pecado por Adão, todos os descendentes dele precisam arrepender-se. (Sal 51:5; Ro 3:23; 5:12) Conforme indicado sob o verbete RECONCILIAÇÃO, o arrependimento (seguido pela conversão) é um pré-requisito para que o homem seja reconciliado com Deus.

O arrependimento talvez se dê quanto ao inteiro proceder de vida da pessoa, proceder este que tem sido contrário ao propósito e à vontade de Deus, e que, ao invés, tem-se harmonizado com o mundo sob o controle do Adversário de Deus. (1Pe 4:3; 1Jo 2:15-17; 5:19) Ou talvez se refira a determinado aspecto da vida da pessoa, a uma prática errada que manche e macule um proceder de outro modo aceitável; poderá referir-se a apenas um ato de transgressão ou até mesmo a uma tendência, inclinação ou atitude errada. (Sal 141:3, 4; Pr 6:16-19; Tg 2:9; 4:13-17; 1Jo 2:1) Por conseguinte, o alcance das falhas pode ser mui amplo, ou bastante específico.

Similarmente, a extensão em que a pessoa se desvia da justiça poderá ser grande ou pequena, e o grau de lástima deveria ser, logicamente, comensurável ao grau do desvio. Os israelitas "se revoltaram profundamente" contra Jeová, e estavam "apodrecendo" em suas transgressões. (Is 31:6; 64:5, 6; Ez 33:10) Por outro lado, o apóstolo Paulo fala do 'homem que dá um passo em falso antes de se aperceber disso', e aconselha os que possuem qualificações espirituais a 'tentarem reajustar tal homem num espírito de brandura'. (Gál 6:1) Visto que Jeová misericordiosamente leva em conta a fraqueza carnal de seus servos, eles não precisam ficar num estado constante de remorso, devido aos erros que resultam da imperfeição herdada. (Sal 103:8-14; 130:3) Se estiverem andando conscienciosamente nos caminhos de Deus, podem sentir-se alegres. — Fil 4:4-6; 1Jo 3:19-22.

O arrependimento poderá dar-se por parte daqueles que já usufruíram uma relação favorável com Deus, mas que se desviaram e sofreram a perda do favor e da bênção de Deus. (1Pe 2:25) Israel estava em pacto com Deus — era um "povo santo", escolhido dentre todas as nações (De 7:6; Êx 19:5, 6); os cristãos também vieram a ter uma posição justa perante Deus, por meio do novo pacto mediado por Cristo. (1Co 11:25; 1Pe 2:9, 10) No caso daqueles que se desviaram, o arrependimento conduziu à restauração de sua relação correta com Deus, e aos benefícios e bênçãos consequentes de tal relação. (Je 15:19-21; Tg 4:8-10) Para os que antes não usufruíam tal relação com Deus, tais como os povos pagãos das nações não israelitas durante o tempo em que vigorava o pacto de Deus com Israel (Ef 2:11, 12), e também as pessoas de qualquer raça ou nacionalidade que estão fora da congregação cristã, o arrependimento é um passo primário e essencial para poderem obter uma posição correta perante Deus, tendo em vista a vida eterna. — At 11:18; 17:30; 20:21.

O arrependimento pode dar-se em base coletiva, bem como individual. Assim, a pregação de Jonas provocou o arrependimento da inteira cidade de Nínive, desde o rei até "o menor deles", pois, aos olhos de Deus, todos eram partícipes do erro. (Jon 3:5-9; compare isso com Je 18:7, 8.) A inteira congregação de israelitas que retornaram, às instâncias de Esdras, reconheceu sua culpa comunal perante Deus, expressando o arrependimento através de seus representantes principescos. (Esd 10:7-14; compare isso com 2Cr 29:1, 10; 30:1-15; 31:1, 2.) A congregação em Corinto expressou arrependimento por ter tolerado no seu meio um praticante de grave transgressão. (Veja 2Co 7:8-11; 1Co 5:1-5.) Até mesmo os profetas Jeremias e Daniel não se isentaram por completo de culpa ao confessarem as transgressões de Judá, que levaram à sua derrubada. — La 3:40-42; Da 9:4, 5.

O que o verdadeiro arrependimento requer. O arrependimento envolve tanto a mente como o coração. Tem de se reconhecer que o proceder ou a ação foram errados, e isto exige a admissão de que as normas e a vontade de Deus são justas. O desconhecimento ou o esquecimento de sua vontade e de suas normas constituem uma barreira para o arrependimento. (2Rs 22:10, 11, 18, 19; Jon 1:1, 2; 4:11; Ro 10:2, 3) Por esta razão, Jeová misericordiosamente tem enviado profetas e pregadores, concitando as pessoas ao arrependimento. (Je 7:13; 25:4-6; Mr 1:14, 15; 6:12; Lu 24:27) Por meio da divulgação das boas novas através da congregação cristã, e especialmente a partir da conversão de Cornélio, Deus "está dizendo à humanidade que todos, em toda a parte, se arrependam". (At 17:22, 23, 29-31; 13:38, 39) A Palavra de Deus — escrita ou falada — é o meio de 'persuadi-los', convencendo-os da justeza do modo de Deus e do erro dos próprios modos deles de agir. (Veja Lu 16:30, 31; 1Co 14:24, 25; He 4:12, 13.) A lei de Deus é "perfeita, fazendo retornar a alma". — Sal 19:7.

O Rei Davi menciona 'ensinar aos transgressores os caminhos de Deus, de modo que possam retornar a ele' (Sal 51:13), sendo que tais pecadores, sem dúvida, eram coisraelitas. Instruiu-se Timóteo a não contender ao lidar com cristãos nas congregações que servia, mas a 'instruir com brandura os que não estivessem favoravelmente dispostos', visto que Deus talvez lhes desse o 'arrependimento, conduzindo a um conhecimento exato da verdade e eles voltassem ao seu próprio juízo, saindo do laço do Diabo'. (2Ti 2:23-26) Portanto, o convite ao arrependimento pode ser feito dentro da congregação do povo de Deus, bem como fora dela.

A pessoa tem de reconhecer que pecou contra Deus. (Sal 51:3, 4; Je 3:25) Isto pode ser bem evidente no caso de blasfêmia direta ou declarada, de mau uso do nome de Deus, ou de adoração de outros deuses, tal como pelo uso de imagens idólatras. (Êx 20:2-7) No entanto, mesmo no que se poderia considerar um "assunto particular", ou algo entre a própria pessoa e outro humano, é preciso reconhecer os erros cometidos como pecados contra Deus, como tratamento desrespeitoso para com Jeová. (Veja 2Sa 12:7-14; Sal 51:4; Lu 15:21.) Mesmo os erros cometidos em ignorância ou por engano devem ser reconhecidos como tornando a pessoa culpada perante o Governante Soberano, Jeová Deus. — Veja Le 5:17-19; Sal 51:5, 6; 119:67; 1Ti 1:13-16.

A obra dos profetas consistia na maior parte em convencer Israel de seus pecados (Is 58:1, 2; Miq 3:8-11), quer fosse idolatria (Ez 14:6), injustiça, opressão do próximo (Je 34:14-16; Is 1:16, 17), imoralidade (Je 5:7-9), quer deixar de confiar em Jeová Deus, e, em vez disso, confiar em homens e no poderio militar de nações (1Sa 12:19-21; Je 2:35-37; Os 12:6; 14:1-3). A mensagem de João, o Batizador, e a de Jesus Cristo eram convites ao arrependimento por parte dos judeus. (Mt 3:1, 2, 7, 8; 4:17) João e Jesus despojaram o povo e seus líderes religiosos da fachada de autojustiça, e da observância de tradições de homens e da hipocrisia, expondo o estado pecaminoso da nação. — Lu 3:7, 8; Mt 15:1-9; 23:1-39; Jo 8:31-47; 9:40, 41.

Entender com o coração. Portanto, para haver arrependimento, primeiro é preciso ouvir e ver com entendimento, por causa dum coração receptivo. (Veja Is 6:9, 10; Mt 13:13-15; At 28:26, 27.) A mente não apenas percebe e capta o que o ouvido ouve e o olho vê, mas, o que é mais importante, os arrependidos 'entendem ["o pensamento", Jo 12:40] com o coração'. (Mt 13:15; At 28:27) Portanto, não se trata apenas dum reconhecimento intelectual do erro do seu proceder, mas de uma avaliação deste fato no coração. No caso dos que já têm conhecimento de Deus, pode tratar-se de 'recordar no coração' tal conhecimento Dele e de Seus mandamentos (De 4:39; compare isso com Pr 24:32; Is 44:18-20), para que "voltem ao seu juízo". (1Rs 8:47) Com a correta motivação do coração eles podem 'reformar a mente, provando a si mesmos a boa, e aceitável, e perfeita vontade de Deus'. — Ro 12:2.

Havendo fé em Deus e amor por ele no coração da pessoa, haverá sincera lástima, tristeza devido ao proceder errado. O apreço pela bondade e grandeza de Deus fará com que os transgressores sintam vívido remorso por terem lançado vitupério sobre Seu nome. (Veja Jó 42:1-6.) O amor ao próximo fará também que lamentem o dano causado a outros, o mau exemplo dado, talvez a forma como mancharam a reputação do povo de Deus entre as pessoas de fora. Procuram o perdão porque desejam honrar o nome de Deus e trabalhar para o bem de seu próximo. (1Rs 8:33, 34; Sal 25:7-11; 51:11-15; Da 9:18, 19) Penitentemente, sentem-se com o "coração quebrantado", 'quebrantados e humildes no espírito' (Sal 34:18; 51:17; Is 57:15), sentem-se 'contritos no espírito e tremendo da palavra' de Deus, o que requer arrependimento (Is 66:2), e, na realidade, vêm "trêmulos a Jeová e à sua bondade". (Os 3:5) Quando Davi agiu tolamente na questão do recenseamento, seu 'coração começou a bater nele'. — 2Sa 24:10.

Por conseguinte, precisa haver a decidida rejeição do proceder ruim, um ódio de coração a ele, repugnância a ele (Sal 97:10; 101:3; 119:104; Ro 12:9; compare isso com He 1:9; Ju 23), pois "o temor de Jeová significa odiar o mal", inclusive a exaltação de si próprio, o orgulho, o caminho mau e a boca perversa. (Pr 8:13; 4:24) Junto com isto, precisa haver o amor à justiça e a firme determinação de se aderir dali em diante a um proceder justo. Sem haver tanto este ódio ao que é mau, como o amor à justiça, não haverá força genuína para o arrependimento, nem se seguirá a verdadeira conversão. Assim, o Rei Roboão humilhou-se sob a expressão do furor de Jeová, mas, depois, Roboão "fez o que era mau, pois não fixara firmemente seu coração em buscar a Jeová". — 2Cr 12:12-14; compare isso com Os 6:4-6.

Tristeza de modo piedoso, não a do mundo. O apóstolo Paulo, em sua segunda carta aos coríntios, refere-se à "tristeza de modo piedoso" que eles expressaram como resultado da repreensão que lhes dera na sua primeira carta. (2Co 7:8-13) Ele 'deplorara' (me·ta·mé·lo·mai) ter de escrever-lhes tão severamente e causar-lhes dor, mas deixou de sentir qualquer lástima ao ver que a tristeza que sua censura produziu foi da espécie piedosa, levando ao sincero arrependimento (me·tá·noi·a) da atitude e do proceder errados deles. Ele sabia que a dor que lhes causara operava para o bem deles e não lhes causaria 'nenhum dano'. A tristeza que levava ao arrependimento tampouco era algo que eles devessem deplorar, pois os manteve no caminho da salvação; salvou-os do desvio ou da apostasia, e deu-lhes esperança de vida eterna. Ele contrasta esta tristeza com "a tristeza do mundo [que] produz a morte". Esta não provém da fé e do amor a Deus e à justiça. A tristeza do mundo, resultante do fracasso, do desapontamento, da perda, da punição pelo erro, e da vergonha (veja Pr 5:3-14, 22, 23; 25:8-10), frequentemente vem acompanhada, ou produz, amargura, ressentimento, inveja; e não resulta em nenhum benefício duradouro, em nenhuma melhora, em nenhuma esperança genuína. (Veja Pr 1:24-32; 1Te 4:13, 14.) A tristeza mundana lamenta as consequências desagradáveis do pecado, mas não o próprio pecado e o vitupério que lança sobre o nome de Deus. — Is 65:13-15; Je 6:13-15, 22-26; Re 18:9-11, 15, 17-19; contraste isso com Ez 9:4.

Isto é ilustrado pelo caso de Caim, o primeiro a ser exortado por Deus a se arrepender. Caim foi divinamente avisado a 'voltar-se para fazer o bem', para que não fosse dominado pelo pecado. Em vez de se arrepender de seu ódio assassino, deixou que este o motivasse a matar seu irmão. Interrogado por Deus, deu uma resposta evasiva, e apenas quando se proferiu a sentença sobre ele é que expressou alguma lástima — lástima da severidade da punição, não do erro cometido. (Gên 4:5-14) Mostrou assim "que se originou do iníquo". — 1Jo 3:12.

Esaú também expressou tristeza mundana, ao saber que seu irmão, Jacó, recebera a bênção do primogênito (direito que Esaú vendera insensivelmente a Jacó). (Gên 25:29-34) Esaú clamou "de maneira extremamente alta e amargurada", com lágrimas, buscando o "arrependimento" (me·tá·noi·a) — não o seu próprio, mas uma "mudança de pensamento" por parte de seu pai. (Gên 27:34; He 12:17, Int) Deplorou a sua perda, não a atitude materialista que o fez 'desprezar a primogenitura'. — Gên 25:34.

Judas, depois de ter traído a Jesus, "sentiu remorso [forma de me·ta·mé·lo·mai]", tentou devolver o suborno que havia negociado, e, depois disso, cometeu suicídio por se enforcar. (Mt 27:3-5) A enormidade de seu crime, e, provavelmente, a certeza horrível do julgamento divino contra ele evidentemente o venceram. (Veja He 10:26, 27, 31; Tg 2:19.) Sentiu o remorso da culpa, do desengano, até do desespero, mas não há nada que indique que expressou a tristeza piedosa que leva ao arrependimento (me·tá·noi·a). Ele procurou, não a Deus, mas os líderes judeus para confessar-lhes seu pecado, devolvendo o dinheiro, evidentemente com a ideia errada de que poderia, desta forma, desfazer em certa medida o seu crime. (Veja Tg 5:3, 4; Ez 7:19.) Adicionou ao crime de traição e de contribuir para a morte dum homem inocente o de matar a si mesmo. Seu proceder se contrasta com o de Pedro, cujo choro amargo, depois de ter negado o seu Senhor, provinha dum arrependimento de coração, que levou ao seu restabelecimento. — Mt 26:75; compare isso com Lu 22:31, 32.

A lástima, o remorso e as lágrimas, portanto, não são uma medida segura do genuíno arrependimento; a motivação de coração é o fator determinante. Oseias expressa a denúncia de Jeová contra Israel, pois, na aflição deles "não clamaram a [Ele] por socorro de seu coração, embora continuassem uivando sobre as suas camas. Estavam vadiando por causa do seu cereal e do seu vinho doce . . . E passaram a retornar, não a algo mais elevado." Seus gemidos por alívio em tempos de calamidade tinham motivação egoísta, e, quando lhes era concedido alívio, não aproveitavam a oportunidade para aprimorar sua relação com Deus por aderirem mais de perto às Suas elevadas normas (veja Is 55:8-11); eram como um "arco frouxo" que jamais atinge o alvo. (Os 7:14-16; compare isso com Sal 78:57; Tg 4:3.) O jejum, o pranto e a lamentação eram apropriados — mas apenas se os arrependidos 'rasgassem os seus corações' e não simplesmente as suas vestes. — Jl 2:12, 13; veja JEJUM; PRANTO.

Confissão de erro. O arrependido, então, humilha-se e busca a face de Deus (2Cr 7:13, 14; 33:10-13; Tg 4:6-10), suplicando Seu perdão. (Mt 6:12) Não é como o fariseu justo aos seus próprios olhos, da ilustração de Jesus, mas como o coletor de impostos, a quem Jesus representou como batendo no peito e dizendo: "Ó Deus, sê clemente para comigo pecador." (Lu 18:9-14) O apóstolo João diz: "Se fizermos a declaração: 'Não temos pecado', estamos desencaminhando a nós mesmos e a verdade não está em nós. Se confessarmos os nossos pecados, ele é fiel e justo para nos perdoar os nossos pecados e para nos purificar de toda a injustiça." (1Jo 1:8, 9) "Quem encobre as suas transgressões não será bem-sucedido, mas, ter-se-á misericórdia com aquele que as confessa e abandona." — Pr 28:13; compare isso com Sal 32:3-5; Jos 7:19-26; 1Ti 5:24.

A oração de Daniel, em Daniel 9:15-19, é modelo duma confissão sincera, expressando primariamente preocupação para com o nome de Jeová e baseando seu rogo "não . . . segundo os nossos atos justos . . . mas segundo as tuas muitas misericórdias". Veja também a expressão humilde do filho pródigo. (Lu 15:17-21) Os sinceramente arrependidos 'elevam o coração junto com as palmas das mãos a Deus', confessando sua transgressão e pedindo perdão. — La 3:40-42.

Confessar pecados uns aos outros. O discípulo Tiago aconselha: "Confessai abertamente os vossos pecados uns aos outros, e orai uns pelos outros, para que sejais sarados." (Tg 5:16) Tal confissão não é porque algum humano sirva de "ajudador ["advogado", Al]" para o homem perante Deus, visto que apenas Cristo preenche esse papel, em virtude de seu sacrifício propiciatório. (1Jo 2:1, 2) Os humanos, por si mesmos, não podem realmente corrigir o erro para com Deus, nem em seu próprio favor, nem em favor de outros, pois não podem prover a expiação necessária. (Sal 49:7, 8) Os cristãos, porém, podem ajudar-se uns aos outros, e suas orações a favor de seus irmãos, embora não influam na aplicação da justiça por parte de Deus (visto que apenas o resgate de Cristo serve para remir pecados), deveras contam perante Deus ao solicitarem que Ele conceda a ajuda e as forças necessárias àquele que pecou e que procura auxílio. — Veja ORAÇÃO (A Resposta às Orações).

Conversão — Um Retorno. O arrependimento assinala a interrupção do proceder errado da pessoa, a rejeição deste modo errado de agir e a determinação de seguir o proceder correto. Se for genuíno, portanto, seguir-se-á a "conversão". (At 15:3) Tanto em hebraico como em grego, os verbos relacionados com a conversão (hebr.: shuv; gr.: stré·fo; e·pi·stré·fo) significam simplesmente "re[tornar], dar meia-volta ou voltar[-se]". (Gên 18:10; Pr 15:1; Je 18:4; Jo 12:40; 21:20; At 15:36) Usado em sentido espiritual, pode referir-se quer a desviar-se de Deus (portanto, retornar a um proceder pecaminoso [Núm 14:43; De 30:17]), quer a retornar a Deus, recuando dum proceder errado. — 1Rs 8:33.

A conversão subentende mais do que uma simples atitude ou expressão verbal; envolve as "obras próprias de arrependimento". (At 26:20; Mt 3:8) É uma ativa 'procura', 'busca', 'indagação' por Jeová de todo o coração e toda a alma. (De 4:29; 1Rs 8:48; Je 29:12-14) Isto, necessariamente, significa buscar o favor de Deus por "escutar a sua voz", segundo expressa na Palavra dele (De 4:30; 30:2, 8), 'mostrar perspicácia quanto à sua veracidade' através de melhor entendimento e apreço de seus modos e de sua vontade (Da 9:13), observar e "guardar" seus mandamentos (Ne 1:9; De 30:10; 2Rs 23:24, 25), 'guardar a benevolência e a justiça' e 'constantemente esperar em Deus' (Os 12:6), abandonar o uso de imagens religiosas ou a idolatria de criaturas, de modo a 'dirigir o coração inabalavelmente para Jeová e servir somente a ele' (1Sa 7:3; At 14:11-15; 1Te 1:9, 10), e andar nos Seus caminhos e não no caminho das nações (Le 20:23), ou no seu próprio caminho. (Is 55:6-8) Orações, sacrifícios, jejuns e a observância de festividades sagradas não têm significado ou valor algum perante Deus, a menos que venham acompanhados de boas obras, da justiça, da eliminação da opressão e da violência, e do exercício da misericórdia. — Is 1:10-19; 58:3-7; Je 18:11.

Isto exige "um novo coração e um novo espírito" (Ez 18:31); a modificação do modo de pensar, da motivação e do objetivo na vida da pessoa, produz uma nova atitude mental, uma nova disposição e uma nova força moral. Para alguém que muda seu proceder na vida, o resultado é uma "nova personalidade, que foi criada segundo a vontade de Deus, em verdadeira justiça e lealdade" (Ef 4:17-24), livre da imoralidade, da cobiça, bem como da linguagem e da conduta violentas. (Col 3:5-10; contraste isso com Os 5:4-6.) Para tais pessoas, Deus faz com que o espírito de sabedoria 'borbulhe', tornando-lhes conhecidas as Suas palavras. — Pr 1:23; compare isso com 2Ti 2:25.

De modo que o arrependimento genuíno causa um verdadeiro impacto, gera forças, motiva a pessoa a 'dar meia-volta'. (At 3:19) Por isso Jesus podia dizer aos de Laodiceia: "Sê zeloso e arrepende-te." (Re 3:19; compare isso com Re 2:5; 3:2, 3.) Há evidência de 'grande seriedade, reabilitação, temor piedoso, saudade e o endireitamento do errado'. (2Co 7:10, 11) A ausência da preocupação de corrigir os erros cometidos demonstra falta do verdadeiro arrependimento. — Veja Ez 33:14, 15; Lu 19:8.

A expressão "homem recém-convertido", "neófito" (Al), em grego (ne·ó·fy·tos) significa literalmente "recém-plantado" ou "recém-crescido". (1Ti 3:6) A tal homem não deveriam ser designados deveres ministeriais numa congregação, para que não se 'enfunasse de orgulho e caísse no julgamento aplicado ao Diabo'.

Quais são as "obras mortas" de que os cristãos devem arrepender-se?

